47. And all that heard him were aſtoniſhed at his underſtanding and anſwers.

48. And when they ſaw him, they were amazed; and his mother ſaid to him, Son, why haſt thou dealt thus with us? Behold, thy father and I have ſought thee ſorrowing.

49. And he ſaid to them, How is it that ye ſought me? wiſt ye not that I muſt be about my my Fathers [x] buſineſs? (Gr. in my Fathers houſe.)

50. And they underſtood not the ſaying which he ſpake to them.

51. And he went down with them, and came to Nazareth, and was ſubject to them; but his mother kept all theſe ſayings in her heart.

52. And Jeſus [y] increaſed in wiſdom, and ſtature, and in favour with God and man.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. II.

Ver. 1. [a] Ἀπογράφεσθαι πᾶσαν τὴν οἰκουμένην, That all the world ſhould be taxed.] Not only the Roman empire, but all the precedent empires were ſtiled οἰκουμένη, the world; and the governors of them were ſaid πάσης ἐπικρατῆσαι τῆς οἰκουμένης, to rule over the whole world. See the note on Heb. 2. 5. Hence the council of God againſt the empire of Babylon is ſtiled his council ἐπὶ τὴν ὅλην οἰκουμένην, againſt all the earth. Her deſolation is repreſented as the deſolation ὅλης τῆς οἰκουμένης, of the whole world; and the evil brought upon her, as evils which extended τῇ οἰκουμένῃ ὅλῃ, to the whole world, Iſa. 14. 17, 26.

Ver. 2. [b] Αὕτη ἡ ἀπογραφὴ πρώτη ἐγένετο ἡγεμονεύοντος τῆς Συρίας Κυρηνίου, Now this taxing was firſt made when (or was before that when) Cyrenius was governor of Syria.] I dare not allow of the boldneſs of thoſe critics, who for Κυρηνίου, read Κυιντιλίου, or Σατορνίνου, there being no footſteps of any ſuch reading, either in antient writers, verſions or MSS. and were they placed for conjecture here, I would rather read πρὸ τοῦ than πρώτη; as if the evangeliſt ſhould ſay, this taxing or enrolling was before that which was made by Cyrenius, that being ſo unhappy and pernicious to the (a) Jews, by reaſon of the ſedition then raiſed, upon occaſion of the tax, by Judas Gaulonites, and which, ſaith (b) Joſephus, gave the riſe to all their future troubles.

Now this, ſaith Joſephus, was after Judæa was made προσθήκη τῆς Συρίας, an addition to the province of Syria, and when Archelaus was baniſhed; and ſo above ten years after that mentioned here, as done at our Saviour's birth, and fit to be thus ſeparated from that which was attended with thoſe ill effects, this being in deſign highly ſalutary, that being very fatal to the Jewiſh nation. But neither do we need this criticiſm, ſince the words πρῶτος and πρότερος are by the Seventy oft uſed according to this ſenſe: of the word πρότερον, this is beyond doubt, God ſaying twice ἀποστελῶ ἐγκλίας לִפְנֵיךָ σφηκίας, I will ſend hornets before thee, Exod. 23. 28. Joſh. 24. 12. In which ſenſe you will find this word above twenty times in Kircher's concordance, in the word פָּנָה. That πρῶτος alſo is uſed in the ſenſe of priority, we learn from theſe inſtances, πρωΐτερός ἐσω ἢ ἐγώ, Heb. אֲנִי מִמֶּךָּ I am before thee, I am elder than thou; καὶ ἵνα τί οὐκ ἐλογίσθη ὁ λόγος μου πρῶτός; Chal. מִדְּמֵימְתָּא לִי why then was not the word firſt ſpoken to me? cur mihi non annuntiatum eſt priori? 2 Sam. 19. 43. Iſa. 65. 16. The former troubles are forgotten, Gr. ἐπιλήσονται τὴν θλῖψιν αὐτῶν τὴν πρώτην; and ver. 17. οὐ μὴ μνησθῶσι τῶν πρώτων, they ſhall not remember the former. So John 1. 15, 30. ὅτι πρῶτός μου ἦν, for he was before me; and chap. 15. 18. know that they hated ἐμὲ πρῶτον, me before you, 1 Cor. 14. 30. ὁ πρῶτος, let the former hold his peace; and 1 John 4. 19. we love him, ὅτι πρῶτος, becauſe he loved us before; and in Ariſtophanes, ἀλλ' οὐκ ἂν πρώτη is interpreted, ἀλλ' οὐκ ἂν πρότερον, Neph. p. 122. And ſo Theophylact interprets the word here, τελείαν ἀπογραφὴν ἐμνεύσατο, ἦν πρότερον ἢ ἀπεμάνατο τῆς Συρίας Κυρήνιος. As for this ἀπογραφή, that it was not a money-tax, but an enrolling of perſons according to their families and eſtates, ſee Dr Hammond, note B.

Ver. 4. [c] Ἀνέβη καὶ Ἰωσὴφ, And Joſeph went up from Galilee—to the city of David called Bethlehem.] Here, 1. Interpreters obſerve, that ἀναβαίνειν, to aſcend or go up, does not always ſignify to go from a lower to an higher place, but to go from one place to another, as Judg. 16. 18. 2*dly*, That admirable was the providence of God in ordering this enrolment, intended by Auguſtus to be done before, to be deferred to this very time, that ſo Chriſt might be born in Bethlehem, according to the prediction of the prophet Micah, chap. 5. 2. And, 3*dly*, That the ſtock and family of Chriſt muſt, at that time, be known and preſerved in the public tables, as Juſtin M. Tertullian, and Chryſoſtom, Hom. 8. in Matth. teſtify.

Ibid. [d] Εἰς πόλιν Δαβίδ, To the city of David.] That muſterings and enrollings, as in other nations, ſo eſpecially in Judæa, were made according to their tribes, cities, and families, we learn from the ſortition which Joſhua made by tribes, families, and houſholds, Joſh. 7. 14. Now this could not be done, eſpecially after their manifold diſperſions, unleſs every one went to that city to which their family belonged.

(b) Καὶ τῶν αὖθις κακῶν κατελήψεσθαι ῥίζας ἐφύτευσαν. Ibid.

Ver. 5. [e] Σὺν Μαριὰμ τῇ μεμνηστευμένῃ αὐτῷ γυναικὶ, With Mary his eſpouſed wife.] She was not only eſpouſed now, but married alſo to him, but is ſtill called eſpouſed, becauſe Joſeph uſed her as ſuch, not knowing her till ſhe had brought forth τὸν υἱὸν αὐτῆς τὸν πρωτότοκον, her firſt-born ſon, Matth. 1. 25. See the note there. Moreover, hence it is probably collected, that the bleſſed virgin Mary was alſo of the houſe and family of David, as hath been ſhewed, note on Luke 1. 27. for if he went to Bethlehem to be enrolled, becauſe he was of the houſe and family of David, ſhe muſt go thither for the ſame reaſon alſo, nam alioqui ipſa in familiæ ſuæ urbe profiteri debuerat, for otherwiſe, ſaith Grotius, ſhe ought to have been enrolled in the city of her own family, and not at Bethlehem; for it is ſaid, ver. 3. that all (men and women) went to be taxed, every one in his own city.

Ver. 7. [e e] Καὶ ἐσπαργάνωσεν, And ſhe wrapped him in ſwaddling-clothes.] By doing this herſelf, it is thought her labour was without the uſual pangs of child-bed.

Ver. 8. [f] Καὶ ποιμένες ἦσαν—φυλάσσοντες φυλακὰς τῆς νυκτὸς, &c.] And there were ſhepherds—keeping watch over their flock, or the watches of the night over their flock.] Here note, 1. That as Abraham and David, to whom the promiſe of the Meſſiah was firſt made, were ſhepherds, ſo was the completion of this promiſe firſt revealed to ſhepherds. 2. The watches of the night were four; the firſt of them is mentioned, Lam. 2. 19. the ſecond and third, Luke 12. 38. and the fourth, Matth. 14. 25. being the morning watch, Exod. 14. 24. Theſe flocks being kept in the field, they watched ſeverally in their courſes to preſerve them from thieves and wild beaſts, and had their little cottages erected for that purpoſe.

Ver. 9. [g] Καὶ ἡ δόξα Κυρίου περιέλαμψεν αὐτοὺς, And the glory of the Lord ſhone round about them:] i. e. Not only a great light, but ſuch a glorious ſplendour as uſeth to repreſent the preſence of God: of which ſee note on Philip. 2. 6. Heb. 1. 3. and was oft attended with an hoſt of angels, as here, ver. 13. ſtiled the heavenly hoſt, 1 Kings 22. 19. Neh. 9. 6. Pſal. 103. 20. who, as they ſang together at the firſt creation, Job 38. 7. ſo do they now at the redemption of the world, praiſing God, and ſaying,

Ver. 14. [h] Δόξα ἐν ὑψίστοις Θεῷ, καὶ ἐπὶ γῆς εἰρήνη, ἐν ἀνθρώποις εὐδοκία, Glory to God on high, and on earth peace, good-will towards men.] Here note, 1. That this is not an hymn of prayer, that glory may be given to God, peace may be upon earth, &c. but rather a declaratory hymn of glory due to God for what he had done already: for the angels are ſaid to praiſe God, ſaying, Glory, &c. Now praiſe is for what is done already. 2. Some obſerving that καὶ is ſometimes caſual, and ſignifies for, give the ſenſe of this hymn thus, Glory be to God, becauſe by the birth of this Saviour, who is our peace, Eph. 2. 14. there will be peace on earth, and the good-will of God to man is manifeſted. Others thus, The good-will of God to man, ſhewed in the incarnation of our Saviour, is matter to him of the higheſt glory, and the foundation of our peace on earth. And becauſe ſome copies read ἐν ἀνθρώποις εὐδοκίας, to men of good-will, ſome following that reading give the ſenſe thus, Peace will be on earth to men whom God accepts; but this is leſs to be regarded, becauſe all the Greek fathers, Orig. in Joan. 11. 14. Euſeb. demonſtr. evang. l. 4. c. 10. p. 163. Epiph. Hær. 30. § 29. Conſtit. apoſt. l. 7. c. 47. read otherwiſe. See examen Millii in locum.

Ver. 21. [i] Καὶ ὅτι ἐπλήσθησαν ἡμέραι ὀκτὼ τοῦ περιτεμεῖν τὸ παιδίον, And when eight days were accompliſhed, for the circumciſing the child:] That is, not when the eighth day was ended, but when it was come; ſo ver. 22. ſo Acts 2. 1. ἐν τῷ συμπληροῦσθαι, when the day of pentecoſt was come. Now Chriſt was circumciſed, that he might wear the badge of a child of Abraham, and that he might be made under the law, to redeem them that were under the law, Gal. 4. 4. καὶ ἐκλήθη, and then was his name called Jeſus. So καὶ ſignifies, Gen. 24. 41.—28. 21.—31. 8.—42. 34, 38. Exod. 7. 9. Lev. 4. 3, 14, 23, 28. Num. 5. 15, 21. Deut. 6. 21.—8. 10. Joſh. 1. 15.—24. 20. 1 Sam. 1. 11. Matth. 9. 7. Luke 2. 28.

Ver. 22. [k] Καὶ ὅτε ἐπλήσθησαν αἱ ἡμέραι τοῦ καθαρισμοῦ αὐτῆς—αὐτῶν, And when the days of her purification, according to the law of Moſes, were accompliſhed.] I formerly thought that the reading her purification, and not the purification of them both, was to be retained, that only being agreeable to the law, and to the verſion of the Seventy; becauſe the law of purification belonged only to the mother, who, till that time, remained ἐν αἵματι ἀκαθάρτῳ αὐτῆς, in the blood of her impurity, till the days καθάρσεως αὐτῆς, of her purifying were fulfilled, Lev. 12. 4, 5. Then, ſaith the text, ſhall ſhe bring her offering, and the prieſt ἐξιλάσεται περὶ αὐτῆς καὶ καθαρεῖ αὐτήν, ſhall make an atonement for her, and ſhe ſhall be cleanſed from the iſſue of her blood; this is the law for her that hath born a male or female, ver. 7, 8. but I have ſince found cauſe to judge otherwiſe; for that the antient reading was αὐτῶν is evident from theſe words of (*) Origen, Si ſcriptum eſſet propter purgationem ejus, i. e. Mariæ, nihil quæſtionis oriretur, et audacter diceremus Mariam quæ homo erat purgatione indiguiſſe poſt partum, nunc vero in eo quod ait, dies purgationis eorum, non videtur videtur unum significare, sed alterum, sive plures. So also read St Jerome, con. Helvid. tom. 2. F. 7. lit. A. Euthymius, Theophylact, and the Syriac version: nor is there any fear of ascribing any moral impurity to the holy Jesus by allowing this reading, since this purgation imports only a compliance with a ceremonial law, in order to their admittance into the congregation of God's people, to which Christ, being made of a woman, made under the law, was to submit, that he might fulfil all righteousness; on which account also he was made relatively holy, by being consecrated to the Lord, according to the law concerning every male that openeth the womb, ver. 23.

Ver. 23. [l] Πᾶν ἄρσεν διανοῖγον μήτραν, Every male that openeth the womb.] The words of the law, concerning every male that openeth the womb, being here applied to the blessed virgin bringing forth her first-born, sufficiently confirm the assertion of (c) Irenæus, (d) Tertullian, (e) Origen, and others of the fathers cited by Petavius, that she brought forth Christ after the usual manner; and yet the contrary opinion, though built upon fables, and superstitious imaginations, and spurious authorities, prevailed almost generally in the 4th and 5th centuries. See the treatise of traditions, part 1. c. 1. § 4.

Ver. 24. [m] Καὶ δοῦναι θυσίαν—ζεῦγος τρυγόνων, And to offer—a pair of turtles.] This being the oblation appointed only for the poor, Lev. 12. 6, 8. discovers the poverty of Joseph and Mary, that they could not reach to a lamb of the first year, the offering which they who had ability were to make.

Ver. 25. [n] Προσδεχόμενος τὴν παράκλησιν τοῦ Ἰσραήλ, Waiting for the consolation of Israel.] This was the familiar phrase they used when they spake of the coming of the Messiah; to see those days being, in their way of speaking, to see the consolation of Israel, or the years of the consolation to come. See the Targum on Isa. 4. 3. on Jer. 31. 6. and 2 Sam. 23. 1. and they were wont, saith Dr Lightfoot, to swear by their desire to see this consolation.

Ibid. [o] Καὶ πνεῦμα ἅγιον ἦν ἐπ' αὐτόν, And the Holy Ghost was upon him;] i. e. He had received the gift of prophecy: for that having ceased 400 years, began to dawn again at the birth of the Messiah, in some pious persons, as Zachary, Simeon, and Anna the daughter of Phanuel.

Ver. 29. [p] Νῦν ἀπολύεις, Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart.] Here Grotius well notes, that ἀπολύειν and ἀπόλυσις, both in sacred and profane authors, signify to depart out of this life, or to die; as when Abraham says, ἐγὼ ἀπολύομαι ἄτεκνος, I die childless, Gen. 15. 2. ἀπελύθη Ἀαρών, Aaron died, Numb. 20. 29. thus Tobit prays, Command my spirit to be taken from me, ὅπως ἀπολυθῶ, that I may be dissolved, ἐπίταξον ἐπιλυθῆναί με, Tob. 3. 6. and Sarah saith, εἶπον ἀπολύσαί με ἀπὸ τῆς γῆς, ver. 13. I desired God to take me from the earth; and one of the seven children saith to the tyrant, σὺ ἐκ τῆς παρούσης ἡμᾶς ζωῆς ἀπολύεις, thou takest away our present life. Thus saith (f) Lycon, this is my testament, μετὰ τὴν ἐμὴν ἀπόλυσιν, after my dissolution. (g) Themistius notes, that it was customary to some to call death ἀπόλυσις, and to say of them that they did ἀπολύειν. So (h) Theophrastus calls death ἀπόλυσις; and (i) Heraclitus saith, perhaps the soul presageth ἀπόλυσιν αὐτῆς, her dissolution; all which expressions confirm the old tradition of the distinction of the soul from the body, and her continuance in a state of separation.

Ver. 30. [q] Ὅτι εἶδον ὀφθαλμοί μου τὸ σωτήριόν σου, For mine eyes have seen thy salvation.] So the deliverance God sent to his people is called σωτήριον τοῦ Θεοῦ, the salvation of God, Psal. 98. 3. how much more may the salvation sent by Christ be stiled, as it is emphatically, ὁ σωτηρία, the salvation, Isa. 49. 6.—52. 7. yea σωτηρία ἀπὸ τοῦ Θεοῦ, salvation from God, ver. 10.

Ver. 32 [r] Φῶς εἰς ἀποκάλυψιν ἐθνῶν, A light to enlighten the Gentiles.] It is wonderful, that, after so many clear prophesies in the Old Testament of the calling of the Gentiles, the Jews should have been all so blind as to imagine God had no kindness for them, Acts 10. 45.—11. 18.

Ver. 34. [s] Οὗτος κεῖται εἰς πτῶσιν καὶ ἀνάστασιν, This child is set for the fall and rising of many in Israel.] Doubtless God's first design in sending his Son into the world was, that through him the world might be saved, John 3. 16. and he was designed especially to save his people from their sins, and be an horn of salvation to them, Luke 1. 69. but to persons who were worldly-minded, and had no relish for spiritual things, which was the case of the generality of the Jews, who were much given to the flesh, as Tacitus observes of them, who were puffed up with a vain conceit of their own wisdom and singular piety, full of vain glory, greedy of empire and applause, and affected with worldly pomp and and grandeur, as were the ſcribes and Phariſees, and rulers of the people; he was to be a ſtone of ſtumbling, and a rock of offence, becauſe theſe things obſtructed their reception of his doctrine and ſpiritual kingdom, ſo different from that which they expected; and to diſcover who had hearts well diſpoſed to embrace his doctrine upon conviction, and who by thoſe prejudices and corrupt affections would ſhut their eyes againſt the light, is here to manifeſt the thoughts of mens hearts by their actions. When Simeon adds, καὶ σοῦ δὲ αὐτῆς τὴν ψυχὴν διελεύσεται ῥομφαία, and a ſword ſhall paſs through thine own ſoul; though grief is ſaid to pierce as with a ſword, both in profane authors and in the Pſalmiſt, Pſal. 42. 10. yet, ſeeing this comes not up to the heighth of this expreſſion, this ſeemeth rather to reſpect her martyrdom, or being taken away by death, ſaith Epiphanius, ὡς γέγραπται, as it is written, a ſword ſhall paſs through her ſoul, or herſelf. Hæreſ. 78. § 32.

Ver. 36, 37. [t] Anna a propheteſs of the tribe of Aſer, a widow of about 84 years, καὶ αὐτὴ προσεκαρτέρει τῷ ἱερῷ, and ſhe departed not from the temple, but ſerved God with faſtings and prayers night and day.] Note, 1. That this fourſcore and four years muſt be reckoned, not from the beginning of her widowhood, but of her life, otherwiſe ſhe muſt be a very decripit woman, not able to faſt after this manner. And, 2. She is ſaid to be always in the temple, becauſe ſhe was conſtantly there at the hours of prayer. So Aaron and his ſons are bid not to go out of the door of the tabernacle, Lev. 10. 7. i. e. not to do it during the time of their miniſtry.

Ver. 38. [u] Ἐπὶ αὐτῇ τῇ ὥρᾳ ἐπιστᾶσα τῷ θεῷ ἀνθωμολογεῖτο καὶ ἐλάλει περὶ αὐτοῦ πᾶσι τοῖς προσδεχομένοις λύτρωσιν ἐν Ἰερουσαλήμ, She ſpake of him to all that looked for redemption in Jeruſalem.] This being the time when the whole Jewiſh nation was looking for the conſolation of Iſrael, ver. 25. for redemption here, and even the ſcribes and Phariſees expected that the kingdom of God ſhould immediately appear; and this being, ſay (k) Tacitus and (l) Suetonius, the old and conſtant opinion which had obtained through the Eaſt, ut eo tempore Judea profecti rerum potirentur, that ſome, or rather one out of Judea ſhould obtain the government of the world, as Joſephus hath it; we may be certain that the Jews of that age did ſo interpret the prophecies concerning their Meſſiah, as agreeing only to the time when our Chriſt did come, and when Simeon was aſſured by the Holy Ghoſt that this Meſſiah was to come. This, ſaith (m) Joſephus, πολλοὶ τῶν σοφῶν, many of our wiſe men gathered from the ſacred oracles. And, indeed, this ſeemed ſo certain, that though they rejected our Jeſus, yet the fable ſoon obtained among them, that their Meſſiah was or might be come, though for a ſeaſon he lay hid by reaſon of their ſins; as we learn from (n) Trypho, and the (o) Targum of Jonathan.

Ver. 40. See additions. N°. 4.

Ver. 46. [w] Μετὰ ἡμέρας τρεῖς, after three days, they found him; i. e. the third day; for they journeyed one day, returned to Jeruſalem the ſecond, and found him the third.

Ver. 47. See additions, N°. 5.

Ver. 49. [x] Ἐν τοῖς τοῦ πατρός μου δεῖ εἶναί με, I ought to be in my Father's houſe.] So Origen, Dionyſius Alexandrinus, Titus Boſtrenſis, Chryſoſtom, Euthymius, and Theophylact. See Dr Hammond here; for as ἐν τοῖς τοῦ Διός, in Joſephus, is to be in the temple of Jupiter, ſo to be ἐν τοῖς τοῦ πατρός μου, muſt ſignify to be in the temple of his Father, where they found him.

Ver. 52. [y] Καὶ Ἰησοῦς προέκοπτε σοφίᾳ, &c. And Jeſus increaſed in wiſdom and ſtature, &c.] Vain, hence, is the concluſion of Wolzogenius, that Chriſt could not be God, becauſe he cannot wax ſtrong in ſpirit, either by advancing in the perfections of his mind, or by the teachings of the Spirit, as Chriſt did; or increaſe in wiſdom, this being ſpoken of Chriſt only according to his human nature; theſe being, ſay the (p) fathers, τὰ ἀνθρωπίνης δηλώματα, the indications of his humanity, and are to be underſtood κατ' ἀνθρωπίνην ψυχὴν, according to his human ſoul. And though the λόγος was united to the human ſoul from his conception, yet might the Divinity, or the Holy Ghoſt, manifeſt itſelf to the human nature as it thought fit, and, by degrees, inſinuate into it its gifts and illuminations, as St Luke here teacheth: ſo that we need not ſay, with others, Chriſt did not really increaſe in wiſdom, but only ſeem to others ſo to do; for ſeeing the evangeliſt here joins three things together, his increaſe in age and ſtature, in favour with men, and in wiſdom, as he increaſed truly and literally in the two firſt, ſo ſeems he to have done alſo as to his wiſdom, and the endowments of his mind.

CHAP. III.

1. NOW in the fifteenth year of Tiberius Cæsar, Pontius Pilate being governor (or procurator) of Judea, and Herod being tetrarch of Galilee, and his brother Philip (being) tetrarch of Iturea, and of the region of Trachonitis, and Lysanias (being) tetrarch, (i. e. governor of a fourth division of the kingdom, named) of (the city Abila.) Abilene.

2. [a] Annas and Caiaphas being the high priests, (to whom were committed the civil and ecclesiastical government of the Jews according to their laws; Annas being the ruler of the people, Acts 23. 5. and Caiaphas the father of the Sanhedrim,) [b] the word of God came to John the son of Zacharias in the wilderness.

3. And he (having received this commission from God,) came into all the country about Jordan, preaching the baptism of repentance, for (procuring to them) the remission of (their) sins.

4. (And he came) as it is written in the book of the words of Isaias the prophet, saying (of him, chap. 40. 3. This is) the voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight, (for the coming of king Messiah.)

5. [c] Every valley shall be filled, and every mountain and hill shall be brought low; and (the ways that are) crooked shall be made straight, and the rough way shall be made smooth; (as it useth to be when great kings take a journey into any part of their dominions.)

6. [d] And all flesh shall see (the Messiah, who is emphatically stiled, Isa. 49. 6.----52. 7, 10.) the salvation of God, (see note on chap. 2. 30.)

7. Then said he to the multitude that came forth to be baptized of him, (but more especially to the Pharisees and Sadducees, Matth. 3. 7.) [e] O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath (which is) to come (upon this nation?)

8. Bring forth therefore, (if you indeed desire to escape this wrath,) fruits worthy of repentance: and begin not (or be not willing in lieu of it) to say within yourselves, We have Abraham to our father, (and so by that have a sufficient right to the blessings of the Messiah promised to him and his seed;) for I say to you, that (if ye repent not, you are to be cut off; and think not that you being so, no children of Abraham will be found, to whom this promise can be made good, for) God is able of these stones to raise up children to Abraham: (See note on Matth. 3. 9.)

9. And (to excite you to this repentance, know that even) now also the ax is laid to the root of the trees; every tree therefore that bringeth not forth good fruit, is (to be) hewn down, and cast into the fire.

10. And the people asked him, saying, What shall we do then (to prevent or avert this ruin?)

11. He answereth, and saith to them, He [f] that hath two coats, let him impart to him that hath none, and he that hath meat let him do likewise; (i. e. he prescribed to them an extensive charity to all that wanted what they had to spare.)

12. Then came also publicans to be baptized, and said to him, Master, what shall we do (to escape this wrath?)

13. And he saith to them, [g] Exact no more than that which is appointed you (to receive.)

14. And the soldiers likewise demanded of him, saying, And what shall we do? and he said to them, Do [h] violence to no man, neither [i] accuse any (man) falsly, (or oppress no man,) but (and) be content with your wages.

15. And as the people were in expectation (of the promised Messiah,) and (so) all men mused in their hearts of John, [k] whether he were the Christ, or not;

16. John answered (their surmises, by) saying to them all, I indeed baptize you with water, (and by that baptism call you to repentance, to fit you to believe on the Messiah, who will suddenly reveal himself;) but one mightier than I cometh, the latchet of whose shoes I am not worthy to unloose, (i. e. whose servant I am not worthy to be,) he shall baptize you with the holy Ghost, and with fire, (i. e. in the symbol of fire.)

17. (And he will come as one) whose fan is in his hand, and he will throughly purge his floor, and gather his wheat into his garner; but the chaff he will burn with fire unquenchable.

18. And many other (such) things in his exhortation preached he to the people.

19. But Herod the tetrarch being reproved by him, for Herodias his brother Philips wife, and for all the evils which Herod had done,

20. Added yet this above (them) all, that he shut up John in prison.

21. Now when all the people were baptized, it came to pass that Jesus also being baptized, and praying, the heaven opened;

22. And the holy Ghost descended (hovering) in a [l] bodily shape like a dove upon him, and a voice voice came from heaven, which ſaid, Thou art my beloved Son, in thee I am well pleaſed.

23. And Jeſus himſelf (when he was baptized,) [m] began to be about thirty years of age, being, as (it) was ſuppoſed, the ſon of Joſeph, which was the ſon of Heli,

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. III.

Ver. 2. [a] Ἐπ' ἀρχιερέων Ἅννα καὶ Καϊάφα, Annas and Caiaphas being high prieſts.] It is a rule of the Jews, that they do not conſtitute two high prieſts together; and yet we have not only mention in (a) Joſephus of Jonathan and Ananias, Ananus and Jeſus, as high prieſts at the ſame time, but alſo of a στάσις τ ἀρχιερέων a contention of the high prieſts againſt the prieſts and chief Jews; and mention of one Jeſus as (b) γεραύτατος τ ἀρχιερέων, the eldeſt of the high prieſts after Ananus. There were then, doubtleſs, many that bore that name, even all that ever had been ſo; as we ſtill call them colonels and captains who once bore thoſe offices; and eſpecially thoſe of them who were rulers in the great ſanhedrim, their ſupreme civil judicature: but then they being many, why are theſe two only mentioned as high prieſts? To this Mr Selden anſwers, that as, in the firſt verſe, St Luke had given an account of their external government by tetrarchs and procurators, ſo in this he gives an account of that civil and ſacred government which was left to be managed by themſelves, by the ſanhedrim and high prieſt: and becauſe Annas was then their Naſi, or prince of the ſanhedrim, whence he is called the ruler of the people, Acts 23. 5. and Caiaphas was high prieſt that year, and, as he conjectures, the father of the ſanhedrim; therefore they only are here named, as having the chief authority, civil and ſacred, in their hands.

the prophets and apostles of the New Testament, on whom the Holy Ghost descended, to enable them to teach the mind of Christ to all future ages of the church, should not speak and write what they delivered as the rule of faith by like divine assistance?

Ver. 5. [c] Πᾶσα φάραγξ πληρωθήσεται, καὶ πᾶν ὄρος καὶ βουνὸς ταπεινωθήσεται, Every valley shall be filled up, and every mountain and hill shall be made low.] These words refer to a known custom of great kings, who, when they travelled any whither, ὁδοποιοι, waymen were sent before them to make plain their way, by filling up deep places, and levelling those that were high, and smoothing the places that were rough, and making straight the crooked. So Josephus saith, that when Titus came to the wars, (c) πρῆσσον μὲν βασιλικοὶ, καὶ πᾶν τὸ συμμαχικὸν ἐν οἷς ὁδοποιοὶ, there went before him all the royal aids, and all the military men, and those who plained the ways. Thus the Targum upon Canticles saith, the cloud went before the Israelites in the wilderness, three days journey, to take down their hills, and fill up their vallies before them, according to that of the psalmist, Psal. 68. 4. rendered by the Greek, ὁδοποιήσατε τῷ ἐπιβεβηκότι ἐπὶ τὴν δυσμῶν; and by Ainsworth, from the Hebrew Sollu, make an high way for him that rideth in the deserts, as the word δυσμὸς signifies, Num. 33. 48, 50.—36. 13. Deut 1. 1. Josh. 5. 10. 2 Sam. 4. 7. and this also do they still expect when they return from their captivity. Thus Baruch saith, God hath commanded, or appointed, ταπεινοῦσθαι πᾶν ὄρος ὑψηλὸν, καὶ φαράγγας πληρῆσθαι εἰς ὁμαλισμὸν τῆς γῆς, that every high mountain, and bank of long continuance, should be cast down, and every valley filled up, that Israel may go safely in the glory of God, chap. 5. 7. So that as when God led his people out of captivity, through the great desert to the land of promise, an high-way was made for him, riding in the cloud before them; so, when Christ comes to proclaim liberty to the captives to sin and Satan, and lead them through the wilderness of this world to the heavenly Canaan, a voice is again heard in the wilderness, saying, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, &c.

Ver. 6. [d] Καὶ ὄψεται πᾶσα σὰρξ τὸ σωτήριον τοῦ Θεοῦ, And all flesh shall see the salvation of God.] These words are cited from Isa. 52. 10. in which chapter the antient Jews allow that the prophet is speaking of the Messiah; the Targum on the 13th verse saying, Behold, my Servant the Messiah shall be exalted, and the apostle applying the 7th verse to the preaching of the gospel, Rom. 10. 15.

Ver. 7. [e] Γεννήματα ἐχιδνῶν, Oh generation of vipers.] What in St Matthew, chap. 3. 7. is said to be spoken to the Pharisees and Sadducees, is here said to be spoken τοῖς ὄχλοις, to the multitude coming forth to be baptized, partly because it was spoken to Pharisees mixed with the multitude, and in their audience, and agreed to them, not only as being generally of one of these two sects, but being also an adulterous generation, degenerated from the seed of Abraham to the seed of the serpent.

Ver. 11. [f] Ὁ ἔχων δύο χιτῶνας μεταδότω τῷ μὴ ἔχοντι, καὶ ὁ ἔχων βρώματα ὁμοίως ποιείτω, He that hath two coats, let him give to him that hath none; and he that hath meat, let him do likewise.] The baptist doth not here make it unlawful to have two coats; for Peter had two, Acts 12. 8. and Paul likewise, 2 Tim. 4. 13. but only saith, that he that hath one coat which his brother wants, and he at present doth not, should rather give it to him, than suffer him to be in want; and he that hath βρώματα περισσεύοντα, Meats above what he himself needs, should, in like cases, feed his hungry brother with it: teaching us, that it is not lawful for us to abound in those things which our brother wants, when we have sufficient both to relieve his and our own necessities. Nor could this precept seem hard to those philosophers who taught that ἓνι χρῆσθαι χιτῶνι ἢ δεῖσθαι δυοῖν περιττῶν, that it was better to use one coat, than to want two, Stob. ser. 1. p. 18.

Ver. 13. [g] Μηδὲν πλέον παρὰ τὸ διατεταγμένον ὑμῖν πράσσετε, Exact no more than that which is appointed you.] The office of the publicans was, to collect the tribute-money, which, in Greek, is τέλεσι φέρειν, as in Thucydides and Athenæus; and their name was infamous, saith Strabo, διὰ τὴν πλεονεξίαν, for their exacting more than they ought; saith Tacitus, ob illicitas exactiones, for their unjust exactions. See the note on Matth. 9. 11. And hence we see the reason and the pertinency of this exhortation, it being not to be expected that any one should begin to be good, till he ceaseth to be unjust.

Ver. 14. [h] Μηδένα διασείσητε, Do violence to no man.] This word primarily signifies to shake, and terrify by shaking, and so to force money from any, by fear of what they may suffer if they do not give it; and, secondarily, calumniis infectari, to calumniate a person, as in Aristophanes, in equit. p. 203. which is to shake his reputation, and so to render him obnoxious to a mulct.

Ibid. [i] Μηδὲ συκοφαντήσητε, Nor accuse any man falsely.] This word answers to the Hebrew עשק, and signifies, not only to accuse falsely, but to circumvent and oppress. So Gen. 43. 18. We are brought in, ἵνα συκοφαντήσωσιν ἡμᾶς, that he may oppress us. Job 35. 9. Ἀπὸ πλήθους συκοφαντουμένων κεκράξουσι, They shall cry for the multitude of oppressors. So

Ὁ Συκοφαντῶν πένητα, He that oppreſſeth the poor, deſpiſeth his Maker. So chap. 28. 3, 16. and Eccleſ. 4. 1. I ſaw πάσας τὰς Συκοφαντίας, all the oppreſſions that are under the ſun, and behold the tears τ̃ Συκοφαντουμένων, of thoſe that were oppreſſed, and they had no comforter; and in the hands τ̃ Συκοφαντούντων, of thoſe who did oppreſs them there was ſtrength.

Ver. 15. [k] Μήποτέ αὐτὸς εἶη ὁ Χριστὸς, Whether, or if ſo be, he were the Chriſt.] Of this ſenſe of μήποτε, ſee note on 2 Tim. 2. 25.

Ver. 22. [l] Καὶ καταβῆναι τὸ ἅγιον πνεῦμα σωματικῷ εἴδει ὡσεὶ περιστερὰν ἐπ' αὐτὸν, And the Holy Spirit deſcended upon him in a bodily ſhape as a dove;] viz. as a dove uſes to deſcend upon any thing, hovering and overſhadowing it: for that this relates not to the bodily ſhape, as if that had reſembled a dove, but to the deſcent of that bodily ſhape, is evident from this, that had it related to the firſt, it ſhould have been ὡσεὶ περιστερᾶς, as of a dove, not ὡσεὶ περιστερᾶν, as a dove. So Acts 2. 3. there appeared to them cloven tongues, ὡσεὶ πυρὸς, as of fire. This bodily ſhape ſeems rather to have been that of light, or a bright cloud, in which God uſually appeared under the Old Teſtament, and from which he ſpake, and which is uſually called ἡ δόξα τ̃ Κυρίου, the glory of the Lord. So, when the voice here mentioned was uttered a ſecond time, it is expreſly ſaid, that ἡ νεφέλη φωτεινὴ ἐπεσκίασεν αὐτοὺς, a bright cloud overſhadowed, or hovered over them, and a voice came from the cloud, Matth. 17. 5. or, as St Peter ſaith, from the magnificent glory, 2 Pet. 1. 17. And the Holy Spirit might here be ſaid to deſcend after the manner of a dove, becauſe that bird was antiently, by the Jews, looked upon as the ſymbol of the Holy Spirit. So Cant. 2. 12. The voice of the turtle is heard; that is, ſaith the Chaldie paraphraſt, קל רוחא דקודשא, the voice of the Holy Spirit.

Ver. 23. [m] Καὶ αὐτὸς ἦν ὁ Ἰησοῦς ὡσεὶ ἐτῶν τριάκοντα ἀρχόμενος, And Jeſus himſelf began to be about thirty years of age;] i. e. He was entering into his thirtieth year when he was thus baptized and conſecrated to his office. It is therefore certain, from the 1ſt verſe, that in the 15th year of Tiberius our Lord was but beginning or entering upon the thirtieth year of his age; and then he ſuffering, as all agree, in the 19th year of Tiberius, could be but thirty three years and an half when he was crucified. I know the critics ſay, that ἦν ἀρχόμενος ὢν, is a tautology; but ὢν belongs not to this, but to the following ſentence; ὢν ὡς ἐνομίζετο, being, as was ſuppoſed, the ſon of Joſeph. They add, that it is not rightly ſaid ἀρχόμενος ἐτῶν τριάκοντα; but if ἀρχόμενος τέχνης, i. e. ἀπὸ τέχνης, in (d) Plato, be good Greek, why may not ἀρχόμενος ἐτῶν τριάκοντα, i. e. ἀπ' ἐτῶν τριάκοντα, be good Greek in St Luke? Moreover, let ἀρχόμενος here be put abſolutely for Chriſt's beginning his office, and the ſenſe will run thus, that Jeſus was then about thirty years of age when he began his office. And if we conſider, that this was the age appointed for the Levites to begin the ſervice of the ſanctuary; that John the baptiſt began his office at that age; and that all the (e) antients do agree in this, that our Lord entered on his office in the thirtieth year of his age: yea, that Irenæus and Euſebius juſtify this Greek againſt our critics; and ſome of them take this for granted upon the authority of St Luke; all this will juſtify our verſion. And then impoſſible is it to be true, that our Lord ſuffered in the 38th, or, as Irenæus ſaith, lived either till fifty, or between forty and fifty, as he proves from the teſtimony of the diſciples of St John in Aſia, declaring, id ipſum eis tradidiſſe Johannem, they did this, not by conjecture from the countenance of Chriſt, but by tradition from the mouth of the apoſtle John: yea, that ſome of them heard hæc eadem, the very ſame things, from the mouth of other apoſtles, et teſtantur de hujuſmodi relatione, and give in teſtimony to this relation. Now Irenæus had laid down this as certain, That Chriſt per omnem venit ætatem, paſſed through all ages, that he might ſanctify them all, i. e. infants, little ones, boys, young men, et ſeniores, and old men: he therefore, ſaith he, was made, infantibus infans, ſanctificans infantes, an infant to ſanctify them of that age; juvenibus juvenis, to young men, whoſe age, ſaith he, begins at thirty, and extends to forty, he was made a young man, being baptized in his thirtieth year; and this he proves from ſcripture, and the confeſſions of the Valentinians and Gnoſtics, againſt whom he diſputes: he goes on and ſays, Sic et ſenior

CHAP. IV.

1. AND Jeſus being full of the holy Ghoſt, returned from Jordan, and was led by the Spirit into the wilderneſs,

2. Being [a] forty days (inviſibly) tempted of the devil; and in thoſe days he did eat nothing, (nor was he hungry;) and (but) when they were ended, he afterwards hungred.

3. And (then) the devil (viſibly appearing,) ſaid to him, If thou be the Son of God, command this ſtone, that it (this heap of ſtones) be made bread.

4. And Jeſus anſwered him, ſaying, (There is no neceſſity for that, for) [b] it is written, That man ſhall not live by bread alone, but by every (thing appointed to feed him by the) word of God.

5. And (then) the devil taking him up into an high mountain, ſhewed him (as in a map,) all the kingdoms of the world in a moment of time:

6. And the devil ſaid to him, All this power, (i. e. the power of theſe kingdoms,) will I give thee, and the glory of them; for that is delivered to me, and to whomſoever I will, I give it.

7. If thou therefore wilt [c] worſhip me, all ſhall be thine.

8. And Jeſus anſwered, and ſaid to him, Get thee behind me, Satan; for it is written, Thou ſhalt worſhip the Lord thy God, and him only ſhalt thou ſerve.

9. And (then) he brought him to Jeruſalem, and ſet him on a pinacle (or battlement) of the temple, and ſaid to him, If thou be the Son of God, caſt thyſelf down from hence:

10. For it is written, (Pſal. 91. 11.) He ſhall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee:

11. And in their hands they ſhall bear thee up, leſt at any time thou daſh thy foot againſt a ſtone.

12. And Jeſus anſwering, ſaid to him, It is ſaid, Thou ſhalt not tempt (i. e. diſtruſt) the Lord thy God; (as I ſhould do, if after a voice from heaven, ſaying to me, Thou art my beloved Son, I ſhould require any farther experiment of that truth)

13. And when the devil had ended all the (ſe) temptations, he departed from him for a [d] ſeaſon.

14. And Jeſus returned in the power of the Spirit into Galilee; and there went out a fame of him throughout the region round about;

15. And (For) he taught in their ſynagogues, being glorified of all.

16. And he came to Nazareth, [e] where he had been brought up; and as [f] his cuſtom was he went into the ſynagogue on the ſabbath, and [g] ſtood up for to read:

17. And there was delivered to him the book of the prophet Eſaias; and when he had opened, (i. e. unfolded) the book, (the roll,) he found the place where it was written, (Iſa. 61. 1.)

18. The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, becauſe he (the Father) hath anointed me (with the holy Ghoſt at my baptiſm, chap. 3. 22.) to [h] preach the goſpel to the poor (in ſpirit:) he hath ſent me to heal the broken hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, (who are in bondage to the law of ſin and death, Rom. 7. 23.) and recovering of ſight to the blind (Jews and Phariſees, who have eyes and ſee not, John 9. 40, 41. and the blind Gentiles, Rom. 2. 19.) and to ſet at liberty thoſe that are bruiſed (with the weight of their ſins:)

19. To preach the [i] acceptable year of the Lord, (the year of jubilee and reſt, which was on that account very acceptable to ſervants and debtors.)

20. And he cloſed (or folded up) the book, and gave it again to the miniſter, and ſat down; and the eyes of all them that were in the ſynagogue were faſtned upon him.

21. And he began to ſay to them, This day is this ſcripture fulfilled (which hath been read) in your ears.

22. And (when he had expounded to them how it was fulfilled,) all bare him witneſs (that ſo it was,) and wondred at the gracious words which proceeded out of his mouth; and they ſaid, Is not this Joſephs ſon?

23. And he ſaid to them, You will ſurely ſay to me this proverb, Phyſician, heal thyſelf: whatſoever we have heard done at Capernaum, do alſo here in thy (own) country; (i. e. do that at home, which it is famed thou haſt done at Capernaum.)

24. And he ſaid, Verily I ſay to you, No prophet is (ſo well) accepted in his own country, (as elſewhere, they finding exceptions either againſt him for his parentage, ver. 22. or his kindred, Mark 6. 3, 4. or his habitation, John 1. 47. or his country, John 7. 52.)

25. But I tell you of a truth, (you deſerve for your infidelity, to be dealt with as Elias dealt with the Iſraelites; for) Many widows were in Iſrael in the days of Elias, when the heavens were ſhut up [k] three years and ſix months, when great famine was throughout all the land:

26. But to none of them was Elias ſent, ſave to Sarepta, a city of Sidon, to a woman that was a widow.

27. And (as in the caſe of Eliſha; for) many lepers were in Iſrael in the time of Eliſæus the prophet, and (but) none of them was cleanſed, ſave Naaman the Syrian: (even ſo now the Gentiles are more worthy, to whom I ſhould be ſent, than you Jews.)

28. And all they in the ſynagogue, when they heard theſe words, [l] were filled with wrath;

29. And roſe up, and thruſt him out of the city, and led him to the brow of the hill, whereon their city was built, that they might caſt him down headlong (thence.)

30. But he paſſing (miraculouſly) through the midſt of them, went his way;

31. And came down to Capernaum, a city of Galilee, and taught them on the ſabbath days.

32. And they were aſtoniſhed at his doctrine; for his word was (attended) with (the) [m] power (of miracles to confirm it.)

53. And (For) in the ſynagogue, there was a man who had a ſpirit of an unclean devil; and (he) cried out with a loud voice,

54. Saying, Let us alone, what have we to do with thee, thou Jeſus of Nazareth? art thou come to deſtroy us (before the time?) I know thee who thou art, (viz.) the Holy one of God.

35. And (But) Jeſus rebuked him, ſaying, Hold thy peace, and come out of him: and when the devil had thrown him in the midſt, he came out of him, and hurt him not.

36. And they were all amazed, and ſpake among themſelves ſaying, What a (wonderful) word is this! for with authority and power he commandeth the unclean ſpirits, and they come out.

37. And the fame of him went out into every place of the country round about.

38. And he aroſe out of the ſynagogue, and entered into Simons houſe; and Simons wifes mother was taken with a great fever, and they beſought him for her:

39. And he ſtood over her, and rebuked the fever, and it left her; and immediately ſhe aroſe, and miniſtred to them.

40. Now when the ſun was ſetting, (and ſo the ſabbath was ending,) all they that had any ſick with divers diſeaſes, brought them to him; and he laid his hands on every one of them, and healed them.

41. And devils alſo came out of many, crying out, and ſaying, Thou art Chriſt, the Son of God; and he rebuking them, ſuffered them not to ſpeak, (refuſing to receive teſtimony from them, though they ſpake the truth;) for they knew that he was Chriſt.

42. And when it was day, he departed, and went into a deſart place; and the people ſought him, and came to him, and (would have) ſtayed him that he ſhould not depart from them:

43. And (But) he ſaid to them, I muſt preach the kingdom of God to other cities alſo, for therefore am I ſent.

44. And he preached in the ſynagogues of Galilee.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. IV.

Ver. 2. [a] Ἡμέρας τεσσαράκοντα πειραζόμενος ὑπὸ τοῦ διαβόλου—καὶ συντελεσθεισῶν αὐτῶν ὕστερον ἐπείνασε, Being forty days tempted of the devil,—and when they were ended, he afterwards hungered.] He was tempted of the devil only inwardly, and invſibly, during thoſe forty days, afterwards by Satan appearing in a viſible ſhape; for the devil came unto him, Matth. 4. 3. and departed from him, ver. 11. and tempted him to worſhip before him. Moreover, ſeeing Chriſt did eat nothing during thoſe forty days and nights, they who, during the like number of days, abſtain only from fleſh, eating fiſh, and drinking wine plentifully on thoſe days, do nothing leſs than imitate the example of Chriſt here: and ſeeing they cannot for forty days μὴ φαγεῖν, eat nothing, they can be no more obliged in this to imitate our Lord than Elias. See the note on Matth. 4. 2.

Ver. 4. [b] Γέγραπται) ὅτι οὐκ ἐπ' ἄρτῳ μόνῳ ζήσεται ἄνθρωπος, ἀλλ' ἐπὶ παντὶ ῥήματι Θεοῦ, It is written, Man ſhall not live by bread alone, but by every word of God.] The words in Deut. 8. 3. run thus, He ſuffered thee to hunger, and then fed thee with manna, (a light aerial ſort of food, giving thee as great ſtrength and vigour from that, as from the bread and fleſh thou didſt eat in Egypt; and this he did, providing providing it miraculously every day) that he might teach thee (by this example,) that man doth not live by bread only, but by every word of God, i. e. every thing that he shall please to command to give him nourishment. So that, though I am now hungry, as they were, I have no need to work a miracle myself to satisfy my hunger, seeing I know, by this example, that God, though he suffer his children to want bread, yet will command some other thing to preserve them alive, and will himself rather work a miracle, than they shall want nourishment.

Ver. 7. [c] Σὺ ἐὰν προσκυνήσῃς ἐνώπιόν μου, If thou wilt worship before me, ἐὰν πεσὼν προσκυνήσῃς μοι, If thou wilt fall down, and worship me, Matth. 4. 9.] Hence Dr Lightfoot collects, that it is the same thing to worship the devil, and before the devil; and so, in like manner, to worship before an image, and to worship an image. And this, indeed, is true, when that before which we worship is the object, and the reason of the worship, as in this case it would have been; but it is otherwise, when that before which we worship is only a circumstance; as when the Jews worshipped before the ark, or sanctuary, as Psal. 99. 5, 9.—132. 7. the object of that worship being God, the ark only the circumstance, to wit, the place of his peculiar residence; and much less when it is a mere accidental circumstance, as when old Jacob worshipped God upon his bed, and so bowed down to some part of it.

Ver. 8. See additions, N°. 6.

Ver. 13. [d] Ἀπέστη ἀπ' αὐτοῦ ἄχρι καιροῦ, He departed from him for a season;] till the time of his passion; for then only he returned, John 14. 30. and that was his hour, Luke 22. 53. And if this enemy of mankind omitted no season of tempting Christ, we have reason to believe he will omit no opportunity of tempting us.

Ver. 16. [e] Καὶ ἦλθεν εἰς τὴν Ναζαρὲτ ὅπου ἦν τεθραμμένος, And he came to Nazareth, where he had been brought up;] that he, by his example, might teach us, saith Theophylact, first to teach, and to do good to those of our own family and abode.

Ibid. [f] Καὶ εἰσῆλθε κατὰ τὸ εἰωθὸς αὐτῷ ἐν τῇ ἡμέρᾳ τῶν Σαββάτων εἰς τὴν συναγωγήν, And, as his custom was, he went into the synagogue on the sabbath-day.] That the synagogue-worship was then loaded with rites and ceremonies of human invention, and that the manners of those who met there were much corrupted, no man, who is acquainted with the scriptures, and the Jewish history, can doubt; and yet Christ, with his disciples, go customarily to these synagogues, as members of the church of Nazareth, every sabbath-day; and he joins with them in their worship, condemning, by his example, the niceness of our sectaries.

Ibid. [g] Καὶ ἀνέστη ἀναγνῶναι, ver. 20. καὶ πτύξας τὸ βιβλίον ἐκάθισε, And stood up to read,—and closing the book, he sat down.] Here Christ conforms to the ceremonies of the Jewish doctors, who, in honour of the law and the prophets, stood up when they read them; because, as the law was given with reverence, so is it, say they, to be handled with reverence: and he sits down to teach, because it was the custom in their schools and synagogues to do so. So the Targum on Judg. 2. 6. The wise men returned to sit in the houses of the synagogues with their heads covered, and to teach the people the words of the law. So again, ver. 9. That this was our Lord's constant custom, when he taught the people, we learn from his own words, I sat daily teaching in the temple, Matth. 26. 55. and from his practice throughout the evangelists. See Luke 2. 46. John 8. 2. Moreover, the book which he read in being made of skins of parchment sewed to each other, and joined to a stick, upon which it was rolled; he that was to read unrolled it, till he came to the place where he was to read, and this was ἀναπτύξαι, to unfold it; and when he had done reading, he did πτύξαι, roll it up again, and gave it to the Chasan, stiled here ὑπηρέτης, the minister of the synagogue.

Ver. 18. [h] Εὐαγγελίζεσθαι πτωχοῖς, to preach the gospel to the poor;] to the humble, or poor in spirit, Matth. 5. 3. see note on Matth. 11. 5. ἰάσασθαι τοὺς συντετριμμένους τὴν καρδίαν, to heal the broken hearted, i. e. those who are so pierced in heart, and contrite in spirit for their sins, as to repent and turn from them, Isa. 57. 15. Psal. 34. 18.—51. 17. κηρύξαι αἰχμαλώτοις ἄφεσιν, to preach deliverance to the captives, to the Jews in bondage to the law, Gal. 4. 9. to both Jew and Gentile under captivity to the law of sin, Rom. 7. 23. and recovering of sight to the blind Jews and Pharisees, who had eyes and saw not, John 9. 40, 41. and the blind Gentiles, Rom. 2. 19. see the note there: ἀποστεῖλαι τεθραυσμένους ἐν ἀφέσει, to set at liberty those that are bruised with the chain of their sins. See examen Millii here.

Ver. 19. [i] Κηρύξαι ἐνιαυτὸν Κυρίου δεκτὸν, To preach the acceptable year of the Lord:] the year of jubilee and rest, when liberty was to be proclaimed throughout the land to all the inhabitants of it, Lev. 25. 8. when debts were to be remitted, and possessions restored to the poor, the Hebrew servant of the Jew set free, and he that was sold to a sojourner was to be redeemed, ibid. Hence this jubilee is by Josephus rendered ἐλευθερία, liberty, and by Aquila, ἄφεσις, remission. And that the Jews themselves themſelves thought this jubilee did ſignify a ſpiritual redemption, is proved by Voſſin de jubilæo, l. 1. c. 2. And the 42d and 61ſt of Iſaiah being by the Jews themſelves interpreted of the Meſſiah, (ſee Targ. on Iſa. 42. 1. and ſynopſis on chap. 61. 1.) well might our Lord ſay, ver. 21. This day is this ſcripture fulfilled in your ears.

Ver. 23. See additions, N°. 7.

Ver. 25. [k] Ἔτη τρία καὶ μῆνας ἕξ. When heaven was ſhut up three years and ſix months.] For Elias tarried a year at the brook Kerith, 1 Kings 17. 7. and then, in the middle of the third year, came to Ahab, 1 Kings 18. 1.

Ver. 28. [l] Καὶ ἐπλήσθησαν πάντες θυμῦ, They were all filled with wrath.] When they heard Chriſt declaring them unworthy of the benefit of thoſe miracles which he had done at Capernaum; and, by the inſtances of the Sidonian widow and Naaman the Syrian, plainly intimating that his goſpel ſhould chiefly be received among the Gentiles, they, in a furious zeal, ſeek to deſtroy him; but he, by paſſing unſeen through the midſt of them, or reſtraining their violence, gave an inſtance of his divine power.

Ver. 32. [m] Ἐν ἐξουσίᾳ ἦν ὁ λόγος αὐτοῦ, For his word was with power.] That is, either as being confirmed by his miracles; ſo with great power gave the apoſtles teſtimony to the reſurrection of the Lord, Acts 4. 33. Mark 16. 20. ſee note on Matth. 7. 29. or he taught them as a prophet ſent from God, and delivering his meſſage to them, which from the time of the prophets had not been done: whence it was uſually ſaid by the Jews of the times of Ezra, hitherto the prophets, the wiſe men follow; ſee 1 Maccab. 9. 27.—14. 41. and of a difficult queſtion, We leave it undecided till a prophet ſhall ariſe, 1 Maccab. 4. 46. and when Chriſt came, they ſay, a great Prophet is riſen up among us, Luke 7. 16. and enquire of him τίνι ἐξουσίᾳ, by what extraordinary authority he did thoſe things, and who gave him that authority, Matth. 21. 23.

CHAP. V.

1. AND it came to paſs, that as the people preſſed upon him to hear the word of God, he ſtood by the lake of Genneſareth;

2. And ſaw two ſhips ſtanding by (the ſhore of) the lake; but the fiſhermen were gone out of them, and were waſhing (Gr. having waſhed) their nets.

3. And he entred into one of the ſhips, (viz. that) which was Simons, and prayed him that he would thruſt out (the ſhip) a little from the land; and (this being done) he ſat down, and taught the people out of the ſhip.

4. Now when he had left ſpeaking (to the people,) he ſaid to Simon, Launch out into the deep, and let down your nets for a draught (of fiſhes.)

5. And Simon anſwering, ſaid to him, Maſter, we have toiled all the night, and have taken nothing; nevertheleſs, at thy word I will let down the net.

6. And when they had done this, they incloſed a great multitude of fiſhes, and the net brake;

7. And they (finding this) beckned to their partners which were (now) in the other ſhip, that they ſhould come and help them: and they came, and filled both ſhips, ſo (full,) that they began to ſink (with the weight of the fiſhes.)

8. When Simon Peter ſaw it, he fell down at Jeſus knees, ſaying, Depart from me, for I am a [a] ſinful man, O Lord, (and ſo unworthy of the preſence of ſo divine a perſon as I perceive thou art.)

9. (This he ſpake from a great ſenſe of the majeſty of Chriſt:) for he was aſtoniſhed, and all that were with him, at the draught of fiſhes which they had taken:

10. And ſo were alſo James and John, the ſons of Zebedee, which were partners with Simon, (and were in the other ſhip.) And (But) Jeſus ſaid to Simon, Fear not, from henceforth thou ſhalt catch men, (i. e. ſhalt be inſtrumental to draw men into the net of the goſpel, ſee Acts 2. 41.)

11. And when they had brought their ſhip to land, they forſook all (their other buſineſs,) and followed him.

12. And it came to paſs, when he was in (the confines of) a [b] certain city, (to wit Capernaum, Mark 2. 1.) behold a man (was there) full of leproſy, who ſeeing Jeſus, fell on his face, and beſought him, ſaying, Lord, if thou wilt, thou canſt make me clean:

13. And he put forth his hand, and [c] touched him, ſaying, I will, be thou clean; and immediately the leproſy departed from him.

14. And he charged him to tell no man; but (or, and ſaid to him) go and ſhew thyſelf to the prieſt (firſt,) and offer for thy cleanſing according as Moſes commanded, for a teſtimony to them, (that thou art cleanſed from thy leproſy.)

15. But ſo much the more (did he divulge it, ſo that thence) went there a fame abroad of him; and great multitudes came together to hear (him,) and to be healed by him of their infirmities.

16. And

16. And he withdrew himself into the wilderness, and prayed; (Gr. he was withdrawn into the wilderness, and praying.)

17. And it came to pass on a certain day, as (that) he was teaching, that (Gr. and) there were Pharisees and doctors of the law sitting by, which were come out of every town of Galilee, and Judea, and Jerusalem; and the [d] power of the Lord was present (with him) to heal them, (who came to be healed of their infirmities, ver. 15.)

18. And behold, men brought in a bed a man that was taken with the palsy, and they sought means to bring him in (to the house,) and lay him before him.

19. And when they could not find by what way they might bring him in, because of the multitude, they went up on the house top, and let him down through the tiling with his couch, into the midst (of the people) before Jesus.

20. And when he saw their faith, he said to him, Man, thy sins are forgiven thee.

21. And the scribes and Pharisees began to reason, saying, Who is this who speaketh (these) blasphemies, (making himself God? for) who can forgive sins but God alone?

22. But when Jesus perceived their thoughts, he answered, and said to them, (For) what (cause) reason ye (thus) in your hearts?

23. (For) whether is it easier to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say (effectually, that which is a certain indication that the punishment of them is remitted, viz.) Rise up, and walk?

24. But (I chuse to say the first,) that ye may know, that the Son of man hath power upon earth to forgive sins; (then) (he said unto the sick of the palsy,) I say unto thee, Arise, and take up thy couch, and go to thine house:

25. And immediately he arose up before them, took up that whereon he lay, and departed to his own house, glorifying God.

26. And they (who saw this) were all amazed, and they glorified God, and were filled with fear, saying, We have seen strange things to day.

27. And after these things he went forth, and saw a publican named [e] Levi (or Matthew) sitting at the receipt of custom, and he said to him, Follow me.

28. And he left all (his toll business, and) rose up (instantly,) and followed him.

29. And Levi made him a great feast in his own house, and there were a great company of publicans, and others that sat down with him, (and his disciples, Matth. 9. 10.)

30. But [f] their scribes and Pharisees, (i. e. the scribes and Pharisees of that place) murmured against his disciples, saying, Why do ye eat and drink with publicans and sinners?

31. And Jesus answering, said to them, (This is done because they most need my help: for) they that are whole need not the physician, but they that are sick;

32. (And this suits best with the reason of my advent: for) I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance.

33. And they (who followed John, Matth. 9. 14.) said to him, Why do (we) the disciples of John fast often, and make prayers, and likewise the disciples of the Pharisees; but thine eat and drink (on our fasting days?)

34. And he said to them, Can ye (reasonably) make the children of the bride-chamber, (or guests of a marriage feast,) fast while the bridegroom is with them?

35. But the days will (shortly) come, when the bridegroom shall (by death) be taken from them, and then shall they fast in those days.

36. And he spake also a parable to them (relating to the same purpose, saying,) No man putteth a piece of new garment upon an old (garment;) if otherwise, then both the new maketh a (fresh) rent, and the piece that was taken out of the new agreeth not with the old:

37. And (in like manner) no man putteth new wine into old bottles; else (or, if so) the new wine will burst the bottles, and be spilled, and the bottles will perish.

38. But new wine must be put into new bottles, and (so) both are preserved. (Even so my young disciples, taken not from the schools, but from their fishing-trades, must not presently be put to severe tasks, for which they are not yet strong enough, lest they should be discouraged, and fall off from me.)

39. No man also having drunk old wine, (which is smooth, grateful to the palate, and agreeable to the stomach,) straightway desires (to exchange it for) new, (which is harsh to the palate, and by reason of the lee in it offensive to the stomach;) for he saith, The [g] old is better. (Even so my raw disciples must not be presently engaged in those austerities of life which may be offensive to them at the first, but by degrees be brought to observe them.)

ANNO-

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. V.

Ver. 8. [a] Ἔξελθε ἀπ' ἐμοῦ ὅτι ἀνὴρ ἁμαρτωλὸς εἰμι Κύριε, Depart from me, for I am a ſinful man, O Lord!] Not in that famous ſenſe in which the ſinner is joined with publicans and Heathens, and denotes one who hath caſt off the fear of God, and given up himſelf to wickedneſs; for this his fear was an indication of a religious mind. Moreover, hence it is probable, that St Peter had higher apprehenſions of Chriſt than of a mere man, ſeeing of old, men were only ſtruck with ſuch a fear from the preſence of the Divine Majeſty, or of ſome angels delivering their meſſage in his name, Gen. 32. 30. Judg. 6. 22.—13. 22. Iſa. 6. 5.

Ver. 12. [b] Ἐν τῇ μιᾷ τῶν πόλεων, When he was in one of the cities,] i. e. When he came down from the mount, Matth. 8. 2. being about to enter into Capernaum, (into which he entered after he had healed the leper, Mark 2. 1.) a leper meets him in the field of that city, the law not admitting ſuch to come into a city; he is therefore here ſaid to be in the city, as being in the field near to it: ſo to be in Jericho, Joſh. 5. 13. is to be in the field of Jericho, or by Jericho; and to ſmite them begibaon in Gibeon, Joſh. 10. 10. is to do it in the fields of Gibeon. This leper came to him πεσὼν ἐπὶ πρόσωπον, bowing down with his face to the earth, ſaith Luke here, προσκυνῶν, worſhipping, Matth. 8. 2. γονυπετῶν, bending his knees, Mark 1. 40. So Luke 8. 41. Jairus came to him, πεσὼν παρὰ πόδας, falling down at his feet, προσκυνῶν. Matth. 9. 18.

Ver. 13. [c] Ἥψατο αὐτοῦ, he touched him;] to ſhew, that he, being a prophet, was not obliged to obſerve the punctilios of the ceremonial law.

Ver. 14. See additions, N°. 8.

Ver. 17. [d] Καὶ δύναμις Κυρίου ἦν εἰς τὸ ἰᾶσθαι αὐτούς, And the power of the Lord was preſent to heal them,] who came to be healed of their infirmities, v. 15. not the Phariſees and lawyers, who had no faith to be healed, and perhaps no need of it; it being a known rule that pronouns often do refer, not to the immediate precedent, but the remoter noun. So Matth. 11. 1. he taught ἐν ταῖς πόλεσιν αὐτῶν, not in the cities of his diſciples, for they had none, but of the Jews. So Pſal. 99. 8. Thou anſwereſt them, Moſes and Aaron, ver. 6. and tookeſt vengeance on their inventions, i. e. the inventions of the people. See Matth. 12. 9. Acts 15. 11. See Glaſſ. de pronom. l. 3. tr. 2. can. 10.

Ver. 27. [e] Τελώνην ὀνόματι Λευὶν, A publican named Levi.] That this Levi was not the ſame with Matthew, mentioned Matth. 9. 9 Grotius, and thoſe who follow him, conceive: 1. Becauſe Matthew never calls him Levi, nor doth Mark, chap. 2. 14. or Luke ever call Levi Matthew. To which argument (a) St Jerom anſwers, that Matthew, out of modeſty, and in remembrance of his former life, ſtiles himſelf Matthew the publican, chap. 10. 3. but Mark and Luke never call him the publican, but mention his more honourable name, ne antiquæ converſationis recordantes, leſt they ſhould ſeem to reproach him by remembring his former converſation; it is enough that St Mark calls his Levi the ſon of Alpheus, as Matthew is in church hiſtory ſaid to be the ſon of Alpheus. As therefore Saul, after his converſion, is almoſt always called Paul, ſo might Matthew the publican, by theſe two evangeliſts, be called Levi. 2. He adds, that Heracleon, who was near to the apoſtles time, reckons Matthew, and Philip, and Thomas, and Levi, among them who had no occaſion to own Chriſt before princes, or ſuffer martyrdom on that account, as (b) Clemens of Alexandria teſtifies. I anſwer, There is no regard to be had to this Valentinian heretic, eſpecially when he contradicts the opinion of all the antients, in ſaying that Matthew, and Philip, and Thomas did not ſuffer martyrdom See Dr Cave in the life of Matthew, p. 134. of Philip, p. 125. of St Thomas, p. 139. Againſt him we oppoſe the apoſtolical conſtitutions, introducing him ſpeaking thus, ἐγὼ Ματθαῖος ὁ καὶ Λευὶς, I Matthew, named alſo Levi; the teſtimonies of St Jerom and Sophronius, in voce Matthæus, and others of the antients. See Cotelerius in conſtit. apoſt. p. 315. 3. He adds, that when Celſus objected that our Lord gathered publicans, (c) Origen confeſſes that Matthew was a publican, but he denies that Levi was ſo. To this it is anſwered, that the ſame Origen, in his preface to the epiſtle to the Romans, and in the place cited in the catena on St Matthew, ſays expreſly, that he whom St Matthew ſtiles by the name of Matthew the publican, is by St Luke called Levi. See another anſwer in Cotelerius, ibid. In a word; ſure it muſt be in vain to object againſt an hiſtory in Mark and Luke, where he is called Levi, ſo exactly agreeing with that in St Matthew, where he is called Matthew, that not a circumſtantial difference can be diſcerned; inſomuch, that even Mr Cl. who, in his annotations, quarrels with Dr Hammond for following an opinion confuted by Gretius, in his harmony, is himſelf forced to do what he corrects Dr Hammond mand for doing. His words are these, vidit publicanum cui nomen erat Levi, seu Matthæus. Moreover, that this Levi being called, instantly left all, and followed Christ, both Mark and Luke attest. Now this is the note of an apostle, Matth. 19. 27. See also examen var. lect. Millii, in Matth. 10. 3.

Ver. 30. [f] Ἐγόγγυζον οἱ γραμματεῖς αὐτῶν, Their scribes and Pharisees murmured, saying, διὰ τί, why eateth?] i. e. the scribes and Pharisees, not the guests that sat down μετ' αὐτῶν, with them, v. 29. (for then they must themselves have been guilty of the same crime for which they murmured against Christ,) but the scribes of the Jews; for what is here, their scribes, is absolutely, Mark 2. 16. the scribes. So in their cities, Matth. 11. 1. is in the cities, not of Christ's disciples, but of the Jews; and he entered εἰς συναγωγὴν αὐτῶν, into a synagogue of theirs, chap. 12. 9. i. e. not into a synagogue of the Pharisees, to whom he spake, ver. 2. but of the Jews. Schmidius also here observes, that διὰ τί here, is as much as, by what privilege? for εἰς τί and ἵνα τί, denote the final cause, but διὰ τί the antecedent reason

CHAP. VI.

1. AND it came to pass on the [a] second sabbath after the first, (Gr. on the first sabbath after the second day of the feast of unleavened bread,) that he (Christ) went through the corn fields, and his disciples plucked the ears of corn, and did eat (of them,) rubbing them in their hands.

2. And certain of the Pharisees said to them, Why do ye that which (it) is not lawful to do on the sabbath days?

3. And Jesus answering them, said, Have ye not read so much as this, (which is a case parallel to that of my disciples, viz.) what David did, when himself was an hungred, and they that were with him;

4. How he went into the house of God, and did take, and eat the shew-bread, and gave also to them that were with him, which (bread by the letter of the law) it is not lawful to eat, but for the priests alone?

5. And (moreover) he said to them, that the Son of man is Lord also of the sabbath, (i. e. he who came to save mens lives must have power, in such cases as concern the good and welfare of men, to dispense with the strict rest required by the law of the sabbath.)

6. And it came to pass also on another sabbath, that he entred into a synagogue, and taught; and there was a man whose right hand was withered:

7. And the scribes and Pharisees, (having asked him whether it were lawful to heal on the sabbath day, Matth. 12. 10.) watched him, whether he would heal on the sabbath day, that (if he did so) they might find an accusation against him, (as one who kept not the sabbath day, John 9. 16.)

8. But he knew their thoughts, (or reasonings;) and said to the man who had the withered hand, Rise up, and stand forth in the midst (of the synagogue;) and he arose and stood forth.

9. Then said Jesus to them, I will (also) ask you one thing, (viz.) Is it lawful on the sabbath days to do good, or to do evil, to save life, or to destroy it?

10. And looking round about upon them all, (and receiving no answer from any of them,) he said to the man, Stretch forth thy hand; and he did so, and his hand was restored whole as the other.

11. And they were filled with madness, and communed one with another what they might do to Jesus, (i. e. how they might destroy or punish him with death, for violating the sabbath, Matth. 9. 14.)

12. And it came to pass in those days, that he went out to a mountain to pray, and continued all night in [b] prayer to God, (Gr. ἐν τῇ προσευχῇ τοῦ Θεοῦ, in God's house of prayer, or in a synagogue dedicated to his service.)

13. And when it was day, he called to him his disciples, and (out) of them he chose twelve (to be his constant attendants, and witnesses of his actions, John 15. 27.) whom also he named apostles, (i. e. persons whom he would send to preach in his name to the Jews first, and after to the Gentiles:)

14. (Viz.) Simon whom he also named Peter, and Andrew his brother, James and John, Philip and Bartholomew,

15. Matthew and Thomas, James the son of Alpheus, and Simon called Zelotes,

16. And Judas the brother of James, and Judas Iscariot, which also was the traitor.

17. And he came down with them, and stood in the plain, and (with him were) the company of his disciples, and a great multitude of people out of all Judea and Jerusalem, and from the sea coast of Tyre and Sidon, which came to hear him, and to be healed of their diſeaſes;

18. And they that were vexed with unclean ſpirits, and they were healed.

19. And the whole multitude (of them who came to be healed) ſought to touch him; for there went virtue out of him, and healed them all (who thus touched him.)

20. And he lifted up his eyes on his diſciples, and ſaid, [c] Bleſſed be ye (who are) poor (in ſpirit,) for yours is the kingdom of God.

21. Bleſſed are ye that hunger now (after righteouſneſs,) for ye ſhall be filled: bleſſed are ye that weep now (with that godly ſorrow which works repentance,) for ye ſhall (find that comfort which will make you) laugh.

22. Bleſſed are ye when men ſhall hate you, and when they ſhall ſeparate you from their company, and ſhall reproach you, and ſhall caſt out your name as evil (doers,) for the Son of mans ſake; (i. e. for the ſake of the Meſſiah, ſtiled by Daniel, the Son of man, Dan. 7. 14.) 3 v.

23. Rejoyce ye in that day, and leap for joy, for behold your reward is great in heaven; (your caſe being like in this to thoſe holy prophets, who are now in heaven;) for in the like manner did their fathers to the prophets.

24. But wo to you that are rich, (and by thoſe riches are indiſpoſed to follow me,) for you have received your conſolation (in this life.)

25. Wo to you that are full, (and therefore do not hunger after righteouſneſs,) for ye ſhall hunger: wo to you that laugh now, (when you are called to repentance, to fit you to receive the goſpel,) for ye ſhall mourn and weep, (when you find yourſelves excluded from the kingdom of God, Matth. 8. 12.)

26. Wo to you when [d] all (the) men (of the world) ſpeak well of you, (this being a ſign that you imitate thoſe falſe prophets who ſpake things pleaſing to the people;) for ſo did their fathers to the falſe prophets.

27. But I ſay to you that hear (me,) Love your enemies, do good to them that hate you;

28. Bleſs them that curſe you, and pray for them that deſpitefully uſe you:

29. And to him that ſmiteth thee (with his palm) on the one cheek, offer (i. e. permit) alſo the other (to be ſmitten;) and him that taketh away thy cloke, forbid not to take thy coat alſo, (rather than contend by force, or before the magiſtrate, about ſupportable injuries.)

30. Give to every (indigent) man that asketh of thee (what he wants, and thou canſt ſpare;) and of him [e] that taketh away thy goods, ask them not again, (in a judiciary manner; ſee note on Matth. 5. 42. or urge not the reſtoring them to the detriment of charity, or ſo as to quarrel, or ſhew a contentious ſpirit about them.)

31. And as ye would that men ſhould do to you, (in equal circumſtances,) do ye alſo to them likewiſe.

32. For if [f] ye love them (only) that love you, what thank have ye? (i. e. what reward can ye expect for that which even the worſt of men will do? ver. 35.) for ſinners alſo love thoſe that love them.

33. And if ye do good to them (only) which do good to you, what thank have ye? for ſinners alſo do even the ſame.

34. And if ye lend to them (only) of whom ye hope to receive (what ye lend,) what thank have ye? for ſinners alſo lend to ſinners, to receive as much again.

35. But love ye your enemies, and do good, and [g] lend, (though) hoping for nothing again; and your reward (in heaven) ſhall be great, and ye ſhall (ſhew yourſelves to) be the children of the Higheſt (God;) for he is kind to the unthankful, and to the evil.

36. Be ye therefore merciful as your Father alſo is merciful.

37. Judge not (unneceſſarily,) and ye ſhall not be judged; condemn not, and ye ſhall not be condemned; forgive (others their treſpaſſes,) and ye ſhall be forgiven (yours.)

38. Give, and it ſhall be given to you; good meaſure, preſſed down, and ſhaken together, and running over, ſhall [h] men give (by God's diſpoſal, or δώσει, ſhall be given, ſee the note,) into your boſom; for with the ſame (liberal) meaſure that ye mete withal, it ſhall be meaſured to you (by God) again, (2 Cor. 9. 6, 8, 10.)

[To this ſermon of Chriſt the evangeliſt here adds other things ſpoken by Chriſt at other times, but tending to engage men to obſerve theſe precepts, or to take off their exceptions againſt them.]

39. And (firſt againſt the Phariſees, who being covetous derided theſe charitable doctrines, Luke 16. 14.) he ſpake a parable to them (that heard him, ſaying,) Can the blind (Phariſees) lead the blind (in the right way? if they commit themſelves to their conduct,) ſhall they not both fall into the ditch?

40. (And to remove that fear of poverty, reproach, and injuries, to which this practice might ſubject his followers, he ſaid,) The diſciple is not (to expect to be) above his maſter; but every one that [i] is perfect, (i. e. fully inſtructed in theſe rules,) ſhall (will) be as his maſter, (i. e. conformed to him in theſe things; ſee Matth. 10. 25.)

41. And (as for his command, not to judge others when we ourſelves are greater criminals, his queſtion upon upon that occasion was,) Why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brothers eye, but perceivest not the beam that is in thine own eye?

42. Either (Or) how canst thou say to thy brother, Brother, let me pull out the mote that is in thine eye, when thou thyself beholdest not the beam which is in thine own eye? Thou hypocrite, cast out first the beam out of thine own eye, and then shalt thou see clearly (how) to pull out the mote that is in thy brothers eye.

43. For (then only wilt thou be fit to direct others well, both by example and by words, when thou art good thyself, seeing) a good tree bringeth not forth corrupt fruit, neither doth a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit:

44. For every tree is known by his own fruit; for of thorns men do not gather figs, nor of (or from) a bramble bush gather they grapes.

45. (And in like manner,) A good man out of the good treasure of his heart, bringeth forth that which is good, and an evil man out of the evil treasure of his heart, bringeth forth that which is evil; for of (from) the abundance of his heart his mouth speaketh.

46. And (he said moreover,) why (to what purpose) call ye me Lord, Lord, (i. e. profess yourselves my disciples,) and (yet) do not the things that I say (ye ought to do?)

47. (For) Whosoever cometh to me, and heareth my sayings, and doth them, I will shew you to whom he is like.

48. He is like a man who built an house, and digged deep, and laid the foundation on a rock; and when the flood arose, the stream beat vehemently upon that house, and (yet) could not shake it; for it was founded upon a rock.

49. But he which heareth (my words,) and doth (them) not, is like a man that without a foundation built an house upon the earth; against which the stream did beat vehemently, and immediately it fell, and the ruin of that house was great.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. VI.

Ver. 1. [a] Ἐγένετο δὲ ἐν σαββάτῳ δευτεροπρώτῳ, It came to pass in the second sabbath after the first.] This should have been rendered, in the first sabbath after the second day of the passover; for after the first day of the passover, which was a sabbath, Exod. 12. 16. ἀπὸ τῆ ἐπαύριον τῆ σαββάτων, from the morrow after the sabbath, (that is, saith Josephus, τῆ δευτέρᾳ ἀζύμων ἡμέρᾳ, from the second day of unleavened bread, that is, the sixteenth of the month, antiq. l. 3. c. 10.) ye shall count unto you seven sabbaths complete, Lev. 23. 15. reckoning that day for the first of the first week, which was therefore called δευτεόπρωτον, the first sabbath from this second day of unleavened bread; the second was called δευτερόδευτερον, the second sabbath from that day, and the third δευτερότριτον, the third sabbath from that second day; and so on till they came to the seventh sabbath from that day, i. e. to the 49th day, which was the day of pentecost. The mention of the seven sabbaths to be numbered with relation to this second day, answers all that Grotius objects against this exposition. See Petavius on Epiphan. hær. 30. n. 32. where Epiphanius expressly says, our Lord's disciples did this τῷ σαββάτῳ τῷ μετὰ τὴν ἡμέραν τῶν ἀζύμων, on the sabbath following the day of unleavened bread; which, if understood of the second day, is truth. And if pentecost was called the feast of harvest, Exod. 23. 16. (as Bochart, Hieroz. part 1. l. 3. c. 13. Nicholas Fuller, miscel. l. 3. c. 11. Mr Mede, disc. 46. p. 355, Dr Lightfoot and the Jews say; (see Temple serv. c. 14. § 4.) because then their barley and wheat-harvest was gathered in, this feast could not be pentecost, as Grotius conjectures, because then the corn must be gathered in; and therefore could not be plucked by Christ's disciples in the field.

Ver. 12. [b] Ἦν διανυκτερεύων ἐν τῇ προσευχῇ τοῦ Θεοῦ, And he continued all night in prayer to God,] or in a house of prayer of God, or in a synagogue dedicated to the service of God. For, as the mountain of God, Exod. 3. 1.—4. 27. the bread of God, Lev. 21. 17. the lamp of God, 1 Sam. 3. 3. the vessels of God, 1 Chron. 22. 19. the altar of God, Psal. 43. 4. the sacrifices of God, Psal. 51. 17. the gifts of God, Luke 21. 4. the ministers of God, 2 Cor. 6. 4. the tabernacle of God, 2 Chron. 1. 3. the temple of God, Matth. 21. 12. and the synagogues of God, Psal. 74. 8. are all things consecrated or appropriated to God's service; so προσευχὴ τοῦ Θεοῦ, must in all reason be an house of prayer to God: whence it is called τόπος προσευχῆς, a place of prayer, 1 Maccab. 3. 46. And so the word προσευχὴ is certainly used, Acts 16. 13. and by (a) Philo, in his oration against Flaccus, where he complains, that αἱ προσευχαὶ, their houses for prayer were pulled down, and there was no place left in which they might worship God, or pray for Cæsar; and by (b) Josephus, who says, the multitude was gathered, εἰς τὴν προσευχὴν, into the house of prayer; and so (c) Juvenal speaks of the the mendicant Jew, Ede ubi consistas, in qua te quæro proseucha? In what house of prayer may I find thee begging, or asking alms?

Ver. 20,——26. [c] Μακάριοι οἱ πτωχοὶ, Blessed are the poor, the hungry, the mourners, for the Son of man's sake.] Here being but four of the eight beatitudes mentioned Matth. 5. and not one of these being delivered in the same words which are there used; as it is certain this must be another sermon than that on the mount, and spoken to other auditors, so is it only probable, not necessary, that they should bear the same sense. However, it seems necessary, that what is here added to the last clause should agree to them all, Blessed are they who patiently suffer poverty and hunger, grief and persecution, for the sake of Christ, that they may obtain that kingdom, and that reward in heaven, he hath promised to his faithful servants; or, that the poor should be the poor in spirit; the hungry, those that hunger after righteousness; and the mourners, those that sorrow to repentance after a godly manner, 2 Cor. 7. 9. for to those that are otherwise poor and hungry, and upon other accounts, these blessings cannot always belong. And the opposite woes, which seem to favour the first interpretation of these four beatitudes, must be restrained to them who, by the love of riches, pleasures, and plentiful provisions, are kept from preparing themselves by repentance for, and so from entering into, Christ's kingdom, or chusing that narrow and afflictive way which leadeth unto life eternal; for even here the very Christian sufferer is to rejoice, and leap for joy; and the rich man, who is ready, when Christ calleth, to leave all, and follow him, who is rich in good works, ready to give, and willing to distribute, layeth up for himself a good foundation against the time to come, 1 Tim. 6. 19.

Ver. 26. [d] Οὐαὶ ὑμῖν ὅταν καλῶς ὑμᾶς εἴπωσι πάντες οἱ ἄνθρωποι, Wo unto you when all men speak well of you: for so did your fathers to the false prophets:] for he that will be pleasing to all, must speak things grateful to all, and do what they like. Now, that cannot be good which is grateful to bad men. Thus the false prophets, whom the Jews commended, spake to them smooth things, Isa. 30. 10. they prophesied lies, because the people loved to have it so; they prophesied of peace, when war was at hand, Jer. 6. 14.—8. 11.—14. 13. Ezek. 13. 10, 16. Zach. 10. 2. they strengthened the hand of evil doers, Jer. 23. 14. and daubed with untempered mortar, Ezek. 30. 10, 11. See examen Millii.

Ver. 30. [e] From him that taketh away what is thine, μὴ ἀπαίτει, ask it not again;] i. e. If any man will not ask, but without asking will take away or detain from thee what is thine, ask it not again, either in a judiciary manner, (see note on Matth. 5. 40, 42.) or urge not the restoring of it to the detriment of charity or mercy. They who would interpret these words thus, From him that receiveth any loan from thee, exact no usury, put a double force upon the words: for, 1. Our Saviour doth not here say, as he doth Matth. 5. 42. τὸν θέλοντα ἀπὸ σου δανείσασθαι, From him that would borrow from thee, turn not thou away; but ἀπὸ τοῦ αἴροντος τὰ σά, from him that will take up, or take away that which is thine, ask it not again. Now, he that is willing to borrow of me, owns that which he would borrow to be mine, and so cannot be willing, at the same time, to take away what is mine. 2. Whereas they render the word ἀπαιτεῖν, to exact usury, and, for this sense, appeal to the use of it in Nehemiah; it is evident, that there it hath no such sense, but plainly relates to their unjust exactions of debts and services of their brethren, against the law, requiring them to remit those debts and services every seventh year, saying, Every seventh year thou shalt make a release; and this is the manner of the release; Every creditor that lendeth any thing to his neighbour, (Gr. πᾶν χρέος ἴδιον ὃ ὀφείλει σοὶ ὁ πλησίον, every debt of thine thy neighbour oweth thee,) thou shalt release; and of thy brother, οὐκ ἀπαιτήσεις, thou shalt not exact it; of a foreigner ἀπαιτήσεις, thou mayest exact it, but to thy brother thou shalt remit thy debt, Deut. 15, 1, 2, 3. and so for services, Ex. 21. 2. Jer. 34. 14. Accordingly, saith Nehemiah, let us remit the seventh year, וּמשא כל יד ἐγὼ ἀπαίτησιν πάσης χειρός, and the exaction of every debt. So Deut. 15. 2. כל משה ידו, πᾶν χρέος ἴδιον, All thy own debt thou shalt remit. When, therefore, he saith, chap. 5. 10. Let us remit, I pray you, τὴν ἀπαίτησιν ταύτην, this exaction, he must refer to the same debt; and when he says, ver. 7. ἀπαιτήσει Should a man exact of his brother, ἃ ὑμεῖς ἀπαιτεῖτε, the things which ye exact? he plainly refers to the sin taxed in the Jews by Jeremy, chap. 34. of demanding service of them again after these years of release were expired. So also Ecclus. 20. 14, 15. The gift of a fool will do thee no good, σήμερον δανεῖ, καὶ αὔριον ἀπαιτήσει, he will lend to day, and ask it again to morrow. And, lastly, If the first words referred to Matth. 5. 42. μὴ ἀπαιτεῖν here, must be the same with μὴ ἀποστρέφειν there, that sure hath no relation to usury.

Ver. 32. [f] Ἐὰν ἀγαπᾶτε τοὺς ἀγαπῶντας ὑμᾶς ποία ὑμῖν χάρις. If ye love them that love you, what thank have ye? for sinners also love those that love them.] Here, saith Theophylact, if you only love them that love you, you are not only like to sinners and Heathens; but if you love those that do evil to you, you are like to God; Ποῖον οὖν θέλετε ὑμεῖς ἵνα τῶν ἁμαρτωλῶν, ἢ τῶν Θεῶν; Which therefore ſhould you chuſe, to be; like ſinners, or like God?

Ver. 35. [e] Καὶ δανείζητε, μηδὲν ἀπελπίζοντες, and lend, hoping for nothing again.] They who render theſe words, making no man to deſpair, put a double force upon the words; 1. Reading μηδένα, no man, for μηδέν, nothing; and, 2. Interpreting ἀπελπίζειν, to make to deſpair; of which ſenſe they afford no inſtance. They who render them, diſtruſting nothing, i. e. not fearing leſt thou ſhouldſt be reduced to poverty by this charity, give a ſenſe alien from the text: for when they ſay, the Heathens give and lend, knowing that they may want themſelves, this they add of their own to the words of Chriſt, who ſays, they lend, ἵνα ἀπολάβωσι τὰ ἴσα, that they may receive as much again; and they reject that ſenſe the text doth manifeſtly require; for ſo run the preceding words, If ye lend to thoſe παρ' ὧν ἐλπίζετε ἀπολαβεῖν, from whom you hope to receive again what you lend, what thank have you? for, do not ſinners lend to ſinners to receive, or that they may receive what they lend again? But lend not you on ſo mean account, but even when you hope to receive nothing back from them you lend to. And whereas we are told, that the word ἀπελπίζω bears no ſuch ſenſe; I hope the credit of Stephanus, who ſays the word is rightly rendered by the Vulgar, nihil inde ſperantes, and of Caſaubon, who ſaith, ἀπελπίζει is ἀπὸ τῶν πράγματός τι ἐλπίζειν, to hope for ſomething from a perſon, or matter, may be ſufficient to ſupport the credit of our tranſlation; eſpecially when we read in the life of Solon, that he made no law againſt parricides, διὰ τὸ ἀπελπίσαι, becauſe he did not expect that ſuch a crime would be committed, Diog. Laert. l. 1. p. 17. ſee additions, N°. 10. But, 2*dly*, Where it is rendered by them, to deſpair, or to be deſperate, the ſenſe is ſtill the ſame, viz. to be μηδὲν ἀπελπίζοντες, hoping for nothing from men, and therefore repairing to God. This is the plain ſenſe of it, Iſa. 29. 19. Judg. 9. 12. Eſth. 14. 19. So Eccluſ. 22. 21.—27. 21. μὴ ἀπελπίζῃς is, Be not without hope of reconciliation with thy friend; and why then may not the words here ſignify, being without hope of receiving any thing again from him you lend to? So that it is not to be doubted that theſe words are well rendered by (d) Chryſoſtom, Παρὰ τούτων ὧν οὐ προσδοκῶμεν ἀπολαμβάνειν, From whom you expect not to receive.

Ver. 38. [h] Δώσουσι,] imperſonaliter interpretandum, is to be rendered impersonally, ſaith Grotius. See note on chap. 16. 9.

Ver. 40. [i] Κατηρτισμένος δὲ πᾶς ἔσται ὡς ὁ διδάσκαλος αὐτοῦ, But every one that is perfect, ſhall (will) be as his maſter.] Καταρτίζεσθαι is to be perfect in any thing, Matth. 21. 16. 2 Cor. 13. 9, 11. Heb. 13. 21. 1 Pet. 5. 10. The ſenſe, therefore, of theſe words, may be this, The diſciple that perfectly underſtands the rules, and ſees the example of his maſter, will think it is his buſineſs to tread exactly in his ſteps, to do and ſuffer, upon like occaſions, as his maſter did, and ſo he will be like his maſter.

CHAP. VII.

NOW when he had ended all his ſayings in the audience of the people, he entered into Capernaum:

2. And a certain centurions ſervant, who was dear to him, was ſick, and ready to die, (or near death:)

3. And when he (the centurion) heard (the fame) of Jeſus, he [a] ſent to him (ſome of) the elders of the Jews, beſeeching him (by them) that he would come, and heal his ſervant.

4. And when they came to Jeſus, they beſought him inſtantly, (or earneſtly,) ſaying, That he was worthy for whom he ſhould do this, (i. e. he well deſerved this kindneſs;)

5. For he loveth our nation (and religion,) and (as an indication of this) he hath built us a ſynagogue.

6. Then Jeſus went with them; and when he was now not far from the houſe, the centurion ſent (other) friends to him, ſaying to him, Lord, trouble not thyſelf (to come to me,) for I am not worthy that thou ſhouldſt enter under my roof:

7. Wherefore, neither thought I myſelf worthy to come to thee; but ſay in a word (thy pleaſure,) and (I believe) my ſervant ſhall be healed:

8. For I alſo am a man ſet under authority, having under me ſoldiers: and I ſay to one, Go, and he goeth; and to another, Come, and he cometh; and to my ſervant, Do this, and he doth it. (How much more then canſt thou, who haſt all power in heaven and earth, command one of the miniſtring ſpirits to come and heal my ſervant?)

9. When Jeſus heard theſe things he marvelled at him, and turned him (ſelf) about, and ſaid to the people that followed him, I ſay to you, I have not

(d) In Matth. 5. 42.

not found ſo great faith, no not in Iſrael; (and upon this faith, he told them that were ſent, it ſhould be as he believed, Matth. 8. 13.)

10. And they who were ſent, returning to the houſe, found the ſervant whole that had been ſick;

11. And it came to paſs the day after, that he went into a city called Naim; and many of his diſciples went with him, and much people:

12. Now when he came nigh to the gate of the city, behold there was a dead man carried out, (who was) the only ſon of his mother, and ſhe was a widow, (and ſo, by the loſs of this ſon, left deſtitute,) and much people of the city was with her, (to attend the funeral.)

13. And when the Lord ſaw her, he had compaſſion on her, and ſaid to her, Weep not.

14. And (then) he came and touched the bier, and they that bare him ſtood ſtill; and he ſaid, Young man, [b] I ſay to thee, Ariſe:

15. And (at that word) he that was dead, ſat up, and began to ſpeak; and he delivered him to his mother:

16. And there came a fear on (them) all, and they glorified God, ſaying, That a great Prophet is riſen up among us, and that God had viſited his people, (by ſending to them the promiſed Meſſias.)

17. And this rumour of him went forth throughout all Judæa, and throughout all the region round about.

18. And the diſciples of John ſhewed him of all theſe things.

19. And John calling to him two of his diſciples, [c] ſent them to Jeſus, ſaying, (in the name of their maſter, who ſent them for their own ſatisfaction,) Art thou he that ſhould come, (the Meſſiah,) or look we for another?

20. When (therefore) the men were come to him, they ſaid, John (the) baptiſt hath ſent us to thee, ſaying, (or to ſay,) Art thou he that ſhould come, or look we for (are we to expect) another?

21. And in that ſame hour he cured many of their infirmities, and plagues, and of evil ſpirits; and to many that were blind, he gave ſight, (according to the prophecy of Iſaiah concerning him. See the note on Matth. 11. 5.)

22. Then Jeſus anſwering, ſaid to them, Go your way, and tell John what things ye have ſeen and heard; how that the blind ſee, the lame walk, the lepers are cleanſed, the deaf hear, the dead are raiſed, to the poor the goſpel is preached.

23. And bleſſed is he whoſoever ſhall not be offended in me; (i. e. who ſhall not fall off from me by reaſon of the afflictions he may ſuffer, as John doth, or by reaſon of my mean circumſtances in this preſent world.)

24. And when the meſſengers of John were departed, he began to ſpeak to the people concerning John, (ſaying,) What went ye out into the wilderneſs to ſee? (was it) a reed ſhaken with the wind? (a man wavering in his doctrine or teſtimony?)

25. But what went ye out for to ſee? a man clothed in ſoft raiment, (a courtier and a paraſite?) Behold, they that are gorgeouſly apparelled, and live delicately, are in kings courts.

26. But what went ye out for to ſee? (was it) a prophet? yea, I ſay to you, and (one that is) much more than a (n ordinary) prophet?

27. (For) This is he of whom it is written, Behold, I ſend my meſſenger before thy face, which ſhall prepare thy way before thee.

28. (More, I ſay, than an ordinary prophet:) For I ſay to you, Among thoſe that are born of women, there is not a greater prophet than John the baptiſt; but (yet) he that is (the) [cc] leaſt (prophet) in the kingdom of God, is greater than he.

29. And all the people that heard him, and the publicans, juſtified God, (i. e. approved the wiſdom and juſtice of his counſel, in calling them by the baptiſt to repentance,) being baptized with the baptiſm of John.

30. But the [d] Phariſees and lawyers rejected the counſel of God againſt (towards) themſelves, being not baptized of him, (as being confident they were righteous, Luke 18. 9. and ſo needed no repentance.)

31. And the Lord ſaid, Whereunto ſhall I liken the men of this generation? and to what are they like?

32. They are like to children ſitting in the market place, and calling one to another, and ſaying, We have piped to you, (as at a feſtival,) and ye have not danced; we have mourned to you, (as they do at funeral ſolemnities,) and ye have not wept; (i. e. you have neither complied with us when we called you to mirth or ſadneſs.)

33. For John the baptiſt came neither eating bread, nor drinking wine; (his meat being only locuſts, and his drink water;) and ye ſay (of him,) He hath a devil, (or is a melancholy, frantic perſon.)

34. The Son of man is come eating and drinking, (in the uſual manner;) and ye ſay (of him,) Behold, (he is) a gluttonous man, and a winebibber, a friend of publicans and ſinners.

35. But wiſdom is [e] juſtified, (i. e. approved) of all her children, (i. e. of all true lovers of wiſdom.)

36. And (or Then) one of the Phariſees deſired him, him, that he would eat with him; and (thereupon) he went into the Pharisees house, and sat down to meat:

37. And behold, a woman in the city, which was (formerly) a sinner, when she knew that Jesus sat at meat in the Pharisees house, brought an alabaster box of ointment;

38. And stood at his feet behind him, weeping, and began to wash his feet with tears, and did wipe them with the hairs of her head, and kissed his feet, and anointed them with ointment.

39. Now when the Pharisee, which had bidden him, saw it, he spake within himself, saying, This man, if he were a prophet, would have known, who, and what manner of woman this is that toucheth him, for she is a sinner, (and so by touching must defile him.)

40. And Jesus answering (to his thoughts,) said to him, Simon, I have somewhat to say to thee; and he saith, Master, say on.

41. (Jesus then began his discourse thus;) There was a certain creditor which had two debtors, the one owed (him) five hundred pence, and the other fifty.

42. And when they had nothing to pay, he frankly forgave them both: tell me therefore, which of them will love him most?

43. Simon answered, and said, I suppose, he to whom he forgave most. And he said to him, Thou hast rightly judged.

44. And he turned to the woman, and said to Simon, Seest thou this woman? (When) I entred into thy house, thou gavest me no water for my feet; but she hath washed my feet with tears, and wiped them with the hairs of her head:

45. Thou gavest me no kiss; but this woman, since the time I came in, hath not ceased to kiss my feet:

46. My head with oil thou didst not anoint; but this woman hath anointed my feet with ointment.

47. [f] Wherefore I say to thee, (This is a testimony,) that her sins, which are many, are forgiven; for she (hath) loved much: but to whom little is forgiven, the same loveth little.

48. And (then) he said to her, Thy sins are forgiven.

49. And they that sat at meat with him, began to say within themselves, Who is this (man,) that (he) forgiveth sins also?

50. And he said to the woman, Thy faith hath saved thee (from the punishment of the past sins;) go in peace.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. VII.

Ver. 3. [a] Ἀπέστειλε πρὸς αὐτὸν πρεσβυτέρους τῶν Ἰουδαίων, He sent to him the elders of the Jews:] And ver. 6. the centurion sent to him friends; by Matthew 8. 5. the centurion came to him, and ver. 8. the centurion said to him. To reconcile this difference. Note,

1*st*, That St Luke relating this story more largely than St Matthew doth, and with this signal circumstance said by his messengers, I thought not myself worthy to come unto thee, ver. 7. these circumstances must be as they are related by St Luke. Note,

2*dly*, That it being a rule among the Jews, that apostolus cujusque est quisque, the disciple, messenger or proxy of any man is as himself; and among the Civilians, quod facimus per alium, id ipsum facere judicamur, we ourselves are reputed to do that which by another we do; St Matthew might well say, the Centurion who sent these elders and friends came to him by them: so Jethro comes to Moses by a messenger, Exod. 18. 6. and Solomon speaks to Hiram by his servants, 1 Kings 5. 7. so James and John come to Christ with a petition presented by their mother, Mark 10. 35. compared with Matth. 20. 20. John the baptist speaks to Christ by his disciples, Matth. 11. 3. Note,

3*dly*, That though it seems probable, from those words of Christ to the centurion, Go thy way, and as thou hast believed, be it done unto thee, Matth. 8. 13. that when Christ was nigh to the house, the centurion might come in person to him, yet neither is this necessary: for when David sent messengers to commune with Abigail to take her to wife, she answers as if he had been present, Behold thy handmaid to be a servant to wash the feet of the servants of my Lord, 1 Sam. 25. 40, 41.

Ver. 14. [b] Εἶπε, νεανίσκε, σοὶ λέγω, ἐγέρθητι, Jesus said, Young man, I say unto thee, arise.] Here Woltzogenius owns, that Christ spake this by that divine power which he had over inanimate things, as the wind and the sea; est quidem hoc Deo proprium, this indeed, saith he, is proper to God, who calleth things that are not as if they were, Rom. 4. 17. but God had communicated this power to his Son, by whom he would most perfectly manifest himself to the world. So Peter speaks to Tabitha, Tabitha, arise, Acts 9. 40. as Christ to Lazarus, Lazarus, Come forth, John 11. 43. Now to this I reply,

1. That the instance of St Peter saying to Tabitha, Arise, doth not lessen the strength of the argument from these words for the divinity of Christ, seeing he doth this only by prayer to and faith faith in the Lord Chriſt; to which he aſcribes all his miracles, doing them in his name or power, and through faith in his name, Acts 3. 16. and ſo, in effect, ſaith to her as he did to Æneas, ver. 34. Jeſus Chriſt healeth thee, ariſe, &c. Chriſt here doth this by his own power, without any prayers, as appears from theſe words, I ſay to thee, Ariſe; and he will raiſe all his ſervants from the dead, and change their vile bodies into the likeneſs of his glorious body, according to the mighty power by which he is able to ſubdue all things to himſelf, Philip. 3. 21. He prayed, indeed, when he raiſed Lazarus; but then even Woltzogenius obſerves he could not do this to receive power to raiſe him, becauſe he had this power in himſelf already, John 5. 26. and doth there challenge to himſelf to be the reſurrection and the life, John 11. 25. but for other reaſons accounted for, John 11. 41, 42.

2*dly*, When Woltzogenius can prove, that divine virtue, which is proper to God alone, ever was, or ever can be communicated to a creature, or to another, without communication of the Divine Nature, then, and not till then, will he have given a ſatisfactory anſwer to this argument.

Ver. 19. [c] John ſent, ſaying, Art thou he that ſhould come?] See the note on Matth. 11. 3.

Ver. 28. [c c] The leaſt in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he.] See the note on Matth. 11. 11.

Ver. 30. [d] Οἱ δὲ φαρισαῖοι καὶ νομικοὶ τὴν βουλὴν τοῦ Θεοῦ ἠθέτησαν εἰς ἑαυτοὺς, μὴ βαπτισθέντες ὑπ' αὐτοῦ. But the Phariſees and lawyers rejected the counſel of God againſt (Gr. towards) themſelves, being not baptized of him.] That ſome of them came to be baptized, we read, Matth 3. 7. it therefore muſt be ſaid, either that this is here ſaid of them in general, becauſe it was true of many of them, or that thoſe who came to him, hearing the character he gave of them, refuſed his baptiſm: ſee note on Matth. 3. 7. But the chief thing here obſervable is this, that, in rejecting John's baptiſm, they are ſaid to reject the counſel of God towards them; that is, his gracious deſign of calling them by him to that repentance which could alone exempt them from the wrath to come; and, by that refuſal, declared they approved not of God's counſel as juſt and righteous, in calling ſuch unblameable perſons as they were, and ſuch zealots for the law, to repentance, that ſo they might eſcape the ruin threatened by St John: for thus Eleazer, one of them, ſpeaks, after the deſtruction of the Jews, that though all the reſt of the Jews periſhed (a) ἡμεῖς δ' ἆρα μόνοι ἠλπίσαμεν περιέσεσθαι ὥσπερ ἀναμάρτητοι πρὸς τὸν Θεὸν γενόμενοι, we alone expected to be preſerved, as having not ſinned againſt God, nor been guilty of any fault, and who were teachers to others. Chriſt tells us they were πεποιθότας ἐν ἑαυτοῖς, confident in themſelves that they were righteous, Luke 18. 9. and repreſents them by the elder ſon, ſaying, I never tranſgreſſed at any time thy commandments, Luke 15. 29. They therefore judged it an incongruous thing to call ſuch righteous perſons to repentance, and threaten them with ruin who were ſo dear to God: but the publicans and common people were conſcious to themſelves of ſins ſufficient to expoſe them to divine judgments; and therefore they approved of this counſel God ſent them by his meſſenger, and declared him righteous, both in calling them to repentance, and threatning his judgments if they did neglect it; and therefore they ſubmitted to this baptiſm of repentance for the remiſſion of ſins, to which God, by the baptiſt, called them. That δικαιοῦν is to declare or approve a thing or perſon righteous, ſee ver. 35. They whoſe principles will not allow them to believe that God had any ſuch benign deſigns towards ſuch a generation of vipers, ſay, 1. That βουλὴ τοῦ Θεοῦ is not the counſel, or the purpoſe, but only the command of God. But, if, This phraſe, in ſcripture, never ſignifies a bare command, but always the decree, the purpoſe, or the counſel of God. See Acts 2. 23.—4. 28.—13. 36.—20. 27. Eph. 1. 11. Heb. 6. 17. Nor, 2*dly*, Can it be rationally ſuppoſed that God ſhould give men any virtuous or moral precepts, which he doth not deſign and purpoſe that they ſhould obey. 2*dly*, They add, that εἰς ἑαυτοὺς, towards them, is here put for ἐν ἑαυτοῖς, in themſelves, and therefore render the text thus, They deſpiſed in themſelves the counſel of God. But, (1.) Was it his counſel towards them, or was it not? if not, how could they, by neglecting that which concerned not them, deſpiſe it? if ſo, then is it certain, that the purpoſe and counſel of God towards them was this, That they ſhould repent, and bring forth fruits meet for repentance. (2.) The phraſe, in themſelves, is always expreſſed by ἐν ἑαυτοῖς, chap. 3. 8.—7. 49.—18. 9. εἰς ἑαυτοὺς occurs but twice elſewhere, viz. 1 Peter 4. 8, 10. and then it plainly ſignifies, towards themſelves.

Ver. 35. [e] Καὶ ἐδικαιώθη, But wiſdom is juſtified of her children.] See note on Matth. 11. 19.

Ver. 37. See additions N° 11.

Ver. 47. [f] Οὗ χάριν, λέγω σοι, ἀφέωνται αἱ ἁμαρτίαι αὐτῆς αἱ πολλαὶ, ὅτι ἠγάπησε πολύ, For which cauſe, I ſay unto thee, her ſins which were many are forgiven, for ſhe loved much.] Chriſt ſaith not, her ſins were forgiven, becauſe ſhe loved much; but this ought to be a token to thee that her ſins, which rendered her unworthy to touch me, have been forgiven; this great love to me being an indication dication of her deep sense of God's mercy to her in pardoning her many sins: and this do I the Prophet, and the Son of God declare unto her. To this sense lead both the parable of the great debtor, to whom the Lord frankly had forgiven all, for he loved much, because much had been forgiven, and the conclusion of it in these words, he that hath less forgiven, loveth less. Whence it appears that ὅτι here cannot be causal, or intimate she was forgiven much, because she loved much; the cause assigned of her forgiveness being not her love, but faith, ver. 50. but only consequential, denoting the effect or indication of the forgiveness of her many sins. So Hosea 9. 15. all their iniquity was in Gilgal, ὅτι therefore there I hated them; for they did not sin in Gilgal, because he hated them there; but he hated them there, because they were offended, Eccles. 5. 7. ὅτι σὺ τὸν Θεὸν φοβοῦ, wherefore fear thou God. So John 14. 17. the world cannot receive the Spirit of truth, ὅτι οὐ θεωρεῖ αὐτὸ, therefore it sees him not, neither knows him, but ye know him, ὅτι therefore he abideth with you, and shall be with you. In one at least of these two paragraphs ὅτι must bear this sense.

CHAP. VIII.

1. AND it came to pass afterwards, that he went through every city and village, preaching, and shewing the glad tidings of the kingdom of God; and the twelve were with him;

2. And certain women which had been healed of evil spirits, and infirmities, Mary called Magdalene, out of whom went seven devils,

3. And Joanna the wife of Chuza, Herods steward, and Susanna, and many others which [a] ministred to him (necessaries out) of their substance.

4. And when much people were gathered together, and were come to him out of every city, he spake to them by a parable,

5. (Saying,) A sower went out to sow his seed; and as he sowed, some fell by the way-side, and [b] it was trodden down, ~~and~~ the fowls of the air devoured it:

6. And some fell upon a rock, and assoon as it was sprung up, it withered away, because it lacked (root and) moisture:

7. And some fell among thorns, and the thorns [c] sprang up with it, and (overgrowing it,) choked it:

8. And other (seed) fell upon good ground, and sprang up, and bare fruit an hundred fold. And when he had said these things, he cried, He that hath ears to hear, (i. e. wisdom to discern, and willingness to receive the truth,) let him hear, (i. e. embrace it.)

9. And his disciples asked him, saying, What might (the meaning of) this parable be?

10. And he said (to them,) To you it is given to know the mysteries of the kingdom of God; but to others (I speak) in parables, (they having shut their eyes, and closed their ears, Matth. 13. 14.) [d] that seeing they might not see, and hearing they might not understand.

11. Now the (meaning of the) parable is this: the seed is the word of God.

12. Those (seeds sown) by the way side, are (emblematically) they that hear, (but consider not what they hear, Matth. 13. 19.) then cometh the devil, (Gr. εἶτα so that the devil cometh,) and taketh away the word out of their hearts, lest they should believe, and be saved.

13 They (who are represented by the seed sown) on the rock, are they which when they hear, receive the word with joy; and those have no root, (being persons) which for a while believe, and (but) in time of temptation fall away.

14. And (by) that (seed) which fell among thorns, are they (represented,) who when they have heard (the word) go forth (into the world,) and are choked with cares, and riches, and pleasures of this life, and bring no fruit to perfection.

15. But (by) that (seed which fell) on [e] good ground, are they (represented,) who in an honest and good heart, having heard the word, keep it, and bring forth fruit with patience.

16. (And having thus explained this parable, he said, I do not impart this knowledge to you that you may conceal it, but that ye may teach it to others; for) no man when he [f] hath lighted a candle covereth it with a vessel, or putteth it under a bed, but setteth it on a candlestick, that they which enter in (to the house) may see the light.

17. For nothing is (said in) secret (by me) that should not be made manifest, neither (is) any thing hid that should not be known, and come abroad.

18. Take heed therefore how ye hear: for whosoever hath (so as to improve it,) to him shall be given (more;) and whosoever (thus) hath not, from him shall be taken (away) even that which he seemeth to have.

19. Then came to (see) him his mother and his brethren; and (they) could not come at him for the press:

20. And it was told him by certain, which said, Thy mother and thy brethren stand without, desiring to see thee.

21. And he anſwered, and ſaid to them, (as) My mother and my brethren are they who hear the word of God, and do it.

22. Now it came to paſs on a certain day, that he went into a ſhip with his diſciples; and he ſaid to them, Let us go over to the other ſide of the lake; and they launched forth.

23. But as they ſailed he fell aſleep, and there came down a ſtorm of wind on the lake, and they were filled with water, and were in jeopardy.

24. And they came to him, and awoke him, ſaying, Maſter, Maſter, we (are ready to) periſh: then he aroſe, and rebuked the wind, and the raging of the water, (ſaying to them, Peace, be ſtill;) and (then) they ceaſed, and there was a calm.

25. And he ſaid to them, Where is your faith? And they being afraid, wondered, ſaying one to another, What manner of man is this! for he commandeth even the winds and water, and they obey him.

26. And they arrived at the country of the Gadarens, which is over againſt Galilee.

27. And when he went forth to land, there met him out of the city, a certain man which had (been poſſeſſed with) devils (a) long time, and (he) wore no clothes, neither abode in any houſe, but in the tombs.

28. When he (the evil ſpirit) ſaw Jeſus, he cried out, and fell down before him, and with a loud voice ſaid, What have I to do with thee, Jeſus, thou Son of God moſt High? I beſeech thee torment me not; (this he ſaid fearing he might be puniſhed for what he had done to the man:)

29. For he (i. e. Jeſus) had commanded the unclean ſpirit to come out of the man: for oftentimes it had caught him; and (though) he was kept bound with chains, and in fetters, and (yet) he brake the bonds, and he was driven of the devil into the wilderneſs.

30. And Jeſus asked (the unclean ſpirit in) him, ſaying, What is thy name? And he ſaid, (It is) Legion; becauſe many devils were entred into him.

31. And they beſought him, that he would not command them to go out into the deep.

32. And there was there a herd of many ſwine feeding on the mountains, and they beſought him, that he would ſuffer them to enter into them, and he ſuffered them.

33. Then went the devils out of the man, and entered into the ſwine; and the herd ran violently down a ſteep place into the lake, and were choked.

34. And when they that fed them ſaw what was done, they fled (from the place,) and went and told in the city, and in the country, (what was done.)

35. Then they went out to ſee what was done, and came to Jeſus, and found the man out of whom the devils were departed, ſitting at the feet of Jeſus, clothed, and in his right mind; and they were afraid.

36. They alſo which ſaw it, told them by what means he that was poſſeſſed of the devils was healed.

37. Then the whole multitude of the country of the Gadarens round about, beſought him to depart from them; for they were taken with great fear (of what they might further ſuffer by him;) and he (accordingly) went up into the ſhip, and returned back again.

38. Now the man out of whom the devils were departed, beſought him that he might be with him: but Jeſus ſent him away, ſaying,

39. Return to thy houſe, and ſhew how great things God hath done to (for) thee; and he went his way, and publiſhed throughout the whole city, how great things Jeſus had done to him.

40. And it came to paſs, that when Jeſus was returned, the people gladly received him, for they were all waiting for him.

41. And behold, there came a man named Jairus, and he was a ruler of the ſynagogue, and he fell down at Jeſus feet, and beſought him that he would come into his houſe.

42. For he had one only daughter about twelve years of age, and ſhe lay a dying; but as he went, the people thronged (about) him.

43. And a woman having an iſſue (or flux) of blood twelve years, which had ſpent all her living upon phyſicians, neither could be healed of (i. e. by) any (of them,)

44. Came behind him, and touched the border of his garment; and immediately her iſſue of blood ſtanched.

45. And Jeſus ſaid, Who touched me? When all (the reſt) denied, Peter, and they that were with him, ſaid, Maſter, the multitude throng thee, and preſs thee, and ſayeſt thou, Who touched me?

46. And Jeſus ſaid, Some body hath touched me (in order to ſome cure,) for I perceive that virtue is gone out of me, (to heal ſome body.)

47. And when the woman ſaw that ſhe was not hid (from him,) ſhe came trembling, and falling down before him, ſhe declared to him before all the people, for what cauſe ſhe had touched him, and how ſhe was healed immediately.

48. And he ſaid to her, Daughter, be of good comfort, comfort, thy faith hath made thee whole, go in peace.

49. While he yet ſpake, there cometh one from the ruler of the ſynagogues houſe, ſaying to him, Thy daughter is dead, trouble not the Maſter (any further.)

50. But when Jeſus heard it, he anſwered him, ſaying, Fear not, believe only, and ſhe ſhall be made whole.

51. And when he came into the houſe, he ſuffered no man to go in (to her apartment,) ſave Peter, and James, and John, and the father and mother of the maiden.

52. And all (preſent) wept, and bewailed her: but he ſaid, Weep not, (you ſhall ſoon find) ſhe is not (as one) dead, but (as one that) ſleepeth.

53. And they laughed him to ſcorn, knowing that ſhe was dead.

54. And he put them all out (who were thus weeping,) and took her by the hand, and called, ſaying, Maid, ariſe;

55. And her [b] ſpirit came again, and ſhe aroſe ſtraightway, and he commanded to give her meat.

56. And her parents were aſtoniſhed: but he charged them that they ſhould tell no man what was done.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. VIII.

Ver. 23. [a] Καὶ γυναῖκες τίνες αἱ ἦσαν τεθεραπευμέναι ἀπὸ πνευμάτων πονηρῶν, καὶ ἀσθενειῶν, And certain women which had been healed of evil ſpirits, and infirmities, miniſtred to him of their ſubſtance.] This was cuſtomary, ſaith (a) St Jerom, among the Jews, for women, and eſpecially for widows, to miniſter neceſſaries to their teachers; and his diſciples being with him, and they being not repreſented as of his family or domeſtics, but only as followers of his doctrine, could give no ground for any ill ſuſpicion in this caſe.

Ver. 5. [b] Καὶ κατεπατήθη, And it was trodden down.] This is not mentioned by St Matthew or Mark, and ſeems to ſignify, a great contempt of the divine ſeed, the things which we tread under our feet being accounted vile, and not worthy to be taken up from the ground.

Ver. 7. [c] Καὶ συμφυεῖσαι αἱ ἄκανθαι ἀπέπνιξαν αὐτό, And the thorns ſpringing up with it, choked it.] There be two principles of action in man, the fleſh and the ſpirit, or the inward man; from which ariſe different appetites and inclinations: the fleſh produceth an affection to riches, pleaſures, and other allurements of the world, which are here called thorns; the inward man, or mind approving of the laws of God, Rom. 7. 22. and perſuading to thoſe things which conduce to the peace, and tranquility, and welfare of the ſoul, is a principle inclining us to virtuous actions; but if we ſuffer theſe thorns to take root in our hearts, and gain our affections, theſe inclinations to virtue will be quickly choked, or bring no fruit to ripeneſs or perfection, which is all one as to be ἄκαρποι, without fruit, as appears from ver. 14. compared with Matth. 13. 22. Mark 4. 19.

Ver. 8. See additions, N°. 12.

Ver. 10. [d] Ἵνα βλέποντες μὴ βλέπωσι, καὶ ἀκούοντες μὴ συνιῶσιν· That ſeeing they may not ſee, and hearing they may not underſtand; Mark 4. 12. That ſeeing they may ſee, and not perceive, and hearing they may hear, and not underſtand, leſt they ſhould be converted, and their ſins ſhould be forgiven them.] Here, ſay ſome, this is plainly given as the reaſon why our Saviour ſpake to them without in parables, viz. that they may not perceive, or underſtand, or be converted. But, to take off this pretenſion, it is ſufficient to obſerve, that the words in St Mark and Luke are only an abbreviation or ſhort hint of what St Matthew ſaith was ſpoken by our Lord more fully; for Chriſt might ſay what St Mark and Luke relate, and yet ſay more than they relate, as St Matthew doth aſſure us he did; but then St Matthew could not have given us his diſcourſe more fully, unleſs our Lord had ſpoken it more fully than it is related by St Mark and Luke: whence it muſt follow, that the relations of Mark and Luke muſt be allowed to be deficient, i. e. not to contain all that our Saviour ſaid on this occaſion, and therefore muſt be filled up, or rendered intire by the addition of the words recorded in St Matthew. Since then St Matthew doth expreſly tell us, from the mouth of Chriſt, he therefore ſpake to them in parables, becauſe they ſeeing would not ſee, or did not ſee, and hearing did not underſtand, and that they therefore did not ſee, hear, and underſtand, becauſe their heart was waxed groſs, and their ears heavy, and they had cloſed their eyes, leſt they ſhould ſee, and hear, and be converted; it ſeemeth evident, that the words of St Mark and Luke muſt be filled up or made intire thus; To others (of the Jews) ſpeak I in parables, (becauſe they ſeeing, ſee not, and hearing, do not underſtand; for their hearts are waxed groſs, and their ears heavy, and their eyes have they cloſed,) that ſeeing they may ſee, and not perceive, and hearing they may hear, and not underſtand, leſt they ſhould be converted. And though doubtleſs this ſad effect of their not hearing and ſeeing, viz. leſt they ſhould be converted, was not intended by them; yet, ſince it was the natural iſſue of their ſhutting their eyes againſt the light, it fitly is aſcribed to them; as when the prophet Hoſea ſaith, chap. 8. 4. Of their ſilver and gold have they made them idols, that they might be cut off; and the prophet Micah, chap. 6. 16. For the ſtatutes of Omri are kept, and all the works of the houſe of Ahab, and ye walk in their counſels, that I ſhould make thee a deſolation. A like expreſſion to this we find, Iſa. 63. 17.; why haſt thou cauſed us to err from thy ways? τὶ ἐσκλήρυνας τὰς καρδίας ἡμῶν τοῦ μὴ φοβεῖσθαί σε; Why haſt thou hardened our hearts that we ſhould not fear thee? And yet this is the church's prayer, imploring God's mercy, and the removal of his judgments, viz. the long oppreſſion of the Heathens, which was a temptation to them to depart from him, and to caſt off his fear, and therefore ſhews they were no otherwiſe hardened by God, than as theſe providences were a ſtrong temptation to them to caſt off his ſervice. See additions, N°. 13.

Ver. 15. [e] Τὸ δὲ ἐν τῇ καλῇ γῇ, οὗτοί εἰσιν οἵτινες ἐν καρδίᾳ καλῇ καὶ ἀγαθῇ, ἀκούσαντες τὸν λόγον, κατέχουσι, But that on the good ground, are they who in (with) an honeſt and good heart having heard the word, keep it, and bring forth fruit with patience.] From theſe words it is manifeſt, that ſome good diſpoſitions of heart are requiſite to render the word truly and durably fruitful. Now what this is, ſee note on Matth. 13. 23.

Ver. 16. [f] Οὐδεὶς δὲ λύχνον ἅψας καλύπτει αὐτὸν, No man when he hath lighted a candle, covereth it with a veſſel.] Of this, and the 17th verſe, ſee Mark 4. 22.

Ver. 39. [g] Ὅσα ἐποίησέ σοι ὁ Θεὸς, Shew how great things God hath done to thee.] Here, ſaith Woltzogenius, Chriſt aſcribes this miracle to God, the author of that power by which he did it, John 5. 19. whereas, had he been the High God, he ſhould have aſcribed it to himſelf. I anſwer, He doth this as not ſeeking his own glory, but the glory of him that ſent him, i. e. as one executing his propehtic office in his Father's name, and caſting out devils by that Spirit he received from his Father.

Ver. 55. [h] Ἐπέστρεψε τὸ πνεῦμα αὐτῆς, Her ſpirit returned.] By adding this, ſaith Grotius, St Luke ſhews that the ſoul of man is not corporeal, or any thing that periſheth with it, but αὐθυπόστατόν τι, ſomething ſubſiſting of itſelf, which, when the body dies, exiſts elſewhere, as the word ἐπέστρεψε ſhews. But this is not a certain inference from the word: for of Sampſon refreſhed with the water that came from the jaw of the aſs, it is ſaid, ἐπέστρεψε τὸ πνεῦμα αὐτοῦ, his ſpirit returned, Judg. 15. 19. and the like phraſe we find, Pſal. 3. 23. Lam. 1. 11, 16, 19. plainly importing the reſtoring a perſon to his vigour. This, therefore, is more ſurely to be gathered from the death of the damſel, ver. 53. for ſo Elijah ſpeaketh in a like caſe, 1 Kings 17. 21. ἐπιστραφήτω δὴ ἡ ψυχὴ τοῦ παιδαρίου τούτου, Let, I pray thee, the ſoul of this child return unto it.

CHAP. IX.

1. THEN he called his twelve diſciples together, and gave them power and authority (through his name) over all devils, and to cure diſeaſes.

2. And he ſent them to preach the (coming of the) kingdom of God, and to heal the ſick.

3. And he ſaid to them, Take nothing (with you) for your journey, neither ſtaves, nor ſcrip, neither bread, neither money, neither have two coats apiece; (for you ſhall want neither proviſions nor protection, chap 22. 35.)

4. And whatſoever houſe ye enter into, there abide (while ye continue in that city,) and (from) thence depart (to another.)

5. And whoſoever will not receive you (r words, Matth. 10. 14.) when ye go out of that city, ſhake off the very duſt from your feet for a teſtimony againſt them, (that ye count them as unclean, and not fit to be converſed with any more.)

6. And they departed, and went through the towns (of Judea,) preaching the goſpel, and healing (the ſick) every where.

7. Now Herod the tetrarch heard of all that was done by him; and he was perplexed, becauſe it was ſaid of ſome, that John was then riſen from the dead; (and ſo his great wickedneſs appeared, in killing a man ſo highly favoured by God:)

8. And of ſome (it was ſaid) that Elias had appeared, (and ſo that kingdom of the Meſſiah was to be ſet up, which ſhould deſtroy all other kingdoms, Dan. 2. 44.) and of others, that one of the old prophets was riſen again.

9. And Herod ſaid, John have I beheaded, but (if he be not riſen again,) who is this of whom I hear ſuch (wondrous) things? and he deſired to ſee him, (that ſo he might diſcern whether he were the baptiſt or not.)

10. And the apoſtles, when they were returned, told him all that they had done (in his name;) and he took them, and went aſide privately into a desert place, belonging to the city, called Bethsaida, (that they might rest a little, Mark 6. 31.)

11. And the people, when they knew it, followed him; and he received them, and spake to them of the kingdom of God, and healed them that had need of healing.

12. And when the day began to wear away, then came the twelve, and said to him, Send the multitude away, that they may go into the country, and towns round about, and (may) lodge, and get victuals, (which here they cannot do,) for we are here in a desert place.

13. But he said to them, Give ye them to eat; and they (upon enquiry, Mark 6. 38.) said, We have no more but five loaves, and two (little) fishes, (and what are they among so many? we cannot, therefore, satisfy them,) except we should go and buy meat for all this people.

14. For they were about five thousand men, (who were to be fed;) and he said to his disciples, Make them sit down by fifties in a company.

15. And they did so (as he commanded,) and made them all sit down.

16. Then he took the five loaves, and the two fishes, and looking up to heaven, blessed (God over) them, and brake (them,) and gave (of them) to the disciples to set before the multitude.

17. And they did eat, and were all filled; and there were taken up of fragments that remained to them (that gathered them,) twelve baskets.

18. And it came to pass, as he [a] was alone (from the multitude) praying, his disciples were with him; and (having ended his prayer,) he asked them, saying, Whom say the people that I am?

19. They answering, said, (Some say thou art) John the baptist; but some say (thou art) Elias; and others say, that one of the old prophets is risen again.

20. He said to them, But whom say ye that I am? Peter answering, said, (Thou art) the Christ of God.

21. And he straitly charged them, and commanded them to tell no man that thing,

22. Saying, The Son of man must suffer many things, and be rejected of the elders, and chief priests, and scribes, and be slain, and be raised (again) the third day.

23. And he said to them all, If any man will come after me, let him [b] deny himself, and take up his cross daily, (as occasion serves,) and follow me:

24. For whosoever will (reject me to) save his life, shall lose it; but whosoever will (be ready to) lose his life for my sake, the same shall save it; (and this surely will be his wisest course:)

25. For what is a man advantaged, if he gain the whole world, and lose himself, or be cast away, (as they who reject me, to save this temporal life, will be.)

26. For whosoever shall be ashamed of me, and of my words (now,) of him shall the Son of man be ashamed, when he shall come in his own [c] glory, and in his Fathers, (that of light and flame, see note on Heb. 1. 3.) and (with the glorious attendance) of the holy angels.

27. But (besides this coming at the dreadful day,) I tell you of a truth, There be some standing here, which shall not taste of death till they see the (Son of man coming in the) kingdom of God (with power, Matth. 16. 28. Mark 9. 1. to execute his judgments on them that reject him.)

28. And it came to pass, about an eight days after these sayings, (see the note on Mark 9 2.) he took Peter, and John, and James, and went up unto a mountain to pray:

29. And as he prayed, the fashion (or appearance) of his countenance was altered, and his raiment was (or became) white and glistering.

30. And behold, there talked with him two men, which (by their discourse) were (known to be) Moses and Elias,

31. Who appeared in glory, and spake of his [d] decease, (the death) which he should accomplish at Jerusalem.

32. But Peter and they that were with him (whilst he was praying) were heavy with sleep; and when they were awake, they saw his glory, and the two men that stood with him.

33. And it came to pass, as they departed from him, Peter said to Jesus, Master, it is good for us to be here; [e] and (therefore) let us make (here) three tabernacles, one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias, not knowing (whether) what he said (were well or ill said.)

34. While he thus spake, there came a cloud (of glory) and overshadowed them; and they feared as they entered into the cloud, (because of the magnificent glory of it, 2 Pet. 1. 17.)

35. And there came a voice out of the cloud, saying, This is my beloved Son, hear him.

36. And when the voice was past, Jesus was found alone; and they (three) kept it, (the vision,) close, and told no man in those days any of those things which they had seen.

37. And it came to pass, that on the next day, when they were come down from the hill, much people met him;

38. And behold, a man of the company cried out, saying, Master, I beseech thee, look upon my son, for he is my only child:

39. And lo, a [f] spirit taketh him; and he suddenly denly crieth out, and it teareth him that he foameth again; (Gr. it cauſeth him to beat himſelf, and foam,) and bruiſing him, hardly departeth from him.

40. And I beſought thy diſciples to caſt him out, and they could not; (and this hath raiſed a diſpute betwixt the ſcribes and thy diſciples, concerning thy power, Mark 9. 15.)

41. And Jeſus anſwering, ſaid, O faithleſs and perverſe generation, how long ſhall I be with you, and ſuffer you? Bring thy ſon hither.

42. And as he was yet coming, the devil threw him down, and tare him; (or, and he beat himſelf with his fiſts;) and Jeſus rebuked the unclean ſpirit, and healed the child (of his epilepſy,) and delivered him again to his father.

43. And they were all amazed at the mighty power of God, (viſible in Chriſt;) but while they wondered every one at all (theſe) things which Jeſus did, he ſaid to his diſciples,

44. Let theſe ſayings ſink down into your ears; for (notwithſtanding this ſeeming admiration,) the Son of man ſhall (by theſe very Jews) be delivered into the hands of men.

45. But they [g] underſtood not this ſaying, and it was hid from them, that they perceived it not; and they feared to ask him (of) that ſaying.

46. Then there aroſe a reaſoning among them, which of them ſhould be greateſt.

47. And Jeſus perceiving the thought of their heart, took a child, and ſet him by him,

48. And ſaith to them, Whoſoever ſhall receive (ſuch a one as) this child in my name, receiveth me; and whoſoever ſhall receive me, receiveth him that ſent me; for he that is leaſt among you all, (in his own,) the ſame ſhall be great (in my eſteem and kingdom.)

49. And John anſwered (i. e. ſpake) and ſaid, Maſter, we ſaw one caſting out devils in thy name, and we forbad him, becauſe he followeth not with us.

50. And Jeſus ſaid to him, Forbid him not; for he that is not againſt us, (but purſues the ſame deſign in beating down the kingdom of Satan,) is for us.

51. And it came to paſs, when the time was (near) come, that he ſhould [h] be received up (into heaven,) he [i] ſtedfaſtly ſet his face (or fully purpoſed) to go to Jeruſalem, (where he was to ſuffer;)

52. And (therefore) ſent meſſengers before his face; and they went, and entered into a village of the Samaritans, to make ready (a lodging) for him.

53. And they did not receive him, becauſe his [k] face was as though he would go (i. e. he appeared to them to be going) to Jeruſalem (to worſhip.)

54. And when his diſciples, James and John, ſaw this, they ſaid, Lord, wilt thou that we command fire to come down from heaven to conſume them, even as Elias did (to the captains and their fifties?)

55. But he turned, and [l] rebuked them, and ſaid, Ye know not what manner of ſpirit ye are of; (i. e. how oppoſite this exterminating ſpirit is to the deſign of my coming;)

56. For the Son of man is not come to deſtroy mens (temporal) lives, but to ſave them; and they went to another village.

57. And it came to paſs, as they went in the way, a certain man ſaid to him, Lord, [m] I will follow thee whitherſoever thou goeſt.

58. And Jeſus ſaid to him, (Thou canſt expect no advantage at preſent by following me; for) the foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have neſts, but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head.

59. And he ſaid to another, Follow me: but he ſaid, Lord, ſuffer me firſt to go (home,) and (ſtay till I) bury my (aged) father, (and then I will attend upon thee.)

60. Jeſus ſaid to him, Let the dead bury their dead, (or thoſe who are dead to ſpiritual things be employed in thoſe affairs;) but go thou (forthwith) and preach the kingdom of God.

61. And another alſo ſaid, Lord, I will follow thee: but let me firſt go bid them farewel that are at home at my houſe.

62. And Jeſus ſaid to him, No [n] man having put his hand to the plough, and looking back, (i. e. having undertook my ſervice, and diverting from it to worldly buſineſs,) is fit for the kingdom of God.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. IX.

Ver. 8. [a] Καὶ ἐγένετο ἐν τῷ εἶναι αὐτὸν καταμόνας προσευχόμενον. And it came to paſs, as he was alone praying, his diſciples were with him.] The word καταμόνας, alone, excludes not his diſciples, but the multtiude now ſent away, when they were filled, ver. 17. as appears from Mark 4. 10. Or καταμόνας προσευχόμενον may be rendered, as he was praying alone, or by himſelf; his prayer being ended, his diſciples came to him.

Ver. 23. [b] Ἀπαρνησάσθω ἑαυτὸν καὶ ἀράτω τὸν σταυρὸν αὐτοῦ καθ' ἡμέραν. If any man will come after me, let him deny himſelf, and take up his croſs daily, and follow me:] Daily; i. e. as oft as an occaſion offers itſelf. Here I ſhall recollect all that is ſaid in ſeveral veral places of the goſpel concerning this ſelf-denial, and taking up the croſs; and thence give rules compriſing this whole duty. And,

1. We muſt deny father and mother; for, If a man come to me, ſaith Chriſt, and hate not, Luke 14. 26. i. e. forſake not father and mother, Matth. 19. 29. he cannot be my diſciple; for he that loveth father and mother more than me, is unworthy of me, Matth. 10. 37. Our Lord had told them, ver. 35, 36. that his goſpel would accidentally cauſe great variance and diviſion betwixt the father and the ſon, the mother and the daughter, and render thoſe of their own houſhold the moſt fierce and cruel enemies: he therefore lets them know, that if, when this ſhall come to paſs, father or mother did prevail upon them, either by that affection which men naturally bear to their parents, or by that reverence they give to their authority and commands, when theſe commands do thwart his precepts, or elſe by thoſe advantages or outward comforts which they expect to receive from their parents, and, by adhering to the doctrine of their Lord, might loſe or hazard; i. e. if they, by any of theſe motives, were induced to prefer the commands or will of their parents before Chriſt's, and value their countenance and affection before his favour, they could not be ſincerely his diſciples. Now this, by parity of reaſon, holds concerning civil magiſtrates, who are the fathers of their country, and ſpiritual ſuperiors, who are fathers of the church; and of all others who have like power to command, reward, or puniſh us. And ſo this inſtance affords this rule of ſelf-denial.

Rule I. That they to whom we bear the greateſt natural affection, and the higheſt reverence, to whoſe commands we owe the moſt intire obedience in lawful matters, from whom we have received already, and may expect the greateſt temporal advantages, provided we comply with their deſires, or the worſt temporal evils upon refuſal, muſt be denied, forſaken, and comparatively hated for the ſake of Chriſt; ſo that although the yerning bowels of a tender mother, which at firſt conceived me, and the gray hairs of an indulgent father, ſhould be pleaded as motives to induce me to break the leaſt commandment of the holy Jeſus: though the authority of civil, natural, and eccleſiaſtical ſuperiors ſhould combine to tempt me to do what Chriſt forbids; though this authority ſhould allure me with profers of the higheſt honours or rewards, or ſhould endeavour to affright me with the ſevereſt menaces: yet if all theſe conſiderations ſhould prevail with me to gratify myſelf and them, by doing that which my own conſcience, and God's word, aſſures me will be diſpleaſing to my Saviour, or oppoſite to his commands; it is evident that I regard myſelf, or them, more than I do my Saviour, and therefore am unworthy of him, and cannot be ſincerely his diſciple.

2. We muſt deny our wife and children, even that wife of our boſom who is made one fleſh with us, whom we muſt love as dearly as we love ourſelves, Eph. 5. 33. and for whoſe ſake father and mother muſt be left, Gen. 2. 24. We alſo muſt deny thoſe children which are the offspring of our bowels, the joy and comfort of our lives; for, if any man come to me, ſaith Chriſt, and hate not his wife and children, Luke 14. 26. if he forſake not wife and children for my name's ſake, and the goſpel's, Mark 10. 28. he cannot be my diſciple. Accordingly it is recorded, for the everlaſting honour of the Levites, that they obſerved God's word, and kept his covenant, ſaying unto their father and mother, I have not ſeen them, not knowing their own children, not acknowledging their brethren; that is, being commanded by God's ſervant Moſes, to kill every man his brother, friend, and ſon, that had been guilty of idolatry in worſhipping the golden calf, they executed the command of God, without regard to father, mother, ſon, or brother, Exod. 32. 27, 28. Now the children of our loins, and the wife of our boſom, being the objects of our ſtrongeſt love, and greateſt pity, and thoſe in whom we chiefly take delight and pleaſure, this ſecond inſtance will afford this rule, viz.

Rule II. That whatever we moſt paſſionately love, are moſt eſpecially concerned for, do cleave moſt cloſely to in our affections, and above all enjoyments do take the moſt pleaſure in, muſt be loved leſs than Chriſt: and, conſequently, muſt be denied, forſaken, and, comparatively, hated for his ſake and the goſpel's. Now to this rule, by parity of reaſon, may be reduced all our immoderate affections to the pleaſures of this world, whether they be the pleaſures of the appetite, ſuch as the glutton and the drunkard do purſue; the pleaſures of the ſenſes, which the voluptuous and luſtful perſons chiefly proſecute; the pleaſures of vain ſports and paſtimes, gamings, and other recreations: ſo that if our affection to a boſom-friend prevail upon us to deſert that religion we profeſs, without conviction, or to act in contradiction to any precept of it, of which our conſcience is convinced; if our love to our own offspring will not permit us to reprove, correct, or to reſtrain them, when they diſhonour God, and render themſelves vile, but, with old Eli, we deſpiſe our God by thus preferring our ſons before him; if our affections are inordinately ſet upon the pleaſures of the world, now mentioned, ſo that we we do more paſſionately covet, and delight more in them than the things of God, we do more eagerly purſue, more conſtantly employ our care and time about them than about ſpiritual things, and ſo become lovers of pleaſures more than lovers of God; if our affection to them doth prevail upon us to neglect our duty towards God, our neighbour, or ourſelves, or to enjoy them in that degree or manner which is forbidden by the laws of Chriſt, then do we love them more than Chriſt, and therefore cannot be ſincerely his diſciples.

3. We muſt deny brother and ſiſter, which may be fitly ſtiled denying of ourſelves, ſeeing a brother is a ſecond ſelf, of the ſame fleſh and blood with us, and therefore ſtiled, Frater quaſi fere alter? For, he that cometh unto me, ſaith Chriſt, and hateth not his brother and his ſiſter, Luke 14. 26. i. e. who will not leave them for my ſake, Mark 10. 28. cannot be my diſciple. Now a brother naturally, and in the ſcripture import of the word, denotes a perſon with whom we do familiarly converſe, and have an intimate acquaintance; hence, when the ſpouſe deſireth to have more near acquaintance, and more cloſe communion with Chriſt, ſhe thus expreſſeth her deſire, Oh that he were as my brother, that ſucked the breaſts of my mother, Cant. 8. 1. And the wiſe man exhorting others to aſſociate themſelves with wiſdom, and be more intimately acquainted with her ways, doth bid them ſay to wiſdom, Thou art my ſiſter, Prov. 7. 4. Moreover, this relation intimates the cloſeſt union of affection, and the greateſt friendſhip; whence friends in ſcripture are ſo oft ſtiled brethren, and Chriſtian love, in the ſuperlative degree, is often repreſented by the love of brethren; ſo that our third rule will be this, viz.

Rule III. That Chriſtians muſt deny, forſake, and muſt, comparatively, hate their neareſt relative, and deareſt friend, who is as their own ſoul, Deut. 13. 6. and cleave cloſer to them than a brother, Prov. 18. 24. and him with whom they have enjoyed the ſweeteſt and moſt delightful converſe, and moſt familiar acquaintance, when it is neceſſary for the ſake of Chriſt, and in obedience to his precepts ſo to do; and then, a fortiori, this rule muſt bind us to deny our pot-companions, our luſtful Dalilahs, our brethren in iniquity, our vain and ſinful company, and to have no communion with them in their works of darkneſs, but reprove them. If then the importunity of friend or brother prevail upon thee to tranſgreſs wilfully any commandment of thy God and Saviour; if they draw thee, by their examples or perſuaſions, to exceſs or riot, to chambering or wantonneſs, or any other ſin, which is, in effect, to perſuade thee to be damned for company; if in diſpenſing puniſhments, rewards, preferments, favours, thou doſt tranſgreſs this rule of equity on their accounts; if thy regard to them reſtrain thee from reproving their drunkenneſs and ſwearing, their leud or atheiſtical diſcourſe: nay, if the plain command of God, to hold no friendſhip or familiarity with them, doth not prevail upon thee to abandon and forſake their company, as much as may be; then evident it is thou loveſt the company of ſuch vile creatures more than communion with thy Saviour, thou doſt more prize their friendſhip than his favour, thou wilt not leave thy friend for him, and therefore art not worthy of him.

4. We muſt deny ourſelves in houſes, land, and goods, or in thoſe things by which we, with God's bleſſing on them, do ſubſiſt: and though theſe things be not ſo properly ourſelves as wives and children, yet, ſince men are ſo hot in the purſuit of them, that they will hazard their reputation, health, life, ſoul, or their whole ſelves in the proſecution of them; ſince, when theſe things are loſt, we are ſo apt to think and ſay, we are undone; ſince by the ſcriptures theſe things are called our ſubſtance, and are indeed the things by which our nature does ſubſiſt; our denial of them, upon theſe accounts, may very fitly be called ſelf-denial; and thus we are obliged to deny ourſelves: for whoſoever he be of us, that forſaketh not all that he hath, πάντα τὰ ὑπάρχοντα, all his poſſeſſions, or his worldly goods, he cannot be my diſciple, ſaith our Lord, Luke 14. 33. Hence doth our Saviour lay this command on the young man, to ſell his great poſſeſſions, and give them to the poor, and follow him in expectation of an heavenly treaſure; and did pronounce, on his refuſal to obey ſo irkſome a command, that he could not enter into the kingdom of God: here then the rule runs thus, viz.

Rule IV. That Chriſt's diſciples muſt, when his providence doth call them to it, renounce, caſt from them, abandon, even their whole ſubſiſtence, and all their temporal good things, in proſpect of thoſe ſpiritual bleſſings which he hath promiſed to all who, for his and his goſpel's ſake, do thus deny themſelves. And then much more muſt we renounce our ſuperfluities, and thoſe accommodations whereby we only gratify our fancies and our carnal minds, viz. our ſtately palaces, our numerous attendants, our delicious fare, our rich attire, our large and flouriſhing eſtates. If, then, we cannot freely ſpend theſe temporal enjoyments in the cauſe of Chriſt, or part with ſuperfluities for the relief and comfort of his members; if we cannot caſt away, abandon, or reject theſe things, though dear unto us as a right hand, or eye, when they prove ſnares, temptations, and offences to us; if the rich man cannot be contented to be brought low, and to take joyfully the ſpoiling of his goods, in proſpect of thoſe never failing riches Chriſt hath promiſed; if to enjoy, or to preſerve theſe things, we venture to make ſhipwreck of faith, or a good conſcience, or, out of love unto this preſent world, are moved, with Demas, to forſake or to neglect our duty to Chriſt, then we love mammon more than Chriſt, and therefore cannot be his true diſciples.

5. We muſt deny even life itſelf, which is ſtill a more high degree of ſelf-denial. There is ſcarce any thing we do ſo highly value, and dearly love, and ſo much labour to preſerve, and ſo unwillingly let go, as life; for ſkin for, or after, ſkin, and all that a man hath, will a man give for his life: and yet this alſo muſt be denied for Chriſt's ſake: for if any man come unto me, and hateth not his own life, ſaith Chriſt, he cannot be my diſciple; i. e. if he doth not love God better, and prize his favour more, than he doth value the continuance of this preſent life; if he cannot prevail upon himſelf to die for Chriſt, that he may live for ever with him, and loſe this miſerable life, to find it happily improved into a life of endleſs bliſs and happineſs; if he cannot follow the example of his Lord, who ſuffered firſt, then entered into his glory, he vainly doth pretend to be a follower, or a diſciple of the holy Jeſus. This inſtance, then, of ſelf-denial, doth inform us, that even natural life muſt be forſaken and renounced, when we cannot preſerve it without the loſs of our more valuable intereſt in Chriſt, and thoſe eternal bleſſings he hath promiſed to all thoſe that ſuffer for the ſake of righteouſneſs. And if this natural life muſt be denied for Chriſt, much more my perſonal or civil liberty, my habitation, or my country.

Rule V. If, then, I cannot live a pilgrim and ſtranger upon earth, in expectation of an heavenly country, or live in baniſhment and exile for the cauſe of Chriſt; if I cannot ſuffer bonds and impriſonments, that I may ſtill continue the Lord's freeman; if I cannot be induced to loſe my life, that I may find it, but will endeavour to preſerve my life, or liberty, by the violation of any laws of Chriſt, it is evident I love this preſent life more than I love my Saviour, more than that crown of life which he hath only promiſed to thoſe who ſhall continue faithful to the death, and therefore am unworthy of him, and falſly do pretend to be a true diſciple of the Holy Jeſus.

6. We muſt deny our honour and our reputation, our eaſe, and our deliverance from thoſe afflictions which render life a burden, which is the laſt and the higheſt pitch of ſelf-denial; even when our afflictions and our perſecution do render death itſelf a mercy and deliverance, when, with good Job, our ſoul chuſeth ſtrangling and death, rather than life, and longeth for it more than for hid treaſure, Job 3. 21. when, for his ſake, we are reproached all the day long, and are expoſed as ſpectacles of ſhame and infamy to the beholder; all this we muſt with patience ſuffer for the name of Jeſus: for even after that our Lord had ſaid, If any man come to me, and hate not his own life, he cannot be my diſciple, he adds, Luke 14. 27. And whoſoever doth not bear his croſs, cannot be my diſciple: wherefore this bearing of the croſs imports ſome farther act of ſelf-denial; which, that we may the better underſtand, conſider, 1ſt, That the croſs, among the Romans, was accounted the moſt ignominious and ſhameful death, inflicted only upon ſlaves; for, as Lactantius ſaith, Homine libero quamvis nocente indignum videbatur, now to a generous ſpirit it is not ſo much to die, as it is to ſuffer in an ignominious manner, and as the worſt of malefactors, being innocent: whence, as the Heathen Seneca well notes, no perſon can ſo much expreſs his love to virtue, or more intirely be devoted to her, than he qui boni viri famam perdit, ne conſcientiam perderet, that loſes his reputation to preſerve his conſcience. 2dly, Conſider that this was a moſt bitter, painful, and afflictive death; whence, as St Auſtin notes, acerbiſſimi dolores, cruciatus, a cruce vocabantur. From this expreſſion, therefore, thus explained, I collect this rule, viz.

Rule VI. That the diſciple of the holy Jeſus muſt endure the moſt fiery trials, the moſt ſharp afflictions, and chuſe to die in the moſt ſhameful, ignominious manner for the cauſe of Chriſt; i. e. when he cannot eſcape thoſe things without denial, or acting contrary to the commandments of his Saviour; and then much more, when equal circumſtances do concur, muſt he deny himſelf his eaſe and worldly quiet, his places of grandeur, his honour, and his reputation, and thoſe punctilios of honour which the Hectors of our age ſo much inſiſt on; and muſt with patience bear, and readineſs forgive, all the affronts he ſuffers from the hands of men, which he can never leſs deſerve than by adhering firmly to his Lord. If, then, we cannot quit our eaſe, and worldly quietneſs for Chriſt, but rather will neglect known duty, than give ourſelves the trouble which Chriſt's ſervice calls for, rather comply with what is uppermoſt, than put ourſelves to any trouble or diſquiet to preſerve an upright conſcience; if the example and authority of Chriſt be not ſufficient to curb our angry paſſions, quell our malicious and revengeful tempers; if the punctilios of honour tempt us to duel, and to ſpill our brothers blood; if we cannot lay down our honour and our reputation at the feet of Chriſt, not ſeeking honours from frail creatures, but that which comes from God alone, and being willing to be diſhonoured for his ſake; if fiery trials do cool our love to Chriſt, or the moſt ſharp afflictions do cauſe us to forget our duty to him; if we do not rather chuſe to endure affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleaſures of ſin for a ſeaſon; we either love or fear thoſe things more than we love the favour, or fear the frowns of our bleſſed Lord, and therefore cannot be his true diſciples.

Ver. 26. [c] Ὅταν ἔλθῃ ἐν τῇ δόξῃ αὐτοῦ, καὶ τοῦ πατρὸς καὶ τῶν ἁγίων ἀγγέλων, When he ſhall come in his own, and in his Father's glory, and in the glory of his holy angels.] The divine apparitions in the Old Teſtament are repreſented by a great light or ſplendor, by the Jews ſtiled ſhechinah, and the preſence and attendance of the holy angels; and theſe are ſtiled the glory of God, or the appearance of the glory of God, and repreſenting to them God the Father, are here ſtiled, the glory of the Father; and it being the λόγος, or Son of God, which uſually thus appeared, and who, after his aſcenſion, was again inveſted with this glory, it is here alſo ſtiled his glory. See the notes on John 17. 5. Philip. 2. 6. Heb. 1. 3.

Ver. 31. [d] Ἔλεγον τὴν ἔξοδον αὐτοῦ, And they ſpake of his deceaſe, which he ſhould accompliſh ἐν Ἱερουσαλὴμ, at Jeruſalem.] Not of that deſtruction which he was to accompliſh on Jeruſalem; for that Moſes and Eliäs ſpake one word of that, we read not in the holy ſcripture; nor doth the word ἔξοδος, abſolutely put, ever ſignify any ſuch thing, but only when it is joined with army, king, captains, ſoldiers, and the like; but it is the proper word uſed by ſcripture and other writers for a departure out of this life. So 2 Pet. 1. 15. I will endeavour that μετὰ τὴν ἐμὴν ἔξοδον, after my departure ye may have theſe things in remembrance; Wiſd. 3. 2. In the ſight of the unwiſe they ſeemed to die, καὶ ἔξοδος αὐτῶν, and their departure is taken for miſery. And chap. 7. 6. All men have one entrance into life, ἔξοδός τε ἴση, and their departure is alike. Ecclus. 38. 23. Be comforted for him ἐν ἐξόδῳ πνεύματος αὐτοῦ, when his ſpirit departeth. Hence Grotius notes this as one of thoſe phraſes by which the old tradition of the immortality of the ſoul was preſerved, though ἐξέλευσις πνεύματος is only the expiration, or going forth of the breath of man, Pſal. 104. 29. —146. 4.

Ver. 33. [e] Καὶ ποιήσωμεν, And let us make three tabernacles;] Καὶ here ſignifies therefore, as Gen. 12. 19.—29. 33.—42. 22. Deut. 4. 6, 15, 37, 40. chap. 5. 32.—6. 3.—7. 9.—8. 6.—28. 48. Joſh. 23. 11.—24. 10, 18. 1 Sam. 2. 17. Luke 12. 29. 1 Cor. 5. 13.

Ver. 39. [f] Καὶ ἰδοὺ πνεῦμα λαμβάνει αὐτὸν, And behold a ſpirit taketh him.] That this perſon was truly poſſeſſed of an evil ſpirit, is evident, 1. Becauſe St Matthew ſaith expreſly that Chriſt rebuked him, and the devil departed from him, Matth. 17. 18. 2. Becauſe Chriſt commands him to depart, and return no more, Mark 9. 24.

Ver. 45. [g] Οἱ δὲ οὐκ ἐγίνωσκον τὸ ῥῆμα, καὶ ἦν παρακεκαλυμμένον ἀπ' αὐτῶν, But they underſtood not this ſaying, and it was hid from them.] They underſtood the words, but knew not how to reconcile them with their own traditions, that their Meſſiah ſhould live for ever, or with the great things they expected from him; and therefore, in after ages, they invented the diſtinction of Meſſiah Ben Joſeph, who was to die, and Meſſiah Ben David, who was to triumph, and live for ever.

Ver. 51. [h] Ἐγένετο δὲ ἐν τῷ συμπληροῦσθαι τὰς ἡμέρας τῆς ἀναλήψεως αὐτοῦ, When the time was come that he ſhould be received up.] Though this may be ſaid with ſome analogy of his death, which he was πληροῦσθαι ἐν Ἱερουσαλὴμ, to accompliſh at Jeruſalem, whither he was now bound, becauſe that was by being lifted up upon the croſs; yet that being only ſtiled ὕψωσις, but never ἀνάληψις, I incline rather to think, that as his ἔξοδος ſignifies his departure, ſo his ἀνάληψις may import his glorious aſcenſion into heaven, the fruit and conſequent of his death, who having purged away our ſins by his death, is ſet down at the right hand of Majeſty in the higheſt, Heb. 1. 3. He for the ſuffering of death being crowned with glory and honour, chap. 2. 9. and διὸ, for this cauſe exalted, Philip. 2. 9. So Eliäs is ſaid ἀναληφθῆναι εἰς τὸν οὐρανὸν, to be taken up into heaven, 2 Kings 2. 1, 9. Eccluſ. 48. 9.

Ibid. [i] Καὶ αὐτὸς ἐστήριξε πρόσωπον αὐτοῦ τοῦ πορεύεσθαι εἰς Ἱερουσαλὴμ, He ſtedfaſtly ſet his face to go to Jeruſalem.] That is, he firmly purpoſed to go to Jeruſalem, and began to execute it by paſſing from Galilee, the road-way through Samaria to Jeruſalem. This is the frequent import of this phraſe in the Septuagint, when there is mention of the counſel, purpoſe, or decree of God declared to his people. So Jer. 3. 12. ὁ μὴ στήσω πρόσωπόν μου ἐφ' ὑμᾶς, I will not ſet my face againſt you; chap. 21. 10. ἔστηξα τὸ πρόσωπόν μου, I have ſet my face againſt this city for evil; and Ezek. 21. 2. στῆσον τὸ πρόσωπόν σου ἐπὶ Ἱερουσαλὴμ, ſet thy face againſt Jeruſalem. So chap. 6. 2.—13. 17.—15. 7.—20. 46.—25. 2.—28. 21.—29. 2.—38. 2. Dan. 11. 16, 17.

Ver. 53. [k] And the Samaritans received him not, ὅτι τὸ πρόσωπον αὐτοῦ ἦν τὸ πορευόμενον εἰς Ἱερουσαλὴμ, Becauſe his face was as though he was going to Jeruſalem.] It appeared by the road he took, and the places he went through, that he was going thither:

thither: so of Sennacherib, Hezekiah saw ὅτι τὸ πρόσωπον αὐτῷ, that his face was to fight against Jerusalem, 2 Chron. 32. 2. i. e. that he directed his army thither; and they that firmly purposed to go to Egypt are ἄνδρες τὸ πρόσωπον αὐτῶν εἰς γῆν Αἰγύπτου, men that set their face to go into Egypt, Jer. 42. 15, 17. see also 2 Kings 12. 17. The reason why the Samaritans, knowing this his purpose, received him not, as they did other Galileans going thither, was, that by going thither on a religious account, viz. to celebrate the passover, he decided the controversy betwixt them and the Jews, touching the place by God appointed for worship and for sacrifice, against them; which though they regarded not when done by the Galileans, yet was it grievous to them that such a celebrated doctor as Christ was should do it.

Ver. 54. See additions N°. 14.

Ver. 55, 56. [1] But he turned and rebuked them, saying, οὐκ οἴδατε οἵου πνεύματός ἐστε ὑμεῖς, You know not what spirit ye are of.] Here interpreters truly note, that πνεῦμα, spirit, is put for the affection or disposition of the mind; as when the scripture speaks of the spirit of bondage, and adoption, Rom. 8. 15. and of the spirit of fear, power, love, and of a sound mind, 2 Tim. 1. 7. But that which is here chiefly to be observed is, the contradiction of this saying to the Popish practice of persecuting, destroying, and exterminating those whom they call heretics, purely on the account of their religion; for observe,

1*st*, That whereas they who are thus persecuted by the church of Rome are falsly supposed to be schismatics and heretics, the Samaritans undoubtedly were both. For, 1. In opposition to the temple of Jerusalem, which God himself appointed for the place where he would be worshipped, commanding all men to repair to it, they erected a temple upon mount Gerizzim, and there they worshipped, deserting the temple of Jerusalem: this was their schism. 2. They also were heretics and idolaters, for they erred in matters which concerned salvation; and this our Saviour testified in these words, Ye worship ye know not what, we know what we worship, for salvation is of the Jews, John 4. 22.

2*dly*, Observe, That whereas Romanists do exercise this cruelty on them whom they call schismatics and heretics, chiefly for their refusing to receive and own him as Christ's vicar who manifestly doth usurp that title, these Samaritans refused to receive our Saviour himself in his own person, and that because he seemed to be going to Jerusalem to worship; so that the honour of God, and of religion, and of Jerusalem, the place of his peculiar worship, were all concerned in this case.

3*dly*, Observe, That the permission of what was here desired by St John and Peter would have been more effectual for the conviction of the heretical, schismatical Samaritans, than any of the punishments inflicted by the inquisition, or any arts of Papal tyranny, can be for the conviction of those whom they call heretics and schismatics; for these disciples did not desire that they themselves might execute on the Samaritans this sentence, by committing them to the flames, or by imploring the magistrates assistance to consume or burn them; they only did request that they might call upon the God of heaven to rain down fire upon them, and consume them; which had it pleased him to do on this occasion, the rest of the Samaritans, by what this village suffered, must have been evidently convinced, by demonstration from heaven, of God's displeasure against their way of worship, and of the truth of that Messiah, and his doctrine, who procured this vengeance to be executed upon them: whereas the persecutions of the church, because they minister no conviction to the conscience, serve only to harden men's hearts, and imbitter their spirits, against those who use them, and to induce them more firmly to believe, that such barbarous religion cannot be of God.

From these three observations it is evident, that whatsoever may be pleaded by the church of Rome to justify her practice in burning, massacring, extirpating of heretics and schismatics, might with advantage have been pleaded here. (b) "Doth "she practise her severities out of a zeal for truth, "and for the honour of God and Christ, and of "the true religion, and for the reclaiming here-"tics and schismatics, and the preventing or "terrifying others from adhering to them, or "being deluded by them;" upon all these accounts you see that the disciples had far greater cause to call for fire from heaven upon this village of Samaria: and yet our Saviour, under these circumstances, thinks fit to rebuke even the desires of doing this to one small village; how then will he rebuke the actual performance of it to many hundred thousand souls, after his solemn declaration of the repugnancy of these proceedings to the design of his most blessed advent, and to the spirit of the gospel? For the true reasons why Christ rebuked his disciples for their desire of dealing thus severely with these schismatical and heretical Samaritans were these: roneous perſons, in whomſoever it is found, is highly oppoſite to the calm temper of Chriſtianity, as is inſinuated in that reply of Chriſt to his diſciples, Ye know not what ſpirit ye are of; that is, ye do not well conſider under what way of diſpenſation ye are placed by me. (c) The way I come to teach men, the temper, diſpoſition and affection I would fix within them, is not a furious, perſecuting, and deſtructive ſpirit, but mild and gentle, and tender of the lives and intereſts of men, even of thoſe who are our greateſt enemies. Under the (d) Old Teſtament indeed they who rejected and ſcoffed at a prophet ſuffered ſeverely for it; the prophet had commiſſion to call for fire from heaven to deſtroy them preſently, and curſe them in the name of the Lord, 2 Kings 2. 24. but they who reject and crucify Chriſt are by him prayed for, and are, by his command, to be ſtill preached to, and, if poſſible, brought to repentance; and according to this example are all Chriſtians to conform themſelves, acting towards contemners of their perſons, or rejecters of their doctrine, not according to the legal, but the evangelical diſpenſation; not according to the ſeverity of Elias, but the meekneſs and gentleneſs of Chriſt: and therefore your deſire of proceeding according to the extraordinary ſpirit of Elias, under the goſpel-diſpenſation, is intolerable; for that deſigns univerſal love, peace and good-will even to enemies; it doth engage us to ſhew all meekneſs to all men; and ſo no difference of religion, no pretence of zeal for God, can juſtify this fierce, vindictive, and exterminating ſpirit.

2*dly*, Our Saviour's ſecond reaſon againſt this proceeding is, that it was repugnant to the end for which he came into the world, which was, not to deſtroy mens lives, but to ſave them. (e) "He "came to diſcountenance all fierceneſs, and rage, "and cruelty in men one towards another, to "reſtrain and ſubdue that furious and unpeaceable ſpirit, which is ſo troubleſome to the "world, and the cauſe of ſo many miſchiefs and "diſorders in it, to beget a peaceable diſpoſition "in men of the moſt diſtant tempers;" making the lamb and the wolf ly down together, Iſa. 11. 6, 9. and no more to deſtroy and hurt each other, but turn their ſwords into plow-ſhares, and their ſpears into pruning-hooks, Mic. 4. 4. engaging them to lay aſide all bitterneſs and wrath, anger and clamour, and evil ſpeaking, with all malice. He came to introduce that excellent ſpirit, which conſults not only the external ſalvation of mens ſouls, but their temporal peace and ſecurity, their comfort and happineſs in this world, whoſe fruits are righteouſneſs and peace, Rom. 14. 17. love, peace, long-ſuffering, gentleneſs, goodneſs and meekneſs, Gal. 5. 22, 23. whoſe wiſdom is pure, and peaceable, gentle, and eaſy to be intreated, full of mercy and good works, James 3. 17. and which commands the wiſe and knowing man to ſhew forth, out of a good converſation, his works with meekneſs of wiſdom, ver. 13. condemning all his bitter zeal as earthy, ſenſual and deviliſh, ver. 14, 15. which ſuffers not the ſervant of Chriſt to be engaged in fooliſh queſtions, which beget ſtrife; becauſe that the diſciple of this mild and gentle Saviour muſt not fight, but muſt be gentle towards all men, patient, in meekneſs inſtructing thoſe that oppoſe themſelves againſt the truth, though their doctrine ſpread as a gangrene, and overthrow the faith of ſome, 2 Tim. 2. 24, 25.—17. 18. not diſpatching them out of the way, as is the manner of the Romaniſt, but with long-ſuffering expecting, if God peradventure will give them repentance to the acknowledgment of the truth; which teacheth us to bear the infirmities of perſons weak in the faith, Rom. 15. 1. to reſtore them in the ſpirit of meekneſs, Gal. 6. 1. to become as weak to the weak, that we may gain the weak, 1 Cor. 9. 22. to bear with the weak, and be long-ſuffering to all men, 1 Theſſ. 5. 15. to ſpeak evil of no man, to be no fighters, but meek, ſhewing all gentleneſs towards all men, and that upon this ſole account, that we ourſelves were ſometimes fooliſh and deceived, Tit. 3. 2, 3.

Now both theſe reaſons are ſuch as equally concern all perſons, magiſtrates as well as miniſters; them who thus perſecute out of miſguided zeal towards God, as well as thoſe who do it out of envy, hatred, and ſuch carnal principles: and they ſeem plainly to infer, that no man ſhould be perſecuted, as in the church of Rome men are, purely for his miſtake concerning, or his denial of any article of faith revealed by the goſpel, but only for ſeditious and treaſonable doctrines, or for ſuch crimes as, had the goſpel never been revealed, might juſtly have been puniſhed by the civil magiſtrate.

Ver. 57. [m] Maſter, I will follow thee whitherſoever thou goeſt.] This being ſaid, as Chriſt perceived, from the common opinion of the nation, that the diſciples of the Meſſiah ſhould get wealth and honour, Chriſt ſoon diſcourages him from executing this reſolution, by laying before him the mean and low condition in which he was to be followed by his diſciples.

Ver. 61, 62. [n] Οὐδεὶς ἐπιβαλὼν τὴν χεῖρα αὐτῦ ἐπ' ἄροτρον, καὶ βλέπων εἰς τὰ ὀπίσω, No man having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God.] Chriſt often compares his word to ſeed, and the time of gaining others to the faith faith to the harveſt: now of the plower and ſower of the ſeed it was uſed to be ſaid proverbially, He is no good plowman, or ſeed-man, who being at that work, looketh back, becauſe his furrows will not be ſtraight, nor his ſeed caſt even from him: whence they require of ſuch an one, firſt, That he ſhould ſtoop, for then he cannot look back; according to that of (f) Pliny, Arator niſi incurvus prævaricatur: ſecondly, That he ſhould look ſtraight before him, not back on his aſſociates, as Heſiod in theſe words:

Ὅς κ' ἔρδῃ μελετῶν ἐθέλων αὔλαξ' ἐλαύνοι
Μήκεϊ κατθείνων πρὸς ὁμήλικας.

CHAP. X.

1. AFTER theſe things the Lord appointed other [a] ſeventy alſo, and ſent them two and two before his face into every city and place, whither he himſelf would come (after them.)

2. (And becauſe he ſent them to ſo many cities,) therefore ſaid he to them, The harveſt truly is great, but the labourers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harveſt, that he would ſend forth (more) labourers into his harveſt.

3. Go your ways: behold, I ſend you forth as lambs among wolves, (ready to devour them.)

4. (Yet) carry neither purſe, nor ſcrip, nor ſhoes, and [b] ſalute no man by the way; (i. e. ſpend no time in fruitleſs civilities, which may divert you from your buſineſs.)

5. And into whatſoever houſe ye enter, firſt ſay, Peace be to this houſe.

6. And if the ſon of peace be there, (one fit, by reaſon of his peaceable temper, to receive that bleſſing,) your peace ſhall reſt upon it, (i. e it ſhall be according to your prayer;) if not, it ſhall turn to you again, (i. e. they ſhall receive no benefit by it, Pſal. 35. 13. Iſa. 55. 11.)

7. And in the ſame houſe (in which you find a ſon of peace,) remain, eating and drinking ſuch things as they give (you as the reward of your labour;) for the labourer is worthy of his hire: go not from houſe to houſe (for better entertainment.)

8. And into whatſoever city ye enter, and they receive you, eat ſuch things as are ſet before you:

9. And heal the ſick that are therein, and ſay to them, The kingdom of God is come nigh to you.

10. But into whatſoever city ye enter, and they receive you not, go your ways out into the ſtreets of the ſame, and ſay,

11. Even the very duſt of your city which cleaveth on (to) us, we do wipe off, (as a teſtimony) againſt you, (that we refuſe all further commerce with you:) notwithſtanding, be ye ſure of this, that the kingdom of God is come nigh to you, (and ye would not receive it.)

12. But (And) I ſay to you, that it ſhall be more tolerable in that day, (when God ſhall judge the diſobedient and unbelievers,) for Sodom, than for that city.

13. Wo to thee Chorazin; wo to thee Bethſaida; for if the mighty works had been done in Tyre and Sidon which have been done in you, they had a great while ago repented, ſitting in ſackcloth and aſhes, (with the deepeſt ſorrow and humility.)

14. But (And accordingly) it ſhall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the (day of) judgment, than for you.

15. And thou Capernaum, which art exalted to heaven, (i. e. advanced highly above others, by my doctrine taught in thy ſynagogues, and miracles wrought in thee,) ſhalt be thruſt down to hell, (i. e. into a ſtate of the extremeſt miſery.)

16. (And for your encouragement in the work on which I ſend you,) he that heareth you (preaching in my name the kingdom of God, ſhall be owned as one that) heareth me; and he that deſpiſeth you (ſhall be treated as one that) deſpiſeth me; and he that deſpiſeth me, (as one that) deſpiſeth him that ſent me.

17. And the ſeventy returned again with joy, ſaying, Lord, even the [c] devils are ſubject to us, through thy name.

18. And he ſaid to them, (When I ſent you forth,) I beheld Satan as lightning fall from [d] heaven, (i. e. I foreſaw the ſudden downfall of his kingdom.)

19. [e] Behold, I give to you power to tread on ſerpents, and over all the power of the enemy, and nothing ſhall by any means hurt you; (i. e. I promiſe you protection againſt Satan and his inſtruments, and whatever elſe may hurt you, and power to prevail over all their oppoſition.)

(f) Hiſt. Nat. l. 18. c. 19.

20. [f] Notwithstanding in this rejoice not, that the spirits are subject to you; but rather rejoice, because your names are written in heaven; (i. e. you have a present right to an heavenly kingdom.)

21. In that hour Jesus rejoiced in spirit, and said, I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that thou hast [g] hid these things from the (men, in their own conceits,) wise and prudent, and hast revealed them to babes (in their account, Rom. 2. 20.) even so Father (hath the event been in my preaching:) for so it seemed good in thy sight.

22. All things are delivered to me of (i. e. by) my Father; and no man (Gr. none) knoweth [h] who the Son is, (as to his nature and dignity,) but the Father; and (no man knoweth truly) who the Father is, but the Son, and he to whom the Son will reveal (the saving knowledge of) him.

23. And he turned him (self) to his disciples, and said privately, Blessed are the eyes which see the things that ye see:

24. For I tell you, that many prophets and kings have desired to see those things that you see, (viz. the days of the Messiah,) and have not seen them, and to hear the things that you hear, (the mysteries of the kingdom of God,) and have not heard them.

25. And behold, a certain lawyer stood up, and tempted him, (i. e. made trial of his wisdom,) saying, Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?

26. And he said to him, What is written in the law? How readest thou?

27. And he (the lawyer) answering, said, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbour as thyself.

28. And he (Christ) said to him, Thou hast answered right; this do, and thou shalt live.

29. But he willing to justify himself, (as one that had already done this,) said to Jesus, And [i] who is my neighbour (I am thus to love? if those of our nation only, as we teach, I have done that.)

30. And Jesus answering (by an apologue,) said, A certain man went down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and fell among thieves, which stripped him of his raiment, and wounded him, and departed, leaving him half dead.

31. And by chance there came down a certain priest that way; and when he saw him, he passed by on the other side, (taking no pity on him:)

32. And likewise a Levite, when he was come at the place, came and looked on him, and passed by on the other side, (shewing no compassion for him.)

33. But a certain Samaritan, as he journeyed, came where he was; and when he saw him, he had compassion on him;

34. And went to him, and bound up his wounds, pouring in (to them) oil and wine; and (he) set him on his own beast, and brought him to an inn, and took care of him.

35. And on the morrow when he departed, he took out two pence, and gave them to the host, and said to him, Take care of him, and whatsoever thou spendest more, when I come again, I will repay thee.

36. Which now of these three, thinkest thou, was neighbour to him that fell among thieves?

37. And he said, He that shewed mercy on him: then said Jesus to him, Go, and do thou likewise; (treat the Samaritan with like kindness, and then thou wilt do according to this precept.)

38. Now it came to pass as they went (to Bethany, John 11. 1.) that he entered into a certain village; and a certain woman, named Martha, received him into her house.

39. And she had a sister called Mary, which also sat at Jesus feet, and heard his word:

40 But Martha was cumbred about much serving, and came to him, and said, Lord, dost not thou care that my sister hath left me to serve alone? bid her therefore that she help me.

41. And Jesus answered, and said to her, Martha, Martha, thou art careful, and troubled about many things:

42. But one [k] thing is (absolutely) needful; and Mary (by hearing my word, that she may do it,) hath chosen that good part, (the fruits of) which shall not be taken from her.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. X.

Ver. 1. [a] Ἕτερους ἑβδομήκοντα, The Lord appointed seventy others.] Grotius saith, they were chosen according to the number of the Sanhedrim, and so were seventy two, six of them being chosen out of every tribe; for which he cites the authority of Josephus. Now Josephus doth indeed say of the seniors sent to Ptolomæus Philadelphus, that they were (a) ἐξ ἀφ' ἑκάστης φυλῆς, six out of every tribe, but he says not so of the Sanhedrim: and that they were only seventy without, and seventy one with Moses their governor, see Seld. de Synedr. l. 2. c. 4. § 5. and Dr Lightfoot here. And, 2dly, He proves this from the authority of Origen, who, in his book (b) de recta in in Deum fide, saith, Christ chose ος', seventy two disciples; and from (c) Epiphanius, who saith, that St Mark was one ἐκ τ ἑβδομήκοντα δύο, of the seventy two. But this they both speak by the by. And to Origen, if that be indeed his work, we may oppose Tertullian, who stiles them the seventy, saying, (d) Allegit et alios septuaginta apostolos super duodecem: to Epiphanius, (e) St Jerom, who saith, the seventy palm-trees, in the sixth mansion of the Jews, signified secundi ordinis prædicatores, the preachers of the second order, as the fountains signified the twelve apostles: and to both we may oppose the more antient testimonies of (f) Irenæus, who saith, that after the twelve apostles, septuaginta alios Dominus noster ante se misisse invenitur, our Lord sent seventy others before him; and of (g) Clemens, who in his hypotyposes makes frequent mention of Christ's seventy disciples; of Eusebius there, and Ambrose here; and the council of (h) Neocæsarea, saying, the chorepiscopi were constituted εἰς τύπον τ ἑβδομήκοντα, after the example of the seventy. But it is more material to observe, that as the first mission of the apostles was only for a season, and ceased at their return, Matth 10. 1. see the note there; so was this first mission of the seventy, they returning quickly from it, ver. 17. and they receive a new commission: of which, see note on ver. 19. Note, 2. That whereas some compare the bishops to the apostles, the seventy to the presbyters of the church, and thence conclude, that divers orders in the ministry were instituted by Christ himself; it must be granted that some of the (i) antients did believe these two to be divers orders, and that those of the seventy were inferior to the order of the apostles; and sometimes they make the comparison here mentioned: but then it must be also granted, that this comparison will not strictly hold; for the seventy received not their mission as presbyters do, from bishops, but immediately from the Lord Christ, as well as the apostles, and, in their first mission, were plainly sent on the same errand, and with the same power. Nevertheless, I think here is a fair foundation for that in which St Chrysostom and others place the superiority of bishops over presbyters, to wit, in this, that the power of ordination belongs to them alone. See note on 1 Tim. 3. 1, 2. For though the commission to preach the gospel belonged to the seventy, as well as to the twelve apostles, yet the power of conferring the Holy Ghost, by laying on of hands, belonged peculiarly to the twelve. See note on Acts 8. 15. This, then, seems to be the reason why the conferring of the Holy Ghost for the use of the ministry hath been perpetually esteemed peculiar to those bishops who, in the ecclesiastical stile, are always called the successors of the apostles, and they have always done it by imposition of hands.

Ver. 4. [b] Καὶ μηδένα κατὰ τὴν ὁδὸν ἀσπάσησθε, And salute no man by the way;] i. e. do nothing which may hinder you in the execution of your office. So when Elisha sent Gehazi on a message to be dispatched presently, he saith to him, Salute no man by the way, 2 Kings 4. 29. the salutations of the eastern nations being prolix. So Grotius.

Ver. 17. [c] Καὶ τὰ δαιμόνια ὑποτάσσεται ἡμῖν ἐν τῷ ὀνόματί σου, Even the devils are subject to us in thy name.] Here Woltzogenius notes, that Christ did cast out devils by a virtue residing in himself; his disciples only in the name, and by the power of the Lord. Seeing, then, this power accompanied them in all parts of the world, it is necessary that Christ's presence should be with them every where; now, such a presence is a certain indication of the Deity. 1 Kings 8. 27. Psal. 139. 7. Jer. 23. 24. Amos 9. 3.

Ver. 15. See additions, N°. 15.

Ver. 18. [d] Ἐθεώρουν τὸν Σατανᾶν ὡς ἀστραπὴν ἐκ τ οὐρανοῦ πεσόντα, I beheld Satan as lightning falling from heaven.] Though Satan be reckoned among spiritual wickednesses ἐν τοῖς ἐπουρανίοις, in heavenly places, Eph. 6. 12. yet Christ seems not here so much to respect that, as the dissolution of that kingdom he had erected in the world; he is stiled, the God of this world, 2 Cor. 4. 4. the ruler of the darkness of this world, Eph. 6. 12. and to him is ascribed the kingdom of darkness, Col. 1. 13. and a principality over the children of disobedience. Christ therefore here foretells, that this dominion should be in great part lost by the translation of the Heathens from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan to God; and Satan being thus spoiled of his dominions, may be said to fall from heaven, by a phrase familiar both to sacred and profane writers. So of the fall of the king of Babylon, the prophet saith, How art thou fallen from heaven, O Lucifer? Isa. 14. 12. Of the fall of the collegue of Antonius, Cicero saith, collegam tuum de cœlo detraxisti, thou hast pulled him down from heaven; and when Pompey was overthrown, he is said by him, ex astris decidisse, to have fallen from the stars, ep. l. 1. ad Atticum, ep. 20.

Ver. 19. [e] Ἰδοὺ δίδωμι ὑμῖν ἐξουσίαν τ πατεῖν ἐπάνω ὄφεων, Behold, I give you power to tread upon serpents.] Note here, that these words plainly seem ſeem to give a new inſtitution to the ſeventy, relating, not as the former, to the cities of Iſrael, as the forerunners of their Lord, but to their preaching among other nations; as we may gather, by comparing theſe words with the commiſſion given by Chriſt to the apoſtles, ſent into the world to preach the goſpel to every creature, Mark 16. 15,—18. according to theſe words of Grotius, Non pro hac tantum legatione dedi, ſed do nunc etiam in poſterum. 2*dly*, This power ſeems to be given in words, containing a manifeſt alluſion to Pſal. 91. 13. where a like protection from danger is promiſed to the pious man, under the metaphor of treading on the ſcorpion and the baſiliſk, and, according to the ſeventy and the Chaldee, of protection from the noon-day devil, or from troops of evil ſpirits, ver. 5, 6. And after this manner, ſaith (l) Tertullian, we often help the Heathens, being inveſted with that power which the apoſtle dedicated when he deſpiſed the biting of the ſerpent.

Ver. 20. [f] Πλὴν ἐν τούτῳ μὴ χαίρετε, Notwithſtanding rejoice not in this, that the ſpirits are ſubject to you, but rather rejoice that your names are written in heaven.] They returned, ver. 17. rejoicing that even the devils were ſubject to them in Chriſt's name; which, as it tended to the glory of God, and the promotion of the goſpel, was a juſt matter of their joy; but becauſe to be thought worthy of ſalvation by God, and through faith in Chriſt to have a preſent right to an inheritance in heaven, was a bleſſing proper to the ſaints, and tended to the eternal welfare of their ſouls, which the caſting out of devils was not, that being done by men, to whom Chriſt will ſay at the laſt day, I know you not, &c. Matth. 7. 22, 23. therefore Chriſt bids them, μᾶλλον χαίρειν, to rejoice more that their names were written in heaven, or in the book of life; which is a Jewiſh phraſe, of the import of which ſee the note on Philip. 4. 3. not ſignifying an abſolute election, but a preſent right to life eternal, through the obedience of faith. See alſo Targum on Deut. 32. 33. and Pſal. 69. 29. Iſa. 4. 3. and conſtitut. apoſt. l. 8. cap. 1.

Ver. 21. [g] Ὅτι ἀπέκρυψας, That thou haſt hid theſe things from the wiſe and prudent.] See note on Matth. 11. 25.

Ver. 22. [h] Καὶ οὐδεὶς γινώσκει τίς ἐστιν ὁ υἱὸς All things are delivered to me of the Father, and no man knoweth who the Son is, but the Father.] All things, i. e. all power both in heaven and earth, Matt. 28. 18. all judgment, John 5. 27. Power over all fleſh to give eternal life, John 17. 2. Now this includes power to raiſe the dead, and to paſs judgment on them according to their works and ſecret thoughts, and ſo a power and wiſdom which is plainly divine, and conſequently the divine nature, from which thoſe attributes are inſeparable; which is one argument for the divinity of Chriſt. 2*dly*, He ſaith here, no man knoweth τίς ἐστιν ὁ υἱὸς, who is the Son, which ſeems not to reſpect what he was to do or ſuffer, but his nature, excellence, and dignity, as the words following, τίς ἐστιν ὁ πατὴρ, who the Father is, reſpect his nature, his divine excellency and dignity, exhibited to us ἐν προσώπῳ in the perſon of Jeſus Chriſt, 2 Cor. 4. 6.

Ver. 29. [i] Καὶ τίς ἐστί μου πλησίον, But he willing to juſtify himſelf (as one who had performed the command of loving his neighbour as himſelf,) ſaid Who is my neighbour?] Now the corrupt tradition of the Jews having reſtrained this neighbour to men of their own nation and religion, to whom he might retain a very kind affection, he thought this ſufficient to ſhew, that he had ſatisfied the precept; Chriſt therefore here demonſtrates to him, that every perſon who ſtands in need of help and who is capable of kindneſs from us, though he be of a different nation and religion, muſt be deemed our neighbour; ſee the note on Matth. 22. 39.

Ver. 42. [k] Ἑνὸς δέ ἐστι χρεία, But one thing is needful.] Not one diſh only to eat of, as Theophylact and many of the fathers deſcant here, but the better part, or that ſpiritual wiſdom, which Mary made it her chief care to labour after. See (m) Arrian ſaith of the government of the mind and the fixing it upon that only which is in our power, and which we cannot be deprived of, ἓν ἑνὸς δυνάμεθα ἐπιμελεῖσθαι καὶ ἑνὶ προσηκόντως. ἐπὶ μᾶλλον δὲ ὁλομεν πολλῶν ἐπιμελεῖσθαι καὶ πολλοῖς προσδεδέσθαι, when we might contract our cares to one thing, and cleave to that alone, we chuſe rather to be bound to, and troubled about many things.

CHAP. XI.

1. AND it came to paſs, that as he was praying in a certain place, when he ceaſed, one of his diſciples ſaid to him, Lord, teach us (a form by which) to pray, as John alſo taught (one to) his diſciples.

2. And he ſaid to them, When ye pray,

(l) Hoc denique modo, etiam Ethnicis ſæpe ſubvenimus donati a Deo ea poteſtate quam apoſtolus dedicavit, [illegible] morſum viperæ ſprevit. Scorp. ab initio.

(m) In Epictet. l 1. c. 1. p. 84.

(these words,) Our Father which art in heaven, hallowed be thy name; thy kingdom come; thy will be done, as (it is) in heaven, so on earth;

3. Give us day by (or after) day our daily bread:

4. And forgive us our sins; for we also forgive every one that is [a] indebted, (or hath been injurious) to us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. (See the paraphrase and notes on Matth. 6.)

5. And (to encourage them to expect a return of their prayers,) he said to them, Which of you shall have a friend, and shall go to him at midnight, and say to him, Friend, lend me three loaves;

6. For a friend of mine in his journey is come to me, and I have nothing to set before him:

7. And he from within shall answer, and say, Trouble me not; the door is now shut, and my children are with me in bed, I cannot rise, and give (them to) thee.

8. I say to you, Though he will not (be moved to) rise, and give him (them) because he is his friend; yet because of his [b] importunity he will rise, and give him as many (loaves) as he needeth.

9. And (accordingly) I say to you, Ask (in faith,) and it shall be given you; seek (diligently,) and ye shall find; knock (earnestly,) and it shall be opened to you:

10. For every one that (thus) [c] asketh, receiveth; and he that seeketh, findeth; and to him that knocketh, it shall be opened (by his heavenly Father.)

11. (For) If a son shall ask bread of any of you that is a father, will he give him a stone? or if he ask a fish, will he, for a fish, give him a serpent?

12. Or if he shall ask an egg, will he offer him a scorpion? (i. e. things unprofitable and hurtful to, rather than what is good and needful for him.)

13. If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more shall your [d] heavenly Father give the holy Spirit, (the fountain of all spiritual blessings,) to them that ask him?

14. And he was casting out a devil, and it was (such an one as made the man) dumb; and it came to pass that when the devil was gone out (of him,) the dumb (man) spake, and the people wondered at it.)

15. But some of (the Pharisees among) them said, He casteth out devils through (confederacy with) [e] Beelzebub, the chief of the devils:

16. And others tempting him, (i. e. distrusting his power, and doubting of his commission,) sought of him a sign [f] from heaven, (as the chief token of the Messiah mentioned by Daniel, chap. 7. 14.)

17. But he knowing their thought, said to them, (who accused him of confederacy with Satan,) Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation, and an house divided against an house, falleth (into ruin.)

18. If Satan (then) also be divided against himself, (and he casts his own subjects out of his dominions,) how then shall his kingdom stand? (and thus I argue,) because ye say, That I cast out devils through Beelzebub.

19. And (moreover) If I by Beelzebub cast out devils, (let me ask you) by whom do your [g] sons, (who exercise them in the name of the same God, by whose power I profess to do it,) cast them out? therefore they shall be your judges; (i. e. your judgment, that they do this by the power of God, shall condemn you, who ascribe the same thing done by me, to the power and assistance of Satan.)

20. But if I with the finger of God cast out devils, no doubt (can be made of it, that) the kingdom of God is come upon you; (i. e. that the Messiah promised to erect this kingdom is among you.)

21. (For) When a strong man armed keepeth his place, his goods are (preserved) in peace (and safety;)

22. But when a stronger than he shall come upon him, and overcome him, he taketh from him all his armour wherein he trusted, and divideth his spoils; (I therefore being thus able to overcome Satan, and cast him out of his dominions, must be stronger than he.)

23. (And in this work of beating down Satan's kingdom,) He that is not with me, is against me; and he that gathereth not with me, scattereth; (i. e. he that assists me not in bringing men to the kingdom of God, scattereth them as sheep without a shepherd.)

24. (And to you from whom Satan hath been thus ejected, and you continue yet to side with him against me by whom he is ejected, I direct this parable, viz.) When the unclean spirit is gone out of a man, he walketh through dry places, (not yet watered by the word preached to them,) seeking rest, and finding none (there, the gospel following him to the Gentiles, and dispossessing him there,) he saith, I will return to my house whence I came out.

25. And when he cometh, he findeth it swept and garnished, (and so ready to receive him.)

26. Then goeth he, and taketh to him seven other spirits more wicked than himself; and they enter in, and dwell there, and (so) the last state of that man is worse than the first; (thus also will it be with you; Satan ejected by me, finding no where else persons so fitted to receive him, will return, and take more durable possession of you, and render you seven times more the children of Satan than ye were before.)

27. And it came to paſs as he ſpake theſe things, a certain woman of the company lift (ed) up her voice, and ſaid to him, [h] Bleſſed is the womb that bare thee, and (bleſſed are) the paps that thou haſt ſucked.

28. But he ſaid, Yea, rather bleſſed are they that hear the word of God and keep it.

29. And when the people were gathered thick together, he began to ſay, (in anſwer to theſe who ſought of him a ſign from heaven, ver. 16.) This is an evil generation; they ſeek a ſign, and there ſhall no (further) ſign be given it, but the ſign of Jonas the prophet;

30. For as Jonas was a ſign to the Ninevites, (being three days and three nights in the whale's belly, and yet raiſed out of it to preach to them,) ſo ſhall alſo the Son of man be (raiſed from the dead after three days, for a ſign) to this generation.

31. The queen of the ſouth ſhall riſe up in the judgment with the men of this generation, and (ſhall) condemn them; for ſhe came from the uttermoſt parts of the earth, to hear the wiſdom of Solomon; and behold a (perſon of) greater (wiſdom) than Solomon is here, (and yet his wiſdom is deſpiſed by them.)

32. The men of Nineveh ſhall riſe up in the judgment with this generation, and ſhall condemn it; for they repented at the preaching of Jonas, and behold, (theſe men repent not, though) a greater (prophet) than Jonas is here.

33. (But though the men of this generation deſpiſe this heavenly wiſdom, it becomes not me, or my diſciples to conceal it; for) [i] No man when he hath lighted a candle, putteth it in a ſecret place, neither under a buſhel, but on a candleſtick, that they which come in (to the houſe) may ſee the light.

34. (As) The light of the body is the eye, (directing the body how to walk, ſo the light of the ſoul is the mind, directing it how to diſcern its duty;) therefore [k] when thine eye is ſingle, (free from worldly-mindedneſs, and liberal,) thy whole body alſo is full of light, (directed by the love of God, and of our neighbour for his ſake, into the way that leads to life;) but when thy eye is evil, (envious and covetous,) thy body alſo is full of darkneſs, (all thy actions done in the body will be deeds of darkneſs.)

35. Take heed therefore, that the light which is in thee, (thy mind which ſhould direct thy actions,) be not (by covetouſneſs, and an immoderate love of the world, turned into) darkneſs.

36. If (by this care) thy whole body therefore be full of light, having no part dark, the whole (of thy life) ſhall be full of light; as (a room is) when the bright ſhining of a candle doth give thee light.

37. And as he ſpake (theſe words,) a certain Phariſee beſought him to dine with him; and he went in (to his houſe,) and ſat down to (eat of his) meat.

38. And when the Phariſee ſaw it, he marvelled that he had not firſt waſhed before dinner.

39. And the Lord ſaid to him, Now do ye Phariſees make clean the outſide of the cup and platter, (i. e. take care to have a fair outſide, and bodies clean from ceremonial defilement,) but your inward part is full of ravening and wickedneſs.

40. Ye fools, did not he that made that which is without, make that which is within alſo? (and ſhould ye not then be as careful to keep that clean, as ye do the outward man by frequent waſhings?)

41. But rather give alms of [l] ſuch things as ye have; and (when God and the poor have had their dues,) behold all things (ye eat of or enjoy) are clean to you.

42. But wo to you Phariſees; for ye tithe mint and rue, and all manner of herbs, and paſs over judgment, and the love of God; theſe ought ye to have done, (as being your own conſtitutions,) and not to leave the other undone, (as being the more weighty matters of the law.)

43. Wo to you Phariſees; for ye love the uppermoſt ſeats in the ſynagogues, and greetings in the markets, (minding theſe reſpects from men, more than the favour of God, John 5. 44.—12. 43.)

44. Wo unto you ſcribes and Phariſees, hypocrites; for ye are as graves that appear not (ſo to be, as being overgrown with graſs and herbs,) and (ſo) the men that walk over them are not aware of them, (having ſpecious outſides, but hearts defiled and defiling others.)

45. Then anſwered one of the lawyers, and ſaid to him, Maſter, thus ſaying, thou reproacheſt us alſo, (for we are ſcribes.)

46. And he ſaid, Wo to you alſo, ye lawyers! for ye lade men with burdens grievous to be born, and ye yourſelves touch not the burdens with one of your fingers; (i. e. ye will not ſhew the leaſt mercy to them who are thus oppreſſed with them. See note on Matth. 23. 4.)

47. Wo unto you; for ye build the ſepulchres of the prophets, and your fathers killed them, (of which you yourſelves acknowledge.)

48. Truly ye bear witneſs that (ye are by nature the children of theſe fathers, and) ye allow (or are well pleaſed with) the deeds of your fathers, (ſhewing the like malice againſt me and mine, as they did againſt the old prophets; I ſay, you teſtify this, viz. that ye are the children of ſuch fathers:) for they (your fathers) indeed killed them, and ye (their children) build their ſepulchres.

49. Therefore alſo ſaid the wiſdom of God,

I will send them prophets and apostles, and some of them they shall slay, and persecute (to the death.)

50. That (so) the blood of all the prophets, which was shed from the foundation of the world, may be required of this generation, (who, by their hatred to the last and chiefest of them, have filled up the measure of their sins;)

51. From the blood of (righteous) Abel, (the first prophet, and preacher of righteousness, Heb. 11. 4. 2 Peter 2. 5.) to the blood of Zacharias (the last prophet slain by you, 2 Chron. 24. 22. and) which perished betwixt the altar and the temple; Verily I say to you, It shall be required of this generation.

52. Wo to you lawyers; for ye have taken away the [m] key of knowledge, (by which the kingdom of God should be opened to men;) ye entered not in yourselves, and them that were entering in ye hindred, (obstructing their faith by your traditions, and false interpretations of the scriptures.)

53. And as he spake these things to them, the scribes and Pharisees began to urge him vehemently, and to [n] provoke him to speak of many things, (Gr and to enquire of many things from his mouth,)

54. Laying wait for him, and seeking to catch something out of his mouth, that (by it) they might accuse him.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XI.

Ver. 4. [a] Καὶ γὰρ αὐτοὶ ἀφίεμεν παντὶ ὀφείλοντι ἡμῖν, For we forgive every one that is indebted to us;] That is, every one that offends against us, according to the usual import of that word in the Syriac, or Chaldee, where a sinner is חַיָּב a debtor, and sin is חוֹבָא a debt; thus Exod. 32. 30. חַטָאתֶם חַטָאה גְדוֹלָא ye have sinned a great sin, is in the Targum, חוֹבָא רַבָּא חַבְתּוּן you have contracted a great debt. So Gen. 20. 9.—26. 10.—31. 36. Lev. 4. 3. see Buxtorf in the word חיב: and in this sense ὀφειλέτης, a debtor, and ἐφειλήματα, debts, are used, Matth. 6. 12. and Luke 13. 4. think ye that they on whom the tower of Siloam fell were ὀφειλέται, debtors, that is, sinners above all men?

But then it is carefully to be observed, for the due stating the controversy of Christ's satisfaction, that sins are not properly and strictly compared to debts, seeing by sinning we do not so properly contract a debt, as a guilt, or obnoxiousness to punishment; which two things will admit of these differences; (1.) That if another will pay my debt, the creditor cannot justly refuse his paying it for me, or complain he is not satisfied when the whole debt is paid; but let another be never so willing to suffer for my offence, he can make no satisfaction for it, unless the judge be willing to admit him to suffer in my stead. Hence, (2.) The creditor does no act of grace by admitting the solution of another; and if that other pay the whole, he can require no conditions for my discharge: but the ruler, against whose laws I have personally offended, does me an act of grace in admitting another to suffer in my stead, and so may do this only upon some reasonable conditions. And, (3.) We do not properly pay our whole debt unless we pay what was owing in specie, or something admitted as an equivalent to it; but we may make satisfaction for our sins against our governor by any thing of less value, provided that it preserves the honour of the law-giver, and terrifies us and others for the future from lapsing into the same offence. See additions N°. 16.

Ver. 8. [b] Διὰ τὴν ἀναιδείαν, For his importunity;] i. e. His request so importunate as to admit of no refusal, his continual coming and crying night and day, chap. 18. 1, 5, 7. Gr. for his impudence, according to that saying of the Jews, (a) The impudent man overcomes the modest and the bashful, how much more God who is goodness it self!

Ver. 10. [c] Πᾶς γὰρ ὁ αἰτῶν λαμβάνει, For every one that asketh, receiveth;] i. e. who asks in faith, seeks with diligence, and knocks with importunity, and perseverance, receives all that is needful for him; so the connexion shews, he will arise and give him ὅσων χρῄζει, as much as he wants, ver. 8. and I say to you, Ask, and ye shall receive, all knowledge necessary to your salvation, all that assistance which is necessary to preserve you from those sinful courses which will exclude you from salvation, or to the performance of that obedience which God hath made the condition of your salvation under the new covenant, and to your perseverance in that obedience to the end; he shall receive all things spiritually good for him; for if you being evil will give good things to your children, much more will your heavenly Father give τὰ ἀγαθὰ, good things, Matth. 7. 11. his holy Spirit, ver. 13. to those that ask him.

Ver. 13. [d] Ὁ πατὴρ ὁ ἐξ οὐρανοῦ δώσει πνεῦμα ἅγιον, Much more will your heavenly Father give the holy Spirit to them that ask him.] Ὁ ἐξ οὐρανοῦ is the same with ὁ ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς, Matth. 7. 11. So our house from heaven, 2 Cor. 5. 2. is our house in heaven.

(a) Buxt. in voc. Charoph.

ver. 1. and the Lord from heaven, 1 Cor. 15. 47. is ὁ ἐπουράνιος, the heavenly Lord, ver. 48, 49. πνεῦμα ἅγιον, the holy Ghost, if it here signifies, as throughout the Old Testament, the spirit of prophesy, or as generally in the New, the miraculous gifts and operations of the holy Spirit; see note on 1 John 5. 6. it must be granted that Christ speaks here, not of what they were to ask at present, for the holy Ghost was not yet given, because Jesus was not yet glorified, John 7. 39. And so must we understand our Lord's words, chap. 12. 11, 12. When they shall bring you before princes, and governors, meditate not before hand what you shall speak, for the holy Ghost shall teach you in that day; for neither were they brought before princes till after our Lord's resurrection and ascension, nor did the holy Ghost instruct them how to speak till then. So our Lord's commission as to these words, Matth. 10. 8. and all that follows in that chapter, from ver. 16. to the end, plainly respects what they were to do and suffer after Christ's ascension. If it relates to the present time, and to Christians in general, not only to the apostles, as the words, every one that asketh, and the good gifts in Matthew, seem to argue; we by this phrase can only understand the ordinary assistances and operations of the holy Spirit.

Ver. 15. [e] Ἐν Βεελζεβὺλ, By Beelzebub the prince of the devils.] Of the right reading of this word Beelzebub, the lord of flies, or Beelzebul, the lord of dung, as St Jerom reads, Matth. 12. 24. see Dr Lightfoot there. But then when both he and the great Bochartus wonder, how this god of flies should come to be stiled the prince of devils, that seems to be no great wonder, he being no less than the Heathen Jupiter, the prince and father of the gods, as appears from the titles of ἀπόμυος, μύαρσος, μυώδης, all given him a muscis abigendis, from his office of chasing the flies from the sacrifices, the temples and cities of the Heathens. See Bochart. Hieroz. part. 2. l. 4. c. 9. p. 499, 500, 501.

Ver. 16. [f] Σημεῖον ἐξ οὐρανοῦ, A sign from heaven.] Because the Son of man was to come in the clouds of heaven, Dan. 7. 13. see the note on Matth. 12. 38.

Ver. 19. [g] Οἱ υἱοὶ ὑμῶν ἐν τίνι ἐκβάλλουσι; By whom do your sons cast them out?] To what hath been said on Matth. 12. 27. add, that some think that this relates to the seventy disciples sent by Christ to preach the kingdom in every city and place whither he was afterwards to come, Luke 10. 2. for they return to him with these words, Even the devils are subject to us in thy name, ver. 17. Now doubtless they were the sons of the Jews; and though they cast out devils in Christ's name, yet is not this sufficient to take off the force of Christ's argument; for it was not easy to suspect so great a number of honest men, of their own nation, and acquaintance, sent by two and two into their villages and cities, should be all confederates with Satan; they therefore going through their cities, to assure them the kingdom of God was at hand, and confirming their testimony, by healing diseases and casting out devils in Christ's name, gave in full testimony against them who said, that Christ himself did this by a confederacy with Satan.

Ver. 27, 28. [h] Blessed is the womb that bare thee, 28. μενοῦνε, yea rather blessed are they that hear the word of God and keep it.] i. e. The blessedness of my mother ariseth not from this, that she conceived and brought me forth into the world, but in order to that it is necessary for her, as well as others, to believe, and obey my word. So Theophylact.

Ver. 33. Οὐδεὶς δὲ λύχνον ἅψας, No man when he hath lighted a candle, putteth it in a secret place, &c.] Some give here the connexion thus; Though you generally receive very little benefit by my preaching, it becomes neither me nor my disciples to conceal our wisdom, but still to let it shine forth to the world, Matth. 5. 15. But seeing it is evident that the same expressions are oft applied to different things in divers senses, see note on Matth. 12. 30. why may not this have relation to the following verse, thus? God never gives the light of nature, or of revelation, as he hath done to you Jews, but that it may be improved, and shine forth in them to others: now as the light of the body is the eye, so the light of the soul is that reason, and that revelation of his mind which God affords; and therefore it becomes you to take as great care that your light be not turned into darkness, by prejudices which blind the eyes, or by shutting your eyes against the light, or by your infidelity, or those vicious habits which will not suffer you to come to the light, or believe in it, as that the eye of the body be not darkned or put out.

Ver. 34. [k] Ὅταν ἁπλοῦς ᾖ, Therefore when thine eye is single, thy whole body is full of light; but when πονηρὸς ᾖ, it is evil, thy body also is full of darkness.] There is no tautology in these and the following words, but only a progression from the mind clearly enlightned and directed and the faculties of the soul rightly disposed, to a life led according to them, or, in the scripture phrase, a walking in the light. For Christ here compares the inward light of the soul, or the eye of it, to that of the body, shewing that as that being pure from spots, adventitious humors, cataracts, and other blemishes, gives a clear light for the direction of the body, but when it is ill affected, by reason of these or other maladies the body is in the dark; so if the eye of the soul be not single, i. e. if it be not pure from covetousness, which is ἐπιθυμία τ῀ ὀφθαλμῶ, the lust of the eye after worldly things, 1 John 2. 16. from carnal concupiscence, which renders it the adulterous eye, Matth. 5. 28, 29. 2 Peter 2. 14. from envy, which is ὀφθαλμὸς πονηρίας, the evil or bewitching eye, Prov. 23. 6. Ecclus. 14. 3,—10. from pride, which is ὀφθαλμὸς ὑπερηφάνου, the high look, Psal. 101. 5. ὀφθαλμὸς ὑβρισῶ, the proud look, Prov. 6. 17. ὀφθαλμὸς ὑψηλὸς καὶ μετεώρου, the lofty eye, Isa. 5. 15. if, I say, it be not purified from these distempers, it will not direct our way aright, or preserve us from walking in the dark; for these are the lusts of the world, which are contrary to the friendship of God, making all the actions of the life perverse; and therefore they who do such things are said to walk on still in darkness, Psal 82. 5. Eccles. 2. 14. John 8. 12.—12. 46. 1 John 2. 9. to be in darkness, 1 Thess. 5. 4. and to love darkness more than light, John 3. 19. whereas, when the mind is free from these vices, and adorned with the contrary virtues, it directs all our actions to piety, virtue, and the love of God, as a lantern shining in darkness directs our feet, or as a candle enlightens the whole room where it is; and hence such persons are said to walk in the light, 1 John 1. 7. and to be children of the light, and of the day, Luke 16. 8. John 12. 36. Eph. 5. 8. 1 Thess. 5. 5. This therefore is the import of these words, that a mind thus enlightned, and free from all these distempers which darken and make blind the soul, will direct all our faculties and inclinations, and all the actions of the life aright, as a light doth the body when it walks in a dark night.

Ver. 41. [l] Πλὴν τὰ ἐνόντα δότε ἐλεημοσύνην, But give alms of all that you have, and all things shall be clean unto you;] τὰ ἐνόντα, are τὰ παρόντα, τὰ ὑπάρχοντα, our substance, or the things which we have; or as Stephanus, which are in our power, according to those words of Tobit, ἐκ τ῀ ὑπαρχόντων σου ποίει ἐλεημοσύνην, Give alms of thy substance, chap. 4. 7. and ver. 8. ὡς σοί ὑπάρχει, as thou hast plenty, according to thy abundance. Christ therefore here instructs us, that our temporal enjoyments are unclean, i. e. unlawful to be used by us till we have sanctified them by some act of charity; and this is the frequent import of the word καθαρὸς, clean, when it relates to meats, as Matt. 10. 14, 15.----11. 8, 9. Rom. 14. 20. Tit. 1. 15. and suitable to this is God's command concerning the tithe of the third year, that it should be given to the stranger, the orphan, and the widow, that God might bless the land, Deut. 26. 13, 14. so that till this were done, they were not to expect from him a blessing on their substance. This also is frequently prescribed as a means to procure the pardon of our sins. So Daniel saith to Nebuchadonosor, Λύτρωσαι ἐν ἐλεημοσύναις, redeem thy sins, or expiate them, by acts of mercy to the poor; chap. 4. 27. for by mercy and truth iniquity is purged. Prov. 16. 6. Ἐλεημοσύνη, mercy, or charity, delivereth from death, and shall purge away all sins, Tobit 12. 9. water will quench a flaming fire, καὶ ἐλεημοσύνη ἐξιλάσεται ἁμαρτίας, and alms maketh an atonement for sins; our mercy to his servants inclining God to be merciful to us.

Ver. 52. [m] Ἤρατε τὴν κλεῖδα τ῀ γνώσεως, Ye have taken away the key of knowledge,] by which the kingdom of God should be opened to men, and they be enabled to enter into it; see note on Matth. 23. 13. obscuring and hiding, by your traditions and false interpretations, those scriptures which relate to the Messiah, and the light which those prophecies of the Old Testament afford to conduct men to it; and pretending, that for want of knowledge of the law, they are not sufficient to judge of these matters, but must be guided by your judgment of them, John 7. 48, 49. and thus you not believing in the Messiah, nor entering yourselves into the kingdom of God, now come among you, and preached to you, have obstructed the faith of them who otherwise would have believed, and entered into it. See additions N°. 17.

Ver. 53. [n] Καὶ ἀποστοματίζειν αὐτὸν περὶ πλειόνων, And provoke him to speak of many things;] or to enquire of many things from his mouth. For they did this ζητοῦντες θηρεῦσαι τι ἐκ τ῀ στόματος αὐτοῦ, seeking to catch something out of his mouth. So (b) Julius Pollux saith, that ἀποστοματίζειν is τὶ ἀπὸ στόματος εἰπεῖν, to speak something from the mouth, or words not written: Suidas, that it is ἀπὸ στόματος λέγειν, to speak from the mouth or memory. So (c) Aristotle saith, the Grammarians learn τὰ ἀποστοματιζόμενα, these things which are delivered from their master's mouth. See Stephanus on this word. Theophylact saith it is πιπτόντων αὐτὸν ἀπὸ στόματος κρατεῖν.

CHAP. XII.

1. IN the mean time, when there were gathered together an innumerable multitude of people, (Gr. ἐν οἷς, whilſt Chriſt was ſaying theſe things, an innumerable multitude of people being gathered together,) inſomuch that they trode one upon another, he began to ſay to his diſciples firſt of all, [a] Beware of the leaven of the Phariſees, which is hypocriſy; (i. e. an outward appearance of ſanctity, which puffs up and deceives others, but yet is only a pretence.)

2. For there is nothing covered (under hypocritical pretences) which ſhall not be revealed, neither hid that ſhall not be (made) known.

3. Therefore (Gr. ἀνθ' ὧν, becauſe, or forasmuch as) whatſoever you have ſpoken in darkneſs, ſhall be heard in the light; and that which ye have ſpoken in the ear in cloſets, ſhall be proclaimed on the houſe-top; (ſo that, though you ſhould be able to conceal the evil of your hearts and actions from men, they will be all laid open at the great day of your accounts.)

4. And (though I ſend you with a meſſage which will ſo offend men, and more eſpecially the Jews, that they will think by killing you they do God good ſervice, John 16. 2. yet) I ſay to you, My friends, be not afraid of them who (can only) kill the body, and after that have no more that they can do, (nothing to hurt the ſoul:)

5. But I will forewarn you whom you ſhall (rather) fear; (viz.) fear him, who, after he hath killed, hath power to caſt (both ſoul and body) into hell; yea, I ſay to you, Fear him.

6. (For) Are not five ſparrows ſold for two farthings, and (yet) not one of them is forgotten before (that) God, (whoſe providence watches over the ſmalleſt things in the world? you may then be aſſured, your leaſt concerns are not neglected by him;)

7. But even the very hairs of your head are all numbred; fear not therefore, ye are of more value than many ſparrows; (and ſo the more peculiar objects of Gods care and providence.)

8. Alſo, (and further to engage you to conſtancy in your profeſſion, and patient ſuffering for my ſake,) I ſay to you, Whoſoever ſhall (thus) [b] confeſs me before men, him ſhall the Son of man alſo confeſs before the angels of God; (he will own them before God, in whoſe preſence the angels ſtand.)

9. But he that (to avoid the rage of men) denieth me before men, ſhall be denied, (i. e. renounced as none of my diſciples) before the angels (ſtanding in the preſence) of God.

10. And (as for the enemies of me and my doctrine,) whoſoever (of them being offended at my preſent humble circumſtances,) ſhall, (notwithſtanding all the convictions I have given them,) ſpeak a word againſt the Son of man, (in derogation from his miſſion,) it ſhall be forgiven him; but to him that blaſphemeth againſt the holy Ghoſt, (when he cometh upon you in his gifts and miraculous operations, to aſſert my reſurrection, and confirm my doctrine,) it (that blaſphemy) ſhall not be forgiven.

11. And when they bring you to the ſynagogues, and to magiſtrates, and (Heathen) powers, take ye no thought how, or what thing ye ſhall anſwer, or what ye ſhall ſay, (ſeeing it ſhall be given you in that ſame hour what ye ſhall ſpeak, Matth. 10. 19.)

12. For the holy Ghoſt ſhall teach you in the ſame hour what ye ought to ſay.

13. And (then) one of the company ſaid unto him, [c] Maſter, ſpeak to my brother, that he divide the inheritance with me; (for I would gladly have thee to be arbitrator betwixt us concerning it.)

14. And he ſaid to him, Man, who made me a judge or a divider over you? (this properly belongs not to my prophetic office, but to your civil conſiſtories.)

15. And (upon occaſion of this man's concern for his temporals,) he ſaid to them, Take heed and [d] beware of covetouſneſs; for (the comfort of) man's life conſiſteth not in the abundance of the things that he poſſeſſeth.

16. And (to this end) he ſpake a parable to them, ſaying, The ground of a certain rich man brought forth plentifully:

17. And he thought within himſelf, ſaying (to himſelf,) What ſhall I do, becauſe I have no room where to beſtow, (i. e. lay up) my fruits?

18. And he ſaid, This will I do, I will pull down my barns, and build greater; and there will I beſtow all my fruits and my goods.

19. And (then) I will ſay to my ſoul, Soul, thou haſt much goods laid up for many years; take thine eaſe, eat, drink, and be merry.

20. But God ſaid to him, Thou fool, this night thy ſoul ſhall be [e] required of thee; (i. e. thou ſhalt die this night; and) then, whoſe ſhall thoſe things be which thou haſt provided?

21. So (ſuch a fool) is he, that layeth up treaſure for himſelf (on earth,) and is not rich toward God, (i. e. in heavenly treaſures, which will alſo commend him to God, and procure his favour.)

22. And he ſaid to his diſciples, Therefore I ſay to you, Take no thought (be not anxiouſly concerned) for (the things neceſſary to preſerve) your life, (viz.) what ye shall (have to) eat, neither for the body, what ye shall (have to) put on:

23. (For) The life is more than meat, and the body is more than raiment. (He then who gave this life and body, without your care and your assistance, will not be wanting in making the provisions necessary to preserve them.

24. Consider the (young) ravens, (excluded from their nests by the old ones, and crying to the Lord for meat, Psal. 147. 9.) for (Gr. that) they neither sow nor reap, which neither have store-house nor barn, and (yet) God feedeth them, (giving them food when they cry;) how much more are ye better than the fowls, (and so more sure to be provided for?)

25. And which of you with taking thought can add to his stature one cubit, (one moment to his life, or one inch to the growth of his body; and how much less will your solicitude preserve the whole?)

26. If ye then be not able to do that thing which is least, why take ye thought for the rest, (which you are less able to compass?)

27. (Again,) Consider the lilies how they grow: they toil not, they spin not; and yet I say unto you, (they appear so beautifully clothed by nature,) that Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.

28. If then God so clothe the grass, which is to day in the field, and to morrow is cast into the oven, (and so is of a very short duration,) how much more will he clothe you, O ye of little faith, (if you distrust his care in making these provisions for you?)

29. And seek not ye, (or seek not then) what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink, neither be ye of [f] doubtful (wavering) mind:

30. For all these things do the nations of the world seek after, (who have no hopes of better things,) and (you need not be concerned for them, seeing) your (heavenly) Father knoweth you have need of these things.

31. But rather seek ye (first) the kingdom of God, and all these things shall be added to you.

32. Fear not (any want of these things,) little flock; for it is your Fathers good pleasure to give you the kingdom (of glory.)

33. [g] Sell that ye have, and give alms, (even of the main stock, when the necessities of your poor require it, and so) provide yourselves bags which wax not old, a treasure in the heavens that faileth not, where no thief approacheth, nor moth corrupteth; (this being the only way to be heavenly minded.)

34. For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.

35. Let your [h] loins be girded about, and your lights burning; (i. e. as servants attending still their master's coming, and ready to execute his commands.)

36. And ye yourselves like to men (servants) that wait for their Lord, (or bridegroom,) when he will return from the wedding, that when he cometh, and knocketh, they may open to him immediately.

37. Blessed are those servants whom the Lord, when he cometh, shall find watching: verily I say to you, That he shall gird himself (as a servant,) and make them sit down to meat, and will come forth, and serve them; (i. e. he will administer to them in an unusual manner.)

38. And if he shall come in the second watch, or come in the third watch, and find them so, blessed are those servants (whom he will so regard.)

39. And this know (that men use the like vigilance in temporals; for) if the good man of the house had known what hour the thief would come, (it is to be supposed) he would have watched, and not have suffered his house to be broken through.

40. Be ye therefore ready also, (and shew like care in spirituals;) for the Son of man cometh in an hour that ye think not (of.)

41. Then Peter said to him, Lord, speakest thou this parable to us (disciples and apostles only,) or even to all?

42. And the Lord said, (This duty is incumbent on, and will be done by as many as expect a reward from me, for their prudence and fidelity, τὶς ἄρα,) [i] Who then is that faithful and wise steward, whom his lord shall make ruler over his houshold, to give them their portion of meat in due season, (as their wants require?)

43. Blessed is that servant, whom his Lord when he cometh, shall find so doing.

44. Of a truth, I say to you, That he will make him ruler over all that he hath (i. e. advance him to great honour and glory at his coming.)

45. But if that servant say in his heart, My Lord delayeth his coming, (as many of the Jews did, revolting from his service;) and (therefore) shall begin to beat the men servants and maidens, (the persevering Christians, as the apostatizing Jews did,) and to eat and drink, and to be drunken, (i. e. return to a dissolute course of life, 2 Pet. 2. 22.)

46. The Lord of that servant will come in a day when he looketh not for him, and at an hour when he is not aware; and (for his perfidiousness) shall cut him asunder, and appoint him his portion with the unbelievers.

47. And that servant who [k] knew his Lords will, and prepared not himself (for his coming,) neither did according to his will, shall be beaten with many stripes.

48. But he who knew (it) not, and did commit things things worthy of ſtripes, (as ſinning againſt the law of nature,) ſhall be beaten with few ſtripes; for to whomſoever much is given, of him ſhall be much required; and to whom men have committed much, of them they will ask the more.

49. (I farther tell you, that) I am come to ſend fire on the earth, (to publiſh that doctrine which will cauſe great heats and contentions;) and (yet ſo profitable is it to the world, that) what will I, [1] if it be already kindled? (Gr. what do I deſire, even that it were already kindled?)

50. But (And) I have a baptiſm to be baptized with, (i. e. a death to ſuffer,) and how am I ſtraitned (as one in pain,) till it be accompliſhed!

51. Suppoſe ye that I am come to give peace on earth, (i. e. to free you from the troubles of the world?) I tell you, Nay, but rather, (to preach that doctrine which will cauſe) diviſion.

52. For from henceforth there ſhall be five in one houſe divided, (on account of this doctrine, viz.) three againſt two, and two againſt three.

53. The father ſhall (by reaſon of it) be divided againſt the ſon, and the ſon againſt the father, and the mother againſt the daughter, and the daughter againſt the mother, the mother-in-law againſt her daughter in-law, and the daughter-in-law againſt her mother-in-law.

54 And he ſaid alſo to the people, When ye ſee a cloud riſe out of the weſt, ſtraightway ye ſay, There cometh a ſhower, and (uſually) ſo it is.

55. And when ye ſee (hear) the ſouth wind blow, ye ſay, There will be heat, and (ſo) it cometh to paſs.

56. Ye hypocrites, ye can diſcern (by) the face of the ſky (what weather,) and (by the face of the earth, (what ſeaſon it is like to be;) but how is it, that ye do (Gr. how then do ye) not diſcern (from what I do and teach, that) this (is the) time (of the Meſſiah's advent?)

57. Yea, and why even of [m] yourſelves judge ye not, (from the agreement of my doctrine with the principles of reaſon,) what is right?

58. When thou goeſt with thine adverſary to the magiſtrate, (it is good counſel,) as thou art in the way, (to) give diligence that thou mayeſt be delivered from him, leſt he hale thee to the judge, and the judge deliver thee to the officer, and the officer caſt thee into priſon:

59. (For) I tell thee, Thou ſhalt not depart thence till thou haſt paid the very laſt mite: (unleſs then neglect you that repentance towards God, and faith in the Meſſiah, which can alone preſerve you from that infernal priſon from which there is no eſcaping?)

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XII.

Ver. 1, 2, 3. [a] Προσέχετε ἑαυτοῖς ἀπὸ τῆ ζύμης τῶν φαρισαίων ἥτις ἐστὶν ὑπόκρισις. Beware of the leaven of the Phariſees, which is hypocriſy;] i. e. Take heed ye be not guilty of phariſaical hypocriſy; for though you ſhould be able to conceal the evil of your hearts and actions from the eyes of men, the time will come when they ſhall be revealed and made known, ver. 3. ἀνθ' ὧν, eo quod, propterea quod, idcirco quod, for that, or foraſmuch as, or becauſe, in the great day of your accounts, that which you have ſpoken or done with the greateſt ſecrecy ſhall come to light, and be revealed openly. So Luke 1. 20. Thou ſhalt be dumb, ἀνθ' ὧν, becauſe thou haſt not believed my words; Luke 19. 44. they ſhall lay thee even with the ground, ἀνθ' ὧν, becauſe thou knoweſt not the time of thy viſitation; Acts 12. 23. The angel of the Lord ſmote him, ἀνθ' ὧν, becauſe he gave not glory to God. And thus it anſwers to the Hebrew אשר על, which is moſtly rendered by the ſeventy, ὅτι, διότι, and ſometimes ἀνθ' ὧν ὅτι; as 2 Sam. 12. 16. ἀνθ' ὧν ὅτι, becauſe he hath done this thing; 1 Kings 9. 9. ἀνθ' ὧν, becauſe they have forſaken the Lord their God; 2 Kings 18. 12. ἀνθ' ὧν ὅτι, becauſe they have not hearkened to the voice of the Lord; Jer. 16. 11. ἀνθ' ὧν, becauſe your fathers have forſaken me; ſo chap. 22. 9. Ezek. 26. 39. ἀνθ' ὧν, for I have poured out my ſpirit upon the houſe of Iſrael.

Ver. 8. [b] Πᾶς ὃς ἂν ὁμολογήσῃ ἐν ἐμοὶ, Every one that ſhall confeſs me before men, him alſo ſhall the Son of man confeſs before the angels of God; ver. 9. But he that denieth me before men, ſhall be denied before the angels of God.] The critical note here is that as the Hebrew ב is very frequently only the ſign of the dative caſe, ſee Nold. de partic. p. 165, 166. ſo is ἐν, both in the Old and the New Teſtament: ſo Gen. 40. 14. ποιήσεις ἐν ἐμοὶ ἔλεος, thou ſhalt ſhew me kindneſs, Pſal. 82. 8. ſo Rom. 11. 2. ἐν Ἠλίᾳ, to Elijah, 1 Cor. 9. 15. the Lord will say, ἐν ἐμοὶ, to me. So ἐν πόλει ἐν Ιερουσαλὴμ, a city—Jerusalem, LXX. Moreover, these words, ver. 9. afford us a full confutation of the pernicious doctrine of Mr Hobbes, against that self-denial and taking up the cross our Lord so expressly and frequently requires from all Christians, and Mr Hobbes, out of his more abundant wisdom, flatly doth excuse us from: for faith, saith he, being internal and invisible, we need not put ourselves into danger for it: and therefore he alloweth subjects, being commanded by their sovereigns, to deny Christ. His words are these, Profession with the tongue is only an external thing, wherein a Christian believing firmly in his heart the faith of Christ, hath the same liberty which the prophet Elisha allowed to Naaman the Syrian, who believed in his heart, but by bowing before the idol Rimmon, he denied the true God in effect, as much as if he had done it with his lips. Moreover, he giveth licence to a Christian to commit idolatry, or do an idolatrous act, for fear of death or corporal danger; To pray, saith he, to a king voluntarily for fair weather, or for any thing which God alone can do for us, is divine worship and idolatry; but if the king compel a man to this by the terror of death, or other great corporal punishments, it is not idolatry; his reason is, because it is not a sign that he doth honour him as God inwardly, but that he is desirous to save himself from death, or from a miserable life: Thus doth he, with those Gnostics of whom St Peter speaks, bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that bought him. But, 1st, This doctrine renders self-denial, or taking up the cross, a thing impossible; for where the magistrate is not against the free profession of our faith, where he enjoineth nothing opposite to the command of Christ, we cannot suffer for the sake of Christ, and of his gospel: and where the magistrate compels us by punishments or threats to deny Christ, or do what he hath otherwise forbid, Mr Hobbes tells us, we may lawfully obey, and therefore need not suffer. 2dly, No man, according to this doctrine, can suffer according to the will of God, as the apostle Peter doth suppose, 1 Peter 3. 17. No man can suffer for conscience towards God, or for well-doing, as the same apostle speaks; because it is not the will of God we should thus suffer, since he permits us to deny our faith, saith Mr Hobbes, and practise contrary to what he hath forbid, when faith or practice will expose us to corporal punishments, or to the fear of death. 3dly, No man, according to this doctrine, can promise to himself any reward for what he suffers in the cause of Christ, because he never did require him to suffer; whereas a crown of glory is every where in scripture promised to the patient sufferer; his light afflictions are said to work for him a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory; and it is said to be a righteous thing with God, to recompense to them that suffer for him, rest with him.

Moreover, This doctrine gives the lie to our Saviour, who plainly tells us, that whosoever shall deny him before men, he will deny him before his heavenly Father, Matth. 10. 33. that whosoever shall be ashamed of his words and doctrine in a perverse and an adulterous generation, of him his Saviour will be ashamed, when he comes before his Father and his glorious angels, Mark 8. 3, 8. But to this it is replied by Mr Hobbes, that what a subject is compelled to do in obedience to his sovereign, and doth it not in order to his own mind, but in order to the law of his sovereign, that action is not his, but his sovereign's: nor is it he that, in this case, denieth Christ, but his sovereign. Ans. 1. Seeing the persecuting world is that adulterous generation of which our Saviour speaks, and the world persecuteth by the civil power; to be ashamed of Christ and of his words in this adulterous generation, is certainly to be ashamed to confess him, and to own his doctrine, by reason of the ignominy or troubles we may suffer for so doing from the civil power. 2dly, That to refuse to bear our cross, and even lose our lives for Christ's sake and the gospel's, is to be ashamed of Christ, is evident from the connection of the words: for Christ informeth his disciples, ver. 31. that he must suffer many things of the chief priests and rulers of the Jews; and ver. 34. he tells them, all that would be his disciples must also be content to bear the cross, and lose their lives for his sake and the gospel's, when men saw fit to treat the disciple as they had done his master, which, saith he, whosoever doth refuse to do, will be the greatest loser; ὃς γὰρ ἂν, for whosoever will be ashamed of me, &c. Is it not therefore evident, that to refuse even to lose our life for Christ's sake and the gospel's, when rulers shall think fit, on that account, to take it from us, is to be ashamed of Christ and of his doctrine? and therefore Mr Hobbes wisely said nothing to this text. But, 2dly, In his pretended answer to those words of Matthew, he manifestly wrests our Saviour's words, who plainly speaks of denying him by words in presence of, or in compliance with the magistrate. For, ver. 18. he declares to his disciples, that they should be brought before kings and rulers for his sake, and by them should be scourged, ver. 17. imprisoned, ver. 19. and killed, ver. 21. but, notwithstanding all their menaces and persecutions, publish, saith he, my doctrine openly to all the world; What I tell you in darkness, that speak ye in the light; and what you hear in the ear, that speak on the house top, ver. 27. and be not discouraged couraged from ſo doing by fear of them who may kill the body, which magiſtrates, who have the power of the ſword, have only right to do, and which they cannot do for our internal faith, of which they cannot judge, but only for the outward profeſſion, or confeſſion of it, which, ſaith Chriſt, I command you to make before them without fear, ver. 31. for whoſoever ſhall confeſs me before men, him will I confeſs,—deny me before men,—deny, ver. 32, 33. So ſaith our Lord. It is no ſuch matter, ſaith the great Malmeſburian philoſopher; you are fools if you offer yourſelves to be thus treated by the magiſtrate for the name of Chriſt: you need not run this hazard; you may deny, as well as preach Chriſt's doctrine on the houſe top, if ſo commanded by the magiſtrate, and therefore only need not fear him, becauſe you need do nothing to provoke him; you may be found believers, though ye deny, blaſpheme, or diſobey Chriſt, when by their menaces or precepts the magiſtrates compel you ſo to do; and therefore you, notwithſtanding all your blaſphemies, will be acceptable to Chriſt; but he will puniſh thoſe perſecuting rulers, as thoſe who only do indeed deny him. Now whether this be to interpret or contradict our Saviour's words, let any rational man judge. 3*dly*, This doctrine is a flat contradiction to St Paul, who doth expreſly teach, as well confeſſion of the Lord Jeſus with our mouths, as belief of him with our hearts, to be required to ſalvation, for with the mouth confeſſion is made unto ſalvation, Rom. 10. 10. adding, that if we do deny Chriſt, he alſo will deny us, but if we ſuffer for him, we ſhall reign together with him, 2 Tim. 2. 12. It alſo thwarts the doctrine of St John, who having told us of ſome Jewiſh rulers, who, when convinced that Jeſus was the Chriſt, would not confeſs him for fear of puniſhment and of diſgrace, by being turned out of the ſynagogue, ſaith, they loved the praiſe of men more than the praiſe of God, John 12. 43. which whoſoever doth can be no ſound believer, and no true lover of his Lord, John 5. 42, 44. Moreover, by this doctrine we muſt condemn the three children who refuſed to worſhip the golden image which Nebuchadnezzar did erect, whereas God, by their wonderful deliverance, approved their diſobedience to the command of the king; and all thoſe martyrs and confeſſors, who rather choſe to ſuffer than deny their Lord, or worſhip idols, when by the Heathen magiſtrate they were commanded ſo to do, muſt be condemned as fools and criminals; whereas the miracles they wrought, and the divine aſſiſtance which they found under their ſufferings, ſufficiently convince us that God approved of their actions. Laſtly, The inſtance of Naaman the Syrian, as it may be rendered from the Hebrew, is wholly impertinent to this purpoſe; for there he doth not ask the prophet's leave to ſin again, but only asks his pardon that he had done it; in this thing the Lord pardon thy ſervant, that when my Lord went into the houſe of Rimmon to bow down himſelf there, and leaned on my hand, I bowed down myſelf there; that I bowed down myſelf,----the Lord pardon thy ſervant in this thing; and ſo the margins of ſome bibles read; and that which may be fairly offered to confirm this reading is, that theſe very Hebrew words here uſed are elſewhere found, not in the future, but in the preterperfect tenſe, the Lord pardon me, beboa in going to the houſe of Rimmon, ſaith the text here; a pſalm of David, beboa Nathan, when Nathan went unto him, Pſal. 51. 1, uhiſtahvati, and I bow down myſelf, ſaith our tranſlation here; uhiſtavau, and they bowed down themſelves, Exod. 33. 10.

Ver. 13. [c] Εἰπὲ τῷ ἀδελφῷ μου μεμερίσασθαι τὴν κληρονομίαν μετ' ἐμοῦ, Maſter, ſpeak to my brother that he divide the inheritance with me.] Here Dr Lightfoot ſhews, that this was uſually done either by the conſiſtory of three, or by ſome choſen by them betwixt whom the cauſe depended, as arbitrators in the caſe, as Grotius and Dr Hammond have ſuggeſted; therefore there is no ground for Mr le Clerc to ſay this man did not deſire him to perform the office of a judge or arbitrator between him and his brother, but to uſe his prophetical authority to oblige his brother, who detained the whole inheritance, to divide it with him; for if ſo, why doth not Chriſt anſwer, that this was no part of his prophetic office, but only, who made me a ruler or a judge? Now, it is probable that Chriſt refuſed to take this office upon him, not only to avoid the envy and calumny of the Jewiſh rulers who might be apt to ſay he took upon him an office to which he was not called, in prejudice to them who were appointed for that work; but chiefly becauſe he had but little time remaining which he could better ſpend in dividing to them the word of life, and in promoting their eternal intereſt.

Ver. 15. [d] Φυλάσσεσθε ἀπὸ τῆς πλεονεξίας, Beware of covetouſneſs, for a man's life conſiſts not in the abundance of the things that he poſſeſſeth.] Hence we learn, that the deſire of having more then we really need, not to ſupply the neceſſities of others or to promote God's glory, but that we may keep and treaſure them up, and enjoy them, is one ſpecies of covetouſneſs; for theſe words are certainly produced as a diſſuaſive from the ſin of covetouſneſs, which ſure they could not be, were not the deſire of having more one ſpecies or ſymptom of the ſin. 2*dly*, From the words following we learn, that to be more ſollicitous concerning temporals than are for ſpirituals, and to be anxious about them, when we are not yet rich towards God, is another ſign of covetouſneſs. This may probably be concluded from the concern of this perſon for the dividing of his inheritance, rather than that our Lord ſhould inſtruct him in the way of life, it being this which gave occaſion to this admonition, to beware of covetouſneſs: and it more clearly follows from the example of the fool, who was ſo much concerned to hoard up his goods, but not at all concerned to be rich towards God, i. e. to have his treaſure with God in the heavens, and to eſteem it his chiefeſt riches to be an heir of the kingdom of God, ver. 32. and to employ his riches ſo as to procure God's favour, and his own future happineſs; for this is a plain indication of a heart that values theſe temporal concernments more than God's favour, or celeſtial riches; which, in St Paul's judgment, renders the covetous perſon guilty of idolatry.

Ver. 20. [e] Ταύτῃ τῇ νυκτὶ τὴν ψυχήν σε ἀπαιτοῦσιν [παρὰ σοῦ.] i. e. Either thy ſoul ſhall be required of thee by God, that gave it, and whoſe depoſitum it was, as the Jews ſpeak; ſee note on 2 Tim. 1. 12. or elſe it ſhall be required by evil angels, according to that other opinion of the Jews, that the ſouls of the juſt, when they die, are carried into the garden of Eden, per manum angelorum, by the miniſtry of holy angels, and the ſouls of the wicked to the place appointed for them by evil ſpirits. See the note on chap. 16. 22.

Ver. 29. [f] Καὶ μὴ μετεωρίζεσθε, Neither be ye of doubtful mind.] Μετέωρος, ſaith the gloſſary of Stephanus, is ὁ μὴ σωθεὶς τὴν νῦν, ταλαντευόμενος τῇ γνώμῃ, Budæus, one fluctuating and unſtable in his mind, judgment, or counſel; hence μετέωρος δίκη is ſuſpended judgment, μετέωρος ἀρχὴ, a doubtful or perverted empire; μετέωροι, ſaith Suidas, are οἱ περὶ τὰ μέλλοντα ἔτι σαλευόμενοι, thoſe that are anxious and fluctuating as to future events, or whatever may befal them; in which ſenſe ſay Thucydides and Plutarch, μετέωρος ἦν ἡ Ἑλλας, Greece was in ſuſpenſe [concerning the event of the war]: and Joſephus, that the Jews were μετέωροι ἐπὶ τῷ μέλλοντι πολέμῳ, anxious about the war with the Romans. Accordingly μετεωρισμὸς, the thing forbidden here ſaith Theophylact, ὁ περισπασμὸς, καὶ τὸ λύσις ἄσταθες περὶ, a diſtracting and unſtable fluctuation of the mind, or reaſon, about proviſion for the body; which Chriſt would here remove from the children of God, as being well aſſured that his Father knoweth what is needful for them, v. 30. and his fatherly care would certainly provide for them what was ſo.

Ver. 33. [g] Πωλήσατε τὰ ὑπάρχοντα ὑμῶν, καὶ δότε ἐλεημοσύνην. Sell what ye have, and give alms;] i. e. be ready when God calls, and the exigencies of Chriſt's members do require it, ſo to do; and be ſo far from the ſordidneſs of the rich man, who would not give of his ſuperfluities to the needy, as in theſe caſes to do it out of the main ſtock, as knowing this heavenly kingdom is to be obtained, not by hoarding up treaſures here on earth, but by diſtributing them to Chriſt's needy members. If it be asked, how moths can corrupt treaſures, ſeeing they eat not through gold or ſilver? I anſwer, that precious clothes are alſo reckoned among treaſures, Ezra 2. 69. Neh. 7. 70. Job 27. 16. See the note on James 5. 2, 3.

Ver. 35. [h] Ἔστωσαν ὑμῶν αἱ ὀσφύες περιεζωσμέναι, καὶ οἱ λύχνοι καιόμενοι, Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning.] The ſervant, when he was to miniſter to his maſter, that his clothes might not hinder him, girded them about him. So Luke 17. 8. Gird thyſelf, and ſerve me. And when Chriſt miniſtreth to his apoſtles, he takes a towel and girdeth himſelf, John 13. 4. and then waſheth their feet. Hence, ſaith (a) Philo, we are commanded to eat the paſſover, τὰς ὀσφύας περιεζωσμένοι ἕτοιμοὶ πρὸς ὑπηρεσίαν ἔχοντες, with our loins girt, as being ready for ſervice. Moreover, they waiting to expect their maſter's coming home at night, were to have their lamps burning, and ready to receive him, Matth. 25. 7. To ſervants ſo provided, and ready for ſervice, our Lord here promiſeth a new and unuſual honour, like that of the Romans in their Saturnalia, the (b) Cretans in their Hermæa, and of the Babylonians in their feaſt called Sacæas, where the ſervants ſat at table, and their maſters waited on them; Their Lord, ſaith he, ſhall gird himſelf, and make them ſit down to meat, and will come forth to ſerve them, ver. 37. he coming into the world, not to be miniſtered unto, but to miniſter, Matth. 20. 28.

Ver. 36. See additions, N°. 18.

Ver. 42. [i] Τίς ἄρα ἐστὶν ὁ πιστὸς οἰκονόμος; Who then is that wiſe ſervant?] Our Lord here does not anſwer directly to the queſtion of St Peter, yet he ſufficiently doth it by declaring, that this is to be done of every ſervant who expects to be rewarded, or treated as one faithful to him, and eſpecially of the guides of the church, Mark 13. 37.

Ver. 47, 48. [k] Ἐκεῖνος ὁ δοῦλος, &c. And that ſervant who knew his Lord's will, and prepared not himſelf, neither did according to his will, ſhall be beaten with many ſtripes. 48. But he that knew not, &c.] This being one great difference betwixt the paſtors of the church, and other Chriſtians; ans; they muſt expect a ſeverer puniſhment, as ſinning againſt greater evidence and knowledge of their duty: for to whom much is given, of them much will be required; whereas they who, through ſlowneſs of underſtanding, or neglect of paſtors, and multitude of worldly buſineſs, are ignorant of their duty, and ſo neglect it, will find a milder puniſhment; for ignorance may be pitied, but contempt deſerves no mercy.

Ver. 49. [l] Πῦρ ἦλθον βαλεῖν εἰς τὴν γῆν, καὶ τί θέλω εἰ ἤδη ἀνήφθη, I came to ſend fire on the earth, and what will I if it be already kindled?] Here it is to be noted, that the particle εἰ hath two ſignifications, both agreeable to this place 1. That, ſee note on 1 Tim. 1. 10. 2. It is a particle of wiſhing; ſo Numb. 22. 29. εἰ εἶχον μάχαιραν, I wiſh I had a ſword; εἰ καταμείναμεν, we wiſh we had continued beyond Jordan, Joſh. 7. 7. εἰ ἤκουσας, Pſal. 81. 13. and Iſa. 48. 18. Oh that thou hadſt hearkened to my precepts; Luke 18. 42. εἰ ἔγνως, Oh that thou hadſt known. So then the ſenſe of theſe words is this; I come to deliver to the world a doctrine which will incenſe the world againſt me and my followers, and ſubject us to great ſufferings, ſignified in ſcripture by fire, Pſal. 66. 12. Iſa. 43. 2. Eccluſ. 51. 4. and therefore called fiery trials, 1 Pet. 4. 12. and will baptize me in my own blood; but yet I am ſo far from being moved from proſecuting my Father's pleaſure by the proſpect of them, that I wiſh the time of my ſuffering were at hand, and my goſpel preached to the world.

Ver. 57. [m] Τί δὲ καὶ ἀφ' ἑαυτῶν οὐ κρίνετε τὸ δίκαιον; And why even of yourſelves judge ye not what is right?] i. e. take an example from yourſelves: you are not wont to neglect the means by which you may be preſerved from that priſon fire, from which you cannot eſcape till your whole debt be paid; why then neglect you that repentance towards God, and faith in the Meſſiah, which can alone preſerve you from that infernal priſon from which you cannot eſcape? You can obſerve the ſigns of heaven for your own temporal advantage; why therefore do you not obſerve the clear ſigns of the Meſſiah's coming, and calling you to faith and repentance by his doctrine?

CHAP. XIII.

1. THERE were preſent at that ſeaſon, (when Chriſt ſpake the foregoing words,) ſome that told him [a] of the Galileans, whoſe blood Pilate had mingled with their ſacrifices; (ſlaying them when they came to offer ſacrifice, for rejecting the authority of the Roman emperor.)

2. And Jeſus anſwering, ſaid unto them, Suppoſe ye that theſe Galileans were ſinners above all the (other) Galileans, becauſe they ſuffered ſuch things?

3. I tell you, nay; but except ye repent, ye ſhall all likewiſe periſh, (for the ſame cauſe, and many of you after the ſame manner. See note.)

4. Or thoſe eighteen, on whom the tower of Siloam fell, and ſlew them, think ye that they were ſinners above all men that dwelt in Jeruſalem?

5. I tell you, nay; but except ye repent, ye ſhall all [b] likewiſe periſh.

6. He ſpake alſo this parable, (to the ſame purpoſe, ſaying,) A certain man had a fig tree planted in his vineyard, and he came and ſought fruit thereon, and found none.

7. Then ſaid he to the dreſſer of the vineyard, Behold, [c] theſe three years I came ſeeking fruit, and find none, cut it down, why cumbreth it the ground? (and the like ſentence may you of this nation expect from God for your unfruitfulneſs.)

8. And he anſwering, ſaid to him, Lord, (if pleaſed to) let it alone this year alſo, till I dig about it, and dung it;

9. And if it bear fruit, well, (then will I cauſe to ſpare it;) and if (it do) not, then after that thou ſhalt cut it down: (and ſuch is now God's ſparing mercy to you; he is making further trial of you, whether what I, or my apoſtles preaching after my aſcent to heaven, can do, will make you fruitful; and if, after all our labours, you continue ſtill unfruitful, you muſt expect to be cut off.)

10. And he was teaching in one of the ſynagogues on the ſabbath.

11. And behold there was (there) a woman which had a ſpirit of infirmity eighteen years, and was bowed together (with it,) and could in no ways liſt up herſelf.

12. And when Jeſus ſaw her, he called her to him, and ſaid to her, Woman, thou art (now to be) looſed from thine infirmity;

13. And he laid his hands on her, and immediately ſhe was made ſtraight, and glorified God.

14. And the ruler of the ſynagogue anſwered (i. e. ſaid, with relation to this cure,) with indignation, becauſe that Jeſus had healed on the ſabbath day, and ſaid to the people, There are days in which men ought (i. e. by the commandment are allowed) to work; in them therefore come and be healed, and not on the sabbath day.

15. The Lord then answered him, and said, Thou [d] hypocrite, doth not each one of you on the sabbath (day) loose his ox or his ass from the stall, and lead him away to watering?

16. (This you do on that day for a beast, to free it from a little thirst;) And ought not (then) this woman, being a daughter of Abraham, whom [e] Satan hath bound, lo, these eighteen years, be loosed from this bond on the sabbath day?

17. And when he had said these things, all his adversaries were ashamed; and all the people rejoyced for all the glorious things that were done by him.

18. Then said he, To what is the kingdom of God like? and whereunto shall I resemble it?

19. It is like a grain of mustard seed, which a man took, and cast into his garden, and it grew, and waxed a great tree, and the fowls of the air lodged in the branches of it; (for thus from a very small beginning will it grow up into the greatest of all kingdoms, as that becomes the greatest of all herbs, Matth. 13. 32.)

20. And again he said, Whereunto shall I liken the kingdom of God?

21. It is like leaven, which a woman took and hid in three measures of meal, till the whole was leavened; (for so shall the doctrine of the kingdom spread, till it hath seasoned all the regions of the earth.)

22. And he went through the cities, and villages, teaching, and journeying toward Jerusalem.

23. Then said one to him, Lord, are there few that (shall) be saved? and he said to them (that heard him, Be not so much concerned to know how it will be with others, as to)

24. [f] Strive to enter (in) at the strait gate, (which leadeth to life, while ye have opportunity to do it;) for [h] many, I say to you, will seek to enter in, and shall not be able, (because they do it too late; for)

25. When once the master of the house is risen up, and hath shut the door, and ye begin to stand without, and to knock at the door, saying, Lord, Lord, open to us; and (or then) he shall answer and say to you, I know you not whence ye are; (be careful therefore now, O ye Jews, to believe, and obey the word, before the kingdom of God be taken from you, and the gate of the gospel be put shut, so that yet after knock in vain for entrance, Matth. 25. 10,—13. for.)

26. Then if ye shall begin to say, We have eaten and drunk in thy presence, and thou hast taught in our streets, (he will answer)

27. But he shall say, (καὶ ἐρεῖ, and will say,) I tell you, I know not whence you are; depart from me, all ye workers of iniquity.

28. (And then) There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth, when ye (the seed of Abraham) shall see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets in the kingdom of God, (enjoying the blessings promised to the members of that kingdom,) and you yourselves thrust out (of it.)

29. And (then) they (of the Gentiles) shall come from the east, and from the west, and from the north, and from the south, and shall sit down in the kingdom of God; (shall partake of the blessings of the gospel, and be owned as children of his kingdom.)

30. And behold (thus shall it happen, that) there are last, (i. e. the Gentiles called at the last hour, Matth. 20. 7.) which shall be first (in this kingdom;) and there are first, (i. e. the Jews to whom the gospel was first preached, and who are stiled God's first-born, Exod. 4. 22.) which shall be last, (i. e. cast out of this kingdom, and not recalled till the last, or at the close of the world.)

31. The same day there came certain of the Pharisees, saying to him, Get thee out (of Galilee, Herod's jurisdiction,) and depart hence, for (else) Herod will kill thee.

32. And he said to them, Go ye and tell that [i] fox, (from me a prophet sent from God, and therefore authorised thus to stile him,) behold, I cast out devils, and I do cures, (in prosecution, and confirmation of my prophetic office,) to day, and to morrow, (i. e. for a short time more,) and the third day I shall be perfected; (i. e. by death be consecrated to my priestly office; and so he needs not be concerned to put me to death, who shortly am to die as a sacrifice for the sins of the world.)

34. Nevertheless, I must walk (on in my journey, ver. 22.) to day, and to morrow, and the day following, (till I reach to Jerusalem, and I may do it without fear of being killed by Herod;) for it cannot be that [k] a prophet perish out of Jerusalem, (where the Sanhedrim, who think themselves the only judges of him, sit.)

34. O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, which killest the prophets, and stonest them that are sent to thee; how often would I have gathered thy children together (under my protection,) as an hen doth gather her brood under her wings, and ye would not (be gathered?)

35. Behold your house is left unto you desolate; and (γὰρ for) verily I say to you, (After a while) ye shall not see me, (Matth. 23. 38.) until the time come when ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord; (till then, you would say, i. e. you would be glad to see your Messiah ſiah coming to deliver you, and to ſay to him, what your Phariſees cannot now hear with patience, chap. 19. 39. but ſhall only ſee him coming to avenge himſelf upon you, Matth. 26. 64.)

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XIII.

Ver. 1. [a] Πεϱὶ τ῀ Γαλιλαίων ὧν τὸ αἷμα Πιλᾶτος ἔμιξε μετὰ τ῀ θυσιῶν, Whoſe blood Pilate mingled with their ſacrifices.] It is not to be doubted, ſaith Grotius, but that the ſedition of Judas Gaulonites, as it had its riſe in Galilee, ſo found it many followers and abettors there, who coming up to Jeruſalem, inſinuated into the people that they were the Lord's people, and therefore were to own him only as their king, and to pay tribute, not to Caſar, but to his temple; it therefore ſeemeth credible, ſaith he, as ſome of the Greek fathers think, that ſuch as theſe were the Galileans, whoſe blood Pilate mingled with their (paſchal) ſacrifice, as finding they were then ſowing theſe ſeeds of ſedition againſt Cæſar: and if this was at the paſſover, then the words following, ye ſhall all likewiſe periſh, agree wonderfully with that account of their deſtruction which Joſephus and Euſebius give us, that when they were come up from all places to obſerve the paſſover, they were incloſed in the city by the Romans, and upon the very day appointed for killing the paſſover, many of them were ſlaughtered like ſheep in the very temple, for this very cauſe, that they ſhook off the Roman yoke, and refuſed to pay tribute to Cæſar.

Ver. 5. [b] Ὁμοίως ἀπολεῖσθε, Ye ſhall likewiſe periſh.] That is, ſaith Grotius, among the ruins of the city, of which that tower was a part, they periſhing in Jeruſalem, ver. 4. or rather among the ruins of the towers of the city, and the temple. To illuſtrate theſe conjectures of the learned Grotius, let us a little conſider what Joſephus hath delivered of this matter: he therefore ſaith, that this Judas, with one Zadoch a Phariſee, incited the Jews to rebellion, ſaying, (a) τὴν ἐπίλιμνον εἶδεν ἀλλὰ ἢ ἄνδιχεν δουλείαν ἐπιφέρειν, that the paying tribute was a ſign of ſlavery; and under this pretence they exhorted the whole nation to maintain their liberty, καὶ ἡδονῇ ἀκρόασιν ἐδέχοντο ἄνθρωποι, and this the Jews received with pleaſure, and this became the ſeed of their future calamities. Hence they continually demanded (b) ἀναιρεῖν τὰ τέλη, that the tributes might be taken away. When Coponius was procurator of Judea, one Simon a Galilean reproved them, (c) εἰ φέροιεν τὰ Ῥωμαίοις ἐπιτελεῖν ὑπομένοντες, καὶ μετὰ τὸν Θεὸν οἵοντες δεσπότας, that they would endure to pay tribute, and ſuffer mortal lords to rule over them. When Felix was procurator, ſome magicians and thieves met together calling the people to liberty, and (d) θάνατον ἐπιλιμῶντες τοῖς πειθαρχοῦσι τῇ Ῥωμαίων ἡγεμονίᾳ, threatning death to thoſe who obeyed the Roman government. When Campanus was procurator, one Dortus ſolicited the people (e) ἐπὶ τὴν Ῥωμαίων ἀποστασίᾳ, to ſhake off the Roman yoke; ſo ready were they to embrace the doctrine of this Galilean. That many of the Jews periſhed, as did theſe Galileans, the ſame Joſephus teſtifies, ſaying, that under the preſident Cumanus twenty five thouſand (f) καθὰ τὸ ἱερὸν ἀπώλοντο, periſhed about the temple at the feaſt of the paſſover; that under Florus (g) συχνὸς φόνος, there was a multifarious ſlaughter of them fighting in the temple, and that one Manahem was ſlain as he worſhipped there; that many of the zealots periſhed in the temple, (h) καθαιμάσσοντες τὸ θεῖον ἔδαφος, and waſhed the holy ground with their blood; that the Idumæans coming in to their help, eight thouſand and five hundred of the party of Ananus the high prieſt were ſlain, ſo that (i) ἐπεκλύσθη καὶ τὸ ἔξωθεν ἱερὸν πᾶν αἵματι, the whole outward temple was waſhed over with blood. In that threefold ſedition which aroſe in Jeruſalem, betwixt Eleazar keeping the inward temple, John with his aſſociates ſeizing the outward temple, and Simon the upper city, (k) φόνοις ἐμαίνετο πανταχοῦ τὸ ἱερὸν, the temple was every where polluted with ſlaughters, the weapons flew every where and fell upon the prieſts, and thoſe who officiated at the altar; many who came from far to worſhip, πρὸ τ῀ θυμάτων ἔπεσον αὐτοῖς, fell before their ſacrifices, and ſprinkled the altar with their blood, inſomuch that the blood of the dead carcaſſes made a pool in the holy court. At the feaſt of unleavened bread Eleazar with his companions opening a gate for the people that came to worſhip, and to offer ſacrifice, John taking that opportunity, ſends in with them many of his party, having ſhort ſwords under their garments, who invaded Eleazar's party, and filled that temple with the blood of the zealots and of the people. And when Titus fought againſt the temple, (l) περὶ τὸν βώμον πολὺς ἐστρώννυτο τ῀ νεκρῶν, a multitude of dead bodies lay round about the altar, and the blood ran down the ſteps of the temple, and many periſhed by the ruins of the towers or porches.

ταυτη, These three years have I come seeking fruit of this fig-tree, and have found none.] These three years seem not to signify only the time of our Lord's preaching among the Jews; for they were not destroyed the next year, but above thirty six years after our Lord's ascension: they rather seem to be mentioned, because the fruit of some fig-trees came not to maturity till the third year; the time he expected afterwards, includes the whole time of the apostles preaching to them at Jerusalem, and to their dispersions, and to the Gentiles, to gather and set up his church among them; and then was the end of the Jewish church and temple, and the great destruction of that nation to come, Matth. 24. 14. Nor were the Jews then given over, but were, after our Lord's ascension, to be under the dispensation of the holy Ghost; and upon the rejection of that call was Christ's prediction, that their house should be left to them desolate, to take place: whence, after the holy Ghost was fallen down upon them, the apostles were to begin their preaching at Jerusalem, and to go thence throughout all Judea, Acts 1. 8. and to preach to them remission of sins, Acts 13. 38. and this they did with such success, as to convert many myriads of them, Acts 21. 20. And the apostle Paul declares it necessary for them to preach the word of God first to them, Acts 13. 46.

Ver. 15. [d] Ὑποκριτα, Thou hypocrite.] This Christ pronounced upon the ruler of the synagogue, partly because he placed his holiness chiefly in the observation of ritual precepts, or the rest of the body on the sabbath-day, preferring that before the great things of the law, which Christ still representeth as a sign of hypocrisy, Matth. 23. 23. partly because he pretended a great zeal for the law of God, when he was rather acted in this matter by black envy at the glory of Christ, which he that saw his heart well knew.

Ver. 16. [e] Ἣν ἔδησεν ὁ Σατανᾶς, Whom Satan hath bound these eighteen years.] That sometimes by concurring with, and sometimes without natural causes, many diseases were, by divine permission, brought on men by evil spirits, the gospel and histories of Job and Saul inform us; for that Saul, after the departure of the good spirit, fell εἰς παθη δαιμονικα καὶ δαιμονια, into demoniacal passions, and had ταραχὰς ἀπὸ δαιμόνων ταραχὴν, perturbations from dæmons, or, as the scripture speaks, by an evil spirit from the Lord, 1 Sam. 16. 14, 23. we learn from (m) Josephus. And by confession of (n) Maimonides, Satan was the cause of all that Job suffered, not only in his substance, but his body, Job 2. 7. And the Targum on Psal. 91. 6. numbers troops of dæmons among those who inflict plagues and death upon men.

Ver. 23. [f] Εἰ ὀλίγοι οἱ Σῳζόμενοι; Are there few that be saved?] This question seems to be propounded agreeable to that sentiment of the Jews, that all Israelites should have their portion in the world to come: to which Christ was not pleased to give an answer that might satisfy the curiosity of the man, but rather an instruction that might benefit him; it being not our concern to know how many will be saved, but how we may be saved.

Ver. 24. [g] Ἀγωνίζεσθε εἰσελθεῖν διὰ τῆς στενῆς πύλης, Strive to enter in at the strait gate.] Here Christ shews, that the number of them who may be saved is not defined by any decree of God excluding all others from it, or rendering them unable to atain it; for then Christ must in vain exhort them to use their diligence to enter into the strait gate which leadeth to eternal life; and yet by saying, ἀγωνίζεσθε, strive as men in agony to do it, he shews, that this requires great constancy, diligence and courage, and a strong conflict with the world, the flesh, and the devil; and so such only will obtain it.

Ibid. [h] Πολλοὶ ζητήσουσιν εἰσελθεῖν, καὶ οὐκ ἰσχύσουσι, For many shall seek to enter, and shall not be able:] not for want of power, or sufficient grace, on God's part, but for seeking too late to enter, viz. when the door is shut, ver. 25. The sense therefore runs thus, Be careful, O ye Jews, now to believe, and obey my word, before the kingdom be taken from you, and the gate of the gospel banquet be shut, so that you after knock in vain for entrance, Matth. 25. 10.—13. See the note on Matth. 8. 11, 12.

Ver. 32. [i] Εἰπατε τῇ ἀλωπεκι ταυτῃ, Go tell that fox, &c.] To impose this ignominious, but agreeable name on Herod, is not contrary to the command, not to speak evil of the ruler of thy people; it being the office of a prophet, not to spare kings when they reprove their offences, Jer. 1. 10. Christ therefore here uses his prophetical power, in giving this tyrant a name so suitable to his actions. See additions N°. 19.

Ver. 33. [k] Οὐκ ἐνδέχεται τὸν προφήτην ἀπολέσθαι ἔξω, A prophet cannot perish out of Jerusalem;] because he was only to be judged by the great Sanhedrim, and they were only to pass judgment on him in that place; so Dr Lightfoot here.

CHAP. XIV.

1. AND it came to paſs, as he went into the houſe of one of the [a] chief Phariſees, (or of the rulers, who was of the Phariſees,) to eat bread on the ſabbath day, that they watched him, (whether he would heal on the ſabbath day, that they might accuſe him, Mark 3. 2.)

2. And behold, there was a certain man (then) before him, which had the dropſy.

3. And Jeſus [b] anſwering (to their thoughts,) ſpake to the lawyers and Phariſees, ſaying, Is it lawful to heal on the ſabbath day (or not?)

4. And (But) they held their peace; and (then) he took him, and healed him, and let him go;

5. And (he) anſwered them (who held this unlawful,) ſaying, Which of you ſhall have an aſs or an ox fallen into a pit, and will not ſtraightway pull him out on the ſabbath day? (and ſhall that kindneſs be denied to a ſon of Abraham in his diſtreſs on that day, which you afford on it to your diſtreſſed beaſt?)

6. And they could not anſwer him again to theſe things.

7. And he put forth a [c] parable to thoſe that were bidden (to ſit down with him,) when he marked how they (the Phariſees) choſe out the chief rooms (at feaſts, on the account of their pretended wiſdom,) ſaying to them,

8. When thou art bidden of any man to a wedding, (or a marriage feaſt,) ſit not down in the higheſt room, leſt a more honourable man than thou be (alſo) bidden of him.

9. And (ſo) he that bad thee and him, come and ſay to thee, Give this man place, and thou begin with ſhame to take the loweſt room.

10. But when thou art bidden, go, and ſit down in the loweſt room, that when he that bad thee cometh, he may ſay to thee, Friend, go up higher; then ſhalt thou have [d] worſhip, (i. e. honour) in the preſence of them that ſit at meat with thee.

11. For whoſoever exalteth himſelf, ſhall be abaſed; and he that humbleth himſelf, ſhall be exalted (both by God and man.)

12. Then ſaid he alſo to him that bad him, When thou makeſt a [e] dinner or a ſupper, (do it not from reſpect of an invitation by way of recompence, and therefore ordinarily,) call not thy friends, nor thy brethren, neither thy kinſmen, nor thy rich neighbours, leſt they alſo bid thee again, and (ſo) a recompence be made thee:

13. But when thou makeſt a feaſt, (do it out of charity to the needy; and therefore) call the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind:

14. And thou ſhalt be bleſſed, for (ἔτι, that) they (are called by thee, who) cannot recompenſe thee; for thou ſhalt be recompenſed at the [f] reſurrection of the juſt.

15. And when one of them that ſat at meat with him, heard theſe things, he ſaid to him, Bleſſed is he that ſhall eat bread in the kingdom of God; (i. e. that ſhall partake of the pleaſures and enjoyments of the kingdom of the Meſſiah.)

16. Then (to convince him that the generality of the Jews were, for their unbelief, to be excluded from that kingdom,) ſaid he to him (by way of parable) A [h] certain man made a great ſupper, and bade many:

17. And ſent his ſervant at ſupper time, to ſay to them that were bidden, Come, for all things are now ready; (as God ſent firſt the Baptiſt to invite the Jews, and then the apoſtles, and ſeventy diſciples, to tell them the kingdom of God was at hand, and to perſuade them to enter into it.)

18. And they all with one conſent began to make excuſe; (for) the firſt ſaid to him, I have bought a piece of ground, and I muſt needs go and ſee it; I pray thee have me excuſed:

19. And another ſaid, I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I go to prove them; I pray thee have me excuſed:

20. And another ſaid, I have married a wife, and therefore I cannot come; (i. e. they, either of greater love to the pleaſures or the advantages of this world, rejected the kind invitation.)

21. So that ſervant came, and ſhewed his Lord theſe things. Then the maſter of the houſe being angry, (that they who were ſo lovingly invited would not come,) ſaid to his ſervants, (the apoſtles ſent with a freſh commiſſion, after Chriſt's reſurrection to go to Judea, and the diſperſions of the Jews,) Go out quickly into the ſtreets and lanes of the city, and bring in hither the poor and maimed, the halt and the blind; (i. e. Gentiles and the diſperſed Jews.)

22. And the ſervant ſaid, Lord, it is done as thou haſt commanded, and yet there is room (for more gueſts.)

23. And the Lord ſaid to the ſervant, Go out into the high-ways and hedges, (i. e. to the Gentile nations,) and [i] compel them to come in, that my houſe may be filled.

24. For I ſay to you, that none of thoſe that were bidden, (and refuse to come,) shall taste of my supper, (i. e. enjoy the blessings of my kingdom.)

25. And there went great multitudes with him; and he turned, and said to them,

26. If any man come to me, and [k] hate not his father and mother, and wife and children, and brethren and sisters, yea, and his own life also; (i. e. if he prefers not my service before all those,) he cannot be my disciple.

27. And whosoever doth not bear his cross, and come after me, (i. e. that will not obey me, and suffer any hardship for my sake,) cannot be my disciple.

28. (Consider therefore well of these things before you enter on a Christian life:) For which of you intending to [l] build a tower, sitteth not down first, and counteth the cost, whether he have sufficient to finish it?

29. Lest haply after he hath laid the foundation, and is not able to finish it, all that behold it begin to mock him,

30. Saying, This man began to build, and was not able to finish (his building: so before we enter on a Christian life, we should sit down, and consider seriously what it will cost us to be indeed Christians, and whether we be stedfastly resolved to do and suffer all that Christianity requires.)

31. Or, what king going to make war against another king, sitteth not down first, and consulteth whether he be able with ten thousand, to meet him that cometh against him with twenty thousand?

32. Or else, while the other is yet a great way off, he sendeth an embassage, and desireth conditions of peace.

33. So likewise, whosoever he be of you that (engageth not so manfully in his Christian warfare against sin, Satan, and the world, that when I call him to it, he) [m] forsaketh not all that he hath, he cannot be my disciple.

34. [n] Salt is good, (i. e. a Christian life is very advantageous;) but if the salt have lost his savour, (if the Christian apostle and professor hath lost his Christian conversation,) wherewith shall it be seasoned? (i. e. what can be used further to recover him?)

35. It is neither fit for the land, nor yet for the dunghill; but men cast it out: (i. e. such an unsavoury Christian can neither do good to himself or others.) He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XIV.

Ver. 1. [a] Εἰς οἶκόν τινος τῶν ἀρχόντων τῶν Φαρισαίων, Into the house of one of the chief Pharisees.] Gr. into the house of one of the Pharisees who was a ruler in the Sanhedrim; for they are called ἄρχοντες, rulers, Luke 24. 20. John 3. 1. Acts 3. 17. 1 Cor. 2. 8. See the note there.

Ver. 3. Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπε πρὸς τοὺς νομικούς, And Jesus answering, spake to the lawyers and Pharisees; and ver. 5. καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς πρὸς αὐτοὺς εἶπεν, and he answering them, said.] Here ἀποκριθεὶς, answering, is twice used, where neither any question was put, nor any thing said to him; but then it is still an answer to some λόγου ἐνδιαθέτου, inward conception, or reasoning, or to some action expressive of their sentiments concerning him. Sometimes it is used, when he perceived their inward thoughts and reasonings, about his actions, words or person: thus when the Pharisees were consulting how they might apprehend him for the parable he spake against them; ἀποκριθεὶς, he answering, spake another parable, shewing what destruction would come upon them for crucifying him, Matth. 22. 1. So Jesus perceiving their thoughts, ἀποκριθεὶς, answering, said to them, Luke 7. 22. So he answers to what Simon said within himself, Luke 7. 39, 40. Sometimes he answers to their actions, as discovering their apprehensions of him: thus when they came to take him, Jesus ἀποκριθεὶς, answering, said to them, Are ye come as against a thief? Mark 14. 48. so to the barren fig-tree, ἀποκριθεὶς, he answering, said, Let never fruit grow on thee more, Mark 11. 14. So reflecting on the infidelity and impenitence of those cities among whom he had done his mighty works, and of those Pharisees who believed neither him nor the Baptist, ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν, he answering, said, Father, I thank thee, Matth. 11. 25. So when Peter had smitten off the ear of Malchus, ἀποκριθεὶς, Jesus answering, with relation to that action, saith, Suffer ye so far, Luke 22. 51. so Peter answers not to what he had heard, but to what he had seen, Matth. 17. 4. So Elisabeth answers, without being spoken to, the discourse of the women about the name of her son, Luke 1. 60. and the angel answers to the fear of the women, Matth 28. 5. and the high priest to Christ's silence, I adjure thee to tell us, Matth. 26. 63. and St John the evangelist to Christ's words, He that receiveth you, receiveth me; master, we saw one cast out devils in thy name, &c. Mark 9. 38.

Ver. 7. [c] Ἔλεγε δὲ πρὸς τοὺς κεκλημένους παραβολήν, And he put forth a parable to them that were bidden, when he marked how they chose out the chief rooms:]

i. e. Chriſt being in the houſe of a prince of the Phariſees, ver. 1. and obſerving how ſollicitous they were to chuſe the upper rooms on the account of their reputed wiſdom, becauſe Solomon had ſaid, Prov. 4. 8. Exalt wiſdom, as Dr Lightfoot here ſhews; that he might cure this ſwelling pride in them, and teach them humility, ver. 11. he propounds this parable, as it is fitly called, according to the definition of a parable by the Greeks, that it is παράθεσις ὁμοιωματικὴ ἐπὶ σαφηνείᾳ τοῦ ὑποκειμένου, a comparative reſemblance of things, for the illuſtration of what is ſpoken of; or as Phavorinus, παραπλησίων πραγμάτων παράθεσις, a collation of things reſembling each other. This parable being taken from a like example of a nuptial banquet.

Ver. 10. [d] Τότε ἔσαι σοὶ δόξα. Then ſhalt thou have honour in the preſence of them that ſit at meat with thee.] i. e. this will ordinarily be the reſult of thy humility; and though it ought not to be our chief deſign in any virtuous action, yet hence it follows that this may be one motive to the performance of ſuch actions, Philip. 4. 8.

Ver. 12. [e] Ὅταν ποιῇς ἄριστον, ἢ δεῖπνον When thou makeſt a dinner, or a ſupper, call not thy friends, and thy brethren, &c. but call the poor, the maimed.] Some think, Chriſt ſpeaks here of the ſacred banquet made by the Jews on their peace-offerings, and other feaſts, to which they are bid to call the poor, the widow, and the Levite, Deut. 14. 29. but this ſeems a miſtake, for Chriſt ſpeaks not of any ſpecial ſtated feaſts, but of ſuch banquets as he was then at; nor hath he one word of the widow and the Levite, who were to be gueſts there, but of the blind, the lame, the maimed, of which the law ſaith nothing; nor doth he ſay, For this the Lord ſhall bleſs thee upon the earth, as Deut. 14. 29. but, Thou ſhalt be recompenſed at the reſurrection of the juſt.

Note, 2*dly*, That Chriſt doth not abſolutely forbid us to invite our friends, our brethren, or kinſfolk, to teſtify our mutual charity and friendſhip, and how dear our relations are to us; only he would not have us invite them out of a proſpect of a compenſation from them again, but to prefer the exerciſing our charity to them who cannot recompenſe us. See additions N°. 20. Nor,

3*dly*, Doth he lay upon us a neceſſity, by this precept, to call the lame, the blind or maimed, to our tables, but either to do this, or what is equivalent to us in reſpect of charge, and more advantageous to them and their families, viz. to ſend them meat, or money to refreſh them at home. Note alſo, That (a) Dion. Chryſoſtomus, who flouriſhed in the time of Trajan, ſeems to have taken his obſervation hence, that they did ἀνελευθέρως περᾶτλειν τὰ περὶ τὰς ξένας τὰς πόλεις, act ſordidly as to poor ſtrangers, who did μόνας τὰς πλησίον ὑποδέχεσθαι ξενίοις, καὶ δώροις, παρ' ὧν φίλον ἦν καὶ αὐτὰς προσδόκων τι ἴσων ἐντυχεῖν, entertain the rich only friendly, with their hoſpitalities and gifts, from whom they expected to receive as much again.

Ver. 14. [f] Ἀνταποδοθήσε ται σοὶ ἐν τῇ ἀναστάσει, Thou ſhalt be recompenſed at the reſurrection of the juſt.] See here the time of recompenſing even thoſe works of charity which are moſt acceptable to God, and for which we are chiefly to be rewarded, at the great day, Matth. 25. 34.

Ver. 15. [g] Μακάριος, &c. Bleſſed is he who ſhall eat bread in the kingdom of God.] It appears from the enſuing parable, that the kingdom of God, here, doth not ſignify the kingdom of heaven in the higheſt ſenſe, but only the kingdom of the Meſſiah, of which the carnal Jew here ſpeaks, according to the received ſenſe of his nation, as of a glorious temporal kingdom, in which the Jews ſhould lord it over the Gentile world, enjoy their wealth, and be provided with all temporal bleſſings and delights, in which they placed their happineſs.

Ver. 16. [h] A certain man made a great ſupper, &c.] We are called of God, ſaith (b) Philo, to partake of a banquet; not which ſhall ſatiate us with the pleaſures of the belly, and fatten the body, but with which the mind being nouriſhed, and leaping for pleaſure, rejoiceth, and is glad. See the expoſition of this parable, Matth. 22. 1, 2.

Ver. 23. [i] Καὶ ἀνάγκασον εἰσελθεῖν, And compel them to come in.] How vainly theſe words are brought to prove that men may be compelled, by the ſecular arm, to embrace the true faith, appears, 1*ſt*, From the nature of a banquet, to which no man is compelled by force, but only by the importunity of perſuaſion, and from which no man's buſineſs doth by force reſtrain him, but only by the inconvenience of attending on it; and yet one of the gueſts ſaith, ver. 18. ἀνάγκην ἔχω, I am compelled to be abſent. 2*dly*, From the ſcope of the parable, which reſpects the calling of the Gentiles, which only Mahometans think fit, by force of arms, to compel to the faith. We do ἀναγκάζειν, compel, not only by example, but by exhortation, Mark 6. 45. Luke 24. 29. as here; and Chriſt, ſaith Theophylact, here not only commands them to call, but to compel them, though it be free to every one to believe that we may have ἐπὶ μεγάλης τῆ Θεῦ δυνάμεως ἔργον τὸ πιστεύσαι τὰ ἔθνη, that it is the work of God's great power to make the Gentiles believe. See the note on Gal. 2. 14. and Grotius here, and chap. 24. 29.

(a) Orat. 7.

Ver. 26. [k] If any man come to me, καὶ οὐ μισεῖ, and hate not his father and mother, &c.] It being impious to hate father or mother, wife or children, and impossible to hate ourselves, Eph. 5. 29. to hate here can only signify comparatively, viz. to love them less than God; and therefore what is here, and hateth not father and mother, is, Matth. 10. 37. and loveth father and mother more than me; for what we love less, we are comparatively said to hate, as in the case of God and Mammon, Matth. 6. 24. So ἐμισεῖτο Λεία, Leah was hated, Gen. 29. 31, 33. Now Leah surely was not hated by good Jacob, but loved less than Rachel. See note on Rom. 9. 13.

Ver. 28. [l] Τίς γὰρ ὑμῶν θέλων πύργον οἰκοδομῆσαι; For which of you intending to build a tower, sitteth not down first and counteth the cost? ver. 31. What king going to war, consulteth not first whether he be able?] Two things do usually hinder men from embracing that narrow way which leadeth to eternal life; 1st, The difficulties of the duties positively required of all Christians, viz. the love of enemies, requiring us, not only to forgive their injuries from the heart, but also to overcome their evil with our good; the reparation of any injury done to another in his good name, or fortune, not only by begging his pardon, but by restoring that we got injuriously, and endeavouring to repair his credit; the restraining of the tongue from all evil speaking, and uncharitable censures, and of our appetites from all carnal desires, the exact government of our passions, and the moderation of our affections to all worldly things; an heart restrained by the fear of God from doing evil, and constrained, by the love of him, to yield sincere obedience to his holy laws. 2dly, The greatness of the temptations we must resist, and the injuries and losses we may suffer, by persevering in this way, from the violent assaults of Satan, and the continual sollicitations of the flesh, the examples and allurements of the world, the persecutions of it, the loss of all things, and even life itself. Christ therefore, by these resemblances, adviseth us, before we enter on this Christian life, seriously to consider of, and weigh these things, to form within us the most stedfast resolutions to perform the one, and arm ourselves with fortitude and patience against the other, that so we may not afterwards be moved by them to depart from it.

Ver. 33. [m] So likewise, whosoever he be of you, ὃς οὐκ ἀποτάσσεται πᾶσι τοῖς ἑαυτῦ ὑπάρχουσιν, who forsaketh not all that he hath, &c.] Christ doth not here require that we should actually renounce these things, for then we must renounce even life itself, ver. 26. but that our heart and our affections should be so taken off from them, that we do always love them less than him, and that we, in preparation of mind, be always ready to part with them when we cannot keep them, without making shipwreck of faith and a good conscience.

Ver. 34. [n] Καλὸν τὸ ἅλας. Salt is good; but if the salt hath lost its savour, wherewith shall it be seasoned? &c.] This excellently connects with the discourse preceding, thus: the gospel I require you to adhere to is that salt with which every oblation that is acceptable to God must be seasoned, Mark 9. 48, 49. the preachers of it are the salt of the earth, Matth. 5. 13. as then salt, when it hath lost its savour, becomes good for nothing, but to be cast out into the dunghill; so the Christian professor, who lives not according to the prescripts of the gospel, can do no good to himself or others, and if he fall off from it, can hardly be recovered, Heb. 6. 6.---10. 27. When Mr Le Clerc and others object against this comparison, or similitude, that salt cannot lose its savour, they consider not, that in the boiling up of the saline particles of which salt is made, there is left a caput mortuum which is insipid.

CHAP. XV.

THEN drew near to him [a] all the publicans and sinners, to hear him.

2. And the Pharisees and scribes murmured, saying, This man (now) receiveth sinners, and (other times) eateth with them.

3. And (upon this murmuring,) he spake this parable to them, saying,

4. What man of you having an hundred sheep, if he lose one of them, doth not leave the ninety and nine in the wilderness, and go after that which is lost until he find it?

5. And when he hath found it, he layeth it on his shoulders, (and returns home with it,) rejoicing.

6. And when he cometh home, he calleth together his friends, and neighbours, saying to them, Rejoice with me, for I have found my sheep that was lost. (Now this is a just resemblance of the joy of God for the conversion of a sinner; for)

7. I ſay to you, that likewiſe [b] joy ſhall be in heaven over one ſinner that repenteth, more than over ninety and nine juſt perſons, which need no repentance, (i. e. no converſion from a life of ſin to that of holineſs.)

8. Either what woman (is there) having ten pieces of ſilver, (who) if ſhe loſe one piece, doth not light a candle, and ſweep the houſe, and ſeek diligently till ſhe find it?

9. And when ſhe hath found it, ſhe calleth her friends and her neighbours together, ſaying, Rejoice with me, for I have found the piece that I had loſt; (which is another true reſemblance of the joy of God at the recovery of a loſt ſoul; for)

10. Likewiſe I ſay to you, there is joy in the preſence of the [c] angels of God over one ſinner that repenteth.

11. And he ſaid, (alſo by way of parable, to the ſame purpoſe,) A [d] certain man had two ſons;

12. And the younger of them ſaid to his father, Father, give me the portion of goods that falleth to me; and he divided to them his living, (i. e. gave him the portion allotted for the livelihood of his younger ſon.)

14. And not many days after, the younger ſon gathered all (his eſtate) together, and took his journey into a far country, and there waſted his ſubſtance with riotous living.

14. And when he had ſpent all, there aroſe a mighty famine in that land, and he began to be in want.

15. And he went and joined himſelf to a citizen of that country (to become his ſervant,) and he ſent him into his fields to feed ſwine;

16. And he would fain have filled his belly with the husks that the ſwine did eat, and no man gave to him, (enough to ſatisfy his hungry appetite.)

[Now here the younger ſon repreſents the Gentiles gone far off from God their father, Eph. 2. 13. living in riot and drunkenneſs, 1 Pet. 4. 3. and committing whoredom with idols, againſt the light of their reaſon, Rom. 2. 20, 21. labouring under a famine of the word, and employed in the vileſt drudgery by ſin and Satan, in which no ſatisfaction can be found.]

17. And when he came to himſelf, (i. e. to conſider his own miſerable ſtate,) he ſaid, How many hired ſervants of my father's have bread enough and to ſpare, and I (am ready to) periſh with hunger!

18. I will ariſe, and go to my father, and will ſay to him, Father, I have ſinned againſt (the God of) heaven, and before thee, (by departing from thee,)

19. And am no more worthy to be called thy ſon; make me as one of thy hired ſervants: (And this repreſents the caſe of a penitent ſinner, conſidering his preſent miſery, his vileneſs and unworthineſs, humbly acknowledging his ſin to God, reſolving on amendment of life, and actually returning to God, as many of the Gentiles did, when the goſpel was preached to them.)

20. And he aroſe, and came to his father; but when he was yet a great way off, his father ſaw him, and had compaſſion (on him,) and ran, and fell on his neck, and kiſſed him.

21. And the ſon ſaid to him, Father, I have ſinned againſt heaven, and in thy ſight, and am no more worthy to be called thy ſon:

22. But the father ſaid to the ſervants, Bring forth the beſt robe, and put it on him, and put a ring on his hand, and ſhoes on his feet, (in token that I own him as my beloved ſon.)

23. And bring hither the fatted calf, and kill it, and let us eat and be merry.

24. For this my ſon was dead (in ſin,) and is alive again; he was loſt, and is found: and they began to be merry. (And this is a lively repreſentation of God's great love and mercy to ſinners returning to him; forgetting all their former provocations, and treating them, aſſoon as they begin to break off their ſins by repentance, and to turn to him, with a moſt fatherly affection, and with expreſſions of the greateſt joy.)

25. Now his elder ſon was in the field, (following his father's buſineſs;) and as he came, and drew nigh to the houſe (of his father,) he heard muſic and dancing.

26. And he called one of the ſervants, and asked (him) what theſe things meant? (i. e. what was the cauſe of all this mirth?)

27. And he ſaid to him, Thy brother is come, and thy father hath killed the fatted calf, becauſe he hath received him ſafe and ſound.

28. And he was angry (at the kindneſs ſhewed by his father to his younger brother,) and would not go in (to the houſe;) therefore came his father out, and intreated him.

29. And he anſwering, ſaid to his father, Lo, theſe many years I (have) ſerve (d) thee, neither tranſgreſſed I at any time thy commandment, and yet thou never gaveſt me a kid, that I might make merry with my friends;

30. But aſſoon as this thy ſon was come (back to thee,) which hath devoured thy living with harlots, (committing ſpiritual whoredom,) thou haſt killed for him the fatted calf.

31. And he ſaid to him, Son, thou art ever with me, and all that I have is thine; (in the firſt place, the bleſſings of the Meſſiah being firſt promiſed to the Jews, and from them derived to others. See treatiſe of the millennium, chap. 2. ſect. 2.)

32. It was meet that we ſhould make merry, nd be glad; for this thy brother was dead, and alive again, and (he) was (as the) loſt (ſheep, nd piece of money,) and is found (by the great Shepherd of ſouls.)

[Now this elder brother is a true emblem of the Jews, and eſpecially of the ſcribes and Phariſees, murmuring at God's kindneſs to the ſinners of the Gentiles, in admitting them, after ſo long idolatry, to the bleſſings of the goſpel, and to equal privileges with them, without circumciſion, and obedience to that law of Moſes under which they had ſtill lived, and refuſing to enter into the kingdom of God, and come into the faith, by reaſon of the kindneſs God thus ſhewed to the Gentiles. See note on Rom. 11. 28.]

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XV.

Ver. 1, 2. [a] Ἦσαν δὲ ἐγγίζοντες αὐτῷ πάντες οἱ τελῶναι, καὶ οἱ ἁμαρτωλοὶ ἀκοῦσαι αὐτοῦ, καὶ διεγόγγυζον οἵ τε Φαρισαῖοι, Then drew near unto him all the publicans and ſinners to hear him; ver. 2. And the Phariſees and ſcribes murmured ſaying, This man receiveth ſinners, &c.] For the better underſtanding of theſe three parables, note,

1ſt, That publicans, groſs ſinners, and Heathens, were by the ſcribes and Phariſees judged unfit to be converſed with, even though it were with a deſign to reduce them from their evil courſes, they thinking God had caſt off the care of them, and had no deſign to grant them repentance unto life; hence they abhorred their company, as thinking it a defilement to be touched by them, and never would concern themſelves to make them better, and were offended that our Lord was thus employed, Matth. 9. 11. Luke 5. 30. Acts 10. 28.—11. 18, 19. Note,

2*dly*, That publicans and Heathens, ſinners and Heathens, are joined uſually together, as being accounted perſons of the ſame deſperate wickedneſs, and equally unworthy to be converſed with, as in thoſe words of Chriſt, Matth. 5. 46, 47. do not even publicans the ſame? or as other copies read, οἱ ἐθνικοὶ; do not Heathens do the ſame? which Luke 6. 33, 34. is, do not οἱ ἁμαρτωλοὶ, ſinners the ſame? and Matth. 18. 17. if he refuſe to hear the church, let him be to thee as an Heathen, and a publican; and in thoſe words of St Paul, Gal. 2. 15. we that are Jews by nature, and not ſinners of the Gentiles. That they thought God took no care of the Gentiles, is evident from the words of Eſdras, ſaying to God, Thou haſt ſaid they are nothing, but are like unto ſpittle, and haſt counted the abundance of them as a drop falling from a veſſel, 2 Eſd. 6. 56, 57. and the prayer of Mordecai, Lord, give not thy ſceptre to them that are not, Eſth. 14. 11. See note on 1 Cor. 1. 28 Hence the converted Jews at firſt preached not to them, judging it unlawful to go in unto, or converſe with the uncircumciſed, Acts 10. 28. and wondered that God ſhould give the Gentiles repentance unto life, Acts 11. 18, 19. and only would converſe with them when they ſhewed a willingneſs to be made proſelytes to their religion. Some therefore here do think, that the word ſinners here may ſignify the Gentiles; which will be more probable, if Chriſt were then beyond Jordan, as they collect from John 10. 40. or in Galilee of the Gentiles, from whence we find him going to Jeruſalem, Luke 17. 11. otherwiſe it will not be ſo eaſy to diſcern how all the Gentiles ſhould draw nigh to hear him, or he ſhould be eating with them, ver. 12. Note,

3*dly*, That theſe parables, and eſpecially the laſt, are deſigned againſt the ſcribes and Phariſees, who thought ſo abjectly of publicans and ſinners, and ſo perverſely of the whole Gentile world; and to convince them of their inhumanity, and ſhew them that their deportment was very alien from God's merciful inclination to them, and that they ought not to be unmerciful to them to whom God was ſo well inclined, to with-hold mercy, or deny their charity, to them to whom he was ſo ready to afford it. For he ſpake this parable to them, ſaying, Which of you? ver. 3, 4.

Ver. 7. [b] Οὕτω χαρὰ ἔσται ἐν τῷ οὐρανῷ, So joy ſhall be in heaven over one ſinner that repenteth. See note on ver. 10. ἢ ἐπὶ ἐννενήκοντα ἐννέα δικαίοις οἵτινες οὐ χρείαν ἔχουσι μετανοίας, more than over ninety and nine juſt perſons who need no repentance. Here note that ἤ is here put for μᾶλλον ἤ, as uſually it is both in the Old and New Teſtament, and in profane writers. So Gen. 38. 26. δεδικαίωϑ Θαμὰρ ἢ ἐγώ, Thamar hath been more righteous than I, Pſal. 118. 8. ἀγαθὸν ἐλπίζειν ἐπὶ Κύριῳ ἤ, it is better to truſt in the Lord, than in princes; 1 Cor. 14. 19. in the church I would ſpeak five words ſo as to teach others, ἢ μυρίους, rather than ten thouſand in an unknown tongue. So Luke 18. 14. ſee Stephanus giving examples of this from Homer, Ariſtotle, Diogenes Laertius, and St Chryſoſtom. Note,

3*dly*, That there being no perſons in the world ſo juſt, as abſolutely to need no repentance, becauſe there never was a perſon in the world, beſides our Saviour, who did righteouſneſs, and ſinned not; the beſt of men being ſubject to ſome faults and infirmities, of which they ſtand obliged to repent; that our Lord may not here be thought to have ſuppoſed a caſe that never was, let it be obſerved that the repentance of the ſinner uſually imports an entire change of the whole courſe or tenor of his life, from the ſervice of ſin to the ſervice of God, from yielding obedience to it in the luſtings of it to yielding our members inſtruments of righteouſneſs unto holineſs: and this is the repentance of the ſinner mentioned in the text; and in this ſenſe it is manifeſt the righteous perſon, or new creature, needeth no repentance. (2.) There is a repentance which conſiſts in a godly ſorrow, for the particular failings and infirmities we may have committed through ſurpriſe, a ſudden fear, a violent temptation, or a ſingle deviation from the general courſe and tenor of our lives; ſuch was that of David, and St Peter, and the humiliation of good Hezekiah for the pride of his heart; and in this ſenſe it is not to be thought that in this ſtate of imperfection, and continual conflict we have with the fleſh, there ſhould be any righteous perſon who needs no repentance. And this interpretation I prefer before that of St Ambroſe, Hilary, and Chryſoſtom, who by the ninety nine ſheep not loſt, and the ninety nine perſons who need no repentance, underſtand the holy angels that fell not; by the loſt ſheep all mankind loſt in Adam, whom to recover the Son of God became incarnate, and in the gracious work of our redemption brought him home upon his ſhoulders; the joy in heaven for this returning is, ſay they, the joy of God, and of his holy angels, for the recovery of loſt mankind; in which ſenſe the words are ſtrictly true, the holy angels needing no repentance, becauſe they never fell from their obedience. And this interpretation was ſo generally approved in the church, that in (a) Tertullian's time it was appealed to as a proof of it, that in the bottom of their ſacramental cups Chriſt was engraven carrying the loſt ſheep upon his ſhoulders.

3*dly*, It is enquired with what reaſon it can be ſaid, there is more joy in heaven over one ſinner that repenteth, than over ninety nine righteous perſons who need no repentance; for is it not better not to offend, than to ſin and repent? Is not innocence better than amendment? and if repentance be not better than righteouſneſs, why is there more joy in heaven over the penitent than over the righteous? yea, why over one penitent ſinner, then over ninety nine juſt perſons?

Now to this ſome anſwer according to the forementioned opinion of the ancients, that the loſt ſheep, returning prodigal, and the one ſinner that repenteth, comprehendeth all mankind redeemed from a ſtate of miſery by Chriſt. Now this may fitly be repreſented as a matter of the greateſt joy to God, and the whole court of bleſſed angels, they being repreſented as ſtooping down to look into this myſtery, 1 Peter 1. 12. and learning from the church the wiſdom of God in it, Eph. 3. 10. and therefore in this ſenſe do doubtleſs know, and rejoice in our redemption. (2.) Others anſwer, that the ſheep not loſt, the ninety nine righteous perſons, and the elder ſon who ſaid, he never had offended, repreſent the Jewiſh nation, and eſpecially thoſe ſcribes and Phariſees who truſted in their own righteouſneſs, and deſpiſed others, ſee Matth. 9. 12. the loſt ſheep and returning prodigal repreſent the Gentile world, which by the preaching of the goſpel were to be converted to the Chriſtian faith. Now the church of the Gentiles being more numerous than was that of the Jews, the deſolate having more children than ſhe that had an husband, her converſion may fitly be repreſented as matter of the greater joy.

Againſt theſe expoſitions this viſible objection may be made, that whereas the righteous are here repreſented as ninety nine, the penitent as one ſingle perſon, theſe expoſitions make them equal to, if not more numerous than the righteous. But to this it is anſwered, that in the parables of the goſpel, it is uſual to repreſent all of the ſame kind, though they be ſometimes the greater number, by one man. Thus in the parable of the wedding ſupper, the man that had not on his wedding garment repreſents, according to moſt interpreters, all wicked men, and in our Lord's intention it importeth the whole race of unbelieving Jews, Matth. 22. 11. The ſlothful perſon who hid his talent in a napkin is repreſented as one man, Matth. 25. 24. they who improved their talents as three perſons, and yet who knows not but there are fewer that improve, than they who do receive the grace of God in vain? and all that came in at the laſt hour, and received their penny, that is, all the converted Gentiles, are reckoned as one man in thoſe words of Chriſt, I will give ἐσχάτῳ τούτῳ, to this laſt man even as to thee, Matth. 20. 14.

But that which is principally to be conſidered for the full clearing of this difficulty is this, viz. that this paſſage of our Lord being ſpoken of God after the manner of men, is to be underſtood after the manner of men, or ſuited to the nature of human paſſions, and the uſual occaſions of moving them. Now we are much affected with the obtaining what we have long and paſſionately deſired, with the regaining that which we have looked looked upon as almost lost and desperate, with the security of that which we looked upon as in imminent danger; at the first obtaining what we passionately desired, regaining what we looked upon as lost, securing what was in great danger, our joy is strong, and our delight transporting, and afterwards it sensibly abates. So is it with us that we are not so sensibly moved with the continuance of a good which we have long enjoyed, as at the first recovery of it after it was lost; we may have still a real value for what we possess, a settled pleasure, and contentment in it, but the sudden joy and transport is at the recovery of it. So a continued course of goodness may in itself be most valuable, and yet the recovery of a lost sinner, the reviving of one dead in trespasses and sins, the seeing him snatched as a fire-brand out of the fire when he was ready to leap into it, may be the more affecting, and give a more fresh and lively joy. Thus v. g. it cannot but be comfortable to a loving father to see his children in a state of perfect health; but when one of them fall sick, and beyond expectation recovery, to see him out of danger, ministers a more present joy than doth the constant health of the rest. And this is the reason given in the parable of the prodigal son, why the kind father rejoiceth more at his return, than at the continuance of his elder brother always with him; that was the recovery of one given over for dead, and finding one looked upon as lost. It is meet, said the father, upon this occasion that we should make merry; for this thy brother was dead, and is alive again, was lost, and is found. Our Saviour, therefore, to encourage the repentance of the sinner, represents God after the manner of men, as if he did conceive such a joy at it, as earthly parents are wont to do at the return of a wild extravagant child to himself and his duty.

Ver. 10. [c] Οὕτω χαρὰ γίνεται ἐνώπιον τῶν ἀγγέλων, Likewise I say to you, There is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth.] The most interpreters conclude, that the angels or blessed spirits are acquainted with the conversion of a sinner; and seeing true conversion is right in the heart, hence the Romanists infer, that they must have knowledge of that also.

But here is not one word of blessed spirits, but of angels only. And whereas Papists argue for an equality of knowledge in them to that of angels, because it is said, they are as the angels of heaven, Matth. 22 30. I answer, Christ doth not say they are equal to angels now, but at the resurrection shall be so: nor doth he say this absolutely, or as to the faculties of their souls, but as to their freedom from secular actions and passions, and as to the state and condition of their bodies; for so the text runs, they that are counted worthy of the resurrection, neither marry nor are given in marriage, neither can they die any more, i. e. they are equal to the angels as to immortality, and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection, Luke 20. 35, 36.

2*dly*, This text affirms not that the joy here mentioned is the joy of angels, but only that it is the joy of God, ἐνώπιον τῶν ἀγγέλων, before, or in the presence of the angels, which stand continually before his face. Now, as an earthly king may rejoice before his court, and they know not the special motive of his joy, so may the King of heaven rejoice before the angels of his presence, and they know not the reason of that joy, and much less the particular convert that gave occasion to it. In a word, it is confessedly God who is compared to the shepherd seeking his lost sheep, and to the father rejoicing for the return of his prodigal son; and therefore the similitude requires, that the joy conceived when a lost sheep is found, or a prodigal son comes home, should be ascribed to him.

Note also, that this consideration should inflame the zeal and quicken the industry of the spiritual shepherd for the conversion of sinners, as knowing this is a work so highly acceptable to the God of heaven, and that for which he sent the great Shepherd of the sheep into the world.

Ver. 11. [d] Ἄνθρωπός τις εἶχε δύο υἱούς, A certain man had two sons.] Here observe, (1.) That the elder son in this parable representeth not the just or righteous, for they are not angry either that sinners do return to God, or that he graciously entertains them when they do so, but rather are industrious to bring them home to him, and rejoice at their return. He rather represents the Jews murmuring, and being angry that the Gentiles, who before were μακρὰν ἀπὸ τοῦ Θεοῦ, far off from God, Eph. 2. 13. were by faith, without circumcision, or obedience to their law, brought nigh to him, and made partakers of the same privileges God offered or afforded to them. The Gentiles are represented as the younger son, going into a far country, as being far from God, and squandering away their goods by riotous living, as depraving that knowledge they had of the true God, from tradition and his marvellous works, by gross idolatry, on which account the Jews represented them as born of harlots. See note on John 8. 41. as here ver. 30. and serving them which by nature were no gods, by holding the truth in unrighteousness, and giving up themselves to all uncleanness cleanneſs, Eph. 4. 19. yea, labouring under a famine of the word of God, and of his ſaving truth, and giving up themſelves to the meaneſt ſervices, ſuch as that of keeping of hogs was deemed by the Jews and the Egyptians, who ſuffered not ſuch to come into their temples or ſacred houſes; they having now, through Chriſt, acceſs unto the Father, being adorned with the wedding garment of faith, and the robe of righteouſneſs, fed with the banquet of the true paſchal Lamb, and admitted to wear their Father's ring, as a teſtimony that they were now his genuine ſons.

Nor is it a ſufficient objection againſt this, that the Gentiles were never ſons before, or if ever they were ſo, they muſt be ſo before the Jews, and ſo the elder ſons; for God is not the God of the Jews only, but alſo of the Gentiles, he being the common Father of the world, and we being all his offspring; yea they are called the ſons of God before the flood, Gen. 6. 2. and were ſo afterward, before the name of Jew was known. And the Jews here repreſent the elder ſon, becauſe they being afterwards abdicated for their idolatry, God gave to the Jews the primogeniture, and ſtiled them his ſons, and his firſt-born, Exod. 4. 22, 23. and accordingly beſtowed upon them the privileges of the firſt-born, chuſing them above all nations of the world.

If it be again objected, that this elder ſon ſaith, ver. 29. Theſe many years have I ſerved thee, and never tranſgreſſed I at any time thy commandments, which could not be true of the Jew; I anſwer, neither could they ſay God never gave them a kid, or treated them with the like kindneſs, the goſpel being firſt preached to them; this therefore only ſignifies their high conceit of themſelves, that they were righteous; and ſo much for the chief import of the parable. To touch a little on ſome other circumſtances of it:

1*ſt*, From thoſe words, he went into a far country, and ſpent all his ſubſtance, Theophylact notes, that he who eſtrangeth himſelf from God loſeth all thoſe ſeeds of virtue and goodneſs which either nature or revelation hath implanted in him.

2*dly*, From his being put to feed ſwine, obſerve to what vile and ſordid employments they were put who ſerve ſin and Satan.

3*dly*, From theſe words, he would have filled his belly with huſks, but could not, obſerve, that there can be no ſatisfaction to any man who wants the favour of God.

4*thly*, From theſe words, when he came to himſelf, obſerve, that he who lives a ſinful life is beſides himſelf; for being a rational creature, and having a judgment and conſcience to direct his actions, he acts againſt his reaſon, his judgment, and his conſcience.

5*thly*, From thoſe words, he aroſe and went, ver. 20. Theophylact notes, that it is not ſufficient to make good reſolutions, ſaying, I will go, ver. 18. but we muſt practiſe ſuitably.

6*thly*, From thoſe words, ver. 21. his father ſeeing him, ran to him, obſerve, that when God ſees men truly willing to return unto him, he is ſtill ready to receive them, and even prevent them with his grace.

7*thly*, From thoſe words, ver. 24. this my ſon was dead, obſerve, that wicked men are dead in the worſt ſenſe; for, as Philo ſaith, He that lives a ſenſual life, τέθνηκε τὸν ὡς ἀληθῶς is dead as to a happy life.

8*thly*, From thoſe words, Father I have ſinned, ver. 21. ſpoken after the kindneſs of his Father, note, that after ſin is pardoned, it becomes the ſinner ingenuouſly to acknowledge and confeſs it.

9*thly*, As for the phraſe, I have ſinned againſt heaven, and againſt thee; it is a Jewiſh phraſe, Shamaim, as (b) Buxtorf ſays, being frequently uſed to ſignify God. Accordingly they ſay, there is one who ſins againſt earth, (i. e. man,) but not againſt heaven, (i. e. God,) and there is one that ſins againſt heaven, but not againſt earth; but he who ſpeaketh with an evil tongue, ſins againſt heaven and earth: though Theophylact here ſaith, he had ſinned againſt heaven, by preferring earthly things before heavenly.

Ver. 12. See additions, N°. 21.

CHAP. XVI.

1. AND he ſaid alſo to his [a] diſciples, There was a certain [b] rich man who had a ſteward, and the ſame was accuſed to him, (it being ſaid,) that he had waſted his goods:

2. And he called him, and ſaid to him, How is it (thou haſt dealt with me,) that I hear this of thee? Give (up) an account of thy ſtewardſhip; for thou mayſt be no longer (permitted to be) ſteward.

3. Then the ſteward ſaid within himſelf, What ſhall I do (to live?) for my lord taketh away from me the ſtewardſhip: I cannot dig (for a livelihood,) to beg (for it) I am aſhamed.

4. I am reſolved what to do, that when I am out of the ſtewardſhip, they (whom I befriend,) may receive me into their houſes.

5. So he called every one of his Lord's debtors unto unto him, and said to the first, How much owest thou to my Lord?

6. And he said, An hundred measures of oyl, (i. e. about a thousand gallons:) and he said to him, Take thy bill, and sit down quickly, and write fifty.

7. Then said he to another, And how much owest thou? And he said, An hundred measures of wheat: and he said to him, Take thy bill, and write fourscore; (and likewise he said to the rest.)

8. And the lord [c] commended the unjust steward, because he had done wisely; (i. e. he represented him as one that acted according to the wisdom of this world; and was so far worthy to be imitated by the children of light, as to make this their chief care, when by death they are removed from their stewardship, that they may be received into everlasting habitations:) for the children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light, (more provident and dexterous to provide for this life, than they are to provide for eternity.)

9. And I (likewise) say to you, [d] Make yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness, (i. e. make such provisions for yourselves of those riches which the men of this world get by falshood and injustice,) that when ye fail, they may receive you; (i. e. that when you die, ye may be received) into everlasting habitations.

10. He that is faithful in that which is least, (i. e. in the enjoyments of this world, so as to employ them in works of charity, and to the ends for which he is intrusted with them,) is faithful also in much, (i. e. he will be so in the great concernments of another life:) and (likewise) he that is unjust in the least, is unjust also in much.

11. If therefore ye have not been faithful (stewards) in (dispensing) the unrighteous mammon, (or the false and deceitful riches of this world, to the uses for which they were given you,) who will (it is not to be expected God should,) commit to your trust the true riches?

12. And if ye have not been faithful in that which is (to be) [e] another mans, who shall give you that which is your own, (i. e. that inheritance which shall never pass from you to others?)

13. (And there is great reason to caution you against that affection to the world which obstructs your love to God; for) [f] no servant can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one, and love the other, or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other; ye cannot (then) serve God and mammon (also.)

14. And the Pharisees also who were covetous, heard all these things, and they derided him, (looking on this as ridiculous doctrine.)

15. And (But) he said unto them, Ye are they which justify yourselves before men, (i. e. seek to approve yourselves to, and expect to be owned by them as righteous persons,) but God knoweth (the falshood of) your hearts; for that (fair outside) which is highly esteemed among men, (who see no farther,) is (an) abomination in the sight of God, (who seeth the filth and hypocrisy of your hearts.)

16. (Nor is it to be wondered that you hear these higher precepts of charity from me and John: for) the [g] law and the prophets, (which engaged you to your duty chiefly by temporal promises,) were until John; since that time the kingdom of God, (which promises treasures in heaven,) is preached, and every man (that enters into that kingdom,) presseth into it, (i. e. forces his way into it, by breaking through the love of temporal concerns)

17. And (this I say, not to depreciate the law, which, as to its moral precepts, shall obtain for ever: for) it is easier for heaven and earth to pass (away,) than (for) one title of the law to fail. (See Matth. 5. 18.)

18. (And to give you another instance of the sublimer precepts of the gospel, the law permits divorces; but under the gospel dispensation,) whosoever putteth away his wife, and marrieth another, committeth adultery (against her;) and whosoever marrieth her that is put away from her husband, committeth adultery, (as cohabiting with another man's wife.)

19. (And to shew them the mischiefs of riches not charitably employed, he told them by way of parable,) [h] There was a certain rich man which was clothed in purple and fine linen, and fared sumptuously every day:

20. And there was a certain beggar, named Lazarus, (i. e. one without help,) which was laid at his gate, full of sores,

21. And desiring to be fed with the crumbs which fell from the rich man's table, (but was denied them:) moreover the dogs, (being more compassionate than the rich man's servants,) came and licked his sores.

22. And it came to pass that the [i] beggar died, and was carried by the angels, (who are ministring spirits to good men,) into Abrahams bosom: the rich man also died, and was buried:

23. And in hell he lift up his eyes, being in torments, and seeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom:

24. And he [k] cried, and said, Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue, for I am tormented in this flame.

25. But Abraham said, Son, remember that thou in thy life-time receivedst thy good things, and likewise Lazarus evil things; but now he is comforted, and thou art tormented.

26. And besides all this, [l] between us and you there is a great gulf fixed, so that they who would paſs from hence to you, cannot; neither can they paſs to us, that would come from thence; (i. e. good men have all their evils, and bad men all their good things in this life; and hereafter the happineſs of the one, and the miſery of the other, will be unchangeable.)

27. Then he ſaid, I pray thee, therefore, father, that thou wouldſt ſend him to my fathers houſe;

28. For I have five brethren, (and am deſirous) that he may teſtify to them (the happineſs of the bleſſed, and the miſery of the wicked,) leſt they alſo come into this place of torment.

29. And Abraham ſaith to him, They have Moſes and the prophets (to teſtify to them theſe things,) let them hear (and obey) them.

30. And he ſaid, Nay, father Abraham, (they prevailed not with me, and therefore may not do ſo with them;) but if one went to them from the dead, (I ſuppoſe) they will repent.

31. And he ſaid (again) to him, If they [m] hear (i. e. obey) not Moſes and the prophets, neither will they be perſuaded though one aroſe from the dead, (to preach repentance to them; for he could come with no greater authority, deliver no better motives to repentance; and he could give them no greater aſſurance of the truth of what he ſaid, than they did.)

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XVI.

Ver. 1. [a] Ἔλεγε δὲ καὶ πρὸς τοὺς μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ, And he ſaid alſo to his diſciples;] i. e. not only to the twelve, but to thoſe who followed him, attending on his doctrine, as did the publicans and ſinners, chap. 15. 1.

Ibid. [b] Ἀνθρώπῳ τινὶ ἦν πλουσίῳ ὃς εἶχεν οἰκονόμον, There was a rich man who had a ſteward, and he was accuſed to him as waſting his goods.] Kimchi on Iſa. 40. ſaith, "The fruits of the earth are "like a table ſpread in an houſe; the owner of "this houſe is God; man in this world is, as it "were, the ſteward of the houſe, into whoſe "hands his Lord hath delivered all his riches; "if he behave himſelf well, he will find favour in "the eyes of his Lord; if ill, he will remove "him from his ſtewardſhip." And ſo the ſcope of this parable ſeems to be this, that we are to look upon ourſelves, not as lords of the good things of this life, ſo as to get and uſe them at our pleaſure, but only as ſtewards, who muſt be faithful in the adminiſtration of them.

Ver. 8. [c] Καὶ ἐπῄνεσεν ὁ Κύριος τὸν οἰκονόμον τῆς ἀδικίας, ὅτι φρονίμως ἐποίησεν, And the lord commended the unjuſt ſteward, that he had done wiſely; i. e. diſcreetly, according to the wiſdom of the men of this world, whoſe concern is only for the good things of this life; he commended him as we do ſuch perſons, when we ſay, ſuch a one is a ſhrewd man for the world, he underſtands well the way of dealing in it; he commends him not abſolutely, as a fit example to be followed in his injuſtice, fraud, and waſting of his maſter's goods, but comparatively, as being worthy to be ſo far imitated by the children of light, as to make this their chief concern, that when, by death, they are removed from their ſtewardſhip, they may be received into everlaſting habitations, or into an houſe not made with hands, eternal in the heavens, 2 Cor. 5. 1. This being an inſtruction needful for them, becauſe the children of this world are wiſer in their care to make proviſions for themſelves, than are the children of light, i. e. they who enjoy the light of the goſpel, to make proviſions εἰς γῆρας αὐτῶν, for their age, to ſecure the true riches, and the celeſtial habitations prepared for them.

Ver. 9. [d] Καγὼ ὑμῖν λέγω, ποιήσατε ὑμῖν φίλους ἐκ τοῦ μαμωνᾶ τῆς ἀδικίας, I therefore ſay unto you, Make yourſelves friends of the mammon of unrighteouſneſs.] That the mammon of unrighteouſneſs is the falſe mammon, according to the common import of the word ἀδικία, for falſhood; of which ſee Jer. 27. 15, 29, 31. and the note on 1 Cor. 13. 6. may be gathered from the true riches oppoſed to it, ver. 11. but then it remains to be enquired, whether it be called here the mammon ἀδικίας, or falſe mammon, becauſe it deceives them who truſt to, and ſeek for ſatisfaction from it, and comparatively to the true riches; or elſe as the unjuſt ſteward is ſtiled οἰκονόμῳ ἀδικίας, unjuſt, becauſe he betrayed his truſt, and dealt falſly with his maſter; to which ſenſe the preceding verſe and the parable ſeem plainly to direct, and the uſe of the phraſe, mammon diſhekar, in the Targumiſts, do conſtrain us to interpret it, as being uſually put for gain gotten by unfaithfulneſs to our truſt, or falſeneſs in the diſcharge of our office. So of the ſons of Eli it is ſaid, that they had reſpect to mammon diſhekar, the mammon of falſhood, 1 Sam. 8. 3. and chap. 12. 3. Samuel enquires, from whoſe hand have I received mammon diſhekar? and, 2 Sam. 14. 14. a juſt judge will not receive mammon diſhekar. So Prov. 15. 27. he deſtroys his houſe, who heaps up to himſelf the mammon of falſhood. See to the ſame ſenſe, Iſa. 5. 23.—35. 15. Ezek. 22. 27. Hoſ. 5. 11. Amos 5. 12. But then, whereas it is hence inferred, that our Lord here ſpeaks of making reſtitution of ſuch goods, and ſpending ſome of the remainder in acts of charity; which when

Zaccheus had resolved to perform, Christ saith, This day is salvation come to this house, chap. 19. 9. though this be a good sense, and fit to be preached to those publicans and sinners who came to attend upon his doctrine, yet is it not necessary; for Christ's intendment may be only this, to advise his followers to be so far from getting wealth by such unfaithfulness and falshood as the men of the world do, as rather to expend what providence hath entrusted them with in acts of charity and mercy, that so they may lay up for themselves treasures in the heavens, or be received into heaven when they die; for ἐκλείπειν bears this sense in scripture. So Gen. 25. 8. ἐκλείπων ἀπέθανεν Ἀβραάμ, Abraham gave up the ghost, and died; Jer. 42. 17. ἐκλείψουσι ἐν τῇ ῥομφαίᾳ, they shall die by the sword, and ver. 22. ἐν λιμῷ ἐκλείψετε, ye shall die by the pestilence; Wisd. 5. 13. ὅτως καὶ ἡμεῖς γενηθέντες ἐξελίπομεν, so we that are born die. See Gen. 35. 29. 49 33. Job 13. 19. Psal. 103. 10. Isa. 38. 12. Jer. 9. 10.—44. 12, 18, 27. Lam. 1. 20. Zeph. 1. 2, 3. Psal. 73. 19.—89. 7, 9.—101. 4. Δέξωνται ὑμᾶς, they may receive you, is impersonally put for you may be received. So Luke 6. 38. give, and δοθήσεται, it shall be given into your bosoms; chap. 12. 20. τὴν ψυχήν σου ἀπαιτοῦσιν, thy soul shall be required.

Ver. 12. [e] Καὶ εἰ ἐν τῷ ἀλλοτρίῳ πιστοὶ οὐκ ἐγένεσθε, τὸ ὑμέτερον τίς ὑμῖν δώσει, And if you have not been faithful in that which is anothers, who will give you that which is your own?] The 11th verse seems to bear this sense; If you have not been faithful in those temporal concerns which minister temptations to unrighteousness, but have either sought to obtain them by fraud aud unfaithful dealings, when they have been committed to your trust, or by withholding more than is right, or that which the great Lord of them required you to expend upon his needy servants, how can you reasonably expect the true riches, which are only promised to the upright and charitable person? And again, if you have been thus unfaithful in those things which you cannot properly call your own, because they may by various accidents be devolved on, and must at last be left to others, what reason have you to expect that which is your own, as being the inheritance of the children of light, and that which they are to enjoy for ever? Where the concerns of this world are stiled ἀλλότρια, things which belong not to us, because we have no assurance of the enjoyment of them, and know that we must leave them to others. And this is said agreeably to the philosophy of the Heathens: thus in Arian the dying man is said τὰ ἀλλότρια ἀποδιδόναι, to render up that which belongs to others, lib. 1. c. 1. and every one is bid τὰ ἴδια τηρεῖν, τ ἀλλοτρίων μὴ ἐπιθυμεῖσθαι, to keep that which is in his power, and not desire external things, l. 2. c. 16. p. 215. and l. 3. c. 24. We are taught that the things we may be hindred of, or which may be taken from us, are τὰ ἀλλότρια; and so, saith he, are all those things which we must leave to others, or restore to God that gave them. l. 4. c. 5. So Hermes, l. 3. Sim. 1. τί εἰς τὴν ἀλλοτρίαν ἑτοιμάζομεν ἀγρούς, οἰκοδομάς. Why do we, who know the city in which we are to dwell, prepare for ourselves fields, houses, &c. in another city? this being a sign that we expect not to return to our own city, to the Jerusalem above: which is here stiled by St Luke our own, by Hermes ἡ πόλις ἡμῶν, because prepared for and promised to us Christians: here we are only travellers, there is our city, Philip. 3. 20. here we are only dispensers, there heirs; here we enjoy things for a season, there for ever.

Ver. 13. [f] Οὐδεὶς οἰκέτης δύναται δυσὶ κυρίοις δουλεύειν, No man can serve two masters,———ye cannot serve God and mammon.] The coherence of these words seems to ly thus; I have just reason to caution you thus against that affection to the world which obstructs your charity, and tempts you by fraud and falshood to acquire it, because it will not permit you to love God truly, or to be faithful servants to him; and whereas you covetous Pharisees deride me for this doctrine, ver. 14. as thinking yourselves highly favoured of God for other things, viz. your long prayers, your washings, your exactness in paying tithes, your niceness in observing your vain traditions, and your separation from the men of the world, know, that however you may think well of yourselves upon these accounts, and highly be esteemed of others, whilst ye continue covetous, and full of rapine and uncleanness, Matth. 23. 25. hypocrisy and injustice, ver. 27. ye are abominable in the sight of God.

Ver. 16, 17, 18. [g] Ὁ νόμος καὶ οἱ προφῆται ἕως Ἰωάννου. The law and the prophets were until John, since that time the kingdom of God is preached, and every one presseth into it.] Here the coherence seems to run thus; It is not to be wondred that you now hear from John and me higher precepts of charity and contempt of the world than you find in the law or prophets, who moved you to your duty by the promises of temporal blessings in the land of Canaan; since now the kingdom of heaven is preached, and every one that enters into it, forces his way by breaking through the love of temporal concerns, and sensual pleasures: for to give you another instance of like nature; whereas the law admitted of divorces at the pleasure of the husband, by reason of the hardness of your hearts, the gospel forbids this now on any other score than that of fornication, which from the nature of the ſin diſſolves the marriage; yet that you may not cavil at me as a diſſolver of the law, I declare that all the moral precepts of it ſhall obtain, and be of perpetual obligation under the goſpel diſpenſation.

Ver. 19. [h] Ἄνθρωπος πλούσιος ἦν, There was a rich man, &c.] That this is only a parable, and not a real hiſtory of what was actually done, is evident, (1.) Becauſe we find this very parable in the Gemara Babylonicum, whence it is cited by Mr Sheringham, in the preface to his Joma. (2.) From the circumſtances of it, viz. the rich man's lifting up his eyes in hell, and ſeeing Lazarus in Abraham's boſom, his diſcourſe with Abraham, his complaint of being tormented with flames, and his deſire that Lazarus might be ſent to cool his tongue; and if all this be confeſſedly parable, why ſhould the reſt, which is the very parable in the Gemara, be accounted hiſtory? As for the judgment of antiquity in this caſe, they who owned this as an hiſtory, owned the whole ſo to be, thinking the ſoul to be corporeal, as Tertullian did, and that there was διαφορὰ κατὰ τὰς μορφὰς, ſome diſcretion, or reſemblance of men as to their ſhapes after death; which was the ſentiment of (a) Irenæus, proving from this very inſtance, that ſouls, when they have put off the body, do yet characterem corporum cuſtodire, preſerve the ſhape or character of the body to which they were united; as (b) Tertullian before from the ſame inſtance had inferred, effigiem animæ & corporales lineas, the ſhape and corporeal lineaments, and alſo corporalitatem animæ: much as (c) Theſpeſias returning to life repreſents τὰ τῶν ψυχῶν χρώματα, the colours of ſouls, and ſaith that there be ἕλκη καὶ μώλωπες ἐπὶ τῶν παθῶν ἑκάστων, ulcers and ſcars of their paſſions left upon them by which they are diſcerned. Whereas they who renounced theſe opinions as falſe and ridiculous, declared that this was not an hiſtory, but only a repreſentation; (d) that after the ſeparation of the ſoul from the body, ſhe could receive no advantage from any man, and that it was fooliſh to think it an hiſtory; and this they alſo gather, becauſe there was to be no future retribution before the general reſurrection. And whereas againſt this it is objected, That the proper name Lazarus ſhews it to be an hiſtory; it is anſwered, That the name Lazer, being only the contraction of Eliezer, is the ſame with Ani Achad, a poor man in the Gemara, as being in ſenſe ἀβοήθητος, one that hath no help, or one who hath God only for his help. Note,

2*dly*, That though this parable contains ſomething ſuitable to the opinion of the Jews touching the ſtate of ſouls after death, yet doth it not reſpect their ſtate immediately after death, but the puniſhments that wicked men are to ſuffer after the reſurrection of the dead, or ἐν ἐσχάτῃ ἡμέρᾳ, at the laſt day, ſaith Theophylact. For as Cicero ſays of the fables by which the poets repreſent the puniſhments of evil ſouls, that corpora cremata cum ſcirent tamen ea fieri apud inferos fingebant, quæ ſine corporibus nec fieri poſſint, nec intelligi; though they know their bodies have been burnt, yet they do repreſent them ſuffering ſuch things in the infernal regions, which neither can be done nor ſuffered, or even underſtood to be ſo, without bodies: ſo is it plainly here in the forementioned inſtances produced to prove this a parable.

Ver. 22. [i] Ἐγένετο δὲ ἀποθανεῖν τὸν πτωχὸν, And it came to paſs that the beggar died, and was carried by the angels into Abraham's boſom.] Here are two things ſaid agreeably to the tradition of the Jews touching good men, which was, 1*ſt*, That their ſouls were in the garden of Eden, in paradiſe, or in Abraham's boſom. Thus of R. Judah, when he died, they ſaid, this day he ſits in Abraham's boſom, ſee Lightfoot on the place; and (e) Joſephus ſaith of good men, that they are gathered εἰς πατέρων χορὸν, to the region of the patriarchs; and that Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob do ὑποδέχεσθαι, receive their ſouls. 2*dly*, That they are carried thither by good angels; ſo the Targum on Cant. 4. 12. ſaith, No man hath power to enter into the garden of Eden but the juſt, whoſe ſouls are carried thither by the hand of angels; ſee Cartw. on Luke 2. 29. p. 2994. They add, that when evil men die, the evil angels come and ſay, There is no peace to the wicked; ſo Dr Lightfoot here: and in like manner Socrates in (f) Phæd. ſaith, λέγεται It is reported, that as ſoon as any man dies, every one's demon, whom he choſe to himſelf whilſt he lived, brings him to a certain place where all are to be judged, and then he goes to Hades, μετὰ ἡγεμόνος ἐκεῖνα ᾧ προσέταξε τὸν ἐνθένδε ἐκεῖσε πορεύεσθαι, with the governor to whom it was appointed to bring them that depart hence to thoſe places.

have mercy on me.] As the baptist taxeth their vain imaginations, in hoping to be preserved from divine judgments whilst they lived, because they were the children of Abraham, so our Lord here may perhaps strike at a like imagination got among them, that hell-fire had no power over the sinners of Israel, because Abraham and Isaac came down thither to fetch them thence. See the note on Rom. 2. 13. declaring, even from the mouth of Abraham, that no help was by them to be expected from him when they were in that place.

Ver. 26. [l] Μεταξὺ ἡμῶν καὶ ὑμῶν χάσμα μέγα ἐστήριγται, Betwixt us and you there is a great gulf fixed, so that none can pass to us from thence.] The words seem plainly to refute the opinion of Origen, that there would come a time when the punishments of the wicked would have an end, and they should at last live with God and his saints.

Ver. 31. [m] Εἰ Μωσέως καὶ τῶν προφητῶν οὐκ ἀκούουσιν, If they hear not Moses, nor the prophets, they would not be persuaded though one rose from the dead.] If they hear not, i. e. obey not Moses and the prophets, whom they own to be persons sent from God, and delivering his message, one rising from the dead would not persuade them to break off their iniquities: for he could come with no greater authority than they did; he could deliver no other message to the sinner than they had done, that if they returned not from their evil ways, they should die, and be obnoxious to eternal shame and misery, Dan. 12. 2. he could give them no more assurance of the truth of what he said, than did the word of that God who cannot lie. No reason, therefore, could be conceived, why they should hearken to one risen from the dead, and calling them to repentance, rather than to those prophets whom they acknowledged to be sent from God. And of this we have a clear instance in the resurrection of our Lord from the dead; for of this they had the testimony of our Lord's predictions, of their own prophets, of the guards that kept the sepulchre, of their own senses, of the apostles, and five hundred witnesses, and all this confirmed by the miraculous effusions of the Holy Ghost on those that believed on him, and a continual throng of miracles wrought in his name; and yet all this was insufficient to reclaim that wicked generation from their infidelity, and to provoke them to repentance. The practical observations made from this parable are,

1*st*, That this rich man is not accused of getting riches by injustice, but only of faring deliciously and luxuriously, with the neglect of others oppressed with misery and want, before his eyes: how then will many Christians escape the same place of torments, who indulge to the same luxury and carnal pleasures, and are as little touched with an affectionate sense of the wants and miseries of others?

2*dly*, That they who have their good things in this life, i. e. that which they chiefly valued, pursued, and delighted in, whilst they lived here, are to expect no comfort, nothing but evil after death.

CHAP. XVII.

1. THEN said he to the disciples, It is impossible (through the unrestrained wickedness of men,) but that offences will come, (i. e. things will be said and done which will hinder some from embracing, and cause others to fall off from the faith;) but wo to him through whom they come;

2. It were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and he cast into the sea, than that he should (thus) offend one of these little ones (that believe in me.)

3. Take heed (therefore) to yourselves, (that ye be not guilty of any degree of this offence; and therefore,) if thy brother trespass against thee, rebuke him; and if (upon this reproof) he repent, forgive him:

4. And if he trespass against thee seven times in a day, and seven times in a day turn again to thee, saying, I repent (of what I have done against thee,) thou shalt (as oft) forgive him.

5. And the apostles said to the Lord, [a] Increase our faith, (that so we may be enabled to perform those duties contrary to flesh and blood, or that we may more successfully minister to the welfare of souls without offence.)

6. And the Lord said, If ye had faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye might say to this sycamine tree, Be thou plucked up by the root, and be thou planted in the sea; and it should obey you; (i. e. the least sincere and active faith would enable you to do the most difficult things in order to the promotion of the Christian faith.)

7. But (then) which of you having a servant plowing, or feeding cattle, will say to him by and by, when he is come from the field, Go and sit down to meat;

8. And

8. And will not rather ſay to him, Make ready wherewith I may ſup, and gird thyſelf and ſerve me, till I have eaten and drunken, and afterward thou ſhalt eat and drink?

9. Doth he thank that ſervant, becauſe he did the things that were commanded him? I trow not.

10. So likewiſe ye, when ye ſhall have done [b] all thoſe things which are commanded you, ſay, We are unprofitable ſervants, we have (only) done that which was our duty to do; (i. e. whereas the performance of the greateſt things which I your Maſter do require may ſeem to you a very eminent piece of ſervice, know, that in obeying all my precepts, you only do the office of good and faithful ſervants, obeying the commands of your great Maſter as ye ought to do, and ſo muſt look on the reward promiſed, not of debt, but of grace.)

11. And it came to paſs, as he went to Jeruſalem, that he paſſed through the [c] midſt (or confines) of Samaria and Galilee.

12. And as he entered into a certain village, there met him ten men that were lepers, which ſtood afar off;

13. And they lifted up their voices, and ſaid, Jeſus, maſter, have mercy on us, (and heal us.)

14. And when he ſaw them, he ſaid to them, [d] Go ſhew yourſelves to the prieſts, (as, when a cure is wrought, the lepers are to do by the law, Lev. 14. 2.) and it came to paſs, that as they went they were cleanſed.

15. And one of them, when he ſaw that he was healed, turned back, and with a loud voice glorified (or praiſed) God;

16. And fell down on his face at his (i. e. Chriſt's) feet, giving him thanks; and he (who did this) was a Samaritan.

17. And Jeſus anſwering, ſaid, Were there not ten cleanſed, (doubtleſs there were;) but where are the (remaining) nine (of them?)

18. There are not found (any of them) that returned to give glory to God, ſave this ſtranger.

19. And he ſaid to him, Ariſe, go thy way, thy faith hath made thee whole.

20. And when he was demanded of the Phariſees when the kingdom of God ſhould come, he anſwered them, and ſaid, The kingdom of God cometh not with [e] obſervation, (i. e. with outward pomp and ſplendor, viſible in earthly kingdoms:)

21. Neither ſhall they (have need to) ſay (of it,) Lo here, or lo there (it is,) for behold the kingdom of God is [f] within (already among) you.

22. And he ſaid to the diſciples (or followers,) The days will come when ye (of this nation) ſhall deſire to ſee [g] one of the days of the Son of man, (the Meſſiah coming to deliver Iſrael, chap. 24. 21.) and ye ſhall not ſee (one of them) it.

23. And (when) they ſhall ſay to you, See here, or ſee there (for him,) go not after them, nor follow them:

24. [h] For as the lightning that lighteth out of the one part under heaven, ſhineth to the other part under heaven, ſo (viſible) ſhall alſo the (coming of the) Son of man be in his day.

25. But firſt he muſt ſuffer many things, and be rejected of this generation.

26. And as it was in the days of Noe, (a preacher of righteouſneſs to the old world,) ſo ſhall it be alſo in the days of (the coming of) the Son of man.

27. They (then) did eat, they drank, they married wives, they were given in marriage, (not expecting the threatned judgments,) until the day that Noe entred into the ark, and the flood came and deſtroyed them all.

28. Likewiſe alſo as it was in the days of Lot; they did eat, they drank, they bought, they ſold, they planted, they builded.

29. But the ſame day that Lot went out of Sodom, it rained fire and brimſtone from heaven, and deſtroyed them all.

30. Even thus ſhall it be in the day when the Son of man is revealed; (a ſudden and unexpected deſtruction ſhall then fall upon the men of this nation.)

31. In that day, he that ſhall be upon the houſe top, and his ſtuff in the houſe, let him not come down to take it away; and he that is in the field, let him likewiſe not return back; (i. e. let him endeavour to eſcape without delay, or ſtaying to carry his goods with him.)

32. [i] Remember (therefore) Lots wife, (what her delay and looking back brought upon her.)

33. Whoſoever ſhall ſeek to ſave his life, (by apoſtaſy from the faith,) ſhall loſe it; and whoſoever ſhall loſe his life (for my ſake,) ſhall preſerve it.

34. I tell you, in that night there ſhall be two men in one bed, (ſo remarkable ſhall be the providence of God in preſerving his faithful ſervants, that) the one (of them) ſhall be taken (away by death,) and the other ſhall be left (ſafe.)

35. Two women ſhall be grinding together, the one ſhall be taken, and the other left.

36. Two men ſhall be in the field, the one ſhall be taken, and the other left.

37. And they anſwered, and ſaid to him, Where Lord (ſhall this be?) And he ſaid to them, [k] Whereſoever the body is, thither will the eagles be gathered together; (i. e. whereſoever the Jews are, there will the Roman army, whoſe enſign is the eagle, come to deſtroy them.)

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XVII.

Ver. 5. [a] Πρόσθες ἡμῖν πίστιν, Increase our faith.] In the beginning of this chapter our Lord requires his apostles to be careful that they do not offend one of his little ones. 2*dly*, To be so charitable to their offending brother, as to rebuke him for his sins. And, 3*dly*, To pardon their offending brother, though he should daily multiply his provocations, provided that he only say unto them, I repent, ver. 4. Now these three duties of an inoffensive conversation, fraternal correption, and full forgiveness of a brother daily multiplying fresh indignities and provocations, being so difficult and contrary to their natural inclinations, and faith being the foundation of all Christian virtues, the apostles, in order to the performance of these duties, beg the increase of faith. Moreover, seeing faith is wrought in the heart, which God alone can search, and can immediately work upon, by thus repairing to Christ to increase their faith, they must ascribe to him, as Woltzogenius here confesseth, a divine virtue; which being proper to the Deity, and incommunicable to a finite nature, must consequently shew that Christ had in him a divine nature.

Ver. 10. [b] Οὕτω καὶ ὑμεῖς ὅταν ποιήσητε πάντα τὰ διαταχθέντα ὑμῖν, λέγετε, ὅτι δοῦλοι ἀχρεῖοί ἐσμεν, So likewise ye, when you have done all things that are commanded you, say that we are unprofitable servants, for we have done that (only) which it was our duty to do.] Here Christ destroys two doctrines of the schools, the merit of good works, and works of supererogation. For, (1.) We being in respect of God unprofitable servants, (for can a man be profitable to God, as he that is wise may be profitable to himself? Is it any advantage to him that we are righteous? or is it gain to him that we make our ways perfect? Job 21. 2, 3. If thou be righteous, what givest thou him, or what receiveth he at thy hands? chap. 35. 7. seeing thy goodness reacheth not to him, Psal. 16. 2.) sure we cannot merit from him, by doing that which is unprofitable to him. (2.) Because we only can do that which is our duty to perform. For, 1*st*, We are all God's servants; now, it being the duty of a servant to do all his master's pleasure, and what he hath declared to be grateful to him, and this being only ministerium servi, the proper business of a servant, which he lyes under a necessity of doing, that he may please his lord, even reason shews he cannot put it to account to his superior, or be supposed to merit by it, as (a) Seneca grants. And that it may not be said, that this is the condition only of slaves, and not of servants in the general, which we all are to God and Christ, 1 Cor. 7. 22. Rom. 14. 4. Colloss. 3. 24. Eph. 6. 9. it is to be observed from these words, οὕτω καὶ ὑμεῖς, so also ye, that Christ speaks this to his disciples, who are not to be reckoned as his slaves, but servants, whose duty it was to have their loins girt and their lamps burning, upon that account, Luke 12. 35, 36. who therefore doing all that he required, were still unprofitable servants in the sense fore-mentioned, and did only what they ought. Christ therefore here seems to speak to them thus; It is the duty of servants, after they have done their work in the field, to minister to their lord as he shall require; and when they have done what he requires, they, for that service, merit not so much as thanks, because they only do their duty: if then I treat you more liberally, rather as friends than servants; if I condescend to minister to you, Luke 12. 37. and place you over all that I have, ver. 44. you are not to imagine that I am indebted to you, or owe you such favours, but rather are to acknowledge, when you have done all, that you are still unprofitable servants, and only have performed your duty. See here Examen Millii in locum.

Ver. 11. [c] Διὰ μέσου Σαμαρείας καὶ Γαλιλαίας, As he went to Jerusalem, he passed through the midst of Samaria and Galilee.] It is well known that Samaria lay betwixt Galilee and Judea; and so our Lord taking his journey to Jerusalem, must go first through Galilee, then through Samaria; why, therefore, is it here said that he passed through Samaria and Galilee? To this it may be answered, that בתוך in medio, is often the same as μεταξὺ between, and so is διὰ, as διὰ νήσων inter insulas; so here the Arabic and Syriac, between Samaria and Galilee, i. e. between the confines of both countries, Christ, in this journey, going to the Scythopolitan bridge, saith Lightfoot, by which he passed into Peræa, and so on by Samaria into Judea.

Ver. 14. [d] Πορευθέντες ἐπιδείξατε ἑαυτοὺς τοῖς ἱερεῦσι, Go shew yourselves to the priests.] By sending them thus to the priests, who were to make their offerings in the temple, Christ decides the cause betwixt the Jews and the Samaritans, sending the Samaritan, not to mount Gerizim, but to Jerusalem.

Ver. 20.

Ver. 20. [e] Οὐκ ἔρχεται ἡ βασιλεία τοῦ Θεοῦ μετὰ παρατηρήσεως, The kingdom of God cometh not with obſervation.] i. e. not with that royal ſplendor, or worldly pomp and grandeur, which ſhall render it conſpicuous in the eyes of the world, as you expect it ſhould; ſo that a man may be able to ſay, from the luſtre of its firſt appearance, Lo it is here, or it is there.

Ver. 21. [f] Ἰδοὺ γὰρ ἡ βασιλεία τοῦ Θεοῦ ἐντὸς ὑμῶν ἐστιν· Behold the kingdom of God is within you;] i. e. amongſt you; for it is certain that our Lord ſpeaks not of the power it had gained over the hearts of the Jews, and much leſs of the Phariſees, to whom he ſpeaks, but that the kingdom of the Meſſiah began now to appear, and the goſpel of the kingdom was now preached among them; ſo that Chriſt ſays thus, This kingdom which you enquire after, as if it had not yet appeared, becauſe you ſee not that outward ſplendor you expect when the Meſſiah comes, is even now among you, and is come unto you; ſo ἐντὸς ὑμῶν and ἐν ὑμῖν are uſed frequently in the Old Teſtament. So Gen. 23. 9. Give me it for a place of burial ἐν ὑμῖν, among you. See ver. 6. chap. 34. 10. ἐν ἡμῖν κατοικεῖτε, ye dwell among us; Exod. 17. 7. is the Lord ἐν ἡμῖν; among us or not? So Joſh. 3. 5.—9. 22. Mic. 3. 11. Hence alſo it is evident that the kingdom here cannot ſignify Chriſt's coming to deſtroy Jeruſalem; for of that certainly the Jews did not think that it ſhould ſuddenly appear; of that our Lord could not ſay, it was now among you, or that it came not with obſervation, it being attended with ſo many glorious ſigns of their approaching ruin, and the preſence of the Roman army.

Ver. 22. [g] Ἐλεύσονται ἡμέραι, ὅτε ἐπιθυμήσετε, &c. And the days ſhall come, when you ſhall deſire to ſee one of the days of the Son of man, and ſhall not ſee them.] One of the days of the Son of man ſeems here to ſignify the time of their viſitation by him, chap. 19. when he came to offer them all the bleſſings of the kingdom of God upon their faith and repentance; this offer, ſaith Chriſt, in your extremity you will be glad to hear, but ſhall not hear it.

Ver. 34. [h] Ὥσπερ γὰρ ἡ ἀστραπὴ, For as the lightning (or ſplendor) which ſhineth from one part of the heaven, to the other part under the heaven, ſo ſhall alſo the (coming of the) Son of man be in his day.] Chriſt had told them that the kingdom of God was already come among them, and had appeared in the purity of his doctrine, and the miracles by which it was confirmed, though not with ſuch an outward ſplendor as might enable them to point to it, Lo it is here, or there, ver. 20, 21. He tells them in the 25th verſe, that this Son of man ſhould ſuffer, and be rejected by them, and ſo the glory of it would be for a while eclipſed; and here, that after his reſurrection it would ſhine with ſuch a freſh and glorious brightneſs, by the effuſion of the Holy Ghoſt on his diſciples, as would render it equal to the ſplendor of the ſun ſhining from one part of heaven to the other, and cauſe it to be propagated almoſt as quick as lightning through the world, ſo that there ſhall be no need to attend to any man, ſaying, It is here, or there, ſeeing it would be quickly and conſpicuouſly ſet up among all nations, Matth. 24. 15. and that then this Son of man, ſo faſtidiouſly rejected by them, would alſo appear ſuddenly and glorioufly, to revenge upon them their infidelity, and the affronts which they had offered to him.

Ver. 32. [i] Μνημονεύετε τῆς γυναικὸς Λώτ, Remember Lot's wife;] what befel her for looking back to Sodom, leſt you likewiſe periſh in this ſlaughter of the unbelieving Jews, by looking back to what you have in your houſes, or in the fields, ver. 31.

Ver. 37. [k] Ὅπου τὸ σῶμα, Where the carcaſs is there will the eagles be gathered together;] that is, where-ever the Jews are, there will the ſword of the Romans, whoſe enſign is the eagle, be ready to devour them, and their army will aſſemble to deſtroy them.

CHAP. XVIII.

1. AND he ſpake a parable to them, to this end, that men ought [a] always to pray, and not to faint, (or ceaſe from the performance of that duty, becauſe they are not preſently heard; See 2 Cor. 4. 1.)

2. Saying, There was in a city a judge that feared not God, neither regarded man, (to do juſtice or to ſhew mercy to him.)

3. And there was a widow in that city, and ſhe came to him, ſaying, Avenge me of (or do me juſtice againſt) my adverſary.

4. And he would not for a while; but afterward he ſaid within himſelf, Though I fear not God, nor regard man, (ſo as to be moved by either of thoſe motives to do this;)

5. Yet becauſe this widow troubleth me (with her importunity,) I will avenge her, (or do her right,) leſt by her continual coming ſhe weary me.

6. And

6. And the Lord said, Hear what the unjust judge saith, (on the account of the widow's importunity.)

7. And shall not God [b] avenge his own elect, (i. e. his Christian sufferers,) which cry day and night to him, though he bear long with them (who afflict them, and so for a season seemeth not to hear them?)

8. I tell you, that he will avenge them speedily (after a little time, Heb. 10. 37. Rev. 1. 1.) [c] Nevertheless, when the Son of man cometh (to do this) shall he find faith on the earth, (that he will come to execute this vengeance on the Jews?)

9. And he spake this parable to certain who trusted in themselves that they were righteous, (as the Pharisees generally did,) and despised others, (as they did the publicans, counting them sinners unfit to be conversed with.)

10. Two men went up into the temple to pray, the one a Pharisee, and the other a publican:

11. The [d] Pharisee stood, and prayed thus with (by) himself, God I thank thee, that I am not as other men are, extortioners, unjust, adulterers, or even as this publican (perhaps guilty of all these crimes:)

12. (I am so far from these things, and so exact in my duty, that I do more than is commanded; for) [e] I fast twice in the week; (and) I give tithes of all that I possess, (even of mint and cummin, Matth. 23. 23.)

13. And (But) the publican [f] standing afar off would not lift up so much as his eyes to heaven, (as judging himself unworthy so to do;) but smote upon his breast, saying, God be merciful to me a sinner.

14. I tell you, (that) this man went down to his house justified, (i. e. approved of God, and pardoned) [g] rather than the other: for every one that exalteth himself shall be abased, and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted.

15. And they (who believed he was a true prophet) brought to him also infants, that he would touch, (or lay his hands upon) them, (and pray, Matth. 19. 13.) but when his disciples saw it, they rebuked them (that brought them:)

16. But Jesus (being much displeased at this action of his disciples, Mark 10. 14.) called them to him, and said, Suffer little children to come to me, and forbid them not; for of such is the kingdom of God.

17. Verily I say to you, Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God (with affections as free from covetous and vain glorious desires) as (those of) a little child, shall in no wise enter therein; (his love of honour, John 5. 44. and of the world, ver. 24. being great obstructions to it.)

18. And a certain ruler (who had a good opinion of him, and some religious concern for future happiness,) asked him, saying, Good Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?

19. And Jesus said to him, why callest thou me good, (seeing) none is good save one, that is God? (Dost thou own me as one commissioned by God to teach the way of life? I will then do it from his word.)

20. Thou knowest the commandments; (viz.) Do not commit adultery, do not kill, do not steal, do not bear false witness, honour thy father and thy mother; (do this and thou shalt live.)

21. And he said, All these have I kept from my youth up.

22. Now when Jesus heard these things, he said to him, Yet lackest thou one thing, (viz. an heart so free from the love of riches, as to be ready to part with them at my command for heavenly blessings; I therefore say to thee,) Sell all that thou hast, and distribute (it) to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven, and (then) come, (and) follow me.

23. And when he heard this he (went away, and) was very sorrowful, for he was very rich, (and unwilling to part with his estate.)

24. And when Jesus saw that he was very sorrowful, he said, How hardly shall they that have riches, (and trust in them, Mark 10. 24.) enter into the kingdom of God?

25. For it is easier for a camel, (or a cable,) to go through a needles eye, than for a rich man, (thus affected to his riches that he cannot part with them for treasures in heaven,) to enter into the kingdom of God.

26. And they that heard (this saying) said, Who then can be saved?

27. And he said, The things which are impossible with men, are possible with God; (he can take off mens hearts from this love of the world, though the persuasions of men cannot do it.)

28. Then Peter said, Lo, we (thy apostles) have left all, and followed thee; (what shall we have therefor? Matth. 19. 27.)

29. And he said unto them, Verily I say to you, there is no man that hath left house, or parents, or brethren, or wife, or children, for the kingdom of Gods sake,

30. Who shall not receive manifold more in this present time, (from the joys of a good conscience, and of the holy Ghost, the sense of God's favour, and the hopes of treasures in heaven, and the affection of good Christians to him,) and in the world to come life everlasting.

31. Then he took to him the twelve, and said to them, Behold we go up to Jerusalem, and (then) all things that are written by the prophets concerning the Son of man, ſhall be accompliſhed:

32. For he ſhall be delivered to the Gentiles, and ſhall be mocked, and ſpitefully entreated, and ſpitted on;

33. And they ſhall ſcourge him, and put him to death, and the third day he ſhall riſe again.

34. And they underſtood none of theſe things; (i. e. they knew not how to reconcile them with their apprehenſions of his temporal kingdom, and their traditions that the Meſſiah ſhould not die, John 12. 34.) and (ſo) this ſaying was hid from them, neither knew they the things which were ſpoken.

35. And it came to paſs, that as he was come nigh (Gr. was nigh,) to Jericho, a certain blind man (named Bartimeus, Mark 10. 46.) ſat by the way-ſide begging, (and another with him, Matth. 20. 30.)

36. And hearing the multitude paſs by, he asked what it meant, (i. e. what was the reaſon of that concourſe.)

37. And they told him that Jeſus of Nazareth paſſeth by.

38. And (upon this) he cried, ſaying, Jeſus, thou ſon of David, (whoſe office it is to give ſight to the blind, Iſaiah 35. 5.) have mercy on me.

39. And they that went before rebuked him, (ſaying,) that he ſhould hold his peace: but he cried ſo much the more, Thou ſon of David, have mercy on me.

40. And Jeſus ſtood (ſtill,) and commanded him to be brought to him: and when he was come near, he asked him,

41. Saying, What wilt thou that I ſhall do to thee? And he ſaid, Lord, (I deſire) that I may receive my ſight.

42. And Jeſus ſaid to him, (Thou ſhalt) receive thy ſight, thy faith hath ſaved thee, (i. e. hath made thee whole, Mark 10. 52.)

43. And immediately he received his ſight, and followed him, glorifying God (for his mercy to him;) and all the people when they ſaw it, gave praiſe (alſo) to God.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XVIII.

Ver. 1. [a] Πρὸς τὸ δεῖν πάντοτε προσεύχεσθαι καὶ μὴ ἐκκακεῖν, That men ought always to pray, and not to faint.] Of the notion of praying always, ſee note on 1 Theſſ. 5. 17. here it ſignifies, not to pray oft every day, but to pray perſeveringly day after day, without giving off our ſuit; and then μὴ ἐκκακεῖν will be, not to faint under the preſſures and perſecutions they ſuffered, either from the perſecuting Jews, or others by their inſtigation, from which they are here ſuppoſed to pray for deliverance, ver. 7. or not to deſpond under them: for ἐκκακεῖν is not ſo properly to be ſlothful, as malis ſuccumbere, animo concidere, malis cedere, to faint and deſpond, ſay the Lexicons; and this eſpecially when it relates, as here, to tribulations. See Eph. 3. 14. μὴ ἐκκακεῖν ἐν θλίψεσιν is well rendered, not to faint under tribulation; and 2 Cor. 4. 16. οὐκ ἐκκακοῦμεν, we faint not under thoſe afflictions which make the outward man periſh, but continue ſtedfaſt in the faith; ver. 1. We faint not; though we are troubled on every ſide, and perplexed, we deſpair not of help from God, ver. 8. ſo Gal. 6. 9. μὴ ἐκκακεῖν, not to grow weary of well-doing, is μὴ ἐκλύεσθαι not to faint; which two things are put together in St Paul's injunction to the Chriſtian ſufferer, not to grow weary or faint in his mind, Heb. 12. 3. and ſo 2 Theſſ. 3. 13. μὴ ἐκκακεῖν, not to be weary of well-doing, being an exhortation to them who received the word with much affliction, 1 Theſſ. 1. 6. and were in danger by them to fall from their ſtedfaſtneſs, chap. 3. 2, 3, 5. may reaſonably be ſuppoſed to have the ſame import.

Ver. 7. [b] Ὁ δὲ Θεὸς μὴ ποιήσει τὴν ἐκδίκησιν τῶν ἐκλεκτῶν αὐτοῦ, τῶν βοώντων πρὸς αὐτὸν ἡμέρας καὶ νυκτός, καὶ μακροθυμῶν ἐπ' αὐτοῖς; And ſhall not God avenge his elect that cry unto him day and night, though he bear long with them?] Here note,

1*ſt*, That the elect, in general, ſignify all Chriſtians choſen out of the world, through faith in Chriſt, to be the church and people of God? See note on 1 Peter 2. 9. When it relates particularly to the Jews, it ſignifies thoſe of them who believed in Chriſt, and upon that account are ſtiled the election of grace, and abſolutely the election, Rom. 11. 5, 7. under which character St Peter writes unto them, 1 Peter 1. 1. See note on Matth. 24. 21, 22. And this ſeems to be the import of the word here; for μακροθυμῶν ſome copies read μακροθυμεῖ· and ſo interpreters read the whole by way of interrogation, And will he be ſlack towards them? i. e. towards his elect. And this well agrees with the following words, I tell you, he will avenge them ſpeedily; and with the words ἐπ' αὐτοῖς, which have no other ſubſtantive to refer to but the elect; and with the like paſſage, Eccluſ. 35. 17, 18, 19. The prayer of the humble, (or afflicted) pierceth the clouds; and till it come nigh he will not be comforted, and will not depart till the Moſt High ſhall behold to judge righteouſly, and execute cute judgment. For the Lord will not be slack, οὐδὲ μὴ μακροθυμήσει ἐπ' αὐτοῖς, neither will the Almighty be patient towards them, till he hath smitten asunder the loins of the unmerciful, and repaid ἐκδίκησιν, vengeance to the Heathen, ver. 19. till he hath judged the cause of his people, and made them rejoice in his mercy.

Yet, because the common reading is μακροθυμῶν; and because sinners, and especially the unbelieving Jews, are reckoned as the objects of God's long-suffering, and not the elect, as when St Paul saith to them, Despisest thou the riches of his goodness, patience and long-suffering? Rom. 2. 4. and as persons God endured with much long-suffering, chap. 9. 22. and St Peter saith, God was long-suffering towards them, not being willing they should perish, but should all come to repentance, 2 Pet. 3. 9. others make the sense run thus, Shall he who is thus long-suffering towards the worst of men, and the persecutors of his people, be slack to avenge the cause of his people, whom he loves, and to whose prayers his ears are always open?

Ver. 8. [c] Πλὴν ὁ υἱὸς ἀνθρώπου ἐλθὼν ἆρα εὑρήσει τὴν πίστιν ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς; Nevertheless, when the Son of man comes, shall he find faith upon the earth?] i. e. When the Son of man comes to exercise this vengeance on the Jewish nation, how few shall he find in the Jewish nation that will believe it? As for the unbelieving Jews, though Christ and his forerunner had told them so frequently and plainly of their approaching ruin, and though they had so many signs of it, recorded in Josephus, he tells us they were still expecting deliverance from God; and they among them who believed and professed the Christian faith, being pressed with continual sufferings, began to grow weary, and faint in their minds, and to ask, Where is the promise of his coming? Yea, some of them began to forsake the assemblies of the saints, Heb. 10. 25. and many of them became apostates, and fell back to their old Judaism; so that all the epistles directed to them are manifestly designed to keep them stedfast in the faith. See the preface to those epistles, and note on 2 Thess. 2. 3.

Ver. 11. [d] Ὁ φαρισαῖος σταθεὶς πρὸς ἑαυτὸν, The Pharisee standing by himself,] as fearing to be polluted by the touch of the impure publican, Luke 7. 39. on which account they had their frequent washings when they came from the markets, Mark 7. 4. He standing thus, prays, God, I thank thee, (thanksgiving being reckoned as one part of prayer, 1 Cor. 14. 15, 16. 1 Tim. 2. 1.) that I am not as other men, nor as this publican. Here he offends, (1.) That he concludes himself good, because he is not so bad as other men; whereas he should have done this only from the evidence of his own sincerity in heart and actions; it being only from this approving our own works that we can have rejoicing in ourselves, and not in another, Gal. 6. 4. (2.) In judging so ill of others, many of whom he could have no certain knowledge of, and particularly in his judgment on this publican, from whose submissive gesture, and penitential actions, he might have charitably concluded, that he came to the temple with a true penitent heart.

Ver. 12. [e] Νηστεύω δὶς τοῦ Σαββάτου, I fast twice a week.] The public and private fasts of the Jews were upon the second and fifth day of our week, i. e. Monday and Thursday; and therefore the antient Christians, that they might not be outdone by them in any part of devotion, in lieu of those days, chose the fourth and sixth days of the week for their fasting days. Stationibus quartum et sextum Sabbathi dicamus, Tert. de jejun c. 14. Can. apost. 61. Const. apost. l. 5. c. 15. c. 20. p. 263. l. 7. c. 23. Epiph. har. 51. n. 26. expos. fidei, n. 22. Philostorg. l. 10. § 12. Pseud. Ignat. epist. ad Philip. § 13. See additions, N°. 22.

Ver. 13. [f] Ὁ δὲ τελώνης μακρόθεν ἑστὼς, But the publican standing afar off.] He stood afar off, perhaps in the court of the Gentiles, looking upon himself as unworthy to draw nigh to God, or stand in the holy place; he would not lift up his eyes to heaven, from the sense of the same unworthiness; he smites upon his breast, punishing himself, out of a deep sense of his guilt, this being the sign of a mind vehemently afflicted, chap. 23. 48. And, lastly, He humbly confesses that he was a sinner, and earnestly begs mercy; and therefore it is said,

Ver. 14. [g] Καταβέβηκεν δεδικαιωμένος εἰς οἶκον αὐτοῦ ἢ ἐκεῖνος, He went down to his house justified rather than the other.] Here ἤ is again put for μᾶλλον ἤ. So Hos. 2. 7. καλῶς μοὶ ἦν τότε ἢ νῦν, it was better with me then than now, Jonah 4. 3, 8. καλὸν τὸ ἀποθανεῖν ἢ ζῆν, 'Tis better for me to die than live. See note on chap. 15. 7.

CHAP. XIX.

1. AND Jeſus entred (into) and paſſed through Jericho.

2. And behold, there was a man named Zaccheus, who was the chief among the publicans, and he was rich;

3. And he ſought to ſee Jeſus, who (i. e. what kind of man) he was; and could not for the preſs, becauſe he was little of ſtature.

4. And he (therefore) ran before, and climbed up into a ſycamore tree to ſee him, for he was to paſs that way.

5. And when Jeſus came to the place, he looked up, and ſaw him, and ſaid to him, Zaccheus, make haſte, and come down, for to day I muſt abide at thy houſe.

6. And he [a] made haſte and came down, and received him joyfully.

7. And when they (the Phariſees) ſaw it, they all murmured, ſaying, That he was gone to be gueſt with a man that is a ſinner; (thinking that matter of defilement and reproach to him, not conſidering the deſign on which Chriſt came into the world.)

8. And Zaccheus ſtood (up,) and ſaid to the Lord, Behold, Lord, (not the fifth part only, but) the [b] half of my goods I (now reſolve to) give to the poor; and if I have taken any thing from any man by falſe accuſation, (or oppreſſion, ſee note on Luke 3. 14.) I (will) reſtore him four fold, (i. e. beyond the rigour of the law.)

9. And Jeſus ſaid to him, This day is ſalvation come to this houſe, (Zaccheus having done like a true convert,) for as much as he alſo is the [c] ſon of Abraham, (i. e. a Jew.)

10. (And this is ſuitable to the deſign of my coming, and juſtifies my eating and converſing with him;) for the Son of man is come to ſeek (after) and to ſave that which was loſt.

11. And as they heard theſe things, he added, and ſpake a parable, becauſe he was nigh to Jeruſalem, (which ſhortly was to be the ſcene of miſery, ver. 41, 42.) and becauſe they thought that the kingdom of God (or of the Meſſiah) ſhould immediately appear.

12. He ſaid therefore, (The kingdom of God is like to) a [d] certain noble man, (who) went into a far country to receive for himſelf a kingdom, and to return; (and thus ſhall I go to heaven, and be inſtalled in my mediatory kingdom, and then return to execute the ſevereſt judgments on this nation, for their non-proficiency.)

13. And he called his ten ſervants, and delivered to them ten pounds, and ſaid to them, Occupy till I come, (i. e. improve them till I come and take an account of your proficiency.)

14. But his citizens (the Jews) hated him, and ſent a meſſenger after him, (diſclaiming and rejecting his authority, and) ſaying, We will not have this man to reign over us.

15. And it came to paſs, that when he was returned, having received the kingdom, then he commanded theſe ſervants to be called to him to whom he had given the money, that he might know how much every man had gained by trading.

16. Then came the firſt, ſaying, Lord, thy pound hath gained ten pounds.

17. And he ſaid to him, Well (done) thou good ſervant; becauſe thou haſt been faithful in a very little, have thou authority over ten cities, (i. e. be thy reward proportionable to the increaſe of thy talent.)

18. And the ſecond came, ſaying, Lord, thy pound hath gained five pounds.

19. And he ſaid likewiſe to him, Be thou alſo over five cities; (i. e. be thy reward anſwerable to the improvement of thy talent.)

20. And another came, ſaying, Lord, behold here is thy pound which I have kept laid up in a napkin, (making no uſe of it;)

21. For I feared thee, becauſe (I judged) thou art an auſtere man; thou takeſt up what thou laidſt not down, and reapeſt that thou didſt not ſow, (requiring an increaſe far exceeding what thou gaveſt.)

22. And he ſaith to him, Out of thine own mouth will I judge (and condemn) thee, thou wicked ſervant: (for) thou (owneſt that thou) kneweſt that I was an auſtere man, taking up that I laid not down, and reaping what I did not ſow;

23. Wherefore then gaveſt not thou my money to the bank, (i. e. didſt not thou improve my talent,) that at my coming (back) I might have required (and received) my own with uſury (or improvement?)

24. And he ſaid to them that ſtood by, Take from him the pound, and give it to him that hath ten pounds.

25. And they ſaid to him, Lord, he hath ten pounds; (but he anſwered, Therefore I give him more.)

26. For I ſay to you, That to every one that (improveth what he) hath, ſhall be given (more;) and from him that hath not, (ſo as to improve it,) even even that he hath ſhall be taken away from him.

27. But thoſe mine enemies (of the Jewiſh nation,) which would not that I ſhould reign over them, bring hither, and ſlay them before me.

28. And when he had thus ſpoken, he went before (his diſciples,) aſcending up to Jeruſalem.

29. And it came to paſs, when he was come nigh to Bethphage and Bethany, at the mount called the mount of Olives, he ſent two of his diſciples,

30. Saying, Go ye into the village over againſt you, in which at your entring, ye ſhall find a colt tied, whereon yet never man ſat; looſe him, and bring him hither:

31. And if any man ask you, Why do ye looſe him? thus ye ſhall ſay unto him, (We do it) becauſe the Lord hath need of him.

32. And they that were ſent, went their way, and found (all things) even as he ſaid to them.

33. And as they were looſing the colt, the owners thereof ſaid to them, Why looſe ye the colt?

34. And they ſaid, The Lord hath need of him; (and then they let them go with him.)

35. And they brought him to Jeſus; and they caſt their garments on the colt, and they ſet Jeſus thereon.

36. And as he went, they (the multitude) ſpread their clothes in the way, (as at the triumphant entrance of a prince.)

37. And when he was come nigh (to Jeruſalem, being) even at the deſcent of the mount of Olives, the whole multitude of the diſciples began to rejoyce, and praiſe God with a loud voice, for all the mighty works which they had ſeen (done by Chriſt;)

38. Saying, Bleſſed be he that cometh in the name of the Lord; (may) peace (be procured by him to us) in heaven, and glory (to God who lives) in the higheſt (places)

39. And ſome of the Phariſees from among the multitude, ſaid to him, Maſter, rebuke thy diſciples (for theſe acclamations.)

40. And he anſwered, and ſaid to them, I tell you, that if theſe (my diſciples) ſhould hold their peace, the [e] ſtones would immediately cry out; (i. e. my kingdom would be proclaimed by far more unlikely means.)

41. And when he was come near, he beheld the city, and [f] wept over it,

42. Saying, (Happy had it been for thee) [g] if thou hadſt known, even thou, at leaſt in this thy day (of viſitation, Luke 1. 68.) the things which belong to thy peace (and welfare;) but now (through thy infidelity) they are hid from thine eyes.

43. For the days ſhall (ſhortly) come upon thee, that thine enemies ſhall [h] caſt a trench about thee, and compaſs thee round, and keep thee in on every ſide.

44. And ſhall lay thee [i] even with the ground, and thy children within thee; and they ſhall not leave in thee one ſtone upon another, becauſe thou kneweſt not, (i. e. didſt not improve aright, to faith and repentance,) the time of thy viſitation.

45. And he went into the temple, and began to caſt out them that ſold therein, and them that bought,

46. Saying unto them, It is written, (Iſaiah 56. 7.) My houſe (ſhall be called, or) is the houſe of prayer, but ye have made it (by your fraudulent, covetous dealings, and extortions,) a den of thieves.

47. And he taught daily in the temple; but the chief prieſts, and ſcribes, and chief of the people ſought to deſtroy him:

48. And could not find what they might (ſafely) do, (becauſe of the multitude;) for all the people were very attentive to hear him.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XIX.

Ver. 6. [a] Καὶ σπεύσας καταβὰς, ἐδέξατο αὐτὸν χαίρων. And he made haſte, and came down, and received him joyfully.] By this joy, and by his diligence to ſee him, he ſhewed what an high eſteem he had for that holy Jeſus, whom the ſcribes and Phariſees deſpiſed.

Ver. 8. [b] Ἰδοὺ τὰ ἡμίσιά μου τῶν ὑπαρχόντων μου, Κύριε, δίδωμι τοῖς πτωχοῖς· Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor, and if I have wronged any man, I reſtore him four fold.] By two things Zaccheus ſhews the ſincerity of his reformation, and converſion; (1.) That he is ready to repair any injury that he had done to any man by oppreſſion, or falſe accuſation; which is the proper import of the word συκοφαντέω, not only by adding a fifth part, as the law required in caſe of theft, when what was purloined was voluntarily reſtored, Numb. 5. 7. nor by reſtoring double, as the treſpaſſer was to do by law, when that which was taken away was found in his hands, Exod. 22. 4. but by reſtoring for money and goods, what the rigour of the law required only in the caſe of an ox or ſheep killed after it was ſtolen, Exod. 22. 1. i. e. fourfold: doing not only what juſtice required quired for compensation of the injury; for no man can be righteous till he, if he be able, hath satisfied for the injury done to his brother; but inflicting on himself this surplusage by way of penalty for his sin, and as a testimony of his great displeasure against himself for committing it. And, (2.) Whereas the law and tradition of the Jews required only that a fifth part of their income should be spent in charity, he bequeathes half his estate to charitable uses.

Ver. 9. [c] This day is salvation come to this house, forasmuch as he also is υἱὸς Ἀβραάμ, a son of Abraham;] not only by faith, of which sonship the Jews, to whom Christ spake, had then no notion, but by birth, for the Pharisees do not murmur against Christ that he did eat with one uncircumcised, but that he did it with a sinner; it would also have been no indication to the Jews that he was a son of Abraham, that he believed in Christ; and lastly, his respect to the law of Moses, in making restitution, shews he was no stranger to that law. Moreover, though the phrase, salvation is come unto this house, doth not necessarily argue that his whole family believed, and the pronoun ipse, and the reason here assigned, seem personally to respect Zaccheus, the master of the house; yet is it piously observed, that Christ here promiseth salvation to the house, because it was the duty, and usually the practice of the master of the family, to reduce his whole house to the faith he had embraced; as in the case of the centurion, Acts 10. 2. of Lydia, Acts 16. 14, 15. of the jaylor, ver. 33, 34. of Crispus the ruler of a synagogue, Acts 18. 8. and of the nobleman, John 4. 46, 53.

Ver. 12. [d] Ἄνθρωπός τις εὐγενὴς ἐπορεύθη εἰς χώραν μακρὰν, λαβεῖν ἑαυτῷ βασιλείαν, καὶ ὑποστρέψαι. A certain nobleman went into a far country to receive a kingdom, and to return.] Here observe,

1*st*, That it is ingeniously conjectured by Mr Cl. that Christ took the rise of this parable from the custom of the kings of Judea, Herod the great, and Archelaus his son, who usually went to Rome, to receive the kingdom of Judea from Cæsar, without whose permission and appointment they durst not take the government into their hands. And in the case of Archelaus there is indeed some resemblance of this; for the Jews sent their complaints after him, shewing their unwillingness that this nobleman, or εὐγενὴς, the son of Herod the great, to whom the kingdom of Judea was assigned by his father's will and testament, should reign over them; and that at his return, ἐθναρχίαν λαβόντα, he receiving the kingdom, tyrannized over them for ten years; but with this signal difference, that upon their second complaint to Cæsar, they prevailed against him, and procured his banishment to Vienna.

2*dly*, That the parable here, as it respects our Lord Christ going into a far country to receive a kingdom, and to return, either respects his going to heaven to sit down at the right hand of God in majesty and glory, and so take possession of his mediatory kingdom, and then return to punish the unbelieving and obdurate Jews; or going by his apostles and disciples to erect a kingdom among the Gentiles, and then coming as it were back to punish the Jews, according to these words of his, the gospel of the kingdom shall be preached throughout the world for a testimony to all nations, and then shall the end (of the Jewish polity) come, Matth. 24. 14. Note,

3*dly*, That this parable doth certainly respect the Jewish nation; as appears, (1.) Because they are here said to reject Christ's kingdom, saying, We will not have this man to reign over us; and upon this account are stiled his enemies, and devoted to destruction by him, which agrees still only to the Jews, ver. 27. (2.) To them is threatned the punishment of the unprofitable servants, to wit, to be cast out into utter darkness, &c. Matth. 8. 12. —22. 13. Luke 13. 28. Matth. 25. 30. In fine, it is expressly said, he therefore spake this parable to them, because they thought the kingdom of God should immediately appear, ver. 11, 12.

4*thly*, The only difficulty remaining is, how to apply the pounds here, and the talents mentioned Matth. 25. to any of the Jews; but this seeming difficulty is removed by a careful observation of the words, which shew they were distributed, not to his citizens, but τοῖς ἰδίοις δούλοις, to his own proper servants, Matth. 25. 14. to his servants, ver. 13. i. e. to his apostles, five; and to the seventy disciples, or those who had received lesser spiritual gifts, two talents; to the Jews, who are also stiled his own, John 1. 14. only one talent; (viz. the law and the prophets, promising to them the Messiah, and pointing out his advent, and his characters to them,) which they might, and ought to have employed, so as to have believed, and fitted themselves to receive and to improve the gifts of the holy Ghost, as others did.

5*thly*, Observe, That as the dreadful destruction of the unbelieving Jews was an emblem of the last judgment, so Christ's reckoning with them is a representation of that reckoning he will make with all men, at the great day, for all the talents they have respectively received; and, with respect to that, this lord is said, Matth. 25. 19. to come μετὰ χρόνον πολὺν, after a long time.

Ver. 25. See additions, N°. 23.

Ver. 40. [e] Οἱ λίθοι κεκράξουσι. If these hold their peace, the stones will cry out.] This is a proverbial expression, signifying, that if these followers of Christ

Christ should hold their peace, some more unlikely way should be found out for the proclaiming the Messiah, even by those who are reckoned the most stupid and insensate people, as by you the Gentiles are. So lapidi loqueris, thou speakest to one who hath little sense to hear, or understand, lapis being metaphorically put for a stupid and brutish person; so when (a) Aristippus was asked by one, what his son would be better for instruction, he answered, that then ἐν τῷ θεάτρῳ ἐ καθήσεται λίθῳ ἐπὶ λίθῳ, one stone, that is, one stupid person would not sit above another in the theatre. So ἠλιθιάζειν καὶ ἠλίθιον φθέγγεσθαι, in Aristophanes, is to be stupid, and speak without sense, ἀναίσθητοι γὰρ οἱ λίθοι, for stones have no sense; so the scholiast, p. 352. G.

Ver. 41. [f] Καὶ ἔκλαυσεν ἐπ' αὐτῇ, And he wept over it.] I hope (b) Epiphanius may be mistaken when he tells us, these words, and the like in John 11. 35. were blotted out, as being denied to be in the most correct copies; for it is certain, and confessed by him, that they were to be found in (c) Irenæus, and in (d) Origen twice, who saith, our Lord wept εὐλόγως, with good reason over Jerusalem. For he did it out of a profound charity, and deep commiseration of the evils coming upon Jerusalem; in both which virtues he came to be an example to us, and therefore could do nothing in it unworthy of himself.

Ver. 42. [g] Λέγων, ὅτι εἰ ἔγνως καὶ σύ, Saying, (happy hadst thou been) if thou hadst known in this thy day, the things which belong to thy peace, &c.] Here the critics note, that εἰ often signifies utinam, and so the words will contain an ardent wish that the people of Jerusalem had been thus wise, conceived after this manner, Oh that thou hadst known! But though this be true, see note on Luke 12. 40. yet the particle ὅτι, that, makes it not applicable to this place; and therefore I think it better to supply the deficient sense by the words contained in the parenthesis. Here then observe, 1*st*, That Christ here plainly shews, and takes it for granted, that the people of Jerusalem, in this day of their visitation by the Messias, might have savingly known the things belonging to their peace, since otherwise our Saviour's tears may rather have been looked upon as the tears of crocodiles, than of charity and true commiseration; and either his assertion, that they might have been happy, would have been contrary to truth, or his wish, that they had thus known the things belonging to their peace, contrary to his Father's will and decree, both which are palpably absurd: and seeing the will of Christ was always the same with that of his Father, it follows also that God the Father had the same charitable affection to them, and so had laid no bar against their happiness by his decrees, nor been wanting in any thing, on his part, necessary towards their everlasting welfare. See the note on Matth. 23. 37.

Ver. 43. [h] The days shall come upon thee, that thine enemies shall cast a trench about thee, and compass thee round, and keep thee in on every side.] How exactly this was done we learn from Josephus, saying, that (e) when Vespasian besieged Jerusalem, his army compassed the city round about, and kept them in on every side: and though it was judged a great and almost impracticable work, to compass the whole city with a wall; yet Titus, animating his soldiers to attempt it, they, in three days, built a wall of thirty nine furlongs, having thirteen castles in it; and so cut off all hopes that any of the Jews within the city should escape.

Ver. 44. [i] And shall lay thee even with the ground,—and they shall not leave in thee one stone upon another.] How this also was exactly done, Josephus teacheth, by saying, that (f) Titus having commanded his soldiers to dig up the city, this was so fully done, by levelling the whole compass of it, except three towers, that they who came to see it, were persuaded it never would be built again.

CHAP. XX.

1. AND it came to paſs, that on one of thoſe days, as he taught the people in the temple, and preached the goſpel, the chief prieſts and the ſcribes came upon him, (and roſe up againſt him,) with the elders;

2. And ſpake to him, ſaying, Tell us, by what authority doſt thou theſe things, (which only prophets, and perſons allowed and approved by authority, ſhould do?) and who is he that gave thee this authority?

3. And he anſwered, and ſaid to them, I will alſo ask you one thing; and (if you) anſwer me, (you may thence know by what authority I do theſe things.)

4. The baptiſm of John, was it from (the God of) heaven, or of men (only?)

5. And they reaſoned with themſelves, ſaying, If we ſhall ſay (it was) from heaven, he will ſay, Why then believed ye him not, (when he teſtified that I was the Chriſt?)

6. But if we ſay, Of men, all the people will (be ready to) ſtone us; for they be perſuaded that John was a prophet.

7. And they anſwered, That they could not tell whence it was:

8. And Jeſus ſaid unto them, Neither tell I you by what authority I do theſe things.

9. Then began he to ſpeak to the people this parable; A certain man planted a vineyard, and let it forth to husbandmen, (the Jewiſh doctors,) and went into a far country for a long time; (i. e. left them a long time to manage, and to make it fruitful.)

10. And at the ſeaſon he ſent a ſervant to the husbandmen, (requeſting) that they ſhould give him of the fruit of the vineyard; but the huſbandmen (the guides and rulers of the Jewiſh church) beat him, and ſent him away empty.

11. And again he ſent another ſervant, and they beat him alſo, and entreated him ſhamefully, and ſent him away empty.

12. And again he ſent the (a) third, and they wounded him alſo, and caſt him out, (killing God's prophets, and ſtoning them that were ſent to them, chap. 13. 34. 2 Chron. 36. 15, 16.)

13. Then ſaid the Lord of the vineyard, What ſhall I do? I will ſend my beloved Son, it may be they will reverence him when they ſee him.

14. But when the husbandmen ſaw him, they reaſoned among themſelves, ſaying, This is the heir; come, let us kill him, that the inheritance may be ours.

15. So they (the Jews) caſt him out of the vineyard, and killed him, (Chriſt the Son of God;) what therefore ſhall the Lord of the vineyard do to them?

16. He ſhall come, and deſtroy theſe husbandmen, and ſhall give the vineyard to others. And [a] when they (the Phariſees,) heard it, they ſaid, God forbid (that this ſhould happen to us.)

17. And he beheld them, and ſaid, (if this will not be ſo,) What is then (the import of) this that is written, (Pſal. 118. 22.) The ſtone which the builders rejected, the ſame is become the head of the corner? (Now you are theſe builders, and I, whom you reject, am that chief corner ſtone.)

18. (And) Whoſoever ſhall fall upon (or ſtumble at) that ſtone, ſhall be broken, (i. e. ſhall do it to his ruin;) but on whomſoever it ſhall fall, (as it will moſt ſeverely on you of this nation,) it will grind him to powder; (i. e. ſubject him to the heavieſt judgments both here and hereafter; for they who thro' weakneſs, or the prejudices of their education, or reverence to their guides, ſhall ſtumble at this ſtone, and not believe, ſhall be hereafter puniſhed, yet with much fewer ſtripes than theſe Jewiſh doctors who obſtinately, and againſt full conviction, hated and rejected the Meſſiah, and would not he ſhould reign over them, chap. 14.)

19. And the chief prieſts and the ſcribes the ſame hour ſought to lay hands upon him, and (but) they feared the people; for they perceived that he ſpake this parable againſt them, (repreſenting them as the perſons who would thus treat the Son of God, and ſhould thus ſuffer by him for ſo doing.)

20. And they watched him, and ſent forth ſpies, which ſhould feign themſelves juſt men, that they might take hold of (i. e. advantage againſt him from) his words, that ſo they [b] might deliver him (up) to the power and authority of the governor.

21. And they asked him, ſaying, Maſter, we know that thou ſayeſt and teacheſt rightly, neither accepteſt thou the perſon of any, but teacheſt the way of God truly, (without favour to, or fear of any, though the greateſt in power and dignity; we therefore enquire of thee,)

22. Is it lawful for us (Jews) to give tribute to Cæſar, or not?

23. But he perceived their craftineſs, (in deſigning, from his anſwer, to repreſent him to the governor as an enemy to Cæſar, chap. 23. 2. or to the people, as an enemy to their liberty,) and (therefore) ſaid to them, Why tempt ye me?

24. Shew

24. Shew me a (Roman) penny, (and tell me) whoſe image and ſuperſcription hath it? they anſwered, and ſaid, (It is) Cæſars (image that is ſtamped upon it.)

25. And he ſaid unto them, (this by your own rules is an evidence that Cæſars government hath obtained among you,) Render therefore to Cæſar the things which are Cæſars, (the tribute due to him as your governor under God,) and to God the things that are Gods, (i. e. the tribute due to his temple.)

26. And (when he had thus ſaid,) they could not take hold of his words before the people, and they marvelled at (the wiſdom of) his anſwer, and held their peace.

27. Then came to him certain of the Sadducees, who deny that there is (to be) any reſurrection (of the body,) and they asked him,

28. Saying, Maſter, Moſes wrote to us, if any mans brother die, having a wife, and he die without children, that his brother ſhould take his wife, and raiſe up ſeed to his brother:

29. There were therefore (with us) ſeven brethren, and the firſt (of them) took a wife, and died without children;

30. And the ſecond took her to wife, and he (alſo) died childleſs;

31. And the third took her, and in like manner (the reſidue of) the ſeven alſo, and they left no children, and died;

32. Laſt of all the woman died alſo;

33. Therefore in the reſurrection (of the body from the dead, Mark 12. 23.) whoſe wife of them is ſhe (to be?) for ſeven had her to wife.

34. And Jeſus anſwering, ſaid unto them, (This queſtion proceeds from a groſs ignorance of the future ſtate: for) the children of this world (only) marry, and are given in marriage;

35. But they that ſhall be counted worthy to obtain that world (which is to come,) and (attain to) the reſurrection from the dead, neither marry, nor are given in marriage:

36. Neither can they die any more; for they are (as to duration) equal to the angels, and are [c] children of God, (who are to live with him for ever, John 8. 35.) being the children of the reſurrection.

37. Now that the dead are (to be) raiſed, even Moſes ſhewed at the buſh, when he (i. e. God) calleth (to him, ſaying, I am) the Lord, the God of Abraham, and the God of Iſaac, and the God of Jacob, (long after they were dead.)

38. For he is not a God of the dead, (i. e. of them who are ſo dead, as not to be the ſons of the reſurrection,) but of the living, (i. e. of them whoſe bodies ſhall live again,) [d] for all live unto him.

39. Then certain of the ſcribes anſwering, ſaid, Maſter, Thou haſt well ſaid, (in relation to the Sadducees.)

40. And after that, they durſt not ask him any queſtions at all.

41. And he ſaith to them, How ſay they (of the ſcribes,) that Chriſt is Davids ſon?

42. And (When) David himſelf ſaith in the book of Pſalms, The Lord ſaid unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand,

43. Till I make thine enemies thy footſtool, (by ſubduing them, and putting them under thy feet, 1 Cor. 15. 25.)

44. David therefore (in theſe words) calleth him Lord; how is he then his ſon?

45. Then in the audience of all the people, he ſaid to his diſciples,

46. Beware of the ſcribes, which [e] deſire (affect) to walk in long robes, and love greetings in the markets, and the higheſt ſeats in the ſynagogues, and the chief rooms at feaſts;

47. Which devour widows houſes, and for a ſhew (of devotion) make long prayers: the ſame ſhall receive greater damnation (for their hypocriſy.)

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XX.

Ver. 16. [a] Ἀκούσαντες δὲ εἶπον, μὴ γένοιτο. And when they heard it, they ſaid, God forbid.] In Matthew, chap. 21. 41. and in Mark 12. 9. Chriſt enquires of them, what the lord of the vineyard will do to theſe husbandmen? and they anſwer, He will deſtroy them, and let out his vineyard to other husbandmen: here Chriſt himſelf declares what the lord of the vineyard will do to theſe husbandmen; and they ſeem to ſay, God forbid that he ſhould do ſo. Now this ſeeming contrariety is by ſome ſolved thus, That the Phariſees do not by theſe words deny that the lord of the vineyard would deſtroy thoſe husbandmen; but knowing that the parable was ſpoken againſt them, they ſay, μὴ γένοιτο, far be it from us husbandmen, to do a work ſo worthy of this puniſhment. And this ſenſe Chriſt's reply ſeems to require, viz. τί οὖν ἐστι τὸ γεγραμμένον, i. e. If the prieſts and Phariſees will not do this, what means that which is written? what means that ſaying of the Pſalmiſt? which even you Jews interpret of the Meſſiah, The ſtone which the builders refuſed, is become the head-ſtone of (in) the corner, Pſal. 118. 22. To ſtrengthen this interpretation, let it be conſidered, that our Lord ſpake this parable againſt them, Matth. 21. 45. Mark 12. 12. they therefore deny what they underſtood, that they ſhould deſtroy the Son of the Lord of the vineyard, i. e. the Meſſiah, as not believing Chriſt to be the Meſſiah, but an impoſtor; but they deny not, that they who ſhould do this were worthy of this puniſhment. Or, (2.) Becauſe St Luke peculiarly notes, ver. 9. that this parable was ſpoken to the people, this may be their anſwer, Far be it from our rulers to do ſo vile a thing as may bring down this judgment on us; whilſt the rulers and Phariſees, who thought themſelves far from being ſuch husbandmen as they knew Chriſt ſuggeſted they would be, ſtick not to ſay ſuch husbandmen deſerve indeed to be deſtroyed, as thinking they ſhould never be concerned in their ruin.

Either of theſe ſolutions I like better than that of Mr le Cl. who will have theſe words in the beginning of this verſe, (he will come and will deſtroy theſe husbandmen, and let out his vineyard to others,) to be the words, not of Chriſt, but of the Sanhedrim; and yet will have the words immediately following in the ſame verſe, (ἀκούσαντες δὲ εἶπον μὴ γένοιτο, and underſtanding, they ſaid (within themſelves) God forbid,) to be alſo the words of the ſame Sanhedrim. For could they, underſtanding that theſe words were ſpoken againſt them, firſt give this ſevere ſentence againſt themſelves, and then in the ſame breath contradict themſelves? And, 2*dly*, Why muſt εἶπον be rendered they ſaid within themſelves, and not in the hearing of Chriſt, who, when they had ſaid this, looks upon them, and enquires of them, What then is it which is written? ver. 17.

Ver. 20. [b] Εἰς τὸ παραδοῦναι αὐτὸν τῇ ἀρχῇ, καὶ τῇ ἐξουσίᾳ τοῦ ἡγεμόνος, To deliver him up to the power and authority of the governor:] And therefore they put to him the queſtion about paying tribute to Cæſar, hoping, that by denying it to be due to him from the Jews, they might accuſe him as an enemy to Cæſar; for they knew that his deciſion of queſtions relating only to their law and controverſies would not offend thoſe Gallios.

Ver. 36. [c] Καὶ υἱοὶ εἰσι Θεοῦ τῆς ἀναστάσεως υἱοὶ ὄντες, And being ſons of the reſurrection, are the ſons of God.] For this υἱοθεσια, ſonſhip, imports the redemption of the body from corruption, Rom. 8. 23. and they that are ſons are heirs of God, joint heirs with Chriſt, and to be glorified with him, ver. 17. ſee the note there; and the ſtrength of Chriſt's argument depending on this notion, note on Matth. 22. 31, 32. Jamblicus very likely from hence makes it the reward of good ſouls going out of the body, to be converted εἰς ἀγγέλους καὶ ἀγγελικὰς ψυχὰς, into angels and angelic ſouls, apud Stob. Ecl. Phyſ. p. 144.

Ver. 38. [d] Πάντες γὰρ αὐτῷ ζῶσιν, For all live to him.] Woltzogenius interprets theſe words thus, They live in reſpect of God's power and decree, that they ſhall live again; and hence he argues, that the ſouls of good men live not after death till the reſurrection; for, ſaith he, Chriſt argues thus, If Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob, were not to live again, God, who ſtiles himſelf their God, would be the God of the dead; whereas, if their ſouls lived, and enjoyed a ſtate of happineſs, God would not be the God of the dead, though they never roſe again. To this I anſwer, Anſw. 1. Firſt, That when it is ſaid, God is not the God of the dead, the meaning is, He is not the God of them who are to abide in a ſtate of death, and never to enjoy the reſurrection of the juſt; i. e. he owns not them for his who are not to be the ſons of the reſurrection, ver. 36. and will not be called their God, as having not prepared for them an heavenly city, Heb. 11. 16. Hence doth the ſcripture ſay of them, that they are paſſed from death unto life, John 5. 24. and that they ſhall not die, becauſe Chriſt will raiſe them up at the laſt day, John 6. 50. and in the opinion of the Jews, they only ſeem to die in the eyes of fools, becauſe their hope is full of immortality, Wiſd. 3. 2, 3, 4. and they proverbially ſay, the juſt live when they are dead; and in this ſenſe, Abraham, and Iſaac, and Jacob, would not live to God though their ſouls lived with him, unleſs their bodies alſo roſe again.

Anſw. 2. Secondly, God here ſtiles himſelf the God of Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob, i. e. not of their ſouls only, but of their perſons; in which ſenſe the Jews always underſtood theſe words: now thus he would be the God of the dead, tho' their ſouls lived, unleſs their bodies alſo roſe again.

Ver. 46. [e] Θελόντων περιπατεῖν ἐν στολαῖς, Affecting to walk in long garments,] down to their ancles, or to their feet, that no part of their bodies might be ſeen; for this, ſays Dr Lightfoot upon the place, was the Talith that the diſciples of the wiſe men wore. Good here is the obſervation of Mr le Clerc from pope Celeſtine, touching the clergy, that they are to be diſcerned a plebe vel cæteris, doctrina, non veſte; converſatione, non habitu; mentis puritate, non cultu; not ſo much by their apparel, as by their learning; not only by their habit, but their converſation; not by the adornment of their body, but by purity of mind.

CHAP. XXI.

1. AND he looked up, and saw the rich men casting their gifts into the treasury:
2. And he saw also a certain poor widow casting in thither two mites:
3. And he said, Of a truth I say unto you, that this poor widow hath cast in more than they all.
4. For all these have of their abundance cast in unto [a] the offerings of God, (i. e. the treasure designed for the use of his temple;) but she of her penury hath cast in all the living that she had, (i. e. all that she had to live upon that day.)
5. And as some spake of the temple, (shewing) how it was adorned with goodly stones and gifts, he said,
6. [b] As for these things which ye behold, the days will come in which there will not be left one stone upon another, which shall not be thrown down (from its place.)
7. And they asked him, saying, Master, (thou speakest dreadful things of this place,) but (tell us) when shall these things be? and what sign will there be (to inform men) when these things shall come to pass? (We hope thou only speakest of the desolation which shall over-turn all things at the end of this world.)
8. And he said, Take heed that ye (of this age) be not deceived; for (after my departure) many shall come in my name, saying, I am Christ, and the time (of your redemption) draweth near, (but must be all false Christs;) go ye not therefore after them.
9. But (And) when ye shall hear of wars and commotions, be not terrified; for these things must first come to pass, but the end (of the polity and temple of the Jews) is not by and by.
10. Then said he unto them, Nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom:
11. And great earthquakes shall be in divers places, and famines, and pestilences, and fearful sights, and great signs (of approaching judgments,) shall there be from heaven.
12. But before all these (things) they shall lay their hands on you, and persecute you, delivering you up to the synagogues, and (casting you) into prisons, (you) being brought before kings and rulers for my names sake.
13. And it shall turn to you for a testimony (of my presence with you; they being not able to resist the wisdom of your doctrine, ver. 15. or gainsay the miracles by which you do confirm it.)
14. Settle it therefore in your hearts not to meditate before what ye shall answer (to their enquiries and accusations.)
15. For I will give you (in that hour, Mark 13. 11.) a mouth (full of such power) and wisdom, which all your adversaries shall not be able to gainsay or resist, (Acts 6. 10.)
16. And (through the persecutions, which shall then be great, and the apostates, which shall then be many, Matth. 24. 10,—13.) ye shall be betrayed both by parents, and brethren, and kinsfolks, and friends, and some of you they shall cause to be put to death:
17. And ye shall be hated of all (sorts of) men for my names sake.
18. But (notwithstanding, if ye continue faithful to the end, Matth. 24. 13.) there shall not [c] one hair of your head perish; (i. e. you shall not perish in that destruction which shall then come upon the unbelieving Jews.)
19. In your patience possess ye your souls, (ἐν τῇ ὑπομονῇ ὑμῶν κτήσασθε τὰς ψυχὰς ὑμῶν, you shall have your lives preserved as the reward of your Christian patience.)
20. And when ye shall see Jerusalem compassed with (the Roman) armies, then know that the desolation thereof is nigh.
21. (And) Then let them that are in Judea, flee to the mountains (of Peræa,) and let them that are in the midst of it depart out (of Judæa,) and let not them that are in the countries enter thereinto.
22. For these be the days of vengeance (upon Judæa,) that all things which are written may be fulfilled (upon them.)
23. But wo to them that are with child, and to them that give suck in those days, (and so are not in a condition thus to flee;) for there shall (then) be great distress in the land, and wrath upon this people.
24. And they shall (many of them) fall by the edge of the sword, and (many of them) shall be led away [d] captive into all nations, and [e] Jerusalem shall be trodden down of (or trodden by) the Gentiles, till the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled; (i. e. till the glorious conversion of the Gentiles at the coming in of the Jews, who shall then also be gathered to their own city and country.)
25. And there shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars, (i. e. in the heavens where they move,) and upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity, [f] the sea and the waves roaring; (See the note.)

26. Mens hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after theſe things that are coming on the (habitable) earth; for the powers of heaven, (the eccleſiaſtical and civil government,) ſhall be ſhaken.

27. And then ſhall they ſee the Son of man coming in a cloud, (or as upon a cloud,) with power and great glory.

28. And when theſe things begin to come to paſs, then look up, and lift up your heads, for your redemption (from your troubles) draweth nigh.

29. And he ſpake to them a parable (to this effect,) Behold the fig-tree, and all the (other) trees.

30. When they now ſhoot forth (their leaves and branches,) ye ſee and know of your own ſelves that ſummer is now nigh at hand;

31. So likewiſe ye, when ye ſee theſe things come to paſs, know ye that the kingdom of God, (or the coming of Chriſt, as a King, to execute his vengeance on his diſobedient ſubjects of the Jewiſh nation,) is (alſo) nigh at hand.

32. Verily I ſay unto you, (The men of) this generation ſhall not paſs away till all (that I have ſpoken) be fulfilled.

33. Heaven and earth ſhall paſs away, but my words ſhall not paſs away (unperformed.)

34. And [g] take heed of yourſelves, leſt at any time your hearts be overcharged with ſurfeiting and drunkenneſs, and (with the) cares of this life, (which will unfit and indiſpoſe you for your flight, or your care to avoid theſe things,) and ſo that day (will) come upon you unawares.

35. For as a ſnare ſhall it come on all them that dwell on the face of the whole earth, (or land of Judæa.)

36. Watch ye therefore, and pray always, that ye may be counted worthy to eſcape all theſe things which ſhall come to paſs, and to ſtand before the Son of man, (thus coming to avenge himſelf on that nation.)

37. And in the day-time he was teaching in the temple, and at night he went out, and abode in the mount that is called the Mount of Olives.

38. And all the people came early in the morning to him, (being) in the temple, to hear him.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XXI.

Ver. 1. See additions, N°. 24.

Ver. 4. [a] Ἐβαλον εἰς τὰ δῶρα τοῦ Θεοῦ, Caſt in unto, i. e. among the offerings of God.] For it ſeems a miſtake to ſay, that δῶρα, gifts, ſignifies the treaſury itſelf, which in Hebrew is called Korban; for that is δῶρον, not δῶρα in the plural; and according to this ſenſe βάλλειν τὰ δῶρα εἰς τὸ γαζοφυλάκιον, muſt be, to caſt the treaſury into the treaſury, ver. 1.

Ver. 16. [b] Ταῦτα ἃ θεωρεῖτε, As for theſe things which you behold,] quod ad hæc attinet. Ver. 18. Καὶ θρὶξ ἐκ τῆς κεφαλῆς ὑμῶν οὐ μὴ ἀπόληται, And there ſhall not one hair of your head periſh.] This, ſaith Grotius, is a proverbial expreſſion, uſed 1 Sam. 14. 45. 2 Sam. 14. 11. 1 Kings 1. 52. Acts 27. 34. ſignifying that they ſhould ſuſtain no loſs, i. e. all circumſtances conſidered; for to ſuffer ſome loſs for the preſent, to gain eternal life, is the greateſt advantage, whilſt that which ſeems at preſent to be loſt is laid up with God, to be reſtored to us with uſury. And this limitation ſeems neceſſary, not only from the former words, Some of you they ſhall cauſe to be put to death, ver. 16. but alſo from the event; for as moſt of the apoſtles were cut off before the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, ſo the protomartyr Stephen was taken away by the Jews; James the leſs, and other Chriſtians, by (a) Ananus the high prieſt. But yet I cannot acquieſce in this interpretation; 1. Becauſe this proverb, in all the places cited, contains a promiſe, that the perſons ſpoken to ſhould not die, or periſh in the danger they lay under, or as they apprehended they might do. So no hair of any man's head ſhall periſh, Acts 27. 34. is the ſame as there ſhall be no loſs of any man's life, ver. 22. One hair of Jonathan's head ſhall not periſh, 1 Sam. 14. 45. is in the ſame verſe, οὐ θανατωθήσεται, he ſhall not be put to death: an hair of thy ſon's head ſhall not fall to the earth, 2 Sam. 14. 11. is in the ſame verſe, they ſhall not deſtroy thy ſon: one hair of Adonijah ſhall not fall to the earth, 1 Kings 1. 52. is in the ſame verſe, he ſhall not be put to death. Chriſt therefore ſeems to promiſe, that whatever might befal them at other times, yet in theſe days of vengeance upon the Jews, or at the time of the deſtruction of the city and the temple, none of thoſe Chriſtians which endured to the end ſhould periſh in that ſiege. And this the following words ſeem to inſinuate, in patience tience possess your spirit; that is, saith Tertullian, per tolerantiam salvos facietis vosmet ipsos, by patience you will preserve yourselves, ver. 19. So Mat. 24. 13. He that endureth to the end shall be saved. See here ver. 8. Accordingly the Pseudo-Clemens, in his recognitions, saith, that this was an evident token of this great mystery, that (b) every one that believed in this prophet, and was baptised in his name, ab excidio belli quod incredulæ genti imminet, ac loco ipsi servaretur illæsus, should be kept safe from the destruction which should happen to that unbelieving nation, and to their temple by the war. And (c) Theodoret saith, there was a fame, that when Vespasian and Titus came to fight against them, τὰς τυνικαῦτα πιστὰς ἐξ ἀποκαλύψεως τὴν πόλιν καταλιπεῖν, the faithful that were there, by revelation, left the city, according to our Lord's admonition, Luke 21. 20. and that of them Zachary foretold, the rest shall not perish. Add to this what is noted on Matth. 24. 13.

Ver. 24. [d] Καὶ αἰχμαλωτισθήσονται εἰς πάντα τὰ ἔθνη, And shall be carried captive into all nations.] Accordingly Josephus informs us, that the number of those who were taken captives by the Romans during the war was (d) ἑπτὰκις μυριάδες καὶ ἑπτακισχίλιοι, ninety and seven thousands, of which some of the fairest and tallest Titus reserved for his triumph; of the rest that were above seventeen years old, he sent some to Egypt to work in the mines, πλείους δ' εἰς τὰς ἐπαρχίας διεσπάσθησαν, most of them he dispersed through the Roman provinces, to be destroyed in their theatres by the sword and wild beasts; but they that were under seventeen years of age ἐπεδίθησαν, were sold.

Ibid. [e] Καὶ Ἰερουσαλὴμ ἔσται πατουμένη ὑπὸ ἐθνῶν ἄχρι πληρωθῶσι καιροὶ ἐθνῶν, And Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, till the time of the Gentiles be fulfilled.] That is, say some interpreters, till the full number of the Gentiles, which God shall call, be compleated. This, I confess, is a very antient interpretation of these words; but it is contrary to the express word of the apostle Paul, who declares, that at the conversion of the Jews there shall be a greater and more glorious conversion of the Gentiles, than that which happened at the fall of them; that their fulness should be much more the riches of the Gentiles than their fall was, Rom. 11. 12, 13. and that their coming in should be to the Gentiles as life from the dead, and should much more enrich them than their casting off, ver. 15. I therefore do interpret these words thus, Jerusalem shall be inhabited, not by the Jews, but by the Gentiles ruling there, till the season for the full conversion of the still Heathen Gentiles shall come in, i. e. till the time of the conversion of the Jews, and the flowing in of all the nations to them. See this exposition confirmed in the appendix to the 11th chapter to the Romans, p. 76, 77. and Dr Hammond's sense of the words confuted, p. 73, 74. See here examen Millii. See additions, No. 25.

Ver. 25. [f] Ἠχέσης θαλάσσης καὶ σάλου, The sea, and the waves roaring.] To this I would refer those words of Josephus, At that time ἀμήχανος ἐκπνεύσας χειμών, an immense storm of the sea brake out, and violent winds, with most vehement showers, and terrible lightnings and thunders, καὶ μυκήματα σεισμένης τῆς γῆς ἐξαίσια, and vast roarings of the shaken earth, de bello Jud. l. 4. c. 17. p. 881. or rather to that violent storm called Malemboreas, which happened to the Jews at Joppa, got in boats to the sea, in which their boats perished with a violent noise, the people howling, and the waves roaring at the same time, of which Josephus gives a very tragical description, de bello Jud. l. 3. c. 29. p. 855.

Ver. 34, 35, 36. [g] Προσέχετε δὲ ἑαυτοῖς, But take heed to yourselves, &c.] Here our Saviour calls upon the believing Christians to take care, and use the greatest vigilance that they do not miscarry in this dreadful season, by reason of that excess and luxury which may render them unmindful of it, or those cares which may render them unwilling to part with their temporal concerns, lest they should be involved in that ruin which would come on others, as a snare, suddenly and unexpectedly; and that they should add to this vigilance constant prayer to God, that they may be found worthy to escape these tremenduous judgments, and might stand safely and boldly before the Son of man, when he comes to execute them on the unbelieving Jews. Whence note,

1*st*, That God's promise of a deliverance to the Christians then was only conditional, provided that they took care to avoid those sins which might render them obnoxious to these judgments, and to do those things which might render them worthy to escape them.

2*dly*, That there is to be a connection of our endeavours with the divine aid and providence for our preservation; and that we are not to expect preservation immediately from him, without the use of those means which he hath put into our power to effect it.

CHAP. XXII.

1. NOW the feaſt of unleavened bread drew nigh, which (from the beginning of it) is called the paſſover:

2. And the chief prieſts and ſcribes ſought [a] how they might (ſafely) kill him, for they feared the people.

3. Then [b] entred Satan into Judas, ſirnamed Iſcariot, being of the number of the twelve (which attended him.)

4. And he went away (from the twelve,) and communed with the chief prieſts and captains, how he might betray him to them.

5. And they were glad (of the motion,) and covenanted to give him money, (even thirty pieces of ſilver, Matth. 26. 15.)

6. And he [c] promiſed (to make good his word,) and ſought opportunity to betray him to them in the abſence of the multitude, (or ἄτερ ὄχλου, without tumult.)

7. Then came the day of unleavened bread, when the paſſover muſt (according to the law) be killed.

8. And he ſent Peter and John, ſaying, Go, and prepare us the paſſover, that we may eat (of it.)

9. And they ſaid to him, (or, for they had ſaid to him, Matth. 26. 17. Mark 14. 12.) Where wilt thou that we prepare (it?)

10. And he ſaid to them, Behold, when ye are entred into the city, there ſhall a man meet you, bearing a pitcher of water, follow him into the houſe where he entreth in.

11. And ye ſhall ſay to the goodman of the houſe, The maſter ſaith unto thee, Where is the gueſt-chamber, where I ſhall eat the paſſover with my diſciples?

12. And he ſhall ſhew you a large upper room furniſhed; there make ready.

13. And they went, and found (it) as he had ſaid unto them, and they made ready the paſſover.

14. And when the hour (of eating it) was come, he ſat down, and the twelve apoſtles with him.

15. And he ſaid unto them, With [d] deſire I have deſired, (i. e. I have earneſtly deſired) to eat this paſſover with you before I ſuffer.

16. For I ſay unto you, I will not any more eat thereof, until it (that which was typified by it) be fulfilled in the kingdom of God, (procuring your ſpiritual redemption by the oblation of the true paſchal Lamb.)

17. And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and ſaid, Take this, and divide it among yourſelves:

18. For I ſay to you, I will not (any more) drink of the fruit of the vine, until the kingdom of God ſhall come.

19. And he took bread, and gave thanks (over it,) and brake it, and gave (it) to them, ſaying, This (bread given) is (the memorial of) my body which is given for you, [e] this do, (break bread henceforth thus,) in remembrance of me (giving my body to be broken for you, 1 Cor. 11. 24.)

20. [f] Likewiſe alſo (he took) the cup, after (the end of the paſchal) ſupper, ſaying, (The wine contained in) this cup is (the memorial of) the New Teſtament, (or covenant, ratified) in my blood, which is ſhed for you, (for the remiſſion of your ſins, Matth. 26. 28.)

21. But behold, the hand of him that betrayeth me, (or delivers) me (up to the chief prieſts,) is with me on the table.

22. And truly the Son of man goeth as it was [g] determined (by that God who by his prophets hath foretold my ſufferings,) but (yet) wo to that man by whom he is betrayed.

23. And they began to enquire among themſelves, which of them it was that ſhould do this thing.

24. And there was alſo a [h] ſtrife among them, which of them ſhould be accounted the greateſt (in Chriſt's kingdom.)

25. And (to remove the cauſes of that ſtrife,) he ſaid unto them, The kings of the Gentiles exerciſe lordſhip over them (at pleaſure,) and they that exerciſe authority over them, are called benefactors, (or they who are called benefactors, or princes, exerciſe authority upon them as their ſubjects. See Matth. 20. 25. Mark 10. 42.)

26. But ye ſhall not be (or do) ſo, (i. e. ye ſhall not exerciſe ſuch dominion over others in my kingdom;) but he that is greateſt among you, let him be (ſubject) as the younger (are to the elder, 1 Pet. 5. 5.) and he that is chief, (let him be) as he that doth ſerve:

27. For whether is greater, he that ſitteth at meat, or he that ſerveth? but I (the head of this kingdom,) am among you as he that ſerveth, (and ſo ſhould you be among others.)

28. Ye are they that have continued with me in my temptations, (i. e. my low and afflicted ſtate on earth.)

29. And (though I permit you no dominion over others at pleaſure, but a miniſtry only for their good, yet)

yet) I appoint unto you a [i] kingdom, as my father hath appointed unto me; (giving you power in my name to preside over my church, making laws, as I have done in his name, by which they shall be governed;)

30. That ye may eat and drink at my table, (and so have the honour of grandees) in my kingdom, and (may) sit on thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel, (and so may have the highest power in it.)

31. And the Lord said, Simon, Simon, behold Satan hath [k] desired to have you, that he may sift (i. e. toss and shake) you (by temptations) as wheat (is tossed and shaken in a sieve.)

32. But I have prayed for thee, (who will suffer oft by his temptations,) that thy faith fail not (utterly;) and when thou art converted, (i. e. returned from thy fall,) strengthen thy brethren (subject to like temptations.)

33. And he said unto him, Lord, I am ready to go with thee, both into prison, and to death.

34. And he said, I tell thee, Peter, the cock shall not crow this day (in the morning) before that thou shalt thrice deny that thou knowest me.

35. And he said unto them, When I sent you without purse, and scrip, and shoes, lacked ye any thing? And they said, (we lacked) nothing.

36. Then said he unto them, But now he that hath a purse, let him take it (with him,) and likewise his scrip; and he that hath no sword, [l] let him sell his garment, and buy one; (i. e. now the times will be so perilous that I have need to warn you to arm yourselves as much as may be by faith and patience against the danger of them.)

37. For I say unto you, This that is written (of me) must yet be accomplished in (upon) me (viz.) And he was reckoned among the transgressors, (Isa. 53. 12.) for the things (written) concerning me (will) have an end, (or accomplishment.)

38. And they said, Lord, behold here are two swords. And he said unto them, It is enough (to answer my design; for I intended only by this monition to warn you of the distresses that were now approaching, that you may be prepared for them.)

36. And he came out, and went as he was wont to the mount of Olives, and his disciples also followed him.

40. And when he was at the place, he said unto them, Pray, that ye enter not into temptation; (i. e. that you be not overcome by it.)

41. And he was withdrawn from them about a stones cast, and kneeled down, and prayed,

42. Saying, Father, if thou be willing, remove this [m] cup from me: nevertheless not my will, but thine be done.

43. And (upon this prayer) there [n] appeared unto him an angel from heaven, strengthning him, (by letting him know he should be heard in what he feared, Heb. 5. 7.)

44. And being in an agony, he prayed more earnestly, and his sweat was as it were [o] great drops of blood falling down to the ground.

45. And when he rose up from prayer, and was come to his disciples, he found them sleeping; for (their great) sorrow (had dispirited them, and so rendered them sleepy.)

46. And (he) said unto them, Why sleep ye? rise, and pray, lest ye enter into temptation.

47. And while he yet spake, behold (there came to apprehend him) a multitude, and (with them) he that was called Judas, one of the twelve, (who) went before them, and drew near to Jesus to kiss him; (this being the sign given, by which they that were with him should know Jesus.)

48. But Jesus said unto him, Judas, betrayest thou the Son of man with a kiss? (art thou guilty of such vile hypocrisy as to make this the signal of thy treachery?)

49. When they which were about him saw what would follow, they (not rightly apprehending the meaning of his words, ver. 46.) said unto him, Lord, shall we smite with the sword?

50. And one of them, (not staying for his answer,) smote the (a) servant of the high priest, and cut off his right ear.

51. And Jesus answered, (i. e. spake with relation to that action,) and said, [p] Suffer ye (me) thus far (to be at liberty, as to restore the man to his ear;) and he touched his ear, and healed him.

52. Then Jesus said unto the chief priests, and [q] captains of the temple, and the elders which were come to him, Be ye come out as against a thief with swords and staves?

53. When I was daily with you in the temple, ye stretched forth no hands against me; but [r] this is your hour, and (the hour of) the power of darkness; (i. e. the devil and you his instruments are now permitted to compass my death.)

54. Then took they him, and led him, and brought him into the high priests house, and Peter followed afar off.

55. And when they (the servants) had kindled a fire in the midst of the hall, and were set down together, Peter sat down amongst them.

56. But a certain maid beheld him, as he sat by the fire, and earnestly looked upon him, and said, This man was also with him.

57. And he denied him, saying, Woman, I know him not.

58. And after a little while another saw him, and said (as he had heard from another maid,) Thou art art alſo of them; and Peter ſaid, Man, I am not.

59. And about the ſpace of one hour after, another confidently affirmed, ſaying, Of a truth this fellow alſo was with him, for he is a Galilean.

60. And Peter ſaid, Man, I know not (any thing of) what thou ſayeſt. And immediately while he yet ſpake, the cock crew.

61. And (then) the Lord turned, and looked upon Peter; and Peter remembred the word of the Lord, how he had ſaid unto him, Before the cock crow, thou ſhalt deny me thrice;

62. And (upon this) Peter went out, and wept bitterly.

63. And the men that held Jeſus, mocked him, and ſmote him;

64. And when they had blindfolded him, they ſtruck him on the face, and asked him, ſaying, (Thou who calleſt thyſelf a prophet,) prophefy, (or tell us) who it was that ſmote thee?

65. And many other things blaſphemouſly ſpoke they againſt him.

66. And aſſoon as it was day, the elders of the people, and the chief prieſts, and the ſcribes came together, and led him unto their council, ſaying,

67. Art thou the Chriſt? tell us, (whether it be ſo, or not:) And he ſaid unto them, If I tell you, ye will not believe (me.)

68. And if I alſo ask you (queſtions, to convince you that I am ſo, as formerly I have done, chap. 20. 3.) ye will not anſwer me, nor let me go;

69. (Yet this I do aſſure you, that) hereafter (ἀπὸ τ῀ νῦν, from the time of my death,) ſhall the Son of man (ſoon) ſit on the right hand of the power of God.

70. Then ſaid they all, Art thou then the [f] Son of God? And he ſaid to them, Ye ſay that (which) I am.

71. And they ſaid, What need we any farther witneſs? for we ourſelves have heard (out) of his own mouth, (that he ſtiles himſelf the Son of God, and ſo blaſphemes, by making himſelf equal with God, John 5. 18.—10. 33.)

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XXII.

Ver. 2. [a] Πῶς ἂν ἀνέλωσιν αὐτὸν, How they might take him away;] i. e. without a tumult of the people, Mark 14. 2.

Ver. 3. [b] Εἰσῆλθε ὁ Σατανᾶς εἰς Ἰούδαν, Then entered Satan into Judas;] That is, two days before the paſſover; for, 1ſt, As for that ſupper in which our Saviour gave him the ſop, at which Satan entered, the ſcripture doth expreſly tell us that it was held πρὸ τ῀ ἑορτ῀ τ῀ πάσχα, before the feaſt of the paſſover, John 13. 1. And when our Saviour, having given him the ſop, ſaid, What thou doeſt, do quickly, ſome of our Lord's diſciples thought that Chriſt had bid him buy thoſe things which were needful for the paſchal feaſt, ver. 29. whence it is evident that feaſt was not yet celebrated by them; and here St Luke ſaith, Satan entered into Judas, and he conſulted with the high prieſts and with the ſoldiers, how he might deliver him up unto them: and then it follows, ver. 7, 8. Then came the days of unleavened bread, and Chriſt ſaid to his diſciples, Prepare the paſſover for us that we may eat; ſo that Satan muſt have entered into Judas before the paſſover was prepared. The apoſtle declares that Satan ἐνεργῶν, inwardly worketh in the children of diſobedience, Eph. 2. 2. and leads them captive at his will, 2. Tim. 2. 26. When therefore Judas had, through the temptation of his covetouſneſs, robbed even the poor of their charity deſigned for them, John 12. 6. Satan ſuggeſts unto him another way to ſatisfy his avarice, even the betraying of his Maſter for a ſum of money; and when this ſuggeſtion prevailed with him to go to the high prieſts with that queſtion, What will you give me to betray him? Matth. 26. 15. then Satan fully entered into him, and carried him on without remorſe to the performance of that horrid enterpriſe.

Ver. 6. [c] Ἐξωμολόησε, And he promiſed;] i. e. conſented to do the thing. for that this word doth not only ſignify to confeſs, and to give thanks, but alſo to conſent, and engage, is evident, not only from the inſtitutions of Theophilus, where we read thus προμίτης προμίτηα, τοῦτ' ἐστι, ὁμολογεῖ ὁμολογῶ, that is, ὁμολογεῖν, is to promiſe, but from Phavorinus, who renders ὁμολογῶ, συνίθεμαι, σύμφημι, I promiſe, I conſent, of which import of the word we find many inſtances from Plato, Zenophon, Demoſthenes in Conſtantine; ſo that ἐξωμολόησε is here well rendered, he promiſed, or conſented to the price: nor is it to be wondered that St Luke, born at Antioch, where there was an academy, and ſtudying in the univerſities of Greece, ſhould uſe this word, not as the Septuagint, but as thoſe Græcians did.

Ver. 15. [d] Ἐπιθυμίᾳ ἐπεθύμησα, With deſire I have deſired to eat this paſſover with you before I ſuffer.] I cannot here ſee, what Grotius and others affirm, that Chriſt gives here a reaſon why he would would anticipate the paschal supper, our Lord himself giving a reason of these words in the following supper, viz. that he would eat no more of it, till that which was typified by this paschal lamb was fulfilled in the kingdom of heaven: that is, till he who is stiled our paschal Lamb was offered, and by his death had procured to men a liberty from that death by the fear of which they were formerly kept in bondage, Heb. 2. 15. and in perpetual memory of his oblation, and the benefits purchased by it, had instituted a new paschal supper, in which his disciples should eat at his table with him. That our Lord did not antedate the paschal supper, see in the discourse on the subject.

Ver. 19. Τοῦτο ποιεῖτε, Do this in remembrance of me. That is, say the Papists, sacrifice this, very absurdly; for who ever read in any Greek author, that ζῶμα ποιεῖν signified to sacrifice a body? nor do the Latins say, facere victimam, but facere victima, understanding sacra. Moreover, it is said also of the cup τοῦτο ποιεῖτε, do this, 1 Cor. 11. 25. and yet it is not the cup by which the new covenant is sacrificed, but by which it is established; nor do the Papists say this cup is sacrificed, but only that it is consecrated by those words.

Ver. 20. [Ὡσαύτως καὶ τὸ ποτήριον, μετὰ τὸ δειπνῆσαι, Likewise also the cup after supper, saying, This cup is the New Testament in my blood.] Here is a double metonymy; (1.) That of the cup for the wine contained in it; (2.) That of the sign for the thing signified by it, the wine being the symbol of that blood in which that new covenant was established. And this, saith the evangelist, was said after the paschal supper, to signify that this cup pertained not to the solemnity of the paschal supper.

Ver. 22. Καὶ ὁ μὲν υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου πορεύεται κατὰ τὸ ὡρισμένον. And the son of man goeth as it was determined (of him,) but (yet) wo to that man by whom the Son of man is betrayed.] Κατὰ τὸ ὡρισμένον, i. e. according to the prophecies concerning the death of Christ, made by the counsel and appointment of God. From the wo denounced upon him that should betray the Messias, we learn that he was highly criminal in so doing, and therefore could not be under an absolute necessity of doing so: they therefore who from these words gather that Judas was, from the beginning of this action to the end, under an absolute necessity of doing as he did, by virtue of the decree of God impelling him to this action, render Judas free from guilt; and to them, saith Grotius, we may say as (a) Irenæus did to Florinus, maintaining that some souls were not by choice, but by nature good, and others were by nature evil. These doctrines are not found, nor consonant to the sentiments of the church: nay, they induce the greatest impiety: these things neither the ancients which were before us, and which were the disciples of the apostles, delivered, nor durst our heretics assert. Since God is good, saith (b) Plato, we must by no means allow any body to say he is the cause of the evil done by any, but must by all means refel and reject such opinions. And indeed all the ancients unanimously held, that neither prophecies, nor the prescience, nor the decrees of God laid any necessity upon the will of man; for they who assert this, saith (c) Origen, absolve sinners from all guilt, and lay the charge of all the evils which they do upon God, as by his decree, prescience or prediction, laying upon them that necessity which will not suffer them to do otherwise. They also, saith he, take away τὸ ἐφ' ἡμῖν, the freedom of our will, and with that praise and dispraise, or all difference betwixt things worthy of praise or reprehension. (d) This doctrine also cuts off all that is said of the equity of the divine judgment, and of the threats made against, or the punishments inflicted on the wicked, and of the promises of a better life, and the reward of them that do well. For, saith (e) Clemens of Alexandria, There is no difference betwixt faith and infidelity; nor is either of them worthy of praise or dispraise, if they have προηγουμένην τὴν ἐκ τοῦ τὰ πάντα δυνατοῦ φυσικὴν ἀνάγκην, an antecedent physical necessity from God: nor are praises or reprehensions, rewards or punishments, just, (f) μὴ τῆς ψυχῆς ἐχούσης τὴν ἐξουσίαν τοῦ ὁρμᾶν καὶ ἀφορμᾶν, if the soul hath not a freedom of desiring or abstaining from things, but is carried on to them by an unwilling necessity. God, saith (g) Irenæus, hath always preserved to man his freedom and power over his own actions, ut juste damnentur qui non obe-

Ver. 24. [b] Ἐγένετο δὲ καὶ φιλονεικία, There was alſo contention, which of them ſhould be accounted the greateſt;] i. e. which of them ſhould be ſo; for that δοκέω is ſometimes an expletive, ſee 1 Cor. 7. 40. I ſee not any reaſon why interpreters ſhould here ſay, this account of their contention is miſplaced, ſince in the other evangeliſts it is mentioned after Chriſt's admonition concerning his paſſion, viz. Matth. 20. 25. Mark 10. 42. here Chriſt ſaith more than he did there.

Ver. 29. [i] Κἀγὼ διατίθεμαι ὑμῖν, And I appoint to you [illegible] kingdom, as my Father hath appointed to me:] Chriſt ſpeaks not here of the heavenly kingdom, common to all the faithful, but of a kingdom proper to his apoſtles, viz. that as his Father had given him power to make laws by which all his ſubjects ſhould be governed, and to which they ſhould be ſubject, ſo did he give to his apoſtles power to deliver to Chriſtians thoſe evangelical laws which they ſhould all be obliged to obey: now hence it follows, that the goſpels and epiſtles of the apoſtles muſt be owned as the laws of Chriſt. And whereas the nobility in a kingdom uſe to be known by two things, the honour and the power imparted to them, their honour in eating at the king's table, their power in having a ſhare in the government under the king; therefore our Saviour repreſents the honour of his apoſtles by eating and drinking with him at his table, and their power by judging the twelve tribes of Iſruel.

Ver. 31, 32. [k] Ὁ Σατανᾶς ἐξῃτήσατο ὑμᾶς, Simon, Simon, behold, Satan hath deſired to have you, that he may ſift you as wheat, ver. 32. but I have prayed for thee that thy faith fail not.] Here note,

1*ſt*, For the conſolation of good men, that Satan cannot afflict or tempt them without divine permiſſion, Job 1. 12.

2*dly*, That Satan is ſaid Σινιάσαι, to ſift thoſe whom he tempts and afflicts, becauſe afflictions toſs and ſhake them, as wheat is toſſed and ſhaken in a ſieve.

3*dly*, That Chriſt prayed that the faith of Peter might not fail, not becauſe he was conſtituted by him the head of the church, but becauſe he was ſo infirm in faith as to deny his Maſter thrice; whence he deſerved to make ſhipwreck of his faith by the ſubtraction of divine grace; and had actually done ſo, had not his ſudden [illegible] obtained the pardon of his ſin.

Note, Laſtly, [illegible] it is the duty of thoſe who truly have repented of [illegible] to commiſerate the fall of others, and be ſolicitous [illegible] confirmation in the faith.

Ver. 36. [l] Καὶ ὁ μὴ ἔχων, &c. And he that hath no ſword, let him ſell his garment and buy one.] This is not a command to buy a ſword, or to uſe one to repel force with force, as is apparent, partly becauſe Chriſt ſaith here, two ſwords are enough, ver. 38. which ſure they could not be for the repelling thoſe that were to come againſt them; and partly, becauſe he reprehends Peter for uſing one in this manner, Matth. 26. 52. it is therefore only a monition, that the times were now to be ſo perilous, that if things were to be acted by human power, there would be more need of ſwords and purſes than ever: and by ſaying that two ſwords were enough, ſome good interpreters think, he deſigned they ſhould underſtand, he ſpake not this to bid them provide ſwords, but rather to acquaint them by ſymbols, after the oriental manner, with the approaching danger, that they by faith and patience might be the better armed againſt it. According to the deſcant of Theophylact, ὅτω παρασκεύασθε ἑαυτοῖς ὡς κινδύνοις καὶ πολέμοις παρασκεύσοντες· So provide for yourſelves as perſons that may expect to meet with perils and wars.

Ver. 42. [m] Εἰ βούλει διένεγκεῖν τὸ ποτήριον τοῦτο ἀπ' ἐμοῦ, Father, if thou be willing to remove this cup from me.] He, by the Jewiſh phraſe of a cup expreſſes his death. So R. Caijah comforts R. Lakis upon the death of his ſon, by ſaying, This is the path which hath been trode ſince the beginning of the creation; many have drunk, and many ſhall drink of this cup.

Ver. 43. [n] Ὤφθη δὲ αὐτῷ ἄγγελος ἀπ' οὐρανοῦ ἐνισχύων αὐτόν, And there appeared to him an angel from heaven ſtrengthening him.] In St (k) Jerom's time, theſe words ſeem to be wanting both in ſome Latin

Latin and Greek copies, as is insinuated in these words cited in the margin: nor hath Ambrose any thing of this angel in his commentary on this chapter. But (l) Epiphanius answering an objection of the Arians, contending Christ could not be God, ὅτι ἐπεδέετο καὶ ἰσχυρᾶς ἀγγέλων, because he wanted the help of angels, acknowledged, that this was written in the gospel of St Luke, making no mention of any variation of the copies; whence it may be conjectured, this variation happened after the conflict with the Arians. But whereas Woltzogenius saith after them, That this anxiety and consternation of our Lord, which required that he should be strengthned by an angel, proves he was not God; he might as well have hence concluded, that he was not filled with the Spirit above measure: and before he made this conclusion, he should have confuted Grotius, saying here, That the Divinity dwelling in him, had substracted his influence; whence, Christ being left to his human nature, needed the comfort of an angel; for otherwise, he who with a word made the whole band of soldiers fall to the earth, John 18. 6. and healed the ear of Malchus with a touch, ver. 51. of this chapter, sure gave sufficient indications of the Divinity residing in him.

Ver. 44. ° Ἐγένετο δὲ ὁ ἱδρὼς αὐτοῦ ὡσεὶ θρόμβοι αἵματος, And his sweat was as it were great drops of blood.] I own that these words do not certainly signify, that the matter of this sweat was blood, but only that it was thick and viscous, like to blood falling from the nose in a small clot, at the end of bleeding; but I see nothing why this might not be so great an agony as to force blood out of his capillary veins, to mix with it; this being no unusual thing: for (m) Aristotle says, ἤδη τινὲς ἵδρωσαν αἱματώδη ἱδρῶτα, Some have swate a bloody sweat; and again, (n) ἤδη τισὶν ἱδρῶσαι ὑπὸ αἱματώδει περιττώματος διὰ κακεξίαν, Some, through an ill habit of body, have swate a bloody excrement. And (o) Diodorus Siculus saith of the Indian serpents, That if any one be bitten by them, he is tormented with excessive pains, καὶ ῥύσις ἱδρῶτος αἱματώδους καίεται, and seized with a bloody sweat.

Ver. 51. ᵖ Ἐᾶτε ἕως τούτου, Suffer ye thus far.] I do not think that Christ spake this to his disciples, bidding them to permit his enemies to deal thus with them, and not do any thing for his rescue, but rather that he spake thus to the soldiers, Permit this injury or assault, offered by one of my apostles, which I will presently repair; for it follows, and he healed him; and this he said and did, partly to shew, that he who had such power to heal, and throw down his enemies, was taken willingly, and not for want of power to preserve himself, and partly to preserve his apostles from their assaults.

Ver. 52. ᵠ Καὶ στρατηγοὺς τοῦ Ἱεροῦ, And captains of the temple.] It is past doubt with me, saith Dr Lightfoot, that these captains of the temple were not the Roman soldiers placed in the tower of Antonia, of whose conspiring against the life of Christ we read not, but the captains of the several watches of the temple; for, say the Jews, the priests kept watch in three places of the temple, and the Levites in twenty one; and to every one of these watches there was a chief, they consisting of many, and to them all, one who was eminently ἀρχηγὸς, the captain, or chief ruler of the temple. But these, say some, could not be Jews, because they kept watch at the passover, and on the sabbath. To this I answer, That the Jews did not think their feasts or sabbaths were profaned by service done in and to the temple on that day. See the notes on Matth. 12. 5. That the Jews had then such watches, we learn from those words of Pilate, Matth. 27. 65. ἔχετε κουστωδίαν, Ye have a watch. That the office of the priests and Levites was called a warfare, see note on 1 Cor. 9. 7. That these captains were not Romans, may probably be argued even from their name, captains of the temple; which name is never given by Josephus to the governors of the soldiers in the tower of Antonia; they being by him called (p) ἐπάρχους, the governors of the castle; whereas this officer is still called ὁ στρατηγὸς, the ruler of the temple, both by the scripture, Acts 4. 1.—5, 24, 26. and by (q) Josephus; and by Dr Lightfoot he is supposed to be the same with the man of the mount, so often mentioned in the Jewish writers, or the ruler of the mountain of the house. And by what we read of him, both in Josephus and the scripture, he seems to be an officer of the high priests, appointed to bring them who offended in the temple, (as the apostles were thought to have done, by preaching in it Jesus,) to the high priest and sanhedrim to be punished.

[Σὺ οὖν εἶ ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ Θεοῦ; Art thou the Son of God?—I am, ver. 71. what need we any farther witneſſes? Matth. 26. 63, 65. Behold ye have heard his blaſphemy.] They conclude Chriſt guilty of blaſphemy, and conſequently of death, becauſe he ſtiled himſelf the Son of God, not in their ſenſe, in which they allowed that of the Pſalmiſt to belong to him, Thou art my ſon, Pſal. 27. 12. but in his own; i. e. becauſe being a man he made himſelf God, Job 10. 33. Whence it is manifeſt, (1.) That in the ſenſe of the Jews, to own himſelf the Son of God, and to make himſelf God, was the ſame thing. (2.) Hence alſo it is certain, that the Jews of that age did not think the Meſſias was to be God, but only a man, who could not challenge to himſelf divinity, ſeeing they never conclude him a blaſphemer, becauſe he ſaid he was the Chriſt, but only becauſe he ſaid he was the Son of God, by that making himſelf equal with God, John 5. 18. and becauſe he declared, he ſhortly was to ſit at the right hand of power, Matth. 26. 64.

CHAP. XXIII.

1 AND the whole multitude of them (of the ſanhedrim) aroſe, and led him to Pilate.

2. And they began to accuſe him, ſaying, We found this fellow perverting the nation, and [a] forbidding to give tribute to Cæſar, (ſee chap. 20. 25. y) ſaying, That he himſelf is Chriſt a king.

3. And Pilate asked him, ſaying, Art thou the king of the Jews? He anſwered and ſaid, Thou ſayſt it; (i. e. it is as thou haſt ſaid.)

4. Then ſaid Pilate to the chief prieſts, and to the people, I find no fault in this man.

5. And they were the more fierce, (upon theſe words of Pilate,) ſaying, He ſtirreth up (all) the people, teaching throughout all Jewry, beginning from Galilee to this place.

6. When Pilate heard of Galilee, he asked them, Whether the man was a Galilean:

7. And aſſoon as he knew that he belonged to Herods juriſdiction, he ſent him to Herod, who himſelf was alſo at Jeruſalem at that time.

8. And when Herod ſaw Jeſus, he was exceeding glad; for he was deſirous to ſee him of a long ſeaſon; becauſe he had heard many things of him, and he hoped to have ſeen ſome miracle done by him.

9. Then he queſtioned with him in many words, but he anſwered him (to) nothing.

10. And the chief prieſts and ſcribes ſtood (before Herod,) and vehemently accuſed him.

11. And Herod with his men of war ſet him at nought, and mocked him, and arrayed him in a gorgeous robe, (as a mock-king,) and ſent him again to Pilate.

12. And the ſame day Pilate and Herod were made friends together; for before they were at enmity between themſelves.

13. And Pilate, when he had called together the chief prieſts, and rulers, and the people,

14. Said to them, Ye have brought this man to me, as one that perverteth the people, and behold, I having examined him before you, have found no fault in this man, touching thoſe things whereof ye accuſe him.

15. No, nor yet Herod; for I ſent you to him (to whoſe juriſdiction he belongs,) and lo, nothing (as to one) worthy of death, is done to him (by Herod.)

16. I will therefore [b] chaſtiſe him, (as if he were to die,) and (then I will) releaſe him, (as the fitteſt perſon to be releaſed at this feaſt.)

17. (This he ſaid,) For (becauſe) of neceſſity, he muſt releaſe one to them at the feaſt (of the paſſover.)

18. And (But) they cried out all at once, ſaying, Away with this man, and releaſe to us Barabbas:

19. Who for a certain ſedition made in the city, and for murder, was caſt into priſon.

20. Pilate therefore, (being) willing to releaſe Jeſus, ſpake again to them (of releaſing him:)

21. But they cried, ſaying, Crucify him, crucify him.

22. And he ſaid to them the third time, Why (are ye ſo deſirous of his death?) what evil hath he done? (For my part) I have found no cauſe of death in him; I will therefore chaſtiſe him, and (then) let him go, (as the fitteſt perſon to be releaſed at this feaſt.)

23. And they were inſtant with loud voices, requiring that he might be crucified; and the voices of them, and of the chief prieſts, prevailed (at laſt with Pilate to conſent to his crucifixion.)

24. And (ſo) Pilate gave ſentence, that it ſhould be as they required.

25. And he releaſed to them him that for ſedition and murder was caſt into priſon, (viz. Barabbas,) whom they had deſired; but he delivered (up)

(up) Jesus to (be dealt with according to) their will.

26. And as they led him away, (bearing his cross, John 19. 17. finding him weak, and not well able to sustain it,) they laid hold on one Simon, a Cyrenian, coming out of the country; and on him they laid the cross, that he might bear it after Jesus.

27. And there followed him a great company of people, and of women, which also bewailed and lamented him.

28. But Jesus turning to them, said, Ye daughters of Jerusalem, (ye have cause to) weep not for me, but for yourselves, and for your children.

29. For behold, the days are [c] coming in which they shall (find cause to) say, Blessed are the barren, and the wombs that never bare, and the paps that never gave suck.

30. Then shall they begin (to feel such calamities, as will cause them) to [d] say to the mountains, Fall on us, and to the hills, Cover us (from the wrath of God, Rev. 6. 16.)

31. For if they do these things in a [e] green tree, (i. e. to me a righteous person, Ezek. 20. 47.—21. 2, 3.) what shall be done in the dry? (i. e. to those wicked persons, who, like the dry tree, are fit to be burned in the fire.)

32. And there were also two other malefactors led with him, to be put to death.

33. And when they were come to the place, which is called Calvary, there they crucified him, and the malefactors, one on the right hand, and the other on the left (hand of Jesus.)

34. Then said Jesus, Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do, (i. e. who it is they crucify, Acts 13. 27.) and they (viz. the soldiers) parted his raiment, and cast lots (for his upper garment, John 19. 23, 24.)

35. And the people stood beholding (him;) and the rulers also with them, derided him, saying, He saved others, let him (now) save himself, if he be the Christ, the chosen of God.

36. And the soldiers also mocked him, coming to him, and offering him [f] vinegar;

37. And saying, If thou be (indeed) the king of the Jews, save thyself.

38. And a superscription also was written over him, in letters of Greek, and Latin, and Hebrew, (viz.) THIS (MAN) IS THE KING OF THE JEWS.

39. And one of the malefactors which were hanged, railed on him, saying, If thou be (the) Christ, save thyself and [g] us (also.)

40. But the [g] other answering, rebuked him, saying, Dost thou not fear God, seeing thou art in the same condemnation? (i. e. Dost thou not fear him, now that thou art under the sentence of death?)

41. And we indeed (are sentenced to die) justly: for we receive (only) the due reward of our deeds; but this man hath done nothing amiss, (whereby to deserve this sentence.)

42. And he said unto Jesus, Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom, (to be the judge of all men, and exercise all power in heaven and earth.)

43. And Jesus said unto him, [h] Verily, I say unto thee, To day shalt thou be with me in paradise, (and there enjoy the greatest blessing which belongeth to the members of my kingdom.)

44. And it was about the sixth hour (when he was crucified;) and there was darkness over all the earth, (or land of Palestine,) until the ninth hour:

45. And the sun was darkened, and the veil of the temple, (which parted the inward temple from the sanctuary,) was rent in the midst.

46. And when Jesus had cried with a loud voice, he said, Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit; and having said thus, he gave up the ghost.

47. Now when the centurion saw what was done, he [i] glorified God, (by) saying, Certainly, this was a righteous man.

48. And all the people that came together to that sight, beholding the things that were done, smote their breasts, and returned (to their houses full of trouble for it.)

49. And all his acquaintance, and the women that followed him from Galilee, stood afar off, beholding these things, (and were sad.)

50. And behold there was a man named Joseph, a counsellor; and he was a good man, and a just;

51. The same had not consented to the counsel and deed of them (who condemned Jesus:) he was of Arimathea, a city of the Jews, (and he was one) who also himself waited for the kingdom of God, (i. e. expecting it should suddenly appear.)

52. This man went to Pilate, and begged the the body of Jesus;

53. And (by his permission) he took it down, and wrapped it in linen, and laid it in a sepulchre which was hewn in stone, wherein never man before was laid; (taking this care, that our Lord's body might not be cast into the common place assigned for malefactors.)

54. And that day was the preparation, (i. e. Friday,) and the sabbath drew on.

55. And the women also which came with them from Galilee, followed after, and beheld the the sepulchre, and how his body was laid.

56. And

56. And they returned, and prepared ſpices and ointments (to embalm him,) and reſted (from doing this) on the ſabbath day, according to the commandment.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XXIII.

Ver. 2. [a] Καὶ κωλύοντα Καίσαρι φόρους διδόναι, And forbiding to give tribute to Caeſar.] That here they lie againſt their own conſciences, is evident from Matth. 22. 21. but yet this lie was covered under two ſpecious pretences; 1*ſt*, That he profeſſed himſelf king of the Jews, which theſe hypocrites here abuſe, to render him odious to the Romans, though they themſelves ſtill gave this title to the Meſſiah: 2*dly*, That he was a Galilean, and ſo likely to embrace the opinion of Judas Gaulonites, who held it was not lawful to pay tribute to Caeſar. See ver. 6.

Ver. 5. See additions N°. 26.

Ver. 16. [b] Παιδεύσας οὖν αὐτὸν ἀπολύσω, I will therefore chaſtiſe him, and let him go.] Note, That this chaſtiſement was not in order to his crucifixion, and therefore not that puniſhment the Romans uſed to inflict upon malefactors, as a preparative to their crucifixion; of which ſee Lipſius de cruce, l. 2. c. 2. for Pilate intended it in order to his releaſe; he therefore ſeems willing to inflict upon him the puniſhment ſo common among the Jews towards thoſe who did perverſly againſt their law and their traditions, that he might exempt him from that death they did ſo ſtudiouſly endeavour to expoſe him to.

Ver. 29. [c] The days will come in which ye ſhall ſay, μακάριαι αἱ στεῖραι, bleſſed are the barren.] This they undoubtedly had occaſion to ſay at the ſiege of Jeruſalem, and during the war againſt the Romans, not only on the account of the loſs of their children, and the ſale of them who were under 17 years for bondſlaves; but chiefly on the account of that famine in Jeruſalem, which forced Mary, the daughter of Eleazer, to eat her own ſucking child; upon which, ſays (a) Joſephus, there was a vehement deſire of the famiſhed perſon to die, καὶ μαχαιρισμὸς τῶν φθασάντων θεῖν ἀλύσαι καὶ θεάσασθαι κακὰ τηλικαῦτα, and he counted himſelf bleſſed that could die before he ſaw, or heard ſuch evil things.

Ver. 30. [d] Τότε ἄρξονται λέγειν τοῖς ὄρεσι, πέσετε ἐφ' ἡμᾶς, Then ſhall they begin to ſay to the mountains, Fall on us.) That this is a proverbial expreſſion, uſed Hoſea 10. 8. and not to be fulfilled by what the Jews ſhould then ſay, but by what they ſhould afterwards ſuffer, is evident in itſelf, and confeſſed by the Jews; for the Targum upon Hoſea ſpeaks thus, He will bring ſuch judgments upon them, which will render their condition as miſerable as if the mountains ſhould cover them, and the hills fall upon them; ſee the like words, Rev. 6. 15, 16.

Ver. 31. [e] Ὅτι εἰ ἐν τῷ ὑγρῷ ξύλῳ ταῦτα ποιοῦσιν, ἐν τῷ ξηρῷ τί γένηται; For if theſe things be done in the green tree, what ſhall be done in the dry?] The good and juſt man is, by the prophets and Jews, repreſented under the metaphor of a green tree, or a tree whoſe leaves do not wither, Pſal. 1. 3. of a green olive tree, Pſal. 52. 10. of a green fir tree, Hoſ. 14. 8. of a tree whoſe leaves are ever green, Jer. 17. 8. Whereas of the wicked it is ſaid his branch ſhall not be green, Job 15. 32. Thus God by Ezekiel threatens, that he will cut off every green tree, and every dry tree in Jeruſalem, Ezek. 20. 47. that is, as it is interpreted chap. 21. 3. that he will cut of the righteous and the wicked; and it is proverbial among the Jews, that two dry ſticks will burn a green one, i. e. that the company of two wicked men will corrupt, and bring judgments upon a good man.

Ver. 36. [f] Ὄξος προσφέροντες αὐτῷ, The ſoldiers offered him vinegar.] Dr Lightfoot ſhews from Ælius Spartianus, Capitolinus and Trebellius Pollux, that vinegar was the uſual drink of the ſoldiers; two cups were therefore offered to Chriſt, one of wine mixed with myrrh, before he was nailed to the croſs, Mark 15. 23. and this was offered by the Jews, as the cuſtom was to do towards men condemned to capital puniſhments; the other of vinegar by the ſoldiers, in a ſcoffing manner, after he was nailed to the croſs.

Ver. 40. [g] Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ἕτερος ἐπετίμα αὐτῷ, But the other anſwering, rebuked him, &c.] Almoſt all interpreters that I have read here ſay, that this thief began his repentance upon the croſs; and hence others are apt to conceive, that though they repent only at the laſt gaſp they may enter into paradiſe as he did; but this is but a precarious ſuppoſition at the beſt, and like to prove a broken reed to the Chriſtian that depends upon it. For,

1*ſt*, It is not certain that this thief only then began to act the penitent: for any thing we know to the contrary, he might have begun that work in priſon long before; and ſo the whole foundation of their hopes, who depend upon this inſtance, is built upon a great uncertainty.

Object. And whereas in favour of this opinion it

it is said, that both the thieves upbraided him, and therefore this thief must do so at the first, and after that repent;

Answ. I answer, That St Luke here expressly says that one of them only did it, and that the other did rebuke him for it: and therefore to reconcile him with St Matthew let it be observed, that is is usual in the evangelists to ascribe that to many which agrees only to one of them. See the note on Matth. 27. 38. So that is said to be written in the prophets which is only written in one of them, as will be evident from comparing Mark 1. 2.----Mal. 3. 1. John 6. 45.----Isa. 54. 13. Acts 13. 40.----Hab. 1. 5. see Glassius, l. 3. tr. 1. de nomine can. 27.

2*dly*, This probably was the first time that this thief had the knowledge of Christ, or was acquainted with him; he therefore haply had no call, no day of grace, before this hour, and so he brake no vows or covenants, abused no grace vouchsafed, sinned against no such light and strong convictions, resisted no such strivings of the Spirit, as they who live under the gospel dispensation must have often done: what comfort therefore can this example give to them, who having once been washed in the laver of regeneration, still wallow in the mire; who having often heard the joyful sound, have slighted all the promises, despised all the threats, been deaf to all the callings of the word, abused all the means of grace, and resisted all the motions of the Spirit; and to whom Christ may say, as to the Jews, How oft would I have gathered you under my wings, and ye would not?

3*dly*, Observe, That this thief improved his time at last in that extraordinary manner, as perhaps no man ever did before, or will hereafter: he then believed Christ to be the Saviour of the world, when one of his disciples had betrayed, another had denied him, and all of them had forsaken him; to be the Son of God, the Lord of life, when he was hanging on the cross, suffering the pains of death, and seemingly deserted by his Father: he proclaims him the Lord of paradise, when all the Jews condemned him, the Gentiles crucified him as an impostor and a malefactor: he feared God, acknowledged the justice of his punishment, and did with patience submit unto it; he condemned himself, and justified the holy Jesus, declaring that he had done nothing amiss: he was solicitous, not for the preservation of his body, but the salvation of his soul; not only for his own, but the salvation of his brother thief, whom he so charitably reprehends, so earnestly requesteth not to proceed in his blasphemous language, so lovingly inviteth to the fear of God. So that the glory which he did to Christ by his faith and piety upon the cross, seems such as the whole series of a pious life in other men can hardly parallel.

Ver. 43. [h] Ἀμὴν λέγω σοὶ, σήμερον μετ' ἐμοῦ ἔσῃ ἐν τῷ παραδείσῳ, Verily I say unto thee, To day thou shalt be with me in paradise.] That the word σήμερον, to day, is not to be connected with I say, as if the sense were this, I say to thee to day, but with the words following, so as to contain a promise, that the thief should even that day be in paradise, as to his better part, appears from the familiar phrase of the Jews, who say, of the just man dying, היום ישב to day he shall sit in the bosom of Abraham. 2*dly*, To be sure Christ spake in that sense in which the thief could, and in which he knew he would understand him; now he being a Jew, would surely understand him according to the received opinion of his nation concerning paradise; now they plainly held it to be the place into which pious souls, separated from the body, were immediately received. Hence sprung that oracle of the (b) Chaldees, Seek paradise, the glorious country of the soul. Hence their kind wish for the dying or dead person, Let his soul be in paradise. Now hence it follows, 1*st*, That the souls of men die not with their bodies, but remain in a state of sensibility. Christ here commends his into the hands of God, ver. 46. where the souls of the just are, Wisd. 3. 1. in peace, ver. 3. and in hope, ver. 4. 2*dly*, That the souls of good men after death are in an happy state, a state of joy and felicity; for paradise, saith (c) Philo, is σύμβολον ψυχῆς ὑπὸ πλήθους καὶ μεγέθους χαρᾶς ἀναπλησθεῖσης, the representation of a soul leaping for fulness and greatness of joy; and it is, according to (d) Tertullian, a place of divine delights. So that, as the thief could only be there that day by the presence of his soul, so could not his soul be there without the greatest joy and felicity. See examen Millii his in locum.

Ver. 47. [i] Ἐδόξασε τὸν Θεὸν, he glorified God, saying, Certainly this was a righteous man.] For whosoever doth confess that Jesus is the Christ, doth it to the glory of the Father, Philip. 2. 11. by giving him the glory of his truth in giving testimony to him.

CHAP. XXIV.

1. NOW upon the firſt day of the week, very early in the morning, they, (i. e. the women, mentioned chap. 23. 35.) came to the ſepulchre, bringing the ſpices which they had prepared, [a] and certain other (women came) with them.

2. And (being come) they found the ſtone rolled away from (the mouth of) the ſepulchre.

3. And they entred in (to the outward ſepulchre,) and (ſtooping down to look into the inward, they) found not the body of the Lord Jeſus (there.)

4. And it came to paſs, as they were much perplexed thereabout, behold, two men ſtood by them in ſhining garments:

5. And as they were afraid, and bowed down their faces to the earth, they ſaid unto them, Why ſeek ye the living among (i. e. in the place of) the dead?

6. He (whom ye ſeek) is not here, but is riſen; remember how he ſpake to you when he was yet in Galilee, (that he would riſe the third day, Matth. 17. 23.)

7. Saying, The Son of man muſt be delivered into the hands of ſinful men, and be crucified, and the third day riſe again.

8. And they remembered his words;

9. And returned from the ſepulchre, and told all theſe things to the eleven, and to all the reſt.

10. (And) It was Mary Magdalene, and Joanna, and Mary the mother of James, and other women that were with them, which told theſe things to the apoſtles.

11. And their words ſeemed to them as idle tales, and they believed them not.

12. Then aroſe Peter, and ran to the ſepulchre, and ſtooping down, he beheld the linen clothes laid by themſelves, and departed, wondering [b] in himſelf at that which was come to paſs.

13. And behold two [c] of them (who belonged to Jeſus) went the ſame day to a village called Emmaus, which was from Jeruſalem about threeſcore furlongs:

14 And they talked together of all theſe things which had happened.

15. And it came to paſs, that while they communed together, and reaſoned, Jeſus himſelf drew near, and went with them.

16. But their eyes were [d] held, (either miraculouſly, or by his appearance in another form, Mark 16. 12.) that they ſhould not know him.

17. And he ſaid unto them, [e] What manner of communications are theſe that ye have one to another, as ye walk, and are ſad?

18. And one of them, whoſe name was Cleophas, anſwering, ſaid unto him, Art thou only a [f] ſtranger in Jeruſalem, and haſt not known the things which are come to paſs there in theſe days?

19. And he ſaid unto them, What things? And they ſaid unto him, (The things) concerning Jeſus of Nazareth, which was a prophet mighty indeed and word, (in miracles and doctrine,) before God and all the people;

20. And how the chief prieſts and our rulers delivered him (up) to be [g] condemned to death (by Pontius Pilate,) and (thereupon) have crucified him:

21. But we truſted that it had been he which ſhould have redeemed Iſrael; and beſide all this, to day is the third day ſince theſe things were done, (i. e. the very day in which he promiſed to riſe again.)

22. Yea, and certain women alſo of our company made us aſtoniſhed, which were early at the ſepulchre (of Jeſus.)

23. And when they found not his body, they came (to us,) ſaying, that they had alſo ſeen a viſion of angels, which ſaid that he was alive.

24. And certain of them that were with us, (viz. Peter and John,) went to the ſepulchre, and found it even ſo as the women had ſaid, but him they ſaw not.

25. Then he ſaid unto them, [h] O fools, and ſlow of heart to believe all that (which) the prophets had ſpoken!

26. Ought not Chriſt (according to the ſcriptures) to have ſuffered theſe things, and (then) to enter into his glory?

27. And beginning at [i] Moſes, and (going through) all the prophets, he expounded to them in all the ſcriptures the things concerning himſelf.

28. And they drew nigh to the village whether they went, and he (kept on walking, and ſo) [k] made as though he would have gone further.

29. But they (by their intreaties) [l] conſtrained him, ſaying, Abide with us, for it is towards evening, and the day is far ſpent; and he went in to tarry with them.

30. And it came to paſs, as he ſat at meat with them, [m] he took bread, and bleſſed it, and brake (it,) and gave (of it) to them.

31. And

31. And their eyes were opened, (that which obſtructed the diſcerning of him being removed,) and they [n] knew him, and he vaniſhed (or conveyed himſelf ſecretly) out of their ſight.

32. And they ſaid one unto another, Did not our hearts burn within us, (i. e. was there not in us a great warmth of affection,) while he talked with us by the way, and while he opened to us the ſcriptures?

33. And they roſe up the ſame hour, and returned to Jeruſalem, and found the eleven gathered together, and them that were with them,

34. (And heard them) [o] Saying, The Lord is riſen indeed, and hath appeared to Simon.

35. And they told (them) what things were done in the way (to Emmaus,) and how he (the Lord) was known of them in breaking of bread.

36. And as they thus ſpake, Jeſus himſelf ſtood in the midſt of them, and ſaid unto them, Peace be unto you.

37. But they were terrified, and affrighted, and ſuppoſed that they had [p] ſeen a ſpirit, (rather than a real body, becauſe they knew not how he came in to them.)

38. And he ſaid unto them, Why are ye troubled, and why do (ſuch) thoughts ariſe in your hearts?

39. Behold my (pierced) hands, and feet, (and ſee) that it is I myſelf, (that ſpeak to you;) [q] handle me and ſee, for a ſpirit hath not fleſh and bones, as ye ſee me have.

40. And when he had thus ſpoken, he ſhewed them his hands and his feet.

41. And while they yet (firmly) believed not for joy, and wondred (how this could be, thinking it was too good to be true, and rather might be a pleaſant dream, Pſal. 126. 1.) he ſaid unto them, Have ye here any meat?

42. And they gave him a piece of a broiled fiſh, and of an honey comb.

43. And he took it, and did [r] eat it before them, (for further confirmation to them, that he had a real body.)

44. And he ſaid unto them, Theſe (things) are (done according to) the words which I ſpake unto you, while I was yet with you, that all things muſt be fulfilled which were written [s] in the law of Moſes, and in the prophets, and in the pſalms concerning me.

45. Then (by the ſpecial operation of the holy Ghoſt) [t] opened he their underſtandings, that they might underſtand the ſcriptures (concerning his death, and reſurrection, which as yet they knew not, John 20. 9.)

46. And he ſaid unto them, Thus it is written, and thus it behoved Chriſt to ſuffer, and to riſe from the dead the third day;

47. And that repentance and remiſſion of ſins ſhould be preached in his name among all nations, beginning at Jeruſalem; (i. e. that all men ſhould be called to repent, Acts 17. 30. and to believe in him, for the remiſſion of their ſins;)

48. And ye are (to be) [u] witneſſes of theſe things.

49. And behold, (in purſuance of that end,) I (ſhall ſhortly) ſend the promiſe of my Father (i. e. the holy Ghoſt promiſed by him, Joel 2. 28.) upon you; but tarry ye in the city of Jeruſalem, until ye be endued with (this) power from on high, (Iſaiah 32. 15.)

50. And he led them out as far as to Bethany, and he lift up his hands, and bleſſed them.

51. And it came to paſs, while he bleſſed them, (that) he was parted from them, and (was) carried up into heaven.

52. And they worſhiped him, and returned to Jeruſalem with great joy.

53. And (they) were [x] continually in the temple (at the hours of prayer,) praiſing, and bleſſing God. Amen.

Ver. 18. [f] Σὺ μόνος παροικεῖς ἐν Ἰερουσαλὴμ; Art thou only a ſtranger in Jeruſalem?] Παροικεῖν here may ſignify to be extra patriam, one of another country, and as ſuch a ſtranger to the affairs of Judea and Jeruſalem. So the ſeed of Abraham was πάροικον ἐν γῇ ἀλλοτρίᾳ, ſtrangers in another country, Acts 7. 6. Moſes was πάροικος, a ſtranger in the land of Midian, ver. 29. The Gentiles, not yet called to be fellow citizens with the ſaints, are ξένοι καὶ πάροικοι, ſtrangers and aliens, Eph. 2. 19. And, according to this metaphor, the patriarchs are ſaid παροικῆσαι, to ſojourn in the land of promiſe as in a ſtrange country, Heb. 11. 9. the Chriſtians to live in this world, ὡς πάροικοι, as ſtrangers and pilgrims, 1 Pet. 2. 11. the time they ſpend here is the time παροικίας ὑμῶν, of their ſojourning, 1 Pet. 1. 17. So alſo the (d) philoſophers held, that heaven was their own country, that they were τῆς πόλεως τῆς ἄνω πολίται, citizens of the city above, and ſtrangers in this world. Hence any one who is ignorant of what is done in any place, is ſtiled a ſtranger in it. So (e) Antoninus ſaith they are ξένοι κόσμου, ſtrangers in the world who know not what is done in it. And (f) Cicero ſpeaks thus to Atticus, I deſire thee, ne illuc hoſpes veniam, that I may not come thither as a ſtranger, that is, as ignorant of things done there; and again, it is ſomething for him that comes to Rome, non eſſe hoſpitem et peregrinum, not to be ignorant of what is done there; and in his familiar epiſtles he writes for inſtructions in what is done in the commonwealth, (g) ne hoſpes plane veniam, that he might not come thither as a ſtranger: ſo here, Art thou a ſtranger? i. e. art thou ignorant of things well known to all that dwell at Jeruſalem?

Ver. 20. [g] Εἰς κρίμα θανάτου, To the ſentence of death.] So 1 Kings 13. 28. all Iſrael heard τὸ κρίμα τοῦτο, this judicial ſentence of king Solomon: τὸ κρίμα τοῦ Μωάβ, is God's ſentence againſt Moab, Jer. 48. 46. and τὸ κρίμα Βαβυλῶνος, his ſentence againſt Babylon, chap. 51. 9. Let my ſentence, τὸ κρίμα μου, come forth from thy preſence, ſaith the pſalmiſt, Pſal. 17. 3. See the note on Rom. 3. 4.

Ver. 25. [h] Oh fools!] Hence note, that the command, Matth. 5. 22. is not always tranſgreſſed by this expreſſion, but only then when it is uſed without cauſe, from an undue commotion of ſpirit, or a mind evilly affected towards our brother.

Ver. 27. [i] Καὶ ἀρξάμενος ἀπὸ Μωσέως, And beginning from Moſes, he expounded the things concerning him.] If the things concerning him relate to his ſufferings and future glory, mentioned in the preceding verſe, we may hence learn, that the Moſaical ſacrifices, and eſpecially the ſolemn anniverſary expiation, typified the ſufferings of Chriſt, as alſo did the oblation of Iſaac, and the lifting up of the brazen ſerpent.

Ver. 28. [k] Προσεποιήσατο πορρώτερον πορεύεσθαι, He made as if he would have gone farther.] Yea, perhaps he would have done ſo, had they not been urgent with him to abide with them, ver. 29. or he ſeemed to them, by continuing on his courſe, to be willing ſo to do. So Mark 6. 48. ἤθελε παρελθεῖν αὐτούς, he would have paſſed by them; not that Chriſt intended this, but that he ſeemed to them, by continuing his courſe on the ſea, to be willing ſo to do: here, therefore, was no diſſimulation in Chriſt, but only in the diſciples and apoſtles, a miſtaken conjecture from his walking. Now, though words ought to be the certain interpreters of our minds, and therefore ought not to

to be used so as that we may be deceived by them, yet walking hath no certain signification, nor was instituted to be a certain indication of the mind; and so there seems here to be no just occasion for the long discourses which some hence make of lying, simulation, or dissimulation, here being no instance of that kind.

Ver. 29. [l] Καὶ παρεβιάζοντο αὐτὸν, And they constrained him, saying;] They laid this constraint upon him only by their earnest desire. So Lot, κατεβιάζετο, constrained the angels to lodge with him, Gen. 19. 3. So Jacob constrained Esau to accept his present, Gen. 33. 11. So Judg. 19. 7. 2 Kings 2. 17.—5. 16. Matth. 11. 12. Luke 16. 16. Acts 16. 5. See note on Gal. 2. 14.

Ver. 30. [m] Λαβὼν τὸν ἄρτον εὐλόγησε καὶ κλάσας ἐπεδίδου αὐτοῖς, He took bread, and blessed it, and brake, and gave it to them.] This he did, say the Papists, when he celebrated the sacrament, Luke 22. 19. therefore here also he celebrated the sacrament, though in bread only. This he did, say I, when he fed the four and the five thousand; for then ἄρτες εὐλόγησε καὶ κλάσας ἔδωκε, he blessed the bread, and breaking it, gave it to his disciples to give to the multitude, Matth. 14. 19. Mark 6. 41.—8. 6. and will they say, that then also he celebrated the sacrament before the institution of it? 2*dly*, To make of bread a sacrament, it is absolutely necessary, according to them, that Christ should say, This is my body, which here he said not. If they rejoin, that this is to be understood, I say, with as much reason, that wine, the usual concomitant of a supper, is to be understood; and so here will be no example of communicating in one kind. 3*dly*, If Christ here celebrated a sacrament without wine, he also consecrated without wine, which yet the Papists say is never to be done.

Ver. 31. [n] Καὶ διηνοίχθησαν αὐτῶν, And they knew him;] Christ having now removed the obstruction from their eyes; for he would conceal himself from them for a season, that he might more freely discourse with them; when he had done that sufficiently, he would be known to them for the confirmation of their faith; and when they had obtained the certain knowledge of him, ἄφαντος ἐγένετο, he withdrew himself again out of their sight, either by a sudden change of place, or by a cloud cast over his body; whence we can no more argue that he had only an aery body, than that he had the like when ἐκρύβη, he hid himself, passing through the Jews, when they were about to stone him, John 8. 59. Where this word is used of Pelops in (h) Pindar, it signifies one that was lost, and no where to be found, tho' much sought after by the men his mother sent to look after him; and I grant to Mr Cl. that a man may be lost, and not found by them that seek after him without a miracle; but ἄφαντος ἀπ' αὐτῶν ἐγένετο, he became invisible to them, or disappeared from them, seems to carry the matter higher, though it may be otherwise.

Ver. 34. [o] Λέγοντας, saying;] They found the eleven saying at their very entrance, The Lord is risen, or those that were with them, ver. 33. thus greeting them before they could speak.

Ver. 37. [p] Ἔδοκουν πνεῦμα θεωρεῖν, They supposed they saw a spirit, i. e. a phantasm, or a spirit assuming the shape of Christ, and appearing to them in it, viz. because they heard no noise of any doors opening, or of feet moving towards them, and so, though they doubted not of Christ's resurrection, ver. 34. yet might they, for these reasons, doubt of this appearance of him in the midst of them, without knocking at the door for entrance, or giving any indications of his coming to them.

Ver. 39. [q] See my hand and feet ψηλαφήσατε με, handle me.] Christ proves that he had a true body, from the evidence of their sight and touch; and the apostles testify to the truth of the resurrection of his body, as being that which their eyes had seen, and their hands had handled, 1 John 1. 2. therefore those senses must be sufficient to testify to the truth of any body, and much more of the truth of the substance of bread remaining after the sacrament, confirmed also by the taste and smell; and the denial of this must render the argument of Christ here, and the testimonies of the apostles, infirm. Our Saviour goes on in confirmation of the same thing, by saying, A spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have. Now, certain it is that our Lord's argument must be firm; it therefore must be certain, that evil spirits cannot assume such a body as will not yield unto the touch, but only a mere phantom, or an aerial appearance of a body, which cannot cheat the touch and eyes of men. And, 2*dly*, That good spirits, if they can assume a more solid body, yet cannot put illusions upon men in things belonging to their faith, or be sent by God for such ends.

Ver. 43. [r] He did eat before them;] Not to satisfy any hunger his body could have after his resurrection, but to prove to them that his body was truly raised; and seeing it cannot be supposed that Christ, in this action, designed any illusion, it follows from his truly eating, that his body had those parts by which meat is chewed, and a stomach to receive it.

Ver. 44. [s] All things must be fulfilled which are written

Ver. 48. [u] Ὑμεῖς δέ ἐστε μάρτυρες τούτων, And ye are witneſſes of theſe things.] Chriſt's reſurrection being a matter of fact, muſt be proved by the teſtimony of eye-witneſſes, who, if they be honeſt men, and ſuch as ſuffer the greateſt prejudices in fortune, reputation, and life, for this teſtimony, we have the greater reaſon to believe it; for their honeſty muſt render them unwilling to teſtify a falſhood; their intereſt and prudence would not ſuffer them, without any neceſſity laid upon them, to teſtify a lie, much more to teſtify the groſſeſt falſhood to their utmoſt damage, and without any proſpect of advantage. But farther, if they confirm this teſtimony by all kinds of ſigns, miracles, and wondrous powers, exerciſed by themſelves, and others who embraced their teſtimony; if this was done in all places, on all kinds of perſons, for a whole age, or ages, this renders it impoſſible they ſhould thus atteſt a lie; and therefore Chriſt bids them ſtay at Jeruſalem till they were thus empowered, by virtue from on high, to confirm this teſtimony, Acts 1. 8.

They therefore may be ſaid to have continued always in the temple, as conſtantly reſorting thither at the hours of prayer, as the ſacrifices offered morning and evening are ſtiled ὁλοκαυτώματα διαπαντὸς, continual ſacrifices, 1 Chron. 16. 40. 2 Chron. 2. 4. THE PREFACE TO THE GOSPEL of ST JOHN.

BY way of preface to this gospel, I shall endeavour to shew, 1st, Against some antient heretics, and modern Socinians, that not Cerinthus, but St John the evangelist was the true writer of this gospel.

2dly, At what time he writ it, and upon what occasion. And,

3dly, Why Christ still speaketh in this gospel, as one that did, and could do nothing of himself, but acted all things by commission from, and by the authority and power of God the Father. And,

§ 1. First, That not Cerinthus, but St John the evangelist was the true writer of this gospel, may be concluded,

1st, From these words, chap. 21. 22, 23. Then went this saying abroad among the brethren, that that disciple should not die; ver. 24. this is that disciple which testifies of these things, and wrote these things. For, 1st, Hence it is evident, that he who wrote that gospel was a disciple of our Lord, which Cerinthus never was. 2dly, That he was that disciple whom Jesus loved, and who leaned on his breast at supper, and who said, Lord, who is it that betrayeth thee? ver. 20. Now this is the constant periphrasis of St John the evangelist throughout this gospel, viz. John 13. 23.—19. 26.—21. 7. the whole Christian world having still applied these sayings to St John, who being in this gospel still mentioned by this periphrasis, and never by his proper name, as he is in the other evangelists, no better reason can be given of this, than that he was the writer of this gospel, and therefore named not himself. And, 3dly, It was that disciple, of whom the fame went abroad among the brethren that he should not die; now this was so constantly applied to St John the evangelist, that some of the antients declare he died not at all, but was translated, and others, that he only lay sleeping in his grave. See Dr Cave in the life of St John, § 8, 9. and it was he alone of the twelve apostles, who tarried till our Lord came to the destruction of Jerusalem, which he outlived many years. See note on chap. 21. ver. 22.

2dly, For this we have the testimony of all the antient fathers of the church, they all concurring in this as an unquestionable truth, that this gospel was written by St John the apostle of our Lord. This follows from what hath been already proved in the general preface, viz. That the four gospels were generally received by the universal church of God, as gospels written by those authors whose names they bear. Add to this, that the gospel of St John was, saith (a) Eusebius, always reckoned among τὰς ἀναντιῤῥήτους γραφὰς, the books not controverted among Christians; and again, that the gospel of John must be received as being known to all the churches of the world; and a third time, that this gospel, with his first epistle, was without controversy admitted both by the antients, and by those of his time. (b) Irenæus informs us, that Ἰωάννης ὁ μαθητὴς τοῦ Κυρίου, John the disciple of our Lord, who leaned upon his breast, writ his gospel at Ephesus. (c) Clemens of Alexandria saith, Ἰωάννην πνεύματι θεοφορηθέντα, that St John being moved by an afflatus of the Spirit, writ this spiritual gospel. (d) Origen reckons the gospel of St John among τὰ ἀναντιῤῥήτα, the gospels received without dispute by every church under heaven. And Tertullian, among the apostles which instruct us in the faith, reckons St Matthew and St John; among the apostolical men that do it, Mark and Luke: contra Marcion. l. 4. cap. 2.

3dly, They who ascribed this gospel to Cerinthus were guilty of a great absurdity, as (e) Epiphanius observes; for how could those things be wrote wrote by Cerinthus, which do in direct terms contradict his doctrine? He asserted, as (f) Tertullian and others of the ancients testify, the doctrine of the Ebionites; that Christ was born as other men, and was a mere man without the Divinity; whereas the author of this gospel declares him to be the Word which in the beginning was with God, and was God, and that all things were made by him, and not by a virtue far separate and distant from God, as, saith (g) Irenæus, Cerinthus held; Cerinthus therefore could not be the author of this gospel, unless we will suppose that he forged a gospel under the name of an apostle, on purpose to condemn his own opinions. And this consideration is strengthened by the tradition of many of the primitive fathers and others, who say expressly, this gospel was written by St John the disciple of our Lord, to (h) remove that error which Cerinthus had dispersed among men; or that he writ it against the doctrine of the Ebionites.

And, Lastly, Whereas some Unitarians have the confidence to conclude this gospel was written by Cerinthus, because he and his followers did use this gospel, it appears from (i) Irenæus and Epiphanius, that they did constantly reject it, and use only the gospel of St Matthew, and not that entirely.

§ 2. The other objections of the same persons against this gospel are the fruits of ignorance. For whereas,

1*st*, They say that "the other evangelists agree, "that immediately after his baptism our Lord was "led into the wilderness to be tempted forty "days; this forger of St John's gospel saith, the "next day after (his baptism) our Saviour spake "with Andrew and Peter, and the day after went "to Galilee:"

Answ. This is a miserable mistake of the next day after the Baptist returned his answer to the Pharisees enquiring who he was, and why he baptized, John 1. 29. for the next day after Christ's baptism. The series of the story lyeth thus; Christ being newly baptized goes into the wilderness, and leaveth John at Jordan on Judea side. In the time of our Lord's temptation, John having finished his work at Jordan, goes over into the country beyond Jordan, out of the precincts of Judea, and into the Scythopolitan region, and baptizeth at Bethabara, at a water distinct from Jordan, and somewhat above it; thither some Pharisees are sent to him, by commission from the Sanhedrim, to enquire of the authority by which he baptized; the next day after they had made this enquiry, Christ cometh in sight, and John bears record to him; and the next day after that he renews his record, saying in the presence of Andrew, Behold the Lamb of God, ver. 29,—37. and he following Christ, finds out Simon, and brings him to Christ.

Object. 2. "The other three evangelists sup-"pose all along that our Saviour preached but "one year, and therefore they reckon but one "passover; but (the pretended) St John counts "three years and three passovers before his death, "which seems to be an unaccountable contra-"diction."

Answ. But here again we find nothing but mistakes; for none of the three evangelists suppose that our Saviour preached but one year. This, at the first, was the opinion of the (k) Valentinians and other Gnosticks, not of the apostles or evangelists, and it is confuted by Irenæus from the passovers of St John; though some of the fathers fell into the same error, not on the account of these evangelists, but of the prophet Isaiah, saying, he was sent to preach the acceptable year of the Lord, Isaiah 61. 2. that is, the year of Jubilee. See note on Luke 4. 19.

2*dly*, Though the other evangelists mention expressly but one passover at the close of Christ's life, of which they speak, to shew he was the true paschal lamb; yet are they so far from contradicting, that they confirm St John's account of more passovers during the time of our Lord's preaching. For, (1.) St Matthew, chap. 12. 1. St Mark, chap. 2. 23. St Luke, chap. 6. 1. speak of our Lord's disciples plucking ears of corn on the sabbath-day, and rubbing them in their hands, and eating the corn; whereas till after the passover was over, and the first-fruit's sheaf offered, which was always done the second day after the passover, it was not not lawful to eat either parched corn, or green ears, Levit. 23. 14. this therefore is a ſufficient indication of one paſſover then paſt. And this is ſtill clearer from the words of St Luke, who ſays they did this ἐν Σαββάτῳ δευτεροπρώτῳ, on the firſt ſabbath after the ſecond day of the paſſover, or after the oblation of the firſt-fruit's ſheaf. See the note there. So that (l) Epiphanius ſaith truly, ἵνα δεῖξῃ ἐνταῦθεν, hence it is proved, that not St John only, but St Luke and the other evangeliſts mention more than one paſſover; St John mentions another paſſover, chap. 6. 4. in theſe words, and the feaſt of the paſſover was near, and then immediately follows the mention of the feeding five thouſand people with five loaves, and two little fiſhes; now this miracle is recorded, Matth. 14. 15. Mark 6. 35. Luke 9. 12. and ſo they all ſuppoſe our Lord was alſo preaching at this other paſſover.

§. 3. 2*dly*, As for the ſecond enquiry, at what time and upon what occaſion this goſpel was written by St John; Irenæus ſaith only in the general, that he writ his goſpel during his ſtay at Epheſus in Aſia; but whether he writ it there before his baniſhment from thence by Domitian, or after his return from it, or in the Iſle of Patmos to which he was exiled, he ſaith not. The (m) fathers of the fourth and fifth centuries do all agree, that he writ it either (n) in that iſle, or after his return from it; when he was ninety years old, ſaith (o) Epiphanius; when he was an hundred, ſaith (p) Chryſoſtom. So, that according to the account of all theſe eccleſiaſtical writers, St John muſt have writ this goſpel a conſiderable time after the deſtruction of Jeruſalem.

And yet the later writers and commentators upon this goſpel have almoſt generally gone off from this opinion, aſſerting that St John writ this goſpel in the (q) thirty ſecond or thirty third year after our Lord's aſcenſion. And,

§. 4. 3*dly*, Touching the occaſion of the writing of it, (r) St Jerom having told us that St John writ this goſpel, Rogatus ab Aſiæ epiſcopis, adverſus Cerinthum alioſque hæreticos, At the deſire of the biſhops of Aſia, againſt Cerinthus and the hereſy of the Ebionites, who held that our Lord was a mere man; unde & compulſus eſt divinam ejus nativitatem edicere, and ſo he was compelled to ſpeak of his divine original; in which opinion moſt of the later writers agree with him; he adds another cauſe of writing this goſpel, current before and in his time, viz. That (ſ) having peruſed and approved the other three goſpels, he ſupplied what was wanting in them eſpecially as to what our Saviour did before John was caſt into priſon. Accordingly Clemens of Alexandria and Euſebius ſay, that St John obſerving that the other evangeliſts had written τὰ σωματικὰ, that is, the ſeries of our Lord's generation according to the fleſh, he writ a ſpiritual goſpel beginning from the divinity of Chriſt, this being reſerved for him, as the moſt excellent perſon, by the holy Ghoſt. See and compare Euſeb. hiſt. eccl. lib 3. c. 24. with lib. 6. c. 14. And that he did this to ſupply thoſe excellent diſcourſes, and thoſe ſignal miracles which the other evangeliſts had omitted, ſeems manifeſt from the whole tenor of this goſpel.

§ 5. I proceed to the third enquiry, why Chriſt ſtill ſpeaketh in this goſpel as one who did, and could do nothing of himſelf, but acted all things by commiſſion from, and by the power and authority of God the Father.

This is a matter of very great importance: for it is obſervable, that whereas Crellius, in his book de uno Deo Patre, ſect. 2. reckons up thirty ſix arguments againſt the divinity of Chriſt; and Woltzogenius, in his præparatio ad utilem lectionem librorum novi teſtamenti, reckoneth up ſixty againſt it; one half of them are taken from ſome paſſages of this goſpel. And the ſame author, in his prolegomena to this goſpel, ſaith, that in no writing of the evangeliſts or apoſtles are there more arguments againſt the divinity of Chriſt, than in this goſpel. Nor have I yet been ſo happy as to ſee one author who hath given a ſufficient, clear, and ſatisfactory anſwer to the arguments produced from this goſpel againſt that neceſſary article: and I could heartily wiſh, that men ſo skilled in the controverſies betwixt us and the Socinians, as Dr Edwards of Jeſus college is, would rather give us a clear anſwer to the arguments of Crellius de uno uno Deo Patre, againſt the divinity of Chriſt, which is too much wanted, than furniſh us with antidotes againſt Socinianiſm, by producing arguments againſt it, whilſt that and ſuch like books, unanſwered, ſeem to be antidotes againſt antidotes.

I have endeavoured, in my annotations on this goſpel, to do this, by aſſerting that our bleſſed Lord did execute his prophetic office by virtue of that unction of the Holy Ghoſt which he received at his baptiſm; and that all the things which the Socinians urge from this goſpel, as arguments againſt his divine nature, were ſpoken by him as acting in that office here on earth; not by an immediate efflux, or exertion of his divinity, but by virtue of the Holy Ghoſt conferred upon him without meaſure. And that I may not ſeem ſingular in this aſſertion, I ſhall ſtrengthen it with the ſuffrage of ſome of our moſt able and judicious divines, and then confirm it from the plain teſtimonies of ſcripture, and our Lord's own words. Now, of thoſe able and judicious divines who concur with me in this notion, the firſt is Dr Barrow, who in his ſermon on theſe words, Acts 2. 38. Ye ſhall receive the gift of the Holy Ghoſt, ſaith thus, (t) "The Holy Spirit not only "conducted God our Saviour in his fleſhly ta- "bernacle, and with unmeaſurable communica- "tions of himſelf did continually reſide within "him, but alſo did attend him in the conſpi- "cuous performance of innumerable miraculous "works of power and goodneſs, exceeding not "only any natural, but all created power; ſuch "as were by mere word and will, healing the "ſick, and reſtoring the maimed, ejecting evil "ſpirits, diſcerning the ſecret thoughts of men, "foretelling contingent events, reviving the dead, "raiſing himſelf from the grave; which works, "ſome expreſly, others by parity of reaſon, are "aſcribed to the Holy Spirit; for if, ſaith our "Lord, I by the Spirit of God caſt out devils, "Matth. 12. 28. and God, ſaith St Peter, anoint- "ed him with the Holy Ghoſt, and with power, Acts "10. 38."

The ſecond is the judicious (u) Dr Scott, who ſpeaks thus, "When Chriſt came down into the "world, to tranſact perſonally with men, he ge- "nerally acted by the Holy Spirit; for at his "baptiſm we are told, that the Holy Ghoſt deſcend- "ed on him in a bodily ſhape, Luke 3. 22. upon "which it is ſaid, that he went away full of the "Holy Ghoſt, Luke 4. 1. After which, it is plain "that it was by the Holy Ghoſt in him that he "propheſied and wrought his miracles: for ſo "Iſa. 61. 1. the prophet attributes the whole "prophecy of Chriſt to the Spirit of the Lord "which was upon him; and in Matth. 12. 28. "our Saviour himſelf affirms, that he caſt out de- "vils by the Spirit of God; and therefore he ſaith "that the Jews, by attributing his miraculous "works to the devil, blaſphemed againſt the Holy "Ghoſt, Matth. 12. 31. becauſe it was by the "power of the Holy Ghoſt that he wrought "them."

The laſt is Dr Lightfoot, who in his note on Mark 13. 32. ſaith, "We muſt diſtinguiſh be- "tween the excellencies and perfections of Chriſt "which flowed from the hypoſtatical union of the "two natures, and thoſe which flowed from the "donation and anointing of the Holy Spirit. "From the hypoſtatical union of the natures "flowed the infinite dignity of his perſon, his "impeccability, his ſelf-ſufficiency to obſerve the "law, and to ſatisfy the divine juſtice. From "the anointing of the Spirit, flowed his power "of miracles, his fore-knowledge of things to "come, and all kind of knowledge of evangelic "myſteries: theſe rendered him a fit and perfect "Redeemer, theſe a fit and perfect miniſter of "the goſpel."

To illuſtrate and confirm this aſſertion, let it be conſidered.

1. That Jeſus Chriſt, while he was on earth, delivered all his doctrines and precepts in his Father's name, or as one ſent from him, and authoriſed to ſpeak what he delivered in his name, according to thoſe words of his fore-runner, He whom God hath ſent, ſpeaketh the words of God, John 3. 34.

He himſelf often declares in expreſs words, that he was come in his Father's name, John 5. 43. that the Father had ſent him, John 8. 29. that he came not of himſelf, but he ſent him, ver. 42. that he came not to do his own will, but the will of him that ſent him, chap. 6. 38, 39, 40, 57. that the works which he did bare witneſs of him, that the Father had ſent him, John 5. 36, 37. that he ſpake theſe things which he had heard of and ſeen with his Father, chap. 8. 26, 38. and that the Jews were guilty of great ſin, in that they believed not in him whom the Father had ſent, John 5. 38. Of his doctrine he ſaith, My doctrine is not mine, but his that ſent me; and if any man will do his will, he ſhall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I ſpeak of myſelf, chap. 7. 16, 17. ſee the note there: that he ſpake not from himſelf, but from him that ſent him, ver. 18. that as his Father had taught him, ſo he ſpake theſe things, chap. 8. 28. that he had told the Jews that truth which he had heard of God, ver. 40. that the word which they heard was not his, but the Father's that ſent him, chap.

(u) Vol. 2. part 2. chap. 7. p. 60, 61.

chap. 14. 24. that he had not ſpoken of himſelf, but the Father which ſent him gave him commandment what he ſhould ſay, and what he ſhould ſpeak; whatſoever he ſpake therefore, even as the Father ſaid to him, ſo he ſpake, chap. 12. 49, 50. And of his diſciples he ſpeaks thus to his Father, I have given to them the words which thou gaveſt me, and they have received them, and have known ſurely that I came out from thee, and they have believed that thou haſt ſent me, chap. 17. 8. From all which ſayings he concludes, that he that heareth me, heareth him that ſent me, and he that believeth in me, believeth in him that ſent me, chap. 12. 44.—13. 20. Conſider,

2. That he preached his doctrines, and delivered his ſayings to the world, by virtue of that Spirit with which he was anointed; ſo we learn plainly from thoſe words of John the baptiſt, chap. 3. 24. He whom God hath ſent, ſpeaketh the words of God, for God giveth not the Spirit by meaſure to him. See the note there. So alſo he himſelf declares, in his firſt ſermon preached at Nazareth after his temptations; for having read thoſe words of Iſaiah, chap. 61. 1. The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, becauſe he hath anointed me to preach the goſpel to the poor, he hath ſent me to heal the broken hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives,—to preach the acceptable year of the Lord; he began to ſay to them, This day is this ſcripture fulfilled in your ears, Luke 4. 18, 19, 21.

Moreover, it ſeems eſſential to a prophet to act as he is moved, aſſiſted, and incited by the Holy Ghoſt; for a prophet, ſaith (x) Philo ἴδιον μὲν οὐδὲν ἀποφθέγγεται, ſpeaks nothing from himſelf, but all things from another; no prophecy being, ſaith St Peter, ἰδίας ἐπιλύσεως, of the proper motion, or incitation of the prophets, they ſpeaking ſtill as they were moved by the Holy Ghoſt, 2 Pet. 1. 20, 21. And it is eſſential to a prophet ſent from God, and ſpeaking in his Father's name, to ſpeak that only which he had received from him, even as other prophets did, that is, by inſpiration of the Holy Ghoſt; whence by this Spirit our great Prophet is ſaid to be ſanctified, or conſecrated to his office, and ſent into the world, chap. 10. 36.

Prop. 3. The miracles he did on earth, in confirmation of his miſſion and his doctrine, were alſo done by the aſſiſtance of the Holy Ghoſt. So we learn plainly from theſe words of the apoſtle Peter, Acts 10. 37, 38. Ye know how God anointed Jeſus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghoſt, and with power, (or with the power of the Holy Ghoſt) who (thereupon) went about doing good, and healing all that were oppreſſed of the devil, for God was with him. And Chriſt himſelf affirms in one place, that he did caſt out devils by the finger, (i. e. the power) of God, Luke 11. 20. and in another, that he did caſt them out by the Holy Ghoſt, Matth. 12. 28. from the collation of which two places we may rationally conclude, that what he elſewhere ſaith he did by the power of God, was done by the Spirit of God abiding in him. Thus when our Lord came from the wilderneſs, where he was tempted of the devil, he goes throughout all Galilee, healing every diſeaſe, and every malady in the people, and the fame of him goes out through all Syria, and they brought to him all ſick people, and all that were taken with divers diſeaſes and torments, and thoſe that were poſſeſſed with devils, and thoſe that were lunatic, and thoſe that had the palſy, and he healed them, Matth. 4. 23, 24. Now, by what power he healed all theſe diſeaſes and maladies, which raiſed this fame of him in Galilee, St Luke inſinuates, by ſaying, He returned in the power of the Holy Ghoſt into Galilee, and the fame of him was ſpread throughout all that region, Luke 4. 14.

Moreover, our Lord declares he did his miracles by the Father abiding in him, bidding the Jews believe his works, that they might know and believe that the Father was in him, and he was in the Father, John 10. 37, 38. and chap. 14. he proves that he is in the Father, and the Father in him, becauſe, ſaith he, the Father that dwelleth in me, he doth the works, ver. 10. and ver. 11. he adds, Believe me that I am in the Father, and the Father in me, or elſe believe me for the works ſake. Now theſe works being done, as hath been proved, by the Holy Ghoſt, it follows that he muſt be here ſaid to be in the Father, and the Father in him, becauſe the Spirit of the Father, ſtiled the power of the Moſt High, Luke 1. 35. reſided in him without meaſure. And having promiſed to ſend the Holy Ghoſt upon them, and ſaid, they ſhould do greater works than he had done, becauſe he went to the Father, to ſend this promiſe of the Father, ver. 12, 17. he adds, ver. 20. In that day ye ſhall know, that I am in the Father, and you in me, and I in you. Now it is certain that Chriſt was in his apoſtles, by his Spirit abiding with them, ver. 16. and that they were in him by the ſame Spirit uniting them to their head, Chriſt, Eph. 2. 22. —3. 16, 17.—4. 16. and therefore Chriſt muſt be here ſaid to be in the Father, by the Spirit of his Father. See the note there, and ſee more proofs of this, note on John 17. 19, 20, 22. So that from theſe things I conclude, That Jeſus Chriſt, being then in the ſtate of humiliation, and emptied of the form of God, acted, in things relating immediately to his prophetic office, not as God, but only as a Prophet ſent from God, not by the power of his Divine Nature, but of that Spirit by which he was anointed and ſanctified to that office: tho' being alſo God of the ſame eſſence derived from the Father, he might do many other things by virtue of his Divinity, by that diſcerning what was in the hearts of all men, by that walking on the ſea, and ſtilling the ſtormy winds with a word, which he did only in the preſence of his diſciples; and by that doing many other things of a like nature.

Moreover, his Divinity being part of that doctrine which he was to publiſh, he might, upon occaſion, aſſert it, by ſaying, God was properly his Father, and he was properly his Son; and that he and his Father were one, and that all men were to worſhip the Son, even as they worſhipped the Father; with other things of a like nature, relating to his Divinity.

The objection of the Socinians againſt this hypotheſis is fully anſwered, note on Matth. 3. 16.

POSTSCRIPT.

POSTSCRIPT.

I Come now to the chief controverſy betwixt me and Mr Whiſton, which is concerning the time of Chriſt's preaching, and his baptiſm. He ſaith, prop. the 8th, "That the beginning " of our Saviour's miniſtry, both as to his preaching " and miracles, commenced ſoon after that of John " the baptiſt, towards the beginning of the famous " fifteenth year of Tiberius, long before his own " baptiſm;" i. e. according to his computation, near two years before it.

Now, to this propoſition I oppoſe the contradictory aſſertion of (a) Cyril of Jeruſalem, viz. That Jeſus Chriſt preached not before his baptiſm, but then only began to preach when the Holy Ghoſt bodily deſcended on him in the ſhape of a dove. And this probably he might know from the tradition of the Jewiſh converts, who might be baptized with him. Agreeable to this aſſertion is that of (b) Euſebius of Paleſtine, That our Lord beginning to be thirty, came to John's baptiſm, καταρχὴν τὸ τοῖ τριακοντα ἔτη καὶ τὸ εὐαγγελιον κηρύσσειν; and from thence he began to preach the goſpel. (c) Epiphanius, who was born in Paleſtine of Jewiſh parents, ſaith, That our Lord came to the baptiſm of St John the Baptiſt in the 30*th year of his incarnation,* καὶ ἀπιδεῖν, and from that time preached the acceptable year of the Lord. And laſtly, (d) Irenæus ſaith, That he neither could have diſciples, nor could teach before he began to be thirty, magiſtri ætatem non habens; but then he came to his baptiſm triginta quidem annorum exiſtens cum veniret ad baptiſmum, deinde magiſtri ætatem perfectam habens, being then of perfect age to be a teacher: and hence aroſe that (e) canon of the church, to ordain a presbyter τελειοῦται ὄντα ἐτῶν, when he was thirty years old: this being by all the fathers (one alone excepted) gathered, and thought certain from St Luke, that Chriſt came to his baptiſm when he was in his 30th year; ſee the note on Luke 3. 33. where this is proved, and the ſenſe of the words of St Luke is fully conſidered. And, ſaith (f) Langius, That which hath this full conſent of antiquity, and is agreeable to ſcripture, is certainly the truth.

2*dly*, It is the expreſs aſſertion of St Luke, That the Baptiſt began his miniſtry in the fifteenth year of Tiberius; for then, ſaith he, the word of the Lord came to him, and he came forth preaching the baptiſm of repentance, Luke 3. 2, 3. and it is the general aſſertion of all antiquity, that Chriſt was baptized in the ſame year; it is therefore impoſſible that either John ſhould ſo long begin to preach, or that Chriſt ſhould preach ſo long, as he ſaith he did, before his baptiſm. And,

3*dly*, That which Mr Whiſton offers from (g) Euſebius, in favour of his opinion, is a perfect demonſtration againſt it; for he ſaith, St John writ his goſpel to ſupply the defects of the other evangeliſts, who had omitted τὴν πρώτην ἐν ἀρχαῖς καὶ ἀρχὴν τῆ κηρύσσειν ὑπὸ τοῦ Χριστοῦ πεπραγμένων διήγησιν, the narrative of the things done by Chriſt at the beginning of his preaching. Now, ſaith the ſame Euſebius, in the ſame book, Chriſt beginning to be thirty years old, came to John's baptiſm, καὶ ἀρχὴν τὸ ποιεῖ τριακοντα, &c. and from thence he began to preach the goſpel. Moreover, he makes the defect of the other evangeliſts to conſiſt in this, that they ſaid nothing of the time of the beginning of Chriſt's preaching, (which, ſaith he, was from his baptiſm by John in Jordan) till after John's impriſonment; whereas the evangeliſt St John begins there, (i. e. at the beginning of Chriſt's preaching after his baptiſm, ſaying) This beginning of miracles did Jeſus; and goes on through all the time of John's baptizing afterward till his impriſonment, as he ſhews, by ſaying, John was baptizing in Enon, near Salim, for John was not yet caſt into priſon, John 3. 23. Who ſees not now that Euſebius places all the time of Chriſt's preaching, mentioned by St John from the ſecond to the fifth chapter, betwixt Chriſt's baptiſm and St John Baptiſt's being caſt into priſon? Now this being the way that Jerom, Euſebius, and all the antients, who undertook to anſwer the cavils of Porphyry and others, who queſtioned the truth of the goſpels, took to reconcile the evangeliſts in this matter, demonſtrates that they knew and believed nothing of this new revelation, that our Saviour preached about two years before his baptiſm.

To proceed now to the arguments from ſcripture, concurring with the ſuffrage of antiquity, I aſſert,

1. That John the Baptiſt did ſee the Holy Spirit deſcending from heaven, and abiding upon Chriſt at his baptiſm. This is evident, (1.) From the the nature of the thing, it being almoſt inconceivable that there ſhould be ſuch a glorious opening of the heavens, and ſuch a viſible deſcent of the Holy Ghoſt in a bodily ſhape, and that he who ſtood by all the while, and ſaw Chriſt come out of the water, ſhould not diſcern what was more viſible, as being a more glorious appearance.

(2.) This ſeemeth farther evident from the words following, καὶ ἰδοὺ, and behold a voice from heaven, ſaying, οὗτος, this is my beloved Son; for as in the like caſe, καὶ ἰδοὺ, and behold a voice out of the cloud, ſaying, οὗτος, This is my beloved Son, hear him, Matth. 17. 5. was an advertiſement to the diſciples preſent there, that God, from heaven, gave them this teſtimony concerning him who was transfigured before them; ſo the καὶ ἰδοὺ οὗτος, And behold this, &c. Matth. 3. 17. muſt be an advertiſement to the Baptiſt, that he on whom the Holy Ghoſt thus deſcended was the Son of God. And hence John's teſtimony is thus related, chap. 1. 32, 33, 34. He that ſent me to baptize, ſaid, On whomſoever thou (baptizing) ſeeſt the Spirit deſcending, and abiding on him, he it is that baptizeth with the Holy Ghoſt; and I ſaw (this) and (hearing alſo at the ſame time the voice from heaven, ſaying, This is my beloved Son) I teſtified that this is the Son of God.

Nor is it any objection to the contrary, that St Mark, chap. 1. 11. and St Luke, chap. 3. 22. give the words of the voice from heaven thus, Thou art my beloved Son; for as neither of them hath the advertiſement to behold which St Matthew hath, ſo he that ſaith to another of Chriſt, in his audience, This is my beloved Son, ſaith in effect to him, Thou art ſo.

Hence I infer, that the Baptiſt ſaw not the Holy Ghoſt deſcending upon Chriſt as a dove before Chriſt's baptiſm, and conſequently that his teſtimony of this matter, John 1. 32. muſt relate to what he had ſeen at his baptiſm, ſince otherwiſe the Baptiſt muſt have ſeen him twice deſcending thus upon Chriſt, in the very ſame ſhape, and after the ſame manner; whereas, if by the firſt viſion, the ſign of the Meſſiah promiſed to him was ſo fully given him, that he declares that he had ſeen it, and by it was enabled to teſtify Chriſt was the Son of God, what need was there of a ſecond viſion, or to what end was it deſigned?

(3.) There is no reaſon to ſay that the Holy Ghoſt deſcended twice in the ſame ſhape, and with the ſame circumſtances, from heaven upon Chriſt, as this opinion doth ſuppoſe, ſince by the firſt deſcent upon him he muſt be ſufficiently ſanctified and conſecrated to his office. Moreover, he ſpeaks of himſelf, John 3. 17. as of one ſent into the world by the Father, and therefore ſanctified already, John 16. 36. And the Baptiſt ſpeaks of him, not only as one who teſtified what he had ſeen and heard (at his baptiſm), but alſo as one ſent from God, and filled with his Spirit above meaſure, and who had all things put into his hands, complaining that no man received his teſtimony, though God the Father had ſet his ſeal unto it, ver. 31,——34. Now, is it reaſonable to conceive, as Mr Whiſton's opinion forces us to do, that all this ſhould be ſaid by Chriſt, and by the Baptiſt, before that baptiſm in which alone the Father had declared him to be his beloved Son?

Object. It is objected, That when Chriſt came to be baptized of John, he not only knew him, but ſpeaks thus to him. I have need to be baptized of thee, and comeſt thou to me? Which words imply, not only his knowledge who he was, but alſo that he baptized as well as himſelf; yet after his baptiſm was over, and not before, Jeſus went up out of the water, and the heavens were opened, &c. ſince then the Baptiſt ſaid, I knew him not, but had this ſignal given me whereby to know him, viz. the deſcent and abode of the Holy Ghoſt, how comes he to be ſo well acquainted with him before his baptiſm, as the words above-mentioned do imply?

Anſw. 1. To this I anſwer, (1ſt,) That as theſe words, He it is that baptizeth with the holy Ghoſt, and with fire, do not intimate that Chriſt did then, or whilſt he was on earth, do this, but only that he was to do it after his reſurrection and aſcenſion, John 7. 39. Acts 1. 5, 11. 16. ſo the words of the Baptiſt, I have need to be baptized of thee, do not intimate the Baptiſt's knowledge that Jeſus then baptized, (partly becauſe it is not true, ſince Jeſus baptized not whilſt John was at Jordan, but only when he was baptizing at Ænon, John 3. 23. partly becauſe Jeſus himſelf baptized not, but his diſciples only, John 4. 2. and ſurely John who had commiſſion from God to uſe this baptiſm, and probably had baptized theſe diſciples, could not need their water baptiſm;) they therefore only ſignify, ſignify, that Chriſt was the perſon who ſhould afterwards baptize with the holy Ghoſt and fire, and that John needed that baptiſm which would enable him to work miracles, and to ſpeak with unknown tongues.

Anſw. 2. 2*dly*, I anſwer, That John the Baptiſt being filled with the holy Ghoſt from his mother's womb, Luke 1. 15. knew by the afflatus of that Spirit, that he who then came to him was the very perſon on whom the holy Ghoſt ſhould deſcend ſo gloriouſly, and on whom he ſhould abide, that he might impart him to others, ſuch matters being frequently imparted to holy prophets by an immediate intimation of the holy Ghoſt; ſo Simeon being told, he ſhould not die till he had ſeen the Lord's Chriſt, Luke 2. 26. had alſo an afflatus, declaring to him that our Lord was the Chriſt, ver. 27. 32. So Samuel being told by God, that on the morrow a man ſhould come to him to be the captain over his people Iſrael, 1 Sam. 9. 15. when Saul appears, had another afflatus reſembling that of the Baptiſt's here, viz. Behold the man of whom I ſpake to thee, ver. 17. In a word, the Baptiſt being moved to ſay, When he baptized with water, that another was coming after him, who ſhould baptize them with the holy Ghoſt, God tells him, that of this he ſhould ſee an evidence by the viſible deſcent of the holy Ghoſt upon that perſon, who from his fulneſs was to impart of this Spirit to all believers; and when our Lord came to be baptized, tells him again, this was that very perſon.

Anſw. 3. 3*dly*, It is not ſaid, I knew him not, but οὐκ ἤδειν αὐτὸν, I had not known him, John 1. 31, 33. and this is ſo ſaid as to give us juſt reaſon to believe, that this was ſaid after our Saviour's baptiſm; for the words of the Baptiſt bear properly this ſenſe, And I had not known him, but that I came for this cauſe to baptize with water, that he might be made manifeſt to Iſrael (by me;) then follow the words of the evangeliſt, ver. 32. And John bare record, ſaying, I ſaw, (Gr. have ſeen) the Spirit deſcending from heaven like a dove, and it abode upon him, (which, as I have proved, the Baptiſt ſaw at his baptiſm) and no man can prove that he ſaw this before: then follow again the words of the Baptiſt, ver. 33. And I had not known him, (viz. by this ſign of the Spirit's deſcending on him,) but (that) he who ſent me to baptize with water, the ſame (had) ſaid to me, Upon whom thou ſhalt ſee the Spirit deſcending and remaining on him, the ſame is he who baptizeth with the holy Ghoſt. Now, why is the Baptiſt ſo particular in ſaying twice, that he had not known him except he who ſent him to baptize had given him this ſign? if this ſign had not been given him at his baptizing of Chriſt, but long before, why doth he ſay, he came to baptize that he might be made manifeſt to Iſrael, (viz. by him baptizing) if he were not to be made manifeſt to him by his baptizing him, but long before? Why, Laſtly, ſhould a thing of ſo great moment to the confirmation of Chriſt's miſſion, and the Baptiſt's teſtimony of him, as this deſcent of the holy Ghoſt upon Chriſt in this manner ſo long before his baptiſm, be never hinted in the leaſt in any place of the New Teſtament, the ſcripture being as ſilent in it as in the aſcent of Chriſt into heaven after his baptiſm, which the Socinians have imagined? To make this farther evident, conſider that the Baptiſt only ſaith in the other evangeliſts, ἔρχεται, one cometh, or is coming after me, who ſhall baptize you with the holy Ghoſt; but the evangeliſt St John begins his teſtimony thus, John bare record, and cried, ſaying, This is he of whom I ſaid, he that cometh after me is preferred before me, chap. 1. ver. 15. plainly, according to the obſervation of the ancients, beginning his teſtimony after Chriſt's baptiſm, whither the other evangeliſts had only brought him; for when St Matthew had introduced John, ſaying, One cometh after me, &c. whoſe fan is in his hand, &c. he immediately adds, τότε, then cometh Jeſus to be baptized of John in Jordan; the words then, this is he of whom I ſaid this, muſt intimate that this was ſpoken after Chriſt's baptiſm, and not almoſt two years before it. Moreover, when the prieſts and Levites ſent from Jeruſalem to Bethabara beyond Jordan, where John was baptizing, asked him, why he baptized? the Baptiſt anſwers, I baptize with water, but there ſtandeth (Gr. ἕστηκεν, hath ſtood) one among you whom you know not, he it is who coming after me is preferred before me. Now 1*ſt*, When had Chriſt ſtood in the midſt of them, but when he came from Galilee to Jordan to be baptized of John, ſeeing we find not in all the evangeliſts, that Jeſus ever went any whither but to a feaſt at Jeruſalem when he was twelve years old, till he went from Nazareth to Galilee to be baptized of John in Jordan? Mark 1. 9. Matth. 3. 13. whereas the evangeliſt St John repreſents him firſt at Cana, then going thence to Capernaum as to his abode, then to the paſſover, then to Samaria, which ſhews that this was done after his baptiſm. 2*dly*, Theſe words, whom ye know not, fairly intimate, that the Baptiſt then knew him, as alſo doth the demonſtrative pronoun, οὗτος, this is he who cometh after me, &c. and the words ſpoken the next day, This is he of whom I ſaid, He that cometh after me is preferred before me; which, as I have ſhewed, were then ſaid, when Chriſt came to be baptized of John; whereas the Baptiſt ſaith, I had not known him, had not God given me this ſign of the deſcent of the holy Ghoſt upon him, to know he was that very perſon: and therefore, when Chriſt came to his baptiſm, God ſaith firſt to John, by an afflatus, This is the very perſon on whom thou ſhalt ſee this ſign, and then inſtantly upon his baptiſm affords it to him. Moreover, the evangeliſt adds, theſe things were done at Bethabara, where John was baptizing: they therefore muſt be ſpoken before the Baptiſt left that place to go to Ænon, and therefore after Chriſt's baptiſm; for that the Baptiſt ever returned afterwards to Jordan, where Chriſt was baptized, we read not.

Object. 1. Chriſt was then only baptized when all the people had been ſo, Luke 3. 21.

Anſw. To this I anſwer, that Chriſt was baptized of John in Jordan, Mark 1. 7. whereas John continued afterwards at Ænon, and the people came and were baptized of him there, John 3. 33. ſo that when St Luke ſaith, When all the people were baptized, Jeſus was baptized alſo, it is evident, he meaneth only all the people then preſent, or baptized at Jordan by him, Matth. 3. 5, 6. and hence the ſcripture makes an exact diſtinction betwixt John's baptizing at Jordan, and afterwards at Ænon, and perhaps at other places, by ſaying, John 10. 40. that Chriſt went again beyond Jordan to the place, ὅπου Ἰωάννης ἦν πρῶτον βαπτίζων, where John was firſt baptizing, making it evident, that John ſtill followed his office after he had baptized Chriſt, baptizing ſtill in other places: falſe therefore is the inference, from St Luke's mentioning the impriſonment of John before he ſpeaks of Chriſt's baptiſm, that our Saviour was baptized at Jordan at the concluſion of John's miniſtry, that being only the place of John's firſt baptiſm, after which he comes to Ænon, in the half tribe of Manaſſeh, within the precincts of Samaria, and baptizeth, and the people came to him there, and were baptized, for John was not yet caſt into priſon, John 3. 23, 24. St Luke therefore ſpeaks of John's impriſonment by a long anticipation, that he might put all that he had to ſay of the Baptiſt together, which perhaps St John intended to intimate, by ſaying the Baptiſt was not yet caſt into priſon.

Object. 2. All the other evangeliſts, after Chriſt's baptiſm, ſay nothing of him more, but that he was tempted in the wilderneſs; and then when John was caſt into priſon, ὑπεχώρησεν he returned into Galilee, came to Nazareth, and ſo to Capernaum, Matth. 4. 12, 13. Mark 1. 14. Luke 4. 14. whence it ſeems to follow, that Chriſt was baptized but a little before John was caſt into priſon.

Anſw. 1*ſt*, But how much more natural is the obſervation of the ancients, That the evangeliſt St John obſerving this, begins where they had ended, viz. at the firſt appearance of our bleſſed Lord after his baptiſm, John 1. 29. and gave the teſtimony of him recorded, ver. 15. and ver. 26, 27. a little before that?

Anſw. 2. 2*dly*, All the other evangeliſts ſpeak only of the Baptiſt as the fore-runner of Chriſt, or as one ſent before him to prepare his way, and to preach the baptiſm of repentance to the people, πρὸ τῆς εἰσόδου αὐτοῦ, before the entrance of Chriſt upon his office, Acts 13. 24. which all theſe three evangeliſts having told us that he did, and by what arguments he enforced this repentance on them, they all immediately ſubjoin our Lord's coming to Jordan to be baptized of him, and the hiſtory of his enſuing baptiſm; the Baptiſt being therefore only his fore-runner till Chriſt by his baptiſm was anointed with the holy Ghoſt, and conſecrated by this unction to his office, they had no more to ſay of the Baptiſt afterwards; and ſo they only ſpake of what Chriſt began to ſay after that John was caſt into priſon, viz. The time is fulfilled, &c. Mark 1. 14, 15. But the evangeliſt St John ſpeaks of the Baptiſt, not as the fore-runner of, but as one ſent to be a witneſs to Chriſt, chap. 1. 6. which he was enabled to be, only by what he ſaw and heard of Chriſt's baptiſm, ver. 31, 33. before which time he only ſpake indefinitely of one coming after him; but when he had baptized him, he ſaith demonſtratively, This is he of whom I ſpake; and therefore he had reaſon to ſpeak of him as long as he bore witneſs of him, as he afterwards amply did at Ænon, and of our Lord's performances before John was caſt into priſon; they being alſo teſtimonies of Chriſt's miſſion, and that he was the Son of God, and yet entirely omitted by the former evangeliſts. And whereas,

3*dly*, It is ſaid by the other evangeliſts, That Chriſt returned again into Galilee; this well agrees with St John, ſaying, After he had ended his whole hiſtory of the Baptiſt, that Chriſt ἀνεχώρησεν πάλιν, went again, or receded into Galilee, to avoid the fury of the Phariſees, chap. 4. 3. And it ſeems worthy of obſervation, that after Chriſt was baptized he came to Capernaum, ſaith St Matthew, that what was ſpoken by the prophet of the land of Zebulon and Naphthali, in the borders of which Capernaum lay, might be fulfilled; whereas, if Chriſt did what St John mentions, chap. 2. before his baptiſm, he muſt have been there before, and probably have taken up his abode there, John 2. 12. and muſt have done many miracles there before; ſince, when he came to Nazareth, they ſpake thus to him, What things we have heard done in in Capernaum, do alſo in thy own country, Luke 4. 23. and ſo he needed not to come thither again after his baptiſm to fulfil that prophecy.

Object. 3. 3*dly*, From the connection of the words of St Luke concerning Chriſt's temptation in the wilderneſs, chap. 4. 1. with thoſe following, ver. 13, 14. And Jeſus returned in the power of the Spirit into Galilee, and there went out a fame of him throughout all the region round about; it is argued that theſe two things muſt be immediately connected.

Anſw. 1. This is ſaid, not conſidering that both St Matthew and St Mark aſſure us, that this was only done after that John was caſt into priſon: which, as I have ſhewed already, was long after our Lord's baptiſm at Jordan.

Anſw. 2. There is nothing more common in St Luke than ſuch connection of things done a conſiderable time after one another. Thus when he had ſpoken of Chriſt's circumciſion, he immediately ſpeaks of his appearance at the temple when he was forty days old; and yet Mr Whiſton will have his flight into Egypt, and his return thence, to intervene. He introduceth John, ſaying, I baptize with water, but one mightier than I cometh, the latchet of whoſe ſhoes I am not worthy to unlooſe, chap. 1. 16. and then follows Chriſt's baptiſm, ver. 21. and yet the Baptiſt tells us, this was he of whom he had ſaid this, John 1. 27. and ſo, according to the opinion of Mr Whiſton, he muſt have ſaid this almoſt two years before our Saviour's baptiſm. Again, He ſpeaks of the Baptiſt's impriſonment by Herod, chap. 3. 20. before Chriſt's baptiſm, and yet it is certain that he could not baptize Chriſt in Jordan after he was in priſon. In fine, having ſpoken of Chriſt's preſentment in the temple after he was forty days old, chap. 2. 39. he adds, ver. 40. That the child being filled with wiſdom, increaſed, and waxed ſtrong in ſpirit, which ſuppoſes him then of ſome years capable of wiſdom.

Object. 4. But, ſaith Mr Whiſton, this opinion that Chriſt was baptized before he did the things mentioned in the four firſt chapters of St John, puts a chaſm of almoſt two years betwixt Chriſt's baptiſm, and his return to Galilee, after the impriſonment of the Baptiſt.

Anſw. 1. It is ſomewhat ſurpriſing to find that which hath been the obſervation of all the fathers who have writ upon this ſubject, from (a) Clemens Alex. to Theophylact, that is, for a thouſand years, turned now into an objection: their obſervation is this, That the other evangeliſts have paſſed over all that our Saviour did after his baptiſm till John was caſt into priſon; but the evangeliſt St John paſſing by all that they had ſaid of Chriſt to his baptiſm and temptation, begins where they left off, and having told us of many things done after by Chriſt, he adds, that John was not yet caſt into priſon; clearly ſhewing, that according to the tradition they had received, the evangeliſt ſpeaks in theſe four chapters of what happened between the interval of Chriſt's baptiſm and St John's impriſonment.

Anſw. 2. Moreover, ſeeing there muſt be a like chaſm of time in theſe evangeliſts, who ſpeak not one word of Chriſt's leaving Nazareth till he came thence to be baptized of John, or of his preaching, miracles, or baptizing others, before he was himſelf baptized, what abſurdity is it to place this chaſm after Chriſt's baptiſm, as the (b) ancients do, who alſo poſitively ſay, that Chriſt preached not before he was baptized, rather than, againſt the ſuffrage of all antiquity, to place it before his baptiſm? This will be further evident from the words of St Peter, rightly interpreted, viz. of thoſe who have accompanied with us all the time that our Lord Jeſus went in and out among us, ἀρξάμενος ἀπὸ βαπτίσματος Ἰωάννου, (he beginning ſo to do from the baptiſm of John, till the day that he was taken up from us) muſt one be choſen to be a witneſs of his reſurrection, Acts 1. 20, 21. For 1*ſt*, I have proved, note on ver. 20. that to go in and out is to perform his prophetic office. 2*dly*, Thoſe words, beginning from the baptiſm of John, cannot be expounded truly of Chriſt's entrance on his office at the beginning of John's baptiſm: for then the Baptiſt could not be Chriſt's fore-runner, nor could he repreſent Chriſt as one that was to come after him, nor could he ſay he came to baptize, that he might be made manifeſt to Iſrael, ſeeing his preaching and his miracles by which he manifeſted his glory, John 2. 11.— 3. 2. according to the opinion of Mr Whiſton, muſt be done long before his baptiſm; and much leſs could St Paul ſay ſo emphatically, That John was ſent προκηρύξαι πρὸ προσώπου τῆς εἰσόδου αὐτοῦ, to preach firſt the baptiſm of repentance to all the people people of Iſrael, before the entrance of Chriſt upon his miniſtry, Acts 13. 24. but, as Grotius truly ſaith, they are to be underſtood of the time, ex quo Jeſus fuit a Johanne baptizatus, from Chriſt's being baptiſed by John; for it is reaſonable to conceive St Peter ſpeaks of his baptiſm, of whoſe aſcenſion he ſpeaks in the ſame place, ſince otherwiſe the terminus a quo, the baptiſm, and the terminus ad quem, his aſcenſion, will not reſpect the ſame perſon, it being, doubtleſs, Chriſt's aſcenſion that is ſpoken of. In a word, if Chriſt preached two years before his baptiſm, he preached a year and a half before his fore-runner; for it was only in the 15th of Tiberius, that the word of the Lord coming to the Baptiſt, he went out, and preached the baptiſm of repentance, Luke 3. 2, 3. Now in this very 15th of Tiberius the baptiſm of Chriſt is placed by all the antients, ſaying, that he was baptized duobus Geminis conſulibus, which fixeth his baptiſm to that very year. And hence Mr Whiſton's inference, that St John's preaching and Chriſt's muſt begin in the ſame year, is confirmed by all antiquity, declaring that Chriſt was baptized, and afterwards began to preach the ſame 15th year of Tiberius; and the epocha of the Baptiſt's preaching ought to be made the beginning of the goſpel, becauſe, as St Luke truly ſaith, John did εὐαγγελίζασθαι τὸν λαὸν, preach the goſpel to the people, he preaching that men ſhould believe on him that ſhould come after him, that is, on Jeſus Chriſt, Acts 19. 4. He not only baptized with the baptiſm of repentance for the remiſſion of ſins, but pointed to the Lamb of God which taketh away the ſins of the world, John 1. 29. Now this faith, and this remiſſion of ſins through the blood of Chriſt, are the two great doctrines of the goſpel.

And whereas, to avoid the teſtimony of St Luke, who, when he had ſpoken of Chriſt's baptiſm after the people were baptized, and the deſcent of the Holy Ghoſt upon him in the ſhape of a dove, and of the voice from heaven, ſaying, Thou art my beloved Son, which in St Matthew and St Mark are expreſly ſaid to follow Chriſt's baptiſm, immediately adds, And Jeſus himſelf began to be about thirty years of age: Mr Whiſton ſaith, this relates not to the time of his baptiſm, but of his miniſtry long before his baptiſm: In this, as he contradicts all the antients, ſo he makes St Luke to relate firſt what happened at Chriſt's baptiſm, and, in his own opinion, at the end of the Baptiſt's miniſtry, and then, in the immediate enſuing words, to ſpeak of what was done almoſt two years before, than which nothing can be more improbable. 2*dly*, They who refer the word ἀρξάμενος to the beginning of Chriſt's miniſtry, or preaching, as ſome chronologers and others do, ſtill refer it to his miniſtry after his baptiſm; ſo that Mr Whiſton is ſtill left alone with his new notion of Chriſt's miniſtry long before his baptiſm, and his groundleſs diſtinction betwixt Chriſt's private and his public miniſtry, for which there is neither foundation nor colour in ſcripture or antiquity. And, 3*dly*, Whereas Mr Whiſton will not allow the word ἀρχόμενος to refer to Chriſt's years, but will rather have it to refer to κηρύξαι, or ſome ſuch word, i. e. to a word not uſed, i. e. to a matter not ſo much as hinted by him, as I have in my note juſtified the Greek from the cenſure of the critics, and ſtrengthened our verſion with the concurrence of all the Greek fathers who accord with it, and thence infer, that Chriſt was beginning his 30th year at his baptiſm; ſo may it be confirmed by the concurrence of (a) Jerom, and of all the antient verſions, with the ſenſe of our tranſlation.

Laſtly, Whereas he cites, for confirmation of his opinion, the words of the Jews, ſaying, Luke 23. 5. He ſtirreth up the people, teaching through all Judea, beginning from Galilee to this place; and thoſe of St Peter, Acts 10. 37. The word ye know which was publiſhed through all Judea, beginning from Galilee, after the baptiſm which John preached:

Anſ. 1. 1*ſt*, I anſwer, That theſe words agree exactly with our hypotheſis, who ſay, that after Chriſt's temptation, he returns to John, and receives his teſtimony, that he was the very perſon of whom he had before indefinitely ſpoken, yea, that he was the Son of God, John 1. 34. which he had heard only at his baptiſm; and that he was the Lamb of God that taketh away the ſins of the world; of all which things the other evangeliſts had given no account: then he goes into Galilee, manifeſting his glory there; from thence to Jeruſalem, then to Judea, where he baptized by his diſciples, as John did, into the faith of the Meſſiah, whoſe kingdom was ſhortly to be ſet up, and for which they were to prepare themſelves by the baptiſm of repentance, and then again goes back to Galilee. See the note on John 3. 22, 26.

Anſ. 2. 2*dly*, St Peter plainly ſaith, That this word was ſpoken by Jeſus of Nazareth, 1*ſt*, When he had been anointed by the Holy Ghoſt, and power, which after his baptiſm he was; for then he returned from Jordan full of the Holy Ghoſt, Luke 4. 1. and into Galilee, ἐν δυνάμει τοῦ πνεύματος, in the power of the Spirit, ver. 14. whereas, before his baptiſm nothing of this nature is ſaid of him.

2*dly*,

(a) Et ipſe Jeſus erat incipiens quaſi annorum triginta. Hieron. vulg. Ipſe vero Jeſus erat quaſi filius annorum triginta, Syr. Et Jeſus cœperat ingredi in triceſimum annum, Arab. Et erat Jeſus circiter triginta annos natus, Perſ.

2*dly*, That he is ſaid to begin from Galilee, after the baptiſm which John preached, i. e after that baptiſm was concluded by the impriſonment of the Baptiſt: now, though our Lord was baptized above a year before, and by his diſciples did baptize after the manner of John, and to the ſame ends, whilſt John himſelf continued ſo to do, and no longer, yet it was after the ceaſing of the baptiſm of St John that he begins in Galilee to preach the kingdom of God, and declare it was now coming. Thus St Mark tells us, that after that John was put in priſon, Jeſus came into Galilee preaching the goſpel of the kingdom of God, and ſaying, The time (of the coming of the Meſſiah to erect it) is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand; repent ye therefore, and believe the goſpel, Mark 1. 14, 15. and in like manner St Matthew, that from that time (that the Baptiſt was caſt into priſon) Jeſus began to preach, and to ſay, Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand, Matth. 4. 17. the time before, recorded by the evangeliſt St John, was ſpent in doing ſuch miracles, and teaching ſuch doctrines, as might prepare them to receive and believe in him, when he began to preach the doctrine of his kingdom, and to ſet it up. And hence we find, that though Chriſt had diſciples or followers before, yet he had called none before to follow him, or be continually with him, as afterwards he did, Matth. 4. 19, 21. Mark 1. 17, 20. Here, therefore, ſeems to be a clear account of this whole matter: Chriſt cometh from Nazareth to Jordan to be baptized of John, that he might ſee the ſign God had promiſed, and hear him ſtiled from heaven the Son of God, and ſo, by teſtifying theſe things, might make him manifeſt to Iſrael. He hereupon declares what he had ſeen and heard, and ſo pronounces Chriſt the Son of God. Then Chriſt goes on, during the baptiſm of John at Bathabara, at Ænon, and perhaps elſewhere, to work miracles, and to declare that God had ſent his Son to be the Saviour of the world, (but not yet ſaying that he was that Son) and by his diſciples to baptiſe men, at St John did, to fit them for, and to prepare them to embrace the doctrine of his kingdom, when it was to be ſet up. When therefore John was caſt into priſon, and ſo his miniſtry was finiſhed, and gave place to that of Chriſt's, Chriſt goes into Galilee, and there begins to preach that doctrine which was to commence at the ceſſation of John's baptiſm, and ſucceed to it. And therefore the three firſt evangeliſts, paſſing by what Chriſt did after his baptiſm to fit men for this kingdom, begin what they had farther to ſay of him, when Chriſt himſelf began to preach the doctrine of that kingdom. And Chriſt himſelf ſaith, with relation to that epocha, From the days of John the Baptiſt till now, the kingdom of heaven ſuffers violence, Matth. 11. 12. and Luke 16. 16. ἀπὸ τότε, From the time of John the kingdom of heaven is preached, and all men preſs into it.

Note alſo, that whereas in the preface to the goſpel of St John, p. 438. I had ſaid, the paſſovers during the time of our Saviour's miniſtry were but four, I find now reaſon to conceive, with the right reverend biſhop of Worceſter, Dr Allix, and Mr Whiſton, that they were five;

Firſt, From our Saviour's baptiſm, which, by the ſuffrage of all antiquity, was in the 15th of Tiberius, which began on the 19th of Auguſt, and ſo Chriſt's firſt paſſover muſt begin in the ſame 15th of Tiberius; and ſo his laſt paſſover, which, according to the Greek chronicle of Euſebius, was in the 19th of Tiberius, and, according to Phlegon, in the fourth year of the 22d Olympiad, muſt be his fifth paſſover.

2*dly*, Chriſt was baptized in the 15th of (d) Tiberius duobus Geminis conſulibus, i. e. C. Rubellio Gemino et C. Fuſco Gemino Coſs. He dying therefore in the 19th of Tiberius, muſt die, Servio Sulpitio Galba et L. Cornelio Sulla Coſs: that is, in the fifth year following. And this I alſo gather from (e) Dion, who ſaith, that Tiberius died after 22 years, 7 months, 7 Kal. April, or the 26th of March, Cn. Proculo et Pontio Negrino Coſs. Now reckon the conſuls backward to the 19th of Tiberius, and you come to Galba and Sulla.

THE GOSPEL of ST JOHN.

CHAP. I.

1. IN the [a] beginning (of the creation) was the Word, and the Word was [b] with God, and the Word was [c] God.

2. The ſame was in the beginning with God;

(i. e. that divine perſon of whom I am to ſpeak, neither began to be when he was born into the world, nor when the world and all things in it were made; for he then was, and ſo was not a creature, but was God of the ſame nature with him, though as to perſonality diſtinguiſhed from the Father.)

3. [d] All things were made by him, and without him was not any thing made that was made, (whether it be in heaven, or in earth, viſible or inviſible, Coloſ. 1. 16.)

4. In him was [e] life (eternal, he having firſt brought it to light, 2 Tim. 1. 10. promiſed it to thoſe that believe in him, John 6. 40. purchaſed it by his death, Rom. 5. 21. and being the giver of it,) and the (doctrine of that) life (which he taught) was the light of men, (directing them to it.)

5. And the light (now) ſhineth in darkneſs, (the ignorant and vitious world,) and the darkneſs comprehendeth it not; (i. e. the lovers of darkneſs will not receive it, John 3. 19.)

6. There was a man ſent from God, whoſe name was John (the Baptiſt.)

7. The ſame came for a witneſs to bear witneſs of the light (this Word was to exhibite,) that [f] all men, through (that teſtimony of) him might believe (in him.)

8. He (himſelf) was not that light (which came into the world,) but (he) was ſent to bear witneſs of that light.

9. That (perſon to whom he bare witneſs) was the true light, which [g] enlightneth every man that cometh into the world.

10. He was in the world (from the beginning, preſerving the men of it by his providence, and not leaving them without a witneſs of his care of them; Acts 14. 17.) and the world was made by him; (ſo that all men might by his works diſcern his eternal power and Godhead, Rom. 1. 20.) and (yet) the world (through that wiſdom he had given them) [h] knew him not, (1 Cor. 1. 21.)

11. He came unto his [i] own (people the Jews, to whom he was ſent,) and (but) his own received him not:

12. But as many as received him, to them gave he (the) [k] power (or privilege) to become the ſons of God (by adoption to life eternal. See note on Rom. 8. 23.) even to them that believe on his name;

13. Who were born (to that inheritance,) [l] not of blood, (by circumciſion rendering them the ſeed of Abraham,) nor of the will of the fleſh, (by carnal deſcent from their parents,) nor of the will of man, (by his adoption,) but of (the will of) God, (receiving us for his children through faith in Chriſt Jeſus, for we are all the ſons of God by faith in Chriſt Jeſus, Gal. 3. 26. and by his Spirit ſanctifying us, for as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the ſons of God, Rom. 8. 14.)

14. And (that mortal men might attain this life,) the Word was made [m] fleſh, and [n] dwelt among us, [and we beheld his [o] glory, the glory [p] as of the only begotten Son of the Father, (i. e. his power in doing ſuch works as none but he could do)] [q] full of grace, (to procure that pardon of ſin and juſtification which the law could not give,) and truth, (in oppoſition to thoſe types and ſhadows of ſpiritual bleſſings, and good things to come, of which Chriſt exhibited the ſubſtance and the truth, Heb. 10. 1. giving us an inheritance in the celeſtial Canaan, and an entrance into the true tabernacle, ver. 19.)

15. John bare witneſs of him and cried, ſaying, This was he of whom I ſpake (when I ſaid,) He that cometh after me is (to be) preferred [r] before me, for he was before me, (both as to being, and as to dignity.)

16. And of his fulneſs have all we received, and (even) [s] grace for (according to the meaſure of the) grace (of Chriſt, Eph. 4. 7.)

17. For the law was given by Moſes, but grace and truth, (the grace of that goſpel which is ſtiled truth; ſee note on Rev. 2. 1.) came by Jeſus Chriſt.

18. (Nor is there any other means of coming to the the knowledge of the truth, and the enjoyment of that grace; for) [t] no man hath ſeen God at any time, (i. e. as to his eſſence, or that glorious light in which he dwells, and to which no mortal eye can approach, 1 Tim. 6. 16. or as to any full diſcovery, or perfect idea of his attributes;) the only begotten Son, who is [u] in the boſom of the Father, (i. e. moſt intimately acquainted with his ſecrets, and is the image of the inviſible God, Col. 1. 15.) he hath declared him, (i. e. his will and attributes to us in the moſt perfect manner.)

19. And this is the record of John (concerning Jeſus, which he gave to him) when the (Sanhedrim of) the Jews ſent prieſts and Levites from Jeruſalem to ask him, Who art thou? (i. e. Art thou the Chriſt?)

20. And (then alſo) he [w] confeſſed, and denied not (the truth,) but confeſſed, (ſaying of himſelf,) I am not the Chriſt.

21. And (when he had ſo ſaid,) they asked him, What then (art thou?) Art thou [x] Elias (the Tiſbite, whom we expect to anoint him?) And he ſaid, I am not. (Then they enquired further,) Art thou that prophet (raiſed from the dead, whom we expect? Matth. 16. 14.) And he anſwered, No.

22. Then ſaid they unto him, Who (then) art thou? (tell us,) that we may give an anſwer to them that ſent us, what ſayeſt thou of thyſelf?

23. He ſaid, I am the voice of one crying in the wilderneſs, Make ſtraight the way of the Lord, as ſaid the prophet Iſaias, (chap. 40. 3, 4.)

24. And they which were ſent were of (the ſect of) [y] the Phariſees, (and ſo exact, as they ſuppoſed, in all the rites and the traditions which ought to be obſerved.)

25. And they asked him (therefore,) and ſaid unto him, [z] Why baptizeſt thou then, if thou be not the Chriſt, nor Elias, neither that prophet? (or, by what authority doſt thou this?)

26. John anſwered them, [aa] I baptize (you) with water, (to call you to repentance, as I was ſent by God to do, ver. 33.) but there ſtandeth one among you whom ye know not;

27. He it is who coming after me is preferred before me, whoſe ſhoes latchet I am not worthy to unlooſe, (i. e. to whom I am unworthy to be a ſervant.)

28. Theſe things were done in [bb] Bethabara beyond Jordan, where John was baptizing.

29. The next day John ſeeth Jeſus coming unto him, and ſaith, Behold (here is) the (true) [cc] Lamb of God, that taketh away the ſins of the world, (by making a full expiation for the guilt of them)

30. This is he of whom I ſaid, After me cometh a man who is preferred before me, for he was before me;

31. [dd] And I knew him not (till God revealed it to me, or when I ſaid this;) but (knowing) that he ſhould (ſuddenly) be made manifeſt to Iſrael, therefore am I come (came I firſt) baptizing with water.

32. And John bare record, ſaying, I ſaw (Gr. have ſeen) the Spirit deſcending from heaven like a dove, and it abode upon him, (and by this ſign given me of God, I knew him to be the Chriſt, from whom that Spirit ſhould be derived on others, ver. 26.)

33. And (before) I (thus) knew him not; but he that ſent me to baptize with water, the ſame (had) ſaid unto me, Upon whom thou ſhalt ſee the Spirit deſcending, and remaining on him, the ſame is he who baptizeth with the holy Ghoſt.

34. And I ſaw, and bare record, that this is the Son of God.

35. Again the next day after, John ſtood, and two of his diſciples;

36. And looking upon Jeſus as he walked, he ſaith (to them,) Behold the Lamb of God.

37. And the [ee] two diſciples heard him ſpeak (this,) and they followed Jeſus.

38. Then Jeſus turned, and ſaw them following, and ſaith to them, What ſeek ye? They ſaid to him, Rabbi, which is to ſay, being interpreted, Maſter, where dwelleſt thou, (that we may be there with thee?)

39. He ſaith unto them, Come and ſee; (and) they came and ſaw where he dwelt, and abode with him that day (and the night following;) for it was about the tenth hour, (or four in the afternoon.)

40. One of the two which heard John ſpeak, and followed him, was [ff] Andrew, Simon Peters brother.

41. He firſt findeth his own brother Simon, and ſaith unto him, We have found the (promiſed) Meſſiah, which is being interpreted, the Chriſt.

42. And he brought him to Jeſus; and when Jeſus beheld him, he ſaid, [gg] Thou art Simon the ſon of Jona, thou ſhalt be called Cephas, which is, by interpretation, a ſtone, (or a rock, upon whoſe preaching the foundation of my church ſhall be laid; ſee note on Matth. 16 18.)

43. The day following Jeſus would go forth into Galilee, and (as he was going, he) findeth Philip, and ſaith unto him, Follow me.

44. Now Philip was [hh] of Bethſaida, the city of Andrew and Peter, (and ſo came next to be found by him.)

45. Philip findeth Nathaniel, and ſaith unto him, We have found him of whom Moſes in the law, (Deut. 18. 18.) and (of whom) the prophets did write, (as of the Meſſiah which was to come,) Jeſus of Nazareth, the ſon of Joſeph.

46. And Nathaniel ſaid unto him, Can there any good thing come out of (ſuch a wicked, Luke 4. 28. and deſpicable place, ſee note on Matth. 2. 23. as) Nazareth? Philip ſaith unto him, Come, and (thou wilt) ſee (ſufficient reaſon to believe there may.)

47. Jeſus ſaw Nathaniel coming unto him, and (inſtantly) ſaith of him, Behold an Iſraelite indeed, in whom is no guile, (but plain honeſty towards men, and ſincerity of affection towards God.)

48. Nathaniel ſaid unto him, Whence knoweſt thou me (ſo entirely as to pronounce thus of my inward man, ſeeing thou haſt not before ſeen, nor converſed with me?) Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto him, Before that Philip called thee, when thou waſt under the fig-tree, I ſaw thee; (and this thou mayſt believe, ſeeing I tell thee where thou waſt, and how Philip called thee, though I never heard him call thee, nor ſaw thee there with my bodily eyes.)

49. Nathaniel anſwered, and ſaid unto him, Rabbi, (this knowledge ſo proper to a divine perſon, convinceth me that) thou art the [ii] Son of God, thou art the king of Iſrael.

50. Jeſus anſwered, and ſaid unto him, Becauſe I ſaid unto thee, I ſaw thee under the fig-tree, believeſt thou? thou ſhalt ſee greater things than theſe; (ſtronger, and more convincing arguments than theſe to confirm thy faith in this particular.)

51. And (then) he ſaith unto him, Verily, verily I ſay unto you, (my diſciples, that) [kk] hereafter ye ſhall ſee heaven open, (as Jacob did, Gen. 28. 12.) and the angels of God aſcending and deſcending upon the Son of man; (i. e. ſuch extraordinary ſigns of the divine preſence with, and his direction and aſſiſtance in all my works and words, as Jacob had of God's preſence with him, when he ſaw the angels aſcending to receive God's commands, and deſcending to be with him, and direct him in his way.)

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. I.

Ver. 1. [a] Ἐν ἀρχῇ ἦν ὁ λόγος, In the beginning was the Word.] Here note,

1ſt, That ἐν ἀρχῇ, in the beginning, cannot here ſignify in the beginning of the goſpel, but, as Grotius ſaith, it being taken from the word Beriſcheth, Gen. 1. 1. tranſlated by the Septuagint ἐν ἀρχῇ, muſt ſignify cum primum rerum univerſitas cœpit creari, from the beginning of the creation, as appears,

1. From the following words, declaring poſitively, that all things were made by the Word here mentioned, ver. 3. even the world itſelf, ver. 10. and negatively, that without him was not any thing made that was made; which plainly ſhews that the evangeliſt is here ſpeaking of the creation, riſe, or beginning of all things created: and this interpretation is ſtrengthened by all thoſe other ſcriptures which ſpeak of a glory this Word had with the Father before the foundation of the world, and repreſent him as one begotten before the whole creation, as being πρὸ πάντων, before all things; ſo that they all were both at firſt created, and ſtill ſubſiſted by him, Col. 1. 15, 16, 17. and that he in the beginning framed the heavens and earth, even thoſe heavens and that earth that ſhall decay and periſh, Heb. 1. 10, 11.

2. This Socinian gloſs makes a very plain and flat tautology in the words of the evangeliſt; for the ſenſe of them, according to it, muſt be this, that Chriſt was when John Baptiſt preached that he was, or, which is all one, that he was when he was, or when he was preaching his own goſpel. Now, how can it be worthy of an inſpired apoſtle to aſſert, that the Word had a being when he began to preach, or when he was twenty nine years old, that is, when the Baptiſt came to make him manifeſt to Iſrael, this being as true of any other man living as of the Word, even of Judas who betrayed him; and of Pilate who condemned him, and being told as plainly by all the foregoing evangeliſts?

3. Can we imagine that the apoſtle ſpeaking of Chriſt as the Word before he had begun his prophetic office, from which they do aſcribe this name to him, and at the leaſt aſſoon as he was made fleſh, ſhould conſtantly uſe this phraſe which belonged only to him as executing that office; and when, that office being ended, he aſſumed his kingly office, ſhould again aſcribe this title to him, by ſaying, his name is the Word of God, Rev. 19. 13. and yet in his large account of his prophetic office throughout this whole goſpel, he never ſhould be once mentioned by him under that name or title which then ſo properly belonged to him? And,

4. All the philoſophers who ſpake περὶ τοῦ λόγου, of the Word, ſpake of it as that principle καθ' ὃν ἀεὶ ὄντα, τὰ γενόμενα ἐγένετο, by whom ever exiſting, all things were made. This was the doctrine of the Platoniſts, ſaith Amelius, as it was alſo of Zeno, who ſtiles the λόγος eternal, and all the other Heathens who ſpeak of this Logos, and of all thoſe

Jews

Jews who spake of him in the language of Philo, as πρεσβύτατος, the most antient of all beings, and of all those Targumists who tells us the world was made by the Memra Jehovah, Word of God, and as the Jerusalem Targum, that it was he who said to the world, Let it be, and it was. I say, all these Jews and Heathens could not understand the apostle otherwise than Amelius did, when he said, This Barbarian hath placed the Logos ἐν τῇ τῆς ἀρχῆς τάξει καὶ ἀξίᾳ, in the order and dignity of a principle by whom all things were made.

2*dly*, Note also from the same Grotius, that, to be in the beginning, is, in the Hebrew language, put for being from eternity; for sic mos est Hebræis æternitatem populariter exprimere, the being in the beginning, and before the world was, importing a being before time, and therefore from eternity. So Prov. 8. 23. I was set up from everlasting, ere ever the earth was, מראש מקדמי ארץ ἐν ἀρχῇ πρὸ τοῦ τὴν γῆν ποιῆσαι. Micah 5. 2. whose goings forth are Mekedem, from the beginning, from everlasting. And God that abideth Mekedem, Psal. 55. 19. Hab. 1. 12. is ὁ ὑπάρχων πρὸ τῶν αἰώνων, he that is from everlasting. And so it may here signify, and being spoken of him who was from eternity, must import. See additions, No. 2.

Ibid. [b] And the Word was πρὸς τὸν Θεὸν, with God.] And, ver. 2. he was in the beginning with God.] Πρὸς Θεὸν, i. e. μετὰ Θεοῦ, Theophyl. that is, reason was in God, saith Mr Cl. but he gives no instance where the preposition πρὸς in the New Testament signifies in; whereas there be many instances where it hath the signification of עם and μετὰ with; as when it is said, Matth. 13. 56. his sisters are πρὸς ἡμᾶς, with us, Matth. 26. 18. I keep the passover πρὸς σέ, with thee, Mark 9. 19. How long shall I be πρὸς ὑμᾶς, with you? And chap. 14. 49. I was always πρὸς ὑμᾶς, with you. See 1 Cor. 2. 3.—16. 6. So in this evangelist, Eph. 1. 2. πρὸς τὸν πατέρα, with the Father; so chap. 3. 21.---5. 14. And thus in (a) Ignatius, Christ is mentioned as πρὸ αἰώνων ὢν πρὸς πατέρα ὢν, καὶ ἐφ' ἡμᾶς παραγενόμενον, being with the Father before the world, and proceeding from him alone.

Nor will this phrase admit of either of the senses imposed on it by the Socinians: v. g. not of that which saith, he was with God, that is, he was known to God alone; for, (1.) This is not absolutely true, he being known before his prophetic office was begun to the angels, saying to the shepherds, Luke 2. 11. To you is born this day a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord; to the virgin Mary, to whom the angel had revealed that he was the Son of the Highest, one that should sit on the throne of David, and was to be called Jesus, Luke 1. 30—33. to Zachary, Joseph, Simeon, Anna, and the wise men. (2.) It is a gloss without example of any such import of the phrase, and without any probability; for who would think that by saying only Titius was with Sempronius, I should mean that he was known to him alone? And, (3.) This is as true of antichrist, of hypocrites latent among believers, of a secret thief, or murderer; but can it therefore properly be said that they are with God? Wherefore this gloss being so plainly absurd, they fly to a second, viz. that Christ, before he entered upon his prophetic office, was taken up into heaven to be instructed in the mind and will of God, as Moses was into the mount; and upon that account it is here said, that he was with God. But here lyes the great difference betwixt Christ's supposed ascent to heaven, and that of Moses into the mount, that when Moses was called up into the mount, the people had public notice given of it; and he took Aaron and his sons, and seventy elders of Israel with him, who saw the glory of God, Exod. 24. 10. and all Israel beheld the glory of God, as a devouring fire on the top of the mount, ver. 17. and after the forty days were over, it is said, that Moses came down from the mount, and the children of Israel saw him with his face shining, Exod. 34. 30. Now if Christ was taken up into heaven, as Moses was into the mount, why was it not made public at that time? why no witnesses? why no appearance of the glory, to satisfy mankind of the truth of it? And yet we find, that when he was transfigured on the holy mount, he took Peter, and James, and John with him, which circumstance is carefully mentioned by three evangelists; and Peter, who was one of the witnesses then present, lays great weight upon this being done in the presence of witnesses. For, saith he, we have not followed cunningly devised fables, when we made known unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ; but were eye-witnesses of his Majesty. For he received from God the Father honour and glory, when there came such a voice to him from the excellent glory.----And this voice which came from heaven we heard when we were with him in the holy mount, 2 Peter 1. 16, 17, 18. Now let any one compare this with the account which they give of Christ's ascension into heaven. The transfiguration was intended only for a particular testimony of God's favour before his suffering; but even in that he took care there should be very credible witnesses of it: and is it then possible to believe there should be such an an aſcenſion of Chriſt into heaven, for no leſs a purpoſe than to be inſtructed in his ambaſſage, and to underſtand the mind and will of God as to his office, and yet not one of the evangeliſts give any account of the circumſtances of it? They are very particular, as to his birth, faſting, baptiſm, preaching, miracles, ſufferings, reſurrection and aſcenſion; but not one word among them all as to the circumſtances of his being taken up into heaven for ſo great a purpoſe. Now if it were neceſſary to be believed, why is it not more plainly revealed? why not the time and place mentioned in ſcripture as well as of his faſting and temptation? who can imagine it conſiſtent with the ſincerity and faithfulneſs of the writers of the New Teſtament, to conceal ſo material a part of Chriſt's inſtructions and qualifications, and to wrap it up in ſuch doubtful expreſſions that none ever found out this meaning till the days of Socinus? In a word, had either of theſe ſenſes been intended by the apoſtle, why ſpeaks he ſo obſcurely, and ſays not, as the Socinians, that he was taken up into heaven, or was known to God alone; but ſo as to have given ſo great occaſion to that dangerous error, as they ſuppoſe it, of all Chriſtians before Socinus, that Chriſt had a being before the world, or before any thing that was made, and therefore could not be a creature? for the words following, all things were made by him, and without him was not any thing made that was made, muſt exclude him from being of the number of things made, and therefore evidence that he was ſo in the beginning with God, as to be before all created beings.

Ibid. [c] And the Word was God] He was ſo, ſay the Socinians, by office, not by nature, as being the legate and ambaſſador of God: but,

1*ſt*, They have not yet, nor can they ſhew that any thing is in the ſcripture abſolutely, and in the ſingular number, called God, for any other reaſon than that the Divine Nature was imparted to it. It is ſaid indeed of Moſes, Thou ſhalt be to Aaron Beheloim, in the place of God, τὰ πρὸς τὸν Θεὸν, ſaith the Septuagint, in things pertaining to God, Exod. 4. 16. and Exod. 7. 1. God ſaith, See I have made thee Elohim, a god to Pharaoh, viz. by giving thee authority to ſpeak unto him in my name: but then in neither of theſe places is he called Jehovah, nor abſolutely Elohim, but only with reſpect to Aaron and Pharaoh, to whom he was to ſpeak God's meſſage. Grotius ſaith, that the ſame perſon is ſtiled Jehovah in the Old Teſtament, who in the New is ſtiled an angel, and that the ſame perſon is ſometimes called in the Old Teſtament an angel, and ſometimes Jehovah; ſo alſo doth Mr le Clerc on Gen. 16. 13.—18. 1.—20. 1. but without juſt ground; for the angels being God's retinue, and always preſent with him when he made his glorious appearances, there is no reaſon to ſay the angel was God becauſe he appeared with him, or ſometimes ſpeaks or acts by his appointment or in his preſence; but only that God and his glorious angels appeared at the ſame time, and that they ſometimes ſpake as from the Schechinah, v. g. Exod. 3. 2. we read that an angel of the Lord appeared to Moſes in the buſh, and St Stephen ſaith, that the angel of the Lord appeared to Moſes in the buſh, Acts 7. 30. but neither of them ſay that angel was Jehovah, or that the Lord was not preſent there himſelf; but on the contrary ſay expreſly that Moſes heard the voice of the Lord ſaying to him, I am the God of Abraham. St Stephen, Acts 7. 53. and St Paul, Gal. 3. 19. ſay, the law was delivered by angels; but hence it doth not follow that any angel was ſo employed in the delivery of the law as to take upon him the perſon of God, or that any creature ſaid, I am the Lord thy God, &c. And when it is ſaid, that ſome have entertained angels unawares, Heb. 13. 2. I own that Abraham and Lot did ſo; but hence it doth not follow that any angel ſpake as if he were Jehovah, or that Abraham ſpake to them as ſuch, or owned one of them to be the Judge of the whole earth. I rather think with the biſhop of Ely, that it may be granted that the three that appeared to Abraham were created angels; but then they appeared only as the retinue of the Schechinah, or Divine Majeſty ſtiled the Lord, ver. 1. and 13. for after the ſame men who came in, and did eat with Abraham, and roſe from the table, were departed, ver. 16. and 33. Abraham ſtands ſtill before the Lord, that is, before the Divine Majeſty, ver. 1. and ſtiles him the Judge of the whole earth. And this agrees well with the opinion of the Jews, who, as they acknowledge that the three men whom Abraham entertained were created angels, ſo alſo do they own that there was then a ſeparate appearance, or Divine Majeſty, which talked with Abraham. And this takes off the obſervation of Crellius and others in this place, that the name Jehovah is given to angels; for, according to this interpretation, the name Jehovah is not given to any of the three angels which were entertained by Abraham, but only to the Schechinah, or Divine Majeſty which appeared with them, and ſpake to Abraham, from ver. the 10th to the 17th, and to whom after the departure of theſe three, one into heaven, and two to Sodom, Abraham ſtill ſpeaks to the end of that chapter. It was an angel of, or meſſenger from the Lord that ſpake to Hagar, Gen. 16. as appears from his ſaying (not I, but) Jehovah heard thy thy affliction; when therefore we read, ver. 10. that the angel of the Lord ſaid to her, Multiplying I will multiply thy ſeed, it is to be underſtood thus, He ſaid this to her in the name and words of the Lord, ſpeaking not his own, but the Lord's words; and therefore B. Uziel here ſaith, She gave thanks before the Lord, whoſe word had ſpoken to her. Thus Solomon ſent to Hiram, ſaying, either by letters, as Hiram returned his anſwer in writing, 2 Chron. 2. 11. or commanding his ſervants to ſay in his name, David my father, for David was not the father of the meſſengers, and ſo they could not ſay, My father. So the centurion ſent firſt by the rulers of the Jews, deſiring Chriſt to heal his ſervant, and after, by other friends ſaith to Chriſt, I am not worthy that thou ſhouldſt come under my roof, i. e. he deſires them to ſay theſe words as from him, Luke 7. 2,—10. Theſe two are by le Clerc produced as inſtances of meſſengers and legates ſpeaking as if they were the very perſons from whom they were ſent; whence he and others infer, that an angel ſent from God may ſay, I am Jehovah, I am the God of Abraham, as Exod. 3. and I am the Lord thy God which brought thee out of the land of Egypt, thou ſhalt have no other gods but me: whereas in truth they are both inſtances of meſſengers and friends ſpeaking, in the name of them that ſent them, the words which they had bid them ſay as from them, and had put into their mouths; and ſo in like manner the words of the angel ſpeaking to Agar, and others, what belonged to God alone, muſt only be the words which God had commanded them to ſay in his name, and as from him. And this is a ſufficient anſwer to all that is produced by Grotius, le Clerc, and the Socinians, to prove that angels repreſenting God are ſometimes ſtiled Jehovah, and ſpeak as if they were the Lord of heaven and earth, or the God of Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob.

2*dly*, That the Word is here properly ſtiled God, is evident from the context; for, (1.) When it is ſaid in the precedent words, the Word was with God, and when this is repeated in the following verſe, the Socinians themſelves own that the word God ſignifies him who truly and properly is ſo. The apoſtle then muſt either underſtand the ſame God as to eſſence, when he ſaith, the Word was God, or leave all Chriſtians liable to a great and dangerous miſtake, by reaſon of the ambiguity of his words. Moreover, the word God, in this chapter is uſed eleven times in its proper ſenſe; nor can one inſtance be produced from the whole New Teſtament, where, in the ſingular number, it is uſed in any other ſenſe; is it then reaſonable to conceive it is here uſed in that improper ſenſe in which it never is again once uſed throughout this goſpel, or the whole New Teſtament, rather than in that ſenſe in which it is continually uſed in all other places?

Object. Yes, ſay the Socinians, becauſe it is here ſaid, the ſame was in the beginning with God; whereas God, properly taken, cannot be ſaid to be with God, that is, with himſelf.

Anſw. But to this I anſwer, 1ſt, That nothing formally and in the ſame conception can be ſaid to be with that which is one with itſelf; but yet that which is eſſentially the ſame, but hath its title from an internal relation to another, as being God of God, or as having the divine eſſence communicated to it, may be ſaid to be with him; for, (1.) The Wiſdom of God is identically God, according to the old axiom, quicquid eſt in Deo eſt ipſe Deus, whatſoever is in God is God, and yet παρ' αὐτῷ, with him are wiſdom and power, ſaith Job, chap. 12. 13. I was παρ' αὐτῷ. with him, ſays Wiſdom, Prov. 8. 27, 30. all wiſdom is from the Lord, and μετ' αὐτοῦ, with him, Eccl. 1. 1. Thus (b) Philo obſerves, that when God ſaith, He made man after the image of God, Gen. 1. 27. ſpeaking ὡς περὶ ἑτέρου Θεοῦ, as of another God he ſpeaketh of; and πρὸς τὸν δεύτερον Θεὸν ὃς ἐστιν ἐκείνου λόγος, to that ſecond God who is his Word.

2*dly*, The primitive fathers do very plainly and frequently ſay, that the Word was ſtrictly, and from all eternity in God the Father, and yet that before the creation of the world there was a προβολὴ καὶ ἀπόῤῥοια, a projection, or efflux of this Word from the Father, which made him λόγος προφορικὸς καὶ προβλητὸς, a Word emitted or coming forth from the Father; but yet becauſe he came not ſo forth from him as to be ſeparated from him, but was ſemper apud Deum & nunquam ſeparatus a Patre, not ſeparated from the Father, (c) they thought it was here ſaid againſt the Valentinians, that he was with the Father. So Juſtin M. ſaith, he συνὼν, was with the Father, as being ἀπὸ τῆς πατρικῆς προβολῆς γέννημα, a progenies projected from the Father, Apol. 1. p. 44. D. Ap. 2. p. 66. E. Dial. cum Tryph. p. 285. D. 359. A. 284. B. 357. A. So ſpeaks Athenagoras, p. 10. C. D. and Theophilus, p. 100. B. making him from eternity λόγος ἐνδιάθετος, an internal Word, and then ſaying that he was λόγος ἐξεγευγμένος πρὸ τῶν ὅλων, a Word emitted before all things: and Tatian, that the Word which was ἐν αὐτῷ πρόποθε, p. 145. 3*dly*, This alſo is extremely evident from the third verſe; whence ariſeth this argument, He that made all things is God, in the proper acceptation of the word, Heb. 3. 4. but by the Word here ſpoken of were all things made, and without him was not any thing made that was made: he in the beginning laid the foundations of the earth, and the heavens are the works of his hands, Heb. 1. 10, 11. he created all things viſible and inviſible, Col. 1. 16. he therefore muſt be God in the proper acceptation of the word.

4*thly*, It is very manifeſt that the apoſtle here deſigns to tell us what the Word was, and where, before he came into the world, and what and where he was when he came into the world, as may appear from comparing his words together, thus;

In the beginning was the Word, ver. 1.	He came to his own, ver. 11.
The Word was with God, ver. 1, 2.	He dwelt with us, ver. 14.
The Word was God, v. 1.	The Word was made fleſh, ver. 14.
He was in the world, ver. 10.

And laſtly, Whereas theſe words expounded according to the Socinian ſenſe were utterly unintelligible to all the Jews, and all the philoſophers who ever made mention of the Logos; according to our ſenſe, which maketh the Word truly God, and a firſt principle of the creation, they agree perfectly with what they have aſſerted of the Logos. I ſay,

1*ſt*, That they agree fully with the opinion of the Jews, nothing being more evident than that (d) Philo frequently ſtiles the λόγος God, and by the Targumiſt he is very often ſtiled God, as when Jacob ſaith, in the Chaldee of Onkelos, Gen. 28. 21. the Word of Jehovah ſhall be my God, and Lev. 26. 12. my Word ſhall be to you for God the Redeemer. And nothing is more frequent with Onkelos, and all the Targumiſts, than for Jehovah to put the Word of Jehovah; and of this Dr (e) Allix gives above an hundred teſtimonies; from all which obſervations it is evident, that the evangeliſt here uſed the language of his nation when he here ſaid, the Word was God.

2*dly*, They accord as fully with the doctrine of the ancient philoſophers, who lived before the times of this evangeliſt. Thus (f) Prophyry ſaith, that Plato extended the Divine Eſſence into three Hypoſtaſes, the ſupreme God called Optimus, μετ' αὐτὸν δὲ καὶ δεύτερον δημιουργὸν, and after him a ſecond God the maker of all things; and (g) Plato himſelf bids us ſwear by τὸν τε πάντων Θεὸν ἡγεμόνα —— τε καὶ ἡγεμόνος καὶ αἰτίου παλαιοῦ, God who is the governor of all things, and by the Father of him who is the ruler and the cauſe. (h) Zeno the Stoic ſaith, There be two principles of all things, matter, which is the patient, τὸ δὲ ποιοῦν τὸν ἐν αὐτῇ λόγον Θεὸν, and the efficient, God the Word, which being eternal goes through all matter, forming every thing. And hence (i) Amelius having read theſe words of our evangeliſt, cried out, that the Barbarian by ſaying that this Logos was πρὸς τὸν Θεὸν καὶ Θεὸν ἦν, was with God, and was God, and that all things were made by him, was of the ſame opinion with Heraclitus and Plato, who made him an eternal principle.

In a word, not only the orthodox, but all the heretics did perfectly agree in this import, if (k) Sandius may be credited, who ſaith expreſly, that all heretics agreed with the orthodox and catholics in this, that the Word was God, and was before all ages, and that the world was made by it. And as for the orthodox, ſcarce is there any Chriſtian writer of bulk, from Juſtin M. to the Nicene council, except Arnobius, who doth not inſiſt upon this text as a plain proof of the divinity of Chriſt.

Ver. 3. [d] All things were made by him.] The Socinian comment, which reſtrains all things here to all things belonging to the goſpel-ſtate, and ſaith that all things were ſaid to be made by him, becauſe all things were renewed, i. e. all believers were made new creatures by him, is ſufficiently refuted by what hath been already proved, viz. that this Word is here ſaid to have been in the beginning, not of the new, but of the old creation, and that he was properly and truly God, and ſo the Maker of all things in heaven and earth; and from the parallel places produced already, that God made all things by Jeſus Chriſt, Eph. 3. 9. that he created all things in heaven and in earth, viſible and inviſible, Col. 1. 16. that by him God made the world, Heb. 13. that he in the beginning beginning laid the foundations of the earth, and the heavens were the work of his hands, ver. 10, 11. and here, ver. 10. that he was in the world, and the world was made by him, even the world into which he came, which doubtless was the material world, that world which knew him not, and therefore could not be renewed by him.

In a word, all the ancient Jews and Paraphrasts agree in the common interpretation of the words, viz. that the Word was the Maker of the material world, and all things in it; this doctrine is taught very frequently by (l) Philo, that it was the Logos by which the whole world was made.

The (m) Targumists say it was this Logos, or Memra, which first said to the world, Be, and it was, and which shall again cause it to cease to be; it was the Word which created the world and man in it. And where it is said, (n) God created the world, it is usual for them to say he did it Bememrah by his word.

This was taught by (o) Aristobulus a Jew, who lived in the time of Ptolomæus Philometer, as a doctrine received from Solomon, and delivered by him, Prov. 8. for he is represented by him there, ὡς τῇ σοφίᾳ καὶ αὐτῷ Θεῷ λόγῳ τὴν ἀρχὴν ἀναλιβεῖς τῆς παλιγγενεσίας, ascribing the beginning of the frame of the universe to the wisdom and the Word of God; so that (p) Eusebius had just cause to say that the Hebrews, μετὰ τὸν ἀναρχον καὶ ἀγέννητον τῶν ὅλων οὐσίαν, after the essence of the God of all things, which was without beginning, and unbegotten, introduced a second Essence and Divine Power, ἀρχὴν τῶν γενητῶν ἁπάντων, which was the principle of all things that were made, λόγον καὶ σοφίαν, καὶ θείαν δύναμιν αὐτὸν προσαγορεύοντες, calling him the Word and Wisdom and a Divine Power; and that on this account the evangelical doctrine of St John, renewing that of the prophets and his country παλαιὰν διασαφεῖ, illustrates it by saying, In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God; all things were made by it, &c.

As for the Heathen philosophers, they did so plainly agree in that of Plato, that the Logos was the αἰτία, cause, and that of Zeno, that he was τὸ ποιοῦν, the efficient of the world, in that the primitive fathers pleaded this in favour of the Christian doctrine, that even the Logos was in their common language δημιουργὸς, the maker of the world. Many philosophers affirm, saith (q) Origen, that there is one God who created the world; in this they agree with the law of Moses: aliquanti etiam hoc addiderunt, quod cuncta per Verbum facta, & fecerit, & regerit; and many add, that God both made, and governed all things that were made by his Word; in hoc non solum legi, sed & evangelio consona sentiunt, in this they speak things consonant not only to the law, but to the gospel. We teach that the Word was the artificer of all things, saith (r) Tertullian; hunc etiam Zeno determinat factitatorem, and Zeno saith the same. Cyril, in his book against Julian, gathers up from the Heathens many things of a like nature to shew ὅτι τὸν ἐξ αὐτοῦ κατὰ φύσιν γεννηθέντα υἱὸν τὸν δημιουργὸν αὐτῶν λόγον ὡμολόγησαν καὶ αὐτοί, l. 1. p. 33. C. that they owned the Son essentially begotten of the Good, that is, the Father, to be the Word that made all things. And (s) Eusebius introduceth Plotinus and Numenius speaking of a second God, whom they called νοῦς, as the artificer of all things; and Plato himself speaking of that world, ὃν δὴ λέγει ὁ λόγος ὁ πάντων θειότατος, which the most Divine Word framed.

As for the Christian fathers, they from the beginning have asserted this as the rule of truth delivered to them from the apostles, and confounding the heretics, (t) quia unus est Deus, qui fecit omnia per Verbum suum, Verbum nempe quod extra eum non sit, sed in sinu Patris exiſtit, that there is one God, who made the world by that Word, who is not separated from him, but is in the bosom of the Father. See this largely proved, note on Heb. 1. 2. Though therefore it will still admit of a dispute whether the later Jews did by their Memra mean the promised Messiah, yet two things cannot reasonably be doubted, viz. (1.) That the Jews did by their Memra understand a Divine Person who was from the beginning, and who gave beginning to all things, and that the Heathens had the same notion of their Logos. (2.) That the Christians did understand these words of the evangelist in the sense now received by the orthodox, viz. as asserting the pre-existence and divinity of the Word made fleſh, and the production of all things by him. Whence,

3*dly*, It muſt follow that the evangeliſt, who was an Hebrew of the Hebrews, muſt here have ſpoken of the Logos in the received ſenſe of Jews and Heathens: for this being apparently the notion which then obtained both among Jews and Gentiles, if they had been miſtaken in it, it is incredible that the inſpired evangeliſt coming after them ſhould ſo conſpire with them as to expreſs the very ſame thing in the ſame ſtile, and almoſt in the ſame words; much more, that he ſhould do it without giving the leaſt caution to this purpoſe, that he meant quite another thing by it than what the Platoniſts and ſome Jews meant by ſuch words as theſe: for inſtance, that by the Word he meant not, as they did, one that was for ever, but a perſon that never was in being till ſome few years ſince; and that by all things that were made, he meant not, with them, all the whole univerſe, but only all perſons that were reformed by the faith of Chriſt; and that by the beginning, he meant not the beginning of the world, as they did, but only the beginning of the goſpel, as the Socinians interpret theſe expreſſions. If, I ſay, the Word, of which St John ſpeaks, did not preexiſt from all eternity, and was not properly the Creator of the world, certainly he would have prevented their concluding the contrary from his words by ſome very plain caution, becauſe he uſed that ſtile and thoſe words under which the contrary had been taught by men of great reputation; and ſo he would not have affirmed the ſame things with them concerning the Word, without any farther interpretation or addition, ſaving this only, that Jeſus was that Word. Again, all Chriſtians, whether orthodox or heretical, being either Jews or Gentiles, it is ſtill more incredible that both ſhould have conſpired in this import of theſe words, had it not been received from the tradition both of the converts among Jews and Gentiles, that this was really the import of them; or with ſuch confidence have appealed to the prophetic and country theology of the Jews, and the concurring ſentiments of the Heathens with the words of this evangeliſt, if they had underſtood them in a ſenſe ſo much different from that both of the Jews and Heathens, as that is which the Socinians now put upon them. If then the univerſal church from the beginning did not err in their interpretation of theſe words, it is certain we who continue to receive that ſenſe and import of them which they have from the beginning handed down unto us, muſt ſtill retain the true and genuine ſignification of them.

Ver. 4. [e] In him was life.] That this is to be underſtood, not of life natural, but of that life eternal which he revealed to the world, 2 Tim. 1. 10. to which he taught the way; chap. 14. 6. which he promiſed to believers; chap. 10. 28. which he purchaſed for them; chap. 6. 51, 53, 54. which he is appointed to give them; chap. 17. 2. and to which he will raiſe them up; chap. 5. 29. as having ζωὴν ἐν ἑαυτῷ, life in himſelf, 26. may be argued, 1. From the like expreſſion, 1 John 5. 11. This is the promiſe, that God hath given us eternal life, and that life is in his Son; whence he is ſtiled the true God and eternal life, ver. 20. the reſurrection and the life, chap. 11. 25. the way, the truth, and the life, chap. 14. 6. 2. From theſe words, ver. 7. John came to bear witneſs of this Light, that all men might believe on him, viz. to eternal life, 1 Tim. 1. 16. for ſo John witneſſeth, chap. 3. 15, 36. And this anſwers the only objection againſt this interpretation, that the evangeliſt ſpeaks not of the Word incarnate till ver. 14. and that in that reſpect alone was he the teacher of eternal life; for John bare witneſs of him when he was the Word incarnate; it was thus alſo he came into the world, and came to his own, and made believers the ſons of God, ver. 11, 12, 13. and yet all theſe things are ſpoken of him before it is ſaid, ver. 14. the Word was made fleſh.

And hence it follows, that this life muſt be the light of men, by giving them the knowledge of this life, and of the way leading to it, and in which they that walk are ſaid to walk in the light, 1 John 1. 7. to abide in the light, 2. 10. and to be the children of the light, according to thoſe words of Chriſt, Whilſt ye have the light, walk in the light, and believe in the light, that ye may be the children of the light, chap. 12. 35, 36. I am the light of the world, he that follows me ſhall have the light of life, chap. 8. 12.—9. 5.—12. 46. and then the words following, the light ſhineth in darkneſs, muſt reſpect the Heathen world, ſtiled darkneſs, Eph. 5. 8. (ſee the note on Rom. 13. 12.) and the blind Jews; and the darkneſs muſt be ſaid not to comprehend it, becauſe the vitious part of the world would not own, but hated the light, and loved darkneſs rather than light, becauſe their deeds were evil; and ſo they were reproved by it, chap. 3. 19, 20, 21.

Ver. 7. [f] He came to teſtify of this Light, that all men might believe on him.] See here the deſign of the Baptiſt's teſtimony, not only that ſome few elect, but that all men might believe in Chriſt.

Ver. 9. [g] Which enlightens πάντα ἄνθρωπον ἐρχόμενον, every man that comes into the world.] The words in the Greek are ambiguous, and may be rendered, which coming into the world enlightens every very man, or as our translation doth; but that which countenanceth our translation is the Hebrew way of speaking, that a man born is a man coming into the world, (see Dr Lightfoot here) and the words of Christ, saying, For this cause was I born, and came into the world, chap. 18. 37. See additions, No. 4.

Ver. 10. [h] And the world was made by him, and (yet the men of) the world knew him not;] i. e. owned him not either as their Maker or their Redeemer. Of this see note on ver. 3. and on Heb. 1. 2.

Ver. 11. [i] He came to his own;] i. e. to the Jewish nation to whom he was promised, and to whom only he was personally sent; he being therefore stiled a minister of the circumcision for the truth of God, to confirm the promises made to the fathers, Rom. 15. 8. from whom, according to the flesh, he came, Rom. 9. 5. and they received him not, i. e. they generally would not own him as their Messiah, and their Saviour.

Ver. 12. [k] But to as many as received him he gave ἐξουσίαν power to become the sons of God.] Ἐξουσία here signifies the right, privilege, dignity, and prerogative; as when the apostle warns the strong Christians to see to it, lest their ἐξουσία, privilege or freedom from the Jewish rites, be used as a stumbling block to the weak, 1 Cor. 8. 9. and saith, chap. 9. 5, 6. have we not ἐξουσίαν, a right or privilege, by virtue of our office, to eat and drink? This privilege, to be the sons of God, is, as Grotius well notes, a right to the inheritance of the saints; for, if children, saith the apostle, then are we heirs, heirs of God, joint heirs with Christ, Rom. 8. 17. a right to a blessed resurrection, the sons of God being the sons of the resurrection, Luke 20. 36. a right to abide always in our Father's house, John 8. 35. a right to a state of immortality and incorruption, this υἱοθεσία, sonship, including the redemption of the body from corruption, Rom. 8. 23.

Ver. 13. [l] Being born not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man;] i. e. We are born sons, not by virtue of the blood of circumcision, by which the Jews entered into covenant with God, and became his sons; not by reason of that carnal generation which makes us sons by nature of such parents, who by their fleshly lustings are incited to beget us; not by the will of man adopting another for his son and heir, for want of natural issue: but this sonship ariseth from the good pleasure of God receiving us for his sons, through faith in Christ Jesus. Some observing that the apostle saith, God made all men ἐξ ἑνὸς αἵματος, of one blood, Acts 17. 28. refer this birth of bloods to our natural production, and our being born of the will of the flesh to the birth of the Jews by that circumcision which was made in the flesh: I prefer the former exposition, because though circumcision be made in the flesh, it proceeds not ἐκ θελήματος σαρκὸς, from the will, desire, or lusting of the flesh, but was done by them in obedience to the command of God.

Ver. 14. [m] And the Word was made flesh, &c.] i. e. man, according to the usual import of that phrase, as when it is said, Gen. 6. 12. all flesh had corrupted their ways; Psal. 56 I will not fear what flesh, ver. 5. that is, what man can do to me, ver. 12.; Isa. 40. 5. All flesh shall see the salvation of God; and ver. 6. All flesh is grass, and all the glory of man is as the flower of the field, Jer. 17. 5. Cursed is he that trusteth in man, and maketh flesh his arm. See Matth. 24. 22. Rom. 3. 20. And this phrase is used, say the (u) fathers, not only to express the great affection of the Word to man, declared in taking on him even his vilest part, but also to shew he came to heal, and to recover from corruption, that flesh which, by the sin of Adam, was made obnoxious to death and corruption; and that this flesh, which so inseparably was united to the divine nature, must be capable of salvation, which the Gnostics and Valentinians denied, and the Ebionites who denied the union of the two natures.

The Socinian gloss upon these words is this, that Christ was born mortal, subject to infirmities, sufferings, and death, and so frail and infirm as flesh. But,

1. It is to be noted from (w) Novatian, that this is the gloss of those heretics who denied the distinction betwixt the Son of God and man, lest they should be obliged, from these words, to own his divine nature; that is, this is a Socinian gloss. Note,

2. That this gloss is contrary to the true im-

(u) Num quemadmodum initio plasmationis nostræ in Adam, ea quæ fuit in Deo inspiratio vitæ, unita plasmati animavit hominem et animal rationale ostendit; sic in fine, Verbum Patris et Spiritus Dei adunitus antiquæ substantiæ plasmationis Adam, viventem et perfectum effecit hominem capientem perfectum patrem, ut quemadmodum in animali omnes mortui sumus, sic in spirituali omnes vivificemur, Iren. l. 5. c. 1. Vani igitur qui a Valentino sunt hoc dogmatizantes, uti excludunt salutem carnis, et reprobent plasmationem Dei: vani autem et Ebionæi unitionem Dei et hominis per fidem non recipientes in animam suam. Ibid.

port of the words; for it makes the words frail, infirm, mortal, and all theſe epithets, to predicate of, and belong to the Word. Now, who can reaſonably imagine that he, who had before told us, the Word was God, and ſo immortal, the maker of the world, and all things in it, and ſo infinite in power, ver. 3. 10. ſhould inſtantly add, the Word was fleſh, i. e. frail, infirm, obnoxious to death; and yet ſhould immediately ſay again of this infirm, frail Being, we have ſeen his glory, as the glory of the only begotten Son of God, and of his fulneſs have we all received grace for grace; that he was one in the boſom of the Father, and who alone had ſeen the Father? ver. 14. 16, 18. Mr Clerc interprets the words thus, And that reaſon was made conſpicuous by the man in whom it was; telling us that fleſh ſignifies a conſpicuous nature, in oppoſition to that which is ſpiritual, as 1 Tim. 3. 16. But there it is not ſaid, as here, the Word was made fleſh, but Θεὸς ἐφανερώθη ἐν σαρκὶ, God was manifeſted in, or made conſpicuous in the fleſh, that is, in the human nature: which is the import of the word fleſh in all the other places where it is attributed to Chriſt, by way of diſtinction from his higher original; as when the apoſtle ſaith, the Son of God was of the ſeed of Abraham, κατὰ σάρκα, according to the fleſh, Rom. 9. 5. and that the Son, whom he had proved to be God, Heb. 1. was partaker alſo of fleſh and blood, Heb. 2. 14. For it is manifeſt that in all theſe places fleſh ſignifies, not the frailty or infirmity of fleſh, according to the Socinian gloſs, nor fleſh as conſpicuous and viſible, according to Mr Clerc's gloſs, but the human nature abſolutely taken, according to the expoſition of all the antient fathers; of (x) Ignatius, who ſaith, he was a phyſician, σαρκικὸς καὶ πνευματικὸς, fleſhly and ſpiritual, ἐν σαρκὶ γενόμενος Θεὸς, being God in fleſh; of (y) Juſtin M. who ſaith, he was the Son and the λόγος, ὃς σαρκοποιηθεὶς ἄνθρωπος γέγονεν, who by his incarnation was made man; of (z) Irenæus, ſaying, Deus igitur homo factus eſt, God therefore was made man; of (a) Tertullian, ſaying, that Chriſtus vere hominem indutus Deus perſeveravit, Chriſt putting on the manhood remained God; and of (b) Origen, who ſaith, that Chriſt being in the form of God, and a Son of the Jeruſalem which is above, left his Father and mother for his church, διὰ αὐτὴν γὰρ γέγονε καὶ αὐτὸς σάρξ, being made fleſh for her, it being ſaid, the Word was made fleſh.

Moreover, the Wiſdom of God was made conſpicuous in the goſpel, that being the Wiſdom of God, 1 Cor. 2. 7. and by the church, by which the manifold Wiſdom of God was made known even to the angels, Eph. 3. 10. If then that were the reaſon why the Word is ſaid to be made fleſh, the goſpel and the church might alſo be ſaid to be made fleſh. It follows, Ibid. [n] Καὶ ἐσκήνωσεν ἐν ἡμῖν, And dwelt or pitched its tabernacle among us.] This word ἐσκήνωσεν hath ſuch an apparent affinity both in ſound and ſenſe with the Hebrew ſhacan uſed in the Old Teſtament, when mention is made of God's dwelling by the Schechinah, or his glorious preſence in the tabernacle, and often ſhining forth there, and thence ἐν δόξῃ, in glory; ſee the notes on Rom. 1. 23. Phil. 2. 6. that we have reaſon to believe this phraſe relates to the Divine Nature, or to the fulneſs of the Deity dwelling in Chriſt's human nature. This Schechinah, ſay the Jews, was wanting in the ſecond temple, and this defect was now repaired by the habitation of the Divine Nature in the temple of Chriſt's body, ſo as never to be ſeparated from it, according to the prediction of the prophet Haggai, chap. 2. 7. The deſire of all nations ſhall come, and I will fill this houſe with glory. As then God ſaid with reſpect to the times of the Meſſiah, I will come to thee, וְשָׁכַנְתִּי, καὶ κατασκηνώσω, and will dwell in the midſt of thee; that is, ſaith the Chaldee paraphraſt, וְאַשְׁרֵי שְׁכִינְתִּי, and I will put my Schechinah, or Divine Majeſty, among you, Zach. 2. 10, 11. ſo did he fulfil his promiſe, by ſending this Emanuel, or Word made fleſh, among them.

Ibid. [o] And we have ſeen τὴν δόξαν αὐτοῦ, his glory;] viz. appearing in, and ſhining from the tabernacle of Chriſt's body, as the glory of the Lord did from the tabernacle of old; for the glory of God in the Old Teſtament doth not barely ſignify the miracles wrought by God, but either the glory appearing in the cloud of glory, as Exod. 16. 7, 10. by which God teſtified his preſence with them, and Numb. 14. 22. and v. 21. or it ſignifies the miracles done by the glory of God then appearing; and in 2 Pet. 1. 16. it ſignifies the bright cloud, or glory of God, appearing at our Lord's transfiguration; not any miracle then wrought, of which we have no mention in the hiſtory of Chriſt's transfiguration: here therefore the apoſtle ſaith, We have ſeen the glory, or the divinity of the Word conſpicuous in the miracles wrought by him.

Ibid. [p] Δόξαν ὡς μονογενοῦς παρὰ πατρός, The glory as of the only begotten Son of the Father.] Where note,

That the particle ὡς, as, is not here a note of ſimilitude, ἀλλὰ βεβαιώσεως, but of confirmation, that this Son truly was the only begotten of the Father, as Chryſoſtom here notes. So Neh. 7. 2. αὐτὸς ὡς ἀνὴρ ἀληθὴς, he was a faithful man, Matth. 14. 5. All men held John ὡς προφήτην, to be a prophet indeed.

indeed. See the note on Rom. 9. 32. See additions, No. 5. This glory is said to be the glory μονογενοῦς, of the only begotten of the Father; i. e. of him who was begotten of him after that singular and extraordinary manner, that this title can agree to him alone, as being, saith Lucian, the unchangeable image, οὐσίας, καὶ βέλης, καὶ δυνάμεως, καὶ δόξης τ Θεοῦ, of the essence, council, power, and glory of God. Hence is the Logos stiled by Philo ὁ πρωτόγονος υἱὸς, de agricult. p. 152. B. ὁ πρωτόγονος καὶ γενηθεὶς, de confus. ling. p. 258. A. the begotten and first born Son of God, ὁ ἐνδιαθέτος υἱὸς τ Θεοῦ, the internal Son of God, lib. de nom. mut. p. 824. By (c) Plato, he is stiled, ὁ ἔκγονος τ ἀγαθοῦ καὶ ὁμοιότατος ἑαυτῷ, one begotten of the Good, and most like to him. And Porphyry says, That, according to the doctrine of Plato, of the Good, i. e. of the Father, was begotten, in a manner unknown to men, an understanding in which are all things, Ap. Cyril. contr. Julian. l. 8.

Ibid. ᵠ Πλήρης χάριτος καὶ ἀληθείας, Full of grace and truth.] Here πλήρης, the nominative case, is put for the genitive. So Eph. 3. 17. that Christ may dwell ἐν καρδίαις ὑμῶν ver. 18. ἐρριζωμένοι for ἐρριζωμένων· and Rev. 1. 5. ἀπὸ Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ ὁ μάρτυς for τ μάρτυρος. See examples of the like construction in profane authors, produced by Grotius on Mark 6. 40. and by Schmidius. Note also, that it appeareth from the following words, ver. 17. For the law came by Moses, but grace and truth by Jesus Christ, that this Son of God is said to be full of grace and truth, in opposition to the law of Moses. Now grace in the New Testament implies two things, both which are declared to be wanting in the law of Moses; 1*st*, The mercy of God in the free pardon of our sins, or our justification or freedom from the guilt of sin, from which we could not be justified by the law of Moses, Acts 13. 38, 39. For by the law, saith the apostle, can no man be justified, Gal 3. 11. Rom. 3. 20. We being justified freely by his grace, through the redemption which is in Jesus, ver. 24. Whence it is said to them who seek to be justified by the law of Moses, that they are fallen from grace, Gal. 5. 4. 2*dly*, Grace doth, in scripture, signify the gifts of the Holy Spirit, freely conferred upon believers, who is therefore stiled ἡ δωρεὰ ἐν χάριτι, the gift by grace, Rom. 5. 15 And his gifts are represented by the word grace: as when St Peter saith, As every man hath received the gift, so let him minister, as good stewards, ποικίλης χάριτος Θεοῦ, of the manifold grace of God, 1 Pet. 4. 10, 11. and St Paul, Rom. 12. 6. having therefore gifts differing κατὰ τὴν χάριν, according to the grace given us, whether prophecy, &c. See Gal. 2. 8, 9. Eph. 3. 7. Now this promise of the Spirit was the consequence of faith in Christ, Gal. 3. 14. Hence are these two assigned as the great differences betwixt the law and the gospel; that the first was the administration of the letter only, the other of the Spirit; the first the administration of condemnation, the second of justification, 2 Cor. 3. 7, 8. Again, the law is said to have been only a shadow of things to come, and an image of those things of which Christ exhibited the body, truth, and substance, Col. 2. 17. Heb. 8. 5.----10. 1. See the note there: and hence truth is here said to come by Christ; and he is here represented as full of truth.

Ver. 15. ʳ He that cometh after me is (to be) preferred before me; for he was before me, πρῶτός μου ἦν.] Here the critical note is this, That πρῶτος, first, here signifies before; so 1 John 4. 19. He loved us πρῶτος, before; Matth. 17. 20. Elias shall come πρῶτον, before Christ; John 19. 39. Nicodemus who came πρῶτον, before to Christ by night; 2 Thess. 2. 3. There shall come an apostasy πρῶτον, before Christ's coming; and John 15. 18. They hated me πρῶτον ὑμῶν, before they hated you.

2*dly*, As for the words ἔμπροσθέν μου γέγονεν, I find no instance where it signifies, He was preferred before me; and therefore rather chuse to retain the proper import of the words, and give the sense of the whole thus, This is he of whom I said, He that cometh after me is before me; and this I said, because he indeed was before me, as being in the beginning with God, ver. 2.

Ver. 16. ˢ And of his fulness we have all received, καὶ χάριν ἀντὶ χάριτος, even grace for grace;] i. e. of the fulness of grace in him to procure pardon for us, and of that fulness of the Spirit which was in him without measure, John 3. 34. Luke 4. 1. according to the measure of the gift of Christ. So Jer. 11. 17. the Lord hath pronounced against thee, κακὰ ἀντὶ κακίας, evil for the evil of the house of Israel and Judah. So κακὸν ἀντὶ κακοῦ, evil for evil done to us, or according to it, Rom. 12. 17. 1 Thess. 5. 15. 1 Pet. 3. 9. So ἀντὶ τούτου, ob hanc rem; ἀνθ' ὧν, for the sake of which. See many examples of this kind in Stephanus. See additions, No. 6.

Ver. 18. ᵗ No man hath seen God at any time, οὐδεὶς ἑώρακε.] Here Grotius thinks, that ἑώρακε, hath seen, is put for hath known, as chap. 3. 32. and Eph 3. ver. 11. giving the sense thus, No man hath known the secret counsels of God at any time, concerning the redemption of mankind, which Christ

Chriſt now declareth to the world. But though this ſenſe of the words be good, yet the phraſe in the Old and the New Teſtament, repreſenting God as one whom no man can ſee and live, as Exod. 33, 20, 23. and who dwells in light inacceſſible to which no mortal eye can approach, and whom no man hath ſeen, or can ſee, 1 Tim. 6. 19. and the ſeeing of him in the cloud, the ſymbol of his glorious preſence, being called the ſeeing of him face to face, Gen. 32. 30. Numb. 14. 14. and being deemed ſuch a viſion as would cauſe God to take away their lives, Judg. 6. 22, 23.—13 22 Iſa. 6. 5. I would rather refer this here to the preſence of the Word with the Father, mentioned chap. 1. 1. and his being with him in heaven in that glory in which he there dwells, and his coming down from thence as from the boſom of the Father, to declare heavenly things to us, which, ſaith he, none can do but the Son of man who is in heaven, chap. 3. 12, 13. See the note there. For if this being in the boſom of the Father did only ſignify his friendſhip and intimate acquaintance with God, it may be aſcribed to Abraham, who was the friend of God, James 2. 23. to Moſes, who talked with him face to face, as a man ſpeaking to his friend, Exod. 33. 11. and to the apoſtles, who had the mind of God revealed to them, 1 Cor. 2. 16. whereas, in the other ſenſe, it will be proper and peculiar to Chriſt, to be in the boſom of the Father, as St John ſeemeth here to repreſent it.

Ibid. [u] Εἰς τὸν κόλπον, In the boſom.] Note, That εἰς τὸν κόλπον is here put for ἐν τῷ κόλπῳ So εἰς πόλιν, in the city, Matth. 2. 23. εἰς τὸν καίρον αὐτῶν, in their times. Luke 1. 20. εἰς ἣν, in which, Acts 7. 4. εἰς χόλυν, in the gall, Acts 8. 23 ſee Mark 1. 39.—2. 1.—5. 34. Luke 8. 48.—9. 61.----11. 7.----16. 8. Acts 7. 53.----13. 42. Eph. 1. 10. Heb. 11. 9.

Ver. 20. [w] He confeſſed and denied not, but confeſſed.] Such pleonaſms are frequent in the ſcripture. So 2 Kings 18. 36. The people held their peace, and anſwered nothing, Iſaiah 38. 1. Thou ſhalt die, and not live, Ezek. 7. 6. An end is come, the end is come, it is come; and eſpecially in the writings of this evangeliſt. So 1 John 1. 1, 3. That which we have heard, that which we have ſeen, that which we have beheld with our eyes; and, chap. 12. 27. is true, and is no lie. See here, ver. 3.

Ver. 21. [x] Art thou Elias? And he ſaid, I am not.] See the note on Matth. 11. 14. Art thou that prophet?] Jeremy, ſaith Grotius, there being a rumour among them, that he was to return to them. See the note on Matth. 11. 9, 10. When the people were muſing among themſelves whether the Baptiſt were the Chriſt, he takes off that ſuſpicion of his own accord, Luke 3. 15. Here he returns an anſwer to the enquiries of the Phariſees.

Ver. 24. [y] And they that were ſent were of the Phariſees;] i. e. of the patrons of tradition, who thought themſelves ſo exact in all the ordinary rules which were to be obſerved, that this new right of baptizing, by way of preparation for the Meſſiah, of which their traditions were wholly ſilent, muſt be extraordinary; and therefore they enquire,

Ver. 25. [z] Τί οὖν βαπτίζεις; Why then baptizeſt thou?] Why uſeſt thou towards us Jews, who are already holy and in covenant with God, a rite only uſed by us towards Heathen proſelytes, to cleanſe them from their impurity, and to prepare them to enter into covenant with God? Note alſo, That τί here is put for διὰ τί, why, or, for what cauſe, as Matth. 17. 10. τί οὖν, why ſay the ſcribes, chap. 6. 28. τί μεριμνᾶτε; why take ye thought. So chap. 7. 3.----16. 8.----19. 7.---21, 18. John 4. 17. ---7. 19.----9. 27.----10. 20.---18. 21, 23.----20. 13, 15.

Ver. 26. [a a] I baptize with water to repentance;] i. e. I am the meſſenger of which Malachi ſpeaks, who am ſent before the Lord, to prepare his way, by bringing you to repentance and amendment of life, and therefore baptize you with water, to mind you of that purity of heart which is requiſite to the reception of him, ſo that by my baptizing you with water, to produce in you that purity, will be fulfilled the promiſe of God by Ezekiel, chap. 36. 25. I will ſprinkle clean water upon you, and ye ſhall be clean; and by his baptiſm will be fulfilled the words following, ver. 27. I will put my Spirit within you.

See additions, N°. 7.

Ver. 28. [b b] In Bethabara;] that is, according to the import of the word Beth Ybara, about the place where the Jews paſſed over Jordan to go into the land of Canaan: it is ſituated, ſaith Dr (*) Lightfoot, beyond Jordan, in the Scythopolitan country, where the Jews dwelt among the Syrophœnicians.

Ver. 29. [c c] Behold the Lamb of God, ὁ αἴρων τὴν ἁμαρτίαν, who taketh away the ſins of the world.] This Grotius refers to the reformation of mens lives; whereas it plainly reſpects the Lamb ſlain, as a piacular victim, 1 Peter 1. 19. to redeem us to God by his blood, Rev. 5. 9. or to procure for us redemption, that is, the remiſſion of ſins, Eph. 1. 7. Col. 1. 14. and to exempt all that believed in him from that ſentence of death which came upon the world for the ſin of Adam. To illuſtrate this, let it be noted, (1) That when a ſacrifice was offered for sin, he that brought it laid his hand upon the head of the victim, according to the command of God, Lev. 1. 4.----3. 2.----4. 4. and by that rite transferred his sins upon the victim, who is said to take them upon him, and to carry them away: accordingly, in the daily sacrifices of the lamb, the stationary men, saith Dr Lightfoot, who were the representatives of the people, laid their hands upon the lambs thus offered for them; and these two lambs offered for the daily sacrifice were bought with that half shekel which all the Jews yearly paid, εἰς λύτρον τῆς ψυχῆς αὐτῶν ἐξιλάσασθαι περὶ τῶν ψυχῶν αὐτῶν, as the price of redemption of their lives, to make an atonement for them, Exod. 30. 12, 14, 16. This lamb was therefore offered to take away the guilt of their sins, as this phrase signifies when it relates to sacrifices. See the note, 1 Peter 2. 25. When therefore the Baptist had said, He baptized them for the remission of sins, he here shews them by what means that remission was to be obtained.

Ver. 31, 33. [dd] And I knew him not] by face or any converse with him, till he came to my baptism; God so ordering it, that there should be no suspicion, that I thus testified of him by compact. Observe also, That the Baptist said this at the same time that he saw the Spirit of God descending on him, ver. 30. and seeing this sign made good, he testifies, this was the Son of God who should baptize them with the Spirit, ver. 33, 34. See note on Matth. 3. 14.

Ver. 37. [ee] Two disciples] of the Baptist hearing this testimony of their master, they come to him, either to abide with him, or to gain further knowledge of him, and therefore they enquire where he dwelt, ver. 39. that they might repair to him thither, not thinking it proper to ask him in the streets concerning the Messiah and his kingdom.

Ver. 40. [ff] One of the two was Andrew] The other is thought to have been St John himself, who usually conceals his name: Note hence, that these two were called before Peter.

Ver. 42. [gg] Thou art Simon, &c.] Woltzogenius notes, That Christ here gives Peter a specimen of his divine virtue; and ver. 47. he discovers the secrets of the heart of Philip, shewing, that he was able by the Holy Spirit to search into the most internal recesses of the heart.

Ver. 44. [hh] Of Bethsaida, the city of Andrew and Peter;] i. e. where they dwelt: this seems to be added, to shew the reason why Philip followed Jesus before he knew any thing of his doctrine, because what he had heard from them who dwelt near him had prepared his mind so to do; and from the following words of Philip and Nathaniel, we have found him, &c. we learn, that not only Peter and Andrew, but Christ himself had discoursed to Philip of the predictions of the law and the prophets concerning him. Note also, that ὃν, ver. 46. is put for περὶ οὗ, of whom, as ver. 15.

Ver. 49. [ii] Thou art the Son of God, thou art the king of Israel.] These seem to be the two titles of the Messiah, in the Jewish phrase signifying the same thing; for though the Jews acknowledged the Messiah should be the Son of God, yet not in that high sense in which Christ was ἴδιος υἱὸς, the proper and peculiar Son of God; for this they look upon as blasphemy, John 5. 18. but in that sense in which they stile themselves his sons, John 8. 41.

Ver. 51. [kk] Hereafter shall ye see the heavens opened, and the angels of God ascending and descending on the Son of man.] Christ here seems to allude to Jacob's ladder, of which we read Gen. 28. 12, 13. on the top of which was the Divine Majesty, and the angels ascending, saith Maimonides, to receive his commands, and descending to execute them; Christ therefore by these words seems to inform them, that the miracles which they should see performed by him should declare the Divine Majesty present with him, and giving him those commands he was to execute by his prophetic office, as clearly as if they had seen the angels of God ascending and descending on him. They who refer this to the day of judgment did not consider this was to happen ἀπαρτὶ, within a little while; and they who refer it to Christ's passion and resurrection must shew how the angels then ascended and descended on Christ in the sight of the apostles.

CHAP. II.

1. AND the third day (from Simon's coming to Christ, chap. 1. 42.) there was a marriage (feast) in [a] Cana of Galilee, and the mother of Jesus was there (uncalled.)

2. And both Jesus was called and his disciples, (Gr. but both Jesus and his disciples were called) to the marriage.

3. And when they wanted wine, the [b] mother of Jesus (being concerned for this want of her relations,) saith unto him, They have no wine; (hoping, by this intimation, he by a miracle would supply this want.)

4. Jesus saith unto her, [c] Woman, what have

I to

I to do with thee? [d] mine hour (i. e. the time for manifeſting my glory by my miracles, ver. 11.) is not yet come, (and ſo I am not bound to have regard to thy ſolicitations in this thing.)

3. His mother (expecting, notwithſtanding this anſwer, that he might gratify her,) ſaith unto the ſervants, Whatſoever he ſaith unto you, do it.

6. And there were ſet there ſix water-pots (or ciſterns) of ſtone after the manner of the purifying of the Jews, (who conſtantly waſhed before meals,) containing two or three firkins apiece.

7. Jeſus ſaith unto them, Fill the water-pots with water: and they filled them up to the brim.

8. And he ſaith unto them, Draw out now (of this liquor,) and bear (it) unto the governor of the feaſt, and they bare it.

9. When the ruler of the feaſt had taſted the water which was made wine, and knew not whence it was, but the ſervants that drew the water knew, (i. e. not knowing it to be water, miraculouſly turned into wine by Chriſt, as the ſervants did,) the [e] governor of the feaſt called the bridegroom;

10. And ſaith unto him, Every man at the beginning (of a feaſt) doth (uſe to) ſet forth good wine; and when men [f] have well drunk, then that which is worſe, (i. e. ſmaller:) but thou haſt kept the good wine until now.

11. This beginning of (his) miracles did Jeſus in Cana of Galilee, and (thereby) [g] manifeſted forth his glory; and his diſciples (who ſaw the miracle) believed on him.

12. After this he went down to Capernaum, he, and his mother, and his brethren, and his diſciples, and they continued there not many days.

13. And (For) the Jews paſſover was at hand, and Jeſus went up (with them) to Jeruſalem.

14. And (there he) found in the temple thoſe that ſold oxen, and ſheep, and doves, (for ſacrifices,) and the changers of money, (or thoſe who returned it by way of exchange,) ſitting.

15. And when he had made a [h] ſcourge of ſmall cords, (or of ruſhes,) he drove them all out of the temple, and (that is) the ſheep and the oxen, and poured out (upon the ground) the changers money, and overthrew the (counting) tables, (no man making any reſiſtance.)

16. And (he) ſaid unto them that ſold doves, Take theſe things hence; (and) make not my Father's houſe an houſe of merchandiſe.

17. And his diſciples (afterwards) remembered that it was written (of him,) The zeal of thine houſe hath eaten me up, (Pſal. 69. 9. i. e. hath fed upon my ſpirits, and conſumed them.)

18. Then anſwered the Jews, and ſaid unto him, [i] What ſign ſheweſt thou to us (that thou art a prophet,) ſeeing that thou doſt theſe things (which only magiſtrates or prophets have authority to do?)

19. Jeſus anſwered, and ſaid unto them, (This ſhall be a ſign to you,) [k] Deſtroy this temple (of my body;) and (when you have done this,) in three days I will raiſe it up (again.)

20. Then ſaid the Jews, [l] Forty and ſix years was this temple in building, and wilt thou rear it up in three days? (and this they ſaid, thinking that Chriſt had ſpoken of the temple of Jeruſalem.)

21. But he ſpake of the temple of his body.

22. When therefore he was riſen from the dead, his diſciples remembered that he had ſaid this unto them, and they believed the ſcripture, (ſpeaking of his reſurrection,) and the word which Jeſus had ſaid.

23. Now when he was in Jeruſalem at the paſſover, on the feaſt-day, (Gr. ἐν τῇ ἑορτῇ, in the time of the feaſt,) many believed in his name, when they ſaw the miracles that he did.

24. But Jeſus did not commit himſelf unto them, (or confide in them as his ſincere diſciples,) [m] becauſe he knew (the hearts of) all men;

25. And needed not that any ſhould teſtify of man; for he knew what was in man.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. II.

Ver. 1. [a] IN Cana of Galilee;] to diſtinguiſh it from another Cana which was in the tribe of Ephraim, Joſh. 16. 8.—17. 9. whereas this was in the tribe of Aſſur in Galilee, Joſh. 19. 28. and probably where Alphæus or Cleopas, whoſe wife was Mary, the ſiſter of the mother of our Lord, lived: for that this marriage was in his houſe, is conjectured, 1ſt, Becauſe the mother of our Lord is there uncalled, by reaſon of her near relation to them; whereas Chriſt and his diſciples are bid to the wedding. 2dly, Becauſe his mother is ſo ſollicitous for the ſupply of the wine.

Ver. 3. [b] The mother of Jeſus ſaith unto him, They have no wine.] Some conceive, by reaſon of this expectation of his mother, that Chriſt miraculouſly might provide wine for them, that, whilſt he lived privately with his parents, he might upon ſome occaſion in an extraordinary manner ſupply their want of neceſſaries. St Chryſoſtom ſays, ſhe was moved to ask this from the consideration of his miraculous conception and birth, the testimony of the Baptist, and his gathering disciples. Grotius thinks that Joseph was then dead, because he is not mentioned here.

Ver. 4. [c] Τί ἐμοὶ καὶ σοὶ γύναι; Woman, what have I to do with thee?] The Papists here contend, that these words are not to be deemed a reprehension of his mother, but only an instruction to his disciples, that in the things of God they ought not to have respect to the solicitations of earthly parents. But,

1*st*, The word γύναι, woman, plainly shews these words were directed, not to his disciples, but to his mother. And,

2*dly*, We never find this phrase used in scripture otherwise than by way of objurgation or reprehension; as when Jephtha says to the king of Ammon, Judg. 11. 12. τί ἐμοὶ καὶ σοί; what have I to do with thee, that thou comest to fight against my land? And David to the sons of Zeruiah, 2 Sam. 16. 10. τί ἐμοὶ καὶ ὑμῖν; what have I to do with you? And again, chap. 19. 22. and Pharaoh-Necho to Josias, 2 Chron. 35. 21. 1 Esdr. 1. 26. 1 Kings 17. 18. and Elisha to Joram, 2 Kings 3. 13.

3*dly*, (a) Maldonate confesseth, that most of the ancient fathers do openly or obscurely intimate, what (b) Iræneus plainly saith, that she was guilty of some fault or error, in inciting her son to this miracle unseasonably. So (c) Chrysostom, Eutychius and (d) Theophylact upon the place.

Ibid. [d] Οὔπω ἥκει ἡ ὥρα μου. My hour is not yet come.] Dr Lightfoot thinks this is spoken because Christ was to begin his public ministry, and to confirm it with miracles at Jerusalem; and therefore saith, chap. 7. 8. ὁ καιρὸς ἐμὸς, My time of going up to Jerusalem is not yet. Others, with D. Hammond, say, this hour signifies the time of doing his miracles ἐν παῤῥησίᾳ, openly, was not yet; and therefore, though he did this miracle, he did it so privately, that neither the governor of the feast, nor the bridegroom, nor the guests, knew that he had done it, but the servants only. Lastly, it is observable that G. Nyssen reads these words by way of interrogation, viz. Woman, what have I to do with thee? I have begun to gather disciples, and to act as one sent from God, and is not the hour of my exemption from thy authority yet come?

Ver. 9. [e] Φωνεῖ τὸν νυμφίον ὁ ἀρχιτρίκλινος, The governor of the feast called the bridegroom.] To this governor of the feast it belonged to bless what was prepared, and, having drank of the cup thus blessed, to send it about to the whole company; whence Christ saith to the servants, Draw out and bear it to the governor of the feast, v. 8. Moreover the word φωνεῖν doth not necessarily signify to call the absent bridegroom, but may only intimate that the ruler of the feast spake thus to him, being present; for, as Rhavorinus saith, this word with an accusative case signifies τὸ λαλῶ καὶ τὸ καλῶ, both to call and to speak to. Thus in Sophocles, τί φωνεῖς is what sayst thou? and here, chap. 13. 13. ὑμεῖς φωνεῖτε με κύριον is you say I am your master. So ἐκ τῆς κοιλίας φωνεῖν is to speak out of the belly, Isa. 8. 19. ἐκ τῆς γῆς φωνεῖν, to speak out of the earth, Isa. 19. 3. and ἀφωνεῖν, not to speak, Psal. 113. 15.

Ver. 10. [f] Καὶ ὅταν μεθυσθῶσι, And when men have well drunk, then that which is worse.] The word μεθυσκεσθαι does not here signify to be drunk, but to drink to satiety, or, as Phavorinus saith, πλησθῆναι, to be filled with wine. So Gen. 43. 34. The brethren of Joseph drank, καὶ ἐμεθύσθησαν μετ' αὐτοῦ, and were merry with him, saturati sunt cum eo, they were satisfied, saith the Vulgar. So Psal 23. 5. My cup runneth over, ποτήριόν μου μεθύσκον, saith the Septuagint. So πίετε καὶ μεθύσθητε, Cant. 5. 1. is drink abundantly, Hag. 1. 6. ἐπίετε καὶ οὐκ εἰς μέθην, ye drank, but not to satiety. So Ecclus. 1. 16. The fear of the Lord μεθύσκει, repleniseth men with her fruits. And chap. 32. 13. Bless the Lord, μεθύσκοντα σε, who filleth thee with good things. So Jerom on Jer. 31. 14. καὶ μεθύσω τὴν ψυχὴν τῶν ἱερέων, I will satiate the soul of my priests with fatness; and ver. 25. ἐμέθυσα πᾶσαν ψυχὴν δεδιψῶσαν, I have satisfied every thirsty soul; and on those words, Hosea 14. 7. μεθυσθήσονται σίτῳ. Tom. 5 F. 151. H. 152. H. 1. See 1 Maccab. 16. 16. Moreover these are not the words of Christ, but of the ruler of the feast, declaring, not how it was with the guests there present, but only that it was the usual custom to bring the best wine first, and when men had well drank, then the meaner sort; and that this custom was not then observed. And, 3*dly*, Admit some persons might exceed in drinking of this very wine miraculously made, which yet is more than can be gathered from the text, our Lord cannot be charged with miniſtring to that exceſs, by making this proviſion of it, unleſs we alſo charge the providence of God as being inſtrumental to all that gluttony and drunkenneſs which is committed in the world, becauſe it doth afford that meat and drink which by the glutton and drunkard are abuſed to exceſs.

Ver. 11. [e] Καὶ ἐφανέρωσε τὴν δόξαν αὐτοῦ, And he manifeſted his glory;] i. e. his power of working miracles, which is ſtiled his glory, John 17. 22. 2 Cor. 3. 18. and for which he was glorified of all, Luke 4. 15. And this was opportunely done to confirm the faith of the apoſtles who were newly come to him; and therefore it is added, that they believed on him.

Ver. 15, 16. [h] He made a ſcourge of ſmall cords, &c.] To what hath been ſaid, note on Matth. 21. 14. Mark 11. 17. add, (1.) That Chriſt, by making ſuch a whip of bulruſhes, which could hurt no body, ſeemed to inſinuate, that he would not uſe external force to take away the abuſes of men relating to his worſhip. And, (2.) By calling the temple his Father's houſe, he diſtinguiſheth himſelf from other prophets, who ſometimes ſtile God their God, Iſa. 57. 21. but never their Father. And, (3.) By purging the court of the Gentiles from merchandice, not unlawful in itſelf, but neceſſary for the ſacrifices which were to be offered in the temple, though not neceſſary to be bought there, he ſufficiently inſinuates that a diſtinction is to be made betwixt places ſacred and profane, and that what may as well be done elſewhere ought not to be done in the houſe of God, the place appointed immediately for his worſhip.

Ver. 18. [i] Τί σημεῖον δεικνύεις; What ſign ſheweſt thou? &c.] This they aſk becauſe it belonged only to the magiſtrate, as being God's miniſter and vicegerent, or to a prophet, to take away abuſes in God's ſervice. Now a prophet muſt ſhew himſelf to be ſo by ſome miracle, or ſome prediction of a thing future. This laſt Chriſt doth by ſaying,

Ver. 19. [k] Λύσατε τὸν ναὸν τοῦτον, Deſtroy this temple, and I will build it up in three days.] When elſewhere they require a ſign, he remits them to the ſign of Jonas the prophet, Matth. 12. 39, 40. And here he alſo ſeems in effect to do the ſame thing, by ſaying, that by raiſing of the temple of his body after they had deſtroyed it, or by his reſurrection from the dead, he would afford them a convincing demonſtration that he had good authority for what he ſaid and did, and that he was that prophet which was to come.

Note alſo, that theſe words are not imperative, i. e. Chriſt doth not bid them deſtroy his body; but only permiſſive, and predictive of what he ſaw they would do; and therefore he ſaith, λύσατε ye will deſtroy this temple. Examples of like nature we have in the Old Teſtament: as Gen. 20. 7. He ſhall pray for thee, and live thou; and chap. 42. 18. Do this, and live, i. e. thou ſhalt live. Deut. 32. 50. Die in this mountain, i. e. thou ſhalt die there. See Iſa. 8. 9, 10.—54. 1. And in the New, as in thoſe words of Chriſt to Judas, What thou doſt, do quickly, John 13. 27. and that of St Paul, Be angry, and ſin not, Eph. 4. 26. ſee the note there. Moreover he ſeemeth here to call his body a temple, and elſewhere to declare he was one greater than the temple, Matth. 12. 6. becauſe the Divinity dwelt always and inſeparably in it, as the Jews thought the Divinity did in the temple built by Solomon. Joſephus not only tells us that Solomon prayed thus at the dedication of it, ἱκέτευσε τὸν μοῖραν τινὰ τοῦ ἁγίου πνεύματος εἰς τὸν ναὸν ἀποπεμφθῆναι, that ſome portion of the divine Spirit might come down upon the temple, Antiq. l. 8. c. 2. p. 264. F. but that in all mens opinion there was an ἐπιδημία θεοῦ καὶ κατοικισμὸς, an advent to, and habitation of God in it, ibid. p. 263. and that God came down into the temple, and did κατασκηνῶν ἐν αὐτῷ, pitch his tabernacle in it. ibid. D. G. See the note on 1 Cor. 6. 19. In the ſecond temple, ſay the Jews, were wanting the Urim and Thummim, the Divine glory, the holy Spirit, and the oil of gladneſs. Now Chriſt was that oracle from whom we might receive anſwers full of truth and light; in him dwelt the true Shechinah, he had the Spirit without meaſure, and he was anointed with the oil of gladneſs above his fellows; and ſo in theſe reſpects was greater than the temple. The temple which you have polluted, ſaith he, I have cleanſed; that temple of my body which you will deſtroy, I will raiſe up. And that he did ſo is evident from this, that after his reſurrection his diſciples believed the words which Jeſus had ſaid, ver. 22. which, had not Chriſt raiſed his own body from the dead, they could not have done. See the note on chap. 10. 18. I confeſs it is more frequently ſaid in ſcripture, that the Father raiſed him from the dead; and this was neceſſary to be ſaid, that it might appear that he had fully ſatisfied the divine juſtice for our ſins, in that he was by him delivered from that death he ſuffered for them. But then, as the reſurrection in general is often aſcribed to God the Father, and yet it cannot be denied that God the Son ſhall raiſe the dead by his own power, as the ſcripture teſtifies, John 5. 28, 29.——6. 39, 40, 44, 54. 1 Cor. 15. 21, 22, 25, 26. Rom. 14. 19. Philip. 3. 21. Rev. 1. 18. ſo is it to be owned that the Father

Father raised Christ from the dead: nor yet is it to be denied that our Lord raised up himself, seeing he was quickened by the Spirit, Rom. 8. 22. 1 Pet. 3. 18. and God raised him up διὰ πνεύματος αὐτοῦ. by his Spirit, Rom. 1. 4. and this Spirit, as he was the Spirit of the Father, so was he also the Spirit of Christ, 1 Pet. 1. 11. and dwelt essentially in him. And thus it is easy to conceive how he raised up himself, and yet his resurrection might be ascribed to God the Father, viz. because he did it by virtue of the Spirit of the Father dwelling in him.

Ver. 20. [1] Τεσσαρακοντα καὶ ἓξ ἔτεσιν ᾠκοδομήθη ὁ ναὸς οὗτος, Forty and six years hath this temple been building.] Mr Wh. here saith, The words should be rendered, forty six years hath this temple been built; but our version is justified from the use of the same word in the Septuagint, in the same case, Ezra 5. 16. ἀπότε τοῦτο ἕως τοῦ νῦν ᾠκοδομήθη καὶ οὐκ ἐτελέσθη. This temple hath been building from that time to this, and hath not yet been finished. 2*dly*, The argument of the Jews requires this sense which our translation giveth of these words; for it is plain folly to state thus the years from which it had been built, to prove it could not be built again in three days; since this could have no more force to prove it could not be built in three days, than its being built at any other time: but the argument is plain and strong according to our version, viz. That it could not reasonably be thought that Christ himself, or with his small retinue, should do that in three days, which had already cost many thousand labourers forty six years to build.

Mr Whiston's computation, I confess, is very plausible at the first view: it begins thus; (e) "Josephus assures us that the ναὸς or temple was "begun in the 18th year of Herod from the death "of Antigonus, and that it was finished in a year "and six months. Now from these circumstances "we may certainly find the year we enquire for; "Antigonus was slain about July, A. p. J. 4677. "and so Herod's 18th year must begin about "July 4694, and continue till July 4695." Let us suppose the temple begun about the feast of tabernacles in this 18th year 4694, add a year and six months, the space in which it was building, and it will appear to have been finished at the passover Nisan 4696; from that passover let us count forty six years, and this will bring us to the passover we enquire for, Nisan 4742, which is A. D. 29. But yet, from an exact view of this computation, I find it fails in almost every particular. For,

1*st*, It is certain from (f) Josephus, that Antigonus neither was, nor could be slain in the month of July, because the temple was not taken by Herod and Sosius till the 10th day of September, it being taken, saith Josephus, τῇ ἑορτῇ τῆς νηστείας; on the feast of the fast; by which words, saith (g) Langius, he intends no other than the fast prescribed by the law of Moses, and mentioned in his own history as a fast; for he names the day, that every one might know certainly when the city was taken, which, had there been more fasts, they could not have done by this character; Sed omnem dubitationem eximit apposita vox ἑορτῆς, but the word feast added to it puts the matter beyond doubt, for there was but one fast, so called, in a year. This, say I, is demonstrable from the word ἑορτὴ, the feast of the fast, the 10th of Tisri being the only fast mentioned among the feasts of the Lord, and called a sabbath of sabbaths, Lev. chap. 16. and chap 21. and being by all writers called the feast of expiation. And this is also evident from the word νηστεία; for this, being the only fast of God's appointment, is by the scripture, Philo and Josephus, emphatically stiled the fast day: thus, sailing was dangerous, saith St Paul, because the fast was past, Acts 27. 9. for on the 10th day of the seventh month we fast till eventide, saith (h) Josephus, and on the 15th day of the said month τρίτης ὁ καιρὸς εἰς τὴν χειμέριον ὥραν, begins the winter. Ἡ λεγομένη νηστεία, the day by us called a fast, is reverenced every where, saith (*) Philo. This, saith (i) Josephus, is the day ἣν Ἰουδαῖοι νηστείαν ἄγουσιν, on which the Jews fast; which had they then observed any other annual and stated fasts, could have been no character of time, as in Josephus and St Paul it is. This is yet farther evident from what Josephus saith in the same place, viz. that the city was taken, μηνὶ ὀλυμπιάδος τῷ γ μηνὶ, in the third month of the 18th olympiad. Now the years of the olympiads beginning in July, the 3d month of any year of an olympiad must answer to the Julian September. Mr Whiston indeed will not allow that antient writers use to cite the months of an olympiad; but he may be convinced of his mistake in this matter from the testimony of (k) Diogenes Laertius, who saith, that Socrates was born in the 4th year of the 77th olympiad, Θαργηλιῶνος ἕκτῃ, on the 6th of Thargelion, that (l) Plato was born in the 88th olympiad, Θαργηλιῶνος ἑβδόμῃ, on the 7th of Thargelion, and that (m) Epicurus was born in the 3d year of the 109th olympiad, on the 7th of Gamelion.

Mr Whiston, to avoid this, saith the city was taken on the day of a ſolemn faſt, in the 23d of the 3d month Sivan, kept for the defection and idolatry of Jeroboam. But, 1. Joſephus doth not ſay it was taken in a faſt, on the 3d Jewiſh month, but ὀλυμπιάδ☉ τῷ γ μηνὶ on the 3d month of the 185th olympiad, which anſwers to September, and then, by way of appoſition, τῇ ἑορτῇ ♁ νηςείας, at the feaſt of the faſt, which plainly fixes the taking of it to the 10th of September. 2. As Jeroboam celebrated a feaſt in the 8th month, which he deviſed of his own head, ſo Mr Whiſton hath deviſed a faſt of his own head, in the month Sivan, not mentioned by Joſephus, nor any Jewiſh writer of or near thoſe times, nor extant in (n) Buxtorf's hiſtory of their feaſts and faſts, but a pure product of that famous chronicle Megillah Taanith, of which I have already given an account. 3. When Herod began to batter the wall, it was then ſummer, ſaith (o) Joſephus, and ſo he had no hindrance from the weather: now there being three ſummer months, let us take the middle of them; July the 15th, the firſt wall, ſaith (p) Joſephus, was taken after forty days, i. e. Auguſt the 25th; the ſecond fifteen days after that, i. e. on the 10th of September; ergo, not on the month Sivan, when ſummer was but juſt begun. 4. Joſephus adds, (q) that Herod began the ſiege λωφήσαντ☉ τὸ χειμῶν☉, when winter was over, ſuppoſe about the midſt of March, that he went ſoon back to Samaria, and married the daughter of Ariſtobulus; that then he gathers a greater army, and Soſius comes to him with auxiliaries; and then he places his camp near the north wall; let all this be done by the 10th of April; and then he adds, that after this the party of Antigonus endured the ſiege πέντε μησὶ five months, i. e. till the 10th of September: how therefore is it poſſible that the city ſhould be taken in the month Sivan, or the third month? Nor was Antigonus ſlain till about a month or more after the city was taken. For (r) Joſephus informs us, that he was afterwards carried by Soſius to Antioch, where Anthony then was, and that he kept him there, intending to reſerve him to his triumph at Rome; but when he heard that the Jews had ſo great favour for him, and ſo great hatred to Herod, that they would not be prevailed upon by torments to own him as their king, he beheaded him at Antioch. Antigonus, therefore, in all probability, could not be ſlain till about the 10th or 15th of October, and ſo Herod's 18th year could not begin till that time; and ſo if Herod began his project of building the temple on the very firſt day of his 18th year, which yet is both uncertain and improbable, he could not begin it at the feaſt of tabernacles, that being fixed to the 15th day of September.

2*dly*, (ſ) Joſephus doth not ſay that Herod began to build the temple in his 18th year, but only that ὑπεβάλετο, he caſt in his mind to do ſo; and when he had propoſed this to the rulers of the Jews, he engages not to attempt the work till he had prepared all the materials for it; nor doth he ſay how long he was preparing theſe materials, though, ſaith Cauſabon, all men will think it reaſonable to allow him at leaſt a year for that, and biſhop Uſher ſaith they were only provided in two years ſpace: ſo that Herod could not begin the work till the middle of his 19th year (t). Now admit the fancy that the ναὸς was firſt built in eighteen months, he could not finiſh the building of it till his 21ſt year from Antigonus, from thence he reigned only thirteen years; now thirteen and twenty nine will never make forty ſix years.

But, 3*dly*, That which entirely confoundeth this account is this conſideration, that when Herod began to build, he firſt built the ἱερὸν i. e. the court of the Gentiles and lay Jews, and the building of this, ſaith Joſephus, took up eight years, abſolutoque octo annis reliquo ædificio, tandem etiam templum ipſum ſacerdotum opera ſeſquianno perfecit; and having finiſhed that in eight years, he afterwards, by the aſſiſtance of the prieſts, built the ναὸς, or the inward temple, in a year and a half more; ſo that, according to Joſephus, the ναὸς was not built till the 28th of Herod, i. e. but ſix years before his death: now ſix and twenty nine make only thirty five years.

Mr Whiſton indeed ſaith that I perplex the matter, when I place the building of the ἱερὸν before the ναὸς, i. e. the outward before the inner temple. But this I do with good authority, and with better reaſon; for Joſephus ſaith, the ἱερὸν was finiſhed in eight years, and then follow theſe words, (u) τὸν δὲ ναὸν διὰ τῶν ἱερέων οἰκοδομηθέντ☉ ἐνιαυτῷ καὶ μησὶν ἕξ ἅπας ὁ λαὸς ἐπληρώθη χαρᾶς, καὶ τὸ τάχος πρῶτον τῷ Θεῷ τὰς εὐχαριςίας ἐπιτελῶν, then the temple being built by the prieſts in a year and ſix months, all the people returned thanks to God, and celebrated the encænia. Who ſees not now that the work done about the ναὸς was done laſt of all, and that inſtantly thereupon followed the encænia for the dedication of the whole? And this is also suitable to reason; for the Jews, fearing that Herod would not be able to perform his promise, would surely keep that part of the temple on which their daily sacrifices, and the service of the great day of expiation depended, standing, till they saw, by what he had done about the other temple, that he was likely to accomplish his undertaking; and would not have suffered themselves to be deprived of the benefit of those sacrifices for nine years and a half, as they must have done, if either the temple of the priests had not been standing, or not dedicated till that time. Wherefore, for the right stating of this matter, let it be noted,

1. That whether this computation of the Jews be true or false, neither Christ nor the evangelists are concerned in the matter, seeing St John only relates what the Jews said to Christ; and if they said any thing that was not true, he who relateth truly what they said can lose no credit by it. Note,

2. That the opinion of them who say the second temple was (including the times of the interruption to its compleat finishing) forty six years in building, though it may not be true, as Drusius thinks it was, yet was it so as here he saith, ex opinione vulgi et sapientum, according both to the opinion of their wise-men, and the common people; and it is certain, from (w) Josephus, that they had not compleatly finished it till long after; for he having told us that the foundation of it being laid in the close of the reign of Cyrus, it was interrupted nine years till the time of Darius, that (x) Ezra finished the temple for service in the ninth year of Darius, in whose second year they began again to build; adds, (y) that in the twenty fifth year of Xerxes, (i. e. Artaxerxes) Nehemias was sent with his commission to repair the walls of Jerusalem, and τὸ λειπόμενον τοῦ ἱεροῦ τελειώσαι, to finish the remainder of the temple, the court of the sanctuary being not yet built, Neh. 2. 8. And seeing they constantly called the temple built by Zorobabel, and restored by Herod, the second temple, till the destruction of it by Titus; and of necessity it must be so in some true sense, that the prophecy of Haggai concerning Christ's coming to that very temple might be fulfilled; they who always called this the second temple built by Zorobabel, why might they not say of that, according to their received computation, Forty six years was this temple in building?

But, 3. The opinion of Ludovicus Capellus, Dr Allix, and others, who understand this of the temple of Herod, is exact, plain, and evident. For if you begin the time of the building in the eigthteenth of Herod, when he began to set about it, and employed a thousand carts to bring the materials, and provided the most skilful artificers for that work, from that time to his death is exactly sixteen years, this was said to Christ in the thirtieth year of his age, at the first passover after his baptism; now thirty and sixteen make forty six years.

Object. If it be here objected, that Josephus informs us that Herod's temple was finished in nine years and an half;

Anſ. The answer is, that it was then finished as to use; but, saith Capellus, planum est ex eodem semper aliquid additum et extructum ab eo tempore fuisse in illo templo, It is plain from the same Josephus, that from that time there was always something added to or new built in the temple, even till the time of Agrippa junior, i. e. about the space of sixty years. Bishop Usher adds, that all Herod's wealth was not sufficient for the building, but that was continued still by the gifts consecrated to God. And this is confirmed by the saying of (z) Josephus, That all the holy treasures, and the tributes sent from all parts of the world, were spent in building and adorning the temple; and that the abundance of money, and the largesses of the people, were beyond expression; and so τὸ μηδὲ ἐλπισθὲν ἔξειν πόρρω δήμου τῇ χρόνοις ἦν ἀνύσιμον, that which men thought would never be finished (the attempt of (a) Herod being τὸ μὲν τῆς ἐλπίδος ἄπιστον, beyond all mens hopes) was, through patience and length of time, expedited. Yea, (b) he farther saith, In the time of Florus, or the tenth of Nero, τότε τὸ ἱερὸν τελειῶσαι, then was the temple finished.

CHAP. III.

1. THERE was (at Jeruſalem) a man of the Phariſees named Nicodemus, (who was) a ruler of the Jews, (i. e. one of the Jewiſh ſanhedrim, John 7. 50.)

2. The ſame (οὗτος he) came to Jeſus by night, (that he might not offend his colleagues,) and ſaid unto him, Rabbi, [a] we know, (i. e. I know, ſee note on chap. 21. 24. or, it may be certainly known) that thou art a teacher come from God; for no man can do theſe miracles that thou doſt, except God be with him, (the power that enables thee to perform them exceeding all that men or devils can do.)

3. Jeſus (obſerving that he ſaid nothing of the excellency and power of his doctrine, to change the hearts, and reform the lives of men, but only of his miracles, by which it was confirmed,) anſwered and ſaid unto him, Verily, verily I ſay unto thee, (This acknowledgment will not be ſufficient to render thee a member of that kingdom I am to ſet up, for) except a man [b] be born again, (i. e. renewed in his mind, will, and affections by the operation of the Holy Spirit, and ſo become a new creature, 2 Cor. 5. 17.) he cannot ſee (i. e. enjoy the bleſſings of) the kingdom of God.

4. Nicodemus (being a Phariſee exact in the obſervance of their traditions and ritual obſervances, but having no knowledge of this ſpiritual regeneration,) ſaith unto him, How can a man be born (again) when he is old? can he enter the ſecond time into his mothers womb, and be born?

5. Jeſus anſwered, (Though you ſo little underſtand it, yet I have told you a great truth, which farther to explain) Verily, verily I ſay unto thee, [c] Except a man be born (again) of water, (and ſo become one of my diſciples by that baptiſmal regeneration by which your proſelytes are ſaid to become as infants new born,) and of the Spirit, (purifying his heart from all worldly and carnal luſts, and enabling him to live a ſpiritual life, according to my doctrine,) he cannot enter into the kingdom of God, (or enjoy the bleſſings of my kingdom.)

6. (And the reaſon and neceſſity of this regeneration by the Spirit is evident, as alſo that it cannot be ſufficient to this end to be of the ſeed of Abraham, he being only the father of our fleſh; for) [d] that which is born of the fleſh (only) is fleſh, (ſtill mindeth chiefly carnal things, and lives after the motions of the fleſh;) and (but) that which is born of the Spirit, is ſpirit; (i. e. is acted by, and lives after the motions and directions of the Holy Spirit, Rom. 8. 5.)

7. (And) marvel not that I (have) ſaid unto thee, Ye muſt be born again, (becauſe this birth is not diſcernible by the eye of ſenſe, nor do men fully know the manner how this new birth is wrought within them by the Spirit; for thus it is in other matters: as for example,)

8. The [e] wind bloweth where it liſteth, (as the vapours move it,) and thou heareſt the ſound thereof, (and by that diſcerneſt the thing itſelf,) but (yet thou) canſt not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth, (though it came certainly from one place, and goeth certainly to another;) ſo is (it with) every one that is born of the Spirit: (the effects produced in him by the Holy Spirit plainly ſhew a great change in him, and he himſelf perceives it; but the operations of the Spirit producing this change, are not perceptible to others; nor is the renewed perſon always able to perceive and to diſtinguiſh them from the inward workings of his own mind.)

9. Nicodemus anſwered and ſaid unto him, (I apprehend not) how can theſe things be.

10. Jeſus anſwered, and ſaid unto him, Art thou [f] a maſter (διδάσκαλος a teacher) of Iſrael, (one of thoſe who ſay of their baptiſed proſelytes, they are as new born babes, and of wiſdom, that it comes from above,) and (yet) knoweſt not theſe things?

11. Verily, verily I ſay unto thee, We ſpeak that we do know, and teſtify that we have ſeen, (that is, I deliver to you what I know certainly to be true,) and ye receive not our witneſs, (you do not believe and own that truth which by my miracles is confirmed.)

12. If I have told you (of) earthly things, (or that which may be repreſented to you by ſimilitudes taken from earthly things, or things done by you here on earth,) and ye believe (them) not, how ſhall you believe if (when) I tell you of heavenly things, (i. e. of things which cannot be thus repreſented, viz. of my deſcent from heaven, and abode ſtill there?)

13. And (yet no other perſon can acquaint you with theſe heavenly things; for) [g] no man hath aſcended up to heaven (to learn them there, ſee note on Rom. 10. 6.) but he that came down from heaven, even the Son of man, who (according to his Divine Nature) is in heaven (while ye ſee him here on earth.)

14. And (yet as great as this Son of man is, he muſt die for the ſins of men; for) as Moſes lifted up the ſerpent in the wilderneſs, (that they who were bitten by poiſonous ſerpents, and ſo would otherways otherways have died, looking up to it might live, Numb. 21. 8, 9.) even ſo muſt the Son of man be [h] lifted up (upon the croſs :)

15. That whoſoever believeth in him ſhould not periſh (by that death which the temptation of the old ſerpent brought upon all the ſons of Adam,) but (being delivered from it by the death of this Son of man, who is the antitype of that brazen ſerpent, might) have eternal life.

16. (Nor is it to be wondered that God ſhould thus ſuffer his only begotten Son to die, this being only the effect of his great love to mankind ;) for [i] God ſo loved the world, that he gave (up) his only begotten Son (to the death for us all, Rom. 8. 32.) that whoſoever believeth in him ſhould not periſh, (by lying ſtill under the power of death,) but (by riſing from it, John 5. 28, 29. ſhould) have everlaſting life.

17. For (ſurely) God (acting thus in purſuance of his great love to the world,) ſent not his Son into the world to condemn the world, but that the [k] world through him might be ſaved (by faith in him.)

18. (And therefore) he that (having heard his doctrine, and ſeen the miracles by which it is confirmed,) believeth in him, is not condemned, (there being no condemnation to them which are in Chriſt Jeſus, Rom. 8. 1.) but he that (after the knowledge of this ſalutary doctrine) believeth not, is condemned already, becauſe he (after ſuch conviction) hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God.

19. And this is (the ground of) the condemnation (of ſuch a man,) that (he continues in his infidelity, not for want of light but from love to his ſins ; for) light is come into the world, and (theſe) men (have) loved (to continue in) darkneſs [l] rather than (to embrace the) light, becauſe their deeds were evil.

20. (And this is the proper effect of a prevailing love to ſin ;) for every one that doth evil, (naturally) hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, leſt (the evil of) his deeds ſhould be (diſcovered, and) reproved (by it.)

21. But he that doth (ſincerely love) the truth, cometh to the light, that (by it) his deeds may be manifeſted (both to himſelf and others,) that they are wrought in (the fear, and according to the will of) God.

22. After theſe things came Jeſus, and his diſciples into the land of Judea, and there he tarried with them, and (by them) [m] baptized, (chap. 4. 2. to prepare the Jews by the baptiſm of repentance as John did, for the reception of the Meſſiah ; ſee the note.)

23. And John alſo was baptizing in Ænon, near to Salem, (the place being convenient for that purpoſe,) [n] becauſe there was much water there ; and they (the people) came (to him,) and were baptized (of him there.)

24. For John was not yet caſt into priſon (by Herod.)

25. Then there aroſe a queſtion (or diſpute) betwixt ſome of Johns diſciples and the Jews, about purifying, (it being without example to baptize a Jew ; and they being ſtiled ἅγιοι Θεοῦ καθαροί, the pure ſervants of God, Neh. 2. 20. and thought to be born in holineſs, the Phariſees might ask what need there was of any baptiſm to purify them ; and if John's baptiſm was ſufficient for this end, why did Chriſt ſet up another after it, which ſeemed to argue him greater than John, and that his baptiſm muſt confer ſome higher degree of purity.)

26. And (upon this) they came unto John, (for ſatisfaction in this matter,) and (by way of complaint) ſaid unto him, Rabbi, he that was with thee beyond Jordan (to be baptized of thee,) to whom thou beareſt witneſs, behold the ſame baptizeth, (i. e. he takes upon him thy office, as if thy baptiſm were imperfect,) and all men come to him ; (i. e. the concourſe to him is ſo great, that we fear thy baptiſm will be neglected.)

27. John anſwered, and ſaid, [o] A man can receive nothing (of power or authority) except it be given him from heaven.

28. Ye yourſelves (can) bear me witneſs, that I ſaid, I am not the Chriſt, but (only) that I am ſent before him (to prepare his way ; ſeeing then God hath only made me his forerunner, I muſt not pretend to an equality with him whoſe forerunner and ſervant I am.)

29. He that hath the bride is the bridegroom ; but the friend of the bridegroom, which ſtandeth and heareth him, (Gr. ſtanding and hearing him careſs, and expreſs his affection to his ſpouſe,) rejoiceth greatly becauſe of the bridegrooms voice : (Chriſt is the bridegroom, and the church is his bride, I only am the bridegroom's friend ;) this my joy therefore is fulfilled, (by hearing that he is thus graciouſly ſpeaking to his church, and calling her by this and other methods to fit herſelf for his embraces.)

30. He muſt increaſe (in his glory, and the extent of his government, Luke 1. 32, 33.) but I (his forerunner, whoſe office ceaſeth when he comes, and manifeſts himſelf to the world,) muſt decreaſe.

31. (And it is reaſonable to own him ſuperior to me, and all the other prophets which ever came into the world, even to Moſes himſelf ; for) He that cometh from above, (not only by his miſſion from God, as I and they did, but by his original, ver. 13.) is above all (that are deſcended of earthly parents only: and) he that is (thus) [p] of the earth, is earthly (as to his riſe,) and ſpeaketh of the earth, (i. e. things which comparatively are earthly, Moſes of carnal ordinances, I of water baptiſm, the prophets of obedience to the law of Moſes; but) he that came from heaven (to reveal the will of God to man,) is above all, (not only in the excellency of his perſon, but in the ſpiritual and heavenly nature of his doctrines and promiſes.)

32. [x] And what he hath ſeen (by the irradiation,) and heard (by the immediate dictate of the holy Ghoſt dwelling in him,) that he teſtifies (to the world,) and (yet) no man receiveth his teſtimony, (i. e. they who receive it, compared with them that do not, are as none.)

33. He that hath received his teſtimony hath ſet to his ſeal, (i. e. declared his aſſurance) that God is true, (both in his promiſes concerning the Meſſiah, and in his teſtimonies that he hath given to him, that this is his beloved Son; it being as impoſſible, that he who is ſent with ſuch heavenly doctrine, confirmed by ſo great teſtimonies from heaven, ſhould be a deceiver, as that God himſelf ſhould lie.)

34. For he whom God hath ſent (ſo as no other prophet was ſent,) [r] ſpeaketh the words of God (ſo as no other prophet did;) for God giveth not the Spirit by meaſure, (or in a limited manner) to him, (as he did to them, ſo as to come to them only at ſuch times, and to impart ſuch a particular revelation, for in him were all the hidden treaſures of wiſdom and knowledge, Col. 2. 3.)

35. (And) the Father loveth the Son, and hath given all things into his hand; (the entire knowledge and revelation of his will, and the power to give eternal life to thoſe that believe and obey it, John 17. 2. and to condemn everlaſtingly thoſe that obey not his goſpel, 2 Theſſ. 1. 7, 8.)

36. (And therefore) he that believeth on the Son (may be ſure he) hath (a preſent right to, and ſhall hereafter receive) everlaſting life; and (but) he that believeth not the Son, (but rejecteth his authority and doctrine,) ſhall not ſee (i. e. enjoy this) life, but the wrath of God abideth on him (for ever.)

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. III.

Ver. 2 [a] Οἴδαμεν, We know that thou art a teacher ſent from God.] This could not be ſaid of his brethren, the Phariſees and rulers of the Sanhedrim, for none of the Phariſees or of the rulers believed on him, chap 7. 48. οἴδαμεν therefore here may relate chiefly to Nicodemus, and only ſignify, I know, as it often doth, ſee note on chap. 21. 24. or elſe may ſignify, it is, or may be known, as when the blind man ſaith, we know God heareth not ſinners, chap. 9. 31. ſee Matth. 26. 2. Luke 20. 21. Rom. 2. 2.----3. 19. ----7. 14. 1 Cor. 8. 4. 1 Tim. 1. 8.

Ver. 14. [b] Ἐαν μὴ τις γεννηθῇ ἄνωθεν ὐ δύναται ἰδεῖν, If a man be not born again, he cannot ſee the kingdom of God.] It is here needleſs to enquire whether the word ἄνωθεν ſhould be rendered from above, or again, as our tranſlation doth, and as Nicodemus underſtood Chriſt's words, ſince every one who is born again is alſo born from above, James 3. 17. as being born of that Spirit which cometh from above.

Note alſo, That to ſee the kingdom of God here, and to enter into it, ver. 5. is the ſame thing, and both theſe phraſes ſignify to be a real member of that kingdom, and to enjoy the bleſſings belonging to them who are ſo; thus to ſee good, Eccleſ. 6. 6. to ſee good days, Pſal. 34. 12. and to ſee life, ver. 36. is to enjoy them, and to ſee God, Job 19. 26. Matth. 5. 8. and to ſee the Lord, Heb. 12. 14. is to enjoy him.

Note, 3*dly*, That Chriſt ſeems to ſpeak this not primarily of that heavenly kingdom into which the bleſſed ſhall enter at the day of judgment, but of that ſpiritual kingdom which was to be erected by the Meſſiah, and into which men entered by baptiſm; whence it muſt follow, that no man is indeed a member of Chriſt's kingdom who is not truly regenerate If you continue in my word, ſaith Chriſt, then are ye my diſciples indeed, John 8. 31. and if any man hath not the Spirit of Chriſt, he is none of his, Rom. 8. 9.

Note, Laſtly, That this ſeems to be directed againſt the falſe and pernicious conceptions of the Jewiſh doctors, the ſcribes and Phariſees, who thought they had a title to the kingdom of God, and the bleſſings of it, as being the ſeed of Abraham according to the fleſh, and promiſed to all Iſraelites on that account a portion in the world to come; declaring ſaith (a) Juſtin Martyr, that to

to all that were of the seed of Abraham, though they were sinners, and disobedient to God's laws, should be given an eternal kingdom.

Ver. 5. [c] Ἐὰν μὴ γεννηθῇ ἐξ ὕδατος, If a man be not born of water.] That our Lord here speaks of baptismal regeneration, the whole Christian church from the beginning hath always taught, and that with very good reason; for,

1*st*, Though water is sometimes put to signify or represent the purifying operations of the holy Spirit, yet to be born of water is a phrase never used in scripture, for being born of the Spirit; but very properly is it used of that baptism which is the laver of regeneration, Tit. 3. 5. and was by all the antients stiled παλιγγενεσία, or regeneration. See the note on 1 Cor. 7. 14.

2*dly*, To be baptized with the holy Ghost and with fire, Matth. 3. 11. Luke 3. 16. is to be baptized with the holy Ghost descending on the apostles in the symbol of fire, as the event declared, the holy Ghost falling upon them in the shape of cloven tongues like as of fire, Acts 2. 2, 3. and therefore, in like manner, to be baptized with water and the holy Ghost most likely signifies to be baptized with the holy Ghost, and with the symbol of water.

3*dly*, The question betwixt Christ and Nicodemus was about that which was requisite to fit a man to enter into the kingdom, that is, the church of God, and make him partaker of the blessings of the gospel: now it is certain that baptism by water is by our Lord declared to be the ordinary means of entering into his kingdom, for he saith, Mark 16. 16. he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; or, of becoming one of Christ's disciples, for he not only made disciples by baptism, John 4. 1. but gave commission to his apostles to make disciples in all nations by baptizing them, Matth. 28. 19. and therefore must here speak of that: hence, even when the holy Ghost was actually fallen upon Cornelius and his friends, St Peter commands them to be baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus, i. e. to be admitted to be Christ's disciples by that rite, and looks upon it as a necessary consequent of that higher baptism, Acts 10. 47, 48. Christ therefore here declares it to be a rite necessary for the entrance of adult persons into his kingdom; and it seems highly reasonable to esteem so of it; for what salvation can be expected by them who, after he hath told them they must be baptized with water that they may enter into his kingdom, do by refusing that sacrament too plainly shew that they refuse that way of entering into his kingdom, and becoming his disciples, which he had appointed for that end? But then here,

1*st*, Infants must be excepted from this necessity, as being incapable of knowing, and therefore of transgressing this command; they therefore shall not suffer in their eternal interests for the mistake or neglect of any of their parents.

2*dly*, They are to be excepted who want that baptism they desire, not out of contempt, but of necessity, as dying before they can procure it; thus though the infant who died before the eighth day died without the sign of the covenant, the Jews never thought fit to circumcise them before that day; and since it is not the washing of the body, but the stipulation of a good conscience, that renders baptism saving, 1 Peter 3. 21. it cannot be purely the want, but the contempt of that, which must condemn us. And,

3*dly*, Whatever ignorance of the precept, or mistake about the nature of it, renders not men incapable of baptism by the holy Ghost, can never render them incapable of the salvation promised to the baptized.

Ver. 6. [d] Τὸ γεγεννημένον ἐκ τῆς σαρκὸς, σάρξ ἐστι. That which is born of the flesh, is flesh] (only), our parents being only the fathers of the flesh, Heb. 12. 9. Whence it is that it cannot be sufficient to entitle infants to the blessings of this kingdom without baptism, that they are born of Christian parents according to the flesh, but that some operation of the Spirit is necessary to fit them for the kingdom of heaven. See additions, N°. 9.

Ver. 8. [f] Τὸ πνεῦμα, The wind bloweth where it listeth.] They who here say that the word πνεῦμα signifies here not the wind, but the holy Spirit, 1*st*, Destroy the comparison intimated in the word ὕτως so; and, 2*dly*, They make Christ say that Nicodemus heard the voice of the Spirit, which is not very probable.

Ver. 10. [e] Art thou ὁ διδάσκαλος, a master, or teacher in Israel?] These being received maxims among the Jews, that wisdom is given from above; Targ. in Eccles. 7. 7. and that when a man is a proselyte he is reputed as an infant new born, Selden de jure natural. l. 2. c. 4. our Saviour might well admire that a teacher of Israel should have no notion of a new birth by water, or a birth from above.

Ver. 13. [g] And no man hath ascended into heaven, but he that came down from heaven, even the Son of man, ὁ ὢν ἐν τῷ οὐρανῷ, who is in heaven.] The Jews say, for the honour of their prophet Moses, that he ascended לשמי מרומא into the high heavens, Targ. in Cant. 1. 5, 11, 12. That this was not true of Moses, these words of Christ shew, and the history of Moses, which saith, he only ascended to mount Sinai; but of Christ, who in the beginning was with the Father, chap. 1. 1. and who came down from heaven to do and to declare his Father's will, chap. 3. 35. this is moſt true: but then he is ſaid as to his divine nature to deſcend from heaven, not by a local deſcent, or by quitting heaven, but only by a manifeſtation of himſelf on earth; in which ſenſe God himſelf is ſaid in the Old Teſtament to deſcend to ſee the tower of Babel, Gen. 11. 5. and to confound the lips of them that built it, ver. 7. and to ſee the iniquity of Sodom, Gen. 18. 21. and to deliver his people from the hand of the Egyptians, Exod. 3. 8. and to give them the law, Exod. 19. 18. and thus, ſaith St Auſtin, he is ſaid to deſcend, not when he from heaven obſerves what is done on earth, for that is metaphorically to look down from heaven, but when he doth ſomething upon earth beyond the uſual courſe of nature, which therefore ſeemeth to require his more than ordinary preſence there; and then he is uſually ſaid to appear either attended by his holy angels, or in a flame or cloud of glory, the ſymbol of his majeſtic preſence. Note,

2*dly*, That thoſe things are frequently aſcribed by this Evangeliſt to Chriſt, which neither do nor can agree, and which elſewhere are not aſcribed, to any creature, viz. that he is he who in the beginning was with God, chap. 1. 1. ὁ ὢν that is in the boſom of the Father, ver. 18. ὁ ὢν πρὸς τὸν Θεὸν, that is with God, chap. 6. 46. and here, who is in heaven. Now this never was or could be ſaid of a mere creature; for, as Woltzogenius confeſſeth, no creature can be in heaven, and on the earth, at the ſame time. The gloſs of Grotius here is this, ſingulari Dei dono nobis conceſſus eſt, he is given to us by the ſpecial gift of God: but this anſwers not the fulneſs of the phraſe, He came from heaven; for all the prophets were ſent to the Jews, and the apoſtles both to Jews and Gentiles, by the eſpecial gift and kindneſs of God, and yet none of them are ſaid to come down from heaven: Chriſt is ſtiled the Lord from heaven, 1 Cor. 15. 47. as coming down from thence to judge the world, 1 Theſſ. 4. 16. the new Jeruſalem is ſaid to come down from heaven, Rev. 3. 12—21. 2, 10. becauſe it was repreſented ſo in a viſion to St John; the baptiſm of John is ſaid to be from heaven, but neither he nor his doctrine to deſcend from heaven. See the note on John 6. 32. In vain do ſome Socinians produce, as parallel expreſſions, thoſe words of St Paul, He hath ſeated us in the heavenly places in Chriſt Jeſus, Eph 2. 6. and our city is in heaven, Philip. 3. 20. for the laſt only ſignifies that heaven is the place where we are to dwell for ever; the firſt, that Chriſt hath exalted the human nature thither. Their ſtrength conſiſts in their ſecond anſwer, viz. that ὁ ὢν is to be rendered, who was with God, and who was in heaven; and this, ſay they, is here apparent, becauſe Chriſt ſpeaks of himſelf as the Son of man, both here, and chap. 6. 62. To which it might be anſwered, that Chriſt in theſe places ſaith, the Son of man is in heaven, as St Peter ſaith, the Prince of life was crucified, Acts 3. 15. St Paul, that the Lord of glory ſuffered, 1 Cor. 2. 8. and that God purchaſed a church with his own blood, Acts 20. 28. viz. the Son of man is in heaven, not as the Son of man, but as the Son of God. But that which fundamentally deſtroys this anſwer is this conſideration, that it is not true that Chriſt, as to his human nature in the beginning, was with God, or was in heaven. Yes, ſay they, after his baptiſm he was taken up into heaven, there to be made acquainted with the will of God. But,

1. This ſophiſm is ſufficiently confuted by the profound ſilence of all the evangeliſts concerning it; for they tell us very particularly of very many things concerning Chriſt which are comparatively of little moment; of his circumciſion, of the flight with him into Egypt, of his ſtay in the temple, of his being carried by the tempter into a very high mountain, and his being placed by him on a pinnacle of the temple: can we then reaſonably think the Wiſdom of the Holy Spirit would neglect to record that aſcent of Chriſt into heaven, on which his Divine Wiſdom, and the truth of his whole prophetic office, did ſo much depend? It is true, the argument is negative; but then, in matters of great moment to the eſtabliſhment of our faith in what this our great Prophet taught, and to advance him above all other prophets, as this aſcent muſt be, even Schlichtingius allows ſuch arguments, it being not reaſonable, ſaith he, to ſuppoſe the Wiſdom of the Holy Ghoſt in matters of this nature and importance ſhould be wholly ſilent.

2. To what end ſhould our Saviour be thus ſnatched up into heaven, or what neceſſity was there of it? could not the Father declare his Will to him as to other prophets, while he was on earth? ſure an almighty and all-preſent God could as well do this out of heaven, as in it: Or was it becauſe he would not do this to him upon earth? this cannot truly be affirmed, ſeeing Chriſt was anointed and filled with that Spirit by which he performed his prophetic office, not in heaven, but on earth. There was it that the Spirit deſcended on him as a dove, Matth. 3. 16. and by virtue of this Spirit he received at Jordan, he taught in the ſynagogues, and was glorified of all, Luke 4. 14, 15. by this Spirit he was ſanctified for his office, and ſent into the world, John 10. 36. by this unction the Father ſent him to preach remiſſion of ſins, and the acceptable year of the Lord, Luke

Luke 4. 18, 19. On this account he spake the words of God, because the Father had given him the Spirit, not by measure, here ver. 34. Whence it appears that Christ was fitted for this prophetic office by that Spirit he received on earth. Well then, either our Lord was taken up into heaven to be thus instructed, before this unction he received on earth, or afterwards: if before, this unction of the Spirit must be needless, unless God did his work imperfectly in heaven, and gave him there no full and perfect knowledge of his will; if after this unction, this ascent was needless, he being by it filled with the Spirit of wisdom, counsel and power, above measure. What therefore could be wanting to him, who from this Spirit had received all the treasures of wisdom and power to perform the greatest miracles for the discharge of his prophetic function? See Placæus disp. prima et secunda, and note on John 6. 61.

Ver. 14. [h] Οὕτως ὑψωθῆναι δεῖ τὸν Υ ἀνθρώπου, So must the Son of man be lifted up, that all that believe in him may have eternal life.] He saith not here, as the Socinians, that the death of Christ was necessary for the confirmation of the gospel, but, with the fathers, that it was necessary to procure to us life eternal, by removing that death which sin had brought upon us. Note also, that as ὑψωθῆναι here, and chap. 8. 28, 12, 32. is to be lifted up upon the cross, so Rabbi Solomo interprets the pole on which the serpent was lifted up, a fork; and (b) Justin M. (c) Tertullian, and (d) Barnabas, say, this was a figure of the cross, and that it was a symbol of salvation; he that turned to it being preserved from death, not by what he saw, but by the Saviour of all men.

Ver. 16. [i] God so loved the world, &c.] Two things in scripture are noted as indications of God's especial love to man; 1*st*, That he sent his Son into the world to die for him. 2*dly*, That he who was thus sent was ὑὸς ἴδιος καὶ μονογενὴς, his proper, only Son, Rom. 8. 32. 1 John 4. 9, 10.

Object. Woltzogenius here saith, 1*st*, That this Son of God could not be God, since then he must be his own Son.

Answ. It only follows hence that he could not be God the Father, but yet he might be God of God, by the union of the Λόγος, or the Divine Nature, to his human nature.

Object. But then, saith he, God must have suffered.

Answ. It follows only hence, that he who suffered was God, but not that he suffered as God; and this those antient fathers well understood, who read, Heb. 2. 9. that Christ suffered, χωρὶς Θεοῦ, his divinity suffering nothing.

2*dly*, Hence he objects against Christ's satisfaction thus; Seeing God shewed the highest love to men, in sending thus his Son to die for them, he could not then be angry with them, and therefore could require no atonement to be made to him for them: Christ therefore could not die to reconcile this kind and loving God to the world.

Answ. To this I answer, That we are taught, by plain examples of holy scripture, that love of benevolence in God towards the sinner is well consistent with his displeasure against him for his sin, as in the case of Job's three friends; For the Lord said to Eliphaz the Temanite, My anger is kindled against thee, and thy two friends, because ye have not spoken of me the things which are right, Job 42. 7. in which words there is a declaration of God's anger against them for their sin, exactly parallel to that of God supposed by us in this case; and yet we find a like expression of his love in the ensuing words, Therefore take to you now seven bullocks, and seven rams, and go to my servant Job, and offer up for yourselves a burnt offering, for him will I accept, lest I deal with you after your folly. God's love is visible, in directing them to that sacrifice which would obtain his favour; but it was only after the oblation offered, and the prayer of Job, that ἔλυσε τὴν ἁμαρτίαν αὐτοῖς, he forgave their sins. Again, did not God shew his kindness to his people Israel, in admitting a beast to suffer in their stead, and appointing his blood to make atonement for them; and yet did not he himself require this atonement to be made, that so their sins might be forgiven? did he not appoint this blood to be offered to him as a propitiation for their sins? and did not then the victim die? and was not his blood offered to reconcile this loving God to sinners? And is it not hence evident, that God's love to sinners is well consistent with his displeasure against them for their sins?

Ver. 17. [k] For God sent not his Son——to condemn the world, but that ὁ κόσμος, the world by him might be saved.] The Jews imagined, that God first made the world only for their sakes, 2 Esd. 6. 55, 56, 59. and also, that the redemption of it was only designed for their good, and that their Messiah would come to subdue and condemn the nations whom he hated: Chriſt, on the contrary, here declares, That God was ſo far from hating or condemning them, that he ſent the Meſſiah into the world to ſave them, and conſequently to die for them.

Vain here is their imagination, who by the world underſtand only the elect out of the world; for then Chriſt here muſt only ſay, that he was ſent that the elect who believed in him ſhould not periſh; as if any who were abſolutely elected to ſalvation by faith in him could either periſh or not believe. No, it is apparent from theſe words, that of this world, thus beloved by God, ſome would not believe, and ſo would periſh. And this is more apparent from the words immediately following, in which the world, which he was ſent to ſave, is divided into believers and unbelievers, and into thoſe that will be ſaved and condemned; for thus they run, He (of this world) who believeth in him is not condemned, but he that believeth not is now condemned; which muſt be falſe, if you reſtrain this world to ſuch elect as cannot periſh, and cannot but believe to life eternal. And, laſtly, He that believeth not, ſaith Chriſt, ſhall therefore be condemned, becauſe he believeth not in the name of the only Son of God. Now, is it not abſurd to ſay, men ſhall eternally be condemned for not believing in him who died not for them, and was not ſent for their ſalvation? Since, then, Chriſt frequently declares, that all to whom the goſpel is propounded ſhall be condemned, if and becauſe they believe not in him, John 3. 18.—12. 47. it is certain that he died for the ſalvation of them alſo.

Ver. 19. [l] And men have loved darkneſs more than light, μᾶλλον ⟨ὁ⟩ ἢ τὸ φῶς.] Here the critics note, that μᾶλλον ἢ is not a comparative, as if the workers of iniquity did in ſome meaſure love the light; for, ver. 20. they are ſaid to hate it; but, as in other places, is a negative: ſo chap. 12. 43. They loved the praiſe of men, μᾶλλον ὑπερ, more than the praiſe of God, i. e. and not the praiſe of God. So 1 Tim. 1. 4. 2 Tim. 3. 4. Heb. 12. 25. in which places μᾶλλον ἢ may be rendered as here, and not light; and this they did, not only in thoſe times of ignorance at which God winked, Acts 17. 30. but after the clear light had ſhined upon them; by which it appeared, that the deeds of darkneſs were ſo pleaſing to them, that when they were diſcovered to them ſo to be, they ſtill bore that affection to them which rendered the light diſpleaſing to them, becauſe it did reprove them; whereas they who had hearts diſpoſed to obey that light, which would direct them in the way to happineſs, came to it, that they might be the more aſſured they were doing the works of God, i. e. thoſe works which were performed according to his will, which tended to his glory, and chiefly did reſpect him as the end and object of them.

Ver. 22. [m] Καὶ ἐβάπτιζεν, And he baptized] by his diſciples, chap. 4. 2. not, as moſt interpreters conceive, into his own name, or ſo as to exact from them a belief that he was the Chriſt; for this he forbids his diſciples to divulge till he was riſen from the dead, Matth. 16. 20.—17. 9. He therefore only did baptize, as John had done, into the faith of the Meſſiah which was to come, and with that baptiſm of repentance which prepared the Jews for the reception of his kingdom.

Ver. 23. [n] Ὅτι ὕδατα πολλὰ ἦν ἐκεῖ, Becauſe there was much water there;] in which their whole bodies might be dipped; for in this manner only was the Jewiſh baptiſm performed, by a deſcent into the water, Acts 8. 38. and an aſcent out of it, ver. 39. and a burial in it, Rom. 6. 3, 4. Col. 2. 12. Some here enquire why Chriſt ſhould thus baptize, when John had not deſiſted ſo to do? but ſince both by their baptiſm intended the ſame thing, I ſee no reaſon why our Saviour might not as well baptize as preach repentance, Matth. 4. 17. whilſt the Baptiſt was doing the ſame thing.

Ver. 27. [o] A man can receive nothing of himſelf;] i. e. one who by Divine authority is entruſted with any commiſſion cannot exceed that commiſſion: ſince, therefore, God hath only made me the forerunner of the Meſſiah, as I have told you, ver. 28. I cannot pretend to be equal with him.

Ver. 31. [p] Ὁ ὢν ἐκ τῆς γῆς, &c. He that is of the earth is earthly.] See the paraphraſe: and note, that ὁ ἐπὶ πάντων is an epithet proper to God alone, and yet aſcribed to Chriſt, Rom. 9. 5.

Ver. 32. [q] Καὶ ὃ ἑώρακε καὶ ἤκουσε τοῦτο μαρτυρεῖ, And what he hath ſeen and heard, that he teſtifies;] i. e. what he fully knows; for by ſeeing and hearing we come to the moſt perfect knowledge of things; or what he hath inwardly heard and ſeen by the dictate and irradiation of the Holy Spirit.

Ver. 34. [r] He whom God hath ſent, ſpeaketh the words of God; for God giveth not to him the Spirit by meaſure;] i. e. he that hath the Spirit in a limited manner, at ſuch times only, and with reſpect to ſuch particular revelations only, may ſometimes ſpeak from his own ſelf; but he who hath the Spirit always reſiding in him, without ſtint or meaſure, muſt always ſpeak the word of God. To give a thing in meaſure, in the ſcripture-phraſe, is to do it ſparingly; as when it is ſaid, They ſhall drink water by meaſure, Ezek. 4. 16. and to correct in meaſure, Jer. 46. 28.——30. 11. is to do do it ſparingly, or in ſuch a proportion; in which ſenſe we read of the meaſure of faith, Rom. 12. 3. and the meaſure of the gift of Chriſt, Eph. 4. 7. ſo that to give the Spirit without meaſure, is to give him in the greateſt affluence, and without reſtraint.

CHAP. IV.

1. WHEN therefore the Lord knew, how the Phariſees had heard that Jeſus made and baptized more diſciples than John (the Baptiſt:)

2. Though (in truth) Jeſus himſelf baptized not, but (only) his diſciples; (ſee the note on chap. 3. 22.)

3. He (in proſpect of the danger this might bring upon him from the envy and malice of theſe Phariſees,) left Judea, (where the power of the Sanhedrim, of which many of them were members, prevailed,) and departed again into Galilee, (where they had leſs intereſt with Herod, and could leſs obſerve, or be offended with his actions.)

4. And he muſt needs go [a] through Samaria, (that lying betwixt Judea and Galilee.)

5. Then cometh he (Gr. he cometh therefore) to a city of Samaria, which is called (by them Sichem, but by the Jews, ſee the note,) [b] Sychar, near to the [c] parcel of ground that Jacob gave to his ſon Joſeph (at his laſt benediction, Gen. 48. 22.)

6. Now Jacobs well (i. e. a well bearing his name) was there; Jeſus therefore being wearied with his journey, ſat [d] thus, (weary and thirſty as he was,) on (or by) the well; and it was about the ſixth hour, (i. e. it was then about noon.)

7. (Then) There cometh a woman of Samaria (to that well) to draw water; (and) Jeſus ſaith unto her, Give me (ſome water) to drink:

8. For his diſciples were gone away to the city to buy meat, (and ſo could not draw it for him.)

9. Then ſaith the woman of Samaria unto him, How is it that thou being a Jew, askeſt drink of me, which am a woman of Samaria? (This ſhe had cauſe to wonder at,) [e] for the Jews have no dealings with the Samaritans; (they would buy of them any thing, but they would receive no gratuity or kindneſs from them. See the note.)

10. Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto her, If thou kneweſt [f] the gift of God, (i. e. what an excellent gift the holy Spirit is,) and who it is that ſaith to thee, Give me to drink, (i. e. how able he is to impart this gift to thee,) thou wouldſt have asked of him, and (then) he would have given thee (this) living water, (which will ſpring up ſo continually in him that hath it, that he ſhall thirſt no more, ver. 15. ſee John 7. 38, 39.)

11. The woman (thinking Chriſt only meant ſpring-water, that being in the Hebrew idiom living water, Gen. 26. 19.) ſaith unto him, Sir, thou haſt nothing to draw with, and the well is deep; from whence then haſt thou that living water (of which thou ſpeakeſt?)

12. Art thou greater than our father Jacob who gave us the well, (for we claim our deſcent from him,) and drank thereof himſelf, and his children, and his cattle?

13. Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto her, Whoſoever drinketh of this water, ſhall (ſoon after) thirſt again:

14. But whoſoever drinketh of the water that I ſhall give him, [g] ſhall never (have cauſe to) thirſt (more;) but the water which I ſhall give him (i. e. the holy Spirit abiding in him) ſhall be in him (as) a well of water ſpringing up to everlaſting life.

15. The woman (ſtill underſtanding him as groſly as ſhe did before,) ſaith unto him, Sir, give me this water, that I thirſt not (any more,) neither (may have further need to) come hither to draw (water.)

16. Jeſus (being willing to prepare her to receive his doctrine, by convincing her that he was a prophet,) ſaith unto her, Go, call thy husband, and come (ye both) hither.

17. The woman anſwered, and ſaid, I have no husband: Jeſus ſaid unto her, Thou haſt well (i. e. truly) ſaid, I have no husband:

18. For thou haſt had five husbands (from whom thou haſt been divorced for thy adulteries;) and he whom thou now haſt (i. e. cohabiteſt with) [h] is not thy husband, (thou living with him in fornication;) in that (therefore) ſaidſt thou truly.

19. The woman (then) ſaith unto him, Sir, I perceive that thou (who ſo exactly knoweſt the ſecrets of my life, and that which I thought was known to God alone,) art a prophet.

20. [i] Our fathers worſhipped in this mountain, (as we do,) and ye (Jews) ſay, that in Jeruſalem is the place where men ought to worſhip (God; I ask therefore thy opinion in this caſe?)

21. Jeſus ſaith unto her, Woman, believe me, the hour (ſhortly) cometh when ye ſhall [k] neither in this mountain, nor yet at Jeruſalem, worſhip the Father.

22. (But to your queſtion I anſwer, That) [l] ye worſhip ye know not what; (i. e. that God which you do not truly and ſavingly know, becauſe ye know know him not according as he is revealed in his word:) we know what (i. e. τὸ θεῖον ὃ, the Divinity which) we worſhip, (ſerving him according to thoſe laws to which he hath promiſed ſalvation;) for ſalvation is of the Jews, (and the terms of it are to be derived from them to others.)

23. But the hour cometh, and now is (inſtant,) when the true worſhippers ſhall worſhip the Father, (not with carnal ſacrifices as both now do, but) in [m] ſpirit (ual ſacrifices, acceptable to God through Jeſus Chriſt, 1 Peter 2. 5.) and (not in the types and ſhadows of the law, as the Jews now do, nor in that erroneous manner as ye do, but) in (the) truth (of the goſpel, John 1. 17.) for the Father ſeeketh ſuch to worſhip him, (Gr. ſuch worſhippers of him: for,)

24. [n] God is a Spirit, and they that worſhip him (aright) muſt worſhip him in ſpirit and in truth; (i. e. agreeably to his ſpiritual nature, by giving up their hearts and ſpirit to him, and according to his will, by ſerving him according to the precepts of the goſpel.)

25. The woman ſaith unto him, I know that Meſſias cometh, who is called Chriſt, and when he is come, he will tell us all things (that we are to believe and do.)

26. Jeſus ſaith unto her, I that ſpeak unto thee am he (viz. the Meſſiah.)

27. And upon this came his diſciples, and [o] marvelled that he talked with the woman; yet no man ſaid (to him) What ſeekeſt thou (of,) or why talkeſt thou with her?

28. The woman then left her water-pot (at the well,) and went her way into the city, and ſaith to the men (of the city,)

29. Come, ſee a man who told me all things that ever I did: is not this (an evidence that he is) the Chriſt?

30. Then they went out of the city, and came to him.

31. In the mean while his diſciples prayed him, ſaying, Maſter, eat.

32. But he ſaid unto them, [p] I have meat to eat which ye know not of; (i. e. ſomewhat more valuable and pleaſant to me than meat or drink.)

33. Therefore ſaid the diſciples one unto another, Hath any man brought him (meat) to eat?

34. Jeſus ſaith unto them, My meat (i. e. my delight) is to do the will of him that ſent me, and to finiſh his work.

35. Say not ye (proverbially, as an encouragement to the ſower,) There are yet four months, and then cometh (on the) harveſt? Behold, I ſay unto you, Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields, for they are white already to harveſt; (i. e. look upon the Samaritans flocking to me to hear my doctrine, and you will ſee, that the time of my ſpiritual harveſt is already come.)

36. And he that reapeth (this ſpiritual harveſt by bringing men to the faith,) receiveth wages (for his labour,) and gathereth fruit, (not to ſuſtain this mortal life, but) to life eternal; that both he that ſoweth, and he that reapeth, (he that laboureth to prepare men for, and he that brings them to the faith,) may rejoice together (in the fruit of their labour.)

37. And here is that (proverbial) [q] ſaying true, One ſoweth, and another reapeth.

38. I (have) ſent (or do ſend) you to reap that whereon you beſtowed no labour; other men laboured, (the prophets by foretelling the Meſſiah, the Baptiſt by calling men to repentance, that they might be prepared to receive him,) and ye are entred into their labours, (and only are to perfect what they have begun.)

39. And many of the Samaritans of that city believed on him, for the ſaying of the woman, which teſtified, (ſaying) He told me all that ever I did.

40. So when the Samaritans were come to him, they beſought him that he would tarry with them; and he [r] abode there two days.

41. And (in that time) many more believed, becauſe of his own word:

42. And ſaid unto the woman, Now we believe, not becauſe of thy ſaying; for we have heard him ourſelves, and know (by the excellency of his doctrine, and the holineſs and goodneſs of his precepts,) that this is indeed the Chriſt, the Saviour of the [s] world.

43. Now after two days, he departed thence, and went into Galilee, (paſſing not by Nazareth, the place of his education, but another way.)

44. For Jeſus himſelf teſtified, that a prophet hath (comparatively) no honour in his own country.

45. Then when he was come into Galilee, the Galileans received him (gladly,) having ſeen all the things which he did at Jeruſalem at the feaſt (of the paſſover;) for they alſo went to the feaſt.

46. So Jeſus came again into Cana of Galilee, where he had made the water wine; and there was a certain nobleman, (a great man of Herod's court,) whoſe ſon was ſick at Capernaum.

47. (And) When he heard that Jeſus was come out of Judea into Galilee, he went to him, and beſought him, that he would come down and heal his ſon; for he was at the point of death.

48. Then ſaid Jeſus unto him, Except ye ſee [t] ſigns and wonders (done before your eyes,) ye (Jews and Herodians) will not believe (on the account of the excellence and goodneſs of my doctrine, as the Samaritans did.)

49. The

49. The nobleman saith unto him, Sir, come down ere my child die.

50. Jesus saith unto him, (There is no need of my going down;) Go thy way, (and thou shalt find) thy son liveth: and the man believed the word which Jesus had spoken to him, and he went his way.

51. And as he was now going down (to his house,) his servants met him, and told him, saying, Thy son liveth.

52. Then enquired he of them the hour, when he began to amend: and they said unto him, Yesterday at the seventh hour the fever left him.

53. So the father knew that it was at the same hour, in the which Jesus said unto him, Thy son liveth; and (he) himself believed, and [n] his whole house.

54. This is again the second miracle that Jesus did, when he was come out of Judea into Galilee.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. IV.

Ver. 4. [a] HE must go through Samaria.] For, saith (a) Josephus, the Galileans going up to Jerusalem at the feast, went through the country of the Samaritans.

Ver. 5. [b] He cometh to a city of Samaria, called Σίχαρ. Sichar.] It is certain, from the son of Sirac, chap. 50. 26. and from Josephus, Antiq. l. 11. c. 8. that the name of the city was Sichem. This therefore is either a corrupt pronunciation, as Βελιὰρ for Βελιὰλ, or a name of reproach put upon it by the Jews, from שכר as if it were a city of drunkards, as Achan, Josh. 7. 25. is called עכר 1 Chron. 2. 7. as being a troubler of Israel.

Ibid. [c] The parcel of ground which Jacob gave to his son Joseph;] i. e. That piece of ground which he bought of Hamor, the father of Sichem, Gen. 33. 19. for that was near Sichem, saith the text there. And hence this place became not only the inheritance of Joseph, but his own burial-place, he being buried, not in the cave of Machpelah, as his father Jacob was, Gen 50. 13. nor saying, I will ly with my father, as Jacob did, Gen. 47. 30. but being buried in this place; for the bones of Joseph, which the children of Israel brought out of Egypt, buried they in (i. e near to) Sichem, in a parcel of ground which Jacob bought of Hamor, the father of Sichem, for an hundred pieces of silver; and it became the inheritance of the children of Joseph, Josh. 24. 32. See Bochart. Hieroz. part 1. l. 2. c. 43. p. 435, 436.

Ver. 6. [d] Ἐκαθίζετο οὕτως, He sat thus on the well;] i. e. either weary or thirsty as he was; so Acts 7. 8. οὕτως so Abraham begat Isaac, i. e being circumcised, 1 Kings 2. 7. Shew kindness to the sons of Berzillai, for οὕτως, so they came to me, i. e. with kindness; or as Chrysostom and Theophylact have it, he sat ἄπλως ὡς ἔτυχε. as he found a place: it follows, it was ὡσεὶ ἕκτη, that is, saith one, six a clock in the evening; St John counting by the Roman hours in his gospel: but this mistake is plainly evident from chap. 1. 39. they abode with him that day, for it was about the tenth hour, viz. four in the afternoon, not ten of the night, according to the Romish computation.

Ver. 9. [e] Οὐ γὰρ (συγχρῶνται) Ἰουδαῖοι Σαμαρίταις, For the Jews have no dealings with the Samaritans.] So in the Jerusalem Talmud the Samaritans say, your fathers dealt with our fathers, why therefore do not you so likewise with us? Buxt. Lex. Talm. p. 1370. By the traditions of the Pharisees they might buy of them, and therefore Christ's disciples do not scruple at this, ver. 8. but they were not to borrow any thing of them, or receive any kindness from them, or drink of their water, or eat of their morsels; for they bound them with an anathema not to eat of the fruit or morsel of a Cuthæan, and held the eating of their flesh to be as bad as eating swines flesh, R. Eliezer, c. 38. But Christ, despising such traditions as had no foundation either in the law of God or equity, and tended to the impairing the laws of common friendship or humanity, asks drink of this Samaritan woman, and eateth with them.

Ver. 10. [f] If thou hadst known τὴν δωρεὰν τοῦ Θεοῦ, the gift of God] By the gift of God, and living water, Christ seems here to understand the Holy Spirit, represented in the Old Testament by clean water, Ezek. 36. 25, 27. and in the New by living water, John 7. 38. Rev. 21. 6.—22. 1. For, 1. Spring water is in the Hebrew idiom called living water, in opposition to that which stagnates; for life consisting in continual motion, by reason of the continual ebullition of this water, it is said to live: See Lev. 14. 5, 50.—15. 13. Num. 19. 17. Hence it is here said to be water springing up, ver. 14. And, 2. This Holy Spirit to be communicated to believers is stiled δωρεὰ τοῦ Θεοῦ. the gift of God, Acts 8. 20. ἡ δωρεὰ ἐπουρανίου, the heavenly gift, Heb. 6. 4. ἡ δωρεὰ, the gift, Acts 11. 17. See the note on Rom. 5. 17.

Ver. 14. [g] He that drinketh of the water that I shall ſhall give him ſhall never thirſt ;] i. e. He never ſhall have need to thirſt for the enjoyment of this Spirit, he being to abide with them for ever who have once received him, John 14. 16. if they do not expel, quench, or grieve him; or, he ſhall thirſt no more, becauſe this Spirit will be in him the earneſt of, and bring him to that happy life, where there is no more thirſt, Rev. 7. 16.

Ver. 18. [h] Is not thy husband.] See one reaſon in the paraphraſe; others ſay, this is ſpoken, becauſe ſhe had divorced herſelf from her former husbands, contrary to the law, which permitted not women to begin the divorce, and ſo was really the wife of ſome former husband then living. So Grotius.

Ver. 20. [i] Our fathers worſhipped in this mountain.] We learn from (b) Joſephus, and from this woman, that the Samaritans, when they ſaw it for their advantage, pretended to be Συγγενεῖς τῶν Ἰουδαίων, allied to the Jews, to have Jacob for their father, ver. 12. καὶ ἐκ τοῦ Ἰωσήφου γενεαλογοῦντες αὐτοὺς, ἐκόσων Ἐφραὶμ καὶ Μανασσῆ, and deduced their genealogy from Ephraim and Manaſſes the ſons of Joſeph; they alſo contended that mount Gerizzim was the moſt antient place of worſhip, becauſe Abraham built there an altar to God, Gen. 12. 6, 7. and ſo did Jacob, Gen. 33. 18. and therefore that was the place where ſacrifices were to be offered before the temple at Jeruſalem was built. But the Jews anſwered, that the temple was built on the mountain of Moriah, in the place where Abraham offered up Iſaac, Joſeph. antiq. l. 7. c. 10. p. 254. F. and that that was the place of worſhip throughout all generations, Targum in Chron. 3. 1. See Maimonides de ædificio templi, tract. 1. cap. 2. ſect. 2.

Ver. 21. [k] Οὔτε ἐν τῷ ὄρει τούτῳ ὅτε ἐν Ἱεροσολύμοις, Neither in this mountain, nor yet at Jeruſalem.] Joſephus ſaith the contention betwixt the Jews and Samaritans was about the place to which they ought to bring thoſe ſacrifices and oblations by which God was then chiefly worſhipped, the Jews declaring that it was their temple, (c) καὶ τὰς θυσίας ἐκεῖ πέμπειν ἀξιούντων, and requiring that the ſacrifices ſhould be brought thither; the Samaritans, that they ſhould be brought to mount Gerizzim. This controverſy, ſaith Chriſt, will ſhortly be decided by removing the occaſion of it, viz. this way of worſhipping God by ſacrifices, and by giving liberty to worſhip God with ſpiritual ſacrifices in every place, as the prophet Malachi foretold, chap. 1. 11.

Ver. 22. [l] Ὑμεῖς προσκυνεῖτε ὃ οὐκ οἴδατε, Ye worſhip ye know not what, &c.] This, many think, is ſpoken with relation to ſome falſe objects of their worſhip, or ſome idolatrous way of worſhip which obtained among them. The Jews gave it out that they worſhipped God (d) in the image of a dove; but this ſeems plainly fabulous, and invented by the Jewiſh rabbins out of hatred to them. For, 1. Among the idols which they worſhipped when they came from Aſſyria to Samaria, there is not the leaſt hint of any image of a dove worſhipped by them. 2. (e) Joſephus, tho' he in ſeveral places inveighs againſt them ſharply upon other accounts, doth never charge them with this crime, which ſhews it to be a later invention of their rabbins. And, 3. It is a thing wholly inconſiſtent with that law of Moſes which they then owned; for as all images are forbidden by it, ſo it did require them to ſacrifice the dove to God, and it was always judged an abſurd thing to worſhip that which they did ſacrifice. See Bochart. Hieroz. part 2. l. 1. C. p. 6. 8.

Others ſay they worſhipped God only as the topical God of that country: but though this might be true of them when they firſt came into Samaria, and retained their Heathen ſentiments, yet could it not be true of them after that, rejecting all their Heatheniſh ſuperſtitions, they had embraced that law in which Jehovah is continually ſtiled the Maker of heaven and earth, and the God of all the earth; and when, as (f) Epiphanius ſaith, they endeavoured to renounce all idolatry, and to own one God.

3. Whereas Epiphanius and many of the Jews pronounce them guilty of latent idolatry, for worſhipping God in that mountain where Jacob hid the idols of the nations, according to thoſe words, Gen. 35. 4. And they gave to Jacob all the ſtrange gods that were in their hands, and Jacob buried them under the oak which was by Sychem; it is not probable that Chriſt ſhould accuſe them of falſe worſhip on the account of idols under ground, which they knew nothing of, and which they never did intend to worſhip. Obſerve then, 1ſt, That the enquiry of the woman, and the diſpute was, ſaith Joſephus, only about the place of worſhip, and therefore it is very probable Chriſt's anſwer chiefly doth reſpect the place.

2dly, That Chriſt by ſaying to the Samaritan woman, that ſhortly they ſhould not worſhip the Father in that mountain, does tacitely own that the Samaritans did worſhip the Father; nor doth he he inſtruct her who was the true object of her worſhip, but only how ſhe was to worſhip the true God.

3*dly*, When they came firſt to Samaria, it is obſerved that they knew not Miſhpat, the manner of worſhipping the God of Iſrael, 2 Kings 17. 26. in this, ſaith Chriſt, you are ſtill deficient, as not worſhipping the God of Iſrael according to his preſcription in the law, but according to your own inventions. You therefore may be truly ſaid not to know him, whoſe will you obſerve not, neither worſhipping him according to his nature in the Spirit, nor according to that law which is the rule of his worſhip, and according to which alone you can do him acceptable ſervice; if then you would obtain ſalvation by the worſhip of him, you muſt do it according to the revelations made to the Jews, to whom, as the promiſe of a Saviour was given, ſo from them is ſalvation to come to the world, according to the promiſe made to their father Abraham, In thee ſhall all the families of the earth be bleſſed.

Ver. 23. [m] Shall worſhip the Father ἐν πνεύματι καὶ ἀληθείᾳ, in ſpirit and in truth.] That is, ſaith Origen, ἡ Χαρισταῖς θυσίαις, not with carnal ſacrifices, but with ſpiritual worſhip, or with thoſe ſpiritual ſacrifices which are acceptable to God through Jeſus Chriſt; 1 Peter 2. 5. οὐκ ἐν τύποις, not in types, but according to the truth contained in them, for the law was by Moſes, but grace and truth came by Jeſus Chriſt, John 1. 17. Thus Philo ſaith, he brings to God γνήσιον θεραπείαν, the true worſhip, who brings τὴν ἀλήθειαν, ἁπλῆν, καὶ μόνην θυσίαν, truth, the ſimple and the only ſacrifice; not he who uſes waſhings and purgations of body, but defiles his ſoul; or who builds and adorns temples, and offers hecatombs upon the altar, πλεονάζων δὲ ἔτι ὁ περὶ εὐσέβειαν ὁδῷ, θρησκείαν ἀντὶ ὁσιότητος ἡγούμενος, for he errs from the way of piety, as thinking outward worſhip is to be preferred to holineſs. L. quod deter. pot. p. 123. C. D.

Now that we may thus worſhip God in ſpirit, we muſt lay as the foundation, not only purity of body from all uncleanneſs, but of the ſoul alſo, from all ſpiritual defilements, all pride and haughtineſs of mind, all malice, envy, bitterneſs of ſpirit, all impure thoughts, and evil concupiſcence, for theſe are ſtiled works of the fleſh, Gal. 5. 19,—21. Now they that are in the fleſh, ſaith the apoſtle, cannot pleaſe God, Rom. 8. 8. nor can they mind the things of the Lord who are not pure in body and in ſpirit, 1 Cor. 7. 34. 2 Cor. 7. 1. And with this the very Heathens were ſo well acquainted, that they often taught that God was pura mente colendus, to be worſhipped with a pure mind; this was (g) the beſt offering we could give, and the beſt habitation we could build him.

2*dly*, We muſt have juſt and awful thoughts of the Divine Majeſty, oft repreſenting him to our thoughts as a God of infinite purity and juſtice, as well as power and wiſdom, one who is always preſent with, and beholds all our ſecret thoughts and actions in order to a future recompence; for by theſe apprehenſions fixed in our hearts, we ſhall be naturally induced to glorify him in our ſpirits, 1 Cor. 6. 20. Having laid this foundation, we muſt endeavour to walk humbly with God, ſubjecting ourſelves wholly to his providence, being contented with all conditions in which he doth think fit to place us, and ſubmitting our own wills to his good pleaſure, which is in ſcripture ſtiled poverty of ſpirit, Matth. 5. 4. and the wiſdom of the Spirit, Rom. 8. 6.

3*dly*, We muſt endeavour to reſemble him as much as may be in holineſs and righteouſneſs, in truth, in goodneſs, and in mercy; for even the Heathens ſay, (h) τιμήσεις τὸν Θεὸν ἀείσα, ἐὰν τῷ Θεῷ διάνοιαν ὁμοιώσεις, we then worſhip God beſt, when we are moſt like to him.

4*thly*, We muſt worſhip God from ſpiritual principles, a ſincere love and filial reverence of him; and to ſpiritual ends, that we may promote his glory, and do what is well pleaſing to him; and after a ſpiritual manner, ſerving him with the whole heart, ſoul and mind, and with a fervency of ſpirit.

Ver. 24. [n] Πνεῦμα ὁ Θεὸς, God is a Spirit.] The article here ſhews, that God is the ſubject, and the Spirit is the predicate; and this opinion obtained among the Platoniſts, who ſtile him νοῦς, a mind, and among the (i) Pythagoreans, who ſaid, ἀσωμάτως πρὸ πάντων ἐγὼ Θεοὺς ὑπάρχειν, before all things you muſt hold the gods to be incorporeal. Ariſtotle alſo thought it neceſſary to aſſert, that the firſt Mover was ἀμερὴς, or without parts; yea even the Stoics, ſaith (k) Plutarch, determined that God was an intelligent Spirit without form.

Ver. 27. [o] They marvelled that he talked with the woman;] this being one of the ſix things, ſay

Ver. 35. See additions, No. 10.

Ver. 37. [q] Ὁ λόγος, This ſaying.] So the ſcholiaſt in Ariſtophanes, καὶ τὸν παλαιὸν λόγον, ἄλλοι μὲν σπείρουσι, ἄλλοι δ' αὖ ἀμήσουσι, according to the old proverb, one ſoweth, but another ſhall reap.

Ver. 40. [r] He abode there two days.] He abode there ſo long, that he might not contemn perſons ſo deſirous to learn of him; he ſtaid no longer, that he might not neglect the Jews, or ſeem to prefer the Samaritans before them. And he commanded his apoſtles not to go to any city of Samaria, Matth. 13. 5. becauſe the goſpel was firſt to be preached to the Jews, and then to the Samaritans, Acts 1. 8.

Ver. 42. [r] The Saviour of the world;] That is, ſaith Mr Cl. of the Jews, for it is not likely the Samaritans thought of the ſalvation of the Gentiles; but why might not they think ſo, who knew, that in the ſeed of Abraham were the families of the earth to be bleſſed? And ſeeing the Samaritans were not Jews, had they uſed theſe words in that reſtrained ſenſe, they excluded themſelves from this ſalvation. The word doth ſometimes ſignify the multitude, or the public; as when Chriſt's brethren ſay to him, Shew thyſelf to the world, i. e. publicly, John 7. 4. and the Phariſees, The world is gone after him, John 12. 19. but never the Jews in oppoſition to the Gentiles.

Ver. 48. [t] If ye ſee not ſigns and wonders ye will not believe.] Hence ſome interpreters conclude this nobleman was a Jew, it being no wonder that an Heathen ſhould not believe without a miracle.

Ver. 53. [u] Himſelf believed, and his whole houſe;] i. e. all that by age were capable of doing ſo.

CHAP. V.

1. AFTER this there was a-(nother) feaſt of the Jews, (viz. that of the paſſover, requiring the appearance of all the adult males at the temple, Deut. 16. 16.) and (therefore) [a] Jeſus went up to Jeruſalem.

2. Now [b] there is at Jeruſalem by the ſheep market (or gate) a pool, which is called in the Hebrew tongue, Bethesda, (the houſe of mercy,) having five porches, (in which the ſick lay to be cured; for)

3. In theſe lay a great number of impotent folks, (viz.) of blind, halt, withered (perſons,) waiting for the moving of the water;

4. For an [c] angel (viſibly) went down at a certain ſeaſon into the pool, and troubled (i. e. ſtirred) the water; whoſoever then firſt after the troubling of the water ſtepped in, was made whole of whatſoever diſeaſe he had.

5. And a certain man was there, who had (lain under) an infirmity thirty and eight years.

6. When Jeſus ſaw him ly, and knew (by his divine Spirit) that he had been now a long time in that caſe, he (looking on him as an object worthy of compaſſion,) ſaith unto him, Wilt thou be made whole?

7. The impotent man anſwered him, Sir, I have no man when the water is troubled to put me into the pool, but while I am coming, another ſteppeth down before me.

8. Jeſus ſaith unto him, [d] Riſe, take up thy bed and walk.

9. And immediately (at his word) the man was made whole, and (to ſhew that he was ſo) took up his bed and walked; and on the ſame day (that he did this) was the ſabbath.

10. The Jews therefore ſaid unto him (that was cured,) It is the ſabbath-day, it is not lawful for thee to carry thy bed (on that day of reſt.)

11. He anſwered them, He that (with a word) made me whole, the ſame ſaid unto me, Take up thy bed and walk; (and ſurely he that could heal me with a word muſt be a prophet, and therefore muſt have authority to bid me do this.)

12. Then asked they him, What man is he that ſaid unto thee, Take up thy bed and walk, (that knowing him we may be the more able to judge of him?)

13. And he that was healed wiſt not who he was; for Jeſus (having done this,) had conveyed himſelf away, (without being obſerved by him, as he might eaſily do,) a multitude being in that place.

14. Afterward Jeſus findeth him in the temple (giving

(l) Ciſtel. Act. 4. ſc. 2. v. 49. (m) In Ranis.

(giving thanks to God for his cure,) and said unto him, Behold thou art made whole (of a distemper laid upon thee for the punishment of thy sins,) sin no more, lest a worse thing come unto thee, (for thy insensibility, and contempt of this mercy.)

15. The man (knowing now who had done this, and perhaps thinking himself obliged in gratitude to own the author of his cure, and hoping hereby to convince them that he was a prophet,) departed (from the temple,) [o] and told the Jews (who enquired after him that had done this,) that it was Jesus who had made him whole.

16. And (but though this cure demonstrated that he was sent from God, because no man could do these things except God were with him, John 3. 2.—9. 30, 31, 32, 33. yet) therefore did the Jews persecute Jesus, and sought to slay him, because he had done these things on the sabbath-day; (the doing any work on the sabbath-day being by the law, as they thought, a capital crime, Exod. 31. 14, 15.)

17. But Jesus answered them, [f] My Father worketh hitherto, (he from the beginning of the creation till this present time, continues to give and preserve life, and do good on the sabbath-day,) and I (after his example) work (that which is good and salutary to mankind on that day.)

18. Therefore the Jews sought the more to kill him, because he not only had broken the sabbath, but said also that God was [g] his Father, (in a peculiar manner proper to him alone, πατέρα ἴδιον ἔλεγε τὸν Θεὸν, thereby) making himself equal with God (in nature, as a son to his father.)

19. Then answered Jesus and said unto them, Verily, verily I say unto you, The [h] Son can do nothing of himself, but what he seeth the Father do-(ing, Gr. i. e. without commission from him to do it, and certain knowledge that he doth what the Father would have done;) for whatsoever things he doth (ταῦτα or ταυτα, he would have done) these also (καὶ even) doth the Son likewise; (i. e. after his example as to the kind of them, and according to his will, as to the manner of doing them; whence you may be assured this action was done after his example, and according to his will, as to the time, as well as to the matter of it, and therefore cannot be worthy of blame.)

20. For the Father loveth the Son, and sheweth him (by the Spirit with which he hath anointed him) all things that himself (his Son) doth, and he will shew (i. e. incite and enable) him (by the same power to do) greater works than these, (so) that you may (will) marvel (at them, though you will not be convinced by them.)

21. For as the Father raiseth up the dead, and quickeneth them, even so (shall ye see that) the [i] Son quickeneth whom he will.

22. (And this power of quickening and raising whom he will, the Father hath given him, because he hath made him the Judge of all men;) for the Father judgeth no man, [k] but hath committed all judgment to the Son, (who yet cannot judge them till he hath raised them from the dead.)

23. (And this he hath done,) that all men should [l] honour the Son (for his power and authority over them,) even as they honour the Father, (the great Judge of all the earth, Gen. 18. 25) he that honoureth not the Son, (invested with this power,) honoureth not the Father which hath sent (and authorized) him (to exercise it.)

24. (And having all judgment committed to me,) Verily, verily I say unto you, He that (obediently) heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath (an assurance of) everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation (for his past sins,) but is passed from (the) death (threatned to him) unto life.

25. (And that you may have reason to believe I can thus raise the dead, ye shall see an instance of it shortly, not only in my resurrection, but in the raising of many others with me by my power; for) Verily, verily I say unto you, [m] The hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God, and they that hear (it) shall live.

26. For as the Father hath (the fountain of) life in himself, (and so can impart life to others,) so hath he given to the Son [n] to have life in himself.

27. And he hath given him authority to execute judgment also (on the dead thus raised,) because he is [o] the Son of man, (whom he hath appointed the Judge of the world, Acts 17. 31.)

28. Marvel not at this; for the hour is coming in the which (not these few only, but) all that are in the grave shall hear his voice;

29. And shall come forth, they that have done good to the resurrection of life, and [p] they that have done evil to the resurrection of damnation.

30. (And in passing this judgment of absolution and condemnation upon men) I (the Man Christ Jesus, Acts 7. 31. the Son of man, ver. 27.) can of my own self, (my own impulse and pleasure,) do nothing; (but) as I hear, (i. e. receive the terms of absolution and condemnation from my Father, so) [q] I judge; and my judgment is (therefore) just, because I seek (pursue) not (in it) mine own will, but the will of the Father which hath sent me.

31. (And) If (in ascribing this honour and power to myself) I (did) [r] bear witness of my self, (and had no credentials from my Father, or those whom he hath sent,) ſent,) my witneſs is not true; (for he that pretends to be ſent, or delegated from God, and hath not his teſtimony to confirm his miſſion, cannot be true: but this is not my caſe; for)

32. There is [s] another that beareth witneſs of me, (to wit John the Baptiſt,) and I know that the witneſs which he (being a prophet) witneſſeth of me is true: (ye alſo have heard his teſtimony, for)

33. Ye ſent unto John, (chap. 1. 22, 23.) and he bare witneſs to the truth, (3. 29, 30.)

34. But (I appeal not to his teſtimony for my own ſake, but for yours, for) I receive not teſtimony from man; but theſe things I ſay that [t] ye (believing his teſtimony) might be ſaved.

35. He was a burning and a ſhining light, (as Elias is by you repreſented, Ecclus. 48. 1. his word being clear and powerful,) and ye were willing for a [u] ſeaſon to rejoice in his light, (owning him as a prophet and a juſt man; and therefore I inſiſt upon his teſtimony, as hoping it may have ſome influence upon you, to work that faith in you by which you ſhall be ſaved, John 10. 41.)

36. But I have greater witneſs than that of John; for the works which [w] the Father hath given me to finiſh, the ſame works that I do (by his power reſiding in me) bear witneſs of me, that the Father hath ſent me.

37. [x] And the Father himſelf which hath ſent me hath born witneſs of me (by a voice from heaven, ſaying, This is my beloved Son; and by the deſcent of the Holy Ghoſt upon me in the Shechinah, or bright light, which is the ſymbol of his preſence; but on this I inſiſt not, for) ye have neither heard his voice at any time, nor ſeen his ſhape, (Ezek. 1. 28. the likeneſs of the glory of God.)

38. And (as ye have not known his will this way, ſo neither will ye do it by his revealed will, for) ye have not his word abiding in you; for whom he hath ſent, him ye believe not, (as his word would induce you to do.)

39. [y] Search the ſcriptures, for in them ye think ye have (the words of) eternal life, and they are they which teſtify of me.

40. And (yet) ye will not (by them be perſuaded to) [z] come to me, (i. e. believe in me,) that ye might have (the) life (I promiſe to them that believe in me.)

41. (And yet you have no reaſon to disbelieve me, for) I receive not honour from men; (I do nothing from deſire of their applauſe, but purely for the honour of God, and out of love to him, and ſo act not like a falſe but a true prophet.)

42. But (this I cannot ſay of you, for) I know you, that ye have not the love of God in you.

43. I am come in my Father's name, (i. e. with his authority and teſtimony,) and ye receive me not, (ye do not own me as the promiſed Meſſiah;) another ſhall [aa] come in his own name, (without any evidence of divine authority, even Barchochebas, and) him ye will receive (as ſuch.)

44. (And indeed) How [bb] can ye believe, who (ſtrive to) receive honour (and glory) one of another, and ſeek not (rather) the honour that cometh from (the approbation of) God only?

45. Do not think that I will accuſe you to the Father, (I ſhall not need to do it; for) there is one that accuſeth you (to him,) even Moſes in whom ye truſt, (that by obedience to his law you ſhall have life, ver. 39.)

46. For had ye believed (the words of) Moſes, ye would have believed me, for [cc] he wrote of me, (ſaying, I will raiſe up a prophet like unto thee, and I will put my words in his mouth, Deut. 18. 18.)

47. But if ye believe [dd] not his writings, (whom you own as a great prophet ſent from God,) how ſhall you believe my words, (when you have no ſuch opinion of me, or reſpect for me?)

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. V.

Ver. 1. [a] JESUS went up to Jeruſalem,] to hold communion with the Jewiſh church at the feaſt of the paſſover, by obſerving with them the rites to be obſerved at that feaſt; he therefore refuſed not communion with a church that had clogged theſe feſtivals with human traditions, though perhaps he performed only the rites required by the law at theſe feſtivals. See Dr Lightfoot.

Ver. 2. [b] Ἐστὶ δὲ, There is at Jeruſalem by the ſheep-gate a pool, called in the Hebrew Bethesda;] that is, the houſe of mercy, becauſe of the mercy of God ſhewed there in curing their diſeaſes. Moreover, if ἐστὶ δὲ, there is, be the true reading, as the conſent of almoſt all the Greek copies argues, it ſeems to intimate, that Jeruſalem and this pool were then ſtanding when St John wrote this goſpel, and therefore that it was written, as Theophylact and others ſay, before the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, and not, as the more antient fathers thought, long after.

Ver. 4. [c] An angel went down κατὰ καιρὸν, at a certain ſeaſon, and then he that firſt went down was made whole of whatſoever diſeaſe he had.] All the circumſtances.

circumſtances of this hiſtory ſhew, that Dr Hammond's conjecture, that this angel was only an officer ſent at a certain time to ſtir this pool, and that the warm entrails caſt into it communicated this healing virtue to theſe waters, though it ſeems to be ſupported by the authority of St Chryſoſtom and Theophylact, is highly improbable. For, (1.) How unlikely is it that this ſhould be a natural means of curing all ſorts of diſeaſes without exception, the blind, the halt, and the withered? ver. 3. (2.) That it ſhould only cure the perſon that firſt ſtepped in, though he might be followed by others the ſame inſtant; for how ſhould the natural virtue of this pool, impregnated with the warm entrails of ſo many ſacrifices, extend itſelf only to one man? And, (3.) How unlikely is it that it ſhould do this only at one time of the year, viz. at the feaſt of the paſſover? for this was done not at ſeveral times, but only καθ' καιρὸν, at a certain time, ver. 4. And, laſtly, The very foundation of this ſurmiſe is taken away by that obſervation of Dr Lightfoot, that there was a laver in the temple for the waſhing of thoſe entrails, and ſo they were not likely to be waſhed in this pool.

It is farther to be noted, that theſe waters of Siloam were a type of the kingdom of David, and of Chriſt; of the kingdom of David, according to thoſe words, Iſaiah 8. 6. Forasmuch as this people refuſeth the waters of Siloah that go ſoftly, that is, ſaith the Targum, the kingdom of David that rules them quietly; and of Chriſt, according to thoſe words of the ſame prophet, chap. 12. 3. With joy ſhall they draw water from the wells of ſalvation, whence Siloah is interpreted ſent. See note on chap. 9. 7. To this type of the Meſſiah God might therefore give this virtue about that time, to prepare the Jews to receive his advent who was ſent to them; and when a fountain was to be opened for ſin and for uncleanneſs, Zach. 13. 1. viz. that of the blood of Chriſt, might communicate this virtue to this pool, as a prefiguration of it; whence, as (a) Tertullian notes, the virtue of this pool then ceaſed, when they perſevering in their infidelity rejected our Saviour. And this might be one reaſon why the Jewiſh writers are ſo ſilent as to the virtue of this pool, becauſe by its ſignification it related to Chriſt, and by this miracle confirmed his doctrine. See here Examen Millii in locum.

Ver. 8. [d] Ariſe, take up thy bed and walk.] Chriſt here requires not faith of him, becauſe he had ſeen and perhaps heard of none of his miracles, but he requires him to do that on the ſabbath which was contrary to the letter of the law, to ſhew he was a prophet, who by their own rules had power to require what was contrary to the ceremonial reſt of the ſabbath, ſee note on chap. 9. 18. and to inſtruct them that to do this not in contempt of the law, or for bodily advantage, but as a public teſtimony of the great goodneſs of God to us, tended rather to the ſanctification, than to the profanation of the ſabbath, that day being ſanctified to this very end, that men might employ it in glorifying and praiſing God for his benefits.

Ver. 15. [e] Told the Jews that Jeſus had done this;] not to accuſe him to them, but partly out of gratitude to own the author of this cure, and partly to excuſe himſelf, as only doing this at the command of ſo great a prophet.

Ver. 17. [f] My Father worketh hitherto, &c.] even from the time he reſted from the works of the creation, continuing to preſerve and govern all things he created, and do thoſe things which tend to his glory, and to the good of his creature, even on the ſabbath-day; and in imitation of him I do my wondrous works of mercy to the glory of his name upon that day; which being divine, and done by his power and aſſiſtance, ſhew that I do nothing in them contrary to his will. Thus (b) Philo, ſpeaking of God's reſting on the ſeventh day, ſaith, We have declared that God ceaſeth not to work, but proceeds to the production of other things, as being not the artificer only, but the Father of them.

Ver. 18. [g] Therefore the Jews ſought the more to kill him, ὅτι πατέρα ἴδιον ἔλεγε Θεὸν, ἴσον ἑαυτὸν ποιῶν τῷ Θεῷ, becauſe he ſaid, God was his own Father making himſelf equal to God.] Here note,

1ſt, That he is here ſaid to ſtile God his Father after a manner proper and peculiar to himſelf, as being ὁ ἴδιος Θεοῦ υἱὸς, the proper Son of God, Rom. 8. 32. and ſo as being his Son, not as Adam and the angels were, by creation, nor as good men are, by adoption only; in which ſenſe the Jews pretended to have God for their father, chap. 8. 41. and in which ſenſe both (c) Philo, and the (d) Jewiſh writers ſpeak of him as the father of Iſrael,

Iſrael, and of thoſe who had a true knowledge of him; for in this ſenſe to call himſelf the Son of God, could neither be worthy of death, nor worſe than the violation of the ſabbath. It is therefore evident the Jews thought Chriſt, by ſaying God was his Father, made himſelf his Son in ſuch a manner as rendered him equal to God in nature, as a ſon is to his father; and yet they thought he did this, not as the Socinians ſay, by ſaying he did the works of his Father, but, as their words teſtify, by calling God his Father in a ſenſe peculiar to himſelf; and hence they accuſe him of blaſphemy for ſaying that he was the Son of God, Matth. 26. 63, 64, 65. John 10. 33, 36. which they never do for ſaying he was the Meſſiah, or that he did the works of God.

Note, 2*dly*, hence, that the Jews did not then think that their Meſſiah was to be God, or in the ſublime ſenſe the Son of God Hence (e) Origen declares, that having diſcourſed with many wiſe men of the Jews, he could find none of them who allowed, Θεὸν ὄντα ἢ Θεοῦ υἱὸν, that he was God, or the Son of God. And Jerom on theſe words, Jer. 17. 5. Curſed is he who putteth his truſt in man, ſaith the Jews are acurſed, qui ſpem habent in homine Chriſto, videlicet ſuo, quem non Filium Dei ſed purum hominem putunt eſſe venturum, who truſt in a man, viz. in their Meſſiah, whom they expect to come as a mere man, and not as the Son of God.

Ver. 19. [h] The Son of man can do nothing ἀφ' ἑαυτοῦ, of himſelf, ἐὰν μὴ τι βλέπῃ, but what he ſees the Father doing.] The Jews concluding Chriſt to be a falſe prophet, becauſe he in this peculiar manner ſtiled God his Father, Chriſt here undertakes to ſhew, 1*ſt*, That he exerciſed his prophetic office according to the will of the Father; 2*dly*, That he confirmed it by miracles done by the power of God reſiding in him. Chriſt therefore here ſeems not to ſpeak of his eſſential power, but of his prophetic office, and of the doctrine which he taught, and confirmed by miracles: 1*ſt*, Becauſe, as to his eſſential power, the action of the Father and the Son being one and the ſame, both as to power and time, he cannot properly be ſaid to do nothing of himſelf, or to do nothing but what he ſees the Father do. 2*dly*, Becauſe, as to ſpeak nothing of himſelf, is to ſpeak nothing of his own inſtinct and will, without commiſſion from God, ſee note on chap. 7. 17. ſo to do nothing of himſelf, is to do nothing without commiſſion from, and knowledge of the will of God that he ſhould do it, and ſo reſpecteth his prophetic office, and the things done in confirmation of it; and then the words following, unleſs he ſee the Father doing them, muſt bear this ſenſe, Unleſs he, by the Spirit of the Father reſiding in him, ſee that the Father would have them done by him; for what the Father ποιῇ, would have done, he doth according to his will, or as he would have them to be done. And this import of the words ſeems to be confirmed,

1*ſt*, From the following words; for the Father loveth the Son, καὶ πάντα δείκνυσιν αὐτῷ ἃ αὐτὸς ποιεῖ, and ſheweth him all things which he (the Son) doth; and he will ſhew him greater works than theſe, (which are to be done by him, even that of raiſing the dead, ver. 21.) For becauſe we receive all our knowledge from our eyes or ears, therefore Chriſt ſpeaking of the execution of his prophetic office, uſeth theſe metaphors, declaring, that he ſpake and teſtified what he had ſeen, chap. 3. 11. what he had ſeen with the Father, chap. 8. 38. and ſo the Baptiſt ſaith, What he hath ſeen, he teſtifies: and again, that he ſpake what he had heard from the Father, chap. 8. 26, 40.—15. 15. And becauſe they who teach or declare things, do by that ſhew them to us; therefore Chriſt uſes this metaphor here, and ſaith, chap. 8. 28. I do nothing of myſelf, but as my Father hath taught me, ſo I ſpeak: and again, chap. 12. 49, 50. I have ſpoken nothing of myſelf, but as the Father who ſent me, gave me commandment what I ſhould ſay and ſpeak; the things therefore which I ſpeak, as the Father ſaid to me, ſo I ſpeak. Now that he ſpake this with reſpect to the Spirit of prophecy with which he was anointed, and by the Father ſent to preach the goſpel to the poor, &c. Luke 4. 18. the Baptiſt teacheth in theſe words, What he hath ſeen and heard, that he teſtifies; for he whom God hath ſent, ſpeaketh the words of God; for the Father giveth not him the Spirit by meaſure, chap. 3. 23, 34. and he himſelf intimates, by ſaying, chap. 14. 10. The words that I ſpeak to you, I ſpeak not of myſelf: the Father abiding in me, he doth the works. See the note there.

2*dly*, That he ſaid truly, My Father worketh hitherto, and I work, he proves from the divine works God the Father had given him power to do; though he was to do them after his reſurrection and advancement to his kingdom, viz. the reſurrection of the dead, and the future judgment: and therefore adds,

Ver. 21. [i] As the Father raiſes the dead, and quickneth them, ſo the Son quickneth whom he will.] This is more than ever was ſaid of any prophet or apoſtle, that he did ſuch works at his will; and here chiefly reſpects Chriſt, not acting as a prophet, prophet, but as a king sitting at the right hand of power. And this being an action represented as proper to God, who saith, I am, and there is none besides me: I kill, and make alive, Deut. 32. 39. 1 Sam. 2. 6. a work to be performed by his sole power, Matth. 22. 29. Acts 26. 8. and by the strength of his power, Eph. 1. 19. who is a God quickning the dead, Rom. 4. 17. hence it is evident, that Christ, who will not only raise our mortal bodies, but also make them like to his own glorious body, by that power by which he is able to subdue all things to himself, Philip. 3. 21. must be God; and that the Father, by giving him to have life in himself, as he hath it in himself, ver. 26. must have given him the fulness of the Deity, from which this power is inseparable.

Ver. 22. [k] For the Father judgeth no man, but hath committed all judgment to his Son.] Seeing this judgment is committed to him, it is evident, saith Woltzogenius, that he cannot be God the Highest, because he reigns and judges by his own power derived from none; and yet he owns, that in this judgment is comprehended totum regimen, et divinum totius mundi imperium, an entire government, and divine empire over the whole world, and especially over the whole church of God; from whence it is demonstrable that he must be God: for this government must be attended with a power of raising all them from the dead whom he shall place before his judgment seat, and with the perfect knowledge, not only of the actions of all men from the beginning of the world, but also of their secret thoughts; since otherwise he cannot bring every secret thought and work into judgment, nor bring to light the hidden things of darkness, or manifest the secrets of the heart, 1 Cor. 4. 5. or judge every man according to his works, 2 Cor. 5. 10. He also must be omnipresent and omniscient, even the searcher of all hearts, that he may know and answer the prayers of all his servants in all corners of the earth, as the Socinians grant he doth; and Almighty, that he may be able to supply all their wants, assist and enable them to do every where the greatest miracles in his name, defend and preserve them against all the powers on earth, and even the gates of hell, raise and condemn their enemies, with the devil and his angels, to eternal destruction from his presence, and also crown his servants with everlasting glory. Now how all these things can be done by a mere creature, is as difficult to conceive as any mystery of the blessed Trinity. I answer therefore in that distinction of the schools, That the principium quod, or the person thus judging, is the Son of man, ver. 27. this judgment being to be exercised by the Man Christ Jesus, Acts 17. 31. but the principium quo, i. e. the power or the principle by which he does it, is the whole fulness of the Deity, individually united to his human nature, or the Word made flesh, John 1. 14. This therefore hinders not, but he to whom this judgment is thus given may be God of God.

Ver. 23. [l] That all men may honour the Son as they honour the Father.] That is, saith Woltzogenius, "That they owning this dignity and power, "per quam Deo equalis est, by which he is equal "to God, may give him that obedience, honour and "worship, which is due to a divine and heavenly "King; for that the honour and worship due to "Christ, is divine honour, is evident from this, "that it is such qualis Patri debetur, as is due "to the Father, to whom, by the consent of all "men, belongs divine worship." And hence he proves, that Christ is to be worshipped with invocation; "because he who refuses to pray to him, "doth not honour him as he honours the Father. "In this, (saith he) consists the highest honour "we give to the Father, that we own him for "the chief Monarch, and Lord of all things, in "whose power is our salvation and destruction; "and therefore by prayer endeavour to obtain "from him the enjoyment of good things, and "the deliverance from evil. Qui hæc eadem in "Christo agnoscit, et eum sic colit, is honorat et "colit eum sicut Patrem; He that owns these "things to belong to Christ, and doth thus worship "him, he honoureth the Son as he doth the Father." So he. Now, can he be equal to God who is only a creature, or be worthy of divine worship who is no God? The precept being plain, and owned by Christ himself, The Lord thy God is one Lord, and (therefore) thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve, Deut. 6. 13. Matth. 4. 10. can he who said, Thou shalt worship no other gods but me, and I will not give my glory to another, Isa. 42. 8. himself appoint, that any creature should be worshipped as God, or have that honour, worship and obedience, in which his glory doth consist? It is therefore no unjust imputation to call them idolaters, who give this worship to one who, say they, is by nature only man, seeing they do the very thing charged on the Heathen idolaters, i. e. they worship them which by nature are no gods, Gal. 4. 8. and do that to a creature which God requires to be done to himself, viz. that they should glorify him as God, Rom. 1. 21. and do that with which God upbraided his own people, viz. the worshipping a new God which their own fathers had not known, Deut. 32. 17. If you say here, they give him the same worship, but but not as the firſt, but only as the intermediate cauſe of our ſalvation; it may be eaſily replied, that then they cannot honour him as they honour the Father, and much leſs as the chief Monarch and Lord of all things. Moreover, I enquire whether this middle cauſe be created or uncreated: if uncreated, he is by nature God, and, ſince there is but one God, of the ſame eſſence with the Father; but if created, they muſt be guilty of idolatry who give him the ſame worſhip with the Father, and therefore give the creature the worſhip due to the Creator.

Ver. 25. [m] The hour—now is, when the dead ſhall hear the voice of the Son of God, and live.] That Chriſt here ſpeaks not only of a ſpiritual reſurrection from the death of ſin, is evident, 1. Becauſe he ſpeaks of it as a thing ſhortly future, whereas the ſpiritual reſurrection was in ſome already paſt; 2. Becauſe he promiſes this reſurrection not to them that ſhould hear his word, but φωνην, his voice. And that he ſpeaks of a proper reſurrection, appears, 1. From the gradation he here makes from the reſurrection of ſome to the reſurrection of all, ver. 28. 2. Becauſe he adds, That they who hear, ſhall live; and that becauſe the Son, whoſe voice they hear, hath life in himſelf, ver. 26. I therefore think that our Lord ſpeaks of that hour when he riſing from the dead, many bodies of the ſaints aroſe with him, Matth. 27. 52, 53.

Ver. 26. [n] He hath given the Son to have life in himſelf;] i. e. the power of raiſing whom he will, ver. 21. Hence though the apoſtles and others raiſed men from the dead, it is ſaid of none of them that they had life in themſelves; becauſe they did this, not by their own, but by the power of Chriſt. Note alſo, that the ſame thing is in both places ſaid both of the Father and the Son; for it is not ſaid, the Father hath life from himſelf, the Son in himſelf, but both have life ἐν ἑαυτῷ, in himſelf; and that as the Father, ſo the Son quickneth whom he will. Now the operations follow the eſſence; ſo that where the ſame operation is, there muſt be the ſame eſſence.

Ver. 27. [o] Becauſe he is the Son of man,] i. e. the Meſſias, to whom all power and dominion is given, Dan. 7. 13, 14. and of whom the (f) Jews ſaid, that he ſhould raiſe the dead; or, becauſe he took the human nature on him, he ſuffered in it, and by that paſſion became the author of ſalvation to all that obey him, Heb. 5. 8, 9. and, laſtly, in that nature only could be a viſible judge. See Examen Millii in locum.

Ver. 29. [p] And they that have done evil, unto the reſurrection of condemnation.] This ſeems to be ſpoken in oppoſition to the doctrine of the Phariſees, who, ſaith (g) Joſephus, thought the reſurrection pertained only to the juſt, and that the wicked and antideluvian ſinners were to be excluded from it. See additions, No. 11.

Ver. 30. [q] As I hear, κρίνω, I judge;] i. e. I pronounce ſentence according to the will of my Father; for κείμα and κείσις is a ſentence: ſo βλάσφημος κείσις is a blaſphemous accuſation, or ſentence, 2 Pet. 2. 11. κείμα θανάτου, the ſentence of death, Luke 24. 20. κείμα τῆς πόρνης, the ſentence upon the whore, Rev. 17. 1. And, κείνω, I give ſentence: ſo ὀρθῶς ἔκεινας, Luke 7. 43. thou haſt judged, or given ſentence aright: Out of thy own mouth κεινῶ σε, will I pronounce ſentence upon thee, Luke 19. 22. See Mat. 7. 1, 2. John 7. 24.---8. 15. Acts 15. 19. Rom. 2. 1, 3.—3. 4, 6, 7. Pſal. 51. 4.

Ver. 31. [r] If I bear witneſs of my ſelf (only,) my witneſs is not true;] i. e. ſay moſt interpreters, it is not valid, the law requiring two witneſſes. But to bear witneſs of himſelf here, is to declare himſelf a prophet, without any atteſtation from God, as the falſe prophets did, and had Chriſt done, he muſt have been like them, and ſo his teſtimony would have been falſe, God never ſending any prophet to men, without ſufficient teſtimonies that he was ſent from him.

Ver. 32. [s] There is another that beareth witneſs of me,] viz. whom ye counted as a prophet, Mat. 14. 5.—21. 26. and upon that account received his baptiſm. Now, according to your own rules, he is to be owned as a prophet, to whom a prophet gives his teſtimony.

Ver. 34. [t] But I ſpeak theſe things that ye might be ſaved.] Hence it is evident, that Chriſt ſeriouſly willed and intended the ſalvation of them who would not come to him, that they might have life, ver. 40. and therefore were not actually ſaved.

Ver. 35. [u] For a ſeaſon ye rejoiced in his light:] He was a burning light, ſaith Chriſt here; his word burned as a lamp, ſaith the ſon of Sirac, Eccleſ. 48. 1. and yet in this light they rejoiced but for a ſeaſon; for when he had freely given teſtimony to Chriſt, and reproved their vices, they blaſphemed him, and ſaid he had a devil, Luke 7. 30, 33.

Ver. 36. [w] The work which my Father hath given me to do, &c.] He ſaith not, Which I do, but Which the Father hath given me to do; ſo Woltzogenius: and yet the following words are ἃ ἐγὼ ποιῶ, which I do. He therefore here declares, that he had ſufficient teſtimony of his miſſion from the works done by him, through the Father dwelling in him, Matth. 12. 28. and that the Father had given him to do them, by giving him his Spirit and his power, together with his eſſence, John 3. 34, 35.—14. 10.

Ver. 37. [x] —And the Father that ſent me, beareth witneſs of me;—ye have neither heard his voice, nor ſeen his ſhape,] as in the paraphraſe; or thus, Nor are you to expect the Father ſhould teſtify of me otherwiſe than by his works; for that which was granted to your fathers belongs not to you, viz. to ſee his glory, and hear his voice out of the middle of the fire, Deut. 5. 24. ſo that he cannot now be otherwiſe ſeen than by his works.

Ver. 39. [y] Ἐρευνᾶτε τὰς γραφάς, Search, (or ye ſearch) the ſcriptures.] Which of theſe two ſenſes the Greek bears, I will not contend: only note, 1ſt, That Origen Philocal. cap. 1. & cap. 5. Chryſoſtom. hom. 24. & 37. in Geneſin, and St Auſtin in Pſalm 108. col. 1269. and epiſt. 80. col. 365. confirm our verſion. Note, 2dly, That if the Jews did truly think the doctrine of life eternal was contained there, and that they by ſearching might find it there, it muſt be to them a ſufficient rule of faith; if in this they erred, it behoved Chriſt to correct them in an error ſo pernicious.

Ver. 40. [z] Ye will not come to me;] i. e. after the clear teſtimonies which the prophecies and characters of the Meſſiah in the Old Teſtament afford, that I am he, ye will not believe in me; which ſhews your infidelity is the reſult, not of ſimple ignorance, but of wilful obſtinacy.

Ver. 43. [aa] Another ſhall come in his own name,] without commiſſion or teſtimony from God; ſo did Barchochebas, working no miracles. Many of the fathers thought antichriſt was here meant.

Ver. 44. [bb] How can ye believe, who ſeek honour one of another?] and ſo cannot bear the reproach of the Phariſees, and the chief of the Jews, or endure the infamy of being caſt out of the ſynagogue, which is the ſentence they have paſſed upon all that ſhall believe in me, chap. 12. 42, 43. till you prefer the approbation of God before that of man, it is not to be expected ye ſhould do it.

Ver. 46. [cc] For he wrote of me,] viz. Deut. 18. 17, 18, 19. Hence it follows, that thoſe words of Moſes are not primarily to be underſtood of a ſucceſſion of prophets, but of a ſingle perſon, even Chriſt; for a prophet, ſaith he, ſhall the Lord raiſe up to you like to me; whereas no other prophet roſe up to them like to Moſes, Deut. 34. 10. beſides Chriſt. See the biſhop of Ely on that place.

Ver. 47. [d] If ye believe not Moſes.] for whom you pretend ſo great reſpect. Their pretences for not believing in Chriſt were theſe two; their love to God, and reverence for the law of Moſes. Chriſt proves they could have no true love to God, ver. 42. nor faith in Moſes, ver. 46. for this very reaſon, that they believed not in him.

CHAP. VI.

1. [a] AFTER theſe things Jeſus went over the ſea of Galilee, which is (alſo named) the ſea of Tiberias:

2. And a great multitude followed him, becauſe they ſaw his miracles which he did upon them that were diſeaſed, (and becauſe ſome of them alſo needed healing, Luke 9. 11.)

3. And Jeſus [b] went up into a mountain and there he ſat with his diſciples.

4. And the paſſover, (which was) a feaſt of the Jews, (which all their males were bound to celebrate at Jeruſalem,) was nigh; (to which the people were therefore haſtning.)

5. When Jeſus then lifted up his eyes, and ſaw a great company come to him, he ſaith unto Philip, Whence ſhall we buy bread, that (all) theſe may eat?

6. And this he ſaid, to prove him (who was ſlow of faith, chap. 14. 9.) for he himſelf knew what he would do.

7. Philip anſwered him, Two hundred penny-worth of bread is not ſufficient for them, that every one of them may take a little.

8. (Then the diſciples deſiring him to ſend the multitude away, that they might go into the villages, and buy themſelves bread: and Chriſt anſwering, that they ſhould give them to eat: and they enquiring, how they ſhould do this? he asks them alſo, how many loaves have you? Mark 6. 36, 37.) One of his diſciples (to wit) Andrew, Simon Peters brother, ſaith unto him,

9. There is a lad here, who hath five barley-loaves, and two ſmall fiſhes; but what are they among ſo many?

10. And Jeſus ſaid, Make the men ſit down. Now there was much graſs in the place: ſo the men ſat down, in number about five thouſand.

11. And Jeſus took the loaves; and when he had given thanks, he diſtributed (of them) to the diſciples, and the diſciples to them that were ſet down, and likewiſe of the fiſhes; (both which were ſo miraculouſly increaſed, as they went through his hands; that every one of that great company did eat) as much as they would.

12. (And) when they were filled, he ſaid unto his diſciples, [c] Gather up the fragments that remain, that nothing (of God's good creatures) be loſt.

13. Therefore they gathered them together; and (to evidence the truth and greatneſs of the mirac'e) filled twelve baskets with the fragments of the five barley loaves which remained over and above to them that had eaten.

14. Then theſe men, when they had ſeen the miracle which Jeſus did, (reſembling that of Moſes, who fed them with manna in the wilderneſs; and knowing he had told them, that God would raiſe them up a prophet of their brethren like to him,) ſaid, This is of a truth that prophet which ſhould come into the world; (and having got a falſe notion that their Meſſiah was to be a temporal king, they finding him ſo able to ſupply them with proviſions, were minded to ſet him up for their king.)

15. When Jeſus therefore [d] perceived that they would come, and take him by force to make him a king, he (firſt ſent away his own diſciples, to whom he knew that motion would not be unacceptable, and then diſperſed the multitude, Mark 6. 46. and ſo) departed again into a mountain himſelf alone.

16. And when even was come, his diſciples went down into the ſea,

17. And entered into a ſhip, and went over the ſea [e] towards Capernaum; and it was now dark, and Jeſus was not come to them.

18. And the ſea aroſe, (and was tempeſtuous) by reaſon of a great wind that blew.

19. So when they had rowed about [f] five and twenty or thirty forlongs, (about the fourth watch of the night, Mark 6. 48.) they ſee Jeſus walking on the ſea, and drawing nigh to the ſhip, and (taking him for an apparition, ver. 49.) they were afraid.

20. But he ſaid unto them, It is I, be not afraid.

21. Then they [g] willingly received him into the ſhip, (believing that then all things would go well with them;) and immediately the ſhip was at the land whither they went.

22. The day following, when [h] the people which ſtood on the other ſide of the ſea ſaw that (laſt night) there was no other boat there, ſave that one whereinto his diſciples were entered; and that Jeſus went not with his diſciples into the boat, but that his diſciples were gone away alone.

23. Howbeit, there came other boats (afterwards) from Tiberias, (which in the morning they found) nigh to the place where they did eat bread, after that the Lord had given thanks.

24. When the people therefore ſaw that Jeſus was not there, neither his diſciples, they alſo took ſhipping (in thoſe boats,) and came to Capernaum, (his uſual habitation,) ſeeking for Jeſus (there).

25. And when they had found him on the other ſide of the ſea, they ſaid unto him, [i] Rabbi, (thou wenteſt not laſt night with thy diſciples, nor ſaw we thee this morning where laſt night we left thee;) when (therefore) cameſt thou hither?

26. (But) Jeſus, (without ſatisfying their curioſity in this matter,) anſwered them and ſaid, Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, Ye ſeek me not becauſe ye ſaw the miracles, (as being ſo convinced by them as to hear and to obey my doctrine, from a deſire to obtain by it eternal life, as ye ſhould do;) but becauſe ye did eat of the loaves, and were filled, (and expect the like benefit again: and therefore I ſay to you,)

27. [k] Labour not for the meat that periſheth, but for that meat which endureth to eternal life, which (if you believe in him,) the Son of man ſhall give to you: for him hath God the Father ſealed; (i. e. he hath ſhewed, that he hath authorized him to do this; and, by giving him this miraculous power to feed your bodies, hath fully teſtified he is the perſon by him appointed to convey theſe bleſſings to the ſouls of men.)

28. Then ſaid they unto him, What ſhall we do that we might work the works of God? (We have already the law of Moſes, and know what God requires by that law; what further duties, or what more pleaſing to him, canſt thou inſtruct us to perform?)

29. Jeſus anſwered, and ſaid unto them, This is the work (moſt acceptable in the ſight) of God, that ye believe on him whom he hath ſent.

30. They ſaid therefore unto him, What ſign ſheweſt thou then (greater than Moſes hath done,) that we may ſee (it) and believe thee? what doſt thou work (above what Moſes did?)

31. (Thou haſt indeed fed us one day in a deſart; but) our fathers did eat manna in the deſart (through which Moſes led them) forty years, (and that was heavenly food;) as it is written, (Pſal. 78. 25.) He gave them [l] bread from heaven to eat, (and ſo they had by Moſes a ſign from heaven of his commiſſion; ſuch an one would we ſee from thee, Mark 8. 11.)

32. Then

32. Then Jesus said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Moses gave you not that bread from heaven, (which I exhort you to labour for, and of which manna only was a type;) but my Father (now) giveth you the true Bread from heaven.

33. For [m] the Bread of God (of which you spiritually are to eat) is he that cometh down from heaven, and giveth (not a fading life, as manna did to the Jews, but everlasting) life to the (whole) world.

34. Then said they to him, Lord, evermore give us this Bread, (which will preserve our lives; still thinking that he only spake of this present life.)

35. And (then) Jesus said unto them, I am the Bread of Life; he that [n] cometh to me shall never hunger, and he that believeth in me shall never thirst, (he being by that faith united to me, who am the life, chap. 14. 6. and partaking of that Spirit which will be in him as a well of water springing up to eternal life, chap. 4. 14.—7. 38. and so shall need no more to hunger or thirst after it.)

36. But I said unto you, that ye also have seen me (doing works sufficient to convince you of the truth of what I say,) and (yet) believe (me) not; (and I shall find still cause to say so to men so worldly-minded, and prejudised against the truth.)

37. (But though it be thus with you,) [o] All that the Father giveth me, (i. e. all that he prevails on by the miracles he works by me, and the doctrine he teacheth me to deliver to the world, to judge of me as one sent from him to propound the terms of life eternal,) shall come to me, (i. e. embrace my doctrine, and believe in me;) and him that cometh (thus) to me, I will in no wise cast out, (i. e. reject from that life.)

38. For I came down from heaven not to do my own will, but the will of him that sent me.

39. And this is the Father's will that hath sent me, that of all that he hath given me I should lose nothing, (i. e. should suffer none to perish, chap. 17. 12.) but should [p] raise it up again at the last day.

40. And this (also) is the will of him that sent me, that every one that seeth the Son, (i. e. discerneth him to be the prophet sent from God,) and (therefore) believeth on him, may have everlasting life; and I (for that end) will raise him up at the last day.

41. The Jews then murmured at him, because he said, I am the Bread which came down from heaven.

42. And they said (one to another,) Is not this Jesus the Son of Joseph, whose father and mother we know? How is it then that he (being born of earthly parents,) saith, I came down from heaven?

43. Jesus therefore answered, and said unto them, Murmur not among yourselves, (on the account of these words; for it is not want of truth in my words, but want of affection to my doctrine, and due consideration of the testimonies God hath given to it, that makes you thus murmur at and reject them.)

44. (And indeed) no man can came to me, except the Father which hath sent me, (by thus confirming my testimony, and disposing you to prize and value that eternal life I promise,) [q] draw him (to believe and embrace my doctrine, and live according to it;) and I will raise him up at the last day, (who is thus drawn to believe and embrace it.)

45. It is written in the prophets, (That the kingdom of the Messiah shall be set up,) and (then) they shall be all [r] taught of God; every one therefore that hath heard (the Father speaking in and by me,) and hath learned of the Father (the truth of my doctrine) cometh unto me.

46. (This I say,) not that any man hath seen the Father, (and so immediately is taught by him: this privilege none can claim,) save (but) he who is (the only begotten Son) of God; he (only) hath (thus) seen the Father.

47. (Being therefore thus alone acquainted with his will,) Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth in me, hath (an assurance of) everlasting life.

48. (For) I am that Bread of Life (of which if a man spiritually eat, he shall not die, ver. 50.)

49. Your fathers did eat manna in the wilderness; and (notwithstanding this they) are dead, (most of them in their sins, and for their unbelief: and all of them, because it could neither preserve life nor restore it.)

50. This (bread of which I speak) is the Bread which cometh down from heaven, that a man may eat thereof, and not die (for the punishment, but for the abolition of sin, and then be raised to a state in which he can die no more.)

51. I am the living (or life-giving) Bread which came down from heaven; if any man eat of this Bread, (though he die,) he shall live (again) for ever, (by virtue of his eating of it;) and the [s] bread that I will give is my flesh, which I will give (up to the death) for the life of the world, (that whosoever believeth in me thus dying for him, may not perish, but have everlasting life, chap. 3. 16.)

52. The Jews therefore strove among themselves, saying, How can this Man give us his flesh to eat?

53. Then Jeſus ſaid unto them, Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, Except ye, (by faith in my death,) [t] eat the fleſh of the Son of man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you, (no ſpiritual life at preſent, nor any right to life eternal.)

54. (But) whoſo eateth (thus) my fleſh, and drinketh my blood, hath (by that faith an intereſt in) eternal life, and I will raiſe him up at the laſt day (to enjoy it.)

55. For [u] my fleſh is meat indeed, and my blood is drink indeed; (i. e. faith in me, giving up my body to the death, and ſhedding my blood for the remiſſion of your ſins, is the true meat and drink which nouriſheth to eternal life.)

56. (For) He that (thus) eateth my fleſh, and drinketh my blood, dwelleth in me, and I in him, (by that Spirit which will quicken your mortal bodies, and raiſe them from the dead, Rom. 8. 11.)

57. As the living Father hath ſent me, and I, (though I die, ſhall) [w] live (again) by the Father; ſo he that (thus) eateth me, even he ſhall live by me.

58. This is that Bread which came down from heaven (to be eaten of you,) not as your fathers did eat manna, and are dead; (ſee ver. 49. for) he that eateth of this Bread ſhall live for ever, (and have that life which manna never could, nor was deſigned to afford.)

59. Theſe things ſaid he in the ſynagogue, as he taught in Capernaum.

60. Many therefore of his diſciples, when they had heard this, ſaid, This is an hard ſaying, who can hear (i. e. receive) it?

61. When Jeſus knew in himſelf that his diſciples murmured at it, he ſaid unto them, Doth this (diſcourſe of eating my fleſh) offend you (now?)

62. What and if (ἐὰν οὖν, if, or when therefore) ye ſhall ſee the Son of man [x] aſcend up where he was before? (How much more will you be then offended, ſeeing my body will be then leſs capable of being eaten by you, in that groſs ſenſe in which you underſtand my words?)

63. (But know that) it is [y] the Spirit (imparted to believers) that quickeneth (their mortal bodies, Rom. 8. 11.) the fleſh (even of my body, could you eat it,) profiteth nothing (to that end; now) the words that I ſpeak unto you, they are ſpirit, and they are life, (i. e. they are the means of obtaining this ſpirit and life by him.)

64. But there are ſome of you (my diſciples) who believe not, (and ſo cannot obtain this ſpirit and this life; this he ſaid,) for Jeſus knew from the beginning (of his miniſtry, John 2. 24, 25.) who they were that believed not (ſincerely,) and who ſhould betray him.

65. And he ſaid, Therefore ſaid I unto you, that no man can [z] come to me. (i. e. believe in me,) except it were given to him of my Father; (i. e. unleſs he were throughly convinced, by the miracles wrought by me, that I was ſent from God, and had by God wrought in him a prevailing affection to eternal life; both which were wanting in theſe diſciples.)

66. From that time many of his diſciples went back, and walked no more with him.

67. Then ſaid Jeſus unto the twelve, Will ye alſo go away?

68. Then Simon Peter anſwered him, Lord, to whom ſhall we go, (ſince) thou (only) haſt the words of eternal life, (and for that above all things we are and ought to be concerned.)

69. And we believe, and are ſure, that thou art that (the) Chriſt the Son of the living God, (ſent by him to reveal this life, and to impart it to thoſe who do ſincerely believe in thee.)

70. Jeſus anſwered them, Have not I choſen you twelve, and one of you is a devil? (i. e. an adverſary to me and my doctrine.)

71. (This) he ſpake of Judas Iſcariot, the ſon of Simon, for he it was that ſhould betray him, being one of the twelve.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. VI.

Ver. 1. [a] AFTER theſe things,] (related in the former chapter, i. e. the year following; for he healed the man at the pool of Bethesda at the paſſover, ſaith Dr Lightfoot, and fed the Jews with the five loaves the following paſſover, ver. 4.) he went over the ſea of Galilee. See the note on Matth. 14. 13.

Ver. 3. [b] He went up into a mountain.] When Jeſus went out of the ſhip, he ſaw the multitude come to the place, Matth. 14. 14. but it was only when he ſat down upon the mountain that he ſaw them come to him.

Ver. 12. [c] Gather the fragments, that nothing be loſt;] that by the nature of the bread remaining, it might appear that there was no illuſion in the miracle. And by the command to ſave this bread, bread, it appears it is not simply unlawful to save any thing till the morrow, but only to be anxious for the morrow. Matth. 6. 14. See Examen Millii.

Ver. 15. [d] Christ therefore knowing that they would come and make him a king.] He knew this, saith Stegmannus, by that Spirit and divine virtue by which he was able to discern the secrets of mens hearts; and knowing this, he would not be made a king, because his kingdom was not of this world, chap. 18. 38.

Ver. 17. [e] They went over the sea to Capernaum,] into the land of Gennesaret, Matth. 14. 34. they went over πρὸς Βηθσαϊδάν, towards Bethsaida, Mark 6. 45. The desert of Bethsaida lying on the side of the sea of Galilee, opposite to the city, they first crossed over that sea towards the city, and then sailed on along that sea to Capernaum, which was in the region of Gennesaret. See Dr Lightfoot's map, p. 308.

Ver. 19. [f] About five and twenty, or thirty furlongs.] In matters of so small importance, the Spirit of God did not think it necessary to suggest the exact measure to them.

Ver. 21. [g] Ἤθελον, They were willing to take him into the ship.] Though Peter first walked to him on the sea, and then they came both into the ship, Matth. 14. 30.

Ver. 22. [h] The multitude which stood on the other side of the sea.] For though Christ then sent them away, Matth. 14. 23. they might return again the next morning.

Ver. 25. [i] Rabbi, when camest thou hither?] It was usual with Christ to answer nothing to curious questions not tending to edification, but to divert from them to more profitable subjects. So Luke 13. 23, 24. John 12. 34, 35.

Ver. 27. [k] Labour not for the meat which perisheth.] The Massalian heretics, say Chrysostom and Theophylact, abused these words to prove it was not lawful for them to work to sustain this present life; by which doctrine, saith Chrysostom, they do ὅλον διαβάλλειν τὸν χριστιανισμὸν, wholly subvert Christianity, commanding Christians to work with their hands that which is good, Eph. 4. 28. to do their own business, and to work with their hands, 1 Thess. 4. 11. and he confutes them with the example of St Paul, labouring with his own hands night and day, Acts 18. 3.—20. 34. 1 Thess. 2. 9. 2 Thess. 3. 8. and of the other apostles, 1 Cor. 4. 12. These words are therefore to be taken not absolutely, but comparatively, i. e. Do not chiefly and primarily labour for the meat that perisheth, but let your regard for that meat which nourisheth to eternal life be so great, as that your concern for perishing enjoyments shall be comparatively as nothing; in which sense only we are bid not to take thought for food and raiment, Matth. 6. 28, 31. not to fear them who can kill the body, Matth. 10. 28. not to seek earthly things, Colos. 3. 2.

But chiefly here observe, that whereas Christ in this whole chapter speaks of believing in him, and in his salutary passion, and of receiving his doctrine, under the metaphor of meat and drink, he doth this by a metaphor very familiar to the eastern nations, and frequent in the Jewish writings. Thus Wisdom crieth in the streets, Come, eat of my bread, and drink of the wine that I have mingled, Prov. 9. 5. that is, go in the way of understanding, ver. 6. eat you that which is good, and let your soul delight itself in fatness, Isaiah 55. 2. that is, hear and your soul shall live, ver. 3. Thus doth the son of Syrac introduce Wisdom, saying, They that eat me shall yet be hungry, and they that drink me shall yet be thirsty, Eccluс. 24. 21. i. e. they that obey me, ver. 22. Hence (a) Philo often speaks of prudence, wisdom, virtue, as the food of the soul, or that spiritual meat and drink which nourisheth to life eternal. So to eat of every tree in paradise, is, saith he, an exhortation, τὴν ψυχὴν ἀπὸ πασῶν τ' ἀρετῶν ὠφελεῖσθαι, that the soul should receive advantage by all virtues The soul, saith he, is nourished with knowledge, no with meat and drink; for the scripture testifies, (b) ὅτι ἡ γένεσι ἀλλ' ἐφάνοι αἱ ψυχῆς τροφαὶ, that the food of the soul is not earthly, but heavenly, by saying, I rain down bread from heaven; and this principle, that God is the beginning and the end of all things, brings forth piety, (c) κάλλιστον καὶ τελειωτάτων καρπῶν, which is the best and most nourishing food. And the (d) Talmudists say, that all eating and drinking, mentioned in the book of Ecclesiastes, relates to the law and good works; and that their wise men are that staff of bread of which Solomon saith, Come, eat of my bread; see ver. 32. So that the sense of these words is this, Labour by faith in me, and embracing my doctrine, to obtain that eternal life which the Son of God will give to you; for he is to be lifted up upon the cross, that every one that believeth in him might not perish, but have everlasting life, chap. 3. 16, 17. and him hath God the Father sealed, i. e. he hath by his authority commissionated, and by his testimony owned him to be that prophet and Messiah from whom all blessings are to be expected, and, by anointing him with his Spirit above measure, ſure, hath as it were ſet his ſeal in confirmation of his meſſage; ſo that you may be ſure the life he promiſes in his Father's name ſhall be given you. So Chriſt expounds himſelf, ver. 29. ſaying, This is the work of God, that ye believe in him whom he hath ſent, i. e. this is that which he commands, and which is highly acceptable to him; ſo the ſacrifices of God are a broken and a contrite heart, Pſal. 51. 17. i. e. theſe are the moſt acceptable ſacrifices to him; and the righteouſneſs of God, Rom. 1. 17. 2 Cor. 5. 21, is that righteouſneſs which he alone accepts.

Ver. 31, 32. [1] He gave them bread from heaven; Moſes gave them not that bread from heaven, &c.] That we may the better underſtand what Chriſt here ſaith of himſelf, as the true bread coming down from heaven, that they might eat of it and live, note,

1*ſt*, From what hath been obſerved on ver. 27. that among the Orientals and (e) Jewiſh writers, to eat ἐστι τὸ φαγειν, Σύμβολον τροφῆς ψυχικῆς, is uſed as a ſymbol of the food of the ſoul, becauſe the ſoul, ſaith (f) Philo, is nouriſhed by receiving and practiſing good things: and wiſdom, temperance and piety, are ψυχῆς τροφαὶ ἢ θηλάζειν ἱκανῆς, the food of a ſoul that can ſuck them in.

2*dly*, They ſay that divine wiſdom was this meat and drink of the ſoul, according to that exhortation of wiſdom, Prov. 9. 5. Come, eat of my bread, and drink of the wine that I have mingled. Thus (g) Philo ſaith, of the aſcetic employed in divine contemplations, ὑπὸ Θεοῦ ποτίζεσθαι κάλλιστον πόσιν Σοφίαν, God gives him to drink of the beſt drink, wiſdom, even from the fountain of his own wiſdom. Accordingly Chriſt, the Wiſdom of the Father, ſaith, He that drinketh of the water which I ſhall give him ſhall never thirſt, John 4. 14. —7. 38, 39. See ver. 35.

3*dly*, They add, that this meat and drink comes down from heaven, and prove this from the words here cited by our Lord. So (h) Philo proves that God only gives heavenly bleſſings, from thoſe words of Moſes, I rain down bread from heaven; for what food, ſaith he, can be rained down from thence, ὅτι μὴ τὴν ἐξ οὐρανοῦ Σοφίαν, but heavenly wiſdom, which he ſends down upon the ſoul deſirous of it, who hath the fulneſs and abundance of it in himſelf?

4*thly*, They declare that this meat and drink is therefore to be preferred to corporal food, becauſe it nouriſheth to eternal life, or renders them immortal who partake of it. So Philo ſaith, that the wiſdom of God is the nurſe and nouriſher, (i) τῶν ἀφθάρτῳ διαίτῃ ἐφιεμένων, of thoſe that deſire incorruptible diet. He adds, that ſeeking what was the food of the ſoul, they found it was the word of God, (k) καὶ θεῖος λόγος, and the divine word, ἀφ' οὗ πᾶσαι παιδεῖαι καὶ Σοφίαι ῥέουσιν αἴτιαι, from whom all eternal wiſdom and inſtruction flows, and that this was the heavenly food of which Moſes ſaid, I rain down bread from heaven; and that this wiſdom of God gives to the ſoul that drinketh of it (l) ἀμετάβλητον ὑγίειαν, an unchangeable health. And even Pythagoras inſtructed parents to provide for their children, not what would preſerve the body to old age, but τὰ τὴν ψυχὴν θρέψαντα εἰς ἀεὶ τροφῇ, what would nouriſh their ſouls with eternal food, Stob. ſerm. 1. p. 3.

Laſtly, They ſay this meat and drink is the Wiſdom of God, and the Word of God, ſignified to them by that manna which fed the Jews, and by that rock which gave them drink. Thus (m) Philo having ſaid the wiſdom of God was a ſolid rock which could not broken, he adds, τὸν πάλαι ταύτην ἐτέρωθι Συνωνυμίᾳ χρώμενος καλῶ μάννα τὸν πρεσβύτατον τῶν ὄντων λόγον θεῖον, that Moſes called this rock, which was the moſt ancient of Beings, the Divine Word by the ſynonymous name of manna; the good man, ſaith he, lifts up his eyes to heaven, ἀφορῶν τὸ μαννα τὸν θεῖον λόγον, τὸν ἀρχαῖον ἢ φιλοθεαμόνως ψυχῆς ἄφθαρτον τροφὴν, looking to the manna, the divine and heavenly word, the incorruptible food of the ſoul which loves God. (n) Ainſworth alſo notes from R. Iſaac, and R. Menahem, that manna ſignified the food of the juſt in the world to come, and others, that it was a type of life eternal. See Buxtorf's hiſtory of manna, p. 336, 339, 352. From which obſervations it is eaſy to diſcern why Chriſt here ſtiles himſelf the Bread which came down from heaven, and gave life to the world, viz. becauſe he was that ſpiritual Bread prefigured by the manna coming down from heaven; and why he ſaith, that not Moſes, but his Father gave them the true Bread from heaven, viz. becauſe he only, by ſending his Son from heaven, gave them that bread which nouriſheth to life eternal, ver. 49, 50, 51. and, laſtly, why he inſiſts ſo much upon this metaphor, viz. becauſe it was familiar to the Jews, and uſed by their moſt celebrated writers.

Hence alſo we may ſee a probable reaſon why they deſire a ſign, i. e. a ſign from heaven, Matth. 12. 38. Mark 8. 11. and do it for this reaſon, that their fathers did eat bread from heaven, ver. 30, 31. viz.

31. viz. they do it, seeking an experiment whether he was the Messiah or not, (o) they being used to say, that as their first redeemer made manna descend from heaven for them, so should their second Redeemer do: and how appositely our Lord answers, that what they desired was already done by his Father sending his Son, the true heavenly manna, to them.

Ver. 33. [m] For the Bread of God is he that cometh down from heaven, &c.] The oblations made to God are stiled, in the Old Testament, the bread of God, though they were sacrifices of living creatures, and by the Septuagint δῶρα Θεοῦ, the gifts of God, Lev. 21. 6, 8. accordingly Christ stiles his piacular victim by the same name. And whereas the Socinians say, Christ is here only said to come down from heaven, not as being in heaven first, and then condescending to dwell on earth, but only as every good and perfect gift is said to descend from above, James 1. 17. I know not why the gifts of the Spirit, imparted then to believers by the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven, and being gifts of illumination, may not be properly said to descend from above, even from the Father of lights. That the Jews understood him in a sense intimating his coming down from heaven in a real sense, as from a place of his abode, appears from their murmuring at his words on account of his earthly parentage, ver. 41, 42. which yet they could have had no cause to have done, had he meant this in such a sense only, in which all their own prophets must be allowed to come from heaven. Moreover, thus even the Baptist came down from heaven, his authority, commission, and doctrine being from heaven, Matth. 21. 5. and yet he maketh this distinction betwixt himself and Christ, that he was from earth, but Christ was emphatically ὁ ἐκ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ ἐρχόμενος, one coming from heaven. 2*dly*, The antithesis put here betwixt Christ and manna, and the declaration that Christ was that Bread which the Psalmist says was given them from heaven, shews the phrase must be used of a true descent from heaven, that manna and Bread of which the Psalmist and Moses speak coming down truly from the clouds of heaven. And, 3*dly*, This is farther evident from Christ's question, ver. 62. What if you shall see the Son of man ascending where he was before? i. e. to his Father, chap. 14. 2. unless they will say, that as his descent signified his having his commission, wisdom and power, from heaven, so his ascent signifies his deprivation of that commission, wisdom and power.

Ver. 35. [n] He that cometh to me shall not hunger.] See note on chap. 4. 14.

Ver. 37. [o] All that my Father giveth me shall come to me.] For explication of these words, let it be noted,

1. That to believe in Christ, and to come to him, is the same thing. So John v. 38. In him whom the Father hath sent ye believe not, is, ver. 40. ye will not come to me, that ye may have life. So John 7. 37. If any man thirst, let him come to me and drink: and, to encourage them to embrace this invitation, he adds, he that cometh to me, out of his belly shall flow rivers of living water, ver. 38. So ver. 35. of this chapter, He that cometh to me shall not hunger, is the same with the following words, He that believeth in me shall not thirst. So when Christ had said, Ye have seen me and have not believed, he adds this reason of their incredulity, Ye come not to me, because ye are not given of the Father; and ver. 40. saith, He that cometh to me I will not cast forth; for this is the will of my Father, that he who hath seen the Son, and believed in him, should have eternal life. Note,

2. That to be given of the Father cannot here signify to be absolutely chosen by him to eternal life; for then the Jews could not be reasonably accused for not coming to Christ, or not believing in him, much less that they would not believe, or come to him, seeing, upon this supposition, that only they whom God had absolutely chosen to eternal life could come to him, it was impossible they should believe who were not thus elected, and so it could not be imputed as their crime, that they did not that thing which it was impossible for them to do: whereas it is certain that our Saviour represents it as their great sin, that in him whom the Father had sent they believed not, John 5. 38. and that they would not come unto him that they might have life, ver 40. telling them that the Spirit would convince them of sin, because they believed not in him, John 16. 9. and that they had no excuse for that sin, John 15. 22, 24. whereas, what better excuse could be made for them than this, that they could not come to him, as being not elected by God to that life he offered, to induce them so to do? (2.) Hence it must follow, that Christ could not rationally have invited them to come to him, or called them to believe in him, who were not given him by the Father; for this was to invite them to come to him that they might live, whom he well knew could never come, as being never chosen to obtain that life: much less could he have told them that this was the work which which God required them to do, or that the Father had given them this Bread from heaven, this being to require them, according to this ſuppoſition, to believe a lie, viz. that Chriſt was ſent to be the Bread of life, and a Saviour to them, for whom the Father never did intend ſalvation by him; and yet Chriſt manifeſtly ſays to them who ſeeing him did not believe, and therefore were not given to him by the Father, Labour for that meat which nouriſheth to life eternal, which the Son of man ſhall give to you, ver. 27. and that this is the work of God, that ye believe in him that he hath ſent, ver. 29. and my Father giveth you the true Bread from heaven, even him that cometh down from heaven, and giveth life (not to the elect only, but) to the world, ver. 32, 33. I therefore here enquire thus, Was our Lord truly willing that thoſe he ſpeaks to ſhould have life? If not, why doth he ſay, theſe things I ſpeak unto you, that ye might be ſaved, John 5. 34. but ye will not come unto me that ye may have life? If ſo, why did he ſay that he did always thoſe things which pleaſed him? John 8. 29. and could do nothing but what he ſaw his Father doing, ſeeing it was not the Father's will that they ſhould be ſaved, or come unto him that they might have life, whom he had not given to him, that is, had not elected to ſalvation? Note,

3. That Chriſt here gives a reaſon why they believed not, viz. Ye have ſeen, and yet believe not, becauſe ye are not given to me of my Father. Now it is reaſonable to conceive this reaſon ſhould agree with all his other reaſons aſſigned of their infidelity, which yet are manifeſtly founded, not on any thing wanting on the part of God, but on ſomething wanting in themſelves that they might do ſo, viz.

(1.) That they came not to the light becauſe their works were evil, and being ſo they hated the light, and would not come to it, John 3. 19, 20. that they believed not in him, becauſe he ſpoke the truth, which was diſtaſteful to them, chap. 8. 45.

(2.) Becauſe they had not the word of God abiding in them, nor believed God bearing witneſs to him, nor Moſes ſpeaking of him, John 5. 38, 46. and ſo being taught of God they would not learn.

(3.) Becauſe they were not of God; ye therefore do not hear his word, becauſe ye are not of God, John 8. 47. and becauſe they had not the love of God in them, John 5. 40, 42.

(4.) Becauſe they preferred the praiſe of men before the praiſe of God, not ſeeking that glory which cometh of God only, John 5. 44.

(5.) Becauſe they were not of his ſheep, i. e. not docile, nor diſpoſed to hear his voice; ye therefore believe not, becauſe ye are not of my ſheep, John 10. 26.

(6.) Becauſe through the perverſeneſs of their hearts they could not hear his words; Why do ye not know my ſpeech? Even becauſe ye cannot hear my words, John 8. 43. and this they could not do, becauſe they were of their father the devil, and his works they would do. And therefore,

4. To be given of the Father is, (1.) To be convinced by the miracles which God had wrought by him to teſtify the truth of his miſſion, and thereby to ſet his ſeal unto him, that he was the Meſſiah, and the Son of God, and to be willing upon theſe teſtimonies to own him as ſuch, laying aſide all thoſe unreaſonable prejudices and carnal affections which obſtructed their coming to him. This appears, 1ſt, From the deſcription which Chriſt gives of thoſe whom God had given him, viz. they were thine, and thou gaveſt them to me, and they know that I am come from thee, and they have believed that thou haſt ſent me, John 17. 6, 8. for this is ſpoken of Chriſt's diſciples, of whom it is ſo often ſaid, they ſaw his miracles, and believed on him, John 2. 11. by them they therefore knew that he came forth from God, and ſo are ſaid to be given him of God, who by theſe miracles convinced them of this truth, and ſo they believed that he had ſent him. 2dly, This appears farther from theſe words, There are ſome of you that believe not; for Jeſus knew from the beginning who they were that believed not (ſincerely,) and ſaith, Therefore I ſaid to you, No man can come unto me, except it were given him of my Father, ver. 64, 65. For theſe men had not laid aſide their prejudices againſt his words: they could not believe that he came down from heaven, who was the ſon of Joſeph, ver. 42. they murmured at his words, and were ſcandalized, ver. 61. they went away from him, and walked no more after him; and therefore, through their prejudices againſt his perſon and his doctrine, they could not prevail with themſelves to think that he came forth from God, and upon that account Chriſt here informs us, that he ſaid, No man can come unto him, unleſs it were given him of the Father. And, 3dly, This we may learn from a like expreſſion in the book of Deuteronomy, chap. 29. 2, 3, 4. Ye have ſeen all the Lord did before your eyes in the land of Egypt, the great temptations, ſigns and miracles, which there he wrought; yet the Lord hath not given you a heart to perceive, and eyes to ſee, and ears to hear unto this day, ולא and the Lord hath not given, or rather, hath not the Lord given you? ולא being put for והלא. So ולא ילך ſhall not Ammon go with us? 2 Sam. 13.

13. 26. לא לבי הלך went not my heart with thee? 2 Kings 5. 26. So also Job 2. 10. Mal. 2. 15. For here it is manifest, that the way of God's giving them an heart to perceive, was by working those signs and miracles before their eyes which might induce them so to do; and yet, for want of this improvement of them to this end, it is admired that the Lord hath not given them this heart, or is imputed as their great fault that he had not given it, i. e. that after all he had done to produce it in them, they had it not.

(2.) Christ being sent by God the Father, that the world through him might be saved, and he having sent his Son to propound to them that eternal life which was with the Father, and was manifested to us by his Son, and to propose to us the terms on which this life might be obtained, (as Christ doth throughout this chapter;) he is said to have given us eternal life, and that this life is in his Son, 1 John 5. 11. and that this is his record concerning him, and here, that the Father had given them the true Bread from heaven that giveth life unto the world, ver. 32, 33. And they who were so convinced of the truth of this promise by our Saviour's miracles, as to expect to receive it by faith in him, and obedience to his doctrine, and so affected with this promise of eternal life, as to esteem it above all other things, and so were willing to apply themselves to the performance of those duties which he required to obtain it, and to reject and quit these things which might obstruct them in the prosecution of it, are said to be given to him of the Father, because he wrought those miracles which gave them this conviction; on which account, when Peter had confessed that he was the Christ, Christ answered, Flesh and blood hath not revealed this to thee, but my Father which is in heaven, Matth. 16. 17. see the note there; and because he gave this promise of eternal life, and sent his Son to reveal it to the world; and therefore when he saith to his apostles, whom the Father had given him, Will ye also go away? Simon Peter answers, ver. 68, 69. Lord, to whom should we go, seeing thou hast the words of eternal life? and we have believed, and know that thou art the Christ the Son of the living God. Now it is evident, that all who have this strong conviction that our Saviour came from God, and this concernment for that eternal life he promised as the encouragement to come to him, will believe on him, because such persons can neither want assurance that they ought to do so, nor the most prevalent engagements so to do, as having that eternal life before their eyes, which they more value than all worldly things, and for which they are willing and prepared to quit all their lower interests.

Ver. 39. [p] But I will raise it up at the last day.] This being said of all who are given to Christ by the Father, it follows, that none of them shall rise till that day; and it being here said they are to be raised to receive eternal life, which life is only to be enjoyed in the heavens, it follows, that none of them are to be raised to reign with Christ a thousand years.

Ver. 40. See additions, No. 12.

Ver. 44. [q] No man can come unto me, except the Father which hath sent me draw him.] For explication of these words, consider,

1. That to be drawn of God cannot import our being moved by any inward and irresistible impressions from God to believe in him; for then no man could come to Christ without these irresistible impressions: and therefore none could be blame worthy for not believing in him, because they could not do it without that powerful impression which God was not pleased to afford them; nor could it be praise-worthy to believe in him, because they only did so when they could not chuse but do it, as being acted in so doing by a force which they could not resist. And therefore,

2. To be drawn of God can only signify to be persuaded and prevailed on so to do by the consideration of those mighty works which God had done to testify that Christ was the true Messiah, and that prophet which he had sent into the world; to these Christ appeals as divine testimonies concerning him, by saying, The works which my Father hath given me to do, bear witness of me, chap. 10. 25. by the consideration of them he persuades others to believe in him, saying, Believe me for the works sake, John 14. 11. and upon this account he represents the unbelieving Jews as inexcusable, that he had done those works among them which never man did, chap. 15. 22, 24. and all those works are said to be recorded, that men might believe that Jesus is the Son of God, and believing might have life through his name, chap. 20. 31. all which things must convince us that these things were sufficient to draw men to Christ; whence he himself speaks thus, When I am lifted up, I will draw all men after me, chap. 12. 32. viz. by the power of my resurrection, by which I shall so fully be demonstrated to be the Son of God, by the mission of the Holy Ghost to confirm my resurrection, and the truth of my doctrine by signs and wonders, and powerful distributions of the Holy Ghost, sufficient to prevail with all men to believe in me; though the event shewed that all were not actually drawn to him by theſe means. Or,

3. To be moved by the great promiſe of eternal life to do it; for whereſoever there is any lively ſenſe of that ineſtimable bleſſing, it ſtrongly muſt engage us to uſe the means by which we may obtain it, and ſo to come to Chriſt, if from him only this bleſſing is to be expected. And this is a familiar ſenſe of the word draw, both in the ſcripture and in other writings. Thus God is ſaid to draw them to him by the cords of love, Hoſ. 11. 4. who yet were bent to backſliding from him, ver. 7. and men are ſaid to be drawn away by their own luſts, James 1. 14. For, ſaith the poet, Trahit ſua quemque voluptas, every man's pleaſure draws him to a compliance with it. Thus, ſay the (p) Jews, The maſter draws the ſcholar by his parables, i. e. incites them to learn; and a man is drawn by wine, and by his pleaſures; and it is a celebrated ſaying among them, that a precept draws a precept, and a tranſgreſſion draws on a tranſgreſſion, i. e. one ſin diſpoſeth us to commit another, and obedience to one precept to obey another. And that we are only ſaid to be drawn by the Father to Chriſt, viz. by his miracles and divine inſtructions, is evident from the words following, as the proof of this, It is written, They ſhall be all taught of God; he therefore who hath heard of the Father, i. e. perceived him ſpeaking and doing his mighty works by me, cometh to me. Without this drawing none can come to Chriſt, for none but God can give this promiſe of eternal life to encourage us to do ſo, and no power but that of God can work thoſe miracles which proved his commiſſion from God; and hence Chriſt owns, that if he had not done theſe miracles among them, they had had no ſin of infidelity, John 15. 22, 24.

Ver. 45. See additions, No. 13.

Ibid. 45. [r] They ſhall be all taught of God,] Iſa. 54. 13. Thus we are taught by his example; thus we are θεοδίδακτοι, taught of God to love one another. (2.) By his Spirit, that unction which taught the primitive Chriſtians all things needful to be known, 1 John 2. 27. (3.) By his word, ſo ſaith (q) Clemens of Alexandria, are we taught of God. And, laſtly, By his Son delivering the mind of God to us as his Prophet, and ſo giving us the knowledge of what he requires us to believe and do in order to ſalvation: and, 2dly, Confirming the truth of what he thus delivered in his name by miracles done by the finger of God, and ſo ſetting his ſeal to the doctrine taught. And of this teaching by God are theſe words to be underſtood, 1. Becauſe the prophet Iſaiah is there ſpeaking of the ſetting up the kingdom of Chriſt, and of the teaching then promiſed. 2. Thus is it that the Father draws men to Chriſt, of which theſe words are made the proof. See note on ver. 37. 3. From the argument following, ver. 46. That they were not to expect to be taught immediately by the Father, as a ſcholar is by his maſter, ſeeing him preſent, and hearing him ſpeak, but only by him that had ſeen the Father, and ſo ſpake and did thoſe things which he had ſeen of the Father, John 3. 12.—8. 28.—12. 50. So that he who had ſeen him, had ſeen the Father, chap. 14. 9, 10.

Ver. 51. [s] And the Bread which I will give is my fleſh, that I will give, &c.] up to the death, to obtain that eternal life which was loſt by the ſin of Adam. Hence it is evident, that Chriſt here ſpeaks of faith in him, as ſuffering and ſhedding his blood for mankind, he being our propitiation only through faith in his blood, Rom. 3. 25. and we being reconciled to God by his death, Rom. 5. 9, 10. See here Examen Millii.

Ver. 53, 54. [t] Except ye eat the fleſh, and drink the blood of the Son of man, ye have no life in you.] To prove that Chriſt, in this chapter, ſpeaks not of oral and ſacramental eating, but only of doing this ſpiritually, by faith in his blood, I premiſe, 1ſt, That nothing was more common among the Eaſtern nations, than to uſe the metaphor of eating and drinking, when they ſpake not of corporeal meat or drink, which was to go into the mouth, but only of ſpiritual, to be fed on by the ſoul, as hath been fully proved already, note on ver. 27, 31, 32. Thus Clemens of Alexandria diſcourſing upon that paſſage of St Paul to the Corinthians, I have fed you with milk, and not with ſtrong meat, ſaith, That milk is the rudiments of faith, or the doctrines of the catechiſm, the firſt nouriſhment of the ſoul; ſtrong meat, a contemplation which makes us to diſcern the divine power and eſſence; Σάρκας αὖ καὶ αἷμα τὸν λόγον, theſe contemplations are the fleſh and blood of the Word; βρῶσις δὲ καὶ πόσις ἡ θεία λόγου κοινωνία καὶ ἡ θείας γνώσεως μετάληψις, the meat and drink of the divine Word is the knowledge of the divine eſſence. And Irenæus ſaith, that Chriſt taught the weak τρέφειν καὶ πίνειν τὸν λόγον τοῦ Θεοῦ, to eat and drink the divine Logos, l. 4. c. 74.

2dly, That it is the ſame thing in this chapter, to eat of the Bread which came down from heaven, and to believe in Chriſt breaking the bread of life to us by his doctrine, and offering himſelf a ſacrifice and oblation for us to obtain that life; for when he had exhorted them to labour for the meat that did not periſh, he tells them, ver. 29. that this was to believe on him whom God had sent. When he had told them, ver. 35. that he was the Bread from heaven, he immediately adds, He that cometh to me shall never hunger, and he that believeth in me shall never thirst. Having said that he was the Bread which cometh down from heaven, and giveth life unto the world, ver. 33. he confirms this expression, ver. 40. by these words, This is the will of my Father, that every one that seeth the Son, and believeth on him, should have eternal life; and again, ver. 47. Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, hath everlasting life; I am that Bread of life.

3*dly*, Observe, that from these metaphors our Lord proceeds to that contained in these words, objected by the Roman doctors, ver. 51. The bread which I will give is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world; that is, it is my body which I will give up unto death, that by it the world may have life. The Jews taking these words in a gross sense, as if our Lord had promised to give his real flesh to be swallowed down their throats, and eaten by them as they had eaten bread the day before, and as their fore-fathers had eaten manna in the wilderness, exclaiming against him, as promising a thing absurd, inhuman, and impossible, saying, How can this man give us his flesh to eat? to this our Saviour answers, ver. 53. in words still more expressive of his violent and bloody death for the salvation of mankind, viz. Except ye eat my flesh, and drink my blood, &c. Now these words are by some conceived to import thus much; Unless you, with the mouth of your bodies, do eat my real and corporeal flesh, and drink my proper blood, you cannot have eternal life. Against this sense I argue,

1. From ver. 51. thus; The flesh which Christ here promised to give for the life of the world, is the same with the Bread that cometh down from heaven. If any man eat of this Bread, he shall live for ever, saith Christ; and the Bread which I will give is my flesh, that I will give for the life of the world. And again, having said, He that eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, hath eternal life, ver. 54. and he that eateth me shall live by me, ver. 57. he adds immediately, This is the Bread which came down from heaven,—and he that eateth of this Bread shall live for ever. Now our Lord hath expressly taught us, that the eating of this Bread of life imported only our believing on him, ver. 35. as hath already been made evident from our second observation; therefore the eating of his flesh doth certainly import the same spiritual action. Moreover, we are only to eat of Christ as flesh in that importance of the phrase in which we are to eat of Christ as bread; for as Christ saith, He will give flesh to eat, so doth he say, He will give bread to eat; as he saith, He that eateth my flesh shall live for ever, so he saith, He that eateth of this Bread shall live for ever; but none could say, that Christ was, or could properly be bread, or eaten by the mouth as such; wherefore, he being only figuratively and spiritually Bread, could only figuratively and spiritually be to be eaten as such. If, therefore, in the same importance only we are to eat his flesh, that also is to be eaten in a spiritual sense.

2. From these words, ver. 52. How can this man give us his flesh to eat? it is evident, the Jews conceived that our Lord promised to give them his proper flesh to eat, and swallow down their throats, as they had done the bread with which he fed them; and it on all hands is agreed, that they mistook the sense of Christ's words, and fansied such a meaning of them as he did not intend; but had our Lord intended the corporal eating of his flesh, and drinking of his blood, it is certain that it must be swallowed down their throats, as properly as the bread which they had eaten; and therefore no man who maintaineth this corporal eating of Christ's flesh to be intended here, can, suitably to his opinion, say, that they imposed a false sense upon our Saviour's words, since from this sense it doth inevitably follow, that Christ intended that his human flesh should properly be eaten; and their words signify no more. Add to this one consideration, which shews what appprehensions the fathers of the first three centuries had of this eating of the flesh of Christ, viz. When it was objected to them by the Heathens, that they did eat man's flesh, they constantly in their apologies reject the accusation as the vilest calumny, and as a most abominable thing, sufficient to discover the author of such an accusation must be some wicked dæmon. See this fully proved, note on Matth. 26. 26.

3. The 53d verse affords two farther arguments in refutation of the corporal sense of these expressions: (1.) That it follows plainly from it, that the thief upon the cross, and all the pious and believing Jews who heard these words, and died before our Saviour's passion, must of necessity be damned; for our Lord saith, with an asseveration, to them, Except ye eat the flesh, &c. Now this was said at the passover then instant, ver. 4. and so at least above a year before our Saviour's passion, and so before the institution of that sacrament in which alone his flesh could be corporally eaten; and therefore had it been intended of corporeal and sacramental eating, it was impossible that any person of those hearers could be ſaved who died in the enſuing year. (2.) Theſe words, interpreted in the corporeal ſenſe, do plainly and inevitably infer, that they who do deprive the laity all their whole lives of drinking of this blood, expoſe them to inevitable damnation; Chriſt having ſaid, Except ye drink the blood of the Son of man, ye have no life in you: for though eating and drinking, being taken figuratively, do ſignify the ſame thing, viz. believing in a crucified Saviour; yet being taken properly, they cannot be reputed the ſame thing: for albeit they who receive the body only may be well ſaid to eat the fleſh of Chriſt, becauſe they take ſomething by way of meat into their mouths, yet cannot they be ſaid to drink his blood, if they take nothing into their mouths by way of drink: ſince therefore eating and drinking are two diſtinct actions, ſo that he cannot properly be ſaid to drink who only eats; ſince the privation of life is here connected with not drinking of Chriſt's blood, as much as with not eating of his fleſh, according to the corporeal interpretation of theſe words; he muſt certainly be deprived of the life here promiſed who doth not receive the cup, becauſe he is deprived of drinking of the blood of Chriſt.

4. From ver. 54, 56. the argument runs thus; Whoſoever eateth the fleſh and drinketh the blood of Chriſt, in the ſenſe here ſpoken of, abideth in Chriſt, and Chriſt in him, and therefore is a true and living member of Chriſt's body; and he ſhall have eternal life, and be partaker of an happy reſurrection; and ſo no perſon can either be wicked here, or deprived of everlaſting life hereafter, who in this ſenſe here mentioned eats of the fleſh and drinketh of the blood of Chriſt. Now this is very true, of eating ſpiritually, and by faith, as it imports believing on Chriſt: for, this, ſaith Chriſt, is the will of him that ſent me, that every one who believeth on the Son may have everlaſting life, and I will raiſe him up at the laſt day: but then of ſacramental eating of Chriſt's fleſh, it is as falſe; for this was eaten by a Judas, and continually is eaten by millions, who are both wicked here, and will be damned hereafter: this therefore cannot be the import of our Saviour's words. And here obſerve, (1.) That our Lord ſpeaks in the general, whoſoever eats. (2.) That he ſpeaks thus, not by way of promiſe, which might be conditional, but by way of plain aſſertion and declaration of a thing moſt certain. And, (3.) That the text ſhews the eating mentioned here can never be performed unprofitably, no not without the greateſt benefit; for it is oppoſed to eating manna in the wilderneſs, on this account, that whereas that gave only temporal life, this would aſſuredly confer eternal; whereas that was not able to preſerve from temporal, this would preſerve from death eternal.

5. Moreover, ver. 61. and 62. our Lord ſpeaks thus, Doth this offend you? what if you ſhould ſee the Son of man aſcend up where he was before? i. e. Are you offended that I thus ſpeak of giving you my fleſh to eat? do you look on this expreſſion now as ſo abſurd and unintelligible? what then will you think of it, when this body ſhall be removed hence to heaven? i. e. how will you then be ſcandalized, and think it ſtill more difficult and more impoſſible to apprehend how you ſhall eat my fleſh and drink my blood, provided you go on to underſtand my words in the groſs carnal ſenſe? For (r) Athanaſius ſaith well, That Chriſt here mentioneth his aſcent into heaven, ἵνα τὴν σωματικὴς ἐννοίας αὐτοὺς ἀφελκύσῃ, that he might divert them from the corporal ſenſe; and therefore argued thus, "Seeing it will be then "impoſſible that you ſhould corporally eat my "fleſh, when it is ſo far removed from you, by "this you may diſcern I ſpeak of a ſpiritual "eating of it." Whence by the way we learn, that Chriſt thought his aſcenſion into heaven ſufficient demonſtration to the Jews his fleſh could not be eaten upon earth; and why it ſhould not be ſo to the Chriſtian, I am yet to learn.

6. The 63d verſe affords us a more plain and certain expoſition of our Saviour's meaning in the precedent words; for thus it runs, It is the Spirit that quickneth; the fleſh profiteth nothing: the words that I ſpeak unto you, they are ſpirit and they are life. For the import of theſe words is to this effect; To that eating and drinking, of which in this diſcourſe I have ſtill ſpoken, I have annexed the promiſe of life, ſaying expreſly, He that eateth me, ſhall live by me; he ſhall by me be quickned, i. e. be raiſed up to life eternal; and that he abideth in me by that Spirit which quickneth our mortal bodies, Rom. 8. 11. ſo that my words are ſpirit and life, as being the means of obtaining the Spirit, and by him this life; to which effects my fleſh, if you could eat it, would profit you nothing. Had our Lord ſaid, It is the Spirit that quickneth, the fleſh profiteth nothing, therefore the fleſh which I will give ſhall be joined to my divinity, and by the virtue of it give you life, he had ſaid ſomewhat like the ſenſe which others put upon this text; but ſaying only, The words which I ſpeak unto you, they are ſpirit, we cannot doubt but he ſpeaks of eating and

7. Our Saviour having said to the twelve, Will ye also go away? St Peter answers, To whom should we go? thou hast the words of eternal life, and we believe thou art that Christ the Son of the living God. Where, (1.) observe, That Peter here doth as it were repeat the words of Christ; my words are life, saith Christ; thou hast the words of life eternal, saith St Peter: whereas, if he had understood our Saviour to have spoken here of oral manducation, his answer would in all probability have been to this effect, Whatsoever appearance there may be of inhumanity, absurdness, and impossibility of eating thy natural flesh, and drinking of thy blood, yet we believe it, because thou hast said it, who art truth itself, and who art able to make good thy words: we therefore hearing nothing of this tendence from him, may conclude, that he knew nothing of this import of them. And, (2.) observe, That he thought it sufficient to say, We believe thou art the Christ; which, if our Lord spake here of oral manducation, was nothing to the purpose, but, if he only spake of spiritually eating of him, was the very thing which was designed by our Lord in this discourse, and which he spake of in those words which so much offended others. We therefore conclude with (s) Clemens of Alexandria, that when our Lord said, Eat my flesh and drink my blood, he allegorically meant the drinking of faith and of the promises; and that our Lord is, by way of allegory, to those that believe in him, meat, and flesh, and nourishment, and bread, and blood: with (t) Tertullian, that our Lord all along urged his intent by allegory, calling his Word flesh, as being to be hungred after, that we might have life; auditu devorandus, ruminandus intellectu, & fide digerendus, to be devoured by the ear, ruminated upon by the mind, and by faith digested: with (u) Origen, that we are said to drink his blood, when we receive his words, in which life consists; that his flesh is meat indeed, and his blood drink indeed, because he feedeth all mankind with the flesh and blood of his Word as with pure meat and drink: with (w) Eusebius, that his words and doctrines are flesh and blood: with (x) Athanasius, that the words which Christ spake were not carnal, but spiritual; for how could his body have sufficed for meat, that it should be made the food of the whole world? with (y) St Austin, Utquid paras dentes & ventrem? crede & manducasti; credere enim in eum, hoc est manducare panem vivum; Why provideſt thou teeth and a belly? believe, and thou hast eaten; for to believe in him, is to eat the living bread: and, lastly, with (z) Jerom, In the truest sense the body and blood of Christ is the word and doctrine of the scripture; Caro Christi & sanguis ejus in auribus nostris infunditur, The flesh and blood of Christ is poured into our ears. We say in the language of (a) Origen, Si filii estis ecclesiæ,—agnoscite quia figuræ sunt;—si enim secundum literam sequaris; If ye are the sons of the church, own these things to be figures; for if you follow the letter, this very saying, Except you eat the flesh, is a killing letter: in the words of (b) Eusebius, pronounced in the name of Christ, Do not think that I speak of that flesh with which I am compassed, as if you must eat of that; neither imagine, that I command you to drink of my sensible and bodily blood; but understand well, that the words that I have spoken to you, they are spirit and life: for as (c) St Austin saith, touching the exposition of scripture phrases, If the saying be preceptive, either forbidding a wicked action, or commanding that which is good, it is no figurative speech; but if it seems to command any wickedness, or to forbid what is profitable and good, it is figurative. This saying, Except you eat, &c. seems to command a wicked thing; it is therefore a figure, enjoining to communicate in the passion of our Lord, and sweetly and profitably remember, that his flesh was wounded and crucified for us.

Ver. 55. [u] For my flesh ἀληθῶς ἐστι βρῶσις, is meat indeed, and my blood is drink indeed.] From what hath been said, note on ver. 53. it appears, this cannot be meant of eating and drinking corporally porally the flesh and blood of our Lord Jesus in the holy sacrament; it remains therefore, that they must here be stiled truly meat and drink in the spiritual sense: because the eating of this flesh by faith in his salutary passion doth nourish the soul to life eternal; and the drinking of this blood by faith in the blood of Christ, shed for the remission of our sins, doth so refresh the person thirsting after righteousness, that being justified by faith in his blood, and having the Spirit promised to all believers conveyed to him as a fountain of living waters, he shall thirst no more, John 4. 14.—7. 38, 39. Thus, in the scripture language, a thing is said to be that ἀληθὲς, truly, which it is only spiritually, or by way of allegory, or in reference to some effects which it performeth answerable to some natural effects performed by that which it is said truly and indeed to be. So our heavenly treasure is called τὸ ἀληθινὸν, the true riches, as making us rich towards God, and being a treasure of spiritual wealth never to be taken from us, Luke 16. 11. Thus Christ is stiled τὸ φῶς τὸ ἀληθινὸν, the true life, John 1. 9. because his doctrine was that to the understanding which light is to the eye, directing us into the way of light; he also is stiled ἄμπελος ἀληθινὴ, the true vine, John 15. 1. as being one who did more certainly refresh the thirsty soul, and fill it with spiritual joy, than will the fruit of the vine refresh the thirsty body, and rejoice the heart. Thus heaven is called ἡ σκηνὴ ἡ ἀληθινὴ, the true tabernacle, Heb. 8. 2. and Christ here saith of himself, ver. 32. I am ὁ ἄρτος ὁ ἀληθινὸς, the true bread which came down from heaven, i. e. more nourishing and strengthening to the soul of the believer than bread can be to the body. See Examen Millii.

Ver. 47. [w] And I live by the Father.] How, saith Stegmannus, can he be God who lives by the benefit of another? I answer, Even as he can have life in himself, chap. 5. 26. by the life of the Father communicated to him with his essence.

Ver. 58. See additions, N° 14.

Ver. 62. [x] What if you see the Son of man ascending where he was before?] It is certain, saith Stegmannus, this is spoken of the Son of man, and so not of a person who is God. But I deny the consequence; it being indeed spoken of him who was the Son of man, but not as he was so only, but as being also the Son of God, his only begotten Son, who is in the bosom of the Father, John 1. 18.

Object. But then, why is it said, Where he was before, as of a thing past, not where he always was?

Answ. 1. As God the Father is often said in scripture to descend upon the earth, see note on ver. 33. and afterwards to go up and ascend again to his place, Gen. 18. 33. Hosea 5. 15. that is, to the place where he was before; so, what reason can be given why the same may not be said of the Divine Word?

Answ. 2. I add, that according to our hypothesis, he may be properly said to ascend where he was before, who in his divine glory used to appear from heaven to the patriarchs, and, when he became man, divested himself of that glory, and took upon him the form of a servant, because he after reassumed and appeared in that glory which he had with the Father before the world was, John 17. 5.

Ver. 63. [y] It is the Spirit that quickneth, ver. 64. Thou hast the words of eternal life.] See note on ver. 53.

Ver. 65. [z] Therefore said I unto you, No man can come unto me, except it be given him of my Father.] See the note on ver. 37.

Ver. 70. See additions, N° 15.

CHAP. VII.

1. AFTER these things Jesus walked in Galilee, for he [a] would not walk in Jewry, because (the rage of the chief priests and principal men of) the Jews (was such, that they) sought to kill him.

2. Now the Jews feast of tabernacles (kept in remembrance of their living in tents forty years in the wilderness) was at hand.

3. His brethren therefore said unto him, Depart hence, and go into Judea, that [b] thy disciples (there) also may see the works that thou dost.

4. For there is no man who doth any thing in secret, and he himself seeketh to be known openly: if thou (canst) do these things (in truth at any time, and in any place,) shew thyself to the (great men of the) world, (the Sanhedrim, and the Pharisees and rulers there, that they may be convinced of the truth. And this they said, being desirous that his miracles might be tried by them, hoping they would find out the cheat of them.)

5. For neither did [c] his brethren believe in him, (that he did these things in truth, and for a good end, but for vain-glory, ver. 4.)

6. Then Jesus said unto them, My time is not yet come (to go up thither, ver. 8.) but your time is always ready (to go thither without molestation from any body there.)

7. (For) the world cannot hate you, (who live in in conformity to the manners of it;) but me it hateth, because I testify of it, that the works thereof are evil.

8. [d] Go ye up to this feast; I go not up yet to this feast, for my (fit) time (of going up) is not yet full come.

9. (And) when he had said these words unto them, he abode still in Galilee.

10. But when his brethren were gone up, then went he also up to the feast, (in obedience to the divine command; but this he did) not openly, (and with company,) but as it were in secret, (as privately as he could, to avoid the designs of them that sought to kill him, ver. 19.)

11. Then the Jews sought him at the feast, and said, Where is he?

12. And there was much murmuring (i. e. private discourse) among the people concerning him: for some said, He is a good man; others said, Nay, but he deceiveth the people, (applying himself still to them, and not to the wise and great ones.)

13. Howbeit no man (i. e. none of his favourers) spake openly of him (as of the Christ,) for fear of the Jews, (who had decreed that if any man should confess that he was the Christ, he should be put out of the synagogue, chap. 9. 22.)

14. Now about the [e] midst of the feast, (when the number of the sacrifices lessening, the people were more at leisure to hear,) Jesus went up to the temple, and taught.

15. And the Jews marvelled, saying, How knoweth this man letters? (how comes he to be so skilful in the knowledge of the scriptures,) having never learned (in the academies, or from the scribes?)

16. Jesus answered them, and said, (Ye need not admire at this, if ye consider that) [f] my doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me, (i. e. I did not frame it of myself, but received it immediately from God.)

17. (And) if any man will (honestly resolve to) do [g] his will (made known to him,) he shall know of the doctrine (which I teach) whether it be of God, or whether I speak (only) of myself.

18. (And by this test you may discern it: for) he that speaketh of himself, seeketh his own glory, (and therefore speaketh not those things which he knows will disgust, and procure hatred to him from men;) but he that seeketh (only) his glory that sent him, the same is (a) true (prophet,) and no [h] unrighteousness (i. e. falsehood) is in him.

19. (But it is otherways with you, as being full of hypocrisy and guile; for) did not Moses give you the law, (for which you seem so zealous as to be angry with me for a supposed violation of it,) and yet, (after all this pretended zeal) [i] none of you keepeth the law? why (else) go ye about to kill me, (against the sixth commandment?)

20. (Some of) the people answered, and said, Thou hast a devil, (i. e. thou art possessed with a lying spirit;) who goeth about to kill thee?

21. Jesus answered and said unto them, I have done one work, and ye all [k] marvel, (that I, who professe myself a prophet, should violate the rest of the sabbath, by doing such a work on that day.)

22. (Now) Moses therefore [l] gave to you (the precept of) circumcision, not because it is (originally) of Moses, but of the fathers, (from the days of Abraham,) and ye, (in obedience to the command to circumcise on the eighth day,) on the sabbath day circumcise a man (child, when the eighth day is also the sabbath day.)

23. If (then) a man on the sabbath day receive circumcision, that the (ritual) law of Moses, (requiring it to be still done on the eighth day,) should not be broken, are ye (justly) angry at me, because (that the law of charity and mercy, which is superior to, and more antient than that of circumcision, might not be broken by me,) I have made a man every whit whole on the sabbath day?

24. [m] Judge not according to the appearance (of violating the sabbath by that action, because it was a work done then;) but (consider the goodness of the action, that ye may) judge righteous judgment.

25. Then said some of them of Jerusalem, (who knew the designs of the Pharisees against him,) Is not this he whom they seek to kill?

26. But lo he speaketh boldly, and they say nothing to him; do the rulers know indeed that this is the very Christ? (and for this reason have they laid aside that design?)

27. (Howbeit there lyes this plain objection against his being the Messiah, that) we know this man whence he is; but (our tradition saith, that) when [n] Christ cometh no man knoweth whence he is.

28. Then (in answer to this cavil) cried Jesus in the temple, as he taught, saying, Ye both [o] know me, and ye know whence I am, (i. e. my person, parentage, and country; but yet this should not prejudice you against my being a prophet sent from God,) (and) for I am not come of myself, but he that sent me, (and hath given sufficient testimony that he did send me,) is true, whom ye know (i. e. you own) not, (denying to receive his testimony concerning me.)

29. But I know him, for I am from him, and he hath sent me, (and thus I have an original ye know not of.)

30. Then they sought to take him, (for assuming to be a teacher sent from God;) but no man laid hands on him, (God so ordering it) because his hour was not yet come.

31. And many of the people (who had seen his miracles) believed on him, and said, (in justificati- on:

on of their faith,) When Chriſt cometh, will he do more miracles (to convince us that he is the Chriſt,) than theſe that this man hath done (to prove himſelf ſo to be?)

32. The Phariſees heard that the people murmured (i. e. ſaid privately) ſuch things concerning him, and (therefore) the Phariſees and the chief prieſts ſent officers to take him.

33. Then ſaid Jeſus (to them that were ſent, Ye need not trouble yourſelves to take me; for) yet (but) a little while am I with you, and then I go (again) to him that ſent me.

34. And (then) [p] ye ſhall ſeek me (in your diſtreſs, Luke 17. 22. ſee chap. 8. 21.) and ſhall not find me, and where I (then) am, thither ye cannot come.

35. Then ſaid the Jews among themſelves, Whither will he go, that we ſhall not (be able to) find him? will he go to [q] the diſperſed among the Gentiles, and teach the Gentiles?

36. What manner of ſaying is this? (what other meaning can he have in it,) that he ſaid, Ye ſhall ſeek me, and ſhall not find me, and where I am, thither ye cannot come?

37. [r] In the laſt day, that great day of the feaſt, (on which they went with great ſolemnity and joy to draw water from the fountain of Siloam, to bring it to the temple, ſinging theſe words of Iſaiah, With joy ſhall they draw water from the wells of ſalvation, and expecting an afflatus of the Holy Ghoſt,) Jeſus ſtood and cried, ſaying, If any man thirſt (for ſpiritual water,) let him (not go to Siloah, but) come to me, and drink.

38. He that believeth on me, as the ſcripture hath ſaid, (Iſa. 32. 1, 2.—44. 3. Ezek. 36. 27. ſo ſhall it be with him; for) out of his belly ſhall flow rivers of living waters, (ſpringing up to eternal life, John 4. 14.)

39. But this (ἀπὸ δὲ, and this) he ſpake of the Spirit, which they that believe in him ſhould (after his aſcenſion) receive; for the (effuſion of the) [t] Holy Ghoſt was not yet (given,) becauſe that Jeſus, (who was to ſend him from the Father,) was not yet glorified.

40. Many of the people therefore, when they heard this ſaying, ſaid, Of a truth this is [s] the Prophet (of whom Moſes foretold, Deut. 18. 18.)

41. Others ſaid, This is the Chriſt, (the King Meſſiah, of whom Iſaias ſaid, chap. 42. 1. I will put my Spirit upon him:) but ſome ſaid, Shall Chriſt come out of Galilee?

42. Hath not the ſcripture ſaid, that Chriſt cometh of the ſeed of David, and out of the town of Bethlehem, where David was?

43. So there was a diviſion among the people becauſe of him.

44. And ſome of them (that were ſent for that purpoſe) would have taken him; but (others of them, who were much affected with his doctrine, not conſenting,) no man laid hands on him.

45. Then came the officers to the chief prieſts and Phariſees, and they ſaid unto them, Why have ye not brought him?

46. The officers anſwered, [u] Never man ſpake like this man; (for he told us what we came about as ſoon as we came to him, and diſcourſed ſo heavenly, and with ſuch authority, that we durſt not lay violent hands upon him.)

47. Then anſwered them the Phariſees, Are ye alſo deceived (by him?)

48. [w] Have any of the rulers, or of the Phariſees, (who underſtand the law, and are to judge for you in matters of religion,) believed on him?

49. But this people that knoweth not the law are accurſed.

50. Nicodemus ſaith unto them, [he that came to Jeſus by night, being one of them] (i. e. of the great council, chap. 3. 1.)

51. Doth our law (permit us to) judge (and condemn) any man before it hear him (making his defence,) and know what he doth (worthy of condemnation?)

52. They anſwered, and ſaid unto him, Art thou alſo (an abettor) of (thoſe of) Galilee, (as by thy actions thou ſeemeſt to be?) Search, and look; for (by ſo doing thou wilt find, that) [x] out of Galilee ariſeth no prophet.

53. And (when they had ſaid this, they diſſolved the aſſembly, and) every man went to his own houſe.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. VII.

Ver. 1. [a] HE would not walk in Judea, becauſe the Jews ſought to kill him.] His time being not yet come he departed thence, inſtructing us by his example not to irritate men, or run into danger without neceſſity, upon preſumption of divine protection; but that we are to uſe all lawful means which God hath put into our hands to avoid them. Only note, that by departing from Judea into Galilee he declined not the end of his coming into the world, becauſe in Galilee his doctrine and miracles found more faith than in Judea, ſo that he choſe to be moſt there where where his doctrine was like to do moſt good. Note alſo, That to walk, when it relates to places or perſons, ſignifies to tarry there or with them for a time; as his diſciples walked no more with him, John 6. 66. ſee chap. 11. 54. when it relates to things or actions, it ſignifies to be often doing them, or converſant about them, as to walk after their covetouſneſs, to walk in malice, &c.

Ver. 3. [b] That thy diſciples alſo may ſee the works that thou doſt.] Either that thy diſciples in Judea may ſee the works thou doſt in Galilee, or that thy diſciples in Galilee going up to the feaſt, and ſeeing thee doing the like works before the Sanhedrim, who can beſt judge of them, may be the more confirmed in the faith. For the Galileans received him, having ſeen the works that he did at Jeruſalem at the feaſt, chap. 4. 45.

Ver. 5. [c] For neither did his brethren believe in him:] i. e. They believed not that he was the Meſſiah, becauſe they ſaw not that pomp and outward ſplendor which they expected from the Meſſiah; or imagining that he ſought to be ἐν παῤῥησίᾳ, a public perſon, they conceived that he pretended to do more than indeed he could; as appears from thoſe words, ver. 4. if thou doſt theſe things, ſhew that thou doſt them where the beſt judges of thy actions are. See additions, N° 16.

Ver. 8. [d] Go ye up to the feaſt.] You may do this ſecurely at any time, for the Phariſees bear no hatred to you, whereas my doctrine being oppoſite to their manners and affections, may expoſe me to their rage, I therefore ſhall not yet go up. He would go up in obedience to the divine command, but he would go as privately as he could, to avoid danger by human prudence, when there was no neceſſity of doing it by a miraculous power. Ἐγὼ οὔπω ἀναβαίνω, I go not up yet to the feaſt. Here Grotius notes that this particle οὔπω yet was not originally in the text, becauſe Prophyry accuſes Chriſt of inconſtancy and mutability, ſaith St (a) Jerom, as ſaying, I go not up to this feaſt, when afterwards he went; and therefore concludes this particle was after added by the Chriſtians to avoid the force of his objection: but this is to accuſe the Chriſtians of adding to, and altering the ſcripture, to ſave the credit of an Heathen and profeſſed enemy to Chriſtianity, as if he could not read negligently, or meet with a deficient or corrupt Latin copy. It is certain that Chryſoſtom reads, νῦν or ἔτι; ſo did alſo the Syriac and Arabic verſions, the Alexandrian, and moſt other manuſcripts: and both the words preceding and the words following require this reading; Chriſt ſaying, ver. 6. My time (of going up) οὔπω πάρεστι, is not yet come; and here, I go not up (yet) unto the feaſt, for my time οὔπω πεπλήρωται, is not yet come; where he reſpects not the time of his death, as ſome imagine, for then he ſhould not have gone up to Jeruſalem till the time came that he was to ſuffer there; whereas we find him at this feaſt of tabernacles, ver. 10. and at the feaſt of dedication of the altar, chap. 10. 12. He therefore muſt there ſpeak of his going up to this feaſt. See here Examen Millii.

Ver. 14. [e] Τῆς ἑορτῆς μεσούσης, About the midſt of the feaſt Jeſus went up.] Dr Pocock informs us, that the days betwixt thoſe which were ordinary and feſtival were ſtiled dies medii, intermediate days, becauſe ſome works might be done in them, which were not lawful on their feaſt-days.

Ver. 16. [f] My doctrine is not mine, but his that ſent me.] If Chriſt, ſaith Stegman, had any other nature beſides the human, according to which he was the prime author of his doctrine, could he have truly ſaid, My doctrine is not mine? could one who was the true God deny that he ſought his own glory, ſince the true God cannot do otherways? Sure he that thus denies theſe things which are ſo proper to God, cannot be God moſt high.

Anſw. To this ſome anſwer, That this indeed cannot properly be ſaid of him ſuper quem alius non eſt, which is the diſtinction put by Juſtin M. and Irenæus betwixt God the Father and the Son, whom they believed to be truly God; viz. that this cannot be ſaid of him who is the original and the fountain of the Deity, and deriving his eſſence from none, but it may be ſaid of him who is God of God, as deriving his Divine eſſence from the Father, eſpecially when being in the form of God he did not covet to appear as God, but took upon him the form of a ſervant. See the note on Philip. 2. 6. and upon 1 Cor. 8. 5. he acting, even when Lord of all things, to the glory of God the Father, Philip. 2. 11. For thus he ſpeaks of himſelf as having an original, according to which the Jews knew who he was and whence he was, ver. 28. of this chapter, i. e. ſaith Stegmannus, of what parents he was according to the fleſh; and yet, chap. 8. 14. he ſaith, Ye know not whence I am, and ver. 19. ye neither know me nor my Father; that is, ſaith the ſame Stegman, ye know not my divine excellency; and ſo both, ſaith he, are true, but in a diverſe manner, they knowing him as to his earthly parents, but not as to his divine excellency and deſcent from heaven. Why therefore may we not uſe the like diſtinction here, viz. that his doctrine was not his (only,) and yet was his; that he came not to do his own will, and yet he did it, i. e. he did not do it as he was man, but yet did do it as he was God as well as man? ſince from this inſtance it appears that truly may be aſcribed to him in an higher ſenſe which he removes from himſelf when he ſpeaks of himſelf as acting here on earth. Thus he tells his apoſtles he was to be no more in the world, but to leave the world, and go to the Father, and even to go away from them, chap. 16. 7, 28.—17. 11. and yet he promiſeth to be always with them, Matth. 28. 28. and to abide with them for ever, John 14. 16, 23. See the note on ver. 28. But,

2*dly*, I anſwer, That Chriſt, by ſaying theſe and the like words, reſpects himſelf as a prophet ſent by his Father into the world. Now the very office of a prophet requires that he ſhould ſpeak nothing of himſelf, nor deliver his own mind and doctrine, nor ſeek his own glory, but ſhould ſpeak all things in the name, and do all things for the glory of him that ſent him; and to this may be referred moſt of thoſe paſſages of this goſpel which the Socinians urge againſt the Deity of Chriſt, they being ſpoken by him, not to declare by what power and wiſdom he acted as he was the only begotten Son of God, but to demonſtrate he was no falſe prophet, that he delivered not a doctrine invented by himſelf to get a name and reputation to himſelf, but only taught that doctrine he had received from his Father, and which tended to advance his glory. For,

Firſt, To ſpeak of himſelf in the ſcripture phraſe is to ſpeak from his own heart, and private motion and invention, what he had not received from God, as the falſe prophets did. So Moſes ſaith, Numb. 16. 28. Hereby ſhall ye know that the Lord hath ſent me to do all theſe things, and that I do them not מלבי of my own heart, or at my own will, ſay all the Targums. And Balaam ſpeaks thus, Numb. 24. 13. If Balak would give me his houſe full of ſilver and gold, I cannot tranſgreſs the word of the Lord, to do good or evil, מלבי of myſelf, or as it is chap. 22. 18. ἐν τῇ διανοίᾳ μου, of my own mind, of my own will, ſaith the Targum; but what the Lord ſaith, that will I ſpeak. Hence God complains of the falſe prophets, that they ſpake ἀπὸ καρδίας αὐτῶν, from their own hearts, and not from the mouth of the Lord, Jer. 23. 16. and τὰ ἐνύπνια τῆς καρδίας αὐτῶν, the deceits of their own hearts, ver. 26. Thus to ſpeak from himſelf here, ver. 17, 18. is oppoſed to ſpeaking from God; and chap. 8. 28. it ſtands oppoſed to ſpeaking what he was taught by God, in theſe words, I ſpeak not of myſelf, but as the Father hath taught me, ſo I ſpeak; and chap 12. 49. I ſpeak not of myſelf, but as the Father hath given me commandment. See alſo chap. 14. 10. When therefore Chriſt ſaith, My doctrine it not mine, he ſpeaks not this in reſpect of his own knowledge, he having in him all the treaſures of wiſdom, Coloſ. 2. 3. nor in reſpect of authority, for he oft ſtiles it his word, his commandment; nor in reſpect of his will, which was always one with that of his Father's; but he only denies that he ſpake as a falſe prophet, ſaying things of himſelf without commiſſion from his Father, or running when he had not ſent him, as they did, but, as the Baptiſt ſaith of him, ſpake the words of God. Now what reaſon can be given why Chriſt, though having in him all the fulneſs of the Godhead, might not ſay, when upon earth, he ſpake and acted as a prophet ſent from God; that he was no falſe prophet, that he uttered no doctrine of his own invention, nor any thing which he had no commiſſion to ſpeak to them; and that in the delivery of it he ſought not his own glory, as the falſe prophets did?

Ver. 17. [g] If any man will do his will, &c.] That is, if he hath an honeſt heart, prepared to obey the truth when he is convinced of it, he ſhall know of the doctrine, i. e. ſhall have means ſufficient to convince him that it is of God.

Ver. 18. [h] He is true, καὶ ἀδικία ἐν αὐτῷ οὐκ ἔστι, and there is no unrighteouſneſs, i. e. no falſhood in him.] So ἀδικία ſignifies: ſo οἰκονόμῳ ἀδικίας is the falſe ſteward, Luke 16. 8. ἀπάτῃ ἀδικίας, deceit by falſhood, is oppoſed to the love of the truth, 2 Theſſ. 2. 10. ſee note on 1 Cor. 13. 6. So that this ſeems to be the import of theſe words, He is a true prophet, and no falſe impoſtor.

Ver. 19. [i] None of you keep the law,] i. e. none of you who go about to kill me as a violator of the ſabbath, that requiring you not to condemn the innocent, Exod. 23. 7.

Ver. 21. [k] Καὶ πάντες θαυμάζετε, And ye all wonder;] i. e. ye do it with anger and offence, ver. 23. παραλογίζεσθε, θορυβεῖσθε, Theophylact. So θαυμάζειν ſignifies, Eccleſ. 5. 8. When thou ſeeſt the oppreſſion of the poor, μὴ θαυμάσῃς, be not troubled or offended at the matter. And Ecclus. 11. 21. μὴ θαύμαζε ἐν ἔργοις ἁμαρτωλοῦ, be not offended at the works of ſinners. Note alſo, that the words διὰ τοῦτο, for this cauſe, are added to this verſe thus, that you may, or ſo that you will marvel at this, by Chryſoſtom and Theophylact. See Examen Millii in locum.

Ver. 22, 23. [l] Moſes gave you circumciſion;] i. e. he continued to you that rite which began from Abraham, to whom it was commanded that it ſhould be performed τῇ ἡμέρᾳ τῇ ὀγδόῃ, on the eighth day, Gen. 17. 14. though it fell upon the ſabbath; and you accordingly perform it on that day, and teach teach that (b) circumcision drives out the sabbath, or makes it lawful to perform work on that day, even all things which are necessary to be done for the circumcision of the child: and if this be lawful by the command of Moses to be done on that day for the benefit of a child, why may it not be lawful, according to Moses, to do a like work for the benefit of one of riper years?

Ver. 24. [m] Judge not κατ' ὄψιν, according to appearance;] i. e. absolving them who do these works of circumcision, &c. on the sabbath-day in observation of a ritual precept, and condemning me who, by healing with a word on that day, do what is less laborious, in observance of the higher precepts of charity and mercy, and then, considering that God will have mercy, and not sacrifice, you will judge righteous judgment. See additions, N° 17.

Ver. 27. [n] But when Christ cometh, no man knoweth whence he is.] This is doubtless spoken from the vain traditions of their Rabbins, who owned indeed that their Messiah was to be born at Bethlehem, but imagined that he was presently to be conveyed thence, and concealed till Elias came to anoint him. That this was an ancient conceit among them, appears not only from the Targum of Jonathan, who on Micah 4. 8. saith thus, Thou, O Christ, who lyest hid for the sins of the children of Sion, to thee shall the kingdom come: but also from these words of (c) Trypho, If Christ be born, and is any where, ἄγνωστος ἐστι, he is unknown, nor hath he any power till Elias comes to manifest him to the world: and hence Justin M. saith, I know your masters say that Christ is not yet come; and if he be come, ἀγνώσκω ὅς ἐστι, it is not known who he is, p. 336. C.

Ver. 28. [o] Ye both know me, and ye know whence I am.] Here Stegman the Socinian notes, that what Christ grants here, he denies, chap. 8. 14, 19. saying, Ye neither know me, nor whence I am, because in different respects mentioned note on ver. 16. both are true: when then he argues from these words, I came not from myself, Christ is not God, because God cannot but come from himself, why did he not from these words infer in like manner that Christ had no divine excellence unknown to the Jews? but he considered not that to come of himself, did only signify to come as a false prophet without commission from God, and delivering in his name a doctrine he received not from him; in which sense, though Christ could not come of himself, yet might he say these things of himself as a prophet here on earth, though he had also in him the fulness of the Godhead.

Ver. 34. [p] Ye shall seek me (in your distress,) and shall not find me.] So have I interpreted this passage in the paraphrase, as most commentators do; yet the precedent words and the words following seem to require this sense, I go to my Father, and though ye should seek me, ye cannot then find me, for ye are not fitted to go to heaven where my Father is.

Ver. 35. [q] Will he go εἰς τὴν διασπορὰν Ἑλλήνων, to the dispersed among the Gentiles? &c.] It is matter of dispute what is here meant by the dispersion of the Greeks, some understanding by this phrase the dispersion of the Jews among the Greeks in Asia and Europe, as the διασπορὰ Πόντου, the dispersion of Pontus and Galatia, 1 Pet. 1. 1. is the dispersion of the Jews in those places, because the word dispersion is not thought to agree well with the Gentiles being in their native soil; but yet there seems a necessity of understanding by this phrase, the Gentiles dispersed, from the time of building the tower of Babel, into divers nations, Gen. 10. For, 1. It is not said, Will he go to the dispersion and teach the Jews? but, Will he go and teach τοὺς Ἕλληνας, the Gentiles? which fixes the sense to them. Moreover, this seems here to be said by way of imputation and reproach to Christ; whereas it could be no imputation on him to preach to the Jews, to whom he was sent, nor could this seem strange to them; but they thought it unlawful for a Jew to converse with the uncircumcised, Acts 10. 28. nor could they patiently hear of one sent to preach to the Gentiles, Acts 22. 22. nor is the phrase in St Peter parallel, it being not simply διασπορὰ, the dispersion, but παρεπιδήμοις διασπορᾶς, the strangers of the dispersion of Pontus, &c. See Examen Millii in locum.

Ver. 37, 38, 39. [r] Ἐν τῇ δὲ ἐσχάτῃ ἡμέρᾳ τῇ μεγάλῃ τῆς ἑορτῆς· In the last, i. e. the great day of the feast, Jesus cried, If any man thirst, let him come to me and drink.—This said he of the Spirit.] For explication of these verses, observe,

1*st*, That Christ here speaks of the internal gifts of the Spirit, viz. those of prophecy, tongues, of wisdom, and the knowledge of all mysteries; for he speaks of those gifts of the Holy Spirit which were not yet given, because Jesus was not glorified; he therefore speaks of the gifts to be received after his ascension, now they were these internal gifts. See note on Heb. 2. 4. 1 John 5. 6.

2*dly*, Observe, that these gifts of the Spirit are promised under the metaphor of waters flowing out of the belly of believers, agreeable to the nature of internal gifts. So Christ saith to the Samaritan woman, woman, The water which I will give will be a fountain of water ſpringing up to life eternal, chap. 4. 14. So Iſa. 32. 1, 2. Behold a King ſhall reign in righteouſneſs, and princes ſhall rule in judgment; and a Man ſhall be as rivers of water in a dry place. And chap. 44. 3. I will pour water upon him that is thirſty, and floods upon the dry grounds: I will pour my Spirit upon thy ſeed, and my Spirit upon thy offspring; that is, ſaith the Targum, As waters are given to the thirſty earth, ſo will I give my Spirit upon thy ſons. And Ezek 36. 25, 26, 27. I will pour clean water upon you, and ye ſhall be clean; I will put my Spirit בְּקִרְבְּכֶם in the midſt of you, in your bowels, ſaith the Targum: whence it is manifeſt, that they muſt be miſtaken who ſay, the words of Chriſt are not to be found in the Old Teſtament, and ſo interpret his words thus, He that believeth in me (as the ſcriptures require him to believe) out of his belly ſhall flow rivers of living water; whereas that phraſe, καθὼς εἶπεν ἡ γραφὴ, as the ſcripture hath ſaid, is never uſed to expreſs the manner after which a thing is to be done, but always to confirm the truth and the authority of the thing mentioned: ſee v. 42. Rom. 4. 3.—9. 17.—10. 11.—11. 2. Gal. 4. 30. James 2. 8.

(b) Maim. Hilcoth. Nicklah. C. 1. Pirk. Eliezer. c. 29 p. 65. (c) Apud Just. dial. 9. 226.

3*dly*, Obſerve, that Chriſt ſpake thus on the laſt day of the feaſt of tabernacles. Now on that day, ſay the Jews, they uſed to compaſs the altar ſeven times with branches in their hand, ſaying ſome prayers, in which they often repeated the words Hoſanna and Hatzlicha, Save now and proſper us; whence that day was ſtiled Hoſanna Rabba, or, the great day of the feaſt, as here; and as they add, by the inſtitution of their prophets Haggai and Zechariah, they then fetched water with great joy and pomp from the fountain of Siloah, and brought it to their prieſts, who poured it upon the altar with the wine of their ſacrifice, ſinging theſe words of Iſaiah, chap. 12. 3. With joy ſhall ye draw water from the fountain of ſalvation; that is, ſaith the Targum, With joy ſhall ye receive a new doctrine from the elect of the juſt: and whilſt they were thus ſinging, they expected the Holy Spirit ſhould fall upon them, as they ſaid he did on the prophet Jonas, whilſt he was employed in this very action. They farther ſay, that there was a place in the court of the women, whither they carried theſe waters, called Beth-Haſſcoavah, the place of drawing, becauſe thence they drew the Holy Spirit. And, laſtly, Zachary foretells, that all the nations ſhould come to Jeruſalem at the feaſt of tabernacles, chap. 14. 16. and in that day, ſaith he, living waters ſhall go forth from Jeruſalem, ver. 8. And hence we learn why that day was called the great day of the feaſt, and how appoſitely our Lord ſpake to them o receiving the Holy Ghoſt, under the metaphor of living, i. e. fountain water. See Tremellius here, and Buxtorf. lex p. 2298.

Ver. 39. [r] Οὔπω γὰρ ἦν πνεῦμα.] Many copies read ἅγιον, and ſome δεδόμενον; but I ſuſpect that neither δεδόμενον nor ἅγιον was in the original; (1.) Becauſe Origen reads οὔπω γὰρ ἦν πνεῦμα, and no more, continually. See apud Huet. tom. 1. p. 299. B. tom 2. p. 359. D. 398. C. 422. H. nor is τὸ ἅγιον interpreted by the Syriac or Vulgar. And, (2.) The words foregoing are only theſe, he ſpake περὶ τοῦ πνεύματος, of the Spirit, and ſo thoſe anſwer theſe, the Spirit was not yet.

Ver. 40. [s] Of a truth this is the Prophet,] in whoſe time the great effuſion of the Spirit mentioned by Iſaias and Joel is to be expected.

Ver. 46. [u] Never man ſpake like this Man.] Here two things are obſervable; 1*ſt*, The power of Chriſt's words to change the frame and temper of mens ſpirits; for theſe men came with hearts alienated from Chriſt, and with intention to carry him to the chief prieſts, but return with a great admiration of his excellency and worth. 2*dly*, Here is obſervable the honeſty of theſe men; for they do not return with a pretence that they feared the multitude, and therefore thought it dangerous to apprehend him, but they ingenuouſly confeſs they could not prevail with themſelves to apprehend a perſon whoſe diſcourſes were ſo holy and divine.

Ver. 48. [w] Have any of the rulers, or of the Phariſees believed on him?] This is plainly the Popiſh argument, by which they attempt to prove, that private men, laics, and inferior prieſts, are not to be governed by their own ſentiments of Chriſt's doctrine, but muſt ſubmit to their general councils, and the major part of their church-guides; and that it is as ſtrong in the mouth of the Phariſees againſt Chriſt being the true Meſſiah, as it is in the mouth of Papiſts againſt Proteſtants, ſee the ſermon following upon this text.

Ver. 52. [x] Search and look, for out of Galilee ariſeth no prophet.] It is wonderful, that not the multitude only, who had heard the ſhepherds declaring from an angel, that Chriſt was born at Bethlehem, Luke 2. 15, 16. and had wondered at the words which had been told them by the ſhepherds, v. 18. ſhould make this objection, v. 41. but that the chief prieſts and Phariſees, who knew that the wiſe men went to Bethlehem to worſhip him who was born King of the Jews, ſhould inſiſt upon it. This is an inſtance of the power of prejudice, to ſhut the eyes againſt the cleareſt truth.

JESUS

CHAP. VIII.

1. JESUS went unto the mount of Olives.

2. And early in the morning he came again into the temple, and all the people came to him, and he ſat down and taught them.

3. And (as he was teaching) the ſcribes and Phariſees brought to him a woman taken in adultery; and when they had ſet her in the midſt (of the company,)

4. They ſay to him, Maſter, this woman (being eſpouſed to an husband) was taken in adultery in the very act.

5. [a] Now Moſes in the law commanded us, (Deut. 22. 23.) that ſuch ſhould be ſtoned; but what ſayſt thou?

6. This they ſaid, tempting him (to ſay ſomething in derogation from that law of Moſes,) that they might have to accuſe him (of contempt of, or oppoſition to the law of Moſes;) but Jeſus (knowing that he was no judge to paſs ſentence on her, and looking upon them as unworthy of an anſwer, as coming not to learn of, but to enſnare him,) ſtooped down, and with his finger wrote on the ground, (making) as though he heard them not.

7. So when (ὡς δὲ, but as) they continued asking him, he lift up himſelf, and ſaid unto them, [b] He that is without ſin (in this kind) among you (her accuſers,) let him firſt caſt a ſtone at her.

8. And again he ſtooped down, and wrote on the ground, (that they might ſlip away without thinking he took notice of them.)

9. And they which heard (this) being convicted by their own conſcience, (and not knowing but that Jeſus might diſcover their guilt if they ſhould execute this ſentence on her,) went out one by one, beginning at the eldeſt, even to the laſt; and Jeſus was left [c] alone, and the woman ſtanding in the midſt (of the people.)

10. When Jeſus had lift up himſelf, and ſaw none (of the Phariſees,) but the woman (only,) he ſaid unto her, Woman, where are thoſe thine accuſers? hath no man condemned thee?

11. She ſaid, No man, Lord: Jeſus ſaid unto her, Neither do I, (who have no commiſſion to paſs ſentence on thee, take upon me to) condemn thee (to die;) go, (and in the fear of divine judgment repent,) and ſin no more.

12. Then ſpake Jeſus again, (this interruption of his teaching being ended,) unto them, ſaying, [d] I am (ſent to be) the light of the world; he that followeth me, ſhall not walk in (the ways of) darkneſs, but (obeying my doctrine) ſhall have the light of life.

13. The Phariſees therefore (then preſent) ſaid unto him, Thou bear'ſt record of thy ſelf; thy record (therefore) is not true; (for had God ſent thee, he would have given teſtimony to thee.)

14. Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto them, [e] Though I bear record of my ſelf, yet my record is true (and certain in itſelf, though it appear not ſo to you;) for I know whence I came, (viz. from the Father,) and whither I go, (viz. to him again;) but ye cannot tell whence I come, and whither I go, (and for want of this knowledge cannot believe my record.)

15. [f] Ye judge (of me) after the fleſh, (i. e. according to the meanneſs of my extraction and appearance, which is all that you know of me;) I judge no man (at preſent; my buſineſs being now that of a prophet, not of a judge.)

16. And yet if I (at any time do) judge (of you,) my judgment is true; for I am not alone (in that judgment,) but I and my Father that ſent me (ſo judge, i. e. I do it by that Spirit of the Father in me, which enables me to diſcern the inward temper of your ſpirits.)

17. And (whereas you object, that I bear record of myſelf, note that) it is alſo written in your law, (Deut. 17. 6.) that the teſtimony of two men is true, (i. e. is valid in cauſes of the greateſt conſequence: and this evidence of the truth of my miſſion ye have; for)

18. [g] I (whom the Father hath ſent) am one that bear witneſs of myſelf, (that he hath ſent me;) and that Father that ſent me, (he alſo) beareth witneſs of me, (by the miracles by which he enables me to confirm my miſſion.)

19. Then ſaid they unto him, Where is (he whom thou ſtileſt) thy Father? Jeſus anſwered, Ye neither know me nor my Father; if ye had known me, (or had a due ſenſe of my ſpiritual and heavenly doctrine, and of the miracles by which it is confirmed,) ye ſhould (would) have known my Father alſo; (i. e. would have diſcerned the divine power and wiſdom ſhining in them, and would have had the moſt perfect knowledge of his will.)

20. Theſe words ſpake Jeſus in the treaſury as he taught in the temple; and (though they incenſed the Phariſees, yet) no man laid hands on him, (the providence of God reſtraining them,) for (becauſe) his hour was not yet come.

21. Then

21. Then ſaid Jeſus again [h] unto them, I (ſhortly) go my way, and ye ſhall ſeek me (in your diſtreſs, deſiring the Meſſiah would come to deliver you, Luke 17. 22.) and (ye) ſhall die in your ſins; (for) whither I go, ye cannot come, (being not fitted for the celeſtial manſions, or you cannot come to fetch me thence.)

22. Then ſaid the Jews, Will he kill himſelf, becauſe he ſaith, Whither I go, ye cannot come? (Sure, if he be alive, and in Judea, we can reach him.)

23. And he ſaid unto them, Ye are from beneath, (and ſo can think and ſpeak only of earthly things;) I am from above, (and ſo ſpeak of the things above, whither I am going:) ye are of this world, (and ſo your thoughts, affections, words and actions, wholly reſpect this world:) I am not of this world, (and ſo my life and doctrine ſuits not with your temper, nor have you any right apprehenſions of my ſayings.)

24. I ſaid therefore unto you, (ſo indiſpoſed to believe and receive my doctrine,) that ye ſhall die in your ſins; for [i] if ye believe not, that I am he (whom God hath ſent into the world as your Meſſiah, or that prophet which was to come,) ye ſhall die in your ſins.

25. Then ſaid they unto him, Who (then) art thou? and Jeſus ſaid unto them, Even the ſame that I ſaid unto you [k] from the beginning, (viz. one ſent of God to reveal his will to you.)

26 [l] I have many things to ſay and to judge of you, (which ye will not believe;) but he that ſent me (to ſpeak them) is true; and I ſpeak to the world (only) thoſe things which I have heard of him, (and which therefore muſt be true.)

27. (But) they underſtood not that he [m] ſpake to them of (his being ſent from) the Father.

28. Then ſaid Jeſus unto them, When ye have lift up the Son of man (upon the croſs,) [n] then ſhall ye know, (ſome to conviction, and ſome to condemnation,) that I am he, and that I do nothing of myſelf, but as my Father hath taught me I ſpeak theſe things.

29. And (even now) [o] he that ſent me is with me; (and) the Father hath not left me alone, (or deſerted me:) for I do always thoſe things that pleaſe him.

30. As he ſpake theſe words, many (who had ſeen the miracles by which he confirmed his ſayings, chap. 7. 31.) believed on him.

31. Then ſaid Jeſus unto thoſe Jews that believed on him, [p] If ye continue in (obedience to) my word, then ye are my diſciples indeed.

32. And [q] ye ſhall (farther) know the truth, and the truth ſhall make you free (from the yoke of bondage to ſin, ver. 34. and corruption.)

33. They anſwered him, We be Abrahams ſeed, and [r] were never in bondage to any man; how (then) ſayſt thou, Ye ſhall be made free?

34. Jeſus anſwered them, Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, whoſoever [s] committeth ſin is the ſervant of ſin, (and ſhall receive the wages of it, which is death; and from this ſervitude, faith in me, and obedience to my word, will ſet you free.)

35. And (as) the ſervant abideth not in the houſe for ever, (ſo ſhall it be with the ſervants of ſin, who are to be caſt out into utter darkneſs;) but the Son (i. e. he that is the Son of God) abideth ever.

36. If the Son therefore ſhall make you free, (by giving you power to become the ſons of God, through faith in him, and ſo co-heirs with Chriſt, Rom. 8. 17.) ye ſhall be free indeed, (ſo as never to loſe your freedom.)

37. I know that ye are Abrahams ſeed (according to the fleſh;) but (now) ye ſeek to kill me, becauſe [t] my word hath no place in you, (finds no reception with you; which ſhews, you are not the children of Abraham by faith, but of another father.)

38. I ſpeak that which I have [u] ſeen with (i. e. been taught by) my Father, and ye do that which ye have ſeen with (i. e. been taught by) your father.

39. They anſwered and ſaid unto him, Abraham is our father: Jeſus ſaith unto them, If [w] ye were Abrahams children (in the diſpoſition of your ſpirits,) ye would do the works of Abraham:

40 But now ye ſeek to kill me, (becauſe I am) a man that have told you the truth, which I have heard from God; this did not Abraham, (who was ſo celebrated for his faith in God's revelations, and humanity to his ſervants.)

41. Ye do the deeds of (him who is indeed) your father: then ſaid they unto him, We be not born of [x] fornication, (i. e. we are no worſhippers of idols;) we have one Father, even (the true) God.

42. Jeſus ſaith unto them, If God were your Father, ye would love me; [y] for I proceeded forth and came from God (into the world;) neither came I of myſelf, but he ſent me.

43. Why do ye not underſtand (this from) my ſpeech? even becauſe [z] ye cannot (endure to) hear my word, (as being that which is contrary to your luſts.)

44. Ye are of your [a a] father the devil, (as being like him in temper of mind;) and (therefore) the luſts of (this) your father ye will do: he was a murderer from the beginning (of the creation), and abode not in the truth, becauſe there is no (affection to) truth in him: when he ſpeaketh a lie, he ſpeaketh of his own, (i. e. that which is agreeable to him,) for he is a [b b] liar, and the father (the author and firſt exemplar) of it; (and ſemblably the like murderous diſpoſitions in you, make you ſeek to kill me, and the like hatred to truth renders you ſo averſe from receiving my word.)

author

45. And becauſe I tell you the truth, ye believe me not.

46. Which of you [cc] convinceth me of ſin, (in ſaying, I ſpeak that doctrine which I have received from him who is true? ver. 14.) and if I ſay the truth, why do ye not believe me?

47. [dd] He that is of God, heareth Gods words; ye therefore hear, (i. e. receive) them not, becauſe ye are not of God.

48. Then anſwered the Jews, and ſaid unto him, Say we not well, (and with good reaſon,) that thou art a Samaritan, (an enemy to our religion,) and haſt a devil, (i. e. a lying Spirit in thee, when thou ſayſt, The children of Abraham are not the children of God, but of the devil?)

49. Jeſus anſwered, I have not a devil; but I honour my Father, (by aſcribing all I ſay and do, not to myſelf, but to him,) and ye diſhonour me, (in ſpeaking thus reproachfully of me.)

50. And I ſeek not mine own glory (in what I ſay or do;) there is one that ſeeketh (my honour,) and judgeth (of theſe reproaches which you caſt upon me.)

51. Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, If a man keep my ſaying, he ſhall [ee] never ſee death (eternal.)

52. Then ſaid the Jews unto him, Now we know that thou haſt a devil, (i. e. a lying ſpirit in thee: for) Abraham is dead, and the prophets (are dead;) and thou ſayſt, If a man keep my ſaying, he ſhall never taſte of death.

53. [ff] Art thou greater than our father Abraham who is dead, and the prophets (who) are (alſo) dead? whom makeſt thou thyſelf?

54. Jeſus anſwered, If I honour my ſelf (by pretending to be greater than indeed I am, or a prophet ſent from God when I am not ſo,) my honour is nothing (worth; but) it is my Father that honoureth me, (by giving teſtimony to the truth of what I ſay, even he) of whom ye ſay, that he is your God.

55. Yet (though you call him ſo,) ye have not (truly) known him, but I know him; and if I ſhould ſay, I know him not, I ſhould be a liar, like to you; but I know him, and keep his ſayings.

56. Your father [gg] Abraham rejoiced, (vehemently wiſhed) to ſee my day, (the coming of the Meſſiah;) and [hh] he ſaw it (afar off by the eye of faith,) and was glad.

57. Then ſaid the Jews unto him, Thou art not yet [ii] fifty years old, and haſt thou ſeen Abraham?

58. Jeſus ſaid unto them, Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, [kk] Before Abraham was I am, (as being the Word which was in the beginning, chap. 1. 1.)

59. Then took they up ſtones to caſt at him; but Jeſus hid himſelf (in the croud,) and (ſo) went out of the temple, going through the midſt of them (unſeen,) and ſo paſſed by (untouched by his enemies.)

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. VIII.

Ver 5. [a] NOW Moſes in the law commanded, that ſuch ſhould be ſtoned.] If ſhe who was taken in adultery was a married woman, the law required ſhe ſhould be put to death, Lev. 20. 10. Deut. 22. 22. that is, ſay all the Jews, that ſhe ſhould be ſtrangled; but if ſhe were only a damſel eſpouſed, the law ſaith, ſhe ſhall be ſtoned, Deut. 22. 23. whence interpreters conclude, this adultereſs was only eſpouſed. Seld. de ux. Heb. l. 3. c. 11.

Ver. 7 [b] He that is without ſin among you, let him caſt the firſt ſtone at her.] Chriſt ſpeaks here, not to the magiſtrate, who muſt do his office, though he himſelf ſhould not be innocent, but to the accuſers of this woman before him, to whom it belonged not to paſs ſentence on her. Moreover, the Jews ſay, the woman was not to be accuſed of her husband, nor to be tried by the waters of jealouſy, if the husband was guilty of the ſame crime. Chriſt therefore might ſpeak thus to him in the firſt place, Let him who is to accuſe her, and to begin the execution, if he be free from the like ſin, caſt the firſt ſtone at her. Nor is it to be wondered, that all her accuſers, having heard this, ſhould depart from her, being convinced by their own conſciences of like guilt, ſeeing that was an adulterous generation, Matth. 12. 39. and the Jews own, that the adulterous did multiply under the ſecond temple. And St Paul ſpeaks thus, even to the doctors of the Jews, Thou that ſayſt, A man ſhould not commit adultery, doſt thou commit adultery? Rom. 2. 22. See the note there. And laſtly, Juſtin M. ſaith, that Trypho, and other Jews, complied with the ſentiments of their Rabbins, who permitted them τεσσαρες ἡ πεντε γυναικας ἑκαστον, to have every one four or five wives, and ſaid, ſaid, they ſinned not, if, after the example of the patriarchs, ſeeing a beautiful woman, they deſired her, and ſo taught them to commit adultery. Dial. p. 363, 364.

Ver. 9. [c] The woman was left alone,] i. e. without any of her accuſers; for ſhe ſtood ſtill in the midſt of the people, ſaith the text, and the apoſtles were then with their Lord.

I come now to vindicate the truth and ſincerity of this hiſtory from the cenſures of the critics who ſuſpect it. And,

1. It appears from the teſtimony of St (a) Jerom, that this hiſtory was found in multis & Græcis & Latinis codicibus, in many Greek and Latin copies of the goſpel of St John, and therefore was wanting but in few of them. The (b) apoſtolical conſtitutions acknowledge it, ſaying, That Chriſt ſaid to the woman brought before him by the elders, Go thy way, οὐδὲ ἐγώ σε κατακρίνω, neither do I condemn thee. The Greek code, cited by Cotelerius, ſaith, Theſe words are not to be found in ſome manuſcripts, nor in Apollinares, ἐν δὲ τοῖς ἀρχαίοις ὅλα κεῖται, but they are intire in the antient manuſcripts, and that all the apoſtles made mention of them in the conſtitutions they ſet forth for the edification of the church. Athanaſius ſpeaks plainly of it, ſaying, ἐνταῦθα τὰ περὶ τῆς καταδικασθείσης ἐπὶ μοιχείᾳ, hither muſt we refer what is ſpoken of the woman accuſed of adultery. St (c) Ambroſe ſaith, The queſtion and abſolution of the woman, which in the goſpel of St John was brought to Chriſt, was always famous in the church. And St Auſtin ſpeaks often of it, and ſaith, They are enemies to the faith who take theſe words out of the books, perhaps fearing leſt it give impunity to the women. And Proſper owns it. Moreover, all the verſions in the Polyglot own this hiſtory. It was found in the ſixteen MSS. of Stephanus, in the ſeventeen MSS. of Beza, ſave one. Nor is it to be doubted, ſaith Selden, that it was received from primitive antiquity in the copies of the Eaſt, as appears from the Harmonies of Tatian and Ammonius of Alexandria, and the canons thence made. Now this Tatian flouriſhed A. D. 160, that is, ſixty years after the death of St John, and made his Harmonies of the goſpels out of the copies then in uſe: Ammonius flouriſhed about the year 230, and did the ſame; and Euſebius of Cæſarea, who flouriſhed about the year 320, made his ten canons out of thoſe Harmonies. Whence it may eaſily be diſcerned what is contained in all the goſpels, what in three, what in two, and what in one only: now the number eighty ſix in the canon belonging to St John contains this hiſtory; whence we may certainly conclude, that it was in his codex.

That it was wanting in ſome few Greek copies is not to be wondered, if we conſider that the ſentence of many of the antients was ſo ſevere, that they would not admit adulterers or adultereſſes into the church after the longeſt penance, and thought τὸν ἐπὶ μοιχείᾳ λέγοντα ὡς ἀποκτεῖναι δεῖν, κακὸν οὐκ ἐφάδειν, that it was no hurt to kill them; for men of theſe ſevere opinions might be unwilling to admit this hiſtory, as St Auſtin ſaith, quaſi permiſſionem peccandi tribuerit, as thinking it gave a permiſſion to this ſin, by ſaying, Neither do I condemn thee. The hiſtory which (d) Papias mentions of a woman ἐπὶ πολλαῖς ἁμαρτίαις διαβληθεῖσαν ἐπὶ τῷ Κυρίῳ, accuſed of many ſins before our Lord, or rather by him, ſeems not to be this, but rather that of the woman of Samaria, this being accuſed but of one, ſhe of many ſuch ſins; and ſo no inference can be thence made for or againſt the truth of this hiſtory. See F. Simon crit. hiſt. l. 1. c. 13. and Dr Mills in locum.

Ver. 12. [d] I am the Light of the world.] The Jews ſaid this of the firſt Adam. See Bux. lex Talm. p. 1321. This Chriſt applies to himſelf the ſecond Adam.

Ver 15. [f] Ὑμεῖς κατὰ τὴν σάρκα κρίνετε, &c. You judge according to the fleſh, I judge no man.] Κρίνω is here put for κατακρίνω, as John 3. 17.—12. 47. Rom 2. 1.—3. 4.—14. 3, 4, 10, 13. 1 Cor. 11. 29, 34. Ver. 24. [i] If ye believe not,—ye ſhall die in your ſins,] as wanting that faith in me which can alone procure the pardon of them.

Ver. 25. Ver. 26. [l] I have many things to ſay, and to judge of you ;] i. e. You ſay and judge many things of me, which from my words and deeds will appear to be falſe; but I have many things to ſay of you, what you are as to your manners, and what you will be through the juſt judgment of God, which, though you will not believe, will be found true, for he that ſent me to ſay them is true.

Ver. 27. Ver. 28. [n] Then ſhall ye know that I am he ;] i. e. Then ſhall you have ſuch teſtimonies, by the effuſion of the Holy Ghoſt upon my diſciples, as ſhall be ſufficient to convince you, and ſhall prevail upon many to believe, that I am the Chriſt.

Ver. 29. [o] And he that ſent me is with me.] Yea, ſaith Stegman, that one God, who is the Father, is in me: and why then doth he deny Chriſt to be God? It follows, for I do all thoſe things which pleaſe him. See here the true way to have God always graciouſly preſent with us.

Ver. 31. [p] If ye continue in my word, then are ye my diſciples indeed ;] i. e. ſuch diſciples to whom I ſhall ſtill more make known my doctrine, and on whom I ſhall confer the life eternal promiſed to them, Matth. 24. 13. Heb. 10. 35, 36. 2 John 8. Rev. 2. 10.

Ver. 32. [q] And ye ſhall know the truth.] Chriſt thought no general council, no infallible judge neceſſary to the knowledge of the truth, but promiſeth this to him, who was ſtedfaſt in the faith, and honeſtly diſpoſed to do what he knew to be his duty.

Ver. 33. [r] We never were in bondage, οὐδενὶ δεδουλεύκαμεν, we never were ſervants to any man] What! were they not brought out of the land of bondage? does not Nehemiah confeſs, Behold, Σήμερον ἡμεῖς δοῦλοι, we are ſervants this day? and muſt they not have been then in bondage to the Egyptians and Babylonians? or if they ſpeak of their own age, were they not tributaries to the Romans? and did they not ſtill clamour againſt this tribute, as a ſign of ſervitude? See note on 1 Tim. 6. 2. and James 4. 3. Though therefore they were under the Romans, not as ſervants, but as tributaries, yet ſince they thought, ſaith (f) Joſephus, the payment of this tribute did δουλείαν ἐπάγειν, bring them into ſervitude, they ſeem not well conſiſtent with themſelves, in ſaying, they never were ſervants to any.

Ver. 34. [s] Πᾶς ὁ ποιῶν τὴν ἁμαρτίαν, Every one that committeth ſin is the ſervant of ſin.] That ποιεῖν ἁμαρτίαν is to live and go on in any courſe of ſin, though our reaſon may condemn, and conſcience boggle at it, ſee note on 1 John 3. 9. He that doth this, ſaith Chriſt, is a ſervant of ſin, and in bondage to it; for when we thus obey ſin in the luſtings of it, then doth it κυριεύειν, lord it over us, and we become δοῦλοι εἰς ὑπακοήν, ſervants to obey it, Rom. 6. 14, 16. and of what a man is overcome, of that is he brought in bondage; and this the very (g) Heathens ſaw, that the man that was forced to cry out through the law of his members warring againſt the law of his mind, that he did not the good that he would, but the evil that he would not, had loſt his freedom, and was under ſervitude, becauſe he could not do as he would, but ſinned, though he was not willing ſo to do. See Examen Millii here.

Ver. 38. [u] I ſpeak what I have ſeen, ver. 40. what I have heard of my Father;] i. e. what I have learned of my Father abiding in me; for we learn by hearing and ſeeing.

Ver. 39. [w] If ye were Abraham's ſeed, ye would do the works of Abraham.] Chriſt owns they were Abraham's ſeed according to the fleſh, ver. 37. and therefore only denies them to be ſo as to their manners, or that reſemblance with the works of Abraham which would make God own them as his children, viz. his ſteady faith, Rom. 4. 16. and ready obedience, Heb. 11. 8, 17. by which alone they could obtain the bleſſing of Abraham, Gal. 3. 9, 14.

Ver. 41. [x] We are not born ἐκ πορνείας, of fornication; we have one Father, even God.] The prophets repreſenting the idolaters among the Jews as fornicators, and their worſhiping other gods as their going a whoring from their own God, Lev. 17. 7. Ezek. 23. 30. Hoſea 4. 12.—9. 1. when they had brought themſelves off from that ſin, they repreſented the idolatry of others under that name. So that their very treatiſes of idolatry bore the name of זנות (h) treatiſes of whores or whoredom; and the book of Wiſdom ſaith, The invention of images was ἀρχὴ πορνείας, the beginning of whoredom, or idolatry, chap. 14. 12. Hence (i) Philo ſaith, They who introduce many gods differ nothing τῶν ἐκ τῆς πόρνης ἀποκυηθέντων, from thoſe that are born of whoredom, and ſo are to be driven from the congregation, the law ſaying, ὁ ἐκ πόρνης, a baſtard ſhall not enter into the congregation of the Lord, but they who have the knowledge of God ὑπὸ τοῦ Θεοῦ πεφυτευμένοι δικαίως, are fitly ſtiled the ſons of God. And again, The law, ſaith he (k), expels both Atheiſt and Polytheiſt from the congregation, the firſt as barren, the ſecond as born of whoredom; ἀθέῳ μὲν γὰρ ὁ ἄγονος, πολυθέῳ δὲ ὁ ἐκ πόρνης. And hence the Jews here, being free from idolatry, ſay, they were not born of whoredom, but were the children of God, as worſhipping one God only, and thinking that on this account God would not impute to them their other ſins; ſee note on James 2. 19. but againſt this Chriſt here declares, they only are to be owned as the children of God who do the works of God.

Ver. 42. [y] I proceeded forth ἐξῆλθον and came from God,] into the world, being ſent by him, and not coming of myſelf. Others are ſaid to be ἐκ τοῦ Θεοῦ, of God, even all that hear his word, ver. 47. and the prophets are ſtiled men of God in the Old Teſtament, and his miniſters in the New, 1 Tim. 6. 11. 2 Tim. 3. 17. but though Moſes, the prophets and apoſtles, were ſent of God into the world, it is ſaid of none of them that they did ἐκ τοῦ Θεοῦ ἐξελθεῖν, come forth from God; this therefore muſt import ſomething peculiar to Chriſt: it therefore either muſt reſpect the Socinian gloſs of Chriſt's aſcent into heaven, to be inſtructed in his prophetic office, and his deſcent again from thence; which gloſs I have confuted, note on chap. 3. 13. or the Jews opinion, that the ſoul of the Meſſiah was created at the beginning of the world, and ſo came down from heaven to animate his body, which the Socinians, who deny that Chriſt had any exiſtence before he was born of the virgin, cannot approve of; or it muſt import his divine ἐξέλευσις, or original from the Father by the communication of his eſſence, or the union of the divine λόγος to the human nature, which we aſſert. See the note on chap. 13. 3.

Ver. 43. [a] Becauſe οὐ δύνασθε ἀκούειν, ye cannot hear my word;] that is, Men of your tempers cannot yield obedience to it. See the fifth import of the phraſe μὴ δύνασθαι, note on Mark 2. 19. This doubtleſs was the great ſin of the Jews, and ſo they wanted not either natural power, or aſſiſtance neceſſary on God's part, to do this, but only a moral power, or a mind well diſpoſed to obey his words.

Ver. 44. [aa] Ye are of your father the devil;] i. e. by reſembling him in your actions; for as he is a ſon of Abraham who does the works of Abraham, ver. 39. ſo is he a child of the devil who doth his works, 1 John 3. 8, 10. not only out of ignorance and human frailty, but from choice and affection to, or good liking of them. He was a murderer from the beginning, i. e. as ſoon as man was created; for through the envy of the devil death entered into the world, Wiſd. 2. 24. and ſo came upon all men, Rom. 5. 12. you by ſeeking my death, in this reſemble him: he abode not in the truth, but ſeduced Eve by a lie; you in like manner therefore believe me not, becauſe I tell you the truth, ver. 45. which ſhews you have hearts alien from the truth, but well affected to falſhood, as it is with him. Oh how tremendous a thing is it to have the devil for our father! How careful therefore ſhould we be to avoid thoſe things which will ſubject us to this vile relation? viz. murder, lying, hatred of the truth here, envy, and enmity to others, Matth. 13. 29. bitter zeal and ſtrife in the heart, James 3. 14, 15. pride, 1 Tim. 3. 16. every cuſtomary ſin, 1 John 3. 8.

Ibid. [bb] For he is a liar, καὶ ὁ πατὴρ αὐτοῦ, and the father of it.] Some of the fathers conſtruing theſe these words, and the father of him, hence gathered that the devil had a father, and was the son of some superior evil spirit; this being the sentiment, not only of the Cassani and Archontici, who held that the God of the Jews was the father of the devil, as St (l) Austin saith, but also of the orthodox, as St (m) Jerom testifies; and (n) Origen leaves it as a thing doubtful; whereas αὐτῷ here plainly refers to ὁ ψεύδης, latent in the words ψεύστης ἐστὶ, of which see examples in Casaub. exercit. 15. ad Annal. Bar. c. 12. p. 394.

Ver. 46. [cc] Which of you convinceth me of sin?] In a false prophet, some marks to discern him may easily be found, viz. his thirst after honour and applause, covetousness or falshood; what of this nature do you see in me, that you do not believe me?

Ver. 47. [dd] He that is of God;] i. e. who resembles him in holiness and goodness, and is disposed to do his will, is ready to receive the doctrine that comes from him; and it is an evidence that you do not thus resemble him, nor bear a filial affection to him, that you receive not his words.

Ver. 51. [ee] Shall not see death εἰς αἰῶνα, for ever;] but shall after death obtain that life by which death shall be swallowed up in victory, 1 Cor. 15. 54. 2 Cor. 5. 4. so Christ expounds himself, chap. 6. 58.

Ver. 53. [ff] Art thou greater than our father Abraham who is dead,] as by this promise thou pretendest to be? for who can promise others shall never die, but he who is himself to live for ever? See here Examen Millii.

Ver. 56. [gg] Your father Abraham rejoiced (or vehemently wished) to see my day;] i. e. to know the time when by my coming into the world the promise made to him, that in his seed should all the nations of the earth be blessed, was to be fulfilled. Thus the days of Noah and Lot are the times in which they lived, Luke 17. 26. and the days of the Baptist is the time when he appeared, Matth. 11. 12. Christ therefore here affirms of Abraham, what he had said of others, Luke 10. 24 that many prophets and kings desired to see the things which ye see, viz. Christ come into the world.

Ibid. [hh] And he saw it,] viz. by the eye of faith, as a thing then afar off, to be accomplished in future ages; for of this salvation the prophets enquired diligently, searching of what time the Spirit which was in them spake, when it testified of the sufferings of Christ, and the glories that should follow them, to whom it was revealed, that not to themselves, but to us, they did minister these things, &c. 1 Pet. 1. 10, 11, 12.

Ver. 57. [ii] Thou art not yet fifty years old.] There is no cause to wonder why the Jews, who were not sollicitous about the age of Christ, should speak thus of one whose gravity, wisdom and countenance might perhaps cause them to think him older than truly he was. It was more to be admired that Irenæus should plead apostolical tradition for this Jewish error, especially when we consider that many of the fathers, viz Clemens of Alexandria, Strom. l. 1 p. 340. A. Tertullian, adv. Judæos, c. 8. Julius Africanus, apud Hieron. comment. in Daniel. 9. Lactantius, l. 4. c. 10. Orosius, l. 7. c. 10. and divers others, held that our Lord preached but one year, and suffered in the 15th of Tiberius, and the 30th year of his age. Moreover, all Christians agree that our Lord suffered under Pontius Pilate; now he was deposed by Tiberius in the last year of his reign, saith Josephus, which demonstrates, that our Lord's sufferings must be past in the 37th year of his age. See the note on Luke 3. 23.

Ver. 58. [kk] Before Abraham was, I am.] This the Socinians interpret thus, Before Abraham is made the father of many nations, I am the Messiah: for, say they, πρὶν γένεσθαι doth not signify, before he was, but, before he was made, as it doth, chap. 13. 19. chap. 14. 29. And, 2. Those words ἐγὼ εἰμὶ is, Matth. 24. 5. I am the Christ, or the Messiah, as Mark 14. 62. Luke 21. 8. ἐγὼ εἰμὶ is, Matth. 24. 5. I am the Christ. So the phrase signifies, say they, here, ver. 24, 28. and chap. 13. 19 But against this strained exposition let it be considered,

1*st*, That the whole series of the discourse shews that the opposition is here put, not betwixt Abraham's being the father of all nations and Christ's being the Messiah, but between τὸ γενέσθαι, the birth of Abraham, and τὸ εἶναι, the being of Christ. Moreover, the word Abraham, so frequent in the holy scripture, doth always signify his person, and is never elsewhere used in this mystical sense, in which it imports not his person, but his privilege, or rather the completion of a promise made to him; it being therefore evident that the discourse from ver. 56. is of Abraham's person, it is incongruous here to introduce a mystical sense of the word, which the Jews never thought of, and which had Chriſt intended, he, in all likelihood, would have ſaid πρὶν Ἀϐρὰμ γένεσθαι Ἀϐρααμ, i. e. before the reaſon of his new name be accompliſhed. In confirmation of this argument, let it be noted, that the word γίνεσθαι ſignifies as well to be, as to be made. It ſignifies to be, Matth. 5. 45. John 1. 6. ἐγένετο, there was a man named John, and ver. 30. ἔμπροσθέν μου γέγονε, he was before me, chap. 20. 27. Acts 7. 38.—13. 5. and when it is uſed of perſons in the ſenſe of fieri, to be made, it ſignifies to be born, produced, or generated; and ſo here, before Abraham was made, muſt be the ſame as before he was born. The places cited by the Socinians are doubly impertinent, viz. John 3. 19.—14. 29. 1. Becauſe πρὶν γένεσθαι is, before they are; and, 2. Becauſe they ſpeak not of perſons, but only of things which were to happen afterwards.

2*dly*, Chriſt, in theſe words, anſwers the objection of the Jews, that he being not yet fifty years old, could not have ſeen Abraham. Now, according to our interpretation, he anſwers it fully, by ſaying he was the eternal Logos, chap. 1. 1. or the perſon that ſaid to Moſes, I am, Exod. 3. 14. whereas, according to the Socinian comment, his anſwer is nothing to the purpoſe, and was no more true of him than it was of all that heard him, that they were before Abraham, they being all before he was made the Father of all nations: who therefore can believe our Saviour would, upon this occaſion, put them off with ſuch a piece of ſophiſtry? For as Novatian argues, either Chriſt lied, and put a cheat upon them, if being from Abraham, he was not before him, or, he was before him, being the God of Abraham, De Trin. c. 23. To this Stegmannus anſwers, That this is no abſurdity, it being uſual with Chriſt to anſwer nothing directly to the objection of the Jews, to which effect he cites John 7. 20, 21.—12. 23, 25. —14. 23. Luke 13. 23, 24. but very fallaciouſly: for, John 12. 23, 25. there is neither queſtion nor objection; Luke 13. 23, 24. there is a curious queſtion, but no objection; John 14. 23. Chriſt ſpeaks not to the Jews, but to his own diſciples; and John 7. 20. Chriſt anſwers to the queſtion ſufficiently, by ſaying, ver. 23. ἐμοὶ χολᾶτε, are ye full of choler or rage againſt me? and the people more directly, ver. 25. which made it the leſs neceſſary for him ſo to do. Let Stegman ſhew, if he can, when Chriſt anſwers, in this impertinent and illuſive manner, to the Jews carping at his words as being falſe, and impoſſible to be true, with ſuch an aſſeveration, Verily, verily, I ſay unto you.

3*dly*, Had this only been Chriſt's meaning, why do the Jews take up ſtones to puniſh him as a blaſphemer, there being not the leaſt ſemblance of blaſphemy in the words taken in this ſenſe? They may do it, ſaith Stegman, becauſe he profeſſed himſelf the Meſſiah; for as blaſphemers, ſo alſo falſe prophets were to be ſlain. But as they never did attempt to ſlay, or to accuſe him upon this account, though he ſtill owned himſelf a prophet ſent from God to them, ſo they themſelves teſtify they ſtoned or attempted to ſtone him for this blaſphemy, that being a man, he made himſelf God, chap. 10. 33.

4*thly*, I ask, whether our Saviour was willing to be underſtood by the Jews, or not? If not, why did he uſe this ſolemn preface, Verily, verily, I ſay unto you? If he would be underſtood, why did he ſpeak unto them in that language in which they neither did nor could underſtand him? For how could they imagine the word Abraham was to be underſtood in ſuch a ſenſe in which they never knew it uſed? In a word, this interpretation is contrary to all antiquity, as their expoſitions in theſe caſes uſe to be; for even the Antenicene fathers proved that Chriſt was God perfect from the beginning, and no new God, from theſe words. So Iren. l. 4. c. 27. Orig. contr. Celſum, l. 8. p. 386. Tertul. adv. Prax. cap. 22. p. 513. Novatian, cap. 23.

As for the phraſe ἐγὼ εἰμι, I am, let it be noted, that in the other evangeliſts it is only uſed to ſignify what the falſe Chriſts would ſay, and ſo can have no other import than I am the Chriſt; but in this goſpel it ſeems to ſignify, I am the Son of God; for he that ſaith, I am, ver. 24, 28. is he who had God for his Father, ver. 19. and was ἐκ τῶν ἄνω, from above, ver. 23. and chap. 13. 19. he that calls them to believe, I am, is he who came from the Father, ver. 1. and was their Lord, v. 13. and was going to the Father, ver. 3. Now the rulers of the Jews ſtill accuſed Chriſt of blaſphemy, and condemned him upon this account, Matth. 26. 65. Luke 22. 70, 71. Thus therefore Chriſt might ſay, I am, and yet be God of God.

2*dly*, Others anſwer, with Grotius, That Chriſt here only ſignifies, that he was before Abraham in the decree of God; but, 1. Chriſt anſwers to the objection of the Jews, which had no reſpect to the priority of theſe two perſons in the decree of God, but as to actual exiſtence. 2. In this ſenſe even Judas, and all the murderers of our Lord, might be before Abraham had a being. And, laſtly, The arguments produced againſt the former anſwer conclude as ſtrongly againſt this. See Placaus, argument. 11. a ſect. viceſim. prim. ad finem.

CHAP. IX.

1. AND as Jesus passed by (them, chap. 8. 59.) he saw a man which was blind from his birth.

2. And his disciples asked him, saying, Master, (diseases and imperfections in the body being the fruit of sin,) [a] who did sin, this man (in the womb, or in some other body,) or his parents (at the time of his conception, so as to be the occasion) that he was born blind?

3. Jesus answered, Neither hath this man sinned, nor his parents, (so as to cause this blindness in the child;) but (the Divine Wisdom hath permitted this to be so,) that the (miraculous) [b] works of God should be made manifest in (the cure of) him.

4. (And having received power from him to do these mighty works,) [c] I must work the works of him that sent me while it is day, (i. e. while my time lasts; for) the night (my passion) cometh (shortly,) when no man can work.

5. [d] As long as I am in the world, I am (to be) the light of the world, (by giving light to the blind, and the light of the gospel to them that sit in darkness.)

6. (And) when he had thus spoken, he [e] spat on the ground, and made clay of the spittle, and he anointed the eyes of the blind man with the clay;

7. And said to him, [f] Go wash in the pool of Siloam, which is by interpretation, Sent, (and so may put you in mind of him who is sent to give light unto the blind, see note on chap. 5. 3.) He went his way therefore (thither,) and washed, and came (back) seeing.

8. The neighbours therefore, and they that before had seen him, that he was blind, said, Is not this he that (before) sat [g] and begged?

9. Some said, This is he; others said, He is like him: but he (himself) said, I am he.

10. Therefore said they unto him, How were thine eyes (then) opened?

11. He answered and said, A [h] man that is called Jesus made clay, and anointed mine eyes, and said to me, Go to the pool of Siloam, and wash; and (accordingly) I went and washed, and I received (my) sight.

12. Then said they unto him, Where is he? He said, I know not.

13. They brought to the [i] Pharisees him that aforetime was blind.

14. And it was the sabbath day when Jesus made the clay (mixed with spittle,) and (by it) opened his eyes.

15. Then again the Pharisees also asked him how he had received his sight. He said unto them, He put clay upon my eyes, and I washed, and do see.

16 Therefore said some of the Pharisees, [k] This man is not of God, because he keepeth not the sabbath day; others said, How can a man that is a sinner, (not only by violating the rest of the sabbath, but also pretending to be of God when he is not,) do such miracles? And there was a division among them (about him.)

17. They say unto the blind man again, What sayst thou of him, that he hath opened thine eyes? He said, He is a prophet.

18. But the (Pharisees among the) Jews did not believe concerning him, that he had been blind, and received his sight, until they called the parents of him that had received his sight;

19. And they asked them, saying, Is this your son, who ye say was born blind? (if so) how then doth he see?

20. His parents answered them, and said, We know that this is our son, and that he was born blind;

21. But by [l] what means he now seeth, we know not; or who hath opened his eyes, we know not; he is of age, ask him, he shall (will) speak for (Gr. concerning) himself.

22. These words spake his parents, because they feared the (rulers of the) Jews; for the Jews had agreed already, that if any man did confess that he was (the) Christ, he should be [m] put out of the synagogue.

23. Therefore said his parents, He is of age, ask him; (this cure being such, that to affirm that Jesus had done it, was in effect to own him as that prophet of whom Isaias had foretold, that he should open the eyes of the blind. See the note on Matth. 11. 5.)

24. Then again called they the man that was blind, and said unto him, Give God the praise (of this cure; for) we know that this man is a sinner, (i. e. a false prophet, ver. 16.)

25. He answered and said, [n] Whether he be a sinner or no, I know not, (Gr. that he is a sinner I know not;) one thing I know, that whereas I was blind, now I see.

26. Then

26. Then ſaid they unto him again, What did he to thee? how opened he thine eyes?

27. He anſwered them, I have told you already, and ye did not hear, (i. e. believe me,) wherefore would you hear (it) again? will ye alſo be his diſciples?

28. Then reviled they him, ſaying, Thou art his diſciple; but we are Moſes his diſciples.

29. We know that God ſpake to Moſes: (but) as for this fellow, we know not whence he is.

30. The man anſwered and ſaid unto them, Why, herein is a marvellous thing, that ye know not whence he is, and yet he hath opened my eyes, (which is demonſtration that he acted by a power derived from God.)

31. Now we know [o] that God heareth not ſinners (uſurping his authority, or pretending falſly to come from him;) but if any man be a worſhipper of God, and doth his will, him he heareth.

32. Since the world began was it not heard that [p] any man opened the eyes of one that was born blind.

33. If this man [q] were not of God, he could do nothing (of this nature.)

34. They anſwered and ſaid unto him, Thou waſt altogether born in ſins, (being conceived by thy parents in their uncleanneſs,) and doſt thou teach us? And they caſt him out (of the court.)

35. Jeſus heard that they had caſt him out, and when he had found him, he ſaid to him, Doſt thou believe on the Son of God, (the Meſſiah ſent by him into the world to be the Saviour of it?)

36. He anſwered and ſaid, Who is he, Lord, that (knowing him) I might believe on him?

37 And Jeſus ſaid unto him, [r] Thou haſt both ſeen him, (or thou both ſeeſt him,) and it is he that talketh with thee, (i e. and heareſt him talking with thee.)

38. And he ſaid, Lord, I believe; and he worſhipped him.

39. And Jeſus ſaid, For (manifeſting the juſt) judgment (of God on men) I am come into this world, (viz.) that they [s] which ſee not, (i. e. that are rude and ſimple, and ſit in darkneſs, but are ready to own their own blindneſs, and come to the light,) might ſee; and that they who (think they) ſee (already, and therefore ſhut their eyes againſt any further light ſhining to them,) might be made blind, (might have this light taken from them, and ſo be left in darkneſs.)

40. And ſome of the Phariſees which were with him, heard theſe words, and ſaid unto him, Are we blind alſo (in thy opinion?)

41. Jeſus ſaith unto them, [t] If ye were blind, (i. e. unable to diſcern who I am; if ye had neither the law and prophets to direct you, nor the light ſhining in your eyes, which is the caſe of the Gentiles,) ye ſhould have no ſin (of infidelity:) but now ye ſay we ſee, (and arrogate to yourſelves the knowledge of the law and prophets, and are confident you are guides to the blind, Rom. 2. 19. and yet will not receive the light which ſhineth in your eyes;) therefore your ſin remaineth (inexcuſable.)

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. IX.

Ver. 2. [o] Τις ἥμαρτεν; Who hath ſinned, he or his parents? &c.] Here,

1*ſt*, It is certain that Chriſt's diſciples do not enquire whether this perſon was born blind for his original ſin, ſince in that all others, who were born ſeeing, equalled him in guilt; and yet they here ſuppoſe he might, and the Phariſees ſay poſitively, ver. 34. ἐν ἁμαρτίαις σὺ ἐγεννήθης ὅλος, thou waſt wholly born in ſins, when as yet they themſelves were equally guilty of original guilt. Both therefore muſt underſtand this of ſome perſonal and ſpecial ſin.

2*dly*, It is not hard to conceive what they might intend by the ſin of the parents, viz. the begetting him in their uncleanneſs, againſt the law, Levit. 20. 18. and (a) this was thought to have ſo ill an influence upon the child, as to render it obnoxious to leproſy, or mutilation, and ſo might be the cauſe of this perſon's blindneſs. Whence (b) Philo ſaith, that it was forbidden, that they might not produce ἀτελεῖς γονας, imperfect children. Note,

3*dly*, That the opinion of the Platoniſts and Pythagoreans concerning the tranſmigration of ſouls from one body to another, and being put according to their merit into better and worſe bodies, had obtained among the Jews, being perhaps derived from thoſe of Alexandria to their brethren in Judea. To this effect is that ſaying of the author of the Wiſdom of Solomon, that being good he came into a body undefiled, or free from any notable infirmity, chap 8. 20. (c) Joſephus ſaith, that this opinion firmly obtained among the Eſſenes, that ſouls were immortal, and that they deſcended from the pure air, Συμπλακεῖσαι ἐστὶν εἱρκταῖς τοῖς σώμασι, to be chained to bodies. And (d) Philo saith, the air was full of them, and that those which were nearest to the earth κάλλιστον ἐκδιδόασιν σώμασι θνητοῖς, descending to be tied to mortal bodies, (e) πάλιν δ' ἐρῶσαι αὐθις, return back to bodies, being desirous to live in them. And so the apostles may be supposed to enquire here whether our Lord allowed of any of those sentiments, that the soul of this man might be put into this imperfect body for the punishment of what it had done before, whether in or out of the body.

(a) Φάσι γὰρ τίνες ἐκ τῆς τοιαύτης συνουσίας καὶ λύσιν καὶ λύπαν ἀπογεννᾶσθαι τῷ πεπονθότι ἐκεῖνα τὰ διαπλαττόμενα πηρωτικὰ σώματα. Theodoret in Levit. qu. 21.

Ver. 3. [b] But that the works of God might be manifested in him;] i. e. Though God did not actively concur to render this man blind, yet in his wisdom he thought fit to leave this imperfection in the plastic matter unrectified, that he might shew his miraculous power in giving sight to such a one, his wisdom using this as a confirmation of Christ's doctrine, and his goodness in illuminating the soul and body of this man at once, and ministring this motive to others to believe.

Ver. 4. [c] I must work the works of him that sent me.] Here, saith Stegman, Christ speaking of those works, not as his works, nor simply as the works of God, but of him that sent him, shews that he did them by the command of another; whereas the true God can be subject to the command of none; and hence he concludes Christ is is not truly God. To this I answer, that Christ doth plainly call these works the works of God, ver. 3. and so declares that they were done by a divine power, which is inseparable from a divine essence. 2*dly*, Christ here speaks in the person of a prophet sent from God, which Christ was only by virtue of his human nature, and therefore could not here speak of himself as God. See the note on chap. 7. 16.

Ver. 5. [d] Whilst I am in the world, I am the light of the world.] It is usual with Christ, when he hath done his cures upon the body, to convert his speech to those spiritual things which were adumbrated by them, and for which cause they were done; so having given sight to this blind man, he stiles himself the light of the world, which he was by that evangelical doctrine which did illuminate the minds of men; and though at his departure from the world, he was no longer so by his bodily presence, and oral instructions, he still continued so to be by the irradiations of his holy Spirit, and by the doctrine of his apostles spread throughout the world. See chap. 1. 9.—8. 2.—12. 35, 36.

Ver. 6. [e] He spat upon the ground and made clay.] The fathers here say, that Christ, to illustrate his miraculous power, used that to anoint the blind man's eyes which was the greatest impediment to seeing, and most pernicious to the eyes, though the Jews thought spittle good for the eyes; as we now do. Christ bids him, thus anointed, go to the pool of Siloam, and wash, by this making trial of his faith, which, had it not produced in him obedience to this command, he had not been healed. Lastly, Christ does this on the sabbath-day, ver. 14. when by the canons of the Jews, saith Dr Lightfoot, it was not lawful to anoint the eyes with spittle, to arm his disciples against that pernicious doctrine of the Pharisees, that it was not lawful to do good, or perform works of mercy, on that day; and this he might the rather do, because he foresaw what danger this superstition might bring upon the believing Jews, when the days of vengeance came upon that nation; whence he exhorts them to pray that their flight might not be on the sabbath-day, Matth 24. 20.

Ver. 7. [f] Wash in the pool of Siloam, &c.] The spring of Siloam discharged itself into a double pool; the lower, which was called the pool of fleeces, Neh. 3. 15. and the upper, which was called שִׁלֹחַ the pool of Siloah, which properly signifies ἀπεσταλμένον, sent, the waters being, by the providence of God, sent from the bowels of the earth into it, and so might, by the very name, mind them of the Messiah, sent as the more special gift of God for the purification of the unclean, and to enlighten the blind, Isa. 35. 5. See the note on chap. 5. 3.

Ver. 8. Who sat and begged.] Here the form of begging among the Jews is observable, viz. וְכִי, deserve, or do thyself good by me; intimating, that by works of charity we do good as well to ourselves as to others.

Ver. 11. [h] A man that was called Jesus.] Had he not had some notice who he was, he would not have so readily obeyed his commands; now this knowledge of him he might have, either from his leader, or from Christ's disciples.

Ver. 13. [i] They bring him to the Pharisees;] i. e. to the council, chiefly consisting of that sect; whence, in this evangelist, the whole council passeth under the name of Pharisees, chap. 1. 24.—4. 1.—8. 3.—11. 46. This they might do, either from ill-will to Christ, or out of curiosity to know whether they would own the person who had done this signal miracle to be the very man of whom Isaias had prophesied, that he should open the eyes of the blind. And surely the providence of God so ordered this, that they might hear, from the mouth mouth of the blind man a teſtimony which would either convince them, or render their unbelief without excuſe.

Ver. 16. [k] This man is not of God, becauſe he keepeth not the ſabbath;] i. e. He is not ſent of God as a prophet; and yet they themſelves own, that a prophet might do and command things contrary to the reſt required by the ſabbath, and prove this from the example of Joſhua, who commanded, that the ark ſhould be carried round Jericho, the armed men going before and after it ſeven days, one of which muſt be a ſabbath, Joſh. 6. How then could that which prophets were by their own principles allowed to do, prove that Chriſt was no prophet; eſpecially if we conſider, that by theſe actions he did not indeed violate the reſt of the ſabbath, but only their corrupt traditions concerning it?

Ver. 21. [l] But how he now ſees, we know not.] Here his parents ſeem to be faulty, 1. In denying that which they had learned from their ſon, for fear of the Jews, ver. 22. 2. By their ingratitude to Chriſt, whoſe kindneſs to their ſon ought to have been thankfully owned and acknowledged by them.

Ver. 22. [m] Ἀποσυνάγωγος γένηται, ſhould be excluded from the ſynagogue;] i. e. ſhould ly under the ſentence of excommunication; either that called Niddai, which only ſeparated him four cubits from the ſociety of others, ſaith (f) Buxtorf, but left him free, ſaith (†) Lightfoot, at that diſtance, either to expound traditions, or to hear them expounded in the ſynagogue, but perhaps not free to join with them in their prayers, or giving of thanks, ſuch a one not being admitted to join with them in their thankſgivings at their table; or elſe it was that of Cherem, which excluded the excommunicated perſon from all entrance into the ſynagogue, this being, ſaith (g) Leo de Modena, forbidden to be excommunicated; and to this rather do thoſe words incline, ver. 34, 35. ἐξέβαλον αὐτὸν, they caſt him forth, i. e. out of the place of the ſynagogue, and ſo ἀποσυναγώγους γενέσθαι, they ſhall caſt you out of the ſynagogues, ſeems to import, chap. 16. 2. And hence the primitive excommunications of the Chriſtians excluded the criminal from the aſſembly, and from all communion in ſacred offices for a time, and only gradually admitted him to them.

Ver. 25. [n] Εἰ ἁμαρτωλὸς ἐστὶν οὐκ οἶδα.] Theſe words I have thus rendered, That he is a ſinner, I know not; and this the words following require, in which the blind man proves, by an unanſwerable argument, ver. 31. that Chriſt was not a ſinner. So εἰ doth often ſignify: ſo, do I not know εἰ Σόμεσν, that to day I am king over Iſrael? 2 Sam. 19. 22. 1 Kings 1. 51. let Solomon ſwear εἰ μὴ θανατώσει, that he will not kill his ſervant. See the notes on Acts 26. 8. 1 Tim. 5. 10.

Ver. 31. [o] God heareth not ſinners;] i. e. falſe prophets, who ſpeak from themſelves, and yet pretend to come from God; ſee ver. 16. and 24. for by ſo doing he would confirm their lies, and ſet his ſeal to their falſe doctrine.

Ver. 32. [p] That any man opened the eyes of one that was born blind.] They who loſe their ſight by a diſeaſe may be cured; but no man, no not Moſes, or any of the prophets, ever did or could, without the aſſiſtance of a Divine Power, give ſight to one born blind; whence even the Jews reckon this among the ſigns of the Meſſiah, that he ſhould open the eyes of the blind. Midraſh. in pſalm. 146. 8.

Ver. 33. [q] If this man were not of God, he could do nothing.] See here a blind man, and unlearned, judging more rightly of divine things than the whole learned council of the Phariſees; whence we learn, that we are not always to be led by the authority of councils, popes, or biſhops; and that it is not abſurd for lay-men ſometimes to vary from their opinions, theſe overſeers being ſometimes guilty of great overſights.

Ver. 37. [r] Καὶ ἑώρακας αὐτὸν καὶ.] Grammarians know, that when two καὶ's do thus come together, the firſt is to be rendered both. So c. 11. 48. καὶ ἀροῦσιν ἡμῶν καὶ τὸν τόπον καὶ τὸ ἔθνος, and take away both our place and nation. So c 12. 28. καὶ ἐδόξασα καὶ πάλιν δοξάσω. I have both glorified it, and will glorify it again. And that the Aoriſt is uſually put for the Preſent tenſe, ſee the note on chap. 20. 17. And ſo theſe words are well rendered thus, Thou both ſeeſt him, and he talketh with thee. So chap. 1. 36. ἕστηκεν, one ſtands in the midſt of you; chap. 5. 45. Moſes in whom ἠλπίκατε, ye truſt; chap. 11. 27. ἐγὼ πεπίστευκα, I believe thou art the Chriſt. See Luke 8. 20. Acts 1. 11.—12. 14. Rom. 5. 2. 1 Tim. 4. 10. et gloſſ. de verbo, l 3. tr. 3. can. 46.

Ver. 39. [s] Ἵνα βλέποντες τυφλοὶ γένωνται, For judgment, that they who ſee may be made blind.] Here the critics and ſome of the fathers note, that the conjunction ἵνα is not caſual, but only conſequential; as when Chriſt ſaith, I came not to ſend peace upon the earth, but a ſword, i. e. this will be the event and conſequence of my coming. So ἵνα is uſed here, ver. 2. Rom. 1. 20. 1 Cor. 11. 19. ſee note on chap. 12. 40. And when Chriſt here ſaith, I came that they who ſee not might ſee, he ſeems eſpecially to reſpect the Gentiles ſitting in darkneſs, &c. See additions, No. 20.

Ver. 41. [t] If ye were blind, ye would not have sin;] i. e. If out of the mere blindness and darkness of your minds ye did not own me as the Messiah, which is the case of the Gentiles, to whom no prophets were sent foretelling, no law promising him, no gospel preached revealing him to the world, you would have no sin of infidelity; for if I had not come and spoken to you, chap. 15. 22. yea, if I had not done among you the works which no other person did, ver. 24. ye had not had (this) sin, ver. 24. But now, you boasting in your knowledge of the law and the prophets, which have given such plain characters of me, and yet neither believing Moses nor the prophets speaking of me, John 5. 39, 40, 45, 46. and claiming to yourselves the judgment of discerning betwixt true and false prophets, and yet giving no credit to me, proving my mission from God by a croud of miracles done before your eyes, your unbelief remaineth inexcusable and unpardoned, John 15. 22. For if ye believe not that I am he, ye shall die in your sins, John 8. 21, 24.

CHAP. X.

1. VERILY, verily, I say unto you, [a] He that entereth not by the door into the sheepfold, (i. e. he who pretends to be a guide and ruler of God's church and people, and owns not the Messiah, nor hath commission from him so to do,) but climbeth up some other way (to get into it,) the same is a thief and a robber.

2. But he that entereth in by the door, is the (a true) shepherd of the sheep.

3. [b] To him (God) the porter (or great keeper of this sheepfold) openeth, (giving him his testimony and commission to feed his sheep,) and the sheep hear (and obey) his voice; and he calleth his own sheep by name, (hath an exact knowledge and care of them,) and leadeth them out (to their pastures.)

4. And when he putteth forth his own sheep (to pasture,) he goeth before them (after the manner of the Eastern shepherds,) and the sheep follow him; for they know his voice.

5. And a [c] stranger, (who hath no commission from God, nor teacheth his word,) will they not follow, but will flee from him; for they know (and approve) not the voice of strangers.

6. This parable spake Jesus unto them, (and in reproof of them, as blind guides, and not true shepherds, because they rejected him;) but they understood not what things they were which he spake unto them, (i. e. they understood not the true import of his words.)

7. Then said Jesus unto them again, Verily, verily, I say unto you, [d] I am the door, (as of the shepherds, ver. 1. so also) of the sheep.

8. [e] All that ever came before me (pretending to be the Prophet, or the Messiah promised to the Jews, or to instruct his people when God never sent them so to do,) are (to be accounted as) thieves and robbers; but the sheep, (who only know and are obedient to the voice of God,) did not hear them.

9. I am the door (of the sheep;) if any man enter in (to the sheepfold) by (faith in) me, he shall be saved (from the thief and wolf,) and shall go in and out, and find pasture.

10 The thief cometh not but for to steal and to kill, and to destroy; I am come that they (who are my sheep) might have [f] life, and that they might have it more abundantly, (Gr. and that they might have abundance of pasture, ver. 5.)

11. [g] I am the good Shepherd, (and act as) the good Shepherd, (who) giveth (or layeth down) his life for the sheep.

12. But he that is an [h] hireling, and not the shepherd, (but one) whose own the sheep are not, seeth the wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep, and fleeth (to secure himself;) and (so) the wolf catcheth (some of) them, and scattereth (the rest of) the sheep.

13. The hireling, (who regards his own safety and advantage, and not that of the sheep,) fleeth, because he is an hireling, and careth not for the sheep.

14. I am the good Shepherd, and [i] know (i. e. love) my sheep, and am known (i. e. beloved) of (those that are) mine.

15. As the Father knoweth me, even so know I the Father; and (out of love and obedience to him) I lay down my life for the sheep.

16. And [k] other sheep I have which are not of this fold, (i. e. the Gentiles;) them also I must bring (in to the fold,) and they shall hear my voice; and (so of Jew and Gentile) there shall be one fold, and one shepherd.

17. [l] Therefore doth my Father love me, because I lay down my life (for the sheep; and this I do, not that I might continue under the power of death, but) that I might take it again, (by a glorious resurrection.)

18. No man (by force) taketh it (away) from me (before the time,) but (then) [m] I lay it down of my self; I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again, (and rise from the dead;) this commandment, (i. e. commission of laying down my life for the sheep,) have I received of my Father.

19. There was a division therefore again among the Jews, because of these sayings, (which seemed to ascribe to him such power and relation to God as his Father, and spake of his death and the conversion of the Gentiles, which things the Jews could not well bear.)

20. And many of them said (with the Pharisees,) He hath a devil, and is mad, (i. e. he is possessed with a melancholy spirit, and a phrensy;) why hear ye him, (or attend to any thing he says?)

21. Others said, These are not (like) the words of him that hath a devil, (nor are his works such; for) can a devil open the eyes of the blind?

22. And it was at Jerusalem, (and [n] at) the feast of the dedication (of the altar, profaned by Antiochus, 1 Mac. 4. 59. 2 Mac. 10. 8.—that Christ spake this;) and it was winter, (that feast beginning to be celebrated the 25*th of Chisleu, which answers to part of our December.*)

23. And Jesus (then) walked in the temple, [o] in Solomons porch.

24. Then came the Jews round about him, and said unto him, How long dost thou make us to doubt? (Gr. hold us in suspense:) if thou be (indeed) the Christ, tell us plainly (that so it is.)

25. Jesus answered them, I (have already) told you, and ye believed not; [p] the works that I do in my Fathers name, they bear witness of me (that so I am.)

26. But (notwithstanding) ye believe not, (not through want of evidence of the truth, but) [q] because ye are not of my sheep, (i. e. of them who are disposed to attend to and obey my doctrine,) as I said unto you.

27. (For) my sheep hear my voice, and I know them (by this, that they obey,) and they follow me.

28. And (therefore) I give unto them eternal life, and they [r] shall never perish, neither shall any man (be able to) pluck them out of my hand.

29. My father who gave them me, is greater than all (their adversaries,) and no man is able to pluck them out of my Fathers hand.

30. (Now) [s] I and the Father are one, (the Father dwelling in me, and I in him, ver. 38.)

31. Then the Jews took up stones again to stone him, (as a blasphemer who made himself equal with God, as they had done before, John 8. 59.)

32. Jesus answered them, Many good works have I shewed (i. e. before) you from my Father; for which of these works do ye (go about to) stone me?

33. The Jews answered him, saying, For a good work we stone thee not, but for blasphemy; and (that is) because that thou being (only) a man, makest thyself (a) God.

34. Jesus answered them, [t] Is it not written in your law, (Psal. 82. 6.) I said, ye are gods?

35. If ye call them gods, to whom the word of God came, (Gr. was, i. e. who were God's prophets, as Moses and Samuel, and his judges, as Joshua and others, and had the assistance of his Spirit given them for the performance of those offices;) and the scripture cannot be broken, (Gr. dissolved, but what it saith must be true:)

36. Say ye of him whom the Father hath sanctified, (by the holy Ghost essentially dwelling in, or without measure imparted to him, John 3. 34.) and sent into the world, Thou blasphemest; because I (after this unction and commission to make known his will to you) said, I am the Son of God?

37. If I do not the works of my Father, believe me not (when I say, I and the Father are one, ver. 30.)

38. But if I do, though ye believe not me (on account of my own words,) believe (the testimony of) the works, that ye may know and believe that the Father is in me, and I in him, (and so am one with him.)

39. Therefore, (upon this repeated declaration that he was one with the Father,) they sought again to take (or lay hold on) him; but he (miraculously) escaped out of their hands;

40. And went away again beyond Jordan, to the place where John at first baptized; and there he abode.

41. And many resorted unto him, and said, John did no miracle (to confirm his sayings, as Jesus doth;) but all things that John spake of this man were true, (and so, if we believe John's testimony, we must own this person as the Son of God, and a much greater prophet than he was, John 1. 15.—3. 35.

42. And many believed on him there, (by reason of the testimony which John had given to him.)

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. X.

Ver. 1. [a] HE that entereth by the door into the sheep-fold, &c.] For the right understanding of this parable let it be noted,

1*st*, That Christ directs this parable against the Scribes and Pharisees to whom he spake, chap. 9. 40. as appears, (1.) From the pronoun ὑμῖν, which which begins this chapter thus, I say unto you. And, (2.) From these words, ver. 6. This parable spake Jesus unto them. They therefore must be the persons concerned in the contents of it. Note, therefore.

2*dly*, That these Pharisees took upon them to be guides and teachers of the people, whence by our Saviour they are represented as blind guides: they also held, that others were to receive authority to teach from their commission or ordination to that office; though we find not that they received any such authority from God, who rather had appointed the priests lips to preserve knowledge, and the people to seek the law at their mouths, Mal. 2. 4, 7. and those of the tribe of Levi, to teach his judgments to Jacob, and his law to Israel, Deut. 33. 10. even all the commandments which God had delivered by the hand of Moses, Lev. 10. 11. And hence Christ represents them as a plantation which his Father had not planted, Matth. 15. 13. bids his disciples beware of their doctrine, Matth. 16. 12. they teaching for doctrines of God the commandments of men, and making void the commandments of God by their traditions, Matth. 15. 6, 9. their voice therefore was such as the true sheep neither would nor ought to hear. Note,

3*dly*, That these Scribes and Pharisees believed not in Christ, John 7. 48. they neither would enter into the kingdom of God themselves, nor suffer others to enter into it, Luke 11. 52. and therefore are said to have taken away the key of knowledge. Christ therefore here pronouncing himself the door both of the shepherds, ver. 1. and of the sheep, ver. 6. by which they were to enter into the sheepfold, informs them, that now, that he the great Shepherd of the sheep was come, they who refused to own him, and to teach the sheep in his name, according to his doctrine, and by his authority, as his apostles and the Seventy did, had no true commission to instruct them; and that they who set up in opposition to him, to be the guides and teachers of the people, were not only blind, but false guides, and even thieves and robbers; the first, as taking away what belongs not to them; the second, as destroying the sheep.

Ver. 3. [b] To him (thus entering by the door,) the Porter (God the great Keeper of the sheepfold,) openeth,] as to one allowed by him to feed his sheep, and him the sheep hear and obey, teaching the doctrine of the gospel, and the kingdom of God to them, in the name and by the authority of the great Shepherd of the sheep. And when this Shepherd, by himself, or others acting in his name, and by his mission, leadeth forth his own sheep, he goes before them, after the manner of the Eastern shepherds, to preserve them from danger, and to conduct them into wholesome pastures, ver. 4. So did Christ and his shepherds, being τύποι, examples for the flock to follow, 1 Pet. 5. 3.

Ver. 5. [c] A stranger they will not follow.] And such are all they who do not teach them the doctrine of the gospel in Christ's name, and by his authority.

Ver. 7. [d] I am the door of the sheep.] Ver. 1, 2. he had represented himself as the door of the true shepherds; here he declares himself the door of the sheep also, shewing, that since his advent there is no entrance into the church or kingdom of God, but by faith in him, and embracing his doctrine.

Ver. 8. [e] All that ever came before me are thieves and robbers;] i. e. all that came under pretence of being their king, or their Messiah; as Theudas, not he who, saith (a) Josephus, was destroyed by Cuspius Fadus; for he appeared before Judas Gaulonites, Acts 5. 36, 37. who, according to Josephus, was suppressed towards the latter end of the reign of Augustus, Antiq. lib. 18. cap. 1, 2. The same Josephus saith, that of those multitudes that began seditions under Sabinus and Varus, every one was made Βασιλεύς, King, l. 17. c. 12. p. 608. G. and speaking of the very same time, he saith, ζυνὲς βασιλείαν ὁ καιρὸς ἀνέπτθε, the time (when they expected Messiah their king) made many to usurp the kingdom, De bello Jud. l. 2. c. 6. p. 779. G. which they must do under pretence of being their Messiah also, or the king that cometh in the name of the Lord to redeem Israel, Luke 19. 38.—24. 21. see Examen Millii.

Ver. 10. [f] Ἵνα ζωὴν ἔχωσι καὶ περισσὸν ἔχωσι, That they might have life, and have it more abundantly;] having, saith Grotius, cum ea vita omne genus felicitatis, with life, all kind of felicity. But βίος and ζωὴ signify not only life, but that sustenance by which it is preserved; as when the widow's mite is stiled ὅλον τὸν βίον, her whole life, Mark 12. 44. so he that takes the nether millstone to pledge, taketh a man's life, Deut. 24. 6. i. e. saith the Chaldee, that which makes his meat ready to preserve life; the necessaries of life, Targum Hidrof. In Homer it is ἡ πρὸς τὴν ζωὴν παρασκευὴ, provision for life; see Budæus.

Ver. 11. [g] I am the good shepherd,] referred to by the prophets, Isaiah 40. 11. Ezek. 34. 23.—37. 24. I am so καθ' ἐξοχὴν, so as to lay down my life for the sheep, and take it up again, ver. 15, 17. which words can agree to no other shepherd. I grant to Grotius, that the apostles and their successors were true shepherds, and not mercenaries; but none of them could be the good ſhepherd here, or the one ſhepherd, ver. 16. viz. the chief ſhepherd of the ſheep, 1 Peter 5. 4. though by their miniſtry he brought both Jews and Gentiles into his fold after his reſurrection; and they doing this in his name, and by his authority and aſſiſtance, he himſelf is ſaid to do it, ver. 16.

Ver. 12. [h] The hireling——fleeth.] The hireling here is not he who receives maintenance from his particular flock, for this he may do by virtue of Chriſt's ordinance, 1 Cor. 9. 13, 14. of this, ſaith Chriſt, he is worthy, Luke 10. 7. and much leſs, he who labours among them, with reſpect to that recompence, or crown of glory, he is to receive when the chief ſhepherd ſhall appear; but he who is an intruder, whoſe the ſheep are not, who intends not their good ſo much as his own profit, and who in time of danger flies for his own ſafety, not caring though the wolf tear and devour them. Hence alſo we may learn, that a true paſtor muſt not deſert his flock in time of peril, when by his abſence they may be brought into great peril, and by his preſence may be happily preſerved from it.

Ver. 14. [i] I know mine, and am known of them;] i. e. I have an intimate affection for them, and they ſincerely love me; for this phraſe ſignifies,

1*ſt*, To approve; thus the Lord knoweth the righteous, Pſal. 1. ver. laſt; and whom he approveth not, he is ſaid not to know, Matth. 7 23.

2*dly*, To love, and to be kindly affected to; as when God ſaith to his own people, You have I known, of all the families of the earth, Amos 3. 2. If any man love God, he is known of him, 1 Cor. 8. 3. See Deut. 2. 7.

3*dly*, To preſerve and protect; as Pſal. 31. 8. Thou haſt known my ſoul in adverſity; Nah. 1. 9. God is good to them that wait for him, γινώσκων, knowing them that fear him.

Ver 15. See additions N° 21.

Ver. 16. [k] And other ſheep I have which are not of this fold.] He calls the Gentiles ſheep by way of anticipation; becauſe as many of them as were docile, and fit to receive inſtruction, would in time be ſo; and becauſe the partition-wall betwixt Jew and Gentile was to be broken, and the Gentiles to be admitted to the ſame privileges with the believing Jews, he ſays, They ſhall be one ſheepfold.

Ver. 17. [l] Therefore the Father loveth me;] becauſe out of obedience to him, and love to the ſheep, I lay down my life for them; which I have good reaſon to do, ſeeing I am ſure ſo ſoon to take it up again: this ſeems to be the ſenſe of the words. Note alſo, That if we reſpect the council of God and the deſign of Chriſt, nothing is more certain than that Chriſt gave himſelf a ranſom for all, 1 Tim. 2. 6. and taſted death for every man, Heb. 2. 9. and was a propitiation for the ſins of the whole world, 1 John 2. 2. and that the Father ſo loved the world as that he ſent his Son into it, that the world might be ſaved by him, chap. 3. 16, 17. but becauſe the world can no otherways obtain this ſalvation than by believing in him, and obeying the voice of this Shepherd, therefore he is ſaid to do this more eminently for his ſheep.

Ver. 18. [m] Ἔξεσὶ τίθημι αὐτὴν, I lay it down.] Grotius having hinted, note on ver. 11. that τίθεσθαι ψυχὴν, to lay down the life, ſignifies only to expoſe it to danger, or put our lives in our hands, as the phraſe is, Judges 12. 3. 1 Sam. 28. 21. he ſaith alſo, That πάλιν λαβεῖν αὐτὴν, to take it again, is to reſcue it from danger. But this is a very forced expoſition. For,

Firſt, This phraſe τίθεσθαι τὴν ψυχὴν, to lay down the life, being abſolutely put, is only uſed in the New Teſtament, and there only by this apoſtle; and it always ſignifies to die, or to give the life to death; as when St Peter ſaith, τὴν ψυχήν μου ὑπὲρ σοῦ, I will lay down my life for thee, chap. 13. 37, 38. when Chriſt ſaith, chap. 15. 13. Greater love than this hath no man, than ἵνα τις τὴν ψυχὴν αὐτοῦ θῇ, that one ſhould lay down his life for his friend; and the beloved diſciple, 1 John 3. 16. argues thus, If he τὴν ψυχὴν ἔθηκε, laid down his life for us, we ought τὴν ψυχὴν τιθέναι, to lay down our lives for the brethren. And ſurely, when Chriſt ſaith here, τὴν ψυχήν μου τίθημι, I lay down my life for my ſheep, he meant not only, that he would expoſe himſelf to danger, but that he would ſuffer death for them; when therefore he ſaith in the ſame place, I have power to take it up again, he doubtleſs meant, he had power to raiſe it from death. Stegman the Socinian ſaith here, That Chriſt here aſcribes this power to himſelf improperly, becauſe God had promiſed to uſe his power in raiſing him from the dead: but, (1.) Is it proper to introduce Chriſt poſitively ſaying, I have what he had not, only becauſe another had that power? ſince he ſays not, I have a promiſe, but I have ἐξουσίαν, the power to reſtore this life I lay down. (2.) If we conſider how plainly he had challenged this power to himſelf, the power of raiſing up and quickning whom he would, and that becauſe he had life in himſelf, chap. 5. 21, 26. and engaged his word of truth, both to raiſe up his own body, chap. 2. 19. and the bodies of all his ſaints, chap. 6. 39, 40, 44, 54. yea, the bodies of all that were in their graves, chap. 5. 28, 29. as being the reſurrection and the life, chap. 11. 25.

we cannot doubt his power to raiſe his own body. And, (3.) When he ſaith in the preceding words, No man taketh my life from me, but I lay it down of myſelf, ἐξουσίαν ἔχω, I have power to lay it down; he plainly aſcribes to himſelf a right or power to give up himſelf to the death: why therefore ſhould not the ſame words immediately following, viz. I have power to take it up again, bear the ſame ſenſe? The little ſophiſms of Stegmannus here are of no force to the contrary: for why might not Chriſt's body die, though it was united to an immortal nature, as well as when it was united to an immortal ſoul? nor do we ſay, that he was dead according to his human nature, but only according to his body; or that the union of his body with the divine nature was diſſolved by death, but only the union of his body with his ſoul.

Note alſo, that the words following, This commandment have I received from the Father, reſpect not the raiſing of his body, but only the laying down his life, or his dying for the ſheep, as Gratius here notes.

Ver. 22. [n] Ἐγένετο δὲ τὰ ἐγκαίνια, It was at the feaſt of dedication; and it was winter.] The feaſt of dedication, here mentioned, reſpects not the dedication of the temple made by Solomon, or repaired by Zerubbabel; for we read of no annual feaſt of dedication appointed at either of them; but it reſpects the dedication of the altar and temple, celebrated by Judas Maccabæus; of which we read thus, 1 Macc. 4. 56. So they kept τὸν ἐγκαινισμὸν, the dedication of the altar eight days; and ver. 59. Moreover, Judas and his brethren, and the whole congregation of Iſrael, ordained, that the days ἐγκαινισμοῦ, of the dedication of the altar ſhould be kept in their ſeaſon from year to year, for the ſpace of eight days, from the 25*th day of the month* Caſleu, which falls in with our December. See alſo 2 Maccab. 10. 5,—8. and Joſephus, Antiq. l. 12. c. 11.—This is apparent, becauſe it is ſaid it was winter; whereas the dedication of Solomon's temple was in the ſeventh month, or in autumn, 1 Kings 8. 2. of Zerubbabel's in the month Adar, Ezra 6. 15. at the entrance of the ſpring, this in December. Moreover, from our Saviour's preſence at this feaſt, Grotius well notes, that feſtival-days in memorial of public bleſſings may piouſly be inſtituted by perſons in authority, without a divine command.

Ver. 23. [o] And Jeſus walked in the porch of Solomon,] in the porch new built in the ſame place where Solomon erected his: in ſummer they walked in the open air, in winter under covert.

Ver. 25. [p] The works that I do in my Father's name bear witneſs of me;] i. e. there is no cauſe why you ſhould thus be in ſuſpenſe concerning me, or hear me plainly ſaying, I am the Meſſiah, ſeeing this appears ſufficiently from my works. He aſcribes not the works to himſelf, ſaith Stegmannus, but to his Father; and yet the text ſaith, ἃ ἐγὼ ποιῶ, the works which I do, viz. by the power of the Father dwelling in me, ver. 38. So out of modeſty he ſpeaks, ſaith Grotius; ſo as a prophet, ſay others.

Ver. 26. [q] Ye believe not, ὅτι οὐκ, becauſe ye are not of my ſheep.] It is evident that Chriſt here gives the reaſon why they believed not, as elſewhere he doth. So John 8. 43. ye own not my word, ὅτι becauſe ye cannot bear it; ſee the note there; and ver. 35. ye believe not, ὅτι becauſe I ſpeak the truth, i. e. that truth which is offenſive to you; and ver. 47. διὰ τοῦτο, for this cauſe ye do not hear, i. e. obey my word, becauſe ye are not of God. And this obſervation excludes the evaſion of thoſe who ſay, becauſe here is not rational, or renders not the reaſon of their unbelief, but only intimates, that it was conſequential to their being not his ſheep; for the word here rendered becauſe, is not ὅτι, but ὅτι οὐκ, for ye are not my ſheep; now οὐκ is a rational particle pointing out the cauſe. 2*dly*, The reaſon which Chriſt here aſſigns of this defect of faith is doubtleſs ſuch as rendered it a great crime in them; for ſure that muſt be ſuch for which they were to die in their ſins, John 8. 24. it is therefore certain this unbelief cannot be reſolved into any natural defect of knowledge on their part, or any decree or act of reprobation on God's part, but into the want of a docile and well diſpoſed mind; for were it the ſame to be one of Chriſt's ſheep, and to be predeſtinated to faith and ſalvation, the import of Chriſt's words muſt be this, Ye therefore believe not, becauſe ye are not of the number of the elect, but of thoſe whom God hath from eternity rejected. Now, by this account of their infidelity, Chriſt would not have accuſed, but excuſed the infidelity of the Jews; for what fault could it be in them, that they did not that which, by reaſon of this act of God before they had a being, they were incapable of doing? Then might they have replied to Chriſt, We therefore believe not, becauſe God by this act of reprobation hath ſhut the door of faith againſt us, and ſo our infidelity is not to be imputed to us, but to God.

Ver. 28. [r] And they ſhall never periſh;] i. e. through any defect on my part, or by the force of any plucking them out of my hands. So the particle particle καὶ, which is here illative, ſhews; viz. they therefore ſhall not periſh, for none ſhall pull them out of my hand. And this is ſtill more evident from the reaſon following, My Father is greater than all their adverſaries, and none can pull them out of his hands. Now his power and mine is one and the ſame. This appears, 3*dly*, From the frequent exhortations directed to Chriſt's ſheep, not to fall away from the grace received, Heb. 12. 15. not to loſe what had been wrought in them, 2 ep. John 8. to thoſe that ſtand, to take heed they fall not, ſo as that God will not ſpare them, Rom. 11. 20, 21. becauſe not continuing in his goodneſs, ver. 22. Whereas, if the ſheep of Chriſt can no more ceaſe to be ſo, than a man, whilſt living, can ceaſe to be a man, theſe exhortations to take care they fall not off from being ſo, muſt be as vain as a caution to a man not to outlive his manhood. Well therefore ſaid Iſiodore Peleuſiota, No man can ſnatch them away by force and tyranny, for then they muſt periſh without and againſt their own wills; but this may be done by deceit and allurements, διὰ τὴν τῶν αὐτεξουσίων ἀνθρώπων ῥᾳθυμίαν, through the negligence of men, who have the freedom of their wills; for ſuch men, who by the allurements of the world, the fleſh, and the devil, thus ceaſe to obey Chriſt's laws, are not ſnatched out of Chriſt's hands, but chuſe to go from him. Or, 2*dly*, Chriſt may ſpeak here of ſheep continuing ſo to the death, promiſing to them, that neither death, nor he that hath the power of death, ſhould make them periſh for ever, for he would raiſe them up at the laſt day.

Ver. 30. [Ἐγὼ καὶ ὁ Πατὴρ ἓν ἐσμεν. I and the Father are one.] That Chriſt here ſpeaks not of an unity of will, and concord only, appears,

1. From the reaſon aſſigned of the ſecurity of the ſheep, the want of power in any one to ſnatch them out of the hands of Chriſt, becauſe the Father being greater in power than all, his power could ſecure them from all, and ſo could alſo Chriſt, he being one in power with the Father; for the foundation of this argument is not that the Father's will, but that his power was above all.

2. From the inference of the Jews, that by theſe words he made himſelf God, and ſo was guilty of blaſphemy. Now this invidious charge Chriſt doth not evade by ſaying, he only conſpired with the will of God, as all true prophets did, but by appealing to the works, which, ſaith he, I do by the power of the Father reſiding in me, which plainly carries this to an unity of power, not of will only; and then the inference of St Chryſoſtom is undeniable, εἰ ἡ δύναμις αὐτὴ, ἐνδέχεται καὶ οὐσία, and if the power be the ſame, the eſſence muſt be ſo.

Ver. 34, 35. [Is it not written in your law, I have ſaid ye are gods? If he called them gods to whom the word of God came,—ſay ye of him whom the Father hath ſanctified,—Thou blaſphemeſt, becauſe I ſaid I am the Son of God?] From theſe words, and from Exod. 21. 6.—22. 9, 28. where judges and ſupreme magiſtrates are called Elohim, Stegman gathers, that the name of God in ſcripture doth not always ſignify the ſupreme God, but ſometimes only them who have an high power by God committed to them; amongſt whom he places Chriſt, as having a divine authority committed to him by the favour of God; as if I ſhould argue thus, Parents are ſtiled gods by (b) Philo and by the Heathens, therefore the name of God in Philo and among the Heathens is common to the ſupreme God, and to our parents. But notwithſtanding this, no parent ever was by Philo, or by the Heathens, diſtributively, or in the ſingular number, called God; nor is that name thus given in ſcripture to any judge, or ſupreme governor, as it is often in the New Teſtament attributed to our Saviour Chriſt. And, 2*dly*, When magiſtrates and judges are in ſcripture called gods, the Holy Ghoſt ſtill addeth ſomething which excludes them from a true divinity, as that they ſhall die like men, Pſal. 82. 6. or that they are rulers of the people, Exod. 22. 28. whereas when Chriſt is called God, it is either with the addition of ſome epithet belonging to the ſupreme God, as when he is ſtiled ὁ ἐπὶ πάντων Θεὸς, God over all, Rom. 9. 5. the great God, Tit. 2. 13 ὁ Θεὸς ὁ ἀληθινὸς, the true God, 1 John 5. 20. or with addition of ſome operation proper to God, as when it is ſaid, The Word was God, and all things were made by him, chap. 1. 1, 2. Stegmannus adds, That if theſe perſons were not truly gods, the ſcripture falſly called them gods: to which I anſwer, That they were truly ſo in title, as being God's vicegerents upon earth, but not in nature, as being only the miniſters of God, Rom. 13. He adds, they muſt be properly and truly gods, as being inveſted with divine power. But here he trifles: for a divine power may either ſignify the power eſſential to God, by which he is enabled to do all things; and to aſcribe this power to mere men, is blaſphemy: or it may only ſignify a power of government, and judging of the offences done by men, derived from God; and in this ſenſe only is the divine power aſcribed to magiſtrates, and ſuch alſo is the power of parents over their children, and of maſters over their ſervants; vants; and yet can it be reasonably said, that the formal reason of the Deity truly and properly agrees to them? He goes on, and argues against the Deity of Christ from this text, thus; 1. That the argument of Christ hence for a proper Deity, that because magistrates are metaphorically, and by virtue of their office, called gods, he must be truly so, must be infirm, seeing no argument will hold from the metaphorical to the proper reason of the thing. 2. The reason which Christ here assigns of this, viz. because the Father had sanctified him, concerneth not his eternal generation, nor can it hence be gathered that Christ is the supreme God, but rather the contrary, for greater is he who sanctifies and sends, than he who is sanctified and sent. And, 3. Hence, saith he, we may learn, there was no higher reason of Christ's filiation than this sanctification and mission into the world; for then Christ would have produced that reason when thus assaulted by his adversaries, and not, concealing it, have rested in that reason of his sanctification, which proves not his true divinity.

Now to these arguments two answers may be given:

1*st*, If by this sanctification we understand the unction of Christ by the Holy Ghost, then note, 1. That the Jewish doctors understand not the Psalmist's words, I have said ye are gods, to be meant of civil magistrates, but of their doctors sitting in the chair of Moses, or rather of their prophets sent to reveal God's will to them, to whom alone that phrase here used properly agrees, they only being the men πρὸς οὓς ὁ λόγος Θεοῦ ἐγένετο, to whom the word of the Lord came. See note on Luke 3. 2. Note,

2. That if we understand it of their judges and supreme civil magistrates, yet of them it is certain, that they in difficult cases judged by consulting God's oracle, the Urim and Thummim, and in making war had still resort to this oracle; whence all the Jews were, upon pain of death, obliged to hearken to the sentence of those judges, and of those priests, by whom they did enquire from this oracle the mind of God, Deut. 17. 9, ——12. and as doing presumptuously, when they refused so to do, ver. 12. which they are only said to do when they opposed the mind of God made known to them, or wilfully rebelled against it, by doing any thing in contempt of the divine Majesty and his authority, Numb. 15. 30. Note, 2. That it is a received opinion among the Jews, that even their civil governors had a particular assistance and afflatus of the Holy Spirit to fit them for that employment. So when God chose seventy elders to manage the government of the people under Moses, he put his Spirit upon them, and they prophesied, Numb. 11. 17, 25. and when Joshua was appointed to rule them after Moses, he is said to be a man in whom the Spirit was, Numb. 27. 18. and to be full of the Spirit of wisdom, because Moses had laid his hand upon him, Deut. 34. 9. when Saul was anointed king over Israel, the Spirit came upon him, and he prophesied, 1 Sam. 10. 6, 10. and when David, by his sin, had caused the Holy Spirit to depart from him, he prays not only for the spirit of holiness, but that πνεῦμα ἡγεμονικὸν, the spirit of government God had given him might be restored, Psal. 51. 12. and of Solomon, the Targum on 2 Chron. 7. 6. saith, God made the Spirit rest upon him; and when God had rejected Saul, the Spirit of the Lord departed from him, 1 Sam. 16. 14. So that, according to this exposition, the argument of Christ is to this effect; If they are called gods, and the sons of the Most High, in the scriptures of unquestionable truth, who had the spirit of prophecy, wisdom, and government, more sparingly, and only at some certain times, imparted to them, and that rather to assist than abide in them, say you of him to whom the Father hath given the Spirit without measure, John 3. 34. and in whom he so abideth essentially, that by virtue of him, I am in the Father, and the Father in me, ἑνότητι καὶ δυνάμει τοῦ πνεύματος, by the unity and power of the Spirit, by which I am enabled to perform the works which are properly divine, and reveal to you all the hidden treasures of wisdom, Thou blasphemest, because I said I am the Son of God? So that the argument of Christ here proceeds from the less to the greater, from the Spirit assisting them by his gifts to the Spirit essentially dwelling in him, in which respect, greater is he who sanctifies and sends, than he who is sanctified and sent, by virtue of his original, though not by virtue of the Divine Nature, and the fulness of the God-head communicated to Christ; for even (c) Filbinger, a very acute Socinian, owns, that since the Spirit of God is the power of God, Luke 1. 35. he must be God; quia in Deo nihil est quod non sit Deus, there being nothing in God which is not God.

Ans. 2. The second answer is, That he here saith the Father had sanctified him, not by reason of the unction of the Holy Ghost coming down upon him at his baptism, but because of the union of the divine Logos to the human nature: for explication of which answer, note, 1. That according to the tradition of the antients, received from the beginning of Christianity, it was this Λόγος who appeared to the patriarchs, and conversed verſed with the judges and magiſtrates of the Jews, and ſo was literally ὁ λόγος τοῦ Θεοῦ, the eſſential Word of God who came to them. Note, 2. That Chriſt ſpeaks of a ſanctification precedent to his miſſion into the world, and ſo not of the unction of the Holy Ghoſt, received when he had been in it thirty years, but at the union of the divine Logos with the human nature; and then the argument of Chriſt will be to this effect, If they were ſtiled gods, and the ſons of the Moſt High, to whom this Word only came, and with whom he converſed, can I, who am this very λόγος, be ſaid to blaſpheme, in ſaying, that I am the Son of God? And according to this ſenſe it is evident that Chriſt does here argue from the ſublimeſt notion of his filiation, according to theſe words of the reverend Dr (d) Bull, 'It 'appears from a due inſpection of the text, that 'Chriſt did not intend to ſay or prove he was the 'Son of God, as being his ambaſſador extraordinarily inſtructed, and ſo ſent into the world, 'but on a far more excellent account, viz. that 'before he came into the world, he was with God 'the Father, and ſo was his true and eſſential 'Son, as being God of God, partaking of the ſame 'nature as a ſon doth with his Father. For it is 'apparent, that from the 25th to the 30th verſe 'incluſively Chriſt ſo diſcourſed to the Jews, that 'they ſtill thought he aſſerted that he was God, 'and therefore, ſay they, we ſtone thee, becauſe thou being a man, makeſt thyſelf God, ver. 33. 'viz. by calling God ſo emphatically, and with 'ſuch property, his Father, as that he was ſo to 'him alone, and ſo that he and his Father were 'one, ver. 30. Now Chriſt, ſaith he, does not 'anſwer, by denying either that he was God, 'or that he ever challenged to himſelf that dignity, which yet ſeems neceſſary, had he been 'only man, to have been ſaid, to take off this 'objection of his blaſphemy; but rather ſeems 'to argue, that he was ſo the Son of God, that 'he had the Divine Nature in him;'

1*ſt*, After this manner, If judges and magiſtrates are called gods, for an imperfect reſemblance and participation of the divine authority, how much more may I be called God, who am the natural Son of God, and am moreover in the moſt excellent manner authoriſed by him? For though Chriſt ſpeaks not thus in expreſs words, he not obſcurely ſignifies it by ſaying, his Father had ſanctified him, and ſent him into the world. For, (1.) He ſaith not, me whom God, but whom the Father hath ſanctified; declaring he had God for his Father, by virtue of that ſanctification. (2.) He adds, that he was firſt ſanctified, and then ſent into the world, ſignifying thereby, that he was the Son of God in heaven, before he was ſent into the world; and ſo he ſpeaks more plainly to his diſciples, ſaying, John 16. 28. I came forth from the Father, and came into the world: again, I leave the world, and go to the Father.

The ſecond argument by which our Lord defends himſelf, and proves his divine original, is taken from the divine operations he performed; for, ſaith he, ver. 37, 38. If I do not the works of my Father, believe me not, (when I thus ſay he is my Father;) but if I do (them,) though ye believe not me, believe the works, that ye may know and believe that I am in the Father, and the Father in me: as if he ſhould have ſaid, You might have ſome reaſon to ſay I blaſpheme, in ſaying I am ſo the Son of God, and he is ſo my Father, as that I and the Father am one, and ſo as no other perſon can ſtile God Father, or ſay, he is his Son, if I did not thoſe divine works which no other perſon ever did, and which demonſtrate the Father is ſo in me, as in no other perſon; but ſeeing I do thoſe works of Omnipotency which ſhew I am inveſted with the ſame power with the Father, you have no reaſon to imagine I blaſpheme, in ſaying, I am the Son of God, and therefore call him Father, becauſe the Father is in me, and I and the Father are one.

CHAP. XI.

1. NOW a certain man was ſick, (to wit,) [a] Lazarus of Bethany, (which was) the town of Mary and her ſiſter Martha.

2. (And) It was [b] that Mary which anointed the Lord with ointment, and wiped his feet with her hair, (as we ſhall ſhew preſently,) whoſe brother Lazarus was ſick.

3. Therefore his ſiſters ſent unto him, ſaying, Lord, behold he whom thou loveſt is ſick.

4. When Jeſus heard that, he ſaid (to his diſciples,) This ſickneſs is not to (a laſting) [c] death, but for the (manifeſtation of the) glory of God, that the Son of God might be glorified thereby.

5. Now

(d) De judicio eccl. Cath. 5. ſect. 6.

5. Now Jesus loved Martha, and her sister, and Lazarus, (which made him the more willing to gratify his sisters.)

6. When he had heard therefore that he was sick, (that God's glory might be more conspicuous in his recovery,) he [d] abode two days still in the same place where he was.

7. Then after that, saith he to his disciples, Let us go into Judea again.

8. His disciples say unto him, Master, the Jews of late (Gr. but now) sought to stone thee, and goest thou thither again?

9. Jesus answered, Are there not twelve hours in the day? If any man walketh in the day, he stumbleth not, because he seeth (the sun, which is) the light of this world.

10. But if any man walk in the night, he stumbleth, because there is no light in him; (now my day and hour still lasteth, chap. 9. 4. so that by my wonted prudence I shall still escape their malice, till the night of my passion cometh.)

11. These things said he; and after that he saith unto them, Our friend Lazarus [e] sleepeth, (i. e. is dead,) but I go that I may awake him out of (the) sleep (of death.)

12. Then said his disciples, Lord, if he sleep, he shall do well.

13. Howbeit Jesus spake of his death, but they thought that he had spoken of his taking rest in sleep.

14. Then said Jesus unto them plainly, Lazarus is dead.

15. And [f] I am glad for your sakes, that I was not there (before,) to the intent (that through the miracle of his resurrection) ye may believe (more firmly:) nevertheless (though he be dead,) let us go to him.

16. Then said Thomas, who is called Didymus, to his fellow disciples, Let us also go that we may die with him, (for that we may expect by going thither again, ver. 8.)

17. Then when Jesus came, he found that he had been in the grave four days already.

18. Now Bethany was nigh to Jerusalem, (being only) about fifteen furlongs off (from it.)

19. And many of the Jews came (thence) to [g] Martha and Mary, to comfort them concerning their brother.

20. Then Martha, as soon as she heard that Jesus was coming, went and met him, but Mary sat still in the house.

21. Then said Martha unto Jesus, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died.

22. But (And) [h] I know, that even now whatsoever thou wilt ask of God, God will give it thee, (though it be the raising him from the dead.)

23. Jesus saith unto her, Thy brother [i] shall rise again.

24. Martha saith unto him, I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day.

25. Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; (and therefore I, who shall hereafter raise all persons to life, can raise him now.)

26. And whosoever liveth and believeth in me, shall never die, (Gr. shall not die for ever:) Believest thou this?

27. She saith unto him, Yea, Lord, I believe that thou art the Christ, the Son of God, which should come into the world, (of whom we have received by tradition, that he shall raise the dead.)

28. And when she had so said, (being sent by Christ to do so,) she went her way, and called Mary her sister secretly, saying, The master is come, and calleth for thee.

29. As soon as she heard that, she arose quickly, and came to him.

30. Now Jesus was not yet come into the town, but was in that place where Martha met him.

31. The Jews then which were with her in the house, and comforted her, when they saw Mary that she rose up hastily, and went out, followed her, saying, She goeth to the grave to weep there.

32. Then when Mary was come where Jesus was, and saw him, she fell down at his feet, saying unto him, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died.

33. When Jesus therefore saw her weeping, and the Jews also weeping which came with her, he [k] groaned in the (his) Spirit, and was troubled.

34. And said (to them,) [l] Where have ye laid him? They say to him, Lord, come and see.

35. (And from the abundance of his affection to him) Jesus wept.

36. Then said the Jews, Behold how he loved him.

37. And some of them said, Could not this man, who opened the eyes of the blind, have caused that even this man should not have died?

38. Jesus therefore again groaning in himself, cometh to the grave: it was a cave, and a stone lay upon (the mouth of) it.

39. Jesus (then) said, Take ye away the stone. Martha, the sister of him that was dead, saith to him, Lord, by this time he stinketh, for he hath been dead [m] four days; (and so in all likelihood his body is now corrupted.)

40. Jeſus ſaith unto her, Said I not to thee, that if thou wouldſt believe, thou ſhouldſt ſee the glory of God (manifeſted in raiſing him from the dead.)

41. Then they took away the ſtone from the place where the dead was laid: and Jeſus lifted up his eyes, and ſaid, [n] Father, I thank thee that thou haſt heard me, (requeſting as thy prophet, that this man's ſpirit might return unto him.)

42. And I knew that thou heareſt me always, but becauſe of the people which ſtand by I ſaid it, (this,) that (owning thee as the author of this miracle,) they might believe that thou haſt ſent me.

43. And when he had thus ſpoken, [o] he cried with a loud voice, Lazarus, come forth:

44. And (then) he that was dead came forth, bound hand and feet with grave clothes, and his face was bound about with a napkin; Jeſus ſaith unto them, [p] Looſe him, and let him go.

45. Then many of the Jews which came to Mary (to comfort her,) and had ſeen the things which Jeſus did, believed on him.

46. But ſome of them (who believed not) went their ways to the Phariſees, and told them what things Jeſus had done.

47. Then gathered the chief prieſts and Phariſees a council, ſaying, What do we? (Why do we ſuffer this perſon to go on without interruption?) for [q] this man doth many miracles.

48. If (then) we let him thus alone, all men will believe in him, and (then) the Romans ſhall come and take away both our place and nation.

49. And one of them, named Caiaphas, being the high-prieſt [r] that (ſame) year, ſaid unto them, Ye know nothing at all (of policy;)

50. Nor conſider that it is expedient for us that one man ſhould die for (the ſafety of) the people, and that the whole nation periſh not.

51. And this ſpake he not (intending any ſuch thing) of himſelf, [r] but being high-prieſt that year (in which Chriſt was to ſuffer,) he (ſpake as one that) propheſied that Jeſus ſhould die for that nation.

52. And (indeed he died) not for that nation only, but that alſo he ſhould [t] gather together in one the children of God that were ſcattered abroad (all the world over.)

53. Then from that day forth they took counſel together for to put him to death.

54. Jeſus therefore (after this reſolution,) [u] walked no more openly among the Jews, (till his time was come,) but went thence into a country near to the wilderneſs, into a city called Ephraim, and there continued with his diſciples.

55. And the Jews paſſover was nigh at hand, and many went out of the country up to Jeruſalem before the paſſover to [w] purify themſelves, (either from ſome defilement which was to be expiated by ſacrifice, or by reaſon of ſome vow of Nazaritiſm which was upon them, Acts 21. 23.)

56. Then ſought they for Jeſus, and ſpake among themſelves as they ſtood in the temple, What think ye? (Is it,) that he will not come to the feaſt?

57. Now both the chief prieſts and the Phariſees had given a commandment, that if any man knew where he was, he ſhould ſhew it (to them,) that they might take him.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XI.

Ver 1. [a] Lazarus of Bethany, the town of Mary and Martha;] i. e. in which they dwelt; as Bethſaida is ſtiled the city of Andrew and Peter, chap. 1. 44. Grotius here conjectures, that this remarkable hiſtory of Lazarus was therefore omitted by St Matthew, Mark and Luke, becauſe Lazarus was then living when they wrote their goſpels; the laſt of them writing, ſaith Theophylact, within fifteen years after our Lord's aſcenſion: whereas tradition ſaith, (*) that Lazarus lived thirty years after that he was raiſed from the dead: he therefore thinks, they would not publiſh this hiſtory of him in his life-time, leſt they ſhould provoke the Jews to cut him off; whereas, according to the earlieſt computation, St John wrote his goſpel thirty two years after our Lord's aſcenſion, and ſo after the death of Lazarus. (2.) The laſt of theſe three evangeliſts, writing but fifteen years after our Lord's aſcenſion, might think it needleſs to mention a miracle concerning a perſon living ſo near Jeruſalem, where there was ſo great a fame thereof, and ſo many living witneſſes to atteſt it. St John writing this goſpel, ſay the ancients, above ſixty years after our Lord's aſcenſion, when by the death of the perſon, and moſt of the witneſſes which were preſent at his reſurrection, the memory and fame of it might be much impaired, had great reaſon to perpetuate the memory of it by this large rehearſal of it.

Ver. 2. [b] It was that Mary which anointed our Lord with ointment.] This is by moſt interpreters thought to be ſpoken of Mary Magdalene. But, (1.) I find no mention in ſcripture of her anointing ing the head or feet of Jesus, as this Mary did, chap. 12. 3. Yea, when St Luke had spoken of a woman who anointed not our Lord's head, as this Mary did, but his feet only, chap. 7. 46. he proceeds, chap. 8. to the mention of Mary Magdalene, giving a character of her, not from what she had done to Christ, but from what he had done to her, saying, It was that Mary out of which he had cast seven devils, ver. 2. which also is the character of her in St Mark, chap. 16. 9. Nor seems it for our Saviour's honour to have been so conversant with one who had been a noted harlot, though she had now repented of that leudness, or such an ardent lover of her as he was of this Mary, ver. 5.

It also is to be noted, that the apostle mentions this as a thing done before he speaks of the raising of Lazarus; not that it was done before his resurrection from the dead, as appears chap. 12. 3. but because it was done before he writ his gospel, telling us when it was done in the chapter following.

Ver. 4. [c] This sickness is not πρὸς θάνατον, to death;] i. e. Lazarus is permitted to be sick by the special providence of God; not that he designs to take him out of the world by death, as he does other men, but that the Son of God might be glorified, by shewing his almighty power in raising him from the dead; by this declaring, that he hath given to the Son to have life in himself, and to quicken whom he will, John 5. 22, 26. and therefore that he could fulfil his promise made to them that believed in him, that he would raise them up at the last day, chap. 6. 39, 40, 44, 54. and so Christ expounds himself, ver. 25, 26.

Ver. 6. [d] He abode still two days in the same place;] not coming to Bethany till Lazarus had been dead four days, ver. 17. not only that the miracle of his resurrection might be the greater, but also that all pretence of his being only in a deliquium might be taken away.

Ver. 11. [e] Our friend Lazarus κεκοίμηται, sleepeth.] It is not only the death of good men which is compared to, or stiled a sleep, as v. g. the death of Moses, Deut. 31. 16. of David, 2 Sam. 7. 12. Psal. 3. 13. but the phrase is used also of bad men, who are said ὑπνῶσαι ὕπνον αἰῶνος, to have slept their sleep, Psal. 76 5. to sleep in the dust, Dan. 12. 2. and generally of the kings of Israel and Judah, that they slept with their fathers. So the word רמך, he slept, is used, saith Buxtorf, by the Talmudists and Rabbins; though, saith he, it is used by them with a particular respect to the bodies of pious men, whose death is but a sleep: and perhaps the ancient Jews might use this metaphor as St Paul doth, 1 Thess. 4. 13. in opposition to the Heathens, who having no expectation of the resurrection of the body, stiled death a perpetual sleep, declaring, they expected to be raised out of it as certainly as they rose from sleep: and in allusion to this metaphor, Christ here saith, I go, ἐξυπνίσω αὐτόν, to awake him out of sleep, i. e. to raise him from the dead.

Ver. 15. [f] Ἵνα πιστεύσητε, I am glad that I was not there;] who, had I been present, could not have seen my friend languishing, or resisted the importunity of his sisters to prevent his death; but now, by raising him after he had been four days dead, shall so confirm your faith that I am the Messiah, as that you need not doubt of it when I suffer death, as knowing my power to raise others, and therefore my own body, from the dead, as I have told you I both can and will do, chap. 2. 19.—10. 18.

Ver. 19. [g] Πρὸς τὰς περὶ Μάρθαν καὶ Μαρίαν, to Martha and Mary,] not to those that were about them, as some render the words; for they could not come to them to comfort them concerning their brother; and this use of the word περὶ, with an article prefixed, is very common among the Greeks, in whom οἱ περὶ Πλάτωνα is Plato, οἱ περὶ Πρίαμον, Priamus; οἱ περὶ Φίλιππον καὶ Ἀλέξανδρον, Philip and Alexander. See Stephanus Lexicon, and Budæus.

Ver. 22. [h] And now I know, whatsoever thou wilt ask of God, he will give thee.] Here, Woltzogenius saith, her faith was weak, in that she believed not that Christ had in himself the power of doing this miracle; and yet 'tis evident that the raising one from the dead is a demonstration of a divine power, and therefore can reside in him only who hath the divine essence residing in him. See the note on chap. 5. 21. Grotius here also saith, her faith was weak, because she only believed that Christ was prevalent with God, but not that the fulness of divine power resided in him.

Ver. 23. [i] Thy brother shall arise:] For, ver. 25. I am the author of life, and of the resurrection, and therefore always can raise whom I will, when I will, from the dead: thou therefore mayst expect from my promise that thy brother should shortly be restored to life, and not only at the general resurrection.

Ver. 33. [k] Ἐνεβριμήσατο τῷ πνεύματι, He groaned,] or was moved in his spirit: whence we learn, that human affections and commotions are not to be condemned as sinful, if they do not incline us to do any thing repugnant to piety or reason, but only to express our affection to our friend, or our compassion to mankind. See the note on Luke 22. 43.

Ver. 34. [l] Where have ye laid him?] This he muſt know, who knew all things, even the ſecret thoughts and affections of men, chap. 21. 17. and yet he thus aſks, that he might be conducted by them to his ſepulchre, that there might be no ſemblance of fraud or confederacy.

Ver. 39. [m] Τετάρταιός ἐστι, He hath been dead four days;] in which time the viſage of the dead began to change in thoſe countries, and all hopes of any return to life ceaſed. So Dr Lightfoot from Maimonides and the Talmudiſts, They go the ſepulchres, and viſit the dead for three days, for ſo long the ſpirit wanders about the ſepulchre; but then they certify of the dead, for after three days his countenance is changed.

Ver. 41, 42. [n] Father, I thank thee that thou haſt heard me.] Woltzogenius ſaith, it follows not from theſe words, that Chriſt requeſted any thing of the Father; God being by an Hebraiſm ſaid to hear them to whom he vouchſafeth any benefit, though they did not aſk it, Pſal. 10. 17. Iſa. 65. 24. there being no need that Chriſt ſhould requeſt that power which from his unction he always had reſiding in him, but only that he ſhould thank the Father for it. But the words following, I know that thou doſt hear me always, ſeem plainly to imply a requeſt; not indeed that he might receive power to raiſe Lazarus from the dead, for that he teſtifies he had already, chap. 5. 22, 26. but that this miracle might be efficacious to confirm the faith of his apoſtles, and to convince the multitude that he was a prophet ſent from God, and did all things to promote his glory.

Ver. 43. [o] He cried with a loud voice,] that it might appear to all that even the dead were ſubject to his voice.

Ver. 44. [p] Looſe him, and let him go.] He followed not Chriſt, that he might not ſeem to carry him about in triumph with him.

Ver. 47, 48. [q] This man doth many ſigns,—all men will believe on him.] For this very cauſe, that he did ſo many miracles, all ſalutary and tending to the good of men, and with ſuch evidence of a divine power as was ſufficient to draw all men to the faith, they ſhould have owned him as the true Meſſiah; but fear of the Romans induced them rather to cut him off, and by that very action they pulled that dreadful vengeance executed by the Romans down upon them. This is the juſt and uſual effect of carnal policy, exalting itſelf againſt the wiſdom and the council of God.

Ver. 49. [r] High-prieſt for that year.] The high-prieſthood, by God's inſtitution, was to continue for the term of life; but when the power came into the hands of the Romans, they changed them at their pleaſure, and ſo they came to be accounted ſuch by years: yet becauſe this was done by a power which they could not reſiſt, and the high-prieſthood ſtill continued in the line of Aaron, Chriſt himſelf owns his power.

Ver. 51. [s] Becauſe he was the high-prieſt of that year, he propheſied, &c.] i. e. in that year in which Chriſt was to ſuffer for the ſins of the world: and he is ſaid to propheſy, not that he deſigned to foretell that Chriſt was to ſuffer upon that account, but becauſe God ſo over-ruled his tongue as that he ſhould ſpeak of the expedience of procuring our Saviour's death, in ſuch words as might be accommodated to the deſign of God in giving up our Saviour to the death.

Ver. 52. [t] Ἵνα τέκνα—συναγάγῃ εἰς ἕν, That he might gather together in one the children of God,] i. e. believers; for to as many as believed in him he gave power to become the ſons of God, chap. 1. 12. But note, that the Gentiles are here called the ſons of God, not that they were ſo at preſent, but that they were by faith to be made ſuch, as our Lord calls them ſheep who were to hear his voice, chap. 10. 16.

Ver. 54. [u] Jeſus walked not openly;] inſtructing us, by his example, that it is lawful to avoid danger, by giving place to the fury of the enemy; and that it is wiſdom to withdraw ourſelves from it, rather than expoſe ourſelves to unneceſſary perils, by abiding within the reach of them who are reſolved upon our ruin.

Ver. 55. [w] Ἵνα ἁγνίσωσιν ἑαυτούς, To purify themſelves.] They who had committed ſins which were to be expiated by ſacrifices, were not obliged to travel inſtantly to Jeruſalem to offer them, but might defer the oblation to the next feaſt, at which they were obliged to be preſent; and they who entered on the vow of Nazarites did uſually contrive it ſo as that it might conclude at one of thoſe feaſts; and therefore they are ſaid to come to Jeruſalem before the feaſt, to purify themſelves.

CHAP.

CHAP. XII.

1. THEN Jesus, [a] six days before the passover, came to Bethany, where Lazarus was, who had been dead, whom he raised from the dead.

2. There they made a [b] supper (for him,) and Martha served; but Lazarus was one of them that sat at the table with him.

3. Then [c] took Mary, (sister to Lazarus,) a pound of ointment of spikenard, very costly, and anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped his feet with her hair; and the house was filled with the odour of the ointment.

4. Then said one of his disciples (viz.) [d] Judas Iscariot, Simons son, which should (who was about to) betray him,

5. Why was not this ointment sold for three hundred pence, and given to the poor?

6. (And) this he said, not that he cared for the poor, but because he was a thief, and had the bag, (or common purse of Christ and his apostles,) and bare what was put therein; (and so out of so great a sum could have purloined much to his own use.)

7. Then said Jesus, Let her alone; against the day of my burial hath she kept this; (she hath performed this as a fit ceremony for my burial, which is nigh at hand.)

8. (Nor need ye be thus sollicitous) for [e] the poor, (since them) ye have always with you, (and whenever you will you may do them good, Mark 14. 7.) but me ye have not always; (and therefore she did well in taking the present opportunity of shewing her affection to me.)

9. Much people of the Jews therefore knew that he (to wit Lazarus) was there; that they came not for Jesus sake only, but that they might see Lazarus also whom he had raised from the dead.

10. But [f] the chief priests consulted, that they might put Lazarus also to death;

11. Because that by reason of him, many of the Jews went away, and believed on Jesus.

12. [g] On the next day, much people that were come to the feast, when they heard that Jesus was coming to Jerusalem,

13. Took branches of palm-trees, and went forth to meet him, and cried, Hosanna, blessed is (he) the king of Israel that cometh in the name of the Lord.

14. And Jesus, when (sending his disciples for him) he had found a young ass, sat thereon, as it is written (of the Messiah, Zach. 9. 9.)

15. Fear not daughter of Sion, behold thy king cometh sitting upon an asses colt.

16. These things [h] understood not his disciples (to be spoken of him) at the first; but when Jesus was glorified, then remembred they that these things were written of him, and that they had done these things to him.

17. The people therefore that was with him, when he called Lazarus out of his grave, and raised him from the dead, bare record (by their Hosannas, that he was the Christ.)

18. For this cause the people also met him, for that they heard that he had done this miracle.

19. The Pharisees therefore said among themselves, Perceive ye how ye prevail nothing (by all the opposition ye have made against him? for) behold the world is gone after him.

20. And there were certain (devout) [i] Greeks among them, that came up to worship at the feast:

21. The same came therefore to Philip, who was of Behsaida in Galilee, (perhaps as to a person known to them, living in Syro-Phœnicia,) and desired him, saying, Sir, we would see Jesus.

22. Philip cometh, and [k] telleth Andrew; and again, Andrew and Philip told Jesus,

23. And Jesus answered them, saying, The hour is come that the Son of man should be [l] glorified (by the faith of the Gentiles; but this will chiefly be after his resurrection: for)

24. Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground, and die, it abideth alone (without increase;) but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit; (even so, after my death, shall I have much fruit among the Gentiles, by my apostles sent to preach to and to baptize all nations.)

25. (And in this my disciples must be ready to follow my example; for) he that loveth his life (so as to reject me to preserve it,) shall lose it; and he that (seemingly) hateth his life in this world, (by cleaving to me with the loss of it,) shall keep it to life eternal

26. If (therefore) any man (will) serve me, let him (take up his cross and) follow me; and (then) where I am, there shall also my servant be: (for) if any man serve me, him will my Father honour (with a crown of glory, Rev. 3. 21.)

27. Now

27. Now is my [m] ſoul troubled (at the apprehenſion of what I am to ſuffer;) and what ſhall I ſay? Father ſave me from this hour! (this nature would prompt me to,) but (this I cannot ſay, ſince) for this cauſe came I to this hour, (that I might die for the ſins of the world:)

28. (I therefore chuſe to ſay,) Father, glorify thy name (by this teſtimony of thy love to mankind.) Then came there a voice from heaven, ſaying, [n] I have both glorified it (by the miracles done by thee in my name,) and will glorify it again (by greater miracles.)

29. The people therefore that ſtood by, and heard it, ſaid that it thundered, (the voice being attended with thunder:) others ſaid, (that) an angel ſpake to him.

30. Jeſus anſwered, and ſaid (to them,) This voice came not becauſe of me, (to ſatisfy me of the divine favour, or comfort me againſt the agonies of death,) but for your ſake, (that you might believe in me.)

31. Now is [o] the judgment of this world, (i. e. the time when they ſhall be convinced of ſin, becauſe they believed not in me, John 16. 9. and of a future judgment; for) now ſhall the prince of this world be caſt out (of his dominions.)

32. And if (Gr. when) I be (am) [p] lifted up from the earth (upon the croſs,) I will draw all men (i. e. men of all nations) to (believe in) me.

33. This he ſaid, ſignifying what death he ſhould die.

34. The people anſwered him, [q] We have heard out of the law, that Chriſt (and his kingdom) abideth for ever; and how ſayſt thou (then, that) the Son of man muſt be lifted up (ſo as to die upon the croſs?) who is this Son of man (that muſt die, ſeeing it thus appeareth by the law he cannot be the Chriſt?)

35. Then ſaid Jeſus unto them, Yet a little while (he who) is the light (of the world is) with you; walk (by the directions of it) while ye have the light, leſt [r] darkneſs come upon you, (and you be led by your blind guides into the ditch;) for he that walketh in darkneſs, knoweth not whither he goeth.

36. (And that you may thus walk) while ye have light, believe in the light, that ye may be (treated, not as children of darkneſs caſt out from, but as) the children of light (admitted to his preſence who dwells in the light, and have the comforts and the bleſſings which belong to them.) Theſe things ſpake Jeſus, and departed, and did hide himſelf from them.

37. But though he had done ſo many miracles before them, (yet) they believed not in him;

38. (So) [s] that (by this infidelity) the ſaying (Gr. the word) of Eſaias the prophet might be (was) fulfilled (in them; or, this departure was to puniſh their blindneſs and hardneſs of heart, that the word of Eſaias the prophet might be fulfilled in them,) which ſpake, (ſaying) Lord, who hath believed our report? and to whom hath the arm of the Lord been revealed?

39. (For) therefore they could not believe, becauſe that (which) Eſaias ſaid again (was verified in them, viz.)

40. [t] He hath blinded their eyes, and hardened their hearts, (or, their eyes are blinded, and their hearts hardened, ſee Matth. 13. 14. Acts 28. 27.) that they ſhould not ſee with their eyes, nor underſtand with their hearts, and be converted, and I ſhould heal them.

41. Theſe things ſaid Eſaias (in the Spirit) when he ſaw his glory, (viz. the glory of Chriſt,) and ſpake of him.

42. Nevertheleſs, (this infidelity was not general; for not only among the people,) but among [u] the chief rulers alſo, many believed on him, but becauſe of the Phariſees they did not (openly) confeſs him, leſt they ſhould be put out of the ſynagogue.

43. For they loved the praiſe of men more than the praiſe of God; (i. e. they valued their reputation with men, more than that honour which cometh of God only, John 5. 44.)

44. Jeſus (therefore) cried and ſaid, He that believeth on me, believeth not [w] on me (only,) but on him that ſent me (alſo;)

45. And he that ſeeth me (doing the works of God,) [x] ſeeth (alſo) him that ſent me.

46. I am [y] come a light into the world, that whoſoever believeth in me, ſhould not abide in darkneſs, (or be ignorant of the way of happineſs.)

47. And if any man hear my words, and believe (them) not, [z] I judge him not, (i. e. I do not now condemn him,) for I came not to judge (i. e. condemn) the world, but to ſave the world, (John 3. 17.)

48. He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my words, hath one that judgeth him; the word that I have ſpoken, the ſame ſhall judge him at the laſt day.

49. For I have not ſpoken of myſelf (without commiſſion from above;) but the Father which ſent me, he gave me commandment, what I ſhould ſay, and what I ſhould ſpeak.

50. And I know that (obedience to) his commandment is (the way to) life everlaſting; whatſoever I ſpeak therefore, even as the Father ſaid unto me, ſo I ſpeak; (and he will ſurely condemn thoſe who are diſobedient to his word.)

ANNO-

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XII.

Ver. 1. [a] Πρὸ ἓξ ἡμέρων τ῀ πάσχα, six days before the passover.] So 2 Cor. 12. 2. πρὸ ἐτῶν δεκατεσσάρων, fourteen years since; Amos 1. 1. πρὸ δύο ἐτῶν τ῀ σεισμοῦ, two years before the earthquake. So in Plutarch, πρὸ τριῶν ἐτῶν, three years before; in Numa, p. 61. in Popl. p. 101. in Rom. p. 23.

Ver. 2. [b] They made him a supper there.] This supper was different from that mentioned Matth. 26. 6. Mark 14. 3. (1.) Because this was in the house of Lazarus, ver. 2. that in the house of Simon the leper, Matth. 26. 6. (2.) Here Mary anoints the feet of Christ, ver. 3. there a woman, not named, pours ointment on his head, Matth. 26. 7. (3.) This supper was six days before the passover, ver. 1. that only two, Matth. 26. 2. Mark 14. 1. and if the suppers were not the same, the Mary that anointed Christ's feet here, and the woman that anointed his head there, were not the same.

Ver. 3. [c] Mary took a pound of ointment.] Mary the sister of Lazarus, see the note on chap. 11. 2. who is never called Mary Magdalene, nor is it said ever that Christ cast seven devils out of her. That they were divers women we learn from the apostolical constitutions, which say, Ζυνῆν δ῀ ἡμῖν, Μαρία ἡ Μαγδαλήνη, κ῀ Μάρθα, κ῀ Μαρία αἱ ἀδελφαὶ Λαζάρε, (a) there were with us Mary Magdalene, and Martha, and Mary the sister of Lazarus: and from Origen in these words, (b) The gospel saith, there came a woman having an alabaster box of ointment, &c. not the sinner, but Mary an holy woman: Luke indeed speaks of the sinner, but Matthew, Mark and John, speak of that Mary, who was not a sinner. Elsewhere he saith, There were three Maries, one of whom Matthew and Mark, another of whom Luke, and a third of whom St John here speaks. And Basil of Seleucia in his homily on Lazarus saith, οὐκ αὐτὴ ἦν ἡ πόρνη ἡ ἐν τῷ Ματθαίῳ οὐδὲ ἡ ἐν τῷ Λουκᾷ, this was not the Mary mentioned by St Matthew or St Luke, for they were harlots, or sinners, αὕτη δ῀ Ζεμνὴ καὶ σπουδαία, but she was an holy and honest woman. So also say Chrysostom, Euthimius, and Theophylact here. See Coteler. note in constit. apost. p. 204. and Casaub. Exercit. 14. a p. 242. ad p. 300. where he answers the arguments of Baronius to the contrary.

Ver. 4. [d] Judas.] He was permitted to be among the apostles perhaps to teach us, (1.) That there should never be wanting bad men even in the highest places of the church; (2.) That we are to judge of the members of the church, not from the evil lurking in the hearts, which we cannot discern, but from their outward profession, this qualifying Judas for the passover, if not for the participation of the sacrment; and, (3.) That inward holiness is not necessary to render the offices belonging to the ministerial function valid, and effectual: for Judas preaches Christ, and is sent out to do it with power of healing diseases, and casting out of devils, Matth. 10. 1,—10. see the note there, though he had himself a devil, John 6. 70. nor is he excepted when Christ saith, he that receiveth you, receiveth me.

Ver. 8. [e] Ye have the poor always with you, &c.] Hence it appears that the obligation of giving alms, and being charitable to the poor, hinders not our free expences in doing honour to good men, as this woman doth here, and Joseph of Arimathea and Nicodemus afterwards, in buying spices for the interment of our Lord, chap. 19. 39.

Ver. 10. [f] The high-priest consulted to kill Lazarus also;] to destroy an innocent man without any crime laid against him, only to preserve their own honour and reputation. See here the infallible sentence of the rulers of the church.

Ver. 12. [g] Τ῀ ἐπαύριον, On the next day:] i. e. On the 10th day of Nisan when the paschal lamb was taken up and reserved till the passover, Christ the true paschal lamb cometh up to Jerusalem. From this to the 16th verse, see the note on Matth. 21. 8, 9, 10.

Ver. 16. [h] These things understood not his disciples at the first] to be done in completion of any prophecy concerning him; but when Jesus was advanced to the throne of his glory, and had shed upon them the Spirit of truth and illumination promised, they not only understood that these things were done according to the words of Zachary, chap. 9. 9. but also that his kingdom was not to be of this world, but spiritual, or a dominion over the hearts and consciences of men subdued to the obedience of the truth. Hence also we may learn the manner of the operation of the holy Spirit, viz. by bringing those things to remembrance which are requisite that we may know the truth, and be excited to perform our duty, and by enlightning thus our understandings.

Ver. 20. [i] Certain Greeks that came up to worship at the feast.] Dr Hammond thinks these Greeks were proselytes of the gate, at least who worshipped worshipped the God of the Jews as the Creator of heaven and earth, such as were Cornelius and he treasurer of queen Candace, for those persons used to worship God in the court of the Gentiles, and also to offer sacrifice to him: that such did come in Solomon's time, and would come afterwards, we learn from his petition, that their prayers might be heard which they made in his temple, 1 Kings 8. 41, 42. that they offered burnt-offerings, from Josephus; for when Eleazer the Zealot persuaded the priests, μηδενὸς ἀλλοφύλου δῶρον ἢ θυσίαν παραδέχεσθαι, (c) not to receive the gift, or offering of any Gentile, this, saith he, was done contrary to the ancient custom of the Jews: for the priests produced witnesses most tenacious of their rites, deposing ὅτι πάντες οἱ πρόγονοι τὰς ἀπὸ τῶν ἀλλογενῶν θυσίας ἀπεδέχοντο, (d) that all their ancestors received the sacrifices of other nations, and thought it absurd that the Jews only should exclude such from worshipping and sacrificing to their God. These Greeks, saith Grotius, seem to have been Syrophœnicians, perhaps dwelling about Tyre and Sidon, and so might easily be acquainted with the Galileans with whom they had commerce, and with Philip of Bethsaida to whom they came, ver. 21.

Ver. 22. [k] Philip telleth Andrew;] because Christ, when he sent them forth to preach, forbad them to go into the coasts of the Gentiles, Matth. 10. 5. and it was then a controversy among the Jews, whether the Gentiles should be admitted to their sacra, and so they might doubt whether such uncircumcised persons were to be admitted to converse with Jesus, and so consult him first before they brought them to him.

Ver. 23. [l] The hour is come that the Son of man should be glorified:] i. e. That he who is contemned by the Jews, his own people, to whom he was first sent, should be glorified by the Gentiles.

Ver. 27. [m] Now is my soul troubled, &c.] That they might not say that he had no dread of death, or sense of pain, to render sufferings distasteful to him, and so it was not to be expected that they who were deeply affected with these things should follow his example, he here shews he had the same natural concern for these things as others had, only he over-ruled it by a desire to promote his Father's glory.

Ver. 28. [n] I have both glorified it,] by the resurrection of Lazarus, chap. 11. 4. and by all the other miracles which I have given in testimony to thy mission, chap. 2. 11. and I will glorify it again by thy resurrection, and exaltation to the right hand of glory, Acts 3. 13. by the mission of the holy Ghost upon the apostles, the witnesses of thy resurrection, John 16. 14. and by giving thee a name above every name, Eph. 1. 20, 21. Philip. 2. 9, 10.

Ver. 31. [o] Now is the judgment of this world:] i. e. Now shall they of the world be condemned who believe not in me, ver. 47. So the word κρίνεσθαι imports, chap. 3. 18, 19. chap. 16. 9. Now is the prince of this world cast out; so is Satan called, because he had rendered the whole world, except the Jewish nation, subject to his idolatrous worship: see the notes on 2 Cor. 4. 4. Eph. 2. 2. —6. 12. and he was eminently cast out by the Christians, when through the name of Christ they for three centuries expelled him from the temples and altars where he was worshipped, and from the bodies which he had possessed. See the preface to the epistles, §. 18.

Ver. 32. [p] Ἐὰν ὑψωθῶ, If I be lifted up, I will draw all men after me] Ἐὰν here signifies when. So Deut. 7. 1. ἐὰν δὲ εἰσαγάγῃ, when the Lord hath brought you into the land; Judg 6. 3. ἐὰν ἐσπείρῃ, when the Israelites sowed, ἐὰν πληρωθῶσι, when the number of thy days shall be fulfilled, 2 Sam. 7. 12. Jer. 3. 16. see the note on Heb 3. 7. I will draw all men after me, by the power of my resurrection, the mission of my Spirit, the excellency of my doctrine, and the miracles which shall attend the preaching of it; I will do what is sufficient to prevail with all men to believe in me, will actually engage many throughout all the parts of the world so to do, and render them who do not inexcusable. The event shews, that Christ and the Father draw many who come not to him. See chap. 6. 44.

Ver. 34. [q] We have heard out of the law that Christ abideth for ever.] That which they had learned from the prophets, they say they had heard out of the law, that word comprehending the whole scriptures: see chap. 15. 25. This they gather partly from the prophets representing Christ's kingdom as an everlasting kingdom, Dan. 7. 14. from Ezekiel, saying, chap. 37. 25. My servant David shall be their king for ever, and of his government there shall be no end, Isa. 9. 7. and from his promise that he would not fail David, but cause his seed to endure for ever, Psal. 89. 35, 36. But then these words hinder not the truth of those things which the same prophets had foretold, of a body prepared, in which he was to suffer, having his hands and his feet pierced, Psalm 22. 18.—40. 6. of his giving up his life a sacrifice for sin, Isa. 53. 2, 12. or the Messiah's being cut off, Dan. 9. 26. And these prophets having spoken, not only of his sufferings, but also of his resurrection, Psal. 41. 10. Acts 3. 24. and of his future glory, 1 Pet. 1. 11. they might easily, by comparing these things things together, have removed this scruple, especially when he so oft had told them, and they so well remembered, Matth. 27. 63. he had said, that after three days he would rise again.

Ver. 35. [r] Lest darkness come upon you, &c.] as it did in a wonderful manner after the light of the gospel was taken from them, they sinning then, not only against all laws civil and sacred, but even against the laws of nature in the vilest manner, as Josephus fully testifies: see the note on Rom. 2. 1. And from our Lord's exhortation to them here, to walk in the light, that they may be the children of the light, 'tis manifest Christ thought not God had then so blinded their eyes that they could not see, or so deserted them that they could not walk in the light; for if so, he could not seriously have exhorted them to walk in the light, much less to do it, so that they might become the children of light; for all exhortations to do that which it was impossible for them to do, by reason of a judicial act of God upon them, must be not only vain and delusory, but also contrary to the will of God. If you here say, Christ's exhortation must be as much in vain, supposing they had by their vicious habits contracted such a blindness, that seeing they would not see, as scripture seems to testify they had; I answer, That this follows not, that blindness being not natural, but only moral, arising from their prejudices and ill affections to the light, and so might be deposed with them. And hence we find the scripture frequently exhorting them who in this moral sense had their eyes blinded, and their ears made deaf, to hearken, to believe, and be obedient to the truth. So Jer. 6. 10. To whom shall I speak, and give warning, that they may hear? behold, their ear is uncircumcised, that they cannot hearken: and yet it is said, ver. 8. Be thou instructed, O Jerusalem, lest my soul depart from thee; and ver. 16. Stand ye in the way and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest to your souls. Yea, Christ himself saith, John 8. 43. Ye cannot hear my words; and yet he adds, that he came into the world, and spake unto them, that they might be saved. Luke 9. 56. John 13. 17, 18.—5. 34. and reprehends them because they would not come to him that they might have life, John 5. 40. and that they would not be gathered by him, Luke 13. 34. yea, the evangelist here, ver. 37. imputes it to them as their great sin, that though Christ had done so many miracles among them, they believed not in him: yea, God himself still looks upon them as persons who might believe, for this was his commandment, that they should believe in him, this was the work which he expected from them, ver. 24.

Ver. 38. [s] That the saying of Isaiah the prophet might be fulfilled.] Because these and the following words seem to contain a very strange and uncomfortable doctrine, viz. that the infidelity even of God's own people is to be resolved, not into the perverseness of their wills, or the evil dispositions of their hearts, but into the divine predictions, or into a judicial blindness and obduration wrought by God upon them, which renders it impossible for them to believe; therefore, for explication of them, let it be noted,

1st, That our blessed Lord, in the immediate precedent verses, viz. 35, 36. doth passionately exhort these very persons to believe, and walk according to the light, which is a certain evidence our Lord well knew his Father had not by any of his actions or predictions made it impossible for them to believe on him, or walk according to his doctrine; for if God had so blinded their eyes that they could not see the light, or so hardened their hearts that they could not embrace it, Christ would not seriously have exhorted them to believe, or walk according to it, and that so effectually that they might become the children of the light; for every exhortation to do a thing we know to be impossible must be vain, and he who by it seems to be desirous we should do that which he knows we cannot, must delude us; and if he knows that God hath by some antecedent action rendered the thing impossible to be done, it must be also an exhortation repugnant to the will of God: now it is blasphemy to say, the exhortations of the Son of God were vain, delusory, or contrary to his Father's will. Moreover, our Saviour knew the Jews were capable of mercy and salvation by him; for he expressly says, God sent him into the worl that the world by him might be saved, John 3. 17. he makes this declaration, These things say I unto you, that ye might be saved, John 5. 34. and this enquiry, How oft would I have gathered you, and you would not? Luke 13. 34. and says, Ye will not come to me, that ye might have life, John 5. 40. God himself would not have his words so understood, as if he were unwilling that the Jews should believe, or had by any of his actions rendered it impossible for them to do so, for this was his commandment, that they should believe on him whom he had sent, John 6. 29. and why sent he his Son to seek and to save that which was lost, even the lost sheep of the house of Israel, had he not truly been desirous that they should believe? The evangelist also, and that good Spirit by which he did endite these words, did not thus understand them; for he objects this to the Jews as their great crime, ver. 37. that though Christ had done so many miracles among them, yet they believed not on him; whereas it can be no man's ſin not to do what he cannot do, purely by reaſon of the act of God: theſe words muſt therefore have ſome other ſenſe than at firſt view they ſeem to bear.

2*dly*, Obſerve, that God's foreknowledge, ſayings, and predictions, have no ſuch influence on the will of man, as to lay on him a neceſſity to do what he foreknows or hath foretold he will do: for were it otherwiſe, 1. All human actions muſt be neceſſary; for to that God who is omniſcient, all things, both paſt, and preſent, and to come, are known. If then this knowledge of mens actions, which the ſcripture ſo plainly doth aſcribe to God, did make them neceſſary, all human actions muſt be neceſſary, and ſo the freedom of them muſt be overthrown. 2. Then vice and virtue muſt be only empty names, we being capable of doing nothing which is blame-worthy, or deſerveth praiſe; for who can blame a perſon for doing only what he could not help, or judge him worthy of applauſe, who doth that only which he cannot avoid? And, 3. Then muſt all future recompences be diſcarded, it being viſibly unjuſt to puniſh any man for that which it was never in his power to avoid, and as unreaſonable to reward him for that action which cannot be praiſe-worthy. We know that an almighty God is able ſo powerfully to work upon the hearts of men, as to convert them to himſelf; and it is natural to conceive, that a good God is ready to do all which he ſees proper for that end. Since then, in ſome regard, it muſt be true that God would have all men to be ſaved, what anſwer can be given to that enquiry, Why are not all men actually ſaved? but this, That the Divine Wiſdom does not ſee it fit to lay reſtraints upon their actions, and to neceſſitate their wills to a compliance with his calls and invitations to turn to him. This anſwer, I believe, is true; but then it is an evidence that God hath never, by his preſcience or his predictions, laid ſuch reſtraints upon mens actions.

When, then, it is ſaid here, Therefore they could not believe, becauſe Iſaias ſaid; theſe words muſt bear this ſenſe, Therefore they could not believe, becauſe (that was fulfilled upon them) which Iſaias ſaid, or, it had happened to them as he had foretold. So chap. 15. 24, 25. See the note there. They have hated me and my Father, ἀλλ' ἵνα πληρωθῇ ὁ λόγος, but that the word might be fulfilled, i. e. but this hath happened to, or been done by them, that what was written in their law might be fulfilled, viz. they hated me without a cauſe. And this is the expoſition of the Holy Ghoſt, who, Matth. 13. 13, 14. ſaith from the mouth of Chriſt, Therefore ſpeak I to them in parables, becauſe they ſeeing, ſee not; and in them is fulfilled the prophecy of Iſaiah, their eyes have they cloſed, &c.

Ver. 40. He hath blinded their eyes.] Obſerve, that whereas our tranſlation ſaith, He hath blinded their eyes, the word he is not in the original, which ſaith only thus, τετύφλωκεν αὐτῶν τὰς ὀφθαλμούς, and may be rendered, malice or wickedneſs hath blinded their eyes, as we read, Wiſd. 2. 21. Or, (2.) The perſonal is here put for the imperſonal, the active for the paſſive, i. e. He hath blinded their eyes, and hardened their hearts, for their eyes are blinded, and their hearts hardened. To give you a plain inſtance of like nature, Iſa. 44. 18 in our tranſlation we read thus, He hath ſhut their eyes, that they cannot ſee, and their hearts that they cannot underſtand; and yet both the Greek and Chaldee paraphraſt read them thus, ἀπημαυρώθησαν, their eyes are ſhut and darkned, leſt they ſhould ſee. And that this is the true import of the prophet's words, not that God, but Satan, and their own evil diſpoſitions had done this, is evident from this conſideration, that this is ſpoken to the ſhame of them who made and worſhipped ſenſeleſs images, ver. 9, 11. and to convince them of their want of conſideration, ver. 19. And that this muſt be the ſenſe here, we learn, not only from the Septuagint, the Syriac, and the Arabic, which render theſe words of Iſaiah thus, The heart of this people is waxed groſs, and their eyes have they cloſed leſt they ſhould ſee with their eyes; but alſo from our bleſſed Saviour, who, Matth. 13. 15. and from St Paul, who, Acts 28. 26, 27. exactly follow this tranſlation of the words.

Ver. 41. Theſe things ſaid Iſaias, when he ſaw his glory, &c.] i. e. when he ſaw the glory of the Lord Chriſt, not, as ſome Socinians contend, of God the Father. For,

1*ſt*, Theſe words, his glory, and, he ſpake of him, contain two pronouns, which are not in the words of the prophet, but only of the evangeliſt, and ſo muſt be referred to him of whom the evangeliſt here ſpeaks, viz. to him who had done ſo many miracles among them, and to him in whom they believed not, ver. 37. and in whom they could not believe, ver. 39.

2*dly*, If thoſe words, Theſe things ſaid Iſaias, when he ſaw his glory, are not to be underſtood of Chriſt; what uſe have they, or to what purpoſe do they here ſerve, there being no need to tell us, that Iſaias then ſaw the glory of God the Father, or ſpake of him?

3*dly*, Socinus well obſerves and proves, that the apoſtle's words do equally relate to both the paſſages produced from Iſaias, becauſe he ſaith not not this, but theſe things ſaid Iſaias. Now it is evident from the apoſtle Paul, Rom. 10. 16. citing theſe words, and applying them to the goſpel-times, that the firſt teſtimony relates to them, and, from the contents of the whole 53d chapter, that they relate to Chriſt's ſufferings, and his future glory, as Schlictingius here grants; and conſequently the words, theſe things ſpake Iſaias, muſt induce us to believe, that he ſpake alſo, in the other paſſage cited from him, of the glory of the ſame perſon. Schlictingius therefore anſwers, That the prophet, by ſeeing the glory of God, is ſaid alſo to ſee the glory of Chriſt, which was to fill the whole earth; for then was the earth repleniſhed with his glory, when God, by him, did his admirable works, when he raiſed him from the dead, and placed him at his own right hand, ſubjecting all things to his feet: when Iſaias in the Spirit ſaw his glory, John rightly ſays, he ſaw the glory of Chriſt; the glory of God and of Chriſt being ſo inſeparably connected, as the means to the end, that the glory of Chriſt directly tends to the glory of God the Father. But againſt this evaſion it is obſervable,

1*ſt*, That the prophet, chap. 53. if he ſpeaks at all of the glory of any perſon, as indeed he doth, ver. 10, 11, 12. ſpeaks of ſuch a one who poured out his ſoul unto death, and was numbered with the tranſgreſſors, and bare the ſin of many; which words cannot refer at all to God the Father.

2*dly*, In the 6th chapter he ſpeaks of one whom he then ſaw ſitting upon a throne, high and liſted up, and whoſe train filled the temple, ver. 1. and to whom the ſeraphims cried, Holy, holy, holy, is the Lord of hoſts, the whole earth is full of his glory, ver. 3. He therefore ſpeaketh not of any future glory, but of the glory he then ſaw, and of which the ſeraphims then ſang. And who can reaſonably think the prophet ſhould cry out, ver 5. Wo is me, becauſe I have ſeen the King, the Lord of hoſts, only becauſe he had ſeen a viſion of a mere man, who had as yet no being? However,

3*dly*, Seeing the prophet is ſo expreſs in it, that it was Jehovah Zebaoth, the Lord of hoſts, the King Jehovah, whoſe glory he then ſaw, and of whoſe glory the angels then ſang, and yet the evangeliſt declares he ſpake theſe things when he ſaw the glory of Chriſt, it follows that Chriſt muſt be one with this Jehovah.

Ver. 42. [u] Of the chief rulers, many believed in him;] i. e. They were inwardly convinced he was the Chriſt, though they durſt not openly confeſs this faith, leſt they ſhould be rendered infamous by being turned out of the ſynagogue; and ſo their faith was deficient in one great requiſite, confeſſion of it being made with the mouth unto ſalvation, Rom. 10. 9. Matth. 10. 32.

Ver. 44. [w] Believeth not in me] only, but in him alſo who hath ſet his ſeal to the teſtimony, John 3. 33. So the word only is to be underſtood, when Chriſt ſaith, He that receiveth me, receiveth not me, Mark 9. 37. and when St Peter ſaith to Ananias, Thou haſt not lied to man, but to God, Acts 5. 4. St Paul, He that deſpiſeth us, deſpiſeth not man, but God, 1 Theſſ. 4. 8. And this addition is here neceſſary, to avoid a contradiction in theſe words, He that believeth in me, believeth not in me. 2. Becauſe Chriſt ſo expreſly doth require his diſciples to believe in him, ſaying, chap. 14. 1. Ye believth in God, believe alſo in me; it is added, he believeth alſo in him that ſent me, to expreſs the dignity and excellency of this faith, and the dreadful effects of incredulity, ſince he that believes not, makes God a liar, 1 John 5. 10.

Ver. 45. [x] He that ſeeth me, ſeeth him that ſent me.] See the note on chap. 14. 9.

Ver. 46. [y] I am come a light into the world,] that he who believeth in me, and embraceth my doctrine, may not abide in darkneſs; i. e. in ignorance of the way to life, nor be caſt out into utter darkneſs, as the Jews will be for their incredulity, Matth. 8. 12.

Ver. 47, 48. [z] I judge him not;] i. e. I paſs not on him the decretory ſentence here on earth, where I am to perform the office of a prophet, not a judge, chap. 8. 15. yet let him know he ſhall hereafter be judged, and have the ſentence paſſed upon him, according to that doctrine which I preach, and be puniſhed by God for contempt of it, becauſe the words I ſpeak, I ſpeak not of myſelf, but as he gave me a commandment, ſo I ſpeak. Chriſt neither doth nor could deny that he would judge all men at the laſt, becauſe he had declared the Father had committed all judgment to the Son, John 5. 27. and had given him power to raiſe them up, and judge them at the laſt, ver. 26. 27. but only doth deny that he was to aſſume this office whilſt he was on earth.

CHAP. XIII.

1. NOW before the feaſt of the paſſover, when Jeſus knew that his hour was come, that he ſhould depart out of this world to the Father, having loved his own (apoſtles) which were in the world, [a] he loved them to the end (or cloſe of his life.)

2. And [b] ſupper (time) being ended (Gr. come,) the devil having now put (it) into the heart of Judas Iſcariot, Simons ſon, to betray him;

3. Jeſus knowing (his great dignity, in) that the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he was [c] come (Gr. come forth) from God, and went to God;

4. He, (to ſhew an admirable example of humility,) riſeth from ſupper, and laid aſide his garments, and took a towel and girded himſelf (after the manner of a ſervant.)

5. After that he poured water into a baſon, and began to [d] waſh his diſciples feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded.

6. Then cometh he to Simon Peter; and Peter ſaith unto him, Lord, doſt thou (think I can ſuffer thee to) waſh my feet?

7. Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto him, (For) what (end) I do (this) thou [e] knoweſt not now, but thou ſhalt know hereafter, (when I have performed this ceremony, ver. 12, 15.)

8. Peter ſaith unto him, Thou ſhalt never waſh my feet: Jeſus anſwered him, If I waſh thee not, (if thy heart and thy affections be not purified by me,) thou haſt no part with me, (thou wilt not be fitted for my ſervice, or receive any benefit by me.)

9. Simon Peter ſaith unto him, Lord, (if this waſhing be ſo neceſſary to that end, waſh) not my feet only, but alſo my hands and my head.

10. Jeſus ſaith unto him, He that is waſhed, (i. e. truly ſanctified and cleanſed once,) [f] needeth not, ſave to waſh his feet, (his heart and his affections,) but (if he ſtill keep them pure and rightly inclined,) is clean every whit, (in all his thoughts and actions proceeding from them;) and ye are (in a good meaſure) clean, but not all, (Judas being full of filthineſs. This exception he made,)

10. For (Becauſe) he knew who ſhould betray him, therefore ſaid he, Ye are not all clean.

12. So after he had waſhed their feet, and taken his garments (which he had laid aſide in order to that work,) and was ſat down again, he ſaid unto them, Know ye what I have done to you?

13. Ye call me [g] Maſter, and Lord, and ye ſay well, (i. e. what is right,) for ſo I am.

14. If I then (who am) your Lord and Maſter have waſhed your feet, [h] ye alſo ought to waſh one anothers feet; (i. e. to be as ready to do the meaneſt offices to other Chriſtians.)

15. For I (by doing this) have given you an example, that ye ſhould do (to others) as I have done to you.

16. Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, The ſervant is not greater than his lord, neither (is) he that is ſent greater than he that ſent him; (and therefore you my ſervants, whom I ſend to preach the goſpel to all nations, ought not to think it beneath you to do to others what I your Lord, from whom you receive your commiſſion, do to you.)

17. If ye know theſe things, (that knowledge, without a ſuitable practice, will only aggravate your doom; but) happy are ye if ye do them.

18. (And when I ſpeak of your being happy) I ſpeak not of you all, (for) [i] I know whom I have choſen, (i. e. what is the inward diſpoſition of them;) but (one of them is ſo diſpoſed towards me,) that the ſcripture may be fulfilled, (which ſaith, Pſal. 41. 9.) He that eateth bread with me (as my familiar friend) hath lift up his heel againſt me.

19. Now I tell you (of this) before it come (to paſs,) that when it is come to paſs [k] ye may believe that I am he (who ſearcheth all hearts, and alſo am the Son of David, to whom theſe things belong.)

20. (And believing this, you will ſee cauſe ſufficient to go on chearfully in my ſervice; for) Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, He that receiveth whomſoever I ſend, (ſhall be eſteemed as one that) receiveth me, and he that receiveth me, (as one that) receiveth him that ſent me.

21. When Jeſus had this ſaid, he was troubled in (his) ſpirit, (partly at the apprehenſion of his ſufferings, and partly at the vileneſs and pernicious conſequences of the fact,) and teſtified, and ſaid, Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, that one of you ſhall betray me.

22. Then the diſciples looked one on another, doubting of whom he ſpake (this.)

23. Now there was leaning on Jeſus boſom one of his diſciples, whom Jeſus loved, (viz. St John.)

24. Simon Peter therefore [l] beckned to him, that he ſhould ask, who it ſhould be of whom he ſpake.

25. He

25. He then lying on Jeſus breaſt, ſaith unto him (with a low voice,) Lord, who is it?

26. Jeſus anſwered (him,) He it is to whom I ſhall give a ſop, when I have dipped it (in the diſh:) and when he had dipped the ſop, he gave it to Judas Iſcariot the ſon of Simon.

27. And after the ſop [m] Satan entered (more fully) into him: then ſaid Jeſus unto him, [n] What thou doſt, (thou mayſt) do quickly, (as ſoon as thou wilt, for I am ready to ſuffer.)

28. Now no man at the table (ſave St John) knew for what intent he ſpake this to him.

29. For ſome of them thought, becauſe Judas had the bag, that Jeſus had ſaid to him, Buy thoſe things that we have need of againſt the (paſchal) feaſt, or that he ſhould [o] give ſomething to the poor.

30. He then having received the ſop, went immediately out (to accompliſh his deſign,) and it was night (when he did ſo.)

31. Therefore when he was gone out, Jeſus ſaid, [p] Now is the Son of man (to ſuffer, and then to be) glorified, (Luke 24. 26. Heb. 2. 9.) and God is (to be) glorified in him, (thus ſuffering for the ſalvation of mankind.)

32. [q] If God be glorified in (and by) him, God ſhall alſo glorify him in himſelf, (by committing all things to his hands, and ſeating him at the right hand of majeſty and power, John 17. 5.) and ſhall ſtraightway (thus) glorify him.

33. Little children, yet a [r] little while I am with you, (and then) ye ſhall ſeek me; and as I ſaid (before) to the Jews, Whither I go ye cannot come, ſo now I ſay unto you, (Ye cannot come now, till your work on earth be finiſhed, ver 36. and I have prepared manſions in heaven for you, John 14. 2.)

34. A new commandment I give to you, (to be continually obſerved by all my diſciples;) that ye love one another, (after my example, who lay down my life for you, requiring,) [s] as I have loved you, that ye alſo (ſo) love one another.

35. By [t] this ſhall all men know that ye are my diſciples, if ye (thus) love one another.

36. Simon Peter ſaid unto him, Lord, whither goeſt thou? Jeſus anſwered him, Whither I go [u] thou canſt not follow me now, (as being not yet prepared to ſuffer for my ſake;) but thou ſhalt follow me afterwards, (and ſuffer on the croſs as I do.)

37. Peter ſaid unto him, Lord, why cannot I follow thee now? I will lay down my life for thy ſake.

38. Jeſus anſwered him, Wilt thou lay down thy life for my ſake? Verily, verily, I ſay unto thee, [w] The cock ſhall not crow, (i. e. it ſhall not be the time of cock crowing) till thou haſt denied me thrice.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XIII.

Ver. 1. [a] HE loved them to the end;] i. e. to the cloſe of his life, and ſhewed this affection to them by waſhing their feet. This paſſage therefore can afford no argument, that the regenerate can never fall away, becauſe Chriſt ſpeaks not of the chuſing of any to ſalvation, but only of thoſe whom he had choſen out of the world to be his apoſtles, chap. 15. 19. nor of his love of them to the end of their lives, but of his own.

Ver. 2. [b] And ſupper being ended.] That this was not the paſchal ſupper, but a ſupper they were at before the feaſt of the paſſover, ver. 1. ſee fully proved in the appendix to the 14th chapter of St Mark, anſwer to objection the ſecond. To the arguments there offered for this purpoſe, add, That at this ſupper Chriſt only privately diſcovers the traitor to St John, ver. 25, 26. whereas at the paſchal ſupper he makes him known openly to them all, Matth. 26. 25. Luke 22. 21. here he diſcovers him to St John, by giving him a ſop which he had dipped in the diſh, ver. 26. there he diſcovers him to the reſt by this, that his hand was with him in the diſh, Matth. 26. 23. Mark 14. 20. See additions, N°. 22.

Ver. 3. [c] Jeſus knowing, ὅτι ἀπὸ Θεοῦ ἐξῆλθεν καὶ πρὸς Θεὸν ὑπάγει, that he came out from God, and went to God:] ſo chap. 16. 28. I went out from the Father, and came into the world: again, I leave the world, and go to the Father. Now, ſeeing it is certain that he left the world, and went to the Father, by aſcending from the earth to the higheſt heavens; muſt not the oppoſition require, that he came out from the Father into the world, by coming from heaven to the earth? for theſe two are oppoſite by commutation of terms; the term from which in the one, being the term to which in the other; which oppoſition is wholly loſt by ſaying, with the Socinians, that Chriſt is ſaid to come forth from God, or from the Father, only becauſe he came as his legate or ambaſſador, and was made known to the world by his credentials, the miracles done by him in his Father's name. Moreover, according to this expoſition, the oppoſite poſite term, his going to God and to the Father, muſt import his ceaſing to be his legate, or to make himſelf known by the miracles done by a power derived from his Father; whereas he, after his aſcenſion, made himſelf ſtill thus more known to the world. Add to this, that the prophets of old, and Moſes eſpecially, were God's meſſengers, and made themſelves known to the world by miracles done by God as their credentials, and ſo were after them the apoſtles in like manner the legates and ambaſſadors of God and Chriſt; but yet it never was nor could be ſaid of them, or any of them, I went forth from God, and from the Father, and came into the world; which ſhews this phraſe is proper to our Lord, and ſo the reaſon of it muſt be peculiar to him alone.

Object. 1. The apoſtles believed, that Chriſt came forth from God, John 16. 30.—17. 8. but yet they believed not that he had a Divine eſſence.

Anſw. What reaſon have the Socinians to ſay this ſo confidently of the apoſtles, who not only ſaw him do ſuch mighty miracles as argued a divine power in him, and whom he charges ſo often to believe, that he was in the Father, and the Father in him, but alſo did themſelves caſt out devils, and heal diſeaſes in his name throughout Judea, when we was abſent from them; this being a proof to them that he, though abſent from them in body, was always preſent with them by his power? what reaſon have they to conclude this from the places cited, ſince, in the firſt, they argue this from his Omniſcience, an attribute inſeparable from the Divine nature, ſaying, Now we perceive, that thou knoweſt all things: and ἐν τούτῳ, by this we believe thou cameſt forth from God; in the ſecond, they hear him ſaying, Father, glorify me with the glory I had with thee before the world was, ver. 5. and ver. 7. are ſaid to know, that all things which the Father had given him, even the power to do and know all things, were of God; and thence are ſaid to know, that he truly or indeed came from God?

Object. 2. But how can God be ſaid to come from God into the world, when he is always in the heavens; or, to leave the world, and go to the Father?

Anſw. 1. To this our Saviour partly himſelf anſwers, by ſaying, that he was in heaven, even then when he ſays, he came down from heaven. See the note on chap. 3. 13.

2. I have obſerved, note on chap. 3. 13. that as to his Divine nature, he is ſaid to deſcend from heaven, not by a local deſcent, or by quitting heaven, but only by the manifeſtation of himſelf upon earth; and in this ſenſe, God himſelf is often ſaid to deſcend from heaven, when by any divine work done on earth he demonſtrates his preſence there; and he is alſo ſaid to aſcend again into heaven afterwards. Why therefore may not God the Word be ſaid to deſcend from heaven, and even dwell with men, as God is ſaid to dwell in the tabernacle and in the temple, when the Logos dwelt in the human nature upon earth, and manifeſted his glory in it; and alſo to leave the world, and go to the Father, not only as properly doing this by the exaltation of the human nature, but as doing all his divine works now from heaven, where he ſits in the majeſty and glory of the Father?

Ver. 5. [d] And he began to waſh his diſciples feet.] Great is this inſtance of humility, if we conſider, (1.) The dignity of the perſon, expreſſed in the foregoing words: (2.) The action itſelf, with the circumſtances of it: for, 1. Chriſt lays aſide his garment, and he girds himſelf, as Philo ſaith ſervants uſed to do when they did miniſter to their maſters. 2. He actually waſhed his diſciples feet, which alſo ſervants did to their maſters when they came from a journey, to cleanſe them from the dirt, and to refreſh them, 1 Tim. 5. 10. According to thoſe words of Abigail to David, Let me be a ſervant to waſh the feet of my lord, 1 Sam. 25. 41. and which ſuperiors did not do to inferiors. See Dr Lightfoot on the place.

Ver. 7. [e] What I do thou knoweſt not now, but thou ſhalt know hereafter.] After the ceremony is finiſhed, I ſhall tell thee, it was intended as an example of that humility which I would have you ſhew, in miniſtring to the meaneſt Chriſtians, though you in ſtation and office be ſuperior to them. It farther may be gathered from thoſe words, ver. 8. If I waſh thee not, thou haſt no part in me, or wilt receive no benefit by me; and from the purity mentioned, ver. 10. that Chriſt intended alſo by this rite, that purity of mind and of affection which he required of all thoſe who belonged to him, and which he would increaſe in them by his word and Spirit, Eph. c. 26. and which in ſcripture was uſually repreſented by waſhing and pouring of water, as in thoſe words, Iſaiah 1. 16. Waſh ye, καθαροὶ γένεσθε, be ye clean, and in that promiſe, Ezek. 36. 25. I will pour clean water upon you, καὶ καθαρισθήσεσθε, and ye ſhall be cleanſed from your iniquities.

Ver. 10. [f] Needeth not, ſave to waſh his feet,] becauſe they only gather dirt and gravel in a journey. So in the metaphor, in our travel through the world, all the defilement we contract ariſes from our miſplaced or our immoderate affection, love, love, deſire, fear averſation, hatred. The Jewiſh prieſts were to waſh their hands as well as feet when they offered ſacrifice to God, Exod. 30. 19. becauſe their hands were chiefly employed in that work, and ſo their hands unwaſhed were ſaid to be unconſecrated, common or unclean; Maimonides Tr. de ædif. Templi, cap. 1. §. 6. & Tr. 3. c. 5. §. 1. The apoſtles are required only to waſh their feet, their buſineſs being to travel through the world, preaching the goſpel. Note alſo, That Chriſt waſhed the feet of Judas; for he was preſent at this rite, and is not ſaid to be excepted; only Chriſt here ſaith, this waſhing did not make him clean.

Ver. 13. [g] Ye call me maſter and lord;] your maſter by teaching, and your lord by commanding; ſo Grotius. But, ὁ Κύριος, the word Lord here ſeems to import the Lord from heaven, ver. 1. or him who is Lord of all; in which ſenſe, to us Chriſtians, there is but one Lord, Acts 2. 36. 1. Cor. 8. 6.

Ver. 14. [h] Ye ought to waſh one anothers feet;] not in the literal ſenſe, by doing this once a year; but in the ſpiritual, by being always ready to do any ſervice by which we may promote the welfare and advance the purity of any member of the church; for the ſervant is not above his Lord.

Ver. 18. [i] I know whom I have choſen.] Chriſt ſpeaks not here of an election to faith, and by it to ſalvation; that being conſtantly in ſcripture aſcribed to God the Father, not to Chriſt acting as his prophet; but of being choſen to the office of an apoſtle: nor does he intend here to ſay, that he had choſen ſome of his apoſtles, and not others; for he owns that he had choſen Judas, by ſaying, Have not I choſen twelve, and one of them is a devil? chap. 6. 70. The import of theſe words ſeems therefore to be this, I know the temper and diſpoſition of them whom I have choſen, and what I may expect from one of them; for which cauſe I ſaid, Ye are not all clean; but God in his wiſdom hath permitted this, that as Ahithophel betrayed David, though he was his familiar friend, ſo Judas, my familiar at my table, might betray the Son of God; and ſo the words recorded Pſalm 41. 9 might be fulfilled in him alſo, of whom king David was the type. See additions, N°. 23.

Ver. 19. [k] That when it comes to paſs ye may believe, ὅτι ἐγώ εἰμι, that I am;] not only that I am the Chriſt, as chap. 8. 24. but alſo, that I am he who ſearcheth the hearts, and knows things future and contingent, which is the property of God alone, 1 Kings 8. 30. Iſa. 41. 22, 23. and ſo believing in me, may believe alſo in him that ſent me, ver. 20. See Examen Millii.

Ver. 24. [l] Simon Peter beckons to him that he ſhould ask.] That all mentioned from this to the 27th verſe was done ſecretly, Simon only nodding to John, he ſpeaking to Chriſt only in his ear, and Chriſt ſo anſwering that he only underſtood his words, is plain from this, That no man at the table knew for what intent Chriſt ſaid to Judas, What thou doſt, do quickly, ſave St John, ver. 27. 28.

Ver. 27. [m] Satan entered into him;] non ſecundum ſubſtantiam, ſed ſecundem operationem, ſaith St Jerom; i. e. not as to the ſubſtance, but as to operation; as he is ſaid to do when the will is fully enclined to obey his motions, and we do not reſiſt them. But of this ſee the note on Luke 22. 3.

Ibid [n] What thou doeſt, do quickly.] This is not a command to Judas to go on with his wicked enterpriſe, but only a declaration made by Chriſt of his readineſs to ſuffer death, as in the paraphraſe. So Ezek. 20. 39. Go ye, ſerve ye every one his idols.

Ver. 29. [o] That he ſhould give ſomething to the poor.] This charity ſeems to be the proper buſineſs at a feaſt, Eſther 9. 22.

Ver. 31. [p] Now is the Son of man glorified, &c.] The context ſeemeth to require the ſenſe given in the paraphraſe; and then the Paſſive Aoriſt is put for the Future, as οὐκ ἐλήλυθεν, will he not come? ch. 11. 56. ἐκλήθη, he ſhall be caſt out, chap. 15. 6. See Glaſſ. de verbo, can. 47. Or elſe the ſenſe may be given thus, Hitherto hath the Son of man been glorified by his doctrine and his miracles, by which he hath fully proved his miſſion; and God hath been glorified by them both, he having ſtill done and ſpoken them in his Father's name. See Examen Millii.

Ver. 32. [q] If God be glorified in him, God will glorify him ἐν ἑαυτῷ, in himſelf,] by ſigns done in the heaven and the earth, which ſhall force men to ſay even at his death, Truly this was the Son of God, Mat. 27. 45, 51,—54. by his glorious reſurrection, and aſcenſion, and ſeſſion at his own right hand, by giving him all power in heaven and earth, and a name above every name, Philip. 2. 9. And this he will preſently begin to do, ſo that you ſeeing ſuch admirable circumſtances of my paſſion, and ſuch a glorious iſſue of it, may go on chearfully in preaching my goſpel, expecting my power to aſſiſt you in the work, and a full reward of all your ſufferings for my ſake.

Ver. 33. [r] Yet a little while am I with you;] i. e. by my bodily preſence; for he had promiſed to abide for ever with them by his Spirit, chap. 14. 16. and his divine preſence, Mat. 28. 20.

Ver. 34. [s] As I have loved you,] even to the ſhedding ſhedding of my blood for you, and even for mine enemies; not with reſpect to any merit on their part, or any advantage on mine, but out of pure affection to their ſouls. This is the love you are to imitate in your affection one to another.

Ver. 35. [t] By this ſhall all men know that ye are my diſciples.] The diſciples of the Baptiſt were known by the auſterity of their lives, the diſciples of the Phariſees by their habit, and ſeparation from other men: Chriſt will have his diſciples known by their profound affection to each other, which in the primitive ages was ſo great, that it made the (a) Heathens with great admiration to cry out, Vide ut invicem ſe diligunt, See how they love one another; and even to hate and envy them for their brotherly affection. Hence Julian propoſes them to the Heathens as a fit pattern for their imitation.

Ver. 36. [u] Thou canſt not follow me now,] i. e. in my ſufferings, till, by the deſcent of the holy Ghoſt upon thee, thou art ſtrengthened.

Ver. 38. [w] Before the cock crow,] viz. in the morning, ſtiled emphatically the cock-crowing. See the note on Mat. 26. 34.

CHAP. XIV.

1. LET not your hearts be troubled; [a] ye believe in God, believe alſo in me, (who am one with the Father, and to whom all power is committed. See John 10. 30, 38.)

2. In my Fathers houſe are many [b] manſions, (ſufficient to receive you, and all that believe in me, to eternal life:) if it were not ſo, I would have told you (that no ſuch manſions were to be expected; but now) I go [c] to prepare a place for you.

3. And if I go and prepare (when I ſhall have gone and prepared) a place for you, [d] I will come again and receive you to myſelf, that where I am (there) ye may be alſo.

4. And whither I go, ye know; (for I have told you I go to my Father,) and the way ye know; (for I am the way, ver. 6. and the teacher of it, by obſerving whoſe words you will come to me.)

5. Thomas ſaith to him, Lord, we know not whither thou goeſt; and how (then) can we know the way (to thee?)

6. Jeſus ſaith unto him, [e] I am the way, and the truth, and the life, (by teaching that way of ſaving truth which leadeth to life eternal;) no man cometh to the Father, but by (faith in) me, (and by obſervance of my word.)

7. [f] If ye had (fully) known me, ye ſhould have known my Father alſo, (who is in me, and is made viſible by his works done by me;) and from henceforth, (from the time I have been with you,) ye (have) know (n) him (by his word,) and have ſeen him (by his works.)

8. Philip ſaith unto him, Lord, ſhew us the Father, (as he was ſeen by Moſes and the Iſraelites, at the giving of the law, in glorious ſymbols of his preſence,) and it ſufficeth us.

9. Jeſus ſaith unto him, Have I been ſo long with you, and yet haſt thou not known me, Philip? he that hath ſeen me, hath ſeen (in me the works of) the Father, (by which only he is viſible;) and how ſayſt thou then, Shew us the Father, (as if thou hadſt not ſeen him, or couldſt ſee him otherwiſe?)

10. Believeſt thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father in me, (by his Spirit enabling me to ſpeak the words, and to do the works of God?) The words that I ſpeak unto you, I ſpeak not of myſelf, (ſee note on chap. 8. 14.) but the Father that dwelleth in me (by the Spirit, John 3. 34.) he doth the works (by which my prophetic office is confirmed.)

11. Believe me, that I am (thus) in the Father, and the Father in me; or elſe, (if thou believeſt not for my own ſake,) believe me for the very works ſake, (which are done by the power and Spirit of the Father.)

12. Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do ſhall he do alſo; [g] and greater works than theſe ſhall he do, becauſe I go unto my Father, (to ſend the holy Ghoſt to enable them to do them.)

13. And [h] whatſoever ye ſhall ask in my name (for the promotion of the goſpel,) that will I (thus enable you to) do, that the Father may be glorified in (by) the Son, (ſending the holy Ghoſt upon you from the Father)

14. If ye ſhall ask any thing in my name, I will do it.

15. If ye love me, (expreſs the ſincerity of that love, ſo as to) keep my commandments.

16. And (then) I will pray the Father, and he ſhall give you [i] another Comforter, (even the holy Ghoſt,) that he may abide with you, (and thoſe that ſhall ſucceed you,) for ever;

17. Even the Spirit of truth, whom the world cannot receive, becauſe it ſeeth him not, neither knoweth him, (they having no experience of his preſence presence with them, or of his sanctifying operations on them, by which alone he can be seen or known: for being an holy Spirit, he cannot abide with unholy souls:) but ye (who are sanctified by him,) know him; for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you.

(a) Tertul. apol. c. 39. Sic mutuo, quod doletis, amore diligimus: ſic nos, quod invidetis, fratres vocamus. Minutius, p. 35, 36.

18. I will not leave you comfortless, I will come to you (by this Spirit.)

19. Yet a little while and the world seeth me no more, but ye (shall) see me, (i. e. shall find experimentally my presence with you: for) [k] because I live, ye (in the midst of all the perils and persecutions of the world) shall live also, (2 Cor. 4. 10, 11.)

20. [l] At that day (that I send this Comforter,) ye shall know that I am in my Father, (by receiving this Spirit from him,) and ye in me, and I in you, (by this Spirit communicated from me your head, to unite you my members unto me.)

21. He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me; and he that loveth me, shall be loved of my Father; and I will love him, [m] and will manifest myself to him, (by the presence and illuminations of this Spirit of truth.)

22. Judas saith unto him, not (he that was named) Iscariot, Lord, (seeing thou art to be a glorious king over us, and all the nations of the world,) [n] how is it that thou wilt manifest thyself to us, and not to the world?

23. Jesus answered and said unto him, If a man love me, he will keep my words; and (then) my Father will love him, [o] and we will come to him, and make our abode with him, (by the Spirit of the Father and the Son dwelling in him.)

24. He that loveth me not, (as the world doth not,) keepeth not my sayings, (and so can neither know me nor my Father,) and (so cannot be loved by us: for) the word which you hear, is not (originally) mine, but the Fathers which sent me; (and it is only obedience to it that procures his and my love.)

25. These things have I spoken to you, being yet present with you:

26. But the [p] Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, (i. e. as my Spirit, to act in my name, and for my honour,) he shall teach you all things (which are requisite to be known by you, and taught to others.) and bring all things to your remembrance whatsoever I have said to you.

27. [q] Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you, (by giving you that Spirit, whose fruits are joy and peace;) not as the world giveth (peace when they part from their friends, by wishing to them that peace which they do not heartily desire, or are not able to impart,) give I (it) to you, (but effectually; and therefore) let not your heart be troubled (at my departure,) neither let it be afraid (what may befal you when I am gone.)

28. Ye have heard how I said unto you, I go away, and come again to you, (but for a little while:) if ye loved me (and my advancement, as affectionately and wisely as ye ought to do,) ye would rejoice, because I said, I go to the Father; for [r] my Father is greater than I.

29. And [s] now I have told you before it come to pass, (that I am going to the Father to send the Comforter to you,) that when it is come to pass ye might (have greater reason to) believe (in me.)

30. Hereafter I will not talk much with you; for [t] the prince of this world (Satan) cometh (by his agents, the rulers of the Jews, to take away my life,) and hath nothing in me, (no power over me to inflict death upon me on the account of sin, as he hath over others, Heb. 2. 14.)

31. But (I give up myself to the death, in compliance with my Father's will, John 10. 18.) that the world may know that I love the Father; and as the Father gave me commandment, even so I do. Arise (therefore,) let us go hence.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XIV.

Ver. 1. [a] Πιστεύετε εἰς τὸν Θεὸν καὶ εἰς ἐμὲ πιστεύετε, Ye believe in God, believe also in me.] There being no example I can find, where the same word, in the same sentence, is used both in the indicative and the imperative mood, I had rather render these words in the same mood thus, Believe in God, believe also in me; i. e. that I may prescribe a remedy to that trouble which hath seized your hearts, from the consideration of my passion, and my departure from you, and of the troubles you must expect in execution of your office, I advise you to believe in God, the author of that doctrine you are to preach, and therefore the defender of those who propagate it; and in me, in whose name you are to preach it, as having all power in heaven and earth, and being always present with you, and therefore being able to assist and preserve you from all dangers, and to reward your faithful labours with that crown of glory I have promised.

Ver. 2. [b] In my Father's house are many mansions;] in which, after your labours, you shall find eternal reſt. So the Jews ſay, that in paradiſe are ſeven manſions, which are each twelve thouſand miles long, ten thouſand broad, and as many high. So Moſes Haddarſon in Gen. 2. 9.

Ibid. [c] I go to prepare a place for you.] For Chriſt, by his entrance with his ſacrifice into heaven, procured for us an entrance into that place, which before was inacceſſible, or a new living way of entering through the veil rent for us at his death, he preparing theſe manſions for us by his own entrance firſt into heaven with his ſacrifice. See the notes on Heb. 9. 8, 23, 24.—10. 20.

Ver. 3. [d] I come again, and will receive you to myſelf;] i. e. into thoſe manſions, that then you may be for ever with me, and be made partakers of that happineſs I there enjoy. Whence it ſeems probable that all the ſaints, the bleſſed apoſtles not excepted, are only to be crowned at the ſame time, to wit, at our Lord's ſecond advent. See the note on Heb. 11. 40. and obſerve, that ἔρχομαι, here, is to be rendered, when I come again. See the note on Heb. 3. 7.

Ver. 6. [e] I am the way, the truth, and the life;] the author of the way that leadeth to life, the teacher of that truth which directs to it, the giver of that life which is to be obtained by walking in it: and this life conſiſts in the viſion or enjoyment of the Father, to whom none cometh but by faith in me, ver. 6.

Ver. 7. [f] If you had known me, you would have known the Father alſo.] Note, That Chriſt here ſpeaks not of the knowledge of his Father's eſſence, (1.) Becauſe that is not to be ſeen, as here the Father is ſaid to be, ver. 9. (2.) Becauſe the reaſon here aſſigned of this knowledge, is, that Chriſt ſpake not from himſelf, but from the Father; and ſo the Father was to be known by what he taught. (3.) He adds, That the works he did were done by the power of the Father abiding in him; and ſo the power and other attributes of the Father might be ſeen by them; his goodneſs and mercy by the kindneſs and mercy ſhewed in all his miracles; his wiſdom, righteouſneſs and holineſs, in the purity of his doctrine. In me, ſaith he, ſpeaking my Father's words, ye do already know him, i. e. his ſacred will; in me, doing my Father's works, ye ſee him, viz. his attributes; and of my ability to do them you cannot well doubt; for I am in the Father, and the Father in me by virtue of his Spirit reſiding in me; ſo that I both perfectly know his will, and can do the moſt mighty works by this power of the moſt High, Luke 1. 35.

Ver. 12. [g] And ſhall do greater works than theſe, becauſe I go to the Father.] That which interpreters here ſay of diſeaſes healed by the ſhadow of Peter, and by napkins ſent from St Paul, and of more miracles performed throughout the world, and devils ejected through three whole centuries every where, is not unfitly mentioned here, as anſwering to theſe words; but yet I think, this chiefly is to be referred to the admirable ſucceſs of the goſpel preached by the apoſtles after the deſcent of the holy Ghoſt upon them, and the inward gifts of tongues, and the interpretation of them, of prophecy, and diſcerning of ſpirits, and the imparting of theſe gifts to others by baptiſm, and the impoſition of the apoſtles hands: for as this was a greater work in our Lord Jeſus thus to aſſiſt ſo many with his power, when abſent at ſo great a diſtance as is earth from heaven, than to do miracles in their preſence; ſo to communicate theſe inward gifts to men, and enable them to transfer them to others upon faith in Chriſt, is truly wonderful: for, as Arnobius ſaith, (a) Tranſcribere in alium jus tuum, & quod facere ſolus poſſis; fragiliſſimæ rei donare & participare faciendum, ſuper omnia ſitæ eſt poteſtatis; continentiſque ſub ſe omnium rerum cauſas, & rationum facultatumque naturas. But more eſpecially when he himſelf ſucceeded ſo little in three years preaching here on earth, and had ſo few ſincere diſciples, that he ſhould enable his apoſtles at one ſermon to convert ſome thouſands, and cauſe his goſpel to fly like lightning through the world, and beat down all ſtrong-holds of oppoſition, this is truly admirable. That to theſe fruits of the miſſion of the holy Ghoſt theſe words do principally relate, appeareth from the reaſon of them here aſſigned, Becauſe I go to the Father, viz. to ſend that holy Spirit down upon you, by whom theſe greater works are to be done.

Ver. 13. [h] And whatſoever ye ſhall ask in my name, I will do.] Here Chriſt ſhews how theſe great works ſhould be done by them, viz. not by their own power, or any divine virtue reſiding in them, as our Lord did his; but in the name and by the power of Chriſt, Acts 3. 12, 16. by faith in him, and prayer to God in his name, Acts 4. 24, 30. Note alſo here, That Chriſt ſaith, Whatever ye ſhall thus ask, I will do; which as it ſuppoſes in him Omniſcience, enabling him to know the requeſts of all Chriſtians upon earth, and Omnipotence, enabling him to aſſiſt them every where in the performance of the greateſt works, ſo muſt it conſequently imply an unity of eſſence betwixt the Father and the Son, and ſo the Father is glorified in the Son. Hence what is here, I will do, is, chap. 16. 23. the Father will give you. Note alſo, That whereas the Jews uſed to beg a bleſſing for the fathers ſake, or for the ſake of Abraham,

(a) Arnob. l. 1. p 31.

Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, though being only men they never prayed to them; the Christians not only prayed to the Father in the name of the Son, but invoked the Son also, as being one God with the Father; this being a periphrasis of Christians, that they were those who called upon the name of Christ, Acts 9. 14, 21. see note on Rom. 10. 13. And this seems here to be mentioned to confirm their faith in him, that he who so loved them had power to do all things for them.

Ver. 16. [i] Another Comforter.] See note chap. 16. 7.

Ver. 19. [k] Because I live, ye shall live also,] by virtue of this promise. Though the apostles were always delivered up to death for the sake of Jesus, yet was the life of Christ manifested in their mortal flesh, by preserving them, and delivering them from so many deaths, 2 Cor. 4. 10, 11. and they are said to live by and with him, 2 Cor. 13. 4. by virtue of that miraculous power he conferred upon them for the promotion of the gospel, 2 Cor. 4. 7.—10. 4.—12. 10.

Ver. 20. [l] In that day ye shall know that I am in the Father, and you in me, and I in you.] It is certain that Christ was in his apostles by his Spirit abiding with them, ver. 16 and that they were in him by the same Spirit uniting them to their head Christ, Eph. 2. 22.—3. 16, 17.—4. 16. and therefore Christ must be here said to be in the Father by the Spirit of the Father residing in him; but with this difference, that the Spirit of the Father resided in Christ without measure, chap. 3. 34. and so that all that was the Father's was also Christ's, chap. 16. 15. his wisdom, and his power; whereas he was in the apostles only by the gifts conferred upon them, according to the measure of the gift of Christ. (2.) He was in Christ, as Justin M. notes, not for indigence, but partly because the nature of his prophetic office did so require, and partly to be derived from him as the fountain upon all his members; but he was given to them because they wanted his assistance to fit them to be able ministers of the New Testament, 2 Cor. 3. 5, 6. See additions, N°. 24.

Ver. 21. [m] And will manifest myself to him;] as in the paraphrase, so also by those miraculous works which shall demonstrate my presence with him. This presence he promiseth to his disciples, Matth. 28. 20. Mark 16. 17, 18. and made good by his powerful Spirit with his church, 1 Cor. 5. 4. 2 Cor. 13. 3, 4, 5.

Ver. 22. [n] How is it that thou wilt manifest thyself to us, and not to the world?] This question seems to be put to Christ according to that known opinion of the Jews, that the kingdom of Christ was to be an earthly dominion over the whole world, appearing with great outward splendor, or with observation, Luke 17. 20. so that the Jews under their Messiah should lord it over the whole earth, and so he should manifest himself to the whole world. So (b) Josephus speaks of an ambiguous oracle among them, declaring that about that time ἀπὸ τ χώρας τις ἐκείνων ἄρξει τ οἰκουμένης, one of their country should reign over the whole earth, and that many of their wise men did so interpret it. So (c) Origen tells us they expected μέγαν καὶ δυνάστην, καὶ πάσης τ γῆς, καὶ πάντων τ ἐθνῶν Κύριον εἶναι, that their Messiah should be a great potentate, and the Lord of the whole earth, and of all nations. And (d) Trypho, in his dialogue with Justin Martyr, saith the same.

Ver. 23. [o] And we will come to him, and take up our abode with him,] by that Spirit whose temple is the body of the saints, 1 Cor. 3. 16.—6. 13. and by whose in-dwelling they are made an habitation of God, Eph. 2. 22. Here therefore is no express mention made of the holy Spirit, because by him it is that the Father and the Son dwell in us; and so it is in the beginning of the Epistles, praying for grace and peace from the Father, and our Lord Jesus Christ, because this grace and peace was to be conferred on men by the Spirit.

Ver. 26. [p] But the Comforter, whom the Father will send in my name,] whom I will send you from my Father, John 15. 26.—16. 7. he proceeding from the Father and the Son, him the Father shed forth according to his promise, Acts 2. 17, 18. the Son, ver. 33. Hence is he stiled the Spirit of the Father, Matth. 10. 20. and the Spirit of the Son, Gal. 4. 6. the Spirit of Christ, 1 Peter 1. 11. Rom. 8. 9. Philip. 1. 19.

Ver 27. [q] Peace I leave with you, not as the world,] in empty wishes of what they neither do nor can give, nor that external peace which is both temporary and uncertain, but inward peace of conscience arising from the pardon of your sins, Rom. 5. 1. from the sense of the favour of God, and of my presence with you by the Spirit; that peace which no man can take from you, chap. 16. 22. that peace which passeth understanding, which will keep your hearts in the faith, Philip. 4. 7. and free you from all sollicitude and fear of the world.

Ver. 28. [r] For my Father is greater than I.] This, saith Woltzogenius, is a demonstration that Christ is not the true God, than whom none is or can be greater. But the primitive fathers did not allow that there was any ſtrength in this argument; for they granted that there was one God the Father, who was over all, and yet that Chriſt with the Father was the God of the living, as having in all things the excellency or ſovereignty of the Father, ſaith (e) Irenæus: they therefore owned that the Father was greater than the Son, as to his original, the Son being begotten by him; and yet declared that he was God, and equal to God, as to his eſſence, as (f) Tertullian and (g) Novatian teach. So then we may grant, as to the Divine nature, that as to the dependence on the Father it is leſs, i. e. as it is received dependently from the Father, for greater is he that gives, than he that receives; and yet, as to eſſence, they are both one God. and ſo equal, ὡς αἴτιῳ καὶ ἀρχὴ κατὰ φύσιν, Athan. Naz. Baſil.

Add to this, That the argument produced to prove that Chriſt ſpeaks not of his human nature, viz. becauſe none could doubt but that God is greater than man, proves as effectually that Chriſt could not be only man, becauſe then none could doubt but God was greater than he; nor is any ſuch compariſon, as to greatneſs, to be found in ſcripture betwixt God and mere man.

Ver. 29. [f] And now I have told you before it come to paſs,] viz. of my aſcent into heaven, and of the miſſion of the Holy Ghoſt, that when you have received this Spirit you more firmly may believe I am the Son of God, inveſted with all power in heaven and earth.

Ver. 30. [t] The prince of this world cometh,] by his miniſters, Judas, and the rulers of the Jews, and findeth nothing in me; he himſelf having no power to inflict death on me, in whom is no ſin, and they finding nothing in me worthy of death, Acts 13. 28. Though, therefore, I am to ſuffer death, I do not ſuffer for any fault that can deſerve it, or on account of any power he or his miniſters have over me to inflict it; but I give up myſelf to the death in compliance with my Father's will, that the world may know, and knowing imitate my obedience to him in the ſevereſt precepts.

CHAP. XV.

1. [a] I Am the true vine, (which gives juice and nouriſhment to every branch belonging to me,) and my Father is (as) the husbandman, (who prunes and cleanſes the branches of this vine, to render them more fruitful: and therefore)

1. [b] Every branch in me that beareth not fruit, he taketh away, (i. e. every profeſſor of faith in me that is unfruitful,) [c] and every branch that beareth fruit, he purgeth it (from all thoſe ſuckers that hinder the growth of the fruit, or make it leſs,) that it may bring forth more fruit.

3. Now (thus it is with you, for) ye are clean through the word which I have ſpoken to you.

4. [d] Abide in me, and I (will abide) in you; as the branch cannot bear fruit of itſelf, except it abide in the vine, no more (Gr. ſo neither) can you, except you abide in me (by faith.)

5. I am the vine, ye are the branches, (which receive nouriſhment from the vine, and become fruitful by it:) he that abideth in me (by faith,) and I in him (by the Spirit,) the ſame bringeth forth much fruit; for [e] without me (abiding thus in you) ye can do nothing.

6. If a man abide not in me, he is [f] caſt forth as a branch, and (that) is withered, and men gather them, (or, and is gathered,) and caſt (them) into the fire, and they are burned, (Gr. καὶ καίεται, and is burned.)

7. If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, (ſo that ye yield obedience to them,) [g] ye ſhall ask what ye will (in my name, and for the glory of God,) and it ſhall be done to you.

8. Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit, (καὶ, and) [h] ſo ſhall ye (appear to) be my diſciples.

9. As the Father hath loved me, ſo have I loved you, continue ye in my love.

10. If you keep my commandments, ye ſhall abide in my love, even [i] as I (his prophet) have kept my Fathers commandments, (doing all he ſent me to do,) and (ſo) abide in his love.

11. Theſe things have I ſpoken to you (of my abode in you by the Spirit, and your abiding in my words,) that (through the comforts of this Spirit) [k] my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full.

14. (Now) Ye are my [n] friends, (and ſhall receive the tokens of my love as ſuch,) if ye do whatſoever I command you;

15. (And therefore) Henceforth I call you not [o] ſervants (nor treat you as ſuch,) for the ſervant (uſually) knoweth not what his Lord doth, but I have called (and treated) you (as) friends; [p] for all things that I have heard (i. e. received) of my Father (to impart to you) I have made known to you.

16. You have not choſen me, but [q] I have choſen you (firſt,) and ordained (i. e. appointed) you, that ye ſhould go (abroad into the world,) and bring forth (much) fruit, (by converting many to the faith,) and that your fruit ſhould remain (in a ſucceſſion of Chriſtians to the world's end:) and (that being thus employed in my ſervice,) whatſoever (in purſuance of that work) ye ſhall ask the Father in my name, he may give it you.

17. Theſe things I (eſpecially) command you, that ye (moved by my example, and by theſe tokens of my love, may be induced to) love one another.

18. If the [r] world hate you, (let this give you no diſcouragement in the performance of your office, ſince it will be only with you as it hath been with me doing the ſame work; for) ye know that it hated me before it hated you.

19. If ye were of the world, (conforming yourſelves to it in your life and doctrine,) the world would love his own, (men like to them:) but becauſe ye are not of the world, but I have choſen you out of the world, (to lead a life, and preach a doctrine oppoſite to the vices of it,) therefore the world hateth you.

20. (But) Remember the word that I ſaid unto you, (viz.) the ſervant is not greater than the Lord, (and ſo cannot expect to be treated better,) if (then) they have perſecuted me, they will alſo perſecute you, (who are doing the ſame work;) if they have (had) [s] kept my ſaying, they will (would) keep yours alſo, (who ſpeak the ſame things.)

21. But all theſe things, (this hatred, ver. 19. and perſecution, ver. 20) will they do to you for my [t] names ſake, becauſe they (after all the miracles I have wrought in his name) know not him that ſent me.

22. If I had not come and ſpoken to them (the words of my Father,) they had not had ſin (in not knowing him that ſent me;) but now (they have heard and rejected his word,) they have no cloak (or excuſe) for their ſin, (it being the fruit, not of their want of knowledge of my Father's will, but of their hatred to him and his word: for)

23. He that hateth me, (ſpeaking the words of God, which I have learned from my Father, John 12. 49, 50.) hateth my Father alſo.

24. If I had not done among them [u] the works which no other man did, (Gr. hath done,) they had not had (the) ſin (of infidelity;) but now (this ſin muſt be charged upon their hatred, for) they have both ſeen (the works which the Father in me hath done,) and (yet have been ſo far from being convinced and reformed by them, that they have) hated both me (who do them,) and my Father (by whoſe power and commiſſion I do them.)

25. But (this cometh to paſs, or, this they are permitted to do,) [w] that the word might be fulfilled which is written in their law, (Pſal. 35. 19.) [x] they hated me without a cauſe.

26. But when the Comforter is come, [y] whom I will ſend to you from the Father, even the Spirit of truth, which proceedeth from the Father, he ſhall, (by his miraculous gifts,) teſtify of me (who ſend him)

27. And [z] ye alſo ſhall bear witneſs (of me,) becauſe ye have been with me from the beginning, (and ſaw my works.)

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XV.

Ver. 1. [a] I Am the true vine, and my Father is the husbandman.] That vine which gives vital juice to render all my branches fruitful, and whoſe fruits refreſh and fill their hearts with joy, as doth the fruit of the vine the body, Judg. 9. 13. Pſal. 104. 15. Of the epithet true, ſee chap. 6. 55. My Father is the husbandman, who takes care of theſe branches, cutting off the ſuckers and the withered branches, pruning the vine, and purging the fruitful branches, that they may bring forth more fruit. Grotius thinks the occaſion of this parable was taken from the Lord's ſupper he had then celebrated, or was inſtantly to celebrate; for as, chap. 6. diſcourſing of his paſſion, he calls himſelf the true bread; ſo here he calls himſelf the true vine, nouriſhing to life eternal, with relation to that element which was the fruit of the vine, Luke 22. 18. and thus it ſeemed neceſſary to ſpeak of the fruit of his death, becauſe his diſciples were offended at it, and their faith wavered on that account. Others think, that having ſpoken of Judas as a branch not purged, purged, but withered, and fit only for the fire, chap. 13. 10, 11. he admoniſheth them to be careful that they become not ſuch branches; and as he had ſaid there, ver. 10. ſo he repeats that ſaying here, ver. 3. Ye are clean, &c.

Ver. 2. [b] Every branch in me that beareth not fruit.] Theſe unfruitful branches are ſaid to be in Chriſt, or in his church, as being by profeſſion Chriſtians, and by baptiſm admitted into the church, and owning her faith; but they are ſtill dead branches, becauſe unfruitful in good works; for faith without works is dead, James 2. 26.

Ibid. [c] And every branch that bringeth forth fruit, he purgeth, in its ſeaſon, or the fit time of pruning. The apoſtles then laboured under many infirmities and prejudices of their minds; they were weak in the faith, and underſtood but little of Chriſt's ſalutary paſſion, and the oblation of himſelf as a piacular victim for their ſins, Luke 18. 34. as judging this not well conſiſtent with that earthly kingdom which was fixed in their hearts: they knew nothing of the calling of the Gentiles, or of God's intended kindneſs to them, and therefore would not preach to them, without a ſpecial admonition from heaven ſo to do, Acts 11. 19. they were contending for primacy, and that out of proſpect of carnal advantages, 2 Cor. 5. 16. From theſe and ſuch like infirmities, the good husbandman purged them, when he ſhed the Holy Ghoſt upon them, and ſent them to preach the goſpel to all nations. When therefore he ſaith, you are now καθαροί, clean, ver. 3. we muſt not underſtand this abſolutely, but comparatively, in reſpect of thoſe who did not believe or obey his word, and in good part, they being to be farther purged by the operation of the Holy Spirit.

Ver. 4. [d] Remain in me, (by faith, love, v. 9. and obedience, ver. 10.) καγὼ ἐν ὑμῖν, and I will remain in you,] by my Spirit. Here is an ellipſis of the word μενῶ, as Matth. 20. 13. to ſit on my right hand,—is not mine to give, but (it ſhall be given) to them for whom it is prepared of my Father, 2 Theſſ. 2. 7. He that letteth (will let) till he be taken away. See 1 Cor. 4. 15. Gal. 2. 7.

Ver. 5. [e] He that abideth in me, and I in him, bringeth forth much fruit, for χωρὶς ἐμοῦ, without me ye can do nothing.] That is, χωρὶς ἐμοῦ ὄντες, being ſeparated from me, ver. 4. not abiding in me, ver. 6. being caſt out from me. As this reſpects all Chriſtians, the ſenſe runs thus, If ye abide in me by that faith which purifies the heart, Acts 15. 9. and works by love, Gal. 5. 6. and I in you by that Spirit, 1 John 3. 24.—4. 13. without whom none can be a member of Chriſt, Rom. 8. 9. you ſhall abound in the fruits of the Spirit; but without my Spirit abiding in you, and uniting you to me your head, you can do nothing acceptable to me, or worthy of my goſpel. As it reſpects the apoſtles, it may farther note, that without the gifts and powerful aſſiſtance of the Holy Spirit they could do nothing to convert the world to the faith, as being not ſufficient of themſelves for that work, but having their ſufficiency from that God who giveth them the Holy Spirit, 2 Cor. 3. 5, 6. Hence they are bid to ſtay at Jeruſalem till this Spirit fell upon them, Acts 1. 8.

Ver. 6. [f] He is caſt out, ὡς τὸ κλῆμα καὶ ἐξηράνθη] ὡς κλῆμα, ſupple, μὴ φέρμενον καρπὸν, as a branch bringing forth no fruit; or καὶ here ſignifies becauſe, or that; and ſo the ſenſe runs thus, as a branch is caſt out that is withered, or becauſe it is withered; for branches are firſt withered, and then caſt out. So Joſh. 1. 5. καθὼς ἔσομαι, for as I have been with Moſes, ſo will I be with thee, chap. 22. 25. καὶ ἀπαλλοτριώσουσι, for they will turn away thy children; 1 Sam. 2. 25. Give us roaſt, καὶ ὃ μὴ λάβω, for I will not receive ſodden fleſh of thee; Micah 7. 8. rejoice not at my fall, καὶ ἀναστήσομαι, for I ſhall riſe again; ſee Luke 1. 24. John 6. 54. It alſo often ſignifies that, or which. So Iſa. 5. 4. what ſhall I do to my vine, καὶ οὐ ἐποίησα, which I have not done? So Matth. 9. 11. καὶ ἰδόντες, which the Phariſees ſeeing, Acts 1. 19. καὶ γνωστὸν, which thing was known. See Noldius de partic. Heb. p. 297, 298.

Ver. 7. [g] Ask what you will, and it ſhall be given you.] Whatever ye ask according to the will of God, 1 John 5. 14. for the promotion of his glory, chap. 14. 13. and the furtherance of your miniſtry, Matth. 21. 21, 22. asking in faith, Mark 11. 24. and in my name, John 16. 23. ye ſhall receive. See the note on Matth. 21. 21.

Ver. 8. [h] And ye ſhall be my diſciples;] i. e. by your likeneſs to me your maſter, who am intent on this, that I may glorify my Father upon earth, chap. 17. 4. and give up myſelf to the death, that I may be more fruitful in drawing all men to the knowledge of him, chap. 12. 24. it will appear that you thus bringing forth much fruit to the glory of God, are my genuine diſciples: ἐν τούτῳ, is here to be repeated from the beginnning of the verſe.

Ver. 10. [i] As I keep my Father's commandments, and abide in his love.] Here it is enquired, how Chriſt, being truly God, could ſay he keeps his Father's commandments? I anſwer, As on earth he ſuſtained the perſon of a prophet ſent from him, it being neceſſary to that office that he ſhould be ſent by him, and do his commandments, according to theſe words of God, Deut. 18. 18. I will raiſe them up a prophet from among their brethren like unto thee, and will put my words into his mouth, and he shall speak to them all that I shall command him. See ver. 19. 20. Hence Christ so often saith, I speak not of myself; but as my Father gave me commandment, so I speak, chap. 12. 49, 50. declaring by these words he was no impostor, but that very prophet of whom Moses spake See the note on chap. 7. 16. and chap. 8. 28. Hence Chrysostom, Euthymius, and Theophylact note, that Christ spake this according to his human nature. But still Woltzogenius enquires, why, according to his human nature, he is said to obey the commandment of the Father, rather than of his own divine nature? I answer, Because the Father is the fountain of the Deity, and because it belonged to Christ, executing his prophetic office, to refer all to the glory of his Father, whom the Jews only owned.

Ver. 11. [k] That my joy might be in you;] i. e. I speak of your remaining in me by the Spirit, that your joy, arising from his consolations, may be full; and this joy I call mine, because this Spirit dwelleth in me, and is derived from me. Pious and true is the note of Woltzogenius here, that the observation of God's commandments give here the fullest and most perfect joy: for what richer treasure is there in this world, than that of a good conscience? and what greater joy than that which flows from the good Spirit testifying to our spirits that we are the sons of God, and shall be made heirs of eternal life? Rom. 8. 16, 17. Gal. 4. 6.

Ver. 12. [l] As I have loved you.] Not only as in the paraphrase, but so as to lay down my life for you, ver. 13.

Ver. 13. See additions N°. 25.

Ibid. [m] To lay down his life for his friends.] It is certain Christ did this for his enemies, Rom. 5. 6, 7, 8. Christ notwithstanding speaks of his friends, as speaking only to his apostles whom he here owneth as his friends. Note also, that Christ here saith he doth ψυχὴν τιθέναι, lay down his life for his friends, rather to express the greatness of his love, than the merit of his passion; and when he doth so, he useth constantly this phrase, viz. John 10. 15, 17. 1 John 3. 16. but when the merit of his passion is expressed, the phrase used is ἀποθανεῖν ὑπὲρ ἡμῶν or ὑπὲρ ἁμαρτιῶν, to die for us, or for our sins, Rom. 5. 6, 8. 2 Cor. 5. 15. Heb. 2. 9. 1 Peter 3. 18. as the circumstances of those places shew.

Ver. 14. [n] You are my friends if you do whatsoever I command you.] For both Cicero and Salust (a) make this conformity of will to him we love, the test of sincere friendship.

Ver. 15. [o] Not servants, for the servant knoweth not what his lord doth?] i. e. I deal not with you as servants, to whom I make known my counsels; οὐδὲ γὰρ δεσπότου φύσιν ἡ πρᾶξιν δῆλος δεῖ εἰδέναι, for servants are not, saith Xenophon, to know the customs or actions of their lord, but only bosom friends. Epist. ad Æschinem.

Ibid. [p] For all things which I have heard from my Father I have made known unto you;] not absolutely, for they were not yet able to hear of the cessation of the law, of circumsion, and the sabbath, the casting off the Jews, and the calling of the Gentiles to be his church, without offence, chap. 16. 12. but all things fit to be told them then, concerning his salutary passion, his glorious resurrection and ascension, the mission of the Holy Ghost, the future judgment, and the promise of eternal life.

Ver. 16. [q] I have chosen you] from the rest of the Jews, to bear witness of me, ver. 27. and be my apostles. That Christ speaks here of this election, appears, (1.) From the preceding words, Ye have not chosen me, as disciples among the Jews chose to themselves a master; for ye came not to me till I called you. (2.) From the persons called, for, saith Christ, have not I chosen you twelve, and one of you is a devil? chap. 6. 70. And, (3.) From the end of their vocation here, viz. that they might go into the world, and bring forth fruit, or that they should go forth and preach that gospel to the world which should abide for ever, 2 Ep. John. 2. and erect that church against which the gates of death should not prevail. See additions, N°. 26.

Ver. 18. [r] If the world hate you,—hated me first.] Here Christ begins to fortify his apostles against the hatred of the world, and to encourage them to continue firm and constant in the performance of their office against all its opposition; (1.) From his own example, who patiently had endured it before their eyes, and was now to suffer death by reason of it; so that they who preached the same doctrine, which rendered him so hateful to the world, might reasonably expect the like treatment from it: nor had they reason to expect it should be otherways, or grudge it was not better with the disciple than with his Master; for he being not of the world, and they being chosen by him out of the world, the ground of the world's hatred against them must be the same.

Ver. 20 Εἰ τὸν λόγον μου ἐτήρησαν, If they had kept my word.] Some conceive that τηρεῖν, here imports to observe with an insidious intent to carp at, at it, and accuſe the author of it, as it is ſaid of the church to Satan, he τηρήσει, ſhall break, or obſerve thy head to wound it, καὶ σὺ τηρήσεις, and thou ſhalt bruiſe, or obſerve his heel to enſnare it, Gen. 3. 15. But the right reading there ſeems to be τειρήσεις, conteres; nor is there any inſtances in the New Teſtament where the ſimple verb τηρέω bears that ſenſe; for Mat. 27. 36, 54. the word ſignifies only to obſerve, not to watch an opportunity againſt, that being φυλάσσειν, Mark 3. 2. Luke 6. 7.—14. 1.—20. 20. and the phraſe τηρεῖν λόγους μου, which is proper to St John, is always taken in a good ſenſe, for an obedient obſervance of the words of Chriſt, viz. John 8. 51, 52, 55.—14. 23, 24.—17. 6. 1 John 2. 5. Rev. 3. 8, 10.—22. 7, 9.

Ver. 21. [t] But theſe things will they do for my name's ſake, becauſe they know not him that ſent me.] 'Tis farther ground of comfort to you that you ſhould be thus hated, not from your own fault, but for my ſake, and ſo ſhall be entitled by that hatred to a great reward in heaven, Mat. 5. 12. and that out of ignorance of, or hatred to him that ſent me, and being hated for our ſakes, you need not queſtion our protection and aſſiſtance.

Ver. 24. [u] Works which no man ever did, ver. 22. If I had not ſpoken to them,—no ſin;] i. e. Nor yet can they be ſaid to hate me out of ignorance of my commiſſion, for I have ſpoken to them a doctrine plainly divine, and worthy of God, againſt which they have no exceptions which ariſe not from their own luſts and prejudices, and have confirmed it not only with the teſtimonies of Moſes and the prophets, chap. 5. 46. but alſo with ſuch works as neither Moſes nor the prophets ever did. Had not this been done by me, they could not reaſonably have been charged with the great ſin of infidelity; but now, ſhutting their eyes againſt the light thus ſhining on them, and hardening their hearts againſt that ſtrong conviction of my miſſion which my mighty works afford, 'tis evident that they reject me not out of ignorance and weakneſs, but out of wilful hatred to me, and him that ſent me; and ſo their infidelity is inexcuſable.

Ver. 25. [w] Ἀλλ' ἵνα, but that;] i. e. This hath happened, or is permitted. Examples of ſuch an elliſſis we find frequently in this goſpel. So chap. 9. 3. ἀλλ' ἵνα, but this hath happened that the works of God might be made manifeſt, chap. 13. 18. ἀλλ' ἵνα, but this hath happened to Judas, that the ſcripture might be fulfilled, chap. 14. 31. ἀλλ' ἵνα γνῶ, but this I do that the world may know. See note on chap. 12. 40.

Ibid. [x] For they have hated me without a cauſe.] This which David, who was a type of Chriſt, ſpake of himſelf, may reaſonably be thought, in the myſtical ſenſe, to relate to the Son of David, eſpecially if we conſider that the 69th pſalm, where theſe words are, ver. 5. is truly referred to Chriſt. See the Synopſis in the argument of that pſalm.

Ver. 26. [y] Whom I will ſend to you from the Father.] 'Tis certain, ſaith Betuleius, from the words I will ſend, that this cannot be underſtood of the eternal ſpiration of the Eſſence, but of the temporary miſſion of the holy Ghoſt, which Chriſt would aſk of the Father, chap. 14. 16. and ſend from him in his name, ver. 26. after his departure, chap. 16. 7. after his glorification, chap. 7. 39 and who was to be ſent according to the promiſe of the Father, Luke 24. 49.

Ver. 27. [z] And you ſhall teſtify of me, &c.] You have been ſtill my companions from the beginning of my prophetic office, and ſo are fit witneſſes of my works. For good men uſe and ought to be believed, when they teſtify of what their eyes have ſeen, and what their ears have heard, as the apoſtles did. Acts 4. 20. 1 John 1. 1, 2.

CHAP. XVI.

1. [a] THeſe things I have ſpoken unto you that ye ſhould not be offended, (i. e. deterred from my ſervice, by the ſufferings you ſhall be expoſed to from the world; for)

2. [b] They ſhall put you out of the ſnagogues (as perſons excommunicated;) [c] yea the time cometh that whoſoever killeth you, will think that he doth God ſervice (by ſo doing.)

3. And theſe things they will do unto you, becauſe they have not known the (will of the) Father, nor me, (who am ſent by him to reveal it to the world.)

4. But theſe things have I told you (before-hand,) that [d] when the time ſhall come (when you are thus to ſuffer them,) you may remember that I told you of them, (and ſo may be confirmed in the truth, by ſeeing my perfect knowledge of things future, and may remember you ſuffer only what I had forewarned you of:) and theſe things I ſaid not to you at the beginning (of my preaching,) becauſe I was (then) with you, (to protect you from, or comfort you in all dangers.)

5. But now I go my way to him that ſent me, and [e] none of you (now) asketh me, (as you did before,) Whither goeſt thou?

6. But becauſe I have ſaid theſe things to you (concerning (concerning my departure) sorrow hath filled your hearts.

7. Nevertheless I tell you the truth, (viz. that) [f] it is expedient for you that I go away (from you:) for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come to you, (he coming to supply my absence, and as the consequent of my ascension into heaven, John 7. 39.) but if (when) I depart, I will send him to you.

8. And when he is come, [g] he will reprove the world, (and will convince men) of (their) sin (in rejecting me,) and of (my) righteousness, and of (a future) judgment.

9. Of sin, because they believe not in me, (of whose mission and resurrection he will convince them by his wondrous gifts conferred on them that believe in me:)

10. [h] Of (my) righteousness, because I go to my Father, (to whom I could not ascend, were I not a righteous person,) and ye see me no more (on earth:)

11. [i] Of judgment, because the prince of this world is judged; (i. e. the devil is condemned, and cast out of his dominions by my servants; and consequently the time will come when all the subjects of his dominions shall be judged also.)

12. I have yet [k] many things to say unto you, (concerning the abrogation of the sabbath, and your ritual law of justification by faith without the works of the law, &c.) but ye cannot bear, (i. e. receive) them now (without offence.)

13. Howbeit, when he (who is) [l] the Spirit of truth is come, he will guide you, (executing your office,) into all truth; for he shall not speak of himself (deceitful and uncertain things invented by himself, as do the evil spirits in the Heathen oracles;) but whatsoever he (who searcheth the deep counsels of God,) shall hear, (i. e. shall know to be the will of the Father,) that shall he speak, and he will [m] shew you things to come.

14. He [n] shall (also) glorify me (by what he teacheth;) for he shall receive of mine, and shall shew it to you; (i. e. he shall be sent to impart to you the things which relate to my kingdom, my laws and service; and what he teacheth you is to be delivered in my name.)

15. All things that the Father hath are mine, (the power to govern, and to give rules and laws to men, and to judge and recompense them according to those laws, which under the Mosaical dispensation was done by the Father, is now to be done by me, and in my name, Phil. 2. 9, 10, 11.) therefore said I, that he shall take of mine, and shall shew it to you.

16. (It is but) a little while, and ye shall not see me, (because I shall be taken from you by death;) and again, (after my resurrection, 'tis but) a little while, and (that) ye shall see me: and (this I say) because (then) I go to my Father.

17. Then said some of his disciples among themselves, What is (the import of) this that he saith unto us, A little while, and ye shall not see me; and again, a little while, and ye shall see me; and because I go to the Father?

18. They said therefore, What is this that he saith, a little while? we cannot tell (the meaning of) what he saith.

19. Now Jesus knew that they were desirous to ask him (the meaning of his words,) and (therefore) said unto them, Do ye enquire among yourselves of that (which) I said, a little while, and ye shall not see me; and again, a little while, and ye shall see me?

20. Verily, verily, I say unto you, That (for a season) ye shall weep and lament, but the (men of the) world, (the rulers of the Jews,) shall rejoice (at my sufferings,) and ye shall be sorrowful; but your sorrow (at my resurrection, ascension, and mission of the Holy Ghost,) shall be turned into joy, (Luke 24. 41, 52. Acts 2. 46.)

21. (For as) a woman when she is in travail, hath sorrow, because her hour is come; but as soon as she is delivered of the child, she remembers no more the anguish (she lay in,) for joy that a man (child) is born into the world; (so shall be your case.)

22. And ye now therefore (καὶ ὑμεῖς οὖν, for you therefore) have (now) sorrow (because of my death,) but I will see you again (after my resurrection,) and your hearts shall rejoice; and (though I personally be taken from you,) your joy (through the holy Spirit shall be such as) no man taketh (or can take) from you.

23. And in [o] that day (that you receive this Comforter) ye shall (have need to) ask me nothing (for resolution of your doubts, as now you do:) verily, verily, I say unto you, Whatsoever (assistance) ye shall ask the Father in my name, he will give it you.

24. [p] Hitherto have you asked nothing in my name, (as Mediator betwixt God and man:) ask (what is requisite for the discharge of your office,) and ye shall receive (it,) that your joy (in having all your petitions granted) may be full.

25. These things have I spoken unto you in proverbs (obscurely of the Father; but) the time cometh when I shall no more speak to you in proverbs, but I shall shew you plainly (the will) of the Father.

26. In that day ye shall ask in my name; [q] and I say not unto you, (I need not say,) that I will pray (or intercede with) the Father for you;

27. For the Father himſelf loveth you, becauſe ye have loved me, and have believed that I came out from God.

28. (And as) [r] I came forth from the Father, and am come into the world; (ſo) again, I (ſhall ſhortly) leave the world, and go to the Father.

29. His diſciples ſaid unto him, Lo, now ſpeakeſt thou plainly, and ſpeakeſt no proverb:

30. Now we are ſure that thou knoweſt all things, (in that thou knoweſt our ſecret whiſperings among ourſelves,) and (ſo) needeſt not that any man ſhould ask thee (that thou mayſt know what they deſire, thou knowing this unasked:) by this [s] we (more firmly) believe that thou cameſt forth from God.

31. Jeſus anſwered them, Do ye now believe?

32. Behold the hour cometh, yea, is now come, that ye ſhall be ſcattered every man to his own (home,) and ſhall leave me alone; and yet I am not alone, becauſe the Father is with me.

33. Theſe things I have ſpoken unto you, that in me, (being with you by my Spirit,) you may have peace: in the world ye ſhall have tribulation; but, [t] be of good chear, I have overcome the world; (and as I am able, ſo by my ſufferings am I the more inclined to aſſiſt and ſtrengthen you againſt the temptations of it.)

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XVI.

Ver. 1. [a] Theſe things have I ſpoken to you, that ye be not offended;] i. e. theſe things concerning the hatred of the world, and the reaſons of it, and of thoſe conſiderations which may induce you to bear it patiently; leſt they coming unexpectedly upon you unarmed againſt them, you ſhould fall from the faith, or deſiſt from your office in the propagation of it. That this is the true notion of being ſcandalized, ſee the note on Matth. 18. 6.

Ver. 2. [b] They ſhall put you out of the ſynagogues.] In their ſynagogues they had not only aſſemblies for reading the ſcriptures every ſabbath-day, Acts 13. 27.—15. 21. for public prayers and exhortations to the people then, and upon other days, Acts 13. 15. but offences committed againſt the law were there corrected, and ſometimes puniſhed with ſcourging, Matth. 10. 17.—23. 34. and they who would not be reformed by ſtripes, nor by the leſſer excommunication, which removed them, ſaith (a) Buxtorf, four feet from others, were pronounced ἀποσυνάγωγοι, John 9. 22, 24.----12. 42. and, by a public recitation of their name, were caſt out of the communion of the church; which, Luke 6. 22. is ſeparating them, and caſting out their names as evil: this Chriſt here ſaith would be their portion.

Ibid. [c] Ἀλλ' ἔρχεται ὥρα ἵνα, Yea, the hour cometh, when whoſoever killeth you ſhall think he doth λατρείαν προσφέρειν τῷ Θεῷ, do God ſervice.] The particle ἀλλὰ here ſignifies yea, and denotes the increaſe of a thing, as Luke 12. 7. ἀλλὰ καί, yea, even your hairs are all numbered; ſee 1 Cor. 3. 2.----12. 22. ἵνα is here put for ὅτε, when, as ver. 32. the time cometh ἵνα σκορπισθῆτε, when you ſhall be ſcattered; ſee the note on 3d epiſt. of John, ver. 4. The phraſe λατρείαν προσφέρειν, to offer ſacrifice, is taken from Exod. 32. 29. Conſecrate your hands to the Lord every one upon his brother; that is, ſaith the paraphraſe of Onkelos, obtuliſtis oblationem, Ye have offered an oblation. Hence the zealots among the Jews, who killed thoſe they eſteemed tranſgreſſors with their own hands, not expecting the judgment of the ſanhedrim, were by them deemed religious men, filled with zeal in the cauſe of God, they having their name, ſaith (b) Joſephus, ἀπὸ τῶν ἐπ' ἀρετῇ ζηλωτῶν, from thoſe that were zealous for what was good, and therefore, after infinite ſlaughters of their brethren, they pronounced themſelves (c) ἀναμάρτητοι, men without offence. And ſuitably to this prediction, (d) Juſtin M. informs us, that the Jews did καταρᾶσθαι ἐν ταῖς συναγωγαῖς αὐτῶν τοὺς πιστεύοντας διὰ τὸν Χριστὸν, diſgrace and execrate the Chriſtians in their ſynagogues; and were αὐτοχειρίας αὐτῶν, killing them with their own hands where-ever they could. This they will do, ſaith Chriſt, becauſe they know not the Father, i. e. how alien thoſe cruelties are from his benign nature; ſo Grotius. See the note on chap. 15. 21.

Ver. 4. [d] That when the time cometh, you may remember, &c.] and ſo be aſſured of my divine preſcience and veracity; and therefore may not doubt of that aſſiſtance and conſolation I have promiſed you under theſe troubles. But here it may be asked, why Chriſt here ſaith, Theſe things I ſaid not to you at the beginning, becauſe I was with you? when in the firſt miſſion of the apoſtles to preach in the cities of Judea, he uſeth almoſt the ſame words, Matth. 10. 17, 18. and the like words, Matth. 24. 9, Luke 6. 22. Woltzogenius anſwers, anſwers, That Chriſt in theſe places had in the general informed them of the great perſecutions they were to ſuffer, but had not ſo clearly told them they were to ſuffer them on the account of religion. But this ſeems a miſtake, for he had told them that they were to ſuffer theſe things in the Jewiſh ſynagogues for his name's ſake, and for righteouſneſs ſake, Matth. 5. 12, 13.---10. 18.---24. 9. I anſwer therefore, That what was ſpoken Matth. 24. 9. was ſaid about this time; and ſo Chriſt might well ſay, he ſaid it not to them from the beginning: and that what Chriſt ſaith Matth. 10. and Luke 6. do plainly reſpect the times which were to come upon them, after our Lord's departure from them: for the words of Chriſt in St Matthew, from ver. 16. to 36. reſpect thoſe times when they were to give teſtimony to him before the Gentiles, ver. 18. and were to be filled by the Holy Spirit, ver. 20. and ſo do the words of St Luke alſo, as appears from the particle ὅταν, when theſe things ſhall happen. What therefore Chriſt there foretells as future, he ſpeaks of here as inſtant, and now ready to befal them.

Ver. 5. [e] And none of you asketh me, whither goeſt thou?] This Peter asked, chap. 13. 36. but received no direct anſwer; they did not therefore ſo ask as to know, chap. 14. 5. much leſs to conſider duly whither he was going, viz. to his and their Father's houſe, John 20. 17. or why he went, viz. to prepare a manſion for you, chap. 14. 2. or, none of them asked, now his departure was at hand, and ſo gave greater reaſon for this enquiry, whither he was going.

Ver. 7. [f] It is expedient for you that I go away;] ſince by the advent of the Holy Spirit you will find greater comfort than from my preſence: now this Spirit was not to come till Chriſt was glorified, and had aſcended into heaven, John 7. 39. The word παράκλητος here mentioned, ſignifies an advocate and a comforter; he did the part of an advocate in reſpect of Chriſt and his goſpel, by convincing the world of ſin in not believing on him, and on the righteouſneſs of Chriſt, ver. 9. 10, 11. and by confirming the apoſtle's teſtimony of him by ſigns and miracles, and various gifts imparted to them, Heb. 2. 4. 1 John 5. 6, 7, 8. and by pleading their cauſe before kings and rulers, Matth. 10. 18, 19. and againſt all their adverſaries, Luke 21. 15. Acts 6. 10. In reſpect of the apoſtles and the faithful, he alſo did the part of a comforter, as being ſent for their conſolation and ſupport in all their troubles, filling their hearts with joy and gladneſs, and giving them an inward teſtimony of God's love to them, and an aſſurance of their future happineſs, Rom. 8. 15, 16.

Ver. 8, 9. [g] He will convince the world of ſin, becauſe they believe not in me.] The Holy Spirit had departed from the Jews about four hundred years ſince; and his return, according to Chriſt's promiſe, muſt be ſufficient to evince, that Jeſus, who had thus ſhed the Spirit upon his diſciples, was the true Meſſiah, and ſo to convince them of ſin, who believed not in him, as we ſee it did, Acts 2 37, 41.

Ver. 10 [h] Of righteouſneſs, becauſe I go to the Father:] for that was a ſufficient evidence that the Father owned him as a righteous perſon, and his true prophet, though by the Jews he was condemned as an impoſtor. Now this the Holy Spirit proved, becauſe his miſſion from heaven, and the miraculous powers done by him in the name of Jeſus, evinced that he who ſent this Spirit from heaven, was tranſlated thither. Hence Peter, from this effuſion of the Holy Spirit, argues, that this Jeſus was by God made Lord and Chriſt, Acts 2. 36. and that the Jews had crucified that holy and juſt One whom the Father had glorified, Acts 3. 13, 14.

Ver. 11. [i] Of judgment, becauſe the prince of this world is judged;] i. e. becauſe Satan, the prince of this world, is now to be condemned, and caſt out of his dominions; whence it may appear, that all who belong to his kingdom, and chuſe rather to ſerve him than Chriſt, their lawful prince and judge, ſhall be condemned with him. See the preface to the epiſtles, § 10.

Ver. 12. [k] I have yet many things to ſay to you, but ye cannot bear them yet;] viz. concerning the aboliſhment of the ſabbath, and the ceremonial law, juſtification by faith without the works of the law, the rejection of the Jews, and the calling of the Gentiles, which, through the prejudices you now ly under, ye cannot bear. See Orig. contra Celſum, l. 2. p. 57, 58.

Ver. 13. [l] The Spirit of truth ſhall lead you into all truth,] neceſſary to your apoſtolical office, and to direct the Chriſtian church to the end of the world in all ſaving truth. For as (e) Irenæus notes, The doctrine which they taught, they after delivered in the ſcriptures to be the pillar and foundation of our faith. And as (f) St Auſtin adds, Chriſt having committed to them the writing of theſe things which he would have us read, they choſe out thoſe things to write which they judged ſufficient to be written for the ſalvation of the faithful. It is therefore certain that the apoſtles, in compiling the canon of ſcripture, were ſo aſſiſted by the Holy Spirit, as to write all truths neceſſary for the ſalvation of believers; and conſequently, that all things neceſſary to be believed or done by Chriſtians, are fully and perſpicuouſly contained in the holy ſcriptures.

(e) Apoſtoli evangelium quod tunc præconiaverunt, poſtea per Dei voluntatem in ſcripturis nobis tradiderunt, fundamentum et columnam noſtræ fidei futuram, l. 3. c. 1. Quicquid Chriſtus de ſuis factis et dictis nos legere voluit, hoc ſcribendum illis tanquam ſuis manibus imperavit.

(f) Electaque eſſe quæ ſcriberentur ea quæ ſaluti credentium ſufficere viderentur. De conſenſ. evangel. l. 1. c. 35. et tr. 49. in Jon. p. 355.

Ibid. [m] And he ſhall teach you things to come.] From this, and from the parallel place, chap. 14. 26. He ſhall bring all things to your remembrance which I have ſaid to you, two things are evident, 1. That this promiſe of the Holy Spirit can belong only to the apoſtles, ſeeing to their remembrance only could Chriſt bring thoſe things which he had ſaid to them. 2. That this promiſe can agree to no councils aſſembled after their deceaſe, ſeeing they never challenged to themſelves the gift of prophecy, nor had future contingencies revealed to them.

Ver. 14, 15. [n] He ſhall glorify me; for he ſhall receive of mine, and ſhall ſhew it to you: all things which the Father hath are mine.] Theſe words contain two arguments for the divinity of Chriſt. For,

1. The things the Holy Spirit was to receive from Chriſt, who is emphatically ſtiled the Truth, are all truth, by the apoſtles to be delivered to the church, and all future contingencies reſpecting the church to the end of the world. For, ſaith (g) Schlictingius here, To this we are to refer the revelations of St John, in which are contained prophecies of the ſtate of the church from that time to the end of the world. Now the knowledge of theſe things muſt imply a divine preſcience. We ſpeak, ſaith the apoſtle, the wiſdom of God, which God hath revealed to us by his Spirit, 1 Cor. 2. 7, 10. Chriſt therefore, from whom the Spirit received theſe things, muſt be God. Laſtly, God ſaith to the idols of the Gentiles, Shew the things that are to come, that we may know that ye are gods, Iſa. 41. 23. He therefore who ſheweth theſe things to the Spirit, muſt be God.

2*dly*, By ſaying, All things which the Father hath are mine, he challenges to himſelf the incommunicable attributes, and conſequently that eſſence which is inſeparable from them.

Anſw. To this Woltzogenius anſwers, That the phraſe, all things, muſt be reſtrained to the ſubject of Chriſt's diſcourſe, viz. to all things which the Spirit of truth was to reveal to them, and which reſpected their office, and the good of the church; all which things the Father had communicated to him.

But, (1.) Chriſt ſaith not here, I am conſcious to the ſecrets of my Father; but, all things which the Father hath are mine. (2.) Chriſt here gives the reaſon, why he had ſaid he ſhall receive of mine, viz. becauſe all that the Father hath is mine. Take away any thing from the generality of this expreſſion, and you render our Lord's inference infirm, ſince that which you take away, the holy Spirit might not receive from him. (3.) All thoſe things which he confeſſes are here to be underſtood, are ſufficient to prove the divinity of Chriſt, as the citation from him ſhews.

Ver. 23. [o] And in that day ye ſhall ask me nothing;] i. e. when I have ſent the holy Spirit, to lead you into all truth, you ſhall have no need to enquire ſatisfaction in any thing, as now ye do, or to ask the ſenſe of any thing ſuggeſted to you by the Spirit, as you ſometimes ask the meaning of my words. This ſenſe of the word ἐρωτᾶν is gathered from ver. 19. they were deſirous ἐρωτᾶν to enquire of him, the ſenſe of thoſe words, Yet a little while, and ver. 30. there is no need that any one ἐρωτᾷ ſhould enquire of thee, in that day, i. e. ſay St Auſtin and Naldonate, in the day of judgment: but then the apoſtles could have nothing further to ask for the churches benefit. And, 2*dly*, It appears from the preceding verſe, that day was the time when they ſhould ſee him again after his reſurrection, and ſo on. Nor can (h) Origen's conceit ſtand, that Chriſt here excludes himſelf, requiring them to pray only to God the Father, this being contrary to the practice of St Paul, and the whole Chriſtian church. See note on Rom. 10. 13.

Ver. 24. [p] Hitherto have you aſked nothing in my name.] i. e. By me as Mediator betwixt God and man, and with reſpect to my merits: do this after my death, and interceſſion at the right hand of God, and you ſhall receive ſuch anſwers as will fill you with joy.

Ver. 25. See additions N°. 27.

Ver. 26, 27. [q] And I ſay not that I will ask the Father, for he himſelf loveth you:] i. e. I need not ſay this for your comfort, that I will intercede with my Father for you, ſeeing his love to you who who have thus loved me is so great, as to encline him to grant your petitions of his own accord.

Ver. 28. [r] I came out from the Father.] See note on chap. 13. 3.

Ver. 30. [s] By this we believe that thou camest forth from God.] Why did they not believe him to be God, saith Woltzogenius? Answ. They say this sufficiently, by owning he knew all things, even the thoughts of mens hearts; and thence, as they well might, concluding, he came forth from God; for Omniscience, and the knowledge of the heart, being the attributes of God, 1 Kings 8. 39. Jer. 17. 10. they cannot be communicated to any without the communication of the divine nature.

Ver. 33. [t] Be of good comfort, I have overcome the world;] being prepared to suffer that death by which I am to be freed from all the injuries of the world, and to be crowned with glory, and you shall also do it by faith in me, which is your victory over the world, 1 John 5. 4, 5. and by my strength, which shall enable you to do all things, Philip. 4. 13. of which you cannot doubt after so many tokens of my love, Rom. 8. 35, 36, 37.

CHAP. XVII.

1. THESE words spake Jesus, and lift up his eyes to heaven, and said, Father, the hour is come, (that my work on earth by my sufferings now instant should be finished, ver. 4.) [a] glorify (now) thy Son, (by his advancement to the right hand of majesty and power,) that thy Son also may glorify thee, (by propagating the knowledge of thee and of thy gospel through the world. See Examen Millii.)

2. [b] As thou hast given him power over all flesh, that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him, (so instate him in that kingdom in which he shall exercise that power in bringing many to the faith, and so fitting them for life eternal.)

3. And this is (the true way to) life eternal, that they may [c] know thee (to be) the only true God, (in opposition to those false gods they now ignorantly worship,) and (may know and believe in) Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent (to reveal this life to them.)

4. I have glorified thee on the earth, (by declaring thy will to the Jews,) I have finished the work (the prophetical office) which thou gavest me to do (on earth:)

5. And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self, (by exalting even my human nature to the right hand of glory, and crowning me) with [d] that glory which (as to my divine nature) I had with thee before the world was.

6. I have manifested thy name (and doctrine) to [e] the men which thou gavest me out of the world; thine they were (by faith in thee before,) and thou gavest them me, (by causing them to believe in me,) and they have kept thy word.

7. [f] Now they have (fully) known that all things whatsoever thou hast given (i. e. authorised) me (to do or say,) are of thee, (i. e. were indeed thy words and works.)

8. For I have given (i. e. declared) to them the words which thou gavest (in commission to) me (to speak,) and they have received them (as thine,) and have known surely that I came out from thee, and they have believed that thou didst send me.

9. I pray for them; [g] I pray not (in this address) for the world, but for them which thou hast (already) given me (out of it,) for they are thine, (having thee for their Father.)

10. And all mine are thine, (thy children,) and thine are mine, (having me for their teacher and guide,) and I am glorified in them (by the miracles done by them in my name, and by the converts they make to the Christian faith.)

11. And now I am no more in the world, [h] but these (my apostles) are (to continue) in the world, and I (am to) come to thee: holy Father, keep through thine own [i] name (or power) those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one as we are (by the participation of the Spirit. See Examen Millii.)

12. While I was with them in the world, I have kept them in thy name, (and by thy power imparted to me;) those that thou gavest me, I have kept, and [k] none of them is lost, (hath perished, or fallen off from me,) but the son of perdition; (and this it was thy pleasure to permit,) that the scriptures might be fulfilled. (See Examen Millii.)

13. And now come I unto thee, and these things I speak (in their audience, while I am) in the world, [l] that they might have my joy, (the joy which I have promised them, chap. 15. 11.) fulfilled in themselves, (by the presence of the Spirit, whose fruits are joy and peace.)

14. I have given (i. e. taught) them thy word, and the [m] world hath hated them, because they are not of the world, even as I am not of the world; (see chap. 15. 18, 19.)

15. I pray thee not that thou shouldst take them out out of the world, but that thou wouldſt keep them [a] from the evil (of the world.)

16. (And thus I pray, becauſe) they are not of the world, (and ſo will certainly be hated by it,) even as (I have been, becauſe) I am not of the world.

17. [o] Sanctify them through (Gr. in, or for the propagation of) thy truth, (by ſending the holy Ghoſt upon them:) thy word (they are to preach to the world) is (the) truth.

18. As thou haſt ſent me into the world (to deliver thy mind to it,) even ſo have I alſo ſent them into the world (on the ſame errand: ſee note on chap. 20. 21.)

19. And [p] for their ſakes I ſanctify (i. e. I offer up) myſelf (a piacular victim,) that they alſo (being juſtified through faith in me) might be ſanctified through (Gr. in, or for) the truth, (ſee ver. 17.)

20. Neither pray I for [q] theſe alone, but for them alſo which ſhall believe on me through their word;

21. That they all may be one, as thou Father art in me, and I in thee, that they may be one in us, (by the participation of that Spirit which is in me,) that the world (by the powerful operations of this Spirit in them) may (be induced to) believe that thou haſt ſent me.

22. And [r] the glory which thou gaveſt me, (i. e. the power of doing miracles by the Spirit of God,) I have given them, that they may be one, as we are one, (ver. 21.)

23. I in them, and thou in me, that they may be made perfect in one (Spirit working in them as it did in me;) and that (ſo) the world may know that thou haſt ſent me, and haſt loved them, as thou haſt loved me.

24. Father, [s] I will that they alſo whom thou haſt given me, (when they have finiſhed their courſe on earth,) be with me where I am, that they may behold my glory which thou haſt given me, for (becauſe) thou lovedſt me before the foundation of the world.

25. O righteous Father, (the men of) the world have not known thee, but I have known thee, and theſe have known that thou haſt ſent me;

26. And I have declared to them thy name, and (farther) will declare it, (by the illuminations of the holy Spirit,) that (ſo) [t] the love wherewith thou haſt loved me, (which moved thee to give the holy Spirit without meaſure to me, John 3. 34. 35.) might be in them, and I in them (by the ſame Spirit.)

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XVII.

Ver. 1. [a] GLORIFY thy Son,] not only by his advancement to a ſtate of glory, but by ſuch wonders attending his ſufferings, and ſuch a glorious reſurrection, as may entirely remove the ſcandal of the croſs. In anſwer to which requeſt ſome were forced, even by what they ſaw at his death, to ſay, Surely this man was the Son of God, and others who had clamoured for his death, to ſmite their breaſts; and God ſoon after declared, that he had made him Lord and Chriſt, a prince and Saviour, Acts 2. 36.

Ver. 2. [b] Καθὼς ἔδωκας, As thou haſt given him power over all fleſh,] in deſtination and promiſe only, ſay moſt interpreters. But ſince the Baptiſt ſaid δέδωκεν, he hath given all things into his hands, chap. 3. 35. ſeeing the evangeliſt ſaith the ſame, chap. 13. 3. ſeeing Chriſt himſelf ſaith, the Father δέδωκε hath given all judgment to the Son, chap. 5. 22. and promiſeth to raiſe the dead, becauſe ἔδωκε he had given him power to judge all men, and Chriſt himſelf ſaith not, Matth. 28. 18. all power is now given me, but ἐδόθη hath been given me in heaven and in earth; I ſee no reaſon for this reſtriction or limitation of the words; only it may be granted, that as he only exerciſed this power upon earth, whilſt he was in it, ſo was he to exerciſe it from heaven more fully after his reſurrection.

Ver. 3. [c] To know thee, τὸν μόνον ἀληθινὸν Θεὸν, the only true God, and him whom thou haſt ſent, Jeſus Chriſt;] i. e. That the Gentiles, quitting their dumb idols and falſe gods, may own thee alone to be the living, 1 Theſſ. 1. 9. and true God, who madeſt heaven and earth, Acts 14. 15. and that the Jews may own me to be thy Son, ſent to them from heaven, and that Meſſiah which, according to thy promiſe made to Abraham and David, thou haſt ſent to them: for by knowing thee fully, they will know me alſo, whom all men are to worſhip, as they worſhip the Father, and whom he that doth not worſhip, doth not truly honour the Father, chap. 5. 23. for I and the Father are one, chap. 10. 30. whom no man knoweth who he is, but the Father, and he to whom the Father will reveal him, Luke 10. 22. whom he that denies, hath not the Father, 1 John 2. 23. doth not know him; and he that ſeeth, ſees the Father alſo, chap. 14. 9.——15. 21.——16. 3.

Object. Here the Socinians ſay, that theſe words plainly plainly prove that the Father alone is the true God, and that by the words μονὸν τὸν ἀληθινὸν the only true God, Chriſt muſt be excluded from being the true God, ſince otherwiſe the Father would not be only ſo. But to this we anſwer, Anſ. 1*ſt*, That theſe words cannot be reaſonably ſuppoſed to exclude him from a true divinity, who is in ſcripture ſtiled ὁ ἀληθινὸς Θεὸς, the true God: now that Chriſt is ſo ſtiled, ſee the note on 1 John 5. 20. True therefore is the gloſs of Grotius, that he is ſtiled the only true God in excluſion of thoſe, quos falſa Gentium perſuaſio introduxerat, whom the falſe perſuaſion of the Gentiles had introduced; not ſo as to exclude the other perſons, but κατ' ἀντιδιαστολὴν τῶν πολυθεΐας, in oppoſition to polytheiſm, as (a) Epiphanius; or εἰς ἀναίρεσιν τῶν μὴ πεφυκότων εἶναι ἀληθινῶν, for the removal of thoſe which by nature are not true gods, as (b) Athanaſius ſaith. Hence the (c) Pſeud-Ignatius obſerves, that the evangeliſts ſaying, the Father is the only true God, did not omit what belonged to our Lord, but premiſed this ſaying, In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was God. And in this ſenſe the word Only is frequently applied to God in the Old Teſtament: ſo Deut. 32. 12. Κύριος μόνος, the Lord only was their guide, and there was no Θεὸς ἀλλότριος, falſe god with them; and yet the Angel in whom his name was, Exod. 22. 23, 21. went with them, the Angel of his preſence ſaved them, Iſaiah 63. 9. and was the captain of their hoſt, Joſh. 5. 14. ſo alſo Iſaiah 43. 11. I am the Lord, and there is no Saviour beſides me, and ver. 12. I am the Lord your God, and there is no ἀλλότριος, ſtrange god with me. See Judg. 10. 16. 1 Sam. 7. 3. Pſal. 81. 9. ſee alſo the word Solus, ſo often uſed by Irenæus; as when he ſaith of the Maker of the world, that he is Solus Deus, & Solus Dominus, & Solus Conditor, & Solus Pater, & Solus continens omnia, l. 2. c. 1. and yet puts it into the ſymbol of faith owned by all Chriſtians at their baptiſm, that Chriſt is ὁ Κύριος ἡμῶν καὶ Θεὸς, our Lord and God, l. 1. c. 2. ſee the note on 1 Cor. 8. 3.

Wolzogenius ſaith, this place proves Chriſt is not God in the moſt perfect ſenſe in which he is to be underſtood to be God, qui eſt auctor & origo omnis Deitatis, & qui Deitatem a ſeipſo habet, non ab alio; who is the author and original of the whole Deity, and who hath his Divinity from himſelf, and not from another: and if this be all they contend for, we, who believe that Chriſt is God of God, may grant this, and yet maintain that he is God not by title only, as angels and magiſtrates are ſtiled Elohim, but by communication of the divine nature, as being the true God, and having the name of God diſtributively given, and the divine attributes aſcribed to him only, i. e. in oppoſition to them who are only called gods, but are not by nature ſo.

2*dly*, We anſwer, That the excluſive particle only, is not in conſtruction to be joined with the true God thus, to know thee only to be the true God; for the words run not thus, Ἵνα μόνον τὸν ἀληθινὸν Θεὸν, but thus, Ἵνα τὸν μόνον ἀληθινὸν Θεὸν, who only art true, or the God who alone art true. And whereas againſt this Crellius objects, that the word ἀληθινὸς, being an adjective, cannot be here the predicate; this is confuted by many inſtances in this goſpel; for φῶς τὸ ἀληθινὸν is the light which is truly ſo, chap. 1. 9. and ſo is the true bread, chap. 6. 32. and the true vine, chap. 15. 1. it being manifeſt that in all theſe places, true is the attribute, or the thing predicated, of light, bread, the vine.

And whereas they urge farther, that the word ſolus only, added to it, excludes all other things from any communion with that of which it is predicated, and ſo imports that the Father alone is a true God; this aſſertion may be confuted from many inſtances both of the Old and the New Teſtament; as when Jacob ſays of Benjamin, he is left alone, Gen. 42. 38. viz. in reſpect of Joſeph, not of his ten brethren; and of Chriſt, that he was left alone, viz. in reſpect of the multitude, when yet his diſciples were with him, Luke 9. 18, 36. John 8. 10. and when he ſaith, Ye ſhall leave me alone, and yet I am not alone, for the Father is with me, chap. 16. 32. But to proceed to inſtances more appoſite, we read of the bleſſed and only Potentate, King of kings, and Lord of lords, ὁ μόνος ἔχων ἀθανασίαν, who only hath immortality, 1 Tim. 6. 15, 16. Now if this be ſaid of God the Father, as the Socinians muſt aſſert, or allow Chriſt to be truly God, yet muſt they allow that Chriſt, who is ſtiled King of kings, and Lord of lords, by reaſon of his powerful victories over the enemies of his church, Rev. 17. 14.—19. 15, 16. is alſo δυνάστης, a potentate; that he who hath life in himſelf, and of whoſe kingdom there ſhall be no end, John 5. 26. Luke 1. 33. hath alſo immortality; and he who is exalted to God's right hand, dwells alſo in light inacceſſible: they therefore muſt allow that neither the word only, before potentate, nor before immortality, exclude Chriſt from a communion in thoſe attributes. Solomon ſaith of God, i. e. according to the Socinians, of the Father, 1 Kings 8. 39. Σὺ μονώτατος, thou only knoweſt the hearts of all men; and yet Chriſt ſaith, that all the church ſhall know that he is the ſearcher of the hearts and

and reins, viz. of all men; that being necessary, that, as it follows, he might give to all men according to their works, Rev. 2. 23. and St Jude speaks of some wicked men, who denied τὸν μόνον δεσπότην, Θεὸν, καὶ Κύριον ἡμῶν, our only Master, God, and Lord, ver. 4. If they say this is meant of Christ, as probably it is, all these words being put by apposition with one only article prefixed, and the same persons being by St Peter said to deny the Lord that bought them, 2 Peter 2. 1. surely they will not say these words exclude the Father from being our Master, God, and Lord; or if they do interpret them of God the Father, they cannot deny against express scripture, that Christ is our Lord and Master. See John 13. 13, 14. 1 Cor. 8. 6. Eph. 4. 5. All these instances therefore shewing the falshood of that assertion, do also shew the weakness of the Socinians arguments from these words against the Deity of Christ, and of the holy Ghost.

Ver. 5. [d] And now, Father, glorify me with the glory which I had with thee before the world was.] Having shewed in the note on Philip. 2. 6 that Christ had a glory with God the Father, before he took upon him our nature; that when he did so, he laid aside this glory, and took upon him the form of a servant; and that after his ascension he re-assumed this glory, and appeared in it, and says, that he will come hereafter, sometimes, in the glory of the Father, as Matth. 16. 27. sometimes, in his own glory, Matth. 25. 31 and sometimes, in the glory of both, Luke 9. 26. this glory he now desires to be given to him, not only as the Word, as it was before, but as the Word made flesh also. See additions, N°. 28. But this plain and obvious exposition of the words, demonstrating his divinity, as I have shewed in the note recited, the Socinians will not admit of, and therefore say that he requests that the glory which he had before, in the appointment or designation of the Father only to it hereafter, he might now actually enjoy; and Grotius joins with them in this exposition. But,

1. It seems unreasonable to say absolutely he had any thing before he had a being to have, supposing a subject in which that is contained which he is said to have. The first place cited by Grotius as parallel, viz. that Christ was foreknown before the foundation of the world, 1 Pet. 1. 2. is plainly impertinent, there being no hint in the words of Christ here of any such fore-knowledge, but a plain assertion that he had this glory before the foundation of the world. So are the words cited from Eph. 1. 4. he hath elected us in Christ before the foundation of the world to be holy; for the apostle saith not, as Christ doth of his glory, that we had any holiness before the foundation of the world, but only that we were chosen to it. His third instance from Rev. 13. 8. where we read thus, whose names were not written in the book of life of the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world, seems only pertinent because they are ill translated; for that the true translation should be thus, whose names were not written from the foundation of the world, (i. e. were not written) in the book of life of the Lamb slain, is evident from chap. 17. 8. where we read thus, whose names are not written in the book of life from the foundation of the world. And lastly, the citation from 2 Tim. 1. 9. he hath saved us, and called us with an holy calling, according to his own purpose, and grace given to us in Christ Jesus before all ages, seems only to be pertinent on the same account: translate the words thus, according to his own purpose before all ages, and the grace given us in Jesus Christ, and there is in them no appearance of any likeness to Christ's words. And this translation is sufficiently confirmed from the parallel places, Tit. 1. 2, 3. Eph. 1. 3, 4.

2. Christ here saith, Glorify me with the glory which I had παρὰ σοὶ, with thee; now that phrase signifies as much as with thee, or in thy presence, in the perpetual use of scripture. So Numb. 22. 9. who are the men that are παρὰ σοὶ, with thee: 1 Sam. 22. 3. let my father and mother be παρὰ σοὶ with thee. Now he that hath no being, cannot, without the greatest catachresis, be said to be with another. And lastly, Christ speaks of a glory which the Father had given him, because he loved him before the foundation of the world. Now, sure it is improper to say any thing is beloved when it is nothing, or when it hath no being.

Ver. 6. [e] I have manifested thy name to those whom thou hast given me out of the world;] i. e. To my disciples, whom thou hast given to me, by causing them to believe in me; I have by my doctrine taught them, and by my miracles done before their eyes, given them the clearest prospect of thy power, wisdom, holiness, and goodness.

Ver. 7. [f] Now they have known,] by my divine doctrine and miracles which they have heard and seen, that I derived both from thee.

Ver. 9. [g] I pray not for the world.] These things which follow, respecting only my apostles, which are to preach my gospel to all nations, I request not for that world which hath no knowledge of me. They who hence argue that Christ died not for the world, nor sought the salvation of it, but of some few persons in it, because he here prays not for it, must be mistaken: for,

(1.) They plainly contradict both Christ and his apostles; for Christ saith, he came not to condemn the world, but that it might be saved, John 12. 47.

47. that God sent his Son into the world, that the world through him might be saved, chap. 3. 17. Hence this evangelist assures us, he was the propitiation for the sins of the whole world, 1 John 2. 2. and others of them, that he came to seek and save that which was lost, as doubtless all the world was, Matth. 18. 11.

(2.) They vainly argue that Christ never prayed for the world, because he saith here, I do not do it now: which is arguing against plain matter of fact; for how oft doth he say to the Jews, Ye are of the world, John 8. 23 and of his apostles chosen out of them, that they were called out of the world? as here, ver. 6, 14, 16. and yet he saith to them, Luke 19. 42. εἰ ἔγνως, how do I wish that thou hadst known, in this thy day, the things which belong to thy peace? and hanging on the cross he said, Father, forgive them, Luke 23. 34. making intercession for those transgressors, Isa. 53. 12. he therefore saith, that in this address he prayed not for them, because he was then asking those things which could not agree to them, but to his apostles only, or to those whom God had given him out of the world, viz. that they might be consecrated to their apostolical function by that Spirit which the world could not receive, John 14. 17. that their joy, from his presence with them, might be full; nor is there any thing in this whole prayer which is not proper to believers only. And,

(3.) This very prayer for them is made for the sake of the world, and with respect to their saving faith, i. e. for them who should believe through his word, ver. 20. that the world might believe and know that the Father had sent him, ver. 23. so that he prayed for his apostles for this very end, that the world, by their means, might believe, and believing might have life through his name: it is therefore plain he made this prayer, in which he saith, I pray not for the world, out of affection to the world, and with this design, that the preaching of the apostles to them might be more effectual for their conversion and salvation.

Ver. 11. [h] Καὶ ἔτοι, But they are in the world.] Καὶ here signifies but, as Gen. 31. 7. Exod. 1. 17. —7. 12. Numb. 1. 20.—5. 28. Deut. 1. 43.—3. 7.—4. 9.—8. 18. Josh. 1. 8. 1 Sam. 1. 13. Psal. 4. 3. Matth. 1. 25.—11. 17.—12. 39.——17 12. John 4. 40.

Ibid. [i] Keep them in thy name;] i. e. by thy power: so name is used, Psal. 44. 5.—89. 24. 1 Sam. 17. 45. 2 Chron. 14. 11. Matth. 7. 22. Acts 4. 7. See additions, N° 29.

Ver. 12. [k] And none of them is lost;] i. e. either by temporal death, chap. 18. 9. or by falling off from me, but ὁ υἱὸς τῆς ἀπωλείας, the son of perdition, i. e. Judas, worthy of perdition. So a son of death is one worthy of it, 2 Sam. 12 5. and υἱὸς ἀπωλείας, is a nation fit to be destroyed, Eccluf. 16. 9. See Matth. 23. 15. and the note on Eph. 2. 3.

Ver. 13. [l] That they may have my joy fulfilled in them;] i. e. That the joy they had hitherto from my love to them, chap. 5. 11. my presence with them, and care of them, may, in my absence, be encreased by the presence of that Spirit with them, who will supply my bodily absence, chap. 16. 7. and whose fruits are joy and peace, Gal. 5. 22. yea, by whom I, though absent in body, am still present with them, chap. 14. 18.

Ver. 14. [m] The world hath hated them, &c.] This desire of thy protection and assistance is needful to them, who will be certainly exposed to great hatred from the world; and fit to be granted by thee, seeing they will be thus hated for preaching thy word to the world.

Ver. 15. [n] But that thou shouldst keep them ἀπὸ τοῦ πονηροῦ, from the evil;] i. e. from the evil men of the world, and from Satan the prince of the world, who by their means endeavours, by fiery persecutions, to suppress the truth, and destroy or discourage the preachers of it; whence their persecutions are ascribed not to them, but to Satan, Luke 22. 31. 1 Thess. 2. 18.—3. 5. Rev. 2. 10. From the 11th to the 16th verse we learn, how necessary divine aid is to our preservation and success even in pious enterprises, and so how necessary it is to seek it by fervent prayer; and also from our Saviour's affection to them, care of them, and prayer for them, how certain they who sincerely devote themselves to his service may be of his aid in it, and his protection while they are so employed.

Ver. 17. [o] Ἁγίασον, Sanctify them by thy truth;] i. e. Consecrate and set them apart for the propagation of thy truth. Now this sanctification to the priesthood under the Old Testament was made first with a sacrifice offered for them: so Moses receives a command, ἁγιάζειν, to sanctify the priests, ὥστε ἱερατεύειν μοι αὐτούς, that they might serve or offer to God, by the oblation of a bullock and a ram, Exod. 29. 1. And thus Christ sanctified his apostles by offering up himself for them, ver. 19. 2dly, By anointing them with holy oil, ver. 7 and in this sense Christ desires here the Father to sanctify them to their office by the descent of the Holy Spirit, stiled, the oil of gladness, and the promise of the Father, on them, and by whose assistance they became able ministers of the New Testament, 2 Cor. 3. 6. which before they were not; and are therefore bid not to begin their preaching to the world, till this Spirit from on high was come upon them, Luke 24. 49. Acts 1. 8.

Ver. 19. [p] Καὶ ὑπὲρ αὐτῶν, And for them I ſanctify myſelf ;] i. e. I offer up myſelf to be ſlain as a piacular victim, as Chryſoſtom ſaith here; in which ſenſe, the word ἁγιάζειν is often uſed, as I have ſhewed, note on Heb. 2. 11. Nor do theſe words admit of the ſenſe which ſome give them, thus, For their ſakes I ſhall by my reſurrection ſhew myſelf to be the Holy One; for as that is not to ſanctify himſelf, ſo neither was it ſo needful for their ſakes who believed this already, ſaith our Lord, ver. 7, 8.

Ver. 20. [q] Neither pray I for theſe alone, but for them that ſhall believe, &c.] As Chriſt, ver. 17. had prayed for his apoſtles, that they might be filled with the Spirit, ſo here he asks the ſame thing for thoſe that ſhould believe through their word, that they alſo might be repleniſhed with the gifts of the Holy Ghoſt, according to the prediction of the Baptiſt, Matth. 3. 11. and his own promiſe, chap. 7. 38, 39. and as it after came to paſs. That theſe words, viz. That they may be one, as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, are to be interpreted, not of an union of concord, but by the participation of the Spirit of the Father and the Son, is proved: ſee note on chap. 14. 20. Add, that Chriſt declares he did his miracles by the Holy Spirit, Matth. 12. 28. that the Spirit was given to him without meaſure, chap. 3. 34. that thereby he was anointed to preach the goſpel, Luke 4. 18, 19. Chriſt alſo ſays, that the Father abiding in him, did theſe miracles, chap. 14. 10. and that the Jews, by the doctrine thus preached by virtue of this unction, and the miracles thus done by the Spirit of God, might and ought to know, that the Father was in him, and he in the Father, chap. 10. 38. and he promiſes, that they who believed in him ſhould do greater works than he had done, becauſe going to the Father, he would ſend the Holy Spirit to them, to abide ever with them, chap. 14. 12, 16, 17, 18. and then adds, that in that day, they ſhould know that I am in the Father, and you in me, and I in you, ver. 20. All which things prove, that the Father was in Chriſt, and he in him, not only by the union of the divine nature with the human, but by union of the ſame Spirit alſo reſiding in him; and conſequently the union of believers with them both muſt be by the ſame Spirit. Whence it is ſaid, That he that is joined to the Lord is ἓν πνεῦμα, one Spirit with him, 1 Cor. 6. 17. that their bodies are made the temples of the Holy Ghoſt, ver. 19. and they are an habitation of God through the Spirit, Eph. 2. 22. This farther will appear from the end of this union, which is, ſaith Chriſt, that the world may believe and know that thou haſt ſent me: for this the apoſtles teſtified and made known to the world, not by their concord, but by virtue of that Spirit with which they were endowed from on high, and which God gave to them that believed, Acts 5. 32. And this interpretation we may learn from the words of (d) Irenæus to the ſame effect. This alſo will be ſtill more evident from the words following.

Ver. 21. See additions, N°. 30.

Ver. 22. [r] And I have given them the glory which thou gaveſt me, &c.] By this glory we are to underſtand Chriſt's power of working miracles; which power was given to the apoſtles, and thoſe who believed through their preaching, by virtue of the Holy Spirit which came down upon them: for by the power of this Spirit Chriſt wrought his miracles, and ſo manifeſted τὴν δόξαν αὐτοῦ, his glory, chap. 2. 11. and the adminiſtration of the goſpel is upon this account ſaid to be ἐν δόξῃ, in or with glory, 2 Cor. 3. 7, 11. and the apoſtles are ſaid to have ſeen the glory of the Lord, and to have been transformed into the likeneſs of it, from glory to glory, by the Spirit of the Lord, ver. 18. ſee the note there. This glory Chriſt is here ſaid to have given his apoſtles, not only that they might be one with the Father and the Son, but alſo that the world might know the Father had loved them as he had loved Chriſt, whom he had ſo loved as to give the Spirit without meaſure to him.

Ver. 24. [s] I will that thoſe whom thou haſt given me may be with me, &c.] i. e. I will that they may be received up, after the reſurrection, into heaven, as I was: for it ſeems probable, that none of the ſaints, no not the apoſtles, are to be received into the ſupreme heaven, to enjoy the beatific viſion, before that time. See note on chap. 14. 3.

Ver. 26. [t] That the love wherewith thou haſt loved me may be in them ;] i. e. That thou mayſt love them as being thy ſons by adoption, ſo as to make them partakers of an eternal inheritance, Rom. 8. 17. and ſo as to fill them with thy Spirit, Gal. 4. 6. and raiſing them from the dead, mayſt crown them with eternal glory.

CHAP.

(d) Effundit (Chriſtus) Spiritum Patris in adunationem et communionem Dei et hominum; ad homines quidem deponens Deum per Spiritum, ad Deum rurſus imponens hominem per ſuam incarnationem. L. 5. c. 1.

CHAP. XVIII.

1. WHEN Jeſus had ſpoken theſe words, he [a] went forth (of the city) with his diſciples, (and went) over the brook Cedron, where was a garden, into which he entered, and his diſciples.

2. And Judas alſo which betrayed him knew the place; for Jeſus oft-times reſorted thither with his diſciples.

3. Judas then having received a band of men and officers from the chief-prieſts and Phariſees, cometh thither, (it being night,) with lanthorns, and torches, and weapons, (to apprehend him.)

4. Jeſus therefore [b] knowing all things which ſhould come upon him, went forth and ſaid unto them, Whom ſeek ye?

5. They anſwered him, (We ſeek) Jeſus of Nazareth: Jeſus ſaith unto them, I am he. And Judas alſo who betrayed him ſtood with them (when he ſaid this.)

6. As ſoon then as he had ſaid unto them, I am he, they went backward, and fell to the ground.

7. Then (when they were riſen up) aſked he them again, Whom ſeek ye? And they ſaid, Jeſus of Nazareth.

8. Jeſus anſwered, I have told you that I am he; if therefore ye ſeek me (only,) let theſe (my diſciples) go their way.

9. (And this he ſaid) [c] that the ſaying might be fulfilled which he ſpake, Of them (apoſtles) which thou haſt given me have I loſt none, (i. e. I have ſuffered none to periſh.)

10. Then Simon Peter having a ſword, drew it, and ſmote the high-prieſts ſervant, and cut off his right ear; (and) the ſervants name was Malchus.

11. Then ſaid Jeſus unto Peter, [d] Put up thy ſword into the ſheath; (for) the cup which my Father hath given me (to drink,) ſhall I not drink it?

12. Then [e] the band, and the captain, and officers of the Jews, took Jeſus, and bound him,

13. And led him away to [f] Annas firſt, for he was father in-law to Caiaphas, which (Caiaphas) was the high-prieſt that ſame year (that Jeſus was crucified.)

14. Now Caiaphas was he (Gr. and it was that Caiaphas) which gave counſel to the Jews, that it was expedient that one man ſhould die (Gr. periſh) for the (preſervation of the) people.

15. And Simon Peter followed Jeſus, and (ſo did) [g] another diſciple: that diſciple was known to the high-prieſt, and went in with Jeſus into the palace of the high-prieſt.

16. But Peter ſtood at the door without: then went out that other diſciple which was known to the high-prieſt, and ſpake to her that kept the door, and brought in Peter.

17. Then ſaid the damſel that kept the door unto Peter, Art not thou alſo one of this mans diſciples? He ſaith, I am not.

18. And the ſervants and officers ſtood there, who had made a fire of coals, for it [h] was cold, and they warmed themſelves; and Peter ſtood with them, and warmed himſelf.

19. The high-prieſt then, (Annas having ſent Jeſus to him,) aſked Jeſus of his diſciples, and of his doctrine.

20. Jeſus anſwered him, I ſpake (my doctrine) openly to the world; I ever taught (it) in [i] the ſynagogues, and in the temple, whither the Jews always reſort; and in ſecret have I ſaid nothing.

21. Why (then) aſkeſt thou me (of my doctrine?) aſk (rather) them which heard me, what I have ſaid to them? Behold, they know what I ſaid.

22. And when he had thus ſpoken, one of the officers which ſtood by, ſtruck Jeſus (on the cheek) with the palm of his hand, ſaying, Anſwereſt thou the high-prieſt ſo (rudely?)

23. Jeſus anſwered him, If I have ſpoken evil, bear witneſs of the evil; but if (I have ſaid) well, [k] why ſmiteſt thou me?

24. (This he ſaid to him,) Now (that) Annas [l] had ſent him bound to Caiaphas the prieſt.

25. And Simon Peter ſtood and warmed himſelf (with the ſervants:) they ſaid therefore unto him, (ſee note on Matth. 26. 69.) Art not thou alſo one of his diſciples? He denied it, and ſaid, I am not.

26. One of the ſervants of the high-prieſt, being his kinſman whoſe ear Peter had cut off, ſaith, Did not I ſee thee in the garden with him?

27. Peter then denied (it) again, and immediately the cock crew.

28. Then led they Jeſus from Caiaphas to the hall of judgment; and it was early. And (But) they themſelves [m] went not into the judgment-hall (among the Heathens,) leſt they ſhould be defiled (by them,) but (ſtaid without,) that they might eat the paſſover, (i. e. the other paſchal offerings, clean and undefiled.)

29. Pilate then went out to them, and ſaid, What accuſation bring you againſt this man?

30. They anſwered and ſaid unto him, If he were not a malefactor, we would not have delivered him up to thee.

31. Then ſaid Pilate unto them, Take ye him, and judge him according to your law. The Jews therefore ſaid unto him, [n] It is not lawful for us to put any man to death: (and this they ſaid, not that they might not have done this after ſuch licence given, but)

32. That the ſaying of Jeſus might be fulfilled which he ſpake, ſignifying what death he ſhould die, (viz. by being lifted up upon the croſs.)

33. Then Pilate entered into the judgment-hall again, and called Jeſus, and ſaid unto him, Art thou the king of the Jews?

34. Jeſus anſwered him, Sayſt thou this thing, (makeſt thou this enquiry,) of thyſelf, (from a deſire to know the truth?) or (becauſe) others did tell it thee of me? (laying it to my charge as a crime, that I profeſs myſelf Meſſiah their king.)

35. Pilate anſwered, Am I a Jew, (that I ſhould aſk this for my own ſatisfaction? The men of) thine own nation and the chief prieſts have delivered thee unto me: what haſt thou done (to incenſe them thus againſt thee, and cauſe them to lay this crime to thy charge?)

36. Jeſus anſwered, (True it is that I am a king, but) [o] my kingdom is not of this world, (nor to be propagated by force of arms; for) if my kingdom were of this world, then would my ſervants fight, that I ſhould not be delivered to the Jews; but now (this being not done, it appears that) my kingdom is not from hence.

37. Pilate therefore ſaid unto him, Art thou a king then? Jeſus anſwered, Thou ſayſt that (which is true, for) I am a king. To this end was [p] I born, (that I might reign over the houſe of Jacob for ever, Luke 1. 33.) and for this cauſe came I into the world, that I ſhould bear witneſs to the truth: every one that is (a lover and believer) of the truth, heareth my voice.

38. Pilate ſaid unto him, What is truth? And when he had ſaid this, he went out again to the Jews, and ſaith unto them, I find in him no fault at all:

39. But ye have a cuſtom that I ſhould releaſe unto you one at the paſſover; will ye therefore that I (ſhould) releaſe to you the king of the Jews?

40. Then cried they all again, ſaying, (Releaſe to us) not this man, but Barabbas: now Barabbas was a robber.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XVIII.

Ver. 1. [a] Ἐξῆλθε, He went out with his diſciples;] not only out of the chamber where he ſupped with them, for that he did when he ſaid, Ariſe, let us go hence, chap. 14. 31. but out of the city; the gates, in ſuch a time of peace, and of ſuch a congreſs to the paſſover as the city could not well contain, being not ſhut. The evangeliſt adds, that he went over the brook Cedron to a place where was a garden; that as the ſin of the firſt Adam, which brought deſtruction upon his poſterity, was committed in a garden, ſo that ſalutary paſſion of the ſecond Adam, which was to reſcue us from that deſtruction, might begin in the like place: ſo the fathers. Into this garden he went with the eleven diſciples; though going farther into it, to his agony, he took with him only Peter, James and John, Matth. 26. 37.

Ver. 4. [b] Jeſus therefore knowing all things that were to come upon him.] This the apoſtle notes, to ſhew, that Chriſt fell not into the hands of the Jews, for want either of power, as he ſhews, ver. 6. by ſtriking them all to the ground with a word that came to apprehend him, the providence of God not ſuffering him to die without theſe marks of a divine majeſty and power, or for want of wiſdom to foreſee their machinations againſt him; but as freely giving up himſelf to the death for the welfare of mankind. Vain therefore is the ſaying of (a) Celſus, That a wiſe man, had he foreſeen the danger, would have avoided it, if he could do it: for if kings and captains have given up themſelves freely to death, and the utmoſt perils, for the temporary ſafety of their country, much more might our bleſſed Lord do this for the ſalvation of the whole world.

Ver. 9. [c] Ἵνα πληρωθῇ ὁ λόγος, That the ſaying might be fulfilled which he ſpake, Of thoſe which thou haſt given me have I loſt none.] That this ſaying could not relate to the eternal ſtate of Judas, or our Lord's apoſtles, appears, 1*ſt,* From the precedent words, Let then theſe go away: for, ſaith the evangeliſt, theſe very words were ſpoken that the ſaying of Chriſt, chap. 17. 12. might be fulfilled; and yet Chriſt's deſire that they might quietly be diſmiſſed was deſigned only to ſecure their temporal preſervation. 2*dly,* From the words themſelves, recorded chap. 17. 12. Of thoſe that thou haſt given me, I have loſt none, but the ſon of perdition, that the ſcripture might be fulfilled, viz. Pſ. 109. 8. Now this ſcripture St Peter interprets of the temporal death of Judas, Acts 1. 16,—20. It is no objection againſt this interpretation, that the the apostles were not always preserved from a violent death, most of them being taken away by martyrdom; for this our Lord could not intend, since he himself had told them, before he spake these words, that some of them should be put to death, and some should drink of his cup, Matth. 24. 9.—20. 23. but only that he being present with them, had thus lost none of them: and hence he prays, that in his absence his Father would thus keep them; and accordingly the apostle testifies, that when they were engaged in their apostolic function, they were wonderfully preserved by the divine providence, insomuch that even this was a testimony of the life and power of Jesus, 2 Cor. 19. 10. chap. 4. 10, 11. chap. 13. 4. and especially they were so preserved that none of them fell from their apostolic office, as Judas did, Acts 1. 25.

Ver. 11. [d] Put up thy sword into the sheath.] Vain here is the inference of Bernard, in his epistle to Pope Eugenius, from these words, That both the spiritual and the material sword belonged to the church, telling him, the material sword is his, though it be not to be wielded by his hand, but by the hand of the soldier, yet so as he is to do it ad nutum sacerdotis, at the will of the priest. For with what sense can it be gathered from Christ's reprehension of St Peter for using this sword, even before he was made a priest, according to the doctrine of the Romanists, or from Christ's command to put it up into the sheath, that it belonged to the priest; or because Peter had a sword, which belonged not at all to his office as an apostle, that the Pope must have a title to that more, than to his net or fishing-boat? The two swords of which Christ spake were both material, and of them Christ said, It is enough; not to combat with their adversaries, but to shew the peril of that present time. See the note on Luke 22. 38.

Ver. 12. [e] Ἡ ἐν σπεῖρα καὶ ὁ χιλίαρχος, The band and the captain.] At the time of the passover it was customary for the Roman president to send a whole band of a thousand men for a guard to the temple, the captain of which band is here called χιλίαρχος.

Ver. 13. [f] And they led him away to Annas first;] that by him, who was more aged, and better experienced in the law, Caiaphas might be directed what to do in the case, or because he was the prince of the sanhedrim; from him he was sent bound to Caiaphas the high-priest, as appears from ver. 24. see the note there. Of his being sent to Annas the other evangelists say nothing, because nothing was done to Christ there, but all was performed at the palace of the high-priest; there was Christ examined, ver. 19. and there Peter denied him, Matth. 26. 57, 69.

Ver. 15. [g] Καὶ ὁ ἄλλος μαθητὴς, And the other disciple.] He seems not to be John; for he being a Galilæan, as well as Peter, they might have equally suspected him on that account.

Ver. 18. [h] Ὅτι ψῦχος ἦν, For it was cold.] The Jews, saith Dr Lightfoot, testify, That there might be snow or frost at the passover; and Radulphus, that great dews fell then, which made the air cold till the sun had exhaled them.

Ver. 20. [i] I taught always in the synagogue, καὶ ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ, and in the temple.] This confutes them who say, Christ came not to Jerusalem, lest the Romans should suspect him of affecting a kingdom; for here he testifies, that he taught daily in the temple. After his first miracle done in Cana of Galilee, we find him going up to Jerusalem to keep the passover, where he abode at least eight days; and many seeing the miracles that he did, believed on him, chap. 5. 1. and chap. 6. 4. he ascends again to the feast; so that we have reason to believe he never declined that feast. He also went up to the feast of tabernacles, chap. 7. 10. and preached to the people in the temple, ver. 13. and wrought such wonders, that the Jews cried out, When Christ cometh, will he do more miracles than these? ver. 31. This feast being ended, he goes to the mount of Olives, and returns the next day to preach in the temple, chap. 8. 1, 2. At the feast of dedication we find him again walking in Solomon's porch, chap. 10. 23. and there declaring himself to be the Son of God, chap. 11. He is at Bethany, but two miles distant from Jerusalem, where he raises Lazarus from the dead; and from Bethany he goes to Jerusalem, the people going before him, and crying, Hosanna to the Son of David.

Ver. 23. [k] Why smitest thou me?] Hence we learn, that we are not literally to understand the precept of turning the other cheek to him that smites us; for Christ himself did not this, but defends the innocency of his words; which also shews, that to stand up in the defence of our own innocency cannot be contrary to the Christian duties of patience and forgiveness. See additions, N°. 31.

Ver. 24. [l] Ἀπέστειλεν οὖν. Annas had sent him bound to Caiaphas.] Ἀπέστειλεν, here the perfect is put for the plu-perfect tense. So ἔδησεν αὐτὸν, he had bound him, Matth. 14. 3. and ver. 4. εἶπεν, he had said. So ἐκράτησε ἔδησε. εἶπε, he had apprehended, had bound, had said, Mark 6. 17, 18. and ver. 26. ἀπέκοψε, he had cut off.

Ver. 28. [m] They went not out into the judgment-hall,] hall,] among the Gentiles, whom they eſteemed as unclean, Acts 10. 28. leſt by touching them they ſhould be unclean, as the law pronounces him that toucheth an unclean perſon, Numb. 19. 22. and ſo ſhould be unfit to eat the chagigah, or paſchal ſacrifices, which began to be eaten on the 15th day, and being holy things, might not be eaten in their defilement. That theſe are alſo called the paſſover, and that the paſchal lamb was eaten the evening before, and that there was no tranſlation of it to another day, either by reaſon of the ſabbath, or the uncleanneſs of the congregation, ſee the Appendix to Mark 14. and Dr Lightfoot.

Ver. 31. [n] Ἡμῖν οὐκ ἔξεστιν ἀποκτεῖναι οὐδένα, It is not lawful for us to put any man to death.] The Jews ſay, that the power of inflicting capital puniſhments upon offenders was taken from them by the Romans forty years before the deſtruction of their city and temple. So we read in the Jeruſalem Talmud, L. Sanhedrim, c. 7. in that of Babylon, Sanhedr. fol. 41. in Aboda Zara, fol. 2. in Maimonides, Tr. Sanhedr. cap. 14. §. 13. And if it had remained with them at this time, it is ſuppoſed they would have been more ſpeedy in cutting off our Saviour. But yet it ſeemeth evident that the Jews ſtill retained the power of judging and condemning thoſe to death who were Jews by nature and original, and by their laws deſerved to die: for after they were reduced to a Roman province, this privilege, ſaith (b) Joſephus, was ſtill granted to them, τοῖς πατρίοις ἔθεσι καὶ ἱεροῖς χρῆσθαι, to uſe the ſacred inſtitutions and cuſtoms derived to them from their fathers. And it was granted to Hyrcanus their high-prieſt, that if any controverſy aroſe περὶ τῶν Ἰουδαίων ἀσυγῆς, touching the diſcipline of the Jews, (c) κρίσιν γίνεσθαι παρ' αὐτῷ, the judgment of it ſhould be referred to him. Accordingly, we find the high-prieſt and his council ſtoning Stephen, not jure zelatarum, by the rage of zealots, as ſome conceive, but according to the law, that the blaſphemer ſhould be ſtoned, Levit. 24. 16. Deut. 17. 6. 7. For he is brought before the high-prieſt and his council, Acts 6. 15.—7. 1. who were the proper judges in this caſe; witneſſes are produced who teſtify before them that he had ſpoken blaſphemous words againſt the temple and the law, againſt Moſes and againſt God, Acts 6. 11, 13. theſe witneſſes do alſo ſtone him firſt, according as the law required. Thus alſo Saul, armed with the power of the high-prieſt and elders, perſecuted the Jewiſh Chriſtians ἄχρι θανάτου, unto death, and led them bound to Jeruſalem to be puniſhed, Acts 22. 4, 5. thus alſo would they have judged Paul after their own law, Acts 24. 6. and would have killed him, Acts 23. 37. had not Lyſias the chief captain reſcued him from their hands; this, ſay they, he did by violence, i. e. by an invaſion of their rights; this, ſaith he, I did, knowing that he was a Roman, and ſo would not have done it had he been a Jew only. They therefore ſeem to ſay they could not do this in the caſe of Chriſt, becauſe they had accuſed him before Pilate, not of crimes committed againſt their law, but of ſedition, and aſpiring to a kingdom in prejudice to Caeſar and the Roman government, of which things it belonged to Pilate, not to them, to judge. But perhaps this matter may be compounded, by reflecting on Ananus the high-prieſt, who killed James the brother of our Lord, and ſtoned many other Chriſtians, ὡς παραβάσας, as being tranſgreſſors of the law; this, ſaith Joſephus, οἱ περὶ τὰς νόμους ἀκριβεῖς, they who beſt underſtood their laws diſliked, ſaying, that Ananus ſhould not have called a council concerning life and death, without licence from Albinus the Roman preſident: whence I infer, that the power of inflicting capital puniſhments, even upon the Jews converted to the Chriſtian faith, was then ſo taken from them, that they could not ὀρθῶς regularly do it without leave firſt obtained from the Roman preſident; but with his leave they might inflict upon them any capital puniſhment denounced againſt malefactors by their law. And if it be here ſaid that Pilate gave them leave to inflict this death on our Lord, by ſaying, Take ye him, and crucify him, chap. 19. 6. to this the anſwer is, 1. That Pilate had given them no ſuch licence when he ſpake theſe words; (2.) That crucifixion was none of the kinds of death aſſigned by their law; and, (3.) That Pilate by theſe words ſeems not to authoriſe them to do this, but rather to ſay to them, Do it at your peril, for I judge him innocent. See the note there.

Ver. 36. [o] My kingdom is not of this world,] and ſo hath nothing to do with, or oppoſite to the Roman government; it is not of human or mundane original, but from heaven, and ſo it meddles not with the affairs of this world; it hath none of the pomp or ſplendor of the world; none to fight for it with any carnal weapons, Luke 9. 56. it exerciſes no dominion over mens bodies, but their ſouls only. So the phraſe ἐκ τοῦ κόσμου οὐκ ἐστιν, not to be of this world, ſignifies, John 8. 23.——15. 19.——17. 14. eſpecially when it is oppoſed to being ἐκ τοῦ πατρὸς, from the Father,

(b) Antiq. l. 14. c. 17. p. 487. (c) P. 486.

Father, 1 John 2. 16. and ἐκ τ῀ Θεοῦ, from God, 1 John 4. 4, 5, 6. So when Domitian enquired of the kingdom of Christ, of what nature it was, and when and where it was to be set up, the nephews of that Judas who was the brother of our Lord, answered, It was (d) not an earthly, but an heavenly kingdom, to be set up at the end of the world.

Ver. 37. [p] For this cause was I born, and for this cause came I into the world.] Hence the Socinians infer, that Christ was born before he came into the world; and that this latter phrase only denotes his entrance on his public ministry, chap. 3. 17, 19.——9. 39.——11. 27. But this follows not from these words, which only may import the same thing, viz. that Christ was born, and came into the world to this end, that he might bear witness to the truth. See the notes upon the places cited.

CHAP. XIX.

1. THEN Pilate therefore, (to satisfy the clamours of the Jews,) took Jesus and [a] scourged him;

2. And the soldiers platted a crown of thorns, and put it on his head, and they put upon him a purple robe,

3. And said, Hail king of the Jews, and they smote him with their hands.

4. Pilate therefore went forth again, and saith unto them, Behold I bring him forth to you, that ye may know that I find no fault in him; (let it therefore suffice that I have scourged him.)

5. Then came Jesus forth, wearing the crown of thorns, and the purple robe; and Pilate saith unto them, Behold the man! (how despicable he is, and how ridiculous it is to think of his affecting a kingdom, or attempting any thing against Cæsar's government.)

6. When the chief priests therefore and officers saw him, they cried out, saying, Crucify him, crucify him. Pilate saith unto them, (If ye will have it so,) [b] take ye him, and crucify him, for I find no fault in him, (and therefore cannot do it myself.)

7. The Jews answered him, We have a law, [c] and by our law he ought to die, (as being guilty of blasphemy,) because he made himself the Son of God, (John 10. 33.)

8. When Pilate therefore heard that saying, he was the more afraid (to crucify him:)

9. And went again into the judgment hall, and saith unto Jesus, Whence art thou? But Jesus gave him no answer.

10. Then saith Pilate unto him, Speakest thou not to me? knowest thou not that I have power to crucify thee, and have power to release thee?

11. Jesus answered, Thou (mayst have this power over malefactors and ordinary men, but thou) couldst have [d] no power at all against me, (the Son of God, and wholly innocent,) except (through the wise counsel of God, appointing me to die for the salvation of mankind,) it were given (i. e. permitted) thee from above (to put me to death;) therefore he that delivereth me (the Son of God) to thee, (that I might be crucified as a malefactor,) hath the greater sin, (though thy sin in condemning him in whom thou findest no fault at all, cannot be little.)

12. And from thenceforth Pilate sought to release him; but the Jews cried out, saying, [e] If thou let this man go, thou art not Cæsars friend, (for) whosoever maketh himself a king, (he by so doing) speaketh against Cæsar, (as saying in effect, he is not the rightful king over us.)

13. When Pilate therefore heard that saying, he brought Jesus forth (of the judgment hall) and sat down in the judgment seat, in a place that is called the Pavement, but in the Hebrew, Gabbatha.

14. And it was the preparation of the passover, (i. e. Friday in the paschal week, ver. 31. and 42. see the appendix to Mark 14.) and about the sixth hour, he saith unto the Jews, Behold your king.

15. But they cried out, Away with him, away with him, crucify him; Pilate saith unto them, Shall I crucify your king? The chief-priests answered, [f] We have no (person we own as our) king but Cæsar.

16. Then [g] delivered he him therefore to them to be crucified; and they (i. e. the soldiers) took Jesus, and led him away.

17. And he bearing his cross (part of the way, see note on Luke 23. 26.) went forth to a place called the place of a skull, which is called in the Hebrew, Golgotha;

18. Where they crucified him, and two other with him, on either side one, and Jesus in the midst.

19. And

(d) Ὅτι ἡ κοσμικὴ μοι οὐκ ἐστίν, ἐφησὶν ὁ κύριος· εἰ γὰρ ἐπίγειος ἦν τυγχάνει ἂν συντελείας τ῀ αἰῶνος γενησομένη, Euseb. hist. eccl. l. 3. c. 20.

19. And Pilate wrote a title, and put it on the croſs; and the writing was, (This is) JESUS OF NAZARETH THE KING OF THE JEWS.

20. This title then read many of the Jews, for the place where Jeſus was crucified was nigh to the city; and it was written in Hebrew, and Greek, and Latin.

21. Then ſaid the chief prieſts of the Jews to Pilate, Write not the king of the Jews, but that he ſaid, I am the king of the Jews.

22. Pilate anſwered, What I have written, I have written, (i. e. the inſcription ſhall not be changed.)

23. Then the ſoldiers, when they had crucified Jeſus, took his (other) garments, and made four parts (out of them,) to every ſoldier a part, and (they took) alſo his coat; now the coat was without ſeam, woven from the top throughout.

24. They ſaid therefore among themſelves, [h] Let us not rent it, (it being all of one piece,) but caſt lots for it whoſe it ſhall be: (and this was done) that the ſcripture might be fulfilled which ſaith, (Pſal. 22. 19.) They parted my raiment among them, and for my veſture they did caſt lots. Theſe things therefore the ſoldiers did.

25. Now there ſtood by the croſs of Jeſus, his mother, and his mothers ſiſter, [i] Mary the wife of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalene.

26. When Jeſus therefore ſaw his mother, and the diſciple ſtanding by whom he loved, he ſaid unto his mother, [k] Woman, behold (him who is to take care of thee, as if he were) thy ſon.

27. Then ſaith he unto the diſciple, Behold (her whom thou muſt henceforth treat as) thy mother. And from that hour that diſciple (St John) took her to his own home.

28. After this, Jeſus knowing that all things (elſe relating to his life on earth) were now accompliſhed, that the ſcripture might (in this alſo) be fulfilled, ſaith, I thirſt.

29. Now there was ſet (for the ſoldiers) a veſſel full of vinegar, and they filled a ſponge with vinegar, and put it upon hyſſop, and put it to his mouth.

30. When Jeſus therefore had received the vinegar, he ſaith, It (i. e. my work on earth,) is finiſhed; and (then) he bowed the head, and [l] gave up the ghoſt.

31. The Jews therefore, becauſe it was the preparation, (i. e. Friday,) that the bodies ſhould not remain upon the croſs on the ſabbath day, for that ſabbath day was an high day, (as being not a ſabbath only, but the ſecond day of unleavened bread, from whence they reckoned their ſabbath till pentecoſt, and the day of preſenting or waving the ſheaf-offering, Lev. 23. 11, 15. and ſo a triple feſtival,) beſought Pilate that their legs might be broken, and that they might be taken away.

32. Then came the ſoldiers, and brake the legs of the firſt, and of the other (thief) which was crucified with him.

33. But when they came to Jeſus, and ſaw that he was dead already, they [m] brake not his legs.

34. But one of the ſoldiers with a ſpear pierced his ſide, and forthwith came there out [n] blood and water.

35. And he that (ſtanding by the croſs, ver. 26.) ſaw it, bare record, and his record is true; and he knoweth that he ſaith true, (and teſtifies it) that ye might believe.

36. For theſe things were done, (according to a foregoing prophecy concerning him,) that the ſcripture ſhould be fulfilled, (which ſaith, Pſal. 34. 39.) A bone of him ſhall not be broken.

37. And again (that) [o] another ſcripture (might be fulfilled, which) ſaith, (Zach. 12. 10.) They ſhall look on him whom they pierced.

38. And after this, Joſeph of Arimathea, being a diſciple of Jeſus, but ſecretly for fear of (offending) the Jews, beſought Pilate that he might take away the body of Jeſus, and Pilate gave him leave: he came therefore and took the body of Jeſus.

39. And there came alſo Nicodemus, which at the firſt came to Jeſus by night, and brought a mixture of myrrh and aloes, about an [p] hundred pound weight.

40. Then took they the body of Jeſus, and wound it in linen clothes with the ſpices, as the manner of the Jews is to bury.

41. Now in (or near) the place where he was crucified, there was a garden, and in the garden a new ſepulchre, wherein was never man yet laid:

42. There laid they Jeſus therefore, becauſe of the Jews preparation day, for the ſepulchre was nigh at hand.

ANNOTATIONS

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XIX.

Ver. 1. [a] Καὶ ἐμαστίγωσε, And scourged him,] after the manner of the Romans, who chastised them first with whips who were to be crucified; though Pilate did this not with an intent to crucify him, in whom he found no fault, but hoping that their rage might be satisfied with it. See note on Luke 23. 16.

Ver. 6. [b] Take ye him, and crucify him.] Pontius Pilate does not here give them leave to do this, but rather saith, If you will have it so, do it yourselves at your peril, for I cannot condemn a man without a fault. So Grotius.

Ver. 7. [c] By our law he ought to die, ὅτι ἑαυτὸν υἱὸν τοῦ Θεοῦ ἐποίησεν, because he made himself the Son of God.] The Jews could not here mean the law against false prophets, Deut. 18. 20. partly because the reason here assigned doth not prove Christ a false prophet, partly because Christ neither tempted them to worship himself, and much less to worship false gods, nor did he give them any false sign; which are the only reasons assigned in that chapter for putting the false prophet to death. How much more probable is it that they meant the law against blasphemy? Lev. 24. 16. because they do not only seek to kill him as a blasphemer, for these very words, John 5. 18. but to stone him, which was the very kind of death assigned by that law to the blasphemer; see John 10. 33, 36. Hence in the other evangelists they charge him with blasphemy, and judge him worthy of death for this confession, that he was the Son of God, Matth. 26. 64, 65, 66. Mark 14. 61.—64. Luke 22. 71, 72. as judging that by this assertion, he being a man, made himself equal with God. Schlictingius owns this, but then he adds, that the Jews misunderstood and calumniated him in this inference, Christ meaning no more by this assertion, than that he was the true Messiah. But against this mitigation of the import of the words there lyes a plain objection, that though Christ was so much concerned for the honour of his Father, whose honour must be much impaired by the advancement of the best of men to an equality with him, and though this blasphemy, if truly laid to his charge, was a sufficient evidence that he was not the Christ, yet neither in the 5th or 10th John doth he ever plainly say he was not God, or that he never did intend to signify by this expression that he was equal to God, as is shewed in the notes on those two places; which yet, had he been only man, seems more necessary to have been done, for the honour of God, and for the removal of so just a prejudice against him, than to remove any other calumny they falsly charged upon him.

Ver. 11. [d] Οὐκ εἶχες ἐξουσίαν οὐδεμίαν κατ' ἐμοῦ,] Thou couldst have no power against me, &c.] This seems to be a Jewish phrase, importing a power to take away the life of another; as when Saul saith to Doeg, 1 Sam. 22. 18. fall upon the priests; exercise authority upon them, saith the Chaldee: and the same expression is there used when David bids his servant fall on the Amalekite, 2 Sam. 1. 15. and when king Solomon sent Benaiah to fall upon Adonijah, 1 Kings 2. 25. and upon Joab, ver. 29. 30. and upon Shimei. See the paraphrase here.

Ver. 12. [e] If thou lettest this man go, thou art not Cæsar's friend.] This chiefly moved Pilate, because, as Tacitus and Suetonius observe, Tiberius was apt to suspect the worst; and the least crime with him made a man guilty of death, if they related to the government: he durst not therefore venture that this charge should be laid against him by the Jews.

Ver. 15. [f] We have no king but Cæsar.] By this how plainly do they condemn themselves as guilty of rebellion, in all their attempts, by war and tumults to free themselves from the government of Cæsar, and own that the terrible destruction which at last came upon them was from themselves?

Ver. 16. [g] Then Pilate delivered him to them;] not to the Jews, but to the soldiers, that he might be crucified, as he was, by them; though he who was delivered to the soldiers to be crucified, only at their request, and to satisfy their restless clamors that he might be crucified, may be well said to be delivered up to them, who brought him to Pilate for this end, and prevailed with him thus to give him up.

Ver. 24. [h] Let us not rent it, but let us cast lots for it.] They divided his other garments into four parts, and then cast lots what part each of them should chuse, Mark 15. 24. Matth. 27. 35. Luke 23. 34. but they cast lots for his coat who should have the whole.

Ver. 25. [i] Μαρία ἡ τοῦ Κλωπᾶ, Mary the wife of Cleophas or Alphæus,] חלפי being flexile into Alphai or Cleophi, here it is to be rendered Alphæus, for this Mary was the mother of James the less, Mark 15. 40. whose father was Alphæus, Matth. 10. 3.

Ver. 26. [k] Woman, behold thy son.] Hence it is gathered that Joseph her husband was then dead,

19. And Pilate wrote a title, and put it on the croſs; and the writing was, (This is) JESUS OF NAZARETH THE KING OF THE JEWS.

20. This title then read many of the Jews, for the place where Jeſus was crucified was nigh to the city; and it was written in Hebrew, and Greek, and Latin.

21. Then ſaid the chief prieſts of the Jews to Pilate, Write not the king of the Jews, but that he ſaid, I am the king of the Jews.

22. Pilate anſwered, What I have written, I have written, (i. e. the inſcription ſhall not be changed.)

23. Then the ſoldiers, when they had crucified Jeſus, took his (other) garments, and made four parts (out of them,) to every ſoldier a part, and (they took) alſo his coat; now the coat was without ſeam, woven from the top throughout.

24. They ſaid therefore among themſelves, [h] Let us not rent it, (it being all of one piece,) but caſt lots for it whoſe it ſhall be: (and this was done) that the ſcripture might be fulfilled which ſaith, (Pſal. 22. 19.) They parted my raiment among them, and for my veſture they did caſt lots. Theſe things therefore the ſoldiers did.

25. Now there ſtood by the croſs of Jeſus, his mother, and his mothers ſiſter, [i] Mary the wife of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalene.

26. When Jeſus therefore ſaw his mother, and the diſciple ſtanding by whom he loved, he ſaid unto his mother, [k] Woman, behold (him who is to take care of thee, as if he were) thy ſon.

27. Then ſaith he unto the diſciple, Behold (her whom thou muſt henceforth treat as) thy mother. And from that hour that diſciple (St John) took her to his own home.

28. After this, Jeſus knowing that all things (elſe relating to his life on earth) were now accompliſhed, that the ſcripture might (in this alſo) be fulfilled, ſaith, I thirſt.

29. Now there was ſet (for the ſoldiers) a veſſel full of vinegar, and they filled a ſpunge with vinegar, and put it upon hyſſop, and put it to his mouth.

30. When Jeſus therefore had received the vinegar, he ſaith, It (i. e. my work on earth) is finiſhed; and (then) he bowed the head, and [l] gave up the ghoſt.

31. The Jews therefore, becauſe it was the preparation, (i. e. Friday,) that the bodies ſhould not remain upon the croſs on the ſabbath day, for that ſabbath day was an high day, (as being not a ſabbath only, but the ſecond day of unleavened bread, from whence they reckoned their ſabbath till pentecoſt, and the day of preſenting or waving the ſheaf-offering, Lev. 23. 11, 15. and ſo a triple feſtival,) beſought Pilate that their legs might be broken, and that they might be taken away.

32. Then came the ſoldiers, and brake the legs of the firſt, and of the other (thief) which was crucified with him.

33. But when they came to Jeſus, and ſaw that he was dead already, they [m] brake not his legs.

34. But one of the ſoldiers with a ſpear pierced his ſide, and forthwith came there out [n] blood and water.

35. And he that (ſtanding by the croſs, ver. 26.) ſaw it, bare record, and his record is true; and he knoweth that he ſaith true, (and teſtifies it) that ye might believe.

36. For theſe things were done, (according to a foregoing prophecy concerning him,) that the ſcripture ſhould be fulfilled, (which ſaith, Pſal. 34. 39.) A bone of him ſhall not be broken.

37. And again (that) [o] another ſcripture (might be fulfilled, which) ſaith, (Zach. 12. 10.) They ſhall look on him whom they pierced.

38. And after this, Joſeph of Arimathea, being a diſciple of Jeſus, but ſecretly for fear of (offending) the Jews, beſought Pilate that he might take away the body of Jeſus, and Pilate gave him leave: he came therefore and took the body of Jeſus.

39. And there came alſo Nicodemus, which at the firſt came to Jeſus by night, and brought a mixture of myrrh and aloes, about an [p] hundred pound weight.

40. Then took they the body of Jeſus, and wound it in linen clothes with the ſpices, as the manner of the Jews is to bury.

41. Now in (or near) the place where he was crucified, there was a garden, and in the garden a new ſepulchre, wherein was never man yet laid:

42. There laid they Jeſus therefore, becauſe of the Jews preparation day, for the ſepulchre was nigh at hand.

ANNOTATIONS

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XIX.

Ver. 1. [a] Καὶ ἐμαστίγωσε, And scourged him,] after the manner of the Romans, who chastised them first with whips who were to be crucified; though Pilate did this not with an intent to crucify him, in whom he found no fault, but hoping that their rage might be satisfied with it. See note on Luke 23. 16.

Ver. 6. [b] Take ye him, and crucify him.] Pontius Pilate does not here give them leave to do this, but rather saith, If you will have it so, do it yourselves at your peril, for I cannot condemn a man without a fault. So Grotius.

Ver. 7. [c] By our law he ought to die, ὅτι ἑαυτὸν υἱὸν τοῦ Θεοῦ ἐποίησεν, because he made himself the Son of God.] The Jews could not here mean the law against false prophets, Deut. 18. 20. partly because the reason here assigned doth not prove Christ a false prophet, partly because Christ neither tempted them to worship himself, and much less to worship false gods, nor did he give them any false sign; which are the only reasons assigned in that chapter for putting the false prophet to death. How much more probable is it that they meant the law against blasphemy? Lev. 24. 16. because they do not only seek to kill him as a blasphemer, for these very words, John 5. 18. but to stone him, which was the very kind of death assigned by that law to the blasphemer; see John 10. 33, 36. Hence in the other evangelists they charge him with blasphemy, and judge him worthy of death for this confession, that he was the Son of God, Matth. 26. 64, 65, 66. Mark 14. 61.—64. Luke 22. 71, 72. as judging that by this assertion, he being a man, made himself equal with God. Schlictingius owns this, but then he adds, that the Jews misunderstood and calumniated him in this inference, Christ meaning no more by this assertion, than that he was the true Messiah. But against this mitigation of the import of the words there lyes a plain objection, that though Christ was so much concerned for the honour of his Father, whose honour must be much impaired by the advancement of the best of men to an equality with him, and though this blasphemy, if truly laid to his charge, was a sufficient evidence that he was not the Christ, yet neither in the 5th or 10th John doth he ever plainly say he was not God, or that he never did intend to signify by this expression that he was equal to God, as is shewed in the notes on those two places; which yet, had he been only man, seems more necessary to have been done, for the honour of God, and for the removal of so just a prejudice against him, than to remove any other calumny they falsly charged upon him.

Ver. 11. [d] Οὐκ εἶχες ἐξουσίαν οὐδεμίαν κατ' ἐμοῦ.] Thou couldst have no power against me, &c.] This seems to be a Jewish phrase, importing a power to take away the life of another; as when Saul saith to Doeg, 1 Sam. 22. 18. fall upon the priests; exercise authority upon them, saith the Chaldee: and the same expression is there used when David bids his servant fall on the Amalekite, 2 Sam. 1. 15. and when king Solomon sent Benaiah to fall upon Adonijah, 1 Kings 2. 25. and upon Joab, ver. 29. 30. and upon Shimei. See the paraphrase here.

Ver. 12. [e] If thou letteſt this man go, thou art not Cæsar's friend.] This chiefly moved Pilate, because, as Tacitus and Suetonius observe, Tiberius was apt to suspect the worst; and the least crime with him made a man guilty of death, if they related to the government: he durst not therefore venture that this charge should be laid against him by the Jews.

Ver. 15. [f] We have no king but Cæsar.] By this how plainly do they condemn themselves as guilty of rebellion, in all their attempts, by war and tumults to free themselves from the government of Cæsar, and own that the terrible destruction which at last came upon them was from themselves?

Ver. 16. [g] Then Pilate delivered him to them;] not to the Jews, but to the soldiers, that he might be crucified, as he was, by them; though he who was delivered to the soldiers to be crucified, only at their request, and to satisfy their restless clamors that he might be crucified, may be well said to be delivered up to them, who brought him to Pilate for this end, and prevailed with him thus to give him up.

Ver. 24. [h] Let us not rent it, but let us cast lots for it.] They divided his other garments into four parts, and then cast lots what part each of them should chuse, Mark 15. 24. Matth. 27. 35. Luke 23. 34. but they cast lots for his coat who should have the whole.

Ver. 25. [i] Μαρία ἡ τοῦ Κλωπᾶ, Mary the wife of Cleophas or Alphæus,] חלבי being flexile into Alphai or Cleophi, here it is to be rendered Alphæus, for this Mary was the mother of James the less, Mark 15. 40. whose father was Alphæus, Matth. 10. 3.

Ver. 26. [k] Woman, behold thy son.] Hence it is gathered that Joseph her husband was then dead, whence Chriſt takes care ſhe ſhould not be deſtitute, and therefore charges his beloved diſciple to treat her as his mother, and he accordingly takes her home to his own houſe.

Ver. 30. [l] Παρέδωκε τὸ πνεῦμα, He gave up his ſpirit] into his Father's hands, Luke 23. 46. The Jews, ſaith Grotius, who believed a judgment to come, uſed this phraſe to ſignify that the ſoul leaving the body at the time of death, returned to God that gave it, Eccleſ. 12. 7. to receive its ſentence from him.

Ver. 33, 36. [m] They brake not his bones; 36. and this was done that the ſcripture might be fulfilled (which ſaith) ὀστοῦν οὐ συντριβήσεται αὐτοῦ, a bone of him (or it) ſhall not be broken.] This is uſually referred to the command touching the paſchal lamb, thou ſhalt not break a bone of it, Exod. 12. 46. Numb. 9. 12. where the Greek ſaith, ὀστοῦν οὐ συντρίψετε ἀπ' αὐτοῦ. But David being alſo a type of Chriſt, we may as probably refer this to the words, Pſal. 34. 20. He keepeth all their bones, ἓν ἐξ αὐτῶν οὐ συντριβήσεται, one of them ſhall not be broken: that promiſe which reſpects all righteous perſons, being more eſpecially to be fulfilled in this juſt one.

Ver. 34. [n] Καὶ ἐυθὺς ἐξῆλθεν αἷμα καὶ ὕδωρ, And forthwith came there out blood and water.] The covenant of the old law was confirmed by blood mixed with water to keep it from congealing, Heb. 9. 19. ſo alſo was the covenant of the New Teſtament, 1 John 5. 6. Dr Lightfoot farther ſaith, that according to the tradition of the Jewiſh rabbins, when Moſes ſmote the rock, there came forth firſt blood, and then water: now that rock was Chriſt, 1 Cor. 10. 4.

Ver. 37. [o] And again another ſcripture ſaith, they ſhall look upon him whom they have pierced.] The application of theſe words to Chriſt agrees with the opinion of the ancient Jews, who interpret, Zach. 12. 10. of Meſſiah the ſon of David, as Moſes Hudarſon in Gen. 28. though R. Solomon Jarchi, R. David, and Abarbinel refer it to the death of Meſſiah the ſon of Joſeph. Hence alſo note, that what the Romans did by the inſtigation of the Jews, is fitly aſcribed to the Jews themſelves.

Ver. 39. [p] About an hundred pound weight:] which was an indication not only of the wealth, but alſo of the great affection of Nicodemus to the bleſſed Jeſus: hence alſo, they not only anoint him, as they commonly uſed to do others, but bury him with ſo great a mixture of ſpices as was done at the funerals of great men. So Jacob was embalmed after the Egyptian manner, Gen. 50. 2. Aſa with ſpices and ſweet odours, 2 Chron. 16 14.

CHAP. XX.

1. THE firſt day of the week cometh [a] Mary Magdalene early, when it was yet dark, to the ſepulchre, (other women being with her,) and ſeeth the ſtone taken away from the ſepulchre.

2. Then (ſeeing this,) ſhe (inſtantly) [b] runneth, and cometh (not to all the diſciples, but) to Simon Peter, and to the other diſciple whom Jeſus loved, and ſaith unto them, They have taken away the Lord out of the ſepulchre, and we know not where they have laid him.

3. Peter therefore went forth, and that other diſciple, and came to-(wards) the ſepulchre.

4. So they ran both together, and (but) the other diſciple did out-run Peter, and came firſt to the ſepulchre:

5. And he ſtooping down, and looking in, ſaw the linen clothes lying, yet went he not in.

6. Then cometh Simon Peter following him, and went into the ſepulchre, and ſeeth the linen clothes ly;

7. And the napkin that was about his head not lying with the linen clothes, but wrapt together in a place by itſelf:

8. Then went in alſo that other diſciple which came firſt to the ſepulchre, and [c] he ſaw and believed (either the report of the women, or our Lord's reſurrection, which they believed not before.)

9. For as yet [d] they knew not (the import of) the ſcriptures, (which ſaid,) that he muſt riſe again from the dead.

10. Then the-(ſe two) diſciples went again to their own home.

11. But Mary (returning with them,) ſtood without at the ſepulchre weeping; and as ſhe wept, ſhe ſtooped down and looked into the ſepulchre,

12. And ſeeth two angels in white, ſitting, the one at the head, and the other at the feet, where the body of Jeſus had lain:

13. And they ſay unto her, Woman, why weepeſt thou? She ſaith unto them, Becauſe they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him.

14. And

14. And when she had thus said, she turned herself back, and saw Jesus standing, and (but she) knew not that it was Jesus.

15. Jesus saith unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? whom seekest thou? She, supposing him to be the gardener, saith unto him, Sir, if thou hast taken him away hence, tell me where thou hast laid him, and I will take him away.

16. Jesus saith unto her, Mary. She turneth herself, and saith unto him, Rabboni, that is to say, Master.

17. Jesus saith unto her, [e] Touch me not, (spend not now thy time in touching my body;) for I am not yet ascended (I shall not presently ascend) to my Father, but go (first) to my brethren, and say unto them, I (am shortly to) ascend to my Father, and your Father, [f] and to my God and your God, (to do for you the things of which I spake, chap. 14. 16.)

18. Mary Magdalene (then) came, and told the disciples that she had seen the Lord, and that he had spoken these things unto her.

19. Then the same (Lord's) day at evening, being the first day of the week, when the [g] doors were shut where the disciples were assembled, (and kept themselves close,) for fear of the Jews, came Jesus, and (opening silently the doors,) stood in the midst (of them,) and saith unto them, Peace be unto you.

20. And when he had so said, he shewed them his (pierced) hands and his side. Then were the disciples glad when they saw the Lord.

21. Then said Jesus unto them again, Peace be unto you; [h] as my Father hath sent me (to preach in his name,) even so send I you (to preach in my name.)

22. And when he had thus said, he breathed on them, and saith unto them, Receive ye the Holy Ghost, (to enable you for this office.)

23. [i] Whose soever sins ye (thus commissionated, and thus assisted by the Holy Ghost, declaratively shall) remit, they are (and shall, under the gospel-covenant, be) remitted to them; and whose soever sins ye (declaratively in your gospel shall) retain, they are (and shall in heaven be) retained.

24. But Thomas, one of the twelve, called Didymus, was not with them when Jesus came.

25. The other disciples therefore said unto him, We have seen the Lord. But he said unto them, Except I shall see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and thrust my hand into his side, I will not believe.

26. And after eight days, (i. e. the next Lord's day,) again his disciples were within, and Thomas with them; then came Jesus, the doors being shut, and stood in the midst, and said, Peace be unto you.

27. Then saith he unto Thomas, Reach hither thy finger, and behold my hands, and reach hither thy hand, and thrust it into my side, and be not faithless, but believing.

28. And Thomas answered, and said unto him, (Dost thou know what I said in thy absence? and hast thou raised thyself from the dead? Thou art) [k] my Lord and my God.

29. Jesus saith unto him, Thomas, because thou hast seen me, thou hast believed; (but more) [l] blessed are they who have not seen, and yet have believed.

30. And many other signs truly did Jesus in the presence of his disciples, which are not written in this book.

31. But these are written, that ye might [m] believe that Jesus is the Christ, the (only begotten) Son of God, and that believing, ye might have life through his name.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XX.

Ver. 1. [a] Mary Magdalane.] More women, and more Marys came to the sepulchre, Luke 23. 55.——24. 1. but the other evangelists beginning still with her, St John by naming her, who only spake, and only looked down into the sepulchre, left the rest to be understood.

Ver. 2. [b] She runneth before, and cometh to Simon Peter.] All the interpreters that I have met with say, That Mary ran not presently to Peter and John, but only after she had seen the Lord, ver. 18. and this they prove from Luke 24. 10, 11. But this cannot consist with the words of St John, who saith, she came to Peter and John only; whereas St Luke and the other evangelists say, she came to all the rest of the apostles, Matth. 28. 8. Mark 16. 10. When she came to St Peter and St John, she came alone, complained to them, that Christ's body was taken away, not thinking that he was risen: so here. When she came to the rest of the apostles, she came with the message from the angels, and from Christ himself, that he was risen, Matth. 28. 7, 8, 10. and was seen of her, Mark 16. 10, 11. Luke 24. 23. So here, ver. 18. which plainly shews, that all the other

Object. St Luke ſaith, They came to the apoſtles; and then adds, ver. 12. that Peter ἔδραμεν, ran to the ſepulchre.

Anſ. That word may be thus rendered, Peter had run, and ſtooping down had ſeen: as if he ſhould have ſaid, The woman told the words of the angels to the diſciples; and Peter alſo, to his admiration, had ſeen the body gone, and the linen clothes wrapped up by themſelves; which, by the way, is an evidence that Chriſt's body was not ſtolen away by his diſciples, ſince they would have carried it away, embalmed as it was, and not have ſtaid to wrap up the napkins.

Ver. 8. [e] And he ſaw, and believed.] Peter only ſaw, and admired at what was done, Luke 24. 12. but St John ſaw, and believed, not the words of Mary, for we find not that either of them ſuſpected her of falſhood, but the reſurrection of Jeſus, or the words of Chriſt, After three days I will riſe again. This, John ſaith, was the reaſon of his faith, not the predictions of the Old Teſtament: for, as for the apoſtles,

Ver. 9. [d] As yet they believed not the ſcriptures, (which ſaith) that he ought to riſe from the dead.] So infirm was the faith, not only of the Jews in general in that age, but of the apoſtles alſo, that they believed not the two fundamental articles of the Chriſtian faith, the death and reſurrection of the Meſſiah. As for the Jews, a contrary tradition had obtained among them, that their Meſſiah ſhould not die, John 12. 34. And though our Saviour ſpake oft to his diſciples of his death and reſurrection, this tradition and thoughts of his temporal kingdom were ſo fixed in their heads; that his diſciples underſtood not what he ſaid; and this ſaying was concealed from them, Mark 9. 32. Luke 9. 45.——18. 34. Whence Chriſt, after his reſurrection, upbraids them with their ſlowneſs to believe the ſcriptures, and ſhews them from them, that Chriſt ought to ſuffer, and riſe again the third day, Luke 24. 25.—44. 45. And hence it follows, that the Jews then underſtood not that any of their ſacrifices were types of our Saviour's paſſion, or availed to procure the remiſſion of their ſins on that account, and ſo could have no explicite faith in his blood, or expect juſtification by it. Whence St Paul, in that whole chapter, Heb. 11. in which he ſpeaks ſo much of the faith of the patriarchs, hath not the leaſt intimation of any relation that it had to the death of the Meſſiah.

Ver. 17. [e] Touch me not, for I am not yet aſcended to my Father.] I was once inclined, from theſe words, to think, that as the ſacrifice was not only to be ſlain, but the blood was to be brought into the ſanctuary, and there preſented before God to obtain the remiſſion of ſins; ſo Chriſt here intimated, that having offered up his body to the death, he, to complete his prieſtly office, and procure the full pardon of our ſins, was immediately to aſcend into the heavenly ſanctuary, to preſent there his blood before God: for why elſe doth he ſay, Hold, or detain me not, for I have not yet aſcended? Why doth he add theſe words, Go, tell my diſciples I aſcend? But finding that no evangeliſt ever ſpeaks of any ſuch immediate aſcent after his reſurrection, and that no commentator, antient or modern, ever thought of ſuch a thing, I think it better to refer theſe words to what Chriſt ſaid to his diſciples not long before his paſſion: for he had told them, for their comfort, that he was ſhortly to go to his Father, chap. 14. 12. and that then he would enable them to do greater works than he himſelf had done; and that this was juſt matter of their joy, ver. 28. and was more expedient for them than his preſence with them, chap. 16. 7. becauſe then he would ſend the Comforter, and whatſoever they ſhould ask the Father in his name, ſhould be done to them, ver. 23. becauſe the Father himſelf loved them, ver. 26. 27. Go, ſaith he, therefore, and tell my diſciples, that now they ſhortly may expect theſe gracious promiſes ſhould be made good to them by my aſcent to the Father: and as for thee, thou needeſt not be ſollicitous to touch or hold me now, thou wilt have time ſufficient to converſe with me, and to experiment the truth of my reſurrection; for I ſhall not immediately aſcend, but ſtay ſome time with you here on earth. Againſt this it may be objected, That ἀναβέβηκα is an aoriſt, and ſo οὔπω ἀναβέβηκα ſhould be rendered, I have not yet aſcended; not, I do, or I ſhall not yet aſcend. But to this I anſwer, That grammarians obſerve, that the aoriſt is often put both for the preſent tenſe and the future. See Glaſſius de verbo, l. 3. tr. 3 can. 47. So is this word uſed in this very goſpel, as when Chriſt ſaith, He that believeth in me ſhall not come into condemnation, but μεταβέβηκεν ſhall paſs from death to life, John 5. 24.

Ibid. [f] Πρὸς Θεόν μου καὶ Θεὸν ὑμῶν, To my God and your God.] Seeing Chriſt ſtiles God his God, hence, ſay the Socinians, it is evident that Chriſt is not God. But from theſe words it only follows, that he was not God according to that nature which aſcended. Thus God, even thy God, hath anointed thee, ſaith the Pſalmiſt of Chriſt; and yet he adds of the ſame perſon, Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever, Pſal. 45. See the note on Heb. 1. 8, 9.

Ver.

Ver. 19. [g] Τῶν θυρῶν κεκλεισμένων, The doors being shut.] Though it be an antient opinion that Christ made his body penetrate through the doors, yet it is both groundless and absurd, and contrary to the very design of Christ in coming to them. It is groundless; for why might not he, by his power, secretly open the doors, his disciples not perceiving it, as the angel opened the prison doors and gates to let out Peter? Acts 12. 10. It is absurd; for since Christ rose in that natural body which was crucified and laid in the grave, philosophy informs us, that such a body could not penetrate through another more solid body. See additions, N°. 32. And, 3*dly*, This fancy destroys not only the end of Christ's then coming to them, but of all that he had said and done to convince them that it was the same body that was crucified in which he appeared to them. When he came the first time, his disciples were troubled, supposing they had seen a spirit; now, to convince them of the contrary, Christ saith, See my hands and my feet, that it is even I; handle me, and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have: his second appearance, when the doors were shut, was to convince Thomas of the truth of the resurrection of his body, and this he does by calling him to put his finger to his pierced hands, and his hands into his pierced side: and yet this supposed pentration through the doors, destroys both these arguments; it being as certain that flesh and bones cannot penetrate through a door, as that a spirit hath not flesh and bones; and that his body must have passed through the door after the manner of a spirit, as that it afterwards appeared after the manner of a body; and that the same power which made a natural body penetrate through a door, could make a phantasm or aerial body appear like flesh and bones to the touch, and seem to have the marks and prints of a crucified body. So that unless our Saviour designed to invalidate the strength of what he said and did to convince them of the truth of his resurrection, he could not at the same time do a thing known to them, which did evacuate the force of all his proofs. Nor would the evangelist have twice recorded this circumstance, when speaking of the resurrection, had he imagined the words bore such a sense, as turned his body into a spirit, and ministred occasion to all that read it, to suspect the strength of any of these arguments to confirm this fundamental article.

Ver. 21. [h] As my Father hath sent me, so send I you:] not only to preach in my name, as I did in his, but as he sending me baptized me with the holy Ghost, and so anointed me to my office, Luke 4. 18. John 10. 36. so will I send you, baptizing you also with the holy Ghost sent down from heaven, Luke 24. 49. and so anoint you also for your office, 2 Cor. 1. 21, 22. And in testimony of this, I say to you now, receive the holy Ghost, ver. 22. and will soon after my ascension send him more plentifully down upon you.

Ver. 23. [i] Whose sins ye do remit, they are remitted,—retain, &c.] Christ sent them to preach repentance and remission of sins in his name, to Jew and Gentile, Luke 24. 47. and here he adds, that whose soever sins they, thus assisted by the holy Ghost, declared remitted by virtue of the gospel covenant, ratified in his blood shed for the remission of sins, should be remitted; and hence they preached remission of sins to all that believed in his name, and justification, or exemption from the guilt of them, Acts 2. 38.—13. 38, 39. and whose sins soever you retain, declaring to them, that according to the tenor of the gospel they still ly under the guilt of them, they shall be retained: and hence they declared to all that believed not on him, or lived not according to his laws, and sought not for justification by faith in his blood, that they were yet in their sins, 1 Cor. 15. 17. and could not be justified, Rom. 10. 4. —9. 32.

Ver. 28. [k] Ὁ Κύριός μου, καὶ ὁ Θεός μου, And Thomas answered and said unto him, My Lord, and my God.] Here,

1*st*, Let it be noted from Woltzogenius the Socinian, that they are not to be hearkned to, who say, Thomas spake these words, not to Christ, but by way of admiration to God the Father: for the apostle could not say, that Thomas answered, and much less, that he answered and said to him, unless he had directed his words to him, who said unto him in the precedent verse, be not faithless, but believe: and if he said to him, thou art my Lord and my God, he must acknowledge him as fully and as truly to be his God, as his Lord. And,

2*dly*, Since Thomas had learned from the law, there was one God alone, he could not own Christ as another God, but as the same in essence with him. Note,

3*dly*, That though Christ was still concerned for the honour of the Father, he doth not reprehend Thomas for thus owning him as his God, but doth attest that he believed aright concerning him; which shews that he did not mistake in owning the divinity of Christ. And whereas Woltzogenius here notes, that Christ was never called God before his resurrection, when he was to be worshipped as a divine Lord; as it is evident that his resurrection could not make him God, if he had been a creature creature only, nor juſtify the worſhip of a creature as God, ſo is the reaſon of this evident, becauſe he acted as a prophet whilſt he was on earth, ſpeaking ſtill in his Father's name, and as one ſent from him, it being eſſential to a prophet to ſpeak in the name of him whoſe prophet he is. See the preface to this goſpel, and the note on Mark 13. 32.

Ver. 29. [l] Bleſſed are they who have not ſeen, and yet have believed.] For faith is not praiſe-worthy upon this account, that we believe what we ſee with our eyes, and therefore can no longer doubt of; but on this account, that we yield to arguments highly probable, and againſt which we have nothing ſolid to object, and ſuch evidence as wiſe men conſent to, and act by, in the moſt important concernments of this preſent life; becauſe this ſhews a greater affection to the objects of our faith, and a better inclination to obey the will of God.

Ver. 31. [m] But theſe things were written, that ye might believe that Jeſus is the Chriſt.] Hence the Socinians argue, that they muſt err who think it was the intendment of this goſpel to ſhew that Jeſus Chriſt was the Word of God, begotten of the Father before all worlds, and therefore a divine perſon; whereas the apoſtle here plainly ſpeaks only of the miracles wrought by Chriſt, which we acknowledge to be done to prove him the Meſſiah promiſed to the Jews, and that prophet which was to come into the world, as St John here ſpeaks. But yet this hinders not his being God, or the Word of God, co-exiſtent with the Father before all worlds. Moreover, the apoſtle adds, theſe things were done to prove he was the Son of God: now this even the Jews interpreted as a form of words by which Chriſt made himſelf equal with God. See the notes on chap. 10. 33. and chap. 19. 7. Some alſo think, that St John ended here his goſpel, and that the following chapter was written by ſome other hand: but theſe words give no ground for this imagination, ſince other apoſtles, after they ſeemed to have concluded their epiſtles, add ſome new matter, as may be ſeen in the concluſions of the epiſtle to the Romans, and to the Hebrews. See the note on chap. 21. 24.

CHAP. XXI.

1. [a] AFTER theſe things Jeſus ſhewed himſelf again to the (greateſt part of the) diſciples at the ſea of Tiberias; and on this wiſe ſhewed he himſelf:

2. There were together Simon Peter, and Thomas called Didymus, and Nathaniel of Cana in Galilee, and the ſons of Zebedee, and two other (in all ſeven) of his diſciples.

3. Simon Peter ſaith unto them, I (will) go a-fiſhing. They ſay unto him, We alſo (will) go with thee. They (then) went forth and entered into a ſhip immediately; [b] and that night they caught nothing.

4. But when the morning was now come, Jeſus ſtood on the ſhore, but the diſciples (then) knew not that it was Jeſus (who ſtood there.)

5. Then Jeſus ſaith unto them, Children, have ye any meat? They anſwered him, No.

6. And he ſaid unto them, Caſt the net on the right ſide of the ſhip, and ye ſhall find (fiſhes.) They caſt therefore (the net as he had ſaid,) and now (the draught was ſo great that) they were not (well) able to draw it (along) for the multitude of fiſhes (incloſed in the net.)

7. Therefore that diſciple whom Jeſus loved ſaith unto Peter, It is the Lord (Jeſus who hath done this.) Now when Simon Peter heard that it was the Lord, he girt his [c] fiſhers coat upon him, for he was naked (to his ſhirt,) and did caſt himſelf into the ſea, (to ſwim firſt to Jeſus.)

8. And the other diſciples came in a little ſhip, for they were not far from land, but as it were two hundred cubits, dragging the net with (the) fiſhes (in it.)

9. (And) Aſſoon then as they were come to land, they ſaw a fire of coals there, and fiſh laid thereon, and bread (by it, all provided miraculouſly by Chriſt.)

10. Jeſus ſaith unto them, Bring of the fiſh which ye have now caught.

11. Simon Peter went up (into the boat,) and drew the net to the land, full of great fiſhes, an hundred fifty and three: and for all there were ſo many, yet was not the net broken.

12. Jeſus ſaith unto them, Come and dine. And none of the diſciples durſt ask him, Who art thou? (as) knowing that it was the Lord.

13. [d] Jeſus

13. [d] Jeſus then cometh, and taketh bread, and giveth them, and fiſh likewiſe.

14. This is now the third time that Jeſus ſhewed himſelf to (the body of) his diſciples, after that he was riſen from the dead.

15. So when they had dined, Jeſus ſaith unto Simon Peter, Simon ſon of Jonas, [e] loveſt thou me more than theſe (occupations thou art now employed in?) He ſaith unto him, Yea, Lord, thou knoweſt that I love thee. He ſaith unto him, (Leave then theſe things, and employments, and) feed my lambs, (my church ſhortly to be ſet up by new converts both of Jews and Gentiles.)

16. He ſaith unto him again the ſecond time, Simon ſon of Jonas, loveſt thou me? He ſaith unto him (again,) Yea, Lord, thou knoweſt that I love thee. He ſaith unto him, Feed my ſheep; (i. e. my church thus gathered.)

17. He ſaith unto him the third time, (that his threefold denial of him before unbelievers, might be atoned for by a threefold confeſſion of his affection to him before his diſciples,) Simon ſon of Jonas, loveſt thou me? Peter was grieved, becauſe he ſaid to him the third time, Loveſt thou me? And he ſaid unto him, [f] Lord, thou knoweſt all things, (and therefore) thou knoweſt that I love thee. Jeſus ſaith unto him, Feed my ſheep.

18. Verily, verily, I ſay unto thee, When thou waſt young, thou girdedſt thyſelf, and walkedſt whither thou wouldſt (without reſtraint;) but when thou ſhalt be old, thou ſhalt ſtretch forth thy hands, and another ſhall gird thee (to the pillar where thou ſhalt be ſcourged,) and (then) carry thee (to the croſs,) where (according to thy natural deſires) thou wouldſt not (be.)

19. This ſpake he, (Jeſus,) ſignifying by what (kind of) death he ſhould glorify God, (by this confirmation of the Chriſtian faith:) and when he had ſpoken this, he (roſe up and walked, and) ſaith unto him, Follow me, (to intimate to him, that he was to follow him in that kind of death he had ſuffered.)

20. Then Peter, (who followed him,) turning (his head) about, ſeeth (St John,) the diſciple whom Jeſus loved, following (alſo, viz.) which alſo leaned on his breaſt at ſupper, and ſaid, Lord, who is he that betrayeth thee? (John 13. 25.)

21. Peter ſeeing him, ſaith unto Jeſus, Lord, and (Gr. but) what ſhall this man do? (how ſhall it fare with him?)

22. Jeſus ſaith unto him, [g] If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee? Follow thou me.

23. Then went this ſaying abroad among the brethren, (who afterwards underſtood that this was ſpoken of his departure from this life,) that that diſciple ſhould not die; yet Jeſus ſaid not to him, He ſhall not die; but, If I will that he tarry till I come (in judgment againſt Jeruſalem to deſtroy it by the Romans,) what is that to thee?

24. [h] This is the diſciple which teſtifies of theſe things, and wrote theſe things, and we know (ſure I am) that his teſtimony is true.

25. And there are alſo many other things which Jeſus did; the which, if they ſhould be written every one, [i] I ſuppoſe that even the world itſelf would not contain the books which ſhould be written; (i. e. they would be ſo many, that it would ſeem incredible to the world that one man ſhould do them.) Amen.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XXI.

Ver. 1. [a] ΜΕΤΑ' ταῦτα, After theſe things;] i. e. after his firſt apparition, mentioned chap. 20. 20. and his ſecond, mentioned ver. 26. he appeared now τρίτον the third time, ver. 14.

Ver. 3. [b] In that night they caught nothing,] Chriſt being then abſent; but when he is preſent, they having his command, incloſe a very great multitude of fiſhes, to teach them, that though in preaching of the goſpel they were inſufficient to do any thing as of themſelves, 2 Cor. 3. 5. yet having his command to go and teach all nations, and the promiſe of his preſence with them, they ſhould be wonderfully ſucceſsful in bringing many to the faith. It is alſo very likely they went then a-fiſhing to ſupply their own want of neceſſaries; Chriſt therefore, by this draught of fiſhes, not only works a miracle to confirm them in the belief of his divine power, but to inform them alſo, that while they were employed in doing what he did command them, they ſhould never want what was convenient for them; and as by miraculouſly providing bread, and fiſh broiling on the fire, ver. 9. he ſhewed his ability to do ſo; ſo by this numerous draught of fiſhes he ſupplied them with neceſſaries, till the Holy Ghoſt ſhould come upon them, to fit them for their miniſtry.

Ver. 7. [c] He girt about him τὸν ἐπενδύτην, his fiſher's fiſher's coat, ἦν γὰρ γυμνὸς, for he was naked.] Suidas and Phavorinus ſay ἐπενδύτης is ἱμάτιον τὸ ἐσώτατον, the inner garment; but Julius Pollux ſays it was χίτων ὁ ἔξωθεν, the outward coat. The context here ſeems to make it moſt probable it was the inward garment next his ſhirt; for he was naked, ſignifies, he only had his ſhirt on; for in this ſenſe only Saul lay naked among the prophets, 1 Sam. 19. 24. and David was naked when he danced before the ephod, 2 Sam. 6. 20. i. e. he had put off his royal robe. See the note on Mark 14. 51. ſee alſo Iſa. 20. 2, 3. Job. 22. 6. —24. 7. 1 Cor. 4. 11.

Ver. 13. [c] Jeſus taketh bread, and giveth to them, and fiſh likewiſe.] As the Father of the family he both makes proviſion for them, and gives to every man his portion. That he himſelf did eat, is not ſaid; yet ſince St Peter ſaith, they did eat and drink with him after his reſurrection, Acts 10. 41. and St Luke ſaith, that he did eat before them, Luke 24. 42, 43. as he did that for confirmation of his reſurrection, ſo it is probable he might eat here for the ſame end.

Ver. 15. [d] Loveſt thou me πλέον τούτων, more than theſe?] Moſt interpreters think Chriſt asketh whether St Peter loved him more than the other diſciples? But as Peter could not anſwer to this queſtion unleſs he knew their hearts, ſo could he not ſhew he did this by feeding Chriſt's ſheep, unleſs he fed them more than they. It is therefore obſervable, that after Chriſt had given them a commiſſion to preach the goſpel, John 20. 21, 22. Peter betakes himſelf to his fiſhing trade; Chriſt therefore here enquires, whether he loved him more than theſe nets and fiſher-boats, about which he was now employed? and ſaith, that if indeed he did ſo, he ſhould leave them, and wholly employ himſelf in feeding his ſheep and lambs. Some of the fathers add, that Chriſt makes this enquiry thrice, that Peter, by a threefold confeſſion, might atone for his threefold denial. They who hence argue for the ſupremacy of Peter above the reſt of the apoſtles, are vain in their imaginations; for if by theſe words Chriſt required Peter to feed all his ſheep and lambs, it is certain he was wanting in his duty; for he never exerciſed one act of ſupremacy over the reſt of the apoſtles, but being ſent by them obeyed, Acts 8. 14. and being reproved by St Paul, he held his peace, and was ſo far from feeding all Chriſt's ſheep, that he never fed any of the province of St Paul. Did he feed thoſe apoſtles on whom the ſame holy Ghoſt fell, who had the ſame commiſſion, given at the ſame time, and in the ſame words, to preach the goſpel to all nations, or to every creature? if not, they were not in the number of the ſheep whom Peter is here bid to feed: or did all other paſtors receive commiſſion from St Peter to feed Chriſt's ſheep? did St Paul, who doth ſo ſolemnly declare he had not his commiſſion from man, neither by man? Gal. 1. 1. did any of the biſhops of Aſia? No. St Paul aſſures us the holy Ghoſt had made them overſeers of the flock of Chriſt, Acts 20. 28. No, ſaith (a) Pſeud-Ambroſius, not Peter only, ſed nos cum eo, but we with him have received commiſſion to feed Chriſt's ſheep; and what is here ſaid to Peter, Feed my ſheep, ad omnes dicitur, is, ſaith St (b) Auſtin, ſaid to all; and, ſaith St (c) Baſil, Chriſt here gave τὴν ἴσην ἐξουσίαν πᾶσι τοῖς ἐφεξῆς ποιμέσι καὶ διδασκάλοις, the ſame power to all enſuing paſtors and teachers.

Ver. 17. [f] Lord, σὺ πάντα οἶδας, thou knoweſt all things.] Schlictingius here ſaith that Chriſt is here ſaid to know all things, becauſe he knew many things. But this deſtroys St Peter's argument; for it follows not that Chriſt knew the ſincerity of St Peter's heart, and his affection towards him, unleſs he knew the ſecrets of all hearts. This therefore is an argument that Chriſt was truly God, it being God alone to whom the ſecrets of all hearts ly open, 1 Kings 8. 39.

Ver. 22. [g] If I will that he ſtay ἕως ἔρχομαι, till I come:] viz. to the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, after which this apoſtle lived a long time, and he alone did ſo, the other apoſtles being dead before. Of this coming the prophet Joel ſpeaks ſaying, the ſun ſhall be turned into darkneſs, πρὶν ἐλθεῖν, before the great and terrible day of the Lord cometh, Joel 2. 31. ſee ver. 1. ſo Mal. 3. 1, 2. ἰδοὺ ἔρχεται. behold he cometh—but who ſhall abide the day of his coming? and chap. 4. 1. ἰδοὺ ἔρχεται ἡμέρα Κυρίου. behold the day of the Lord cometh, which burneth as a furnace; and ver. 6. μὴ ἔλθω, leſt coming he ſmite the land with a curſe. In the New Teſtament we have frequent mention of this coming of our Lord; for when our Lord ſpake of the deſtruction of the temple, the apoſtles ask what is the ſign τῆς σῆς παρουσίας, of thy coming, Matth. 24. 3. and he tells them that παρουσία, the coming of the Son of man will be as lightning, ver. 27. and then ſhould they ſee the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven, ver. 30. that as it was in the days of Noah, ſo ſhould it be at the coming of the Son of man, ver. 37, 39. bidding them watch, becauſe they know not when their Lord cometh, ver. 42, 44. ſee Matth. 16. 28. Heb. 10. 37. James 5. 9. and the notes there, and on 2 Theſſ. 2. 1. And note here, That whereas it is ſaid, that the ſcripture mentions only two comings of our Lord, one when he came came and lived on earth, the other at the day of judgment, when he ſhall come ἐκ δευτέρου, a ſecond time without ſin unto ſalvation, Heb. 9. 28. this is indeed no objection againſt this intermediate advent, ſo frequently and plainly mentioned in the New Teſtament; this being not a perſonal advent, by a deſcent of Chriſt from heaven, but only a coming of our Lord by the Roman army, and by ſigns from heaven, and in the clouds, of their approaching ruin. See additions, N°. 33.

Ver. 24. [h] This is the diſciple who teſtifies of theſe things, and wrote theſe things, καὶ οἴδαμεν ὅτι ἀληθὴς ἐστιν ἡ μαρτυρία αὐτοῦ, and we know that his teſtimony is true.] Here ſome tell us that this chapter was written by many, and therefore not by St John; and this they conclude from the word οἴδαμεν, we know, but without ground; for Dr Lightfoot here obſerves, that we know, in the Chaldee dialect, is often uſed of one. So Mary Magdalene ſaith of herſelf, they have taken the Lord out of the ſepulchre, and οὐκ οἴδαμεν, and we know not where they have laid him: ſo St Paul often, οἴδαμεν γάρ, for we know that the law is ſpiritual, but I am carnal, 1 Theſſ. 2. 18. ἠθελήσαμεν—ἐγὼ μὲν Παῦλος, we would have come to you, I Paul. So this apoſtle ſaith of himſelf, ἡμεῖς μαρτυροῦμεν, we teſtify, Eph. 3. ver. 12. And that here it is only one that ſpeaketh, is demonſtrated from the following word, οἶμαι, I ſuppoſe. Nay even theſe words ſhew that all the preceding words of this chapter were writ by this diſciple, and therefore were not written by the Aſiatic biſhops. And therefore Theophylact here ſaith, ὑπολαμβάνει λέγων ὅτι ἀληθεύω.

Ver. 25. [i] Οὐδὲ αὐτὸν οἶμαι τὸν κόσμον χωρῆσαι τὰ γραφόμενα βιβλία, I ſuppoſe the world itſelf would not contain the books which ſhould be written.] Here moſt interpreters ſay, the apoſtle's words contain a great hyperbole, with a catechreſis; but (d) Origen avoids them both, declaring that the apoſtle ſaith, the world would not receive the books written, not for the multitude of the books, but for the greatneſs of the works recorded in them. So the word is uſed by this evangeliſt, introducing Chriſt ſaying to the Jews, My word ὁ λόγος ὁ ἐμὸς οὐ χωρεῖ ἐν ὑμῖν, is not received by you: ſo Euſebius ſaith, that the men of former ages οὐκ ἦν πᾶσι χωρεῖν, were not able to receive Chriſt's doctrine, l. 1. c. 1. p. 8. So Chriſt ſaith, οὐ πάντες χωροῦσι, all men cannot receive this ſaying, Matth. 19. 11. and (e) Philo ſaith, there are very many things in the world, ἃ διὰ μέγεθος, ἀνθρώπῳ λογισμὸς οὐ χωρεῖ, which for their greatneſs human reaſon cannot comprehend. See many other examples of this ſenſe of the word in Stephanus, and in Grotius on Matth. 19. 11.

(d) Τὸ γὰρ μὴ χωρεῖν τὸν κόσμον τὰ γραφόμενα βιβλία οὐ διὰ τὸ πλῆθος τῶν γεγραμμάτων ὡς τίνες ἐνόησαν, ἀλλὰ διὰ τὸ μέγεθος τῶν πραγμάτων. Philoc. c. 15. p. 46.

On JOHN vii. 47, 48, 49.

Are ye alſo deceived? Have any of the rulers, or of the Phariſees believed on him? But this people who knoweth not the law is accurſed.

§. 1. THE miracles of our bleſſed Saviour, by which his doctrine was confirmed, were ſo exceeding many, and exceeding great, that they prevailed on thoſe plain-hearted people who beheld them to believe that he who wrought them was indeed the Chriſt: for many of the people believed on him, ſaying, When Chriſt cometh, will he do more miracles than theſe? ver. 31. Theſe apprehenſions of the vulgar did ſo alarm the chief prieſts and Phariſees, who ſaw their intereſt, authority, and credit with the people muſt decline as faſt as that of Chriſt's prevailed, that they forthwith diſpatched their officers to take him, and bring him to them, ver. 32. Theſe officers, when they had heard the gracious words which iſſued from the mouth of Chriſt, were themſelves taken by him; they who were ſent to bring Chriſt to the prieſts and Phariſees, were themſelves brought to Chriſt; and ſo theſe converts neglected to do the office of the high prieſt's ſerjeants; and being asked the reaſon why they had not brought Chriſt, they boldly anſwer, That they had heard ſuch gracious and heavenly words proceeding from him, as never man before him ſpake, and therefore could not think it fit to apprehend ſo excellent a perſon as he was. The Phariſees, hearing this anſwer, do preſently conclude their officers muſt be deceived in theſe kind thoughts of Chriſt, and offer this (as they ſuppoſed) convincing argument to prove it, viz. That though the giddy multitude, who had no knowledge of the law, and therefore no capacity to underſtand the mind of God contained in it, might be inclined to think that Jeſus was indeed the Chriſt; yet ſince the rulers of the church, the ſanhedrim, ſeeing the doctors and expounders of the law, the ſcribes and Phariſees, believed not on him, but did unanimouſly reject him as a vile impoſtor, they muſt be certainly deceived who apprehend otherwiſe concerning him, becauſe they followed the verdict of the ignorant and giddy multitude, in oppoſition to the better judgments and the mature deliberations of their church guides and learned clerks.

Now amongſt all the arguments by which the emiſſaries of the church of Rome endeavour to beguile unſtable ſouls, and beget in them a ſuſpicion that they have been ſeduced from the church, none is more plauſible than this which by the Phariſees is here laid down. I therefore ſhall endeavour,

1. To propound the argument which is here urged by the Phariſees, to prove our Jeſus could not be the true Meſſiah, in its full ſtrength and vigour. And,

2. To ſhew, that what the Papiſts do produce to prove that Proteſtants muſt be deceived, is exactly parallel to what the Phariſees did or might produce againſt our Saviour: and the ſame arguments might, with equal reaſon, have been urged by the unbelieving Jews againſt our Lord's diſciples, and thoſe who laid the firſt foundations of, and became early converts to the Chriſtian faith, as they are urged by the Papiſts againſt our departure from the church of Rome.

§. 2. Now the argument contained in the text is this, viz. You muſt be certainly deceived if you believe that Jeſus is the Chriſt; becauſe you do, by entertaining this perſuaſion, contradict the judgment of your church guides which God hath ſet over you: for they have frequently aſſembled for the determination of this grand debate, Whether this Jeſus was the Meſſiah promiſed to the the Jews or not, and they have conſtantly determined that he was not the Chriſt; and have unanimouſly concluded, that he deſerved to be puniſhed as a vile impoſtor, and that all who did confeſs that he was the Chriſt ſhould be excommunicated. In an aſſembly conſiſting of chief prieſts and Phariſees, they poſitively declare that Chriſt could be no prophet, becauſe he was a Galilean, John 7. 41, 42. This all, ſay they, who ſearch the ſcriptures, may plainly ſee, ver. 52. Moreover, they determine in my text, that all who ſo eſteemed him were themſelves deceived, and that they lay expoſed to this deluſion for want of knowledge in the law, ver. 47, 48, 49. In the 9th chapter of St John, ver. 16. the Phariſees again declare, that this man could not be of God, becauſe he did not keep the ſabbath. Moreover, theſe Phariſees, and other rulers of the church, Συνέθεντο, determined and agreed together, that whoſoever did confeſs that Jeſus was the Chriſt, ſhould ſuffer excommunication, John 9. 22.—12. 42. They therefore thought themſelves infallibly certain, (if excommunication be as (a) R. H. informs us, an evidence of a claim to be infallible,) that Chriſt was not the true Meſſiah. Elſewhere the ſcribes and Phariſees do poſitively conclude, that Chriſt did only caſt out devils through Beelzebub, Mark 3. 22. After ſome days they again call a council, Συνέδριον ἄσαντο, and there determine, that it was fit that Chriſt ſhould die, John 11. 47, 50, 53. This the high prieſt declares, and all the Phariſees and the chief prieſts agree to execute, Luke 22. 66. A full aſſembly, conſiſting of the high prieſts, and all the chief prieſts, presbyters, and ſcribes, Chriſt being brought before their council, do with one voice declare that he was worthy to die as a blaſphemer, and alſo that by their law he ought to die, becauſe he made himſelf the Son of God. After his death the chief prieſts and the Phariſees, with one conſent, pronounce him a deceiver, Matth. 27. 63. When the diſciples began to witneſs that he was riſen from the dead, the high prieſt, rulers, elders, ſcribes, and all the kindred of the high prieſt, aſſemble at Jeruſalem, and ſtrictly do command them, not to ſpeak at all, or teach in the name of Jeſus, Acts 4. 6, 18. Soon after the high prieſt, the ſanhedrim, and all the elders of Iſrael, being met in council, repeat the ſame command, and chaſtiſe the apoſtles for their diſobedience to it, Acts 5. 40. If therefore the decrees of many councils, conſiſting of the guides of the whole Jewiſh church, may be eſteemed ſufficient to decide a controverſy, it muſt be certain that Jeſus Chriſt was not the true Meſſiah promiſed to the Jews, but a deceiver and blaſphemer. Now as a (b) Romaniſt, having produced five provincial and two general councils, falſly ſo called, for that portentous doctrine of tranſubſtantiation, ſaith, If the decrees of ſo many ſynods, ſo often weighing the adverſaries reaſons and evidences, was not ſufficient for ſettling ſuch a point, at leaſt as to the obedience of future ſilence and non-contradiction, and as to ſuffering the church to enjoy her peace, what can hereafter be ſufficient? or can we ever hope that any controverſy ſhall be finally determined or ended by any future council, if this (of the Meſſiah) is not by theſe forepaſt? Can there be any ground here to queſtion the integrity or lawful proceedings of ſo many councils, all concurring in the ſame judgment, (for a corporal preſence, ſaith the Romaniſt, that Chriſt was a deceiver, ſaith the Jew?) Or could there be a new light in this point attainable in thoſe times, by the private perſon, or Chriſtian convert, which thoſe (guides of the Jewiſh church who condemned your Jeſus) were not capable, or had no notice of?

2. They who ſoo ften, and ſo unanimouſly, condemned your Saviour and his doctrine, (ſaith the Jew,) were the church guides, by God appointed to teach the children of Iſrael all the ſtatutes which the Lord had ſpoken to them by the hand of Moſes, to teach Jacob his judgments, and Iſrael his law, and by whoſe lips the knowledge of it was to be preſerved, Lev. 10. 11. Deut. 33. 10. they were the men who are in ſcripture ſtiled the meſſengers, or the ambaſſadors of the Lord of hoſts, Mal. 2. 7. that is, the men appointed by him to declare his meſſage to the people: they were the men ordained to miniſter before the Lord in every controverſial matter; men who were ſet for the judgment of the Lord, and for controverſies, Deut. 17. 8, 12. 2 Chron. 19. 8. In controverſy they ſhall ſtand in judgment, ſaith the Lord, and by their word ſhall every controverſy be tried, Ezek. 44. 24. Deut. 21. 5.—17. 12. Wherefore to act in oppoſition to the judgment of theſe guides, muſt be to act preſumptuouſly, as God himſelf declares, to deſpiſe the verdict of God's meſſengers, and, in a controverſial matter of the higheſt moment, to reject the ſentence of thoſe men who are by God ordained to define it, and by whoſe words, according to his ordinance, it muſt be tried.

3. As for the common people, who in this matter did oppoſe their private judgments to the decrees of their church guides, not acquieſcing in their conciliar determinations, that your Jeſus was not the true Meſſiah, they, ſaith the Jew, muſt act againſt that rule, which both the law of Moſes and the prophets have preſcribed; for by that law they are commanded, under pain of death, when any controverſy ſhould ariſe among them, to go to the prieſts and Levites, and to the judge then living, to enquire the ſentence of judgment from his mouth, and to do according to the ſentence which they ſhall ſhew them, and according to all that they inform them, not declining from it to the right hand or to the left, Deut. 17. 8, 12. They by the prophets are inſtructed to ask the prieſts concerning the law, and to ſeek the knowledge of it from their mouths, Hag. 2. 11. Mal. 2 7. they therefore ſtood obliged to aſſent to the determinations of the ſanhedrim, and the conciliar decrees of prieſts and Levites, ſcribes and Phariſees, confirmed by the high-prieſt; and ſo they were obliged to believe, that, according to the true intent and meaning of the law, your Jeſus could not be the true Meſſiah. And conſequently they muſt err, who, quitting the deciſions of the Phariſees, and other rulers of the church, embrace that tenet of the ignorant and giddy multitude.

(a) Diſc. chap. 4. § 64, 65, 69, 70

§. 3. Thus the Jews plead from ſcripture againſt our bleſſed Lord. And if you do compare theſe pleas, and others of like nature, which might be offered from the ſcriptures by the Jew, with what the Romaniſts do offer for the infallibility of any of their councils, you will ſoon find that all their pleas for this infallibility from the New Teſtament are parallelled, or rather over-balanced, with places of like nature in the Old, which do more ſtrongly plead for the infallibility of the high-prieſt and rulers of the Jewiſh church. For,

1. Doth the Romaniſts plead Chriſt's promiſe to be for ever with the church? Matth. 28. 20.

Anſw. The Jews had equal reaſon to expect God's preſence among them, becauſe he promiſed to dwell among the children of Iſrael, to meet them at the tabernacle of the congregation, and there ſpeak with them, Exod. 29. 42, 43, 44, 45. to reign over them in Zion from henceforth and for ever, Mic. 4. 7. He choſe Zion for his habitation, and ſaid of it, This is my reſt for ever, here will I dwell, Pſal. 132. 13, 14. and of Jeruſalem, that he would put his name for ever in that place, and that his eyes and his heart ſhould be there for ever, 2 Chron. 7. 16.

2. Do they add that Chriſt hath promiſed, that where two or three are gathered together in his name, he will be in the midſt them? Matth. 18. 20.

Anſw. God alſo promiſed to the Jews, that he would bleſs them out of Zion, Pſal. 134. 3. and that whereſoever he did record his name, there would be come and bleſs his people, Exod. 20. 24.

3. Do they alledge the ſayings of our Lord to his diſciples, viz. He that heareth you, heareth me, Luke 10. 16. he who neglects to hear the church ſhall be accounted as a heathen and a publican? Matth. 18. 17.

Anſw. God alſo ſaid, that he who will not hearken to the prieſt that ſtands to miniſter before the Lord, even that man ſhall die for his preſumption, Deut. 17. 12.

4. Do they ſay, that Chriſt's apoſtles commanded Chriſtians to obey thoſe that had the rule over them, and to follow their faith? Heb. 13. 7, 17.

Anſw. Our Jeſus did command his hearers to do all that the ſcribes and Phariſees did ſay unto them, Matth. 23. 3. and that becauſe of their authority derived from Moſes; and God himſelf commanded all his people to do according to all that they ſhould be informed of by the prieſts, Deut. 17. 10. And,

5. Do they plead Chriſt's promiſe made to his apoſtles, that he would ſend the Spirit of truth to guide them in to all truth? John 16. 13. chap. 14. 26.

Anſw. Whereas this promiſe doth perſonally belong to the apoſtles, and not to their ſucceſſors, (for it is a promiſe to bring to their remembrance by his Spirit, what he before had ſaid to them, John 14. 26. and to ſhew them things to come, John 16. 13. to which ſpirit of prophecy the Roman doctors do not now pretend;) I ſay, whereas this promiſe did belong to the apoſtles only, God ſtood obliged by covenant to cauſe his holy Spirit to remain among the rulers of the Jewiſh church: for thus he ſpeaks, According to the word that I covenanted with you, when ye came out of Egypt, ſo my Spirit remains among you, Hag. 2. 5. Moreover God promiſed to the ſanhedrim, that he would put the Spirit of Moſes upon them, Numb. 11. 17. and in compliance with that promiſe he came down in a cloud, and took the Spirit which was upon Moſes, and gave it to the ſeventy elders, ſo that they propheſied, and did not ceaſe. Or,

6. Do they argue for their infallibility, becauſe the church is ſtiled by St Paul the pillar and the ground of truth, 1 Tim. 3. 15. by reaſon of that truth which is preſerved by her governors?

Anſw. God alſo hath declared touching his prieſts, that the law of truth was in their mouth, Mal. 2. 6. and of Jeruſalem, that ſhe ſhould be called the city of truth, Zach. 8. 3. And if the church of Judah hath ſince failed, ſo alſo hath the church of Epheſus, of which alone St Paul affirmed that it was the pillar and the ground of truth.

7. Do they conclude that the church guides muſt be infallible, becauſe God hath placed in the church ſome apoſtles, ſome prophets, ſome paſtors, and ſome teachers, teachers, for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ, that we henceforth be no more children tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine? Eph. 4. 11, 12.

Answ. Were not the Jewish priests placed also for this end, for the work of their ministry, the perfecting of their saints, the edifying of their flocks? were not their lips to preserve that knowledge which should restrain the people from their errors? were not they appointed to heal that which was sick, and bring again that which was strayed? Ezek. 34. 4. Or,

Lastly, Do they triumph in that promise of our Lord, that the gates of hell should not prevail against the church? Matth. 16. 18.

Answ. God also promised, that his covenant made with his Levites, priests and ministers should be as certain and perpetual as that of day and night, Jer. 33. 20, 21. so that I need not add, that by this phrase Christ only promiseth, that pious Christians shall not for ever be detained under the power of the grave; which I have elsewhere shewed to be the natural and only import of these words, The gates of hell shall not prevail against the church.

Moreover, The plain meaning of the foregoing words, viz. Thou art Peter, and upon this rock will I build my church, is, as (c) Tertullian well informs us, on this: Thou who hast first of all my disciples acknowledged me to be the Christ, thou shalt first preach this doctrine to the world, and by so doing lay the first foundations of a Christian church: which he accordingly performed, first laying the foundation of a (d) church among the Jews, by the conversion of three thousand souls; and after, laying the foundations of a church among the Gentiles, by the conversion of Cornelius and his friends; Christ having, to fulfil his promise, (e) made choice of him, among the rest of the apostles, that the Gentiles by his mouth should hear the word of the gospel, and believe. Now to pretend to be St Peter's successor in this matter, is in effect to say, that the foundations of a Christian church are not yet laid.

If therefore Roman Catholics conclude from these ambiguous and obscure places for the infallibility of councils, or the major part of the church guides concurring with the Pope in any sentence or decree, although these places do not speak one syllable of any Pope, or major part of the church guides, and much less of the Romish prelates, and less of their infallible assistance; what ovations and triumphs would they have made, had it been said expressly of their cardinals and councils, as it is said of Jewish priests, that they were set for judgment, and for controversy; had God fixed his glorious presence at Rome, as he did at Jerusalem, and settled there a seat of judgment, and a continual court of highest judicature, as was that sanhedrim which in Jerusalem was settled; had he dwelt in St Peter's, as he dwelt in the temple; had he left with them, as he did with the Jewish priests, a standing oracle, a Urim and a Thummim, to consult with upon all occasions? so that this plea being much stronger for the infallibility of the superiors of the Jewish church, than for the infallibility of the whole western church, or any of its councils, the Roman doctors must acknowledge, either that they fallaciously urge it against Protestants, or must confess that it stands also good against the Christian, and is a confirmation of all those traditions which were condemned by our Saviour, and a sufficient plea for all those errors and corruptions, which, as the prophets do complain, were generally taught and practised by the church guides in the declining ages of the Jewish church. For (f) if these arguments be good now, they were so then; and if they were good then, for ought that I can see, the high-priest, and the major part of the church rulers of the Jews, were always in the right; and Christ and his apostles, with the holy prophets, must be in the wrong.

§. 4. Moreover, Had we no evidence from scripture, may the Jew say in prosecution of this argument, reason seems very strongly to conclude for this submission of the common people, and some few priests, to the concurring judgments of their church guides, and of the major part of Jews, who joined with them in condemnation of your Jesus as a blasphemer and false prophet, and of his followers as heretics and schismatics, or men who worshipped God after that way which by the Jews was called heresy, Acts 24. 14. and were ring-leaders of a sect, ibid. ver. 5. For, still to argue after the manner of the Romish doctors;

1. Is it not reasonable to conceive, that they who were God's ministers appointed for this very thing to judge in controversial matters, and to make trial of such as did pretend to prophecy, as was

(c) Si quia dixerit Petro Dominus, super hanc petram ædificabo ecclesiam meam, idcirco præsumis & ad te derivasse solvendi & ligandi potestatem, qualis es evertens & commutans manifestam Domini intentionem personaliter (N. was the Jewiſh ſanhedrim; I ſay, is it not reaſonable to conceive that the aſſiſtance of the holy Spirit ſhould be vouchſafed to theſe rulers of the church, and doctors of the law, rather than to thoſe common people who bore no ſuch relation to God, had no commiſſion from him to direct others in the meaning of his word, but had ſo many and ſuch expreſs injunctions to ſeek it at the mouth of their church guides? Can we imagine, that theſe Phariſees and rulers ſhould be the men ordained by God for controverſies, and by whoſe words they muſt be tried, and yet ſhould be ſuch blind and ſtupid guides, as by your Jeſus they were ſaid to be, that he who was led by them muſt fall into the ditch?

Moreover, were no aſſiſtance from above to be expected in this caſe, is it not reaſonable to think that theſe great doctors of the law, thoſe numerous prieſts who made it their whole buſineſs to ſtudy and ſearch out the meaning of the law of Moſes, thoſe members of the ſanhedrim, (g) who were ſtill choſen out of the moſt learned perſons, and the moſt eminent for wiſdom; I ſay, may we not reaſonably conceive ſuch perſons to be fitter and more able judges of the ſenſe and meaning of that law, or of the truth of any miracles pretended to be wrought by Chriſt or his apoſtles, than was that rude and giddy multitude which had no knowledge of the law? (h) They therefore conſidering their ſuperiors ſtudy and learning in ſuch things divine, and alſo their own ignorance; they conſidering both the ſpecial ordination and commiſſion of their ſuperiors from God to teach them in neceſſary truths, and his charge laid upon them to obey their eccleſiaſtical ſuperiors, ought to depend upon and adhere to their directions ſo much the more in any point of faith, by how much it is eſteemed more neceſſary, as wherein there is a much greater hazard if they ſhould err.

3. All that your goſpel doth ſuggeſt, or reaſon may pretend, for the exemption of the firſt Jewiſh converts from obedience to theſe decrees of their ſuperiors in the Jewiſh church, may, ſaith the Jew, be fully anſwered from the plain principles, and almoſt in the words of Roman Catholics. For, to proceed in the expreſſions of R. H. the guide in controverſies, with very little variation of them;

§. 5. 1. Will you affirm, that all the prieſts and rulers, ſcribes and Phariſees, and the whole ſanhedrim, acted againſt their faith and conſcience in theſe determinations by which your Jeſus was condemned as an impoſtor?

Anſw. R. H. (i) will tell you, There is a moral certainty that ſo many ſuch perſons cannot conſpire in ſuch a matter, viz. a neceſſary to ſalvation to falſify the truth againſt their own belief and conſcience, to their ſubjects and poſterity, with an anathema to all diſſenters, or an excommunication of all who preached and believed that Chriſt was the Meſſiah promiſed to the Jews, and was already riſen from the dead, when their own conſciences could tell them that theſe things were true. (k) If any can be ſo uncharitable as to credit of them ſo great a wickedneſs, that the ſupreme councils of the (Jewiſh) church ſhould with deſign decree an error contrary to their faith (or knowledge) in this neceſſary matter, and then enjoin all their ſubjects to believe it under anathema, he muſt believe that they moſt certainly do devote themſelves to eternal perdition. And therefore, if not out of charity, or reverence to ſuch ſacred perſons, yet from the irrationality of ſuch a defence, it is much better to paſs over this objection.

2. Will you ſay that theſe ſuperiors were only to be appealed to in doubtful matters; and that this thing, Whether the ſcriptures declared your Jeſus to be the true Meſſiah, was not doubtful?

Anſw. R. H. informs you, that (l) a right judgment cannot but account all thoſe places doubtful, in the ſenſe whereof either the antient or preſent major part of Chriſtianity are of a contrary judgment from himſelf. That muſt be therefore doubtful, according to the ground and reaſon of this rule, which you preſume not to be doubtful, ſince it was that in which the major part of the then preſent Jewiſh church was of a contrary judgment from the Chriſtian convert.

3. Will you plead in favour of the vulgar, that they were bound to hearken to theſe Jewiſh guides no longer than they followed the rule of ſcripture?

Anſw. Be it ſo; but ſaith R. H. Who (m) is appointed judge of theſe ſupreme judges, when they tranſgreſs againſt this rule? Their ſubjects? who are from them to learn the ſenſe of the rule, where difficult and diſputed, and who are bidden to follow their faith: the right exerciſe of judgment will not judge ſo. For if the vulgar may paſs this judgment of the decrees of many councils, and the concurring judgment of their ſuperiors and church-guides, I hope the matter muſt be evident, even to the vulgar ſort, that notwithſtanding the contrary judgment of chief prieſts and rulers, ſcribes, Phariſees and elders, and almoſt all the Jewiſh nation, that ſenſe of ſcripture muſt be falſe which their eccleſiaſtical guides alledged to prove that Jeſus was not the true Meſſiah, and that according to their law he was to die; and that ſenſe of the ſcripture muſt be true, which by the apoſtles and their converts was alledged to prove that Jeſus was the Meſſiah promiſed to the Jews. Now, How vainly, ſaith R. H. doth (n) any one pretend or promiſe himſelf a certainty certainty of any thing wherein ſo many councils, and a much major part of the church, having all the ſame means of certainty as he, judgeth contrary: where it (o) ſeems, the ſcripture may be ſo doubtful, that the ſenſe of the (then) Catholic church, or its greateſt councils, they ſay, can be to them no certain or infallible interpreter of it, where the judgment or common reaſon of theſe councils thinks itſelf ſo certain of the contrary as to anathematize diſſenters, or caſt them out of the church? On what grounds here theſe private perſons, or new erected churches, could aſſure themſelves of their own ſenſe of ſcripture to be true, they having left that of the churches, councils, and of a major part of (Jews,) who alſo judged their ſenſe falſe, I underſtand not. Surely they will not ſay they have this certainty from the ſcripture, becauſe the true ſenſe thereof is the thing ſo mainly queſtioned, and the certainty or infallibility of the traditive ſenſe of the (Jewiſh) church they renounced; and then, which only is left, their own judgment, or their own common reaſon, when that of their greateſt councils, or major part of their church guides differ from it, one would think ſhould be a more fallible ground to them than the judgment or common reaſon of the church? For (p) a man to preſume himſelf certain in a matter of faith, or in his own ſenſe of ſcripture, (though the literal expreſſion be never ſo clear,) where ſo many learned men, and his ſuperiors, (comparing other texts, &c.) are of a contrary judgment; this, ſaith R. H. is the ſame as if in a matter of ſenſe, a dim-ſighted perſon ſhould profeſs himſelf certain that an object is white, when a multitude of others, the moſt clear-ſighted that can be found, having all the ſame means of a right ſenſation as he hath, pronounce it black, or of another colour. Moreover, (q) if theſe ſcriptures or reaſons be ſo clear, even to the ignorant and unlearned Jews, muſt they not be as clear to their church guides? and may not then their judgments more ſecurely be relied upon, at leaſt for any thing which is preſumed to be clear? (r) For if ſcriptures be maintained ſo clear in neceſſaries, that every one uſing a right endeavour cannot miſtake in them, then ſhall the church governors much rather, by reaſon of this clearneſs, obvious to every ruſtic, not err in them; and ſo ſhall the people, the more the rule of faith is proved to be clear, the more ſecurely rely on, and be referred in them to their direction.

4. If you pretend a more ſincere endeavour in thoſe few converts, to find out the ſenſe of ſcripture, or ſearch out the truth in theſe matters; which, in the caſe of the Beræans, your ſcripture ſeemeth to aſſert:

Anſw. I anſwer ſtill with the ſame author, (s) That ſince all parties do pretend ſincere endeavour in the right underſtanding of the ſcriptures, and after all do differ ſo much in their ſenſe of it, it follows that ſuch ſincere endeavours being indifferently allowed to all parties, the ſenſe of ſcripture (and the verdict of true reaſon) ought to be pronounced clear, if on any, on that ſide as the major part doth apprehend it, (which certainly was not the primitive converts, but the unbelieving Jews, and their eccleſiaſtical ſuperiors.) For ſurely (t) we have reaſon to preſume that the chief guides of the church, in their conſults concerning a point neceſſary to ſalvation delivered in ſcripture, (as that of the Meſſiah was,) uſe at leaſt ſo much endeavour as a plain ruſtic doth to underſtand the meaning of it. And, whatſoever other thing is ſuppoſed neceſſary beſides ſincere endeavour, or is underſtood to be included in it, (as freedom from paſſion and ſecular intereſt, or alſo a freely profeſſing the truths which their ſincere endeavour diſcovers to them,) none can rationally imagine, but that the ſupreme church governors ſhould be as much or more diſengaged herein than private men: and, that (u) paſſion and intereſt blind private men or ourſelves, ſooner than general councils, or a major part of the church.

See therefore here the wiſdom of the unbelieving Jews, who to preſerve themſelves from erring in this matter, made uſe of the ſecureſt way that reaſon could imagine, ſaith (x) R. H. or that Chriſtians are preſcribed, whilſt for the ſenſe of the ſcriptures that were controverted in this point of the Meſſiah, they choſe not to rely on their own judgments, but on that of the ſupremeſt guides of the church, and judges of divine truth, that were afforded them on earth; and ſo, if they erred, yet took the wiſeſt courſe to have miſſed erring, that religion or reaſon could dictate. To which guides alſo the ſubjects of this former communion all believed ſubmiſſion of their private judgments to be due, and to be commanded; from whence alſo it follows, that till they are convinced of error in this point, viz. that no ſubmiſſion was due to the decrees of all theſe councils, and the concurring judgment of thoſe ſpiritual guides by whom your Jeſus was condemned, they are not capable of being convinced in any other matter.

If, laſtly, you affirm that the common people had conviction and demonſtration, from the miracles racles of Chriſt, of the falſhood of the decrees, and the interpretations of their church guides in this matter, and of the truth of that Chriſtianity which they embraced in oppoſition to thoſe ſaid decrees;

Anſw. This I confeſs is a great truth; but then the Roman doctors cannot plead it, without rejecting moſt of their profeſſed tenets, and their ſtrongeſt pleas for abſolute ſubmiſſion to the major part of their church guides. For,

1. Admit our Saviour and his apoſtles wrought true miracles, how did the vulgar perceive them ſo to be, but by their ſenſes? and how did they infer from them the truth of Chriſtianity, but by their private reaſons? Now (y) the evidence of ſenſe and reaſon muſt be both neglected, ſaith the Romaniſt, when a divine revelation declares any thing contrary to them: this, and this only, being their defence of tranſubſtantiation againſt the common ſenſe and reaſon of mankind. Now of the certainty of a divine revelation, or the true ſenſe of ſcripture, they make the judgment of the major part of their church guides to be ſufficient evidences; and ſo there was ſufficient evidence, according to this rule, that all the miracles which Chriſt and his apoſtles ſeemed to work, were done in oppoſition to divine revelation, or the true ſenſe of ſcripture.

2. Certain it is that the rulers of the Jews, and the prevailing part of the whole nation, differed from the converted Chriſtians in their apprehenſions of theſe miracles, and judged them all diabolical impoſtures, or trials of their faith, &c. Now this ſeems neceſſary to be granted, ſaith (z) R. H. that in what kind of knowledge ſoever it be, (whether of our ſenſe or reaſon, in whatever art or ſcience) one can never rightly aſſure himſelf concerning his own knowledge, that he is certain of any thing for a truth, which all or moſt others of the ſame or better abilities for their cognoſcitive faculties, in all the ſame external means, or grounds of the knowledge thereof, do pronounce an error. So that, where all or moſt differ from me, it ſeems a ſtrange pride not to imagine this defect in myſelf, rather than them; eſpecially whenas all the grounds of my ſcience are communicated to them, and when, as for my own miſtakes, I cannot know exactly the extent of ſupernatural deluſions. According therefore to this rule, it was ſtrange pride in the firſt converts to Chriſtianity among the Jews, to judge the miracles of Chriſt, or his apoſtles, true, when moſt of their own nation, as well as heathens, differed from them in that apprehenſion, and ſpake ſo freely every where againſt the ſect of Chriſtians.

3. The truth of the pretences of our Lord, and his apoſtles, depended on two things, viz. the fulfilling of prophecies, and the truth of his miracles. (a) Now, according to the Roman principles, no man could be certain of the truth of either of theſe, without the authority of the then preſent church: for the fulfilling of prophecies depended on the ſenſe of many obſcure places of ſcripture, of which, ſay they, the major part of the church guides muſt judge: and for miracles, they tell us, that there is no way of judging true from falſe, but by the authority of the church. Now if theſe things be ſo, what ground could the firſt Jewiſh converts have to believe Chriſt was the true Meſſiah, or a worker of true miracles, when in believing both theſe things they muſt oppoſe the authority of the then preſent church?

4. All that hath been diſcourſed in anſwer to the former pleas, ſerves alſo againſt this; for who ſhall be judge whether theſe miracles were true, and were ſufficient to confirm the Chriſtian faith; thoſe perſons whoſe office it was to judge both of true prophets and true miracles, or thoſe who had no power or commiſſion ſo to do? Were not the Jewiſh ſanhedrim, and other rulers of that church, more able judges of the truth and the validity of any miracles pretended to be wrought by Chriſt and his apoſtles, than was that multitude, which, as experience teacheth, may be impoſed upon with eaſe? Were not thoſe guides who were appointed to be judges in all other matters, the proper judges of this controverſy? Have we not reaſon to believe their judgment was as free from intereſt and paſſion, and their endeavours to ſearch out the truth of theſe relations as ſincere, as was the judgment or endeavours of the laity? When therefore theſe church guides did, notwithſtanding thoſe pretended miracles of Chriſt and his apoſtles, conclude unanimouſly that Chriſt was a deceiver, was it not abſurd to ſay, that what they ſo univerſally determined, might be diſcerned by any private judgment to be the cleareſt falſhood; that vulgar perſons had demonſtration in this matter, againſt the judgment of the whole body of their guides, and that their common reaſon was able to diſcern that to be manifeſtly true, which the ſame common reaſon of their ſuperiors judged to be manifeſtly falſe?

§ 6. Thus have we seen that ſcripture and reaſon do more countenance the Jew pleading againſt our Lord and the firſt Chriſtian converts, than they do countenance the Papiſt pleading againſt Proteſtants. In the laſt place, the Jew may argue from tradition thus, viz.

Theſe ſpiritual guides, in making this determination, and paſſing of this judgment concerning Jeſus, were guided by that rule which by the greateſt part of Chriſtians, I mean the Roman Catholics, is highly magnified, and equalled with the holy ſcriptures, viz. Tradition acknowledged by the preſent church for ſuch. (b) And ſo your Jeſus muſt alſo, upon this account, be deemed an impoſtor, or the pretences and pleadings of the Romaniſt againſt the Proteſtant, from the tradition of the church, muſt be acknowledged to be vain. For,

1. It is moſt certain that the Jews had a tradition generally received amongſt them, that their Meſſiah, at his coming, ſhould reſtore the kingdom to Iſrael; that he ſhould ſubdue the nations under them, and ſhould erect a temporal dominion in the Jewiſh nation over all their enemies. Even the diſciples of our Lord did conſtantly believe this article, till, by the Holy Ghoſt's deſcent upon them, they were better informed: witneſs their conteſts, who ſhould be greateſt in that kingdom, Matth. 18. 1. and the deſire of the ſons of Zebedee, to ſit one at his right hand, another at his left hand in it, Matth. 20. 21. This was our faith, ſaith Cleophas, we truſted that this Jeſus ſhould have redeemed our Iſrael, Luke 24. 21. And when they were aſſembled, after the reſurrection, their firſt enquiry is this, Lord, wilt thou now reſtore the kingdom to Iſrael? Acts 1. 6. It is therefore certain that this was the received tradition of the whole Jewiſh church, grounded, as they ſuppoſed, upon the ſcriptures, which did neceſſitate them to expect (c) a glorious Meſſiah, not ſuch a one, ſaith Trypho, as your mean and deſpiſed Jeſus was.

2. It was alſo a tradition which generally obtained amongſt the Jews, that their Elias, who was called the Thisbite, was to appear again in perſon before the advent of the true Meſſiah; ſo was that place of Malachi tranſlated by the ſeventy three hundred and eighty years before our Saviour's coming; Behold I ſend unto you Elias, τὸν Θεσβίτην, before the great and terrible day of the Lord come, Mal. 4. 5. All we expect, ſaith Trypho, is, that Chriſt ſhould be anointed by Elias, who is for to come; (d) and becauſe this Elias is not come, we think your Jeſus cannot be the Chriſt. Accordingly the ſcribes, or the expounders of the law, did, with one voice, declare it neceſſary that (e) Elias ſhould firſt come.

3. It was the general tradition of the Jews, that the law of Moſes ſhould be perpetually obliging to them, and that it was to be obſerved even in the days of the Meſſiah. On this preſumption certainly it was that Chriſt's diſciples, after his reſurrection, were ſtrict obſervers of the law of Moſes for a conſiderable time; and ſo were alſo many thouſands of the Jewiſh converts. St Peter was ſo nice in obſervation of the Jewiſh cuſtoms, that till he was informed better by a viſion, he thought ſuch meat was utterly unlawful as was forbidden by the law; ſo that when in that viſion he was bid to ſlay and eat, he preſently cries out, as a man tempted to an unlawful act, Not ſo, Lord, for I have never eaten any thing that is unclean, Acts 10. 14. St James gives an account to Paul of the great zeal that all the Jewiſh converts had to the law of Moſes, in theſe words, Thou ſeeſt, brother, how many thouſands of Jews there are which believe, and they are all zealous of the law, Acts 21. 20. He farther tells him, how highly they were all offended with him, becauſe they were informed he had taught that they were not obliged to yield obedience to the conſtitutions and cuſtoms of the Jewiſh law; and, laſtly, doth exhort him to do what might be proper to cauſe theſe zealots to believe that he alſo walked orderly, and kept the law, ver. 21, 24. St (f) Jerom and (g) Sulpicius inform us, that fourteen immediate ſucceeding biſhops, with their flocks, were all obſervers of the law of Moſes. And by the unbelieving Jews nothing was more abhorred than the thoughts of changing their Moſaic cuſtoms: for upon this account St Stephen was accuſed of blaſphemy againſt Moſes and the law, becauſe he ſaid, that the Meſſiah ſhould change the cuſtoms which Moſes had delivered to them, Acts 6. 11, 14. This accuſation before the ſcribes, the elders, and high-prieſt, was deemed ſufficient to prove him guilty of that capital offence of blaſphemy. On this account they bring St Paul before the judgment-ſeat of Gallio, becauſe, ſay they, he did perſuade men to worſhip God παρὰ τὸν νόμον, againſt, or otherwiſe than was commanded by the law of Moſes, Acts 18. 13. And this opinion they grounded chiefly upon thoſe places which ſeem to ſpeak of the perpetual duration of those statutes, and say they shall be ordinances to them for ever, Deut. 29. 29. Lev. 23. 21. Exod. 12. 17. and consequently seem to infer a declaration from the mouth of God, that they should not be altered.

Moreover, it is certain, that as the Protestants condemn, as sinful and pernicious, many traditions and customs of the Romish church, so did that Jesus whom Christians honour as the true Messiah as frequently inveigh against, and solemnly condemn, many traditions which then were generally received and practised in the Jewish church, as vain and sinful customs, and such as tended to make void the scriptures, and render the whole Jewish worship vain. He therefore seemeth to have been as great an enemy to ecclesiastical traditions, though they were generally owned by the then present church as such, as Protestants can be esteemed.

Lastly, Certain it is that the superiors and church-rulers, or at least the major and prevailing part of the church-rulers, did then as firmly and unquestionably believe that those traditions which were condemned by your Jesus, and which so evidently proved, if true, he was not the Messiah promised to the Jew, were both agreeable to the word of God expounded by their church-tradition, and were delivered to them by Moses and the patriarchs and prophets, and were continually practised by their forefathers, as doth the Roman church believe that her traditions were taught and practised by Christ or his apostles, and by their successors throughout all ages of the church. Hence are they often stiled by them (h) the traditions of the antients, or the traditions received by succession from their fathers: and in their later writers, they are always held to be derived from God by Moses, together with the written law, and as an explication of it. Hence, like good Roman Catholics, they were more exceedingly zealous for the traditions of their fathers than for the law itself. They (i) accuse all who walked not according to these customs of their fathers, as persons who forsook the law of Moses: and to do any thing against these customs of their fathers was reputed criminal. This being so,

I ask, why the tradition of the major part of the church catholic, or Christians in any age whatsoever, and their concurring judgment, that what she doth at present teach and practise she received from Christ and his apostles, should be esteemed sufficient to render all those persons guilty of heresy and schism who do not yield assent to what they teach, or a compliance with their practices, as Roman Catholics assert; and yet that the general tradition of the then Jewish church, even including the disciples of Christ, should not conclude them schismatics and heretics, who being members of that church, would not assent unto what they so generally taught, or comply with that which they practised, as delivered to them by Moses and the patriarchs and prophets?

§. 7. But, to apply these things, if it be possible, yet more particularly unto the pleadings of the Roman church, and to shew the weakness and the pernicious results of their most specious pretences; I add,

1. That notwithstanding it was the duty of the priests and rulers of the Jewish church, both to preserve and teach unto the people the knowledge of the law, yet did the major part of these church guides both oft and dangerously swerve from this their duty: for they did teach and practise, and direct the people into those ways which were destructive to the eternal welfare of their souls: God, by his prophets, doth complain without exception of them, That they erred in vision, and stumbled in judgment; that the teachers of his people made lies their refuge, and under falsehood hid themselves, saying, The overflowing scourge shall not come to us, Isa. 28. 7, 15. that their interpreters had transgressed against him; that his watchmen were blind, they were all ignorant, all dumb dogs that could not bark, sleeping, lying down, loving to slumber; that they were greedy dogs, that could not have enough, Isa. 43. 27.—56. 10, 11. shepherds that could not understand; that the priests said not, Where is the Lord? and they that handled the law knew him not; that the pastors also transgressed against him, and the prophets prophesied by Baal, and walked after the things that did not profit, Jer. 2. 8. that his prophets prophesied falsly, and the priests bare rule by their means, Jer. 5. 31. that from the prophet to the priest every one dealt falsly, Jer. 6. 13, 14. that they healed also the hurt of the daughter of his people slightly, saying, Peace, peace, when there was no peace, Jer. 8. 9. that his wise men had rejected the word of the Lord, Jer. 23. 1, 2. and that the pastors, whose business it was to feed his sheep, destroyed, and scattered, and drove them away, and did not visit them, Ibid. ver. 11. that both priests and prophets were profane, Ezek. 22. 26. that they had violated his law, and had profaned his holy things, putting no difference betwixt the holy and profane, the clean and the unclean, and hid their eyes from his sabbaths, Ezek. 34. 1, 6. that the shepherds of Israel fed themselves, but did not not feed the flock; the diſeaſed did they not ſtrengthen, neither did they heal that which was ſick, nor bring again that which was driven away, nor ſeek that which was loſt, but with force and cruelty they ruled; ſo that the ſheep were ſcattered becauſe there was no ſhepherd, Hoſea 4. 6. that they rejected knowledge, ſo that God's people were deſtroyed for lack of it, Zeph. 3. 4. that her prophets were light and treacherous perſons, her prieſts had polluted the ſanctuary, they had done violence to the law; that they had forgotten the law of their God, they departed out of the way, they cauſed many to ſtumble at the law, they corrupted the covenant of Levi, Mal. 2. 8.

Moreover, of theſe guides it is expreſly ſaid, that they which led the people cauſed them to err, Iſa. 3. 12. and deſtroyed the way of their paths, chap. 9. 16. That the leaders of the people cauſed them to err, and they that were led of them were deſtroyed, and that their ſhepherds cauſed them to go aſtray, Jer. 50. 6. Matth. 23. Our Lord declares, that they were fools, blind guides, full of hypocriſy, and of iniquity, that they had taken away the key of knowledge, and had ſhut up the kingdom of heaven againſt men, not going in themſelves, nor ſuffering them that were entering to go in, Luke 11. 52. Matth. 23. 13. that they made many falſe deciſions in matters of ſo great importance, as to make void the law of God, and render his whole worſhip vain, Matth. 15. 6, 9. that they tranſgreſſed the commandment of God by their traditions: that notwithſtanding their inſtructions, the people were as ſheep without a ſhepherd, Matth. 9. 36. or only had ſuch guides as would moſt certainly, if they ſubmitted to their guidance, lead them to the pit, Matth. 15. 14. Hence therefore I infer,

1. That even thoſe ſpiritual guides, who are by God's appointment conſtituted to inſtruct his people, and to feed his flock, (for ſuch our Lord acknowledged the ſcribes and Phariſees and rulers of the Jewiſh church to be,) may ſcatter and deſtroy that flock; and they who are ſet for the judgment of the Lord, and for controverſies, may violate, corrupt, pervert that law they ſhould interpret, they may be partial in it, they may depart out of the way, they may make the commandments of God of none effect, and his whole worſhip vain by their traditions; they may cauſe their ſheep to err, ſtumble, and go aſtray, and that ſo dangerouſly, that they who are led by them ſhall be deſtroyed with them, and find no entrance into bliſs. And hence, I hope, I may aſſume the boldneſs to conclude againſt the infallibility of our ſpiritual governors, or the concurring judgments of the major part of them, which is ſufficient to root up even the foundations of the Romiſh Babel.

2. Hence I infer, That, notwithſtanding all the fore-mentioned ſcriptures, which ſay, it was the duty of the people to ask of their ſpiritual guides the meaning of the law, and ſeek the knowledge of it at their mouths, and to enquire after their judgments in all thoſe controverſies they were not able to reſolve; I ſay, hence I infer, that notwithſtanding this, the people were not abſolutely obliged to reſt in the deciſion of the major part of theſe church-guides, or bound to practiſe all that they approved; for then an obligation muſt be laid upon them, not only to err in judgment with them, to countenance falſe prophets, and to ſpeak peace to themſelves when there is no peace, but alſo to violate the law, and to comply with their falſe gloſſes and corrupt interpretations of it; nay, which is more unreaſonable, they muſt be then obliged to be deſtroyed, to fall into the pit, and to exclude themſelves from the enjoyment of Chriſt's kingdom: whereas it is a contradiction to ſay, that God obligeth any perſon to tranſgreſs his law; and it is little leſs than blaſphemy to ſay, he doth require them to deſtroy themſelves, to fall into the pit, or to deprive themſelves of the enjoyment of his kingdom. Hence therefore I infer this corollary;

That neither are all Chriſtian people, churches or nations, abſolutely bound to reſt in the deciſions of the major part of Chriſtian biſhops, or to practiſe all that they approve and impoſe. Which propoſition overthrows that abſolute and blind obedience to their church-guides or councils, which Romaniſts ſo ſtiffly plead for.

3. Hence it is alſo evident, That private perſons, or that the minor part of the whole church, may have ſufficient ground, either from reaſon or clear ſcripture, for their refuſal of aſſent, and of ſubmiſſion to the authority and definitions of the major part of their church-guides; for the Jews were bound to believe Chriſt to be the true Meſſiah, although the high-prieſt and the elders had pronounced him a deceiver and a malefactor: they were obliged to believe his miracles were wrought, not by Beelzebub, but the Spirit of God; that Chriſt's kingdom was not of this world; that John Baptiſt was that Elias which was for to come; and that to eat with hands unwaſhed, to heal the ſick, to pluck ſome ears of corn upon the ſabbath-day, were not unlawful actions, although the major part of their church-guides taught and believed the contrary, Matth. 15. 5. They were obliged not to void that law of nature which required children to relieve their own diſtreſſed parents; and therefore ſtood obliged not to comply with thoſe traditions of the ſcribes and Phariſees which made the word of God of none effect, and would not ſuffer them to yield obedience to it. And ſeeing they had many (i) traditions and decrees of the like nature, which obtained amongſt them, and only were rejected by the Sadducees and diſciples of our Lord; in none of theſe could they comply with their church-guides, without the violation of that law of God, which ſure they had ſufficient ground and reaſon to obſerve. In a word; in all thoſe caſes in which they were not bound to reſt in the deciſion of the major part of their church-guides, or practiſe what they did approve, that is, in all the caſes mentioned in the former head, they muſt have had ſufficient ground, either from ſcripture or from reaſon, for their refuſal of ſubmiſſion to them. Now theſe three inferences do fully juſtify the reformation of the church of England.

§ 8. 4. From what hath been diſcourſed, we may ſee the weakneſs of thoſe pleas the Roman doctors make in their own defence, and of the arguments they uſe to ſhew that it is impoſſible they ſhould be guilty of thoſe corruptions in doctrine, or in manners, which we charge them with. For their moſt ſpecious pretences are to this effect, That we confeſs the church of Rome was once both true and orthodox; ſhew then, ſay they, how we did ceaſe to be ſo, whether by ſchiſm or hereſy. With ſchiſm you cannot juſtly charge us; for (k) that can never be of a much major, and more dignified part, in reſpect of a leſs and inferior, ſubject to it; becauſe this main body, in any diviſion, is rightly taken for the whole, from which a ſeparation is ſchiſm, and to which every member ought to adhere, as to the body and head here upon earth to which it belongs: we therefore being the much major and more dignified part of the church, cannot be ſchiſmatics in reference to Proteſtants, who are, and were at their departure, a leſs and an inferior body to us. If hereſy be the crime charged upon us, by what church were we condemned? what body of men before you found fault with thoſe corruptions which you pretend to reform? for ſure it was not poſſible for ſo many errors and corruptions to come into the church, and no one take notice of them. Could this be ſo, where was the watchful eye of Providence over the church? But if we could ſuppoſe this Providence was unconcerned for preſervation of the church, could all the paſtors fall aſleep at once? or could they all conſpire together to deceive their poſterity? Moreover, ſince God will always have a viſible church, what can you mention beſides that which holds communion with the church of Rome, as the then preſent viſible church of Chriſt, when you began your reformation, (except perhaps ſome eaſtern churches, which you diſlike almoſt as much as that of Rome?) And if that church could teach ſuch errors as you charge her with, as matters of the Chriſtian faith, what aſſurance can you have ſhe hath not erred in defining the canon of ſcriptures, and delivering ſome book or books for the word of God, which are not ſo? This is the ſum of all the pleadings of the Roman party in their own behalf; and they are only ſuch as the Jewiſh doctors might have pleaded with as much plauſibility againſt our Lord's diſciples, and that firſt Chriſtian church which they planted in that nation. For,

1. Where, may they ſay, will (l) you produce the men of former ages who taxed the Jewiſh church with ſuch errors and corruptions as your Jeſus did, and bid men beware of the leaven of the ſcribes and Phariſees, that is, the moſt holy and learned members of our church? Do not the Chriſtians themſelves acknowledge, that we were once a right vine, and the beloved of the Lord? how, or when, therefore, did we ceaſe to be ſo? If by ſchiſm, produce that major part or body of the Jewiſh church from which we ſeparated, when firſt your Jeſus, like another Luther, appeared among us: or, if by hereſy we ceaſed to be ſo, by what church, what councils were we condemned? Who can believe that God would ever ſuffer ſuch dangerous doctrines to prevail in his own church, and raiſe up no church-guides, no prophets, to diſcover things ſo deſtructive to her very being, till theſe new teachers and reformers firſt aroſe? Where then had God a true church in the world, if not among the people of the Jews? what other church could Chriſt or his apoſtles mention, beſides that which he ſo often taxed with voiding the commandments of God, and rendering his worſhip vain, becauſe of ſome traditions which they had received from their forefathers? If then God ſuffered this church to be all over-run with ſuch a fatal leproſy, and gave no clear diſcovery thereof, where was the watchful eye of providence? where was that God, who promiſed that he would put his name for ever in Jeruſalem, and that his eyes and heart ſhould be perpetually there? But ſuppoſe that Providence was unconcerned, did all our paſtors fall aſleep at once? or could they conſpire to deceive poſterity? Were not the oracles of God committed to us Jews? did not you Chriſtians receive them from us? If then our church might teach her children ſuch deſtructive errors as you charge her with, how can can you be assured that she hath not erred even in that canon of scriptures which from her you have received?

Now, though this instance, which I have largely prosecuted, may be sufficient to shew the vanity of the most plausible pretences of R. H. against the Protestants, both in his Rational account, and his Discourse, it might be farther manifested, that they as strongly plead for the Heathen world against the Jew, for the Mahometan against the Christian, for the priests of Baal against Elias, and those seven thousand who had not bowed the knee to Baal; for the prevailing Arian against the orthodox; for the fornicator, the Simoniac, the covetous and the debauched person in all those ages in which these were the epidemical and almost general diseases of the clergy, that is, from the tenth to the sixteenth century; and, lastly, for Antichrist himself, when he, according to the predictions of the scripture, and the confession of many Roman Catholics, shall drive the church, that is, the orthodox professors of the faith, into the wildernesses, and slay the witnesses of Christ and of his doctrine. But,

To conclude; If this be truly the result of the most specious pretences of the Roman party to draw our souls into their deadly snares; if all their fairest pleas do make for Judaism more naturally than they do for Popery; if what they urge to prove the Protestant divines to be deceivers of the people doth more strongly prove our blessed Jesus a deceiver, which is the highest blasphemy; I hope that no true lover of this Jesus will be much tempted by such pleas to entertain a good opinion of the Romish faith; it being certainly that faith which cannot be established but on the ruins of Christianity, nor embraced by any Protestant but with the greatest hazard, if not the ruin of his soul.

THE PREFACE TO THE ACTS of the HOLY APOSTLES.

THE hiſtory of the Acts of the apoſtles, if it relateth matters truly, is an invincible demonſtration of the truth of Chriſtian faith. For, 1ſt, It confirms the truth of Chriſt's great promiſe, John 14. 12. He that believeth in me, ſhall do greater works than I have done, becauſe I go to my Father. See the note there.

It confirms his promiſe made to his diſciples, that the Spirit of his Father ſhould ſpeak in them, and give them a mouth and wiſdom which all their adverſaries ſhould not be able to gainſay, Matth. 10. 20. Luke 21. 15. Acts 6. 10. that they who believed in him, after that he was glorified, ſhould receive the holy Ghoſt, John 7. 36. and the ſaying of his fore-runner, that he who was to come after him, ſhould baptize them with the holy Ghoſt, and with fire, Matth. 3. 11. Acts 2. 3. and of Chriſt's declaration, that when this Spirit was come, he ſhould convince the world of ſin, becauſe they believed not in him, John 16. 9. Acts 2. 37. and of his righteouſneſs, becauſe he went to the Father, ver. 33.

It confirms the truth of his prediction, that after he was liſted up, he would draw all men after him, John 12. 31. when he was ſown in the earth, he ſhould bring forth much fruit, ver. 14. and of his compariſons of the kingdom of God to a grain of muſtard-ſeed, Mark 4. 30. for its wonderful increaſe, Acts 2. 41.—4. 4.—5. 14. ſo mightily grew the word of God, and prevailed, Acts 19. 20.

It confirms all that Chriſt had ſaid concerning the kingdom of Satan falling down like lightning, Luke 10. 17. the caſting out and judging the prince of the world, John 12. 31.—16. 11; and the conqueſt his diſciples ſhould have over all the power of the enemy, Luke 10. 18. by ſhewing the efficacy the goſpel had to turn men from the power of Satan unto God.

To make theſe things more evident, I ſhall reflect more largely upon two particulars, which are the frequent ſubjects of this hiſtory, viz. the gifts of the holy Ghoſt conferred upon the apoſtles and others, partly by the laying on of the apoſtles hands upon them, and partly at the preaching of the apoſtles to them. And, 2dly, The miracles which the apoſtles, and other preachers of the goſpel, wrought for confirmation of their doctrine. And,

1. Of theſe miraculous gifts of the holy Ghoſt, theſe Acts of the apoſtles have left upon record theſe ſignal inſtances:

1ſt, That, on the day of penteceſt, the apoſtles and diſciples of Chriſt Jeſus being met together, cloven tongues like to fire ſell upon them, and they were all filled with the holy Ghoſt, and began to ſpeak with other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance; adding, that when this miracle was wrought upon them, there were devout men of every nation, who heard them ſpeak in their own tongues the wondrous works of God; and, upon this account, did with amazement ask, Are not all theſe which ſpeak, Galileans? and how hear we every man in our own tongue wherein we were born? and that St Peter, one of Chriſt's diſciples, did then and there declare, that the ſame Jeſus whom the Jews had crucified was by God raiſed up, and exalted to his own right hand, and having received of the Father the promiſe of the holy Ghoſt, had ſhed forth this which they now ſaw and heard; and that he, with theſe ſayings, inſtantly converted three thouſand ſouls; and that God daily added to the church ſuch as ſhould be ſaved, Acts 2.

2dly, That

2*dly*, That when St Philip had converted many people of Samaria to the Chriſtian faith, and had baptized them, St Peter and St John laid their hands on them, and they received the holy Ghoſt; and that Simon Magus ſeeing this, offered them money to have this power imparted to him, that on whomſoever he ſhould lay his hands, they might receive the holy Ghoſt, Acts 8.

3*dly*, That whilſt St Peter was preaching to Cornelius, his kinſmen and near friends, the holy Ghoſt fell on all thoſe that heard the word, and they ſpake with tongues, and magnified God in the preſence of the Jews, Acts 10. 44, 45.

4*thly*, That St Paul finding twelve diſciples of John the Baptiſt who had not yet received the Holy Ghoſt, he baptizes them in the name of the Lord Jeſus; and when he had laid his hands upon them, they received the holy Ghoſt, and propheſied, Acts 19. 6.

Now all theſe things were done, ſaith this record, in populous and famous cities:

The firſt in Jeruſalem at the great feaſt of pentecoſt, immediately enſuing Chriſt's aſcenſion, and therefore at a time when all Jeruſalem was met to celebrate that feaſt, and when the fame of the Meſſiah expected ſuddenly to appear, Luke 19. 11. had brought great multitudes of Jews and proſelytes out of all nations, to attend the iſſue of that expectation; and ſo the matter of fact, if true, muſt be well known by all Judea ſo to be; nor could it poſſibly be falſe, but all then preſent and alive when firſt this fact was publiſhed to the world muſt be ſo many living witneſſes of the falſhood of it.

The ſecond populous city, whoſe converts received this effuſion of the holy Ghoſt, was the metropolis of Samaria, according to our Lord's prediction, Ye ſhall be my witneſſes in Samaria, Acts 1. 8. The time when this was done is noted by three characters, viz. That it was done ſoon after the death of Stephen, Acts 8. 2. and before the converſion of St Paul, ver. 1. and when Simon the celebrated magician was there, and had ſo gained upon the people of that city, that they all gave heed to him, and owned him as the great power of God, ver. 9, 10.

The third happened in the city of Cæſarea, (the ſeat of the Roman governor of Judea, inhabited by Jews, Samaritans and Gentiles, and well ſtocked with Roman ſoldiers) upon the perſon and kindred of Cornelius, a centurion of the Roman band, one well reported of by the whole nation of the Jews; and ſo not only Cæſarea, but all Judea, and Rome alſo, muſt be acquainted with the converſion of a man ſo eminent for his poſt, ſo well approved by the whole Jewiſh nation for his piety. The character of the time when this was done we learn from theſe circumſtances, that before, the word was preached to the Jews only; and that this was the firſt inſtance of their preaching to convert a Gentile to the faith of Chriſt, Acts 11. 19.

The fourth was done in Epheſus, the metropolis of the Proconſular Aſia, about twelve years after the former, in a city where dwelt many Jews, who were teachers of the law in oppoſition to the goſpel, and who had there a ſynagogue. And after this all Aſia, both Jews and Greeks, heard the word of Chriſt, Acts 19. 10, 17.

2. Of the miracles performed by the apoſtles, and other perſons aſſiſted by the holy Ghoſt, this hiſtory ſaith in the general, That with great power gave the apoſtles witneſs of the reſurrection of the Lord Jeſus, Acts 4. 33. and that, in confirmation of it, many ſigns and wonders were done by the apoſtles hands. In particular it informs us,

1*ſt*, That at Jeruſalem Peter and John cured by the name of Jeſus a man forty years old, who had been ſo lame from his mother's womb, that he was carried from one place to another; that this was done to the aſtoniſhment of the people, who knew he had been ſo long impotent in his feet, but now ſaw him leaping, and walking, and praiſing God: and that theſe two apoſtles being brought before the whole ſanhedrim on this account, and asked by what power or by what name they had done this cure, they openly declare to them, that they had done it by faith in the name of that Jeſus of Nazareth whom theſe men had crucified; and that the council ſeeing the man that was healed ſtanding by them, were forced to confeſs, that it was manifeſt to all them that dwelt at Jeruſalem, that a notable miracle had undeniably been done by them, chap. 3. 2.—11. chap. 4. 6.—16.

2*dly*, That when the chief prieſts and Sadducees had put them by night into priſon for preaching in the name of Jeſus, though the priſon was found ſhut with all ſafety, and the keeper ſtanding without before the doors, yet were the apoſtles on the morrow found ſtanding in the temple, and teaching the people, the angel of the Lord having opened the priſon doors, and brought them forth, and commanded them thus to preach, chap. 5. 18.—25. and that this ſo affected them, that they not only doubted what this might come to, ver. 24. but were prevailed upon by the great and celebrated Gamaliel to let theſe men alone, leſt haply they ſhould be found to fight againſt God, ver. 39.

3*dly*, That

3*dly*, That Stephen, being full of faith and power, did great wonders and miracles among the people, Chap. 6. 8.

4*thly*, That theſe miracles were ſo certainly and ſo effectually performed, that thereupon the people brought forth the ſick into the ſtreets, and laid them on beds and couches, that at the leaſt the ſhadow of Peter paſſing by, might overſhadow ſome of them; and that a multitude came out of the cities round about them to Jeruſalem, bringing ſick folks, and them that were vexed with unclean ſpirits; and they were healed every one, Chap. 5. 15, 16. And alſo, that by their miracles and preaching, they converted to the Chriſtian faith at one time three thouſand, Chap. 2. 41. at another time five thouſand perſons, Chap. 4. 4. that men were daily added to the Church, Chap. 2. 47. that believers were more added to the Lord, even multitudes of men and women, Chap. 5. 14. that the word of the Lord increaſed, and the multitude of the diſciples multiplied in Jeruſalem greatly, and a great company of the prieſts were obedient to the faith, Chap. 6. 7.

5*thly*, That upon St. Philip's preaching Chriſt at Samaria, the people, with one accord gave heed to the things which he ſpake, beholding the miracles which he did; for unclean ſpirits crying with loud voice, came out of many that were poſſeſſed with them, and many taken with palſies, and that were lame were healed: And that theſe things prevailed there, not only with many men and women, to receive Chriſtian baptiſm, but alſo forced Simon Magus, a famous ſorcerer, to believe; and, being baptized, to continue with Philip, wondering at the ſigns and miracles done by him, Chap. 8. 6, 7, 13.

6*thly*, That whilſt St. Paul, a zealous Phariſee, and a more zealous perſecutor, breathed out threatnings and ſlaughter againſt the diſciples of the Lord, and had received commiſſion from the high prieſts and elders to bring them bound unto Jeruſalem to be puniſhed; as he came nigh to Damaſcus, a light from heaven above the brightneſs of the ſun, ſhone round about him, and ſtruck him blind; and the Lord Jeſus, by a voice from heaven, ſaid unto him, Saul, Saul, why perſecuteſt thou me? And that one Ananias, being ſent by the ſame Jeſus to lay his hands upon him, he preſently receives his ſight, is filled with the Holy Ghoſt, and preacheth Chriſt in the Jewiſh ſynagogues erected in that famous city, Acts 9. And to this miraculous converſion he twice appeals, Chap. 22. and 26. in vindication of himſelf, declaring, that partly the high prieſts and elders, partly thoſe perſons that were with him then, partly one Ananias, a devout man according to the law, and a man of good report among all the Jews, could bear witneſs to them, Chap. 22. 5, 9, 12. and that none of theſe things were hid from King Agrippa's knowledge, they being not done in a corner; and by this narrative he almoſt perſuaded that King to become a Chriſtian, Chap. 26. 26, 28. See the Note on Chap. 22. 6.

7*thly*, That when St. Peter being at Lydda, a city of Paleſtine, ſaid to one Æneas there, who had kept his bed eight years, and was ſick of a palſy, Æneas, Jeſus Chriſt maketh thee whole, ariſe, and make thy bed; he immediately did ſo; and that thereupon, all that dwelt at Lydda, ſeeing this, were turned to the Lord, Chap. 9. 32, 35.

8*thly*, That the ſame Peter at Joppa, a city of Phœnicia, lying upon the Mediterranean, raiſeth one Tabitha from the dead; and that this being known throughout all Joppa, many believed in the Lord, ibid. ver. 39——42. And here let it be noted, that at Jabneh, near Joppa, ſat the great Sanhedrim; and at Lydda were famous ſchools and eminent perſons of the Jewiſh nation and religion.

9*thly*, That at Cyprus, St. Paul converted Sergius Paulus, the Deputy of the iſland, by ſtriking Elymas, a Jewiſh ſorcerer there, blind with a word, becauſe he ſought to turn the Deputy, or the Proconſul, from the faith, Chap. 13. 7, 12.

10*thly*, That at Iconium, a city of Lycaonia, where alſo was a ſynagogue of the Jews, Paul and Barnabas ſo preached, that a great multitude, both of the Jews and Greeks, believed, Chap. 14. 1. and that the Lord gave teſtimony to his word, by granting ſigns and wonders to be done by their hands, ver. 3.

11*thly*, That at Epheſus, Paul preached almoſt three years, and prevailed ſo much among them, that all Aſia, both Jews, there very numerous, and Greeks, reſorting to Epheſus, heard, and many of them believed the Goſpel, God working, in confirmation of it, ſpecial miracles by the hands of Paul; ſo that from his body were brought handerchiefs and aprons; and by this means the diſeaſes departed from them, and the evil ſpirits went out of them. And,

12*thly*, That ſeven ſons of one Sceva, a Jew, (and of the prieſt's order, ſaith the Talmud) which were exorciſts, perceiving how powerful Paul was to caſt out devils by the name of Jeſus, and therefore attempted to exorciſe one that had an evil ſpirit, by the name of that Jeſus, whom Paul preached, (ſuppoſing that the very name of Jesus, without faith in him as the true Messiah, would be effectual to cast out devils,) they were set upon, and overpowered by the evil spirit, and forced to fly from the place naked and wounded, and this being known to all the Jews and Greeks, prevailed with many who formerly had used magick arts, to burn their books, confess their deeds, and believe in Jesus; so mightily grew the word of God, and prevailed, Chap. 19.

13*thly*, That at the isle of Malta, St. Paul not only shook off a viper from his hand that had fastened on it, without harm, but healed the father of Publius, the chief man of the island, lying sick of a fever, by laying his hands upon him; and that hereupon, others in that island who had diseases, came and were healed; and that thereupon they honoured all Paul's companions, and laded them at their departure with such things as they needed, Acts 28. 3.——10. Which things, if true, must be known to the inhabitants, and also to the 276 persons, who were cast with Paul on that island, Chap. 27. 37.

So that this history affords us an account of miracles, great and many, done in many places, upon persons remarkable and well known, viz. the lame man laid at the beautiful gate of the temple; upon Tabitha, eminent for her works of charity; upon Saul, a zealous persecutor of the Church; upon Elymas the sorcerer, opposing the right ways of the Lord; upon the Pythoness at Philippi, Acts 16. 18. upon the sons of Sceva; upon the Father of Publius, to the conversion of many thousands, not only of the people, but of multitudes of the priests at Jerusalem; to the astonishment of Simon Magus, that Prince of sorcerers, and the conviction and conversion of multitudes of the same wicked art at Ephesus, a city famous for those practices. See the note on Chap. 19. 19.

Moreover, these miracles were either done in Jerusalem, Samaria, Ephesus, cities of which we have already spoken; or where the Jews abounded: and that so certainly, that St. Paul, in his Epistle to the Hebrews, enquires, How shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation, which was confirmed to us by signs and wonders, and divers miracles, and gifts of the Holy Ghost? Heb. 2. 3, 4. And as for the conversion of St. Paul, it was done at Damascus, the metropolis and noble mart of Syria, where flourished many thousand Jews; upon a person known by the whole nation of the Jews, to be a strict and celebrated Pharisee, and once a zealous persecutor of the Christian faith; one who after his conversion, which happened the next year after our Lord's ascension, was hated and persecuted by his own nation, for preaching up that faith he formerly endeavoured to destroy; and so not only they of Damascus, and they who journeyed with him, and saw and felt that glorious light which was the means of his conversion, but even the whole Jewish nation must be acquainted with, and even alarmed at this miraculous and sudden change. Lastly, These miracles were mostly done within two years, and all of them within twenty-seven years after our Lord's ascension.

Now, when times and places, circumstances and events, are so particularly set down, and are of such a nature as seem to carry in them a conspicuous evidence of the notorious falshood, or the clear truth of the narration, as it is a sign the historian intended no deceit; so neither seems it easy to conceive, how such great cities and regions should be ignorant of the truth or falshood of them, or be capable of being imposed upon by such relations.

All that can possibly be offered to impair the credit of these evidences, of the miraculous operations of the Holy Ghost exercised by the Apostles, and conferred on such as did embrace the Christian faith, must be comprized in these two particulars, viz. either that these things were not written and published by St. Luke, or in his time; or, that they were not truly written, but contain false stories invented for the credit of Christianity.

Now, that this history was universally and originally received by the tradition of the Church, amongst her true undoubted scriptures, (a) Eusebius sufficiently informs us. (b) Clemens of Alexandria and Origen confirm the same tradition. And as all agree, that this history was written by St. Luke, and owned as an unquestionable record of Christianity, so do we find it cited by (c) St. Clemens, St. Paul's companion; by (d) Papias, who conversed with men of the Apostles time; and by (e) Polycarp, who was St. John's disciple; and Irenæus, who flourished in the second century, hath in a large chapter almost epitomis'd it: Nor do I read of any Jew or Gentile, who did except against the truth, or the sincerity of the relator of these things: Now, if a record so early and so generally received, and cited by the Christians, may be, without all proof, rejected, as not written by that author whose name it hath hath ſtill born; if a writing thus unanimouſly owned among the records of the Chriſtian faith, may be, without all reaſon, rejected as a ſpurious or doubtful piece, the truth and credit of all hiſtory muſt be entirely ſubverted; and ſo there will be nothing certain left concerning any records of antiquity.

But if, according to this general tradition, this hiſtory was indeed writ and publiſhed by St. Luke, there muſt be many myriads ſtill living in Judea, Samaria, Damaſcus, Epheſus, Cæſarea, and many other places mentioned in theſe Acts, who could be able to diſprove theſe things, had they been falſe; which yet was either not at all, or unſucceſsfully attempted, as the iſſue, which concluded in its general reception, teſtifies. We therefore may conclude, that neither Jew or Gentile, orthodox Chriſtian or apoſtate, though they were all concerned to do it, found any cauſe to doubt the certainty of what was thus recorded.

But, to give ſcepticiſm its utmoſt ſcope, be it this hiſtory was not publiſhed till an hundred years after our Lord's aſcenſion; beyond which, infidelity cannot go, if we conſider the citations of it before that time, and the abridgment of it made by Irenæus not long after; either the facts related in it were true, and then they are a ſignal evidence of the miraculous operations of the Holy Ghoſt vouchſafed to Chriſtians; or, they were falſe: And then, how is it poſſible they ſhould obtain ſo eaſy and ſo general belief? Could they not know in Judea, Samaria, and Epheſus, and in the other cities mentioned, by what means they were firſt converted to the Chriſtian faith? Muſt it not be ſufficient prejudice to them againſt theſe tales, that they had lived ſo long in the profeſſion of that faith, and had heard nothing of theſe things, too wonderful, too much conducing to the honour and confirmation of that faith to be ſo long concealed, had they been truly done by two ſuch eminent Apoſtles, as were St. Peter and St. Paul.

ACTS OF THE HOLY APOSTLES.

CHAP. I.

1. THE former treatiſe have I made, O Theophilus, [a] of all that Jeſus began both to do and teach, (as far as I thought this needful for the inſtruction of a catechumen,)

2. Until the day in which he was taken up, after that he, [b] through the Holy Ghoſt, had given commandments to the Apoſtles whom he had choſen;

3. To whom alſo he ſhewed himſelf alive after his paſſion, by many [c] infallible proofs, (Gr. by many ſigns or teſtimonies of his reſurrection,) being ſeen of them forty days, and [d] ſpeaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God.

4. And being [e] aſſembled together, (or eating, and converſing) with them, (he) commanded them that they ſhould not (or not to) depart from Jeruſalem, (till power from on high was come upon them, to fit them for their work, Luke 24. 49.) but (to) wait for the promiſe of the Father, which, ſaith he, ye have heard of me; (Gr. for the promiſe of my Father, of which you have heard.)

5. For John truly (Ἰωάννης μέν, John indeed) baptized with water (only,) but (as he ſaid, Matth. 3. 11.) [f] you ſhall be baptized with the Holy Ghoſt, not many days hence; (i. e. within ten days; for this was ſpoken on the day of our Lord's aſcenſion, that is, ten days before Pentecoſt.)

6. When they therefore were come together, they aſked of him, (that which they chiefly deſired, and expected) ſaying, Lord, [g] wilt thou at this time reſtore again the kingdom to Iſrael? (i. e. Wilt thou now ſet up that temporal kingdom, in which the Jews ſhall rule over all nations, which we impatiently expect?)

7. And he ſaid to them, It is not for you to know the times or the ſeaſons, which the Father [h] hath put in his own power, (i. e. reſerved to himſelf.)

8. But (for your ſatisfaction in what more concerns you, know that) [i] ye ſhall receive (a miraculous) power, after the Holy Ghoſt (which I have promiſed) is come upon you, and (then) ye ſhall be witneſſes to me (of what I ſaid and did, John 15. 27.) both in Jeruſalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and to the [k] uttermoſt parts of the earth.

9. And when he had ſpoken theſe things, while they beheld (him,) he was taken up (into heaven,) and a cloud received him (and conveyed him) out of their ſight.

10. And while they looked ſtedfaſtly toward heaven, as he went up, behold two (angels, like) men, ſtood by them in white apparel.

11. Who alſo ſaid, Ye men of Galilee, why ſtand ye (thus) gazing up into heaven, (after him whom ye cannot now ſee, but the time will come at the end of the world, when) this ſame Jeſus, who is taken up from you into heaven, [l] ſhall ſo come (down from thence) in like manner as ye have (now) ſeen him go into heaven.

12. Then returned they to Jeruſalem from the mount called Olivet, [m] which is from Jeruſalem a ſabbath-day's journey, (i. e. ſeven furlongs.)

13. And when they were come in (thither) they [n] went up into an upper room, where abode both Peter, and James, and John, and Andrew, Philip, and Thomas, Bartholomew, and Matthew, James, the ſon of Alphæus, and Simon Zelotes, and Judas the brother of James.

14. Theſe all continued with one accord in prayer, and ſupplication, with the women, and [o] Mary the mother of Jeſus, and with his brethren.

15. And in thoſe days Peter ſtood up in the midſt of the diſciples, and ſaid, [the [p] number of the names (of which) together were about an hundred and twenty.]

16. Men and brethren, this ſcripture muſt needs have been (Gr. be) fulfilled, which the Holy Ghoſt by the mouth of David ſpake before concerning Judas, who was guide to them that took Jeſus;

17. For he was numbred with us, (being one of of the twelve ſent out, and empowered by Chriſt to preach in his name, Matth. 10. 1——5.) and had obtained part of this miniſtry.

18. Now this man [q] purchaſed a field with the reward of (his) iniquity, (i. e. with the reward of his iniquity, had no other advantage, but to return it back to them that gave it, who with it purchaſed a field,) and (then) [r] falling headlong he burſt aſunder in the midſt, and all his bowels guſhed out.

19. And it (this fact) was known to all the dwellers at Jeruſalem, inſomuch as that field is called in their proper tongue, Aceldama, that is to ſay, The field of blood;

20. [s] For it is written (by way of prediction concerning him) in the book of Pſalms, Let his habitation be deſolate, and let no man dwell therein: and, His biſhoprick let another take; (or his habitation ſhall be deſolate, and no man ſhall dwell in it, and his biſhoprick let another take.)

21. [t] Wherefore of theſe men that have accompanied with us all the time that the Lord Jeſus went in and out among us, (and ſo can teſtify of all he did and ſaid, John 15. 27.)

22. Beginning from the baptiſm of John, unto that ſame day that he was taken up from us (into heaven,) muſt one be ordained to be witneſs with us of his reſurrection, (and of his words and actions.)

23. And they appointed two, Joſeph, called Barſabas, who was ſirnamed Juſtus, and Matthias, (to be preſented before the Lord.)

24. And [v] they prayed, and ſaid, (Gr. and praying they ſaid,) Thou, Lord, who knoweſt the hearts of all men, ſhew, (by directing of the lot to come out with his name,) whether of theſe two thou haſt choſen.

25. That he may take part of this miniſtry and apoſtleſhip, from which Judas by tranſgreſſion fell, [w] that he might go to his own place, (as the reward of his iniquity.)

26. And (then) [x] they gave forth their lots, and the lot fell upon Matthias, and he was numbred with the eleven Apoſtles, (making their number twelve.)

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. I.

Ver. 1. [a] Περὶ πάντων, Of all that Jeſus began both to do and teach.] Since the Apoſtle John hath left on record many things the bleſſed Jeſus did and taught, which are not in St. Luke; yea, ſince St. Luke himſelf doth about ten times ſay, Chriſt taught the people, Chap. 4. 15, 31. Chap. 5. 3, 17.——6. 6.——13. 10.——19. 47.——21. 37.——20. 1.——23. 5. and yet in none of thoſe places records the words he taught, it is neceſſary to limit the generality of theſe words. Now though the word All doth ſometimes ſignify the chief of all the things related to, as when our Saviour ſaith to his diſciples, ἐγνώρισα ὑμῖν πάντα, I have made known to you all things, which I have heard of my Father, and yet he adds, Chap. 16. 12. I have many things to ſay unto you, but ye cannot bear them yet; notwithſtanding, ſeeing all the excellent diſcourſes of our Saviour mentioned by St. John, and two of his great miracles, the cure of the man born blind, John 9. and the raiſing of Lazarus mentioned Chap. 11. are not recorded by St. Luke, though theſe diſcourſes, and theſe miracles deſerve well to be ranked among the chief things which Chriſt did, and taught, I prefer the expoſition of theſe words given in the paraphraſe, as being in effect the expoſition which the Evangeliſt's own words afford, Luke 1. 4.

Ibid. See Additions, N° 1.

Ver. 2. [b] Διὰ πνεύματος ἁγίου, By the Holy Ghoſt.] Theſe words admit of ſeveral conſtructions, as, (1.) That he had choſen his Apoſtles by the Holy Ghoſt; but againſt this it is objected, that the ſcripture no where ſaith that Chriſt choſe his Apoſtles by the Holy Ghoſt: Or, (2.) that he was taken up into heaven by the Holy Ghoſt, as by the ſame Spirit he was led into the wilderneſs, Luke 4. 1. Or, (3.) that he gave commandments to his diſciples by the Holy Ghoſt; which again is capable of divers conſtructions; as, (1ſt,) That he gave them theſe commandments by the inward operations of the Holy Ghoſt, which he had breathed into them, John 20. 22. But this ſenſe ſeems not very probable, (1.) Becauſe after his breathing of the Holy Ghoſt upon them, he ſtill ſaith, he will ſend the promiſe of his Father upon them, viz. the promiſe of the Holy Ghoſt; and bids them ſtay at Jeruſalem till they had received him, Luke 24. 49. and here, ver. 4. And, (2.) becauſe he is ſaid, ver. 3. to ſpeak unto them the things which belonged to the kingdom of God. Or, (2dly,) as he did all his miracles, and delivered all his doctrines by virtue of the Holy Ghoſt, whilſt he diſcharged his prophetick office. See Note on Matth. 3. 16. So being yet on earth, he ſpake theſe things, and gave theſe commands to his Apoſtles, touching his kingdom, by the ſame Spirit. And his paſſion, mentioned in the Verſe following, renders it probable that St. Luke ſpeaks of the commands relating to his kingdom, which he had given them before his paſſion.

Ver. 3.

Ver. 3. [e] Ἐν πολλοῖς τεκμηρίοις, By many infallible proofs.] For, by ſpeaking to, by walking, and by eating with them, he gave them certain indication that he lived; that he was ſeen, and handled by them, was a ſure evidence that he had a true and natural body; that he permitted Thomas to view the ſcars of his feet and hands, and put his hand into his ſide, was a certain token that the body raiſed was the ſame which was crucified, and pierced by the ſoldier's lance.

Ibid. [d] And ſpeaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God;] viz. Of the teaching the doctrine of this kingdom to all nations, and the receiving them into it by baptiſm who believed, and profeſſed to own it, Matth. 28. 19. of the benefits which were promiſed to them who cordially believed their doctrine, and the condemnation which belonged to them who would not believe it, Mark 16. 15, 16. of the encouragements and aſſiſtances he would afford them in the propagation of it by his continual preſence with them, Matth. 28. 20. and the aſſiſtance of his ſpirit, ver. 4, 5. and by the miracles by which their doctrine ſhould be confirmed by them, and others who believed it, Mark 16. 17, 18.

Ver. 4. [e] Συναλιζόμενος, Being aſſembled with them.] So Phavorinus ſaith, that ἁλίζω is συναθροίζω, I aſſemble together. So Herodotus in Clio, (a) οὕτω μὲν δὴ συμμίζουσι, ſo they met together; and again, Cyrus συναλίσας εἰς ταυτὸ, (b) gathering together all his father's herds; and c. 125. ἁλίσας τὰ μὲν αὐτέων ὁ Κῦρος συνάλισε, Cyrus gathered together ſome of the Perſians; and in his Euterpe he ſaith, that (c) Pheron King of Egypt, εἰς μίλτου πόλιν συναλίζων, gathering together all the women that had been falſe to their huſbands into one city, burnt them all with the city; and ſo in Melpomene, ἁλίζειν στρατὸν, is to aſſemble, or gather together the army. Now this aſſembling them together is, by Dr. Lightfoot, thought to have been in Galilee, but this is contrary both to the text in Luke and here; for Luke 24. 49. he commands them καθίζειν to abide in the city of Jeruſalem, here μὴ χωρίζεσθαι ἀπό, not to depart from Jeruſalem, ἀλλὰ ἐμμένειν, but to abide there; and it is added in both places, that having ſpoken this, he led them out (of Jeruſalem) to Bethany, Acts 1. 9. Luke 24. 51. and there was taken up into heaven, and that thence ὑπέστρεψαν, they went back (from Bethany) to Jeruſalem, Luke 24. 52. Acts 1. 12. they muſt be therefore at Jeruſalem when Chriſt thus converſed with them, and there abiding, were to expect the promiſe of the Father, Luke 24. 49. Al. χοινωνῶν ἁλῶν καὶ τραπέζης, Chryſ. Oecom.

Ver. 5. [f] Βαπτισθήσεσθε ἐν πνεύματι ἁγίῳ, Ye ſhall be baptiſed with the Holy Ghoſt.] The word Ye, and the time affixed to this baptiſm, the day of Pentecoſt, ſhew that this baptiſm relates only to the diſciples then preſent, and converſing with the holy Jeſus. And to them the Holy Spirit was given, (1.) To render them powerful, or able witneſſes of our Lord's reſurrection, Luke 24. 48. Acts 1. 8. and conſequently that he was the true Meſſiah, or that Prophet which was to come into the world, and was to be the Saviour of it, John 16. 8, 9, 10. And therefore Peter ſpeaks thus to the Jews, Ye have killed the Prince of life, whom God hath raiſed from the dead, of which we are witneſſes, Acts 3. 15. And he, with the Apoſtles, ſays to them, The God of our fathers hath raiſed Jeſus from the dead, whom ye killed and hanged on a tree, him hath God exalted to his own right-hand to be a Prince, and a Saviour, to give repentance to Iſrael, and remiſſion of ſins. And we are his witneſſes of theſe things, and ſo is the Holy Ghoſt, which he hath given to them that obey him, Acts 5. 30, 31, 32. (2.) To render them able to give us an exact account, as far as divine wiſdom ſaw it neceſſary, of what our Saviour did, and taught. The Spirit, ſaith he, ſhall bear witneſs of me, and you alſo ſhall be my witneſſes, becauſe you have been with me from the beginning, John 15. 26, 27. And becauſe, were they never ſo faithful, yet could we not ſo truſt to the ſtrength of their natural memories, as to depend on thoſe long diſcourſes we meet with in the Goſpels of St. Matthew, Luke and John, as the very words of Chriſt, or be aſſured thence, that they delivered all the circumſtances of Chriſt's miracles exactly as they were tranſacted, therefore hath he aſſured us that he would ſend the Spirit of truth to them, to bring thoſe things to their remembrance which he had ſaid unto them, John 14. 26. (3.) To make them able miniſters of the New Teſtament, able to acquaint all Chriſtians with all ſaving truth, and teach them all things which he had commanded to be obſerved throughout all ages of the church; and to declare unto them by the ſpirit of prophecy, what ſhould be hereafter: And hence he promiſeth them this Spirit to teach them all things, John 14. 26. to lead them into all truth, Chap. 16. 13. and to teach them all things to come; and upon the ſtrength of this promiſe all Chriſtians of all ages have believed that the Apoſtles, and writers of the New Teſtament, both ſpake and wrote as they were moved, or directed by the Spirit of God; and received thoſe doctrines they taught and indited, not as the words of man, but as they were in truth, the word of God, 1 Thess. 2. 13.

Ver. 6. g Ἐν τῷ χρόνῳ τούτῳ ἀποκαθιστάνεις; Wilt thou at this time restore?] That temporal dominion over all other nations which the Jews then expected, being never before granted to them, the word here cannot well be rendered restore, but rather, grant, or establish, as it may be rendered, for ἀποκαθιστῶν, say Suidas and Phavorinus, is, δίδως, χαριζόμενος, giving, or granting; and in the Septuagint the word signifies to establish. So Amos 5. 15. ἀποκαταστήσατε, ye shall establish judgment in the gates; and Psal. 16. 5. σὺ εἶ ὁ ἀποκαθιστῶν, thou sustainest, or establishest my lot. Ingenious here is the conceit of Dr. Lightfoot, that the reason of the question, wilt thou do it at this time? arose from their reflection on the indignities the Jews had done to Christ, and was to this effect; Lord, wilt thou restore the kingdom to those who have dealt so basely with thee? what! to this generation so unworthy of that honour, as lying under the guilt of thy blood-shed?

Ver. 7. h Which God hath put in his own power; i. e. reserved to himself, for secret things belong to God, Deut. 29. 29. and not revealing the critical moment when they shall come to pass to any of his Prophets, he left himself free to choose his own season when he will effect them. Grotius here saith, this kingdom was granted to the true Israel, i. e. the Christians, when Constantine and other Christian Kings began to reign; but this agrees not with the prediction of the Prophets, which plainly speak of a glorious kingdom belonging to the Jewish nation coming in to the faith of Christ. Dr. Lightfoot is positive that this place hath no relation to such a kingdom, and if he only means a temporal kingdom, this may be granted; but this answer speaking of times and seasons relating to a kingdom to be set up, or granted to Israel, I know not why he may not respect that time when the Jews generally shall be converted, and all nations shall flow in to them, and make Christ's kingdom glorious.

Ver. 8. i Λήψεσθε δύναμιν ἐπελθόντος τοῦ ἁγίου πνεύματος ἐφ' ὑμᾶς, Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you,] Or, ye shall receive the power of the Holy Ghost coming upon you; for δύναμις in the New Testament, when it relates to God the Father, Christ, or the Holy Ghost, imports generally some miraculous, or extraordinary power; and what is here, ye shall receive power, the Holy Ghost coming upon you, is, Luke 24. 50. ye shall be endued with power from on high, and then ye shall be my witnesses, enabled to confirm what you say of my words and actions, and especially of my resurrection, with signs and wonders, and divers distributions of the Holy Ghost, Heb. 2. 4.

Ibid. k And to the uttermost parts of the earth;] that is, to the Jews first, then to the Samaritans, and lastly, to all the nations of the world; and yet it is evident that the Apostles, and converted Jews, at the first understood this of their preaching only to the Jews dispersed through the earth, for they preached the word to the Jews only, Acts 11. 19. and thought it unlawful, till by a vision from heaven they were taught otherwise, to preach to the Gentiles.

Ver. 11. l Οὗτος ἐλεύσεται ὃν τρόπον, Shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go up into heaven.] We are told, 2 Thess. 1. 7, 8. that he shall come down from heaven with his mighty angels in a flame of fire; and 1 Thess. 4. 16, 17. that he shall come down from heaven, and snatch us up into the clouds; as therefore here the angels attended on him ascending to heaven, so the cloud that received him. ver. 9. must be such a cloud of fire in which God was wont to appear with the attendance of his holy angels; of which see Note on Philip. 2. 6. and this makes out the parallel; he being then to come also with a cloud of glory, in the body, and with the attendance of his holy angels. And thus Elias went up to heaven in a fiery chariot, 2 Kings 2. 12.

Ver. 12. m Which is from Jerusalem a sabbath-day's journey.] Note here, (1.) That St. Luke doth not intend to give us the distance of the place of Christ's ascent from Jerusalem, that being from Bethany, Luke 24. 50. which was from Jerusalem fifteen furlongs, John 11. 18. but only from the foot of Mount Olivet, which was, say the Syriac, and Theophylact from (d) Josephus, seven furlongs, though now we read in Josephus only five furlongs: Now, say the Jews, a sabbath day's journey is two thousand cubits, that is, a thousand yards, which is about eight furlongs, or a mile. See of this Buxt. Lex Talm. p. 2582. See Additions, No 2.

Ver. 13. n They went up εἰς ὑπερῷον, into an upper room.] Where, and what this upper room was, as it is not much material, so is it difficult to determine; that it was not the room in which Christ celebrated his last supper, appears from this, that that is called ἀνάγαιον, Mark 14. 15. Luke 22. 12. which difference of names argues a difference in the thing itself; for ἀνάγαιον is any room above stairs, be it only one story high, but ὑπερῷον is the highest room in the house, Acts 20. 8, 9. Note, ſephus teſtifies; 'tis therefore ſuppoſed there might be many ſuch, in one of which Chriſt's Apoſtles, and the other Chriſtians with them, might abide.

It was alſo common among the Jews, not only for their Rabbins, to have an upper room for their Beth Midraſh, but alſo for others to have ſuch an upper room, where they diſcourſed of the law, or exerciſed other parts of religion; now in which of theſe two the Apoſtles and diſciples abode, is the queſtion.

That it was an upper room in the Temple is argued, (1.) Becauſe St. Luke tells us, that after their return to Jeruſalem, they were διαπαντὸς ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ, always in the temple, Luke 24. 52, 53. and here, that after their return to Jeruſalem, they went up into this upper room, that they were, καταμένοντες, abiding there; and Chap. 2. 46. it is ſaid of them conveened, and remaining in this upper room, that they were daily, προσκαρτεροῦντες ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ, abiding in the temple. But to this it is anſwered,

1*ſt*, That the phraſe, they were always in the temple, doth not prove this; for Chriſt ſaith of himſelf, John 18. 10. I taught, πάντοτε ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ, always in the temple, and yet he had no habitation in any part of it.

2*dly*, We read, Chap. 3. 1. that Peter and John, ἀνέβαινον, went up into the temple at the hour of prayer, whereas had they been in an upper room of the temple, it ſhould have rather been ſaid that they went down into it. It is alſo ſaid that they continued there, καθ' ἡμέραν, day after day, which ſeemeth to import that they lodged not there by night.

3*dly*, It follows that they broke bread, κατ' οἶκον, that is, ſaith Dr. Hammond, in the temple; but both theſe, and the former words are ſpoken of the whole number of Chriſtians, which were now at leaſt three thouſand one hundred and twenty, too many ſure to lodge together in one upper room. Moreover that κατ' οἶκον refers to houſes diſtinct from the temple, we learn from this Evangeliſt, ſaying, Chap. 5. 42. they were teaching all the day, ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ, καὶ κατ' οἶκον, in the temple, and from houſe to houſe.

4*thly*, That there were, ὑπερῶα, upper rooms in the temple, is granted, but then that they belonged to any beſides the prieſts and Levites is not proved; the ὑπερῶον mentioned by Joſephus, was that of Johanan, the ſon of the High Prieſt. And Maimonides, in his book de ædificio templi, mentions ſixteen conclavia, or chambers, but ſaith, they were all appointed for ſacred things, or perſons: How improbable therefore is it, that poor fiſhermen, and Galileans, odious for their Maſter's ſake, ſhould be permitted to croud in ſuch numbers into one of theſe rooms. See the Note on Luke 24. 53.

Ver. 14. ° And Mary, the mother of Jeſus.] Here is the laſt time that we have any mention of this bleſſed mother: Of her aſcenſion St. Luke ſaith nothing, becauſe he knew nothing of it, that idle tale being the invention of later ages from apocryphal writings, and vain revelations.

Ibid. And with his brethren.] They therefore then believed, though before they did not, John 7. 5.

Ver. 15. ᵖ The number, ὀνομάτων, of names,] i. e of perſons. So, Rev. 3. 4. thou haſt ὀλίγα ὀνόματα, a few perſons in Sardis, which have not defiled their garments. So in Æſchylus, τὸ Θηβαίων ὄνομα, is one of Thebes: In (f) Cicero, Romanorum nomen, is a Roman citizen: and in (g) Virgil, Sylvius Albanum nomen, a man of Albania.

Ver. 18. This man purchaſed a field, ἐκτήσατο χωρίον, with the wages of iniquity.] As in the Old Teſtament men are ſaid to get or purchaſe to themſelves ſhame, Prov. 9. 7. and in the New, to receive to themſelves damnation, and in profane authors, κτήσασθαι ἔχθραν, καὶ συμφοράν, to purchaſe enmity, and calamities; and we in our language are ſaid, to create trouble to ourſelves, when this is the event, though it is not the intention of the action; ſo is Judas here ſaid to purchaſe this field by the wages of his iniquity, which was bought with the money he received as the reward of his iniquity, though he neither intended this, nor was he inſtrumental to it.

Ibid. ʳ And falling headlong, he burſt aſunder.] See Note on Matth. 27. 5.

Ver. 20. ˢ For it is written in the book of Pſalms, Pſal. 69. 26. Let his habitation be deſolate, and Pſal. 109. 8. and his biſhoprick, or office, let another take.] That the firſt of theſe Pſalms refers to that Meſſiah, of whom David was a type, we learn from the 21ſt Verſe, where it is ſaid, they gave me gall to eat, and when I was thirſty they gave me vinegar to drink, which was true only of Chriſt, and is applied to him, John 19. 29. and from the ninth Verſe, where it is ſaid, the zeal of thy houſe hath conſumed me, and the reproaches of them that reproached thee, fell on me, which is applied to Chriſt, John 2. 17. Rom. 15. 3. and therefore what is ſaid, ver. 26. of the enemies of David, may reaſonably be applied to Judas, the great enemy of Chriſt; what is ſaid, Pſal. 109. 8. if it primarily relate either to Doeg, or Achitophel, the mortal enemies of David, might by the Holy Spirit be intended to have its full completion in the betrayer of the Son of David, and this intention might be ſuggeſted to St. Peter by the ſame Spirit. See the Appendix to the ſecond Chapter of St. Matthew.

Ver. 21.

(g) Æn. 6. v. 763.

Ver. 21. [t] Δεῖ οὖν τῶν συνελθόντων ἡμῖν ἀνδρῶν, Wherefore of these men who have accompanied with us all the time, one must be ordained to be a witness.] One must be chosen to make up the number twelve, answerable to the twelve tribes of Israel. He must be one who always had conversed with them, that he might be a witness of all that Jesus said, and did, John 15. 27. whilst he discharged his office among them; for that is the import of the phrase, Go in and out; as when Moses says, I am grown old, I can no more go in and out before you, Deut. 31. 3. and when Solomon prays for wisdom, that he might go in and out before that great people, 2 Chron. 1. 10. See Deut. 28. 6. Psal. 121. 8.

Ver. 24. [v] And they praying, said, Κύριε καρδιογνῶστα, Lord, who knowest the hearts of all men, &c.] Here Woltzogenius truly notes that they prayed to the Lord Jesus, because the Apostles were at first chosen by him, were his Apostles, and were to be his witnesses, and then they must ascribe to him the knowledge of all hearts, which is the property of God alone.

Ver. 25. [w] Πορευθῆναι εἰς τὸν τόπον ἴδιον, That he might go to his own place;] i. e. To the place worthy of him, and which he had deserved by his sin. So the Jews say of Balaam, ἀπῆλθεν εἰς τὸν τόπον αὐτοῦ, he went into his own place, Numb. 24. 14, 15. that is, saith Baal Turim, to hell. So (h) Ignatius saith, ἥξει ὁ εἰς τὸν ἴδιον τόπον χωρῆσαι μέλλων, every one must hereafter go to his own place; and (i) Barnabas saith of those that walk in the light, that they do afterwards ὁδεύειν εἰς τὸν ἀρέσαντα αὐτοῖς τόπον, go to the place appointed for them; Clemens R. that they do go, εἰς τὸν ἅγιον τόπον, to the holy place, εἰς τὸν ὀφειλόμενον τόπον τῆς δόξης, to the place of glory due to them; and Polycarp, that they are with the Lord, and go, εἰς τὸν ὀφειλόμενον αὐτοῖς τόπον, to the place appointed for them; according to the Hebrew phrase here cited by Lightfoot, he came from his own place, that is, from hell, appointed for idolaters.

Object. 1. Hell is not the proper place of Judas, but common to him with all the wicked.

Answ. St. Peter doth not expressly say he went to hell, but into a place proper for him: now Ignatius saith, there is appointed for every man, ἴδιος τόπος, a proper place, i. e. a place worthy of him, or agreeable to his actions. This in (k) Plato is the place whither the genius which he had chosen whilst he lived was appointed to bring him, viz. the incorrigible wicked soul, εἰς τὸν αὐτῇ πρέποντα οἶκον, into an habitation fitted for it, but the pure soul, εἰς τόπον περιφανῆ, to a place convenient for it.

Object. 2. Ly, It is objected, that it belonged not to Peter to pass sentence on Judas, or affirm any thing of God's secrets, such as Judas's going to hell.

Answ. This is wonderful, that when Christ had pronounced him a devil, John 6. 71. a son of perdition, John 17. 12. and declared, that it had been better for him that he had never been born, Matth. 26. 24. it should be thought a diving into God's secrets to say, he went into a place prepared for, or due to such miscreants. Moreover, doth not our Saviour say this fall of the son of perdition was foretold by the scripture? John 17. 12. Does not St. Peter here apply those scriptures to him, which foretel the most dreadful things? Does not Luke shew the dreadful issue of his iniquity upon his body, and after all this might he not say, he went to a place proper for him? Whosoever betrays an Israelite into the hands of the Gentiles, say the Jews, hath no part in the world to come, how much less he who betrays the Messiah, the King of Israel, into the hands of the Gentiles? Matth. 20. 19.—26. 24.

Object. 3. It seems improper to say, such a one sinned that he might go to hell.

Answ. This is even such an impropriety of speech as God is pleased to use to his own people, when he saith by Hosea, Chap. 8. 4. Of their silver and gold have they made them idols, that they might be cut off: and by the Prophet Micah, Chap. 6. 16. The statutes of Omri are kept, and ye walk in their counsels, that I should make you a desolation: and as Christ useth, when he saith, the Jews had shut their eyes and hardned their hearts, lest they should be converted and healed, or lest their sin should be forgiven them, Mark 4. 12. John 12. 39, 40. By all which places it appears, that in divine construction any man may be said to do an action to that end which he knows will be the event of it, and which by God is threatned to the doers of it.

Moreover, the other exposition, viz. that the κλῆρος διακονίας, καὶ ἀποστολῆς, portion of the ministry and apostleship, is the province which fell to the lot of Judas in the distribution of them among the Apostles, and that this is called the proper place from which Judas fell by his sin, and into which Matthias is here said to go; I say this exposition is founded upon an evident mistake, viz. that the several provinces into which the Apostles were to go, for preaching the Gospel, were distributed among them before they were filled with the Holy Ghost, which is abundantly confuted by Dr. Stillingfleet, (h) Ep. ad Magn. § 5. (i) § 19. (k) In Phæd. p. 80. B. D. E.

Iren. l. 2. Chap. 6. § 2. And when, where, and to what end, ſhould a province of preaching the Goſpel after our Lord's aſcenſion be diſtributed to him, who was before to be a ſon of perdition? (2.) To ſucceed in the office of Judas, is not παραβῆναι to go into his place, but λαμβάνειν, to take his place; according to the words of the Pſalmiſt, His office λάβοι ἕτερος, ſhall another take. And, Laſtly, Had this been intended, a conjunction copulative ſhould have been put before παραβῆναι, and the words ſhould have run thus, λαβεῖν καὶ παραβῆναι, To take the ſhare of his Apoſtleſhip, and to go into his place.

Ver. 26. [a] Καὶ ἔδωκαν κλήρους αὐτοῖς, And they gave forth their lots:] That is, ſaith Grotius, they put two lots into two urns, the one containing the two names of Joſeph and Matthias, the other the name of an Apoſtle, and a void lot; and then drawing forth the name of Joſeph, and the void lot, they knew that the lot containing the name of an Apoſtle, belonged to Matthias. See Lucian's Hermotimus, ſive de Sectis, p. 232, 233.

CHAP. II.

1. [a] AND when the day of pentecoſt was fully come, they were all with one accord (together) in one place:

2. And ſuddenly there came a ſound from heaven, as of a ruſhing mighty wind, (Gr. as of a ſtrong wind brought, or coming thence,) and it filled all the houſe where they were ſitting.

3. And there appeared to them cloven tongues, like as of fire, and it ſat (Gr. καθίσαι ſub. γλῶσσα, a tongue ſat) upon each of them.

4. And they were all filled with the Holy Ghoſt, and began to ſpeak with other tongues (than thoſe which they had learned,) as the (gift of the) Spirit gave them utterance.

5. And there were (then) dwelling at Jeruſalem, Jews, (by nation and by proſelytiſm, ver. 10.) devout men, out of every nation under heaven, (where the Jews dwelt.)

6. Now when this was noiſed abroad, the multitude came together, and was confounded, (or aſtoniſhed at the ſtrangeneſs of the thing,) becauſe that (ὅτι for) every man (of them who were of ſeveral nations,) heard them ſpeak in his own language.

7. And they were (therefore) all amazed, and marvelled, ſaying one to another, Behold, are not all theſe who ſpeak (theſe ſtrange tongues, by birth) Galileans?

8. And how (then) hear we every man (of us, them ſpeaking) in our own tongue wherein we were born?

9. (For being) Parthians and Medes, and Elamites, and the dwellers in Meſopotamia, and in Judea, and Cappadocia, in Pontus and Aſia,

10. Phrygia, and Pamphylia, in Egypt, and in the parts of Libya about Cyrene, and ſtrangers of Rome, Jews, and proſelytes,

11. Cretes, and Arabians, we do hear them ſpeak in our tongues the wonderful works of God.

12. And they (who ſaid this,) were all amazed, and were in doubt (what the iſſue of this might be,) ſaying one to another, What meaneth this? (What importeth this great matter?)

13. (But) others mocking, ſaid, Theſe men are full of new wine, (and this cauſes them to ſpeak thus.)

14. But Peter ſtanding up with the eleven, lift up his voice, and ſaid to them, Ye men of Judea, and all ye that dwell at Jeruſalem, be this known to you, and hearken to my words (which I am about to ſpeak.)

15. For theſe (men) are not drunken, as ye (ſcoffers) ſuppoſe, ſeeing it is but the third hour of the day, (i. e. the ninth hour, or the time of the morning ſacrifice, to which we Jews uſually come faſting.)

16. But this (which is come to paſs,) is (the completion of) that which is ſpoken by the Prophet Joel, (Chap. 2. 28. in theſe words,)

17. [b] And it ſhall come to paſs in the laſt days, (i. e. the times of the Meſſiah,) ſaith God, I will pour out my Spirit upon all fleſh, (i. e. upon perſons of all ranks;) and your ſons and your daughters ſhall propheſy, and your young men ſhall ſee viſions, and your old men ſhall dream dreams;

18. And on my ſervants, and on my hand-maidens, I will pour out in thoſe days of my Spirit, and they ſhall propheſy.

19. And (for the terror and condemnation of thoſe who will not be convinced by this effuſion of the Holy Ghoſt,) [c] I will ſhew wonders in heaven above, and ſigns in the earth beneath, (an extraordinary effuſion of) blood, and (Matth. 24. 6, 7. ſtrange appearances of lightnings, and of) fire, (devouring towns, and cities, and cauſing) pillars of ſmoke (to aſcend up.)

20. The ſun ſhall be turned into darkneſs, and the moon into blood, (the government in church and ſtate ſhall be diſſolved) before that great and terrible day of the Lord (be fully) come.

21. And

21. And it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord, shall be saved, (from these direful judgments.)

22. Ye men of Israel, hear these words (which I am now about to speak, viz.) Jesus of Nazareth, a man approved of (i. e. declared to be sent from) God among you, by miracles, and wonders, and signs, which God did by him in the midst of you, as ye yourselves also know:

23. [d] Him being delivered (into your hands) by the determinate counsel, and foreknowledge of God, (declaring by his Prophets, that he should lay down his life for sinners,) ye have taken, and by wicked hands have crucified and slain:

24. (And he is that very person) whom God hath raised up (from the grave,) having loosed the pains (or bands) of death (as you may be assured he hath done,) because it was impossible that he (who had life in himself, John 5. 26. and the promise of a speedy resurrection, ver. 25.) should be holden of it.

25. For David speaketh (thus, not of himself, but) concerning him, (Psal. 16. 8, &c.) I foresaw the Lord always before my face; for he is on my right hand, that I should not be moved:

26. Therefore did my heart rejoice, and my tongue was glad; moreover also, [e] my flesh shall rest in hope,

27. Because (or that) thou wilt not leave my soul in hell, (Gr. hades, i. e. my life in the grave;) neither wilt thou suffer thy holy One to see corruption.

28. Thou hast made known to me the ways of life, thou hast made me full of joy with thy countenance.

29. Men and brethren, let me freely speak to you of the Patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his sepulchre is (still seen) with us to this day; (from whence his body never rising, this cannot personally belong to him.)

30. Therefore being a Prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ (from the dead) to sit upon his throne.

31. He (I say) seeing this before, spake of the resurrection of Christ ('s body thus,) That his soul was not (to be) left in hell, (i. e. the grave,) neither his flesh did (should) see corruption.

32. This Jesus (I say) hath God raised up, whereof we all are witnesses:

33. Therefore being by the right hand of God exalted, (Gr. exalted to the right hand of God,) and having [f] received of the Father the promise of the Holy Ghost, he hath shed forth this (gift, of) which you now see, and hear (the effects.)

34. For (this passage, which I am about to cite, cannot belong to) [g] David (himself, seeing he) is not (yet) ascended into the heavens; but he saith himself (of Christ,) The Lord said to my Lord, [h] Sit thou on my right hand,

35. Until I make thy foes thy footstool.

36. Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly, that (by this exaltation of him to his right hand,) [i] God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord (of all things, Chap. 10. 36.) and Christ, (i. e. the King of Israel, John 1. 50.)

37. Now when they heard this, they were pricked (or filled with sorrow) in their hearts (for this sin,) and said to Peter, and to the rest of the Apostles, Men and brethren, what shall we do (to obtain the pardon of so great a crime?)

38. Then Peter said to them, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the [k] name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of (your) sins, (which by this baptism will be washed away, Chap. 22. 16.) and (then) ye (also) shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost.

39. For the promise (of him, mentioned, Joel 2.) is (made) to you, and to your children, and (not to them only, but also) to all that are afar off, (i. e. the Gentiles,) even (to) as many as the Lord our God shall call.

40. And with many other words did he testify, and exhort (them to repentance,) saying, Save yourselves from (the evils coming on) this untoward generation.

41. Then they that gladly received the word, were baptized; and the same day there were added to them (of the Church) about three thousand souls, (i. e. persons.)

42. And they continued stedfastly in the Apostles doctrine, and (in) fellowship (with them, and one another, 1 John 1. 3, 7.) and in [l] breaking of bread, and in prayers.

43. And fear came upon every soul, (that was acquainted with these things,) and many wonders and signs were done by the Apostles.

44. And all that believed [m] were together, and had [n] all things common,

45. And sold their possessions and goods, and parted them to all men as every man had need.

46. And they continued daily with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread from house to house, did eat their meat with gladness and singleness of heart, (or sincere liberality one towards another)

47. Praising God, and having favour with all the people: And the Lord added to the Church daily such as should be [o] saved, (Gr. the saved.)

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. II.

Ver. 1. [a] Καὶ ἐν τῷ συμπληροῦσθαι, And when the day of pentecost was fully come, they were, ὁμοθυμαδὸν ἐπὶ τὸ αὐτὸ, with one accord in one place.] Here the critical Notes are these: (1.) That πληροῦσθαι, and συμπληροῦσθαι, when they relate to time, signify only the coming of that time. See Dr. Hammond. But Dr. Lightfoot here more critically obſerves, that the phraſe hath a particular reſpect to the words of the inſtitution of the feaſt of pentecoſt, Lev. 23. 15. where it is ſaid, You ſhall count to you from the morrow after the ſabbath, (that is, from the morrow of the firſt day of unleavened bread, which always was a ſabbath, becauſe no ſervile work was to be done in it; or from the 16th of Niſan) ſeven ſabbaths, תְּמִימֹת, compleat, ὁλοκλήρους, ſaith the Seventy, even to the morrow after the ſabbath ſhall ye number fifty days. Now it is to be noted from R. Solomon, that this account of the ſeven weeks complete, was to begin at the evening: They reckoned, ſaith Maimonides, from the night of the ſixteenth of Niſan; for elſe the weeks would not be complete; and ſo this day after the ſabbath was none of the forty-nine, which made ſeven ſabbaths complete; but that even and Sunday made the firſt day of the firſt week, and ſo Friday even and Saturday the forty-ninth, and Saturday evening and the Lord's-day the fiftieth; and ſo on that day pentecoſt was fully come, as our tranſlation truly ſaith; ſo that the evening beginning the account, pentecoſt was on the fiftieth day; but the day was not complete till the fifty-firſt.

So that two things may be noted for the dignity and honour of this day, which the Lord hath made: That on this day he roſe from the dead, and became the firſt-fruits of them that ſlept: And, (2.) that on this day he poured forth the Holy Ghoſt on his Apoſtles, and ſent them forth to ſpeak the wonderful works of God to men of every language and nation. It alſo is obſervable, that as the confuſion of tongues in Babel ſpread idolatry throughout the world, and made men loſe the knowledge of God and true religion, ſo God provided by the gifts of tongues at Sion, to repair the knowledge of himſelf among thoſe nations.

2*dly*, Dr. Hammond, Note on Chap. 1. 15. ſaith, that ἐπὶ τὸ αὐτὸ, ſignifies aſſembling for the ſervice of God; but though this ſometimes happens ſo to be, as when men meet, ἐπὶ τὸ αὐτὸ, together to pray, or celebrate the Lord's ſupper, as 1 Cor. 11. 20. yet the phraſe ſignifies only to meet ὁμοῦ, ἢ εἰς τὸ αὐτὸν τόπον, together, or in the ſame place, without any relation to the buſineſs of the meeting: and indeed I might as well argue that it ſignifies meeting after religious exerciſes are ended, becauſe it is ſaid 1 Cor. 7. 5. Let them not ſeparate, except for prayer and faſting, and then let them come again, ἐπὶ τὸ αὐτὸ, together. See Deut. 22. 10. Luke 17. 35. Acts 3. 1.

But the great important queſtion here is this, Whether they all here ſignify all the hundred and twenty, mentioned, Chap. 1. 15. as Grotius and Dr. Lightfoot think, or only the twelve, as Dr. Hammond in his paraphraſe? This is a queſtion of ſome importance; for if the whole hundred and twenty be here intended, the cloven tongues muſt ſit upon every one of them, as well as upon the twelve Apoſtles, and ſo muſt give them a right, though not an equal power, to be Chriſt's witneſſes; for a tongue ſat upon every one of them, ver. 3. who were met together in the houſe.

The arguments of Dr. Lightfoot ſeem only probable; but this is certain, that there were many beſides the Apoſtles, of their company, who had theſe gifts of the Holy Ghoſt; for when the Apoſtles come to appoint ſeven Deacons, they command the aſſembly to look out among them ſeven men full of the Holy Ghoſt, and wiſdom; there muſt therefore be many ſuch perſons among them, known to them by the exerciſe of theſe gifts, who therefore muſt have received them either at this time, or when they praying, that God would ſtretch forth his hands to heal, and to work ſigns and wonders by the name of Jeſus, were all filled with the Holy Ghoſt, and ſpake the word with great freedom, Acts 4. 30, 31. Now if theſe gifts were given then to others for this end, we may reaſonably conceive, that when that great promiſe of him was to be fulfilled, they might be given to others alſo. And if we conſider what multitudes of ſeveral languages were then met, and even living at Jeruſalem, it ſeems but rational to conceive this gift ſhould be conferred on many, to enable them to diſcourſe intelligibly for their converſion in the ſeveral ſynagogues, in which men of ſo many diverſe languages muſt meet for divine ſervice. Moreover, ſeeing the Apoſtles themſelves imparted the ſame gift by the impoſition of hands, to thoſe whom they ordained miniſters in particular churches, it ſeems unreaſonable to think, that thoſe extraordinary perſons, who had been all along in company with Chriſt and his Apoſtles, and were to be the great preachers of the Goſpel in ſeveral parts of the world, ſhould not be enriched with the ſame gifts. And,

Laſtly,

Laſtly, This ſeems to have obtained as a tradition, or a received opinion, in the Church; for, ſaith St. (a) Jerom, when Paula came to Sion, they ſhewed her the place where the Holy Ghoſt fell upon the hundred and twenty, to compleat the prophecy of Joel: And St. (b) Chryſoſtom and Oecumenius on the place, ſay, he fell not only upon the Apoſtles, but alſo upon the hundred and twenty; and that St. Luke would not have ſaid, πάντες, all, when the Apoſtles were preſent, εἰ μὴ καὶ ἄλλοι μείζονα, if others alſo had not been made partakers of the Holy Ghoſt.

Concerning this gift of tongues, let it be farther noted:

Firſt, That they miſtake the matter who imagine that the Apoſtles only ſpake in their own mother tongue; and that the hearers, of what tongue ſoever they were, underſtood them as well as if they had ſpoken in their native language: for, as Greg. Nazianzen well notes, this makes the miracle to be wrought rather upon the hearers than upon the Apoſtles; it alſo contradicts the words of the text, which ſaith, the Apoſtles began to ſpeak, ἑτέραις γλώσσαις, with other tongues, not as the Spirit gave the auditors ability to hear, but as he gave the Apoſtles utterance. Nor could the ſeveral auditors hear the Apoſtles ſpeak, τῇ ἰδίᾳ διαλέκτῳ, in their own proper dialect, unleſs they had ſpoken in the language of thoſe nations who heard them. Nor,

2*dly*, Are we to admit of the criticiſm of thoſe who, inſtead of οἱ κατοικοῦντες Ἰουδαίαν, the dwellers in Judea, ver. 9. read οἱ κατοικοῦντες Ἰνδίαν, the dwellers in India, becauſe, ſay they, it was no miracle for the men of Judea to hear the Apoſtles ſpeaking in their language. For, (1.) this criticiſm is confuted by the following Verſe, which ſaith, All thoſe men were Jews and proſelytes. And, (2.) the Jews are mentioned only, to ſhew that men of all nations heard them ſpeak in their own language; and in that conſiſts the miracle, not that the Jews, but that every nation heard and underſtood them.

Note alſo, that the nations here reckoned up, living ſome in Aſia, ſome in Africa, ſome in Europe, are ſaid, though not without an hyperbole, to be men of every nation under heaven, ver. 5. And this phraſe is not only uſed in the ſcriptures, as when God ſaith, he would make the dread of the Jews fall upon every nation under heaven, Deut. 2. 25. but it is frequent in Jewiſh writers, who lived about this time; for (c) Philo often ſpeaks of the Jews dwelling, παντα χόθεν ἀ οἰκουμένης, every where through the whole earth; and ſays, that (d) πᾶσα οἰκουμένη, almoſt the whole earth was inhabited by them. Agrippa alſo in Joſephus ſaith, Οὐ γάρ ἐστιν ἐπὶ ἀ οἰκουμένης δῆμος, there is not a people upon earth among whom ſome Jews do not inhabit. See the Note on Coloſſ. 1. 23. Note,

4*thly*, That it ſeems incredible, that they who ſaid, theſe men are full of new wine, ver. 13. ſhould be ſo fooliſh as to think, that new wine ſhould enable them to ſpeak all languages, or to declare the wonderful works of God; it is therefore well conjectured by Dr. Lightfoot, that they who ſaid this were men of Judea, who, not underſtanding what the Apoſtles ſpake in other languages, imagined they had babled ſome fooliſh gibberiſh they could make nothing of, as drunken men are uſed to do. Note,

5*thly*, That St. Peter well confuteth this ſurmiſe, by ſaying, ver. 15. It is not yet the third hour of the day, or nine of the clock, becauſe, before that time, eſpecially on the ſabbath, and other feaſt days, the Jews were not wont ſo much as to taſte any thing of meat or drink, as Dr. Lightfoot here ſhews. And, ſaith (e) Joſephus, by their tradition, they were not to eat on their ſabbaths till the ſixth hour.

Ver. 17, 18. [b] And it ſhall come to paſs in the laſt days, I will pour my ſpirit upon all fleſh, &c.] For explication of theſe two verſes, let it be obſerved:

Firſt, That even Kimchi owns, that achaire cen in the Prophet Joel, is here all one with beacharith hayamim, in the laſt days, in the Prophet Iſaiah, Chap. 2. 2, 3. where is a plain prophecy of the exaltation of Chriſt's kingdom, and of the flowing in of the nations to it; and ſo St. Peter hath truly rendered what is in the Prophet afterwards, by ἐν ταῖς ἐσχάταις ἡμέραις, in the laſt days; and ſo it follows, that as there was no time before in which this promiſe fully was made good, ſo are we not to expect any after times for the completion of it. Note,

2*dly*, That as the words all fleſh muſt be reſtrained to all men, they only being capable of ſpiritual gifts, as when the Pſalmiſt ſaith, Pſal. 145. 20. Lord

(a) Ubi ſuper centum viginti credentium Spiritus Sanctus cecidiſſet. Epitaph. Paulæ, F. 61. M.

Let all fleſh bleſs his holy name; and the Prophet, Iſa. 66. 23. All fleſh ſhall come, and worſhip before me, ſaith the Lord; ſo muſt all men be here reſtrained to ſome of all ranks of men; as when Hazael is ſaid to bring to the Prophet Eliſha, Col Tob all the good of Damaſcus, 2 Kings 8. 9. i. e. ſome of every good thing. So Chriſt healed πᾶσαν νόσον, all kinds of diſeaſes, Matth. 4. 23. See Claſſ. Phil. S. p. 437. So that the phraſe includes all ſorts of men without excluſion of age, young and old; without excluſion of ſex, viz. ſons and daughters; without excluſion of conditions, ſervants and maidens; without excluſion of nation, Jews or Gentiles, even as many as the Lord ſhall call, ver. 39. This promiſe being fulfilled as well upon the Samaritans, Chap. 8. 17. and upon Cornelius and his kinsfolk, Acts 10. as upon the Jews; and ſo this promiſe contradicts the Jewiſh rules, that prophecy belonged only to Iſraelites, and to them dwelling only in Judea, and to them only being Muchanim, fitly prepared for it; that is, ſay they, upon thoſe who are wiſe, and valiant, and rich, and who are free from ſorrow. See all this in Dr. Pocock on Joel 2. 28. Moreover, this effuſion of this Spirit upon all fleſh, as it denotes an inexhauſtible fulneſs in that Spirit, who was to fill all men with all diverſity of gifts, as the glory of God, and the good of the Church required; ſo the effuſion of it, upon all the ſeveral ranks of men and women mentioned, is a full confutation of all the Jewiſh rules and gloſſes, requiring ſuch qualifications as they do, to make men capable of the gifts here promiſed. Again, theſe gifts being here ſtiled prophecy, viſions, dreams, it is apparent, that the promiſe of diſtributing them to all fleſh, could be meant only of the diſtribution of them to ſome of all ranks of men; for it being never ſo, that all men individually had the gifts of prophecy, dreams, viſions, or revelations, 1 Cor. 12. 29, 30. this could be never promiſed; it being certain, that God did punctually fulfil his promiſe.

Ver. 19, 20. [c] And I will ſhew wonders in heaven above, and ſigns in the earth beneath, blood and fire, and vapour of ſmoak.] Τέρατα καὶ σημεῖα, The firſt relating to ſigns in the heaven, the ſecond to thoſe on earth. See Note on Heb. 2. 4. So (f) Joſephus ſpeaking of the calamities of the Jews, mentions περὶ ταύτης σημεῖα καὶ τέρατα, the ſigns and wonders that preceeded them, Pref. ad Bell. Jud. p. 708. C. καὶ ἐναργῆ τέρατα, the prodigies which manifeſtly portended their deſtruction, and the dreadful thundrings and lightnings, καὶ μυκήματα σεισμῶν τε γῆς ἄκαιρα, and the vaſt earthquakes, which in the judgment of all men portended no ſmall evil to them; See Note on Matth. 24. 7, 8. and on Luke 21. 11. The blood very probably relates to that great effuſion of blood which was then made, partly by their continual conflicts with other nations, and the inſults of other nations upon them; the wars betwixt them and the Samaritans, Joſeph. Antiq. lib. 20. c. 5. betwixt them and the Syrians at Caſarea, Ibid. c. 6. p. 695. betwixt them and the Greeks and Syrians, l. 18. c. 12. p. 649, 650. the ſedition betwixt them and the Greeks at Alexandria, Antiq. l. 19. c. 4. the vaſt ſlaughter of them there, mentioned by Philo in his oration againſt Flaccus, where τὰς μὲ ἡμέρας ἐν αἵμασι διῆσαν. and by Joſephus, in almoſt all the cities round about them; and partly by the Zealots and Sicarii, of which (g) Joſephus ſpeaks very tragically; the fire here mentioned, may relate either to the fiery meteors ſpoken of by Joſephus, viz. The flaming ſword hanging over the city, and the fiery comet pointing down upon it for a year; the light that ſhone upon the temple, and the altar in the night, as if it had been noon-day, and the terrible lightnings now mentioned; or to the continual burnings of their ſynagogues, their oratories, their cities, villages, and houſes, mentioned by Philo, as done at Alexandria by Flaccus; by (h) Joſephus, as done there by Tiberius; in Galilee and in Judea, by Ceſtius and Veſpaſian; from whence muſt ariſe pillars of ſmoke.

Of the import of the ſun's being darkened, and the moon turned into blood, ſee the Note on Matth. 24. 20. And of the wonderful preſervation of thoſe who then called upon the name of the Lord, as the Septuagint hath it of the εὐαγγελιζόμενοι, i. e. of thoſe who had embraced the Goſpel: See the Note on Ver. 12.

Ver. 23. [d] Him being delivered by the determinate counſel and foreknowledge of God, τῇ ὡρισμένῃ βουλῇ, καὶ προγνώσει τοῦ Θεοῦ.] Here note, (1.) That in Scripture, that is ſaid to be done by the determinate counſel of God, which is done according to what he had written and declared in his word, all his predictions concerning things future being declarations, and determinations that they ſhall come to paſs; The Son of man goeth, as it is written of him, ſaith St. Matthew, Chap. 26. 24. κατὰ τὸ ὡρισμένον, as it is determined by God concerning him, Luke 22. 22. Note, (2.) That in order to the completion of this prediction, it was neceſſary that God ſhould ſuffer Chriſt to fall into the hands of wicked men, for they could have no power over him, unleſs it were thus given them from above, John 19. 11. and that he ſhould lay no reſtraints upon upon them, from executing their malicious deſigns upon him; and this unreſtrained permiſſion is all that is, or can be ſignified by God's delivering Chriſt up into their hands. Note, (3.) That this permiſſion doth neither hinder, nor abate their ſin in crucifying Chriſt; for, notwithſtanding this, 'tis plainly ſaid, that they by wicked hands had crucified him: Hence therefore it doth only follow, that God foreſaw what he foretold, that Chriſt would ſuffer by the hands of wicked men. (2.) That when their malice ſhould incline them to bring him to theſe ſufferings, he had determined not to interpoſe by his immediate power to hinder them from doing it, but rather to permit them ſo to do: But then it muſt be noted that every divine permiſſion of what God hath forbidden men to do, and of what he requires them to repent of when they have done it, as God doth by Peter here, is a permiſſion of what he would not have done by them, whom he forbids to do it, and a permiſſion of that which cannot be done by them without ſin, for of that only are we called to repent. Hence therefore it muſt follow, that this foreknowledge and determinate counſel of God can be no intimation of his will, that any man ſhould do what he forbids him to do, but only of his will to permit the action to be done; for God cannot will that any one ſhould do what he forbids, i. e. wills he ſhould not do. Nor, 2dly, Can it lay on any perſon a neceſſity of doing what he thus determines to permit, for then it muſt remove the ſin, becauſe it takes away the freedom of the action, and renders it not mine, but his that laid upon me the unavoidable neceſſity of doing; it only doth ſuppoſe that God can ſee and foretel what man, not hindered by him, but left to his own inclinations, will do; and if that foreſight hath any influence upon the will to make the action neceſſary, then, (1.) Not only all our actions muſt be neceſſary, they being all foreſeen, but alſo God muſt foreſee that they are neceſſary, for he foreſees them as they are in their cauſes, and doth not by foreſeeing make them, i. e. cauſe them ſo to be, ſince that muſt neceſſarily make him the cauſe of all the ſinful actions he foreſees.

Ver. 26, 27. [e] My fleſh ſhall reſt in hope, 27. that thou wilt not leave τὴν ψυχήν μου εἰς ᾅδου, neither wilt thou ſuffer thy holy One to ſee corruption.] That is, ſaith Dr. Hammond, I am confident that though I die, yet ſhalt thou not leave me ſo long dead, as that my body ſhall be putrified; or, thou wilt not leave my life in the grave, or in the ſtate of death. To explain and confirm this interpretation, let it be conſidered,

2*dly*, That when a man dies, his life, in the ſcripture-phraſe, is ſaid to go down to Hades, to the pit, or into the houſe of ſilence; and when he is ſnatched from the gates of death, his life is ſaid to be brought or lifted up from Hades, or the grave; and therefore when their bodies remain unquickned in the grave, their life may properly be ſaid to be left in it. Thus Jacob ſaith, Gen. 37. 35. I will go down to Sheol to my ſon mourning, κατάγω σύν πένθει εἰς ᾅδου, I will deſcend to hell, ſaith the Seventy, lebi Cheburtha to the ſepulchre: So Jonathan, that I may be in the ſtate of the dead, as my ſon is. Uziel* again; and that to bring down his gray hairs, was to bring down his life to the grave, is evident, becauſe when Judas repeats theſe very words, Chap. 44. 29. and 31. he gives this reaſon of them, becauſe ἡ ψυχὴ αὐτοῦ ἐκκρέμαται ἐν τῇ τούτου ψυχῇ, his life depended on the lad's life. So 1 Sam. 2. 6. the Lord, ſaith Hannah, killeth, and he maketh alive, καταγάγει εἰς ᾅδου καὶ ἀνάγει, he bringeth down to Hades, and he raiſeth up again; where note, that theſe words are by (1) Joſephus uſed as a proof of the reſurrection; and that the Chaldee paraphraſt was of the ſame opinion, his words teſtify, for thus he renders them, he killeth, and he hath ſaid, we ſhall live again; he bringeth down to hades, and he will after bring us up to life eternal. So again, Job 7. 9. if a man, καταβήσεται εἰς ᾅδου, ſhall go down to hades, ſhall he riſe up again? And, Job 33. 18. we find theſe very words, if God will teach him diſcipline, he will deliver, נפשו מבני שחת, his life from the pit, from corruption, ſaith the Chaldee, ἀπὸ θανάτου, from death, ſaith the Septuagint, and ver. 22. if his life draweth nigh to the pit, לשחת נפשו, ἡ ζωὴ αὐτῆς εἰς θανατον, to death, and he ſay, redeem me from going down, שחת, into corruption, εἰς ᾅδου, to hades, he ſhall return to the days of his youth. And Jonah, who was a type of Chriſt in this very thing, Matth. 12. 39, 40. ſaith, when, naphſhi my ſoul failed in me, taal miſhechatz chaii, thou cauſeſt my life to aſcend out of the pit, Jon. 2. 6, 7. In the Pſalmiſt this expreſſion is very frequent, O Lord, ſaith he, ἀνήγαγες ἐξ ᾅδου τὴν ψυχήν μου, thou haſt brought up, min ſheol naphſhi, my life from hell, or hades, thou haſt preſerved me from going down into the pit, Pſal. 30. 3. And again, Pſal. 86. 13. thou haſt delivered my life, τὴν ψυχήν μου, from the nethermoſt hell, or hades, miſheol haragitha, from ſheol beneath, or from the low earth, ſaith the Chaldee, from the ſtate of death, Ainſworth, from the ſepulchre, I. T. into which Chriſt is ſaid to have deſcended, Eph. 4. 9. See the Note there; and into which David, had he then died, would only have deſcended, and not into hell properly ſo called. Pſal. 88. 3. Chajah leſheol, my life draweth nigh to hell; ἡ ψυχή μου τῷ ᾅδῃ, to hades; and, Pſal. 94. 14. If the Lord had not been my helper, my life had dwelt in ſilence, ἐν ᾅδῃ, in the grave, the houſe of ſilence, as appears from thoſe words, Pſal. 115. 17. the dead cannot praiſe thee, nor, οἱ καταβαίνοντες εἰς ᾅδου, they that go down into hades, Seventy, into ſilence, Hebr. into beth cheborah, the houſe of the ſepulchre, Chaldee, and Pſal. 89. 48. what man is he that liveth, and ſhall not ſee death? ſhall he deliver his ſoul from the hand of hell, τὴν ψυχὴν αὐτῆς ἐκ χειρὸς ᾅδου, his life from the hand of hades, i. e. the grave? ſhall he be delivered from the angel of death, ſhall he not deſcend into the houſe of the ſepulchre? Parallel to which are the words of Hezekiah, Iſa. 38. 18. οἱ ἐν ᾅδῃ, they that are in hades, or ſheol, ſhall not praiſe, neither ſhall the dead bleſs thee. So Tob. 3. 10. I ſhall bring the old age of my father with ſorrow, εἰς ᾅδου, that is εἰς τάφον to the grave, Chap. 6. 14. So David ſaith to Solomon of Joab and Shimei, καταξεις εἰς ᾅδου, Thou ſhalt bring down their gray hairs to the grave, 1 Kings 2. 6, 9.

Note, 3*dly*, That ſheol throughout the Old Teſtament, and ᾅδης in the Septuagint, anſwering to it, ſignify not the place of puniſhment, or of the ſouls of bad men only, but the grave only, or the place of death, appears,

1*ſt*, From the root of it ſhaal, which ſignifies to aſk, crave, and require, becauſe it craves for all men, Prov. 30. 16. and will let no man eſcape its hands, Pſal. 89. 48. it is that ſheol or hades whither we are all going, Eccleſ. 9. 10. The Hebrew ſheol, ſaith Buxtorf, ſignifies in general the place of human bodies, when they are ſeparated from their ſouls, ᾅδου τοπὸν γοερὸν, exponunt Græci, the Greeks ſay, that hades is the place of the dead, ſaith Dr. Windet; it is, ὁ τάφος, ὁ τύμβος, the tomb or ſepulchre, ſaith Phavorinus: thus, to go to the gates of hades in Homer, is, ſaith the Scholiaſt, περίφρασις θανάτου a deſcription of death: He ſhall knock at the gates of hades, ſaith Theocritus, τύπτεις ἀποθανεῖν, he ſhall die, ſaith the Scholiaſt. See the Note on Matth. 16. 18.

2*dly*, Becauſe it is the place to which the good as well as the bad go, for they whoſe ſouls go upwards, deſcend into it, thither went Jacob, Gen. 37. 35. there Job deſired to be, Chap. 14. 13. for he knew that ſheol was his houſe, Chap. 17. 13. and that to deſcend into the duſt, was to deſcend into hades, where Olympiodorus brings him in ſpeaking thus, ἡ κοινὸν ἅπασιν ἀνθρώποις τὸ ἀποθανεῖν; οὐχὶ ᾅδης ἅπασιν ὁ οἶκος; is not death common to all men? is not hades the houſe of all men? Hezekiah expected to be there after he went hence, for he ſaid, I ſhall go to the gates of hades, Iſa. 38. 30. that is, ſaith Jerom, to thoſe gates of which the Pſalmiſt ſpeaks, ſaying, Thou wilt lift me up from the gates of death. The ancient Greeks aſſigned one hades to all that died, and therefore ſay, πανδεκὴς ὁμῶ θνητῶς ᾅδης δέχεται, Hades receives all mortal men together, εἰς κοινὸν ᾅδου πάντες ἥξουσι βέλτοι, all men ſhall go to hades.

3*dly*, Had the penmen of the Old Teſtament meant by hades any receptacle of ſouls, they could not truly have declared there was no wiſdom or knowledge in ſheol, Eccleſ. 9. 10. no remembrance of God there, Pſal. 6. 6. no praiſing him in ſheol, Iſa. 38. 18. for thoſe heathens who looked upon it as the receptacle of ſouls, held it to be a place in which they would be puniſhed or rewarded.

Seeing then καταβιβάσαι τὴν ψυχὴν εἰς ᾅδου, is to bring down down the life to the grave, ἀνάγειν ψυχὴν εἰς ᾅδην, is to bring the life up from the grave; μὴ ἐγκαταλείπειν ψυχὴν μου εἰς ᾅδην, may very properly here import, not to leave the life of Chriſt in the grave, but to revive his dead body, by giving a new life and motion to his animal ſpirits, now dormant in it, and a re-union of his ſoul to it; and ſo this firſt part of the ſentence, thou wilt not leave my life in the grave, will be in ſenſe the ſame with the enſuing words, thou wilt not ſuffer thy holy One to ſee corruption; as are thoſe words of the Pſalmiſt, what man is he that ſhall not ſee death? the ſame with the following words, ſhall he deliver his life from the hand of Hades? and thoſe of Job, Chap. 17. 18. the grave is my houſe, I have made my bed in the darkneſs; and thoſe of Elihu, Chap. 33. 28. He will deliver his life from going down into the pit, and his life ſhall ſee the light; and thoſe of David, Thou haſt brought up my ſoul from the grave, thou haſt kept me alive, that I ſhould not go down into the pit, Pſal. 30. 3. My life draweth nigh to the grave, I am counted with them that go down into the pit, Pſal. 88. 3. See Pſal. 115. 17. Iſa. 38. 10, 11, 12. And that this muſt be the true import of the words, will be ſtill farther evident,

1*ſt,* From the precedent words, my fleſh ſhall reſt in hope, that thou wilt not leave my ſoul in hell, it being a very proper proſopopœia to bring his dead fleſh, hoping it ſhall be revived, but not ſo proper to introduce it, hoping that its ſoul ſhall not be left in hell, or in the place of the damned; and alſo from the following words, thou wilt not leave my ſoul in hell, for thou wilt ſhew me the path of life; for as life is oppoſed to death, ſo ſhewing to one dead, or in danger of it, the path of life, muſt ſignify the preſerving him from death, or the reſtoring him to life when dead. And,

2*dly,* From the conſideration of the perſon to whom theſe words do, in the primary ſenſe, belong; for being ſpoken by King David, when his life was continually in his hand, and he was ſtill in danger of death from a perſecuting Saul, they in reſpect of him can only ſignify his hope, that God would not give him over unto death; and ſo in reference to the Son of David will very naturally import, that tho' thou ſuffereſt men to kill me, and lay me in the grave, yet wilt thou raiſe me from the dead. In a word, this phraſe is by St. Peter interpreted of our Lord's reſurrection; for ſo he ſpeaks, Him whom you by wicked hands have ſlain, God hath raiſed up, looſing the bands of death, ver. 23, 24. for David ſaith of him, thou wilt not leave my ſoul in hell, i. e. my life in the grave; and it is oppoſed to David's continuing in the grave, and in the ſtate of death, thus, David is both dead and buried, and his body lies ſtill in the ſepulchre, he therefore could not ſay this of himſelf, but being a Prophet, and ſo foreſeeing that God would raiſe up Jeſus from the dead, he ſaid this of the reſurrection of Chriſt, thou wilt not leave my ſoul in hell, or my life in the grave, See the Appendix to this verſe.

Ver. 31. See Additions N° 3.

Ver. 33. [f] He receiving the promiſe of the Spirit from the Father;] i. e. the Spirit promiſed by him, and therefore ſtiled his promiſe, Luke 24. 49. and received from him by Chriſt, who, as Mediator betwixt God and man, is to convey all bleſſings to man, from that Father of light from whom comes every good and perfect gift; and thus this one Mediator betwixt God and man, the man Chriſt Jeſus, 1 Tim. 2. 5. is fitly ſaid to have received this Spirit from the Father, tho' as to his divine nature he alſo is the Spirit of Chriſt, 1 Pet. 1. 11. And he receives of his to give unto us, John 16. 12. See the Note there; yea he hath ſo received him as to be the Lord of the Spirit, 2 Cor. 3. 18. and of all his adminiſtrations, 1 Cor. 12. 5. So that all Chriſtians ever did receive him according to the meaſure of the gift of Chriſt, Eph. 4. 7.

Ver. 34. [g] David is not aſcended into heaven;] i. e. with his body, as Enoch and Elias did, but that Jeſus, who is the Son, and Lord of David, and was to ſit upon his throne, ver. 33. and reign over the houſe of Jacob for ever, Luke 1. 32, 33. muſt have aſcended thither; for thus did David propheſy concerning him, when he ſaid, the Lord ſaid to my Lord, &c. of which words ſee the Notes on Matth. 22. 46. Heb. 1. 13.

Ibid. [h] Sit thou on my right hand.] Chriſt's ſeſſion at the right hand of God, imports, (1.) The unſpeakable felicity which Chriſt, according to his human nature, now enjoys; for God's right hand is repreſented as the place of everlaſting happineſs and joy, as in thoſe words, Pſal. 16. 11. In thy preſence there is fulneſs of joy, at thy right hand there are pleaſures for evermore; and hence the Pſalmiſt, having propheſied of our Lord's reſurrection, adds theſe words, thou wilt make me full of joy with thy countenance, ver. 28. (2.) The glorious Majeſty to which our Saviour is advanced; God's right hand being ſtiled in ſcripture, the right hand of Majeſty, Heb. 1. 3. and as the moſt honourable place among men is the right hand, and Solomon ſhewed his mother Bathſheba the higheſt honour, when he made her ſit on the right hand of his throne, 1 Kings 2. 19. So hath the Father advanced Chriſt's human nature:

ture to the higheſt dignity, by cauſing it to ſit on the right hand of the throne of Majeſty in heaven, Heb. 8. 1. (3.) It ſignifies that fulneſs of power with which he is inveſted over all things in heaven and earth, Matth. 28. 18. for ſo the Scripture repreſents the greatneſs of his divine power by the ſtrength of his right hand, Pſal. 20. 6.——89. 13. And hence our Lord is ſaid to ſit on the right hand of power, Matth. 27. 64. (4.) Becauſe princes ſit on their thrones to execute judgment, and exert that dominion which God hath given them over their ſubjects; therefore this ſeſſion at the right hand of God imports his authority to judge both the quick and dead, as being by it conſtituted Lord of the dead, and of the living, Rom. 14. 9——12.

Ver. 36. [i] God hath made the ſame Jeſus both Lord and Chriſt.] Here the word Chriſt ſignifies the Meſſiah, according to his regal office, in which ſenſe he is ſtill ſtiled by the Chaldee paraphraſts, and Jewiſh writers, משיחא מלכא Meſſias, or Chriſt the King, as (k) Buxtorf ſhews in the word Meſſias; under which title the Prophets frequently ſpeak of him as of a King to reign over God's people, Pſal. 24. 7.——45. 1. Iſa. 32. 1. Zach. 9. 9. and not the Jews only, but the whole Eaſt under that title did expect him. See the Note on Luke 2. 38.

Ver. 38, 39. [k] Be baptized in the name of the Lord Jeſus, and ye ſhall receive the gift of the Holy Ghoſt, for the promiſe is to you, and to your children.] Here let it be obſerved, 1ſt, That St. Peter exhorts the Jews to be baptized, not in the name of the Father, and the Holy Ghoſt, but only in the name of Jeſus, becauſe they did already believe in God the Father, and in the Holy Ghoſt, and profeſs obedience to the laws of God, and of the Holy Ghoſt ſpeaking by the mouth of his Prophets.

2dly, That when 'tis ſaid, ye ſhall receive the Holy Ghoſt, 'tis not intended that every one of them upon their baptiſm, ſhould be endued with the extraordinary gifts of tongues, and prophecy; for it is manifeſt from the Hiſtory of the Acts, and eſpecially from Chap. 6. 3. that he was given only to ſome among them, though that was for the benefit of all; and hence is that enquiry of St. Paul, 1 Cor. 12. 29, 30. are all Prophets? do all ſpeak with tongues? But the meaning of St. Peter is, that he ſhould fall upon ſome of all ranks of them, according to the true purport of the words of Joel. Note, 3dly, That theſe words will not prove a right of infants to receive baptiſm; the promiſe mentioned here, being that only of the Holy Ghoſt, mentioned, ver. 16, 17, 18. and ſo relating only to the times of the miraculous effuſion of the Holy Ghoſt, and to thoſe perſons, who by age were made capable of theſe extraordinary gifts.

Ver. 42. [l] And in breaking of bread.] I ſee no neceſſity to think theſe words relate to the receiving of the Sacrament; not from the phraſe of breaking bread, for this is uſed by the Evangeliſt when they relate Chriſt's miraculous feeding of the multitude, Matth. 15. 36. Mark 8. 19, 20. and in the 46th Verſe of this Chapter, they are ſaid, to break bread from houſe to houſe, and ſo to eat their meat with ſingleneſs of heart, where it can only ſignify their friendly converſe with one another. But, (2.) Allowing this to relate to the receiving of the ſacrament, and not to their breaking bread at this feaſt of pentecoſt, either wine was alſo conſecrated with the bread, or it was not; if it was, then muſt bread ſignify, by a ſynecdoche (l) very uſual in the ſcripture, bread and drink; and therefore, when that drink is wine, as in the ſacrament it is, bread and wine; and then, if both were conſecrated, both might be diſtributed, according to our Saviour's precept, Drink ye all of this; if it was not, the officiator, even according to the principles of the Church of Rome, muſt be guilty of ſacrilege. See the Notes on Luke 24. 30. Acts 20. 7.

Ver. 44. [m] They were ὁμοῦ τὸ αὐτὸ, all together.] There being added to the one hundred and twenty, three thouſand ſouls, ver. 41. it ſeemeth inconvenient to ſay, they were all together in one place, unleſs it were in one of thoſe apartments in the towers of the temple, which, ſaith (m) Joſephus, would receive an hundred beds; and therefore it ſeems better to refer this to their communion in the ſame action, in which ſenſe all the Jews are ſaid to build ὁμοῦ τὸ αὐτὸ, together, Ezra 4. 3. though they were far ſeparated from one another, Neh. 4. 19. and Joab and Abner's men to be ὁμοῦ τὸ αὐτὸ, together, 2 Sam. 2. 12. though one were on the one, the other on the other ſide of the pool; See Pſal. 4. 9.——49. 2. Iſa. 66. 17. Jer. 6. 12.

Ibid. [n] And had all things common.] Theſe words here, and Chap. 4. 32. do not ſignify that they had no longer any propriety in what belonged to them, for then they could not ſell them afterward, but that they uſed and diſpoſed of them as things common, freely imparting of them to all that had need. And that this making ſale of them was not done by command, St. Peter declares, by telling Ananias, he was under no obligation gation ſo to do, Acts 5. 4. Nor was it ever intended for an example, or precedent to other Chriſtians, as is evident from all the Epiſtles, in which we have frequent mention of the diſtinction betwixt rich and poor; and frequent exhortations to the wealthy to be rich in good works, but not the leaſt intimation that they ought to ſell their poſſeſſions; this being now done on a particular account, either by them who had lands out of Judea, as Barnabas had his in Cyprus, and being reſolved not to return thither, but to cleave to the Apoſtles, could make but little benefit from them there; or elſe in Judea, and therefore they, knowing from our Saviour's prophecy of the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, and from his exhortation, that they were ſhortly to fly from, and quit them to the enemy, were willing to part with their eſtates for the benefit of the Church, before they were ſnatched from them by the enemy.

Ver. 47. ὁ Τὺς σωζομένους, The ſaved.] The Chriſtians are ſo ſtiled elſewhere. So 1 Cor. 1. 18. τοῖς σωζομένοις ἡμῖν, to us the ſaved, Chriſt crucified is the power of God; and when the means of ſalvation, or that grace of God, which brings ſalvation was vouchſafed to them, ſalvation is ſaid to come, Luke 19. 9. Rom. 11. 11. or to be ſent to them, Acts 13. 16.——28. 28. See the Note on Eph. 2. 8. Tit. 3. 5.

CHAP. III.

1. NOW (Gr. and) Peter and John went up together into the temple at the hour of prayer, (being) [a] the ninth hour; (Gr. at the ninth hour of prayer.)

2. And a certain man (who had been) lame from his mother's womb, was carried (thither,) whom they (who brought him) laid daily at the [b] gate of the temple, which is called Beautiful, to aſk alms of them that entred into the temple (by which means he became well known to all who entred into it, ver. 10.)

3. Who ſeeing Peter and John about to go into the temple, aſked (Gr. to receive) an alms (of them.)

4. And Peter faſtening his eyes upon him with John, (to raiſe his expectation of receiving ſome benefit from them,) ſaid (to him,) Look on us;

5. And he gave heed unto (Gr. looked on) them, expecting to receive ſomething of them.

6. Then Peter ſaid (to him,) Silver and gold have I none (to give,) but ſuch as I have (Gr. what I have) give I to thee, (ſaying to thee) In the name of Jeſus Chriſt of Nazareth, riſe up and walk.

7. And he (having ſaid this,) took him by the right hand, and lift him up, (Gr. and taking him by the right hand, he aroſe,) and (for) immediately his feet and ankle bones received ſtrength (to ariſe.)

8. And he leaping up (from his bed) ſtood (up,) and walked, and entred with them into the temple, walking, and leaping, and praiſing God, (according to the prophecy, Iſa. 35. 6. then the lame ſhall leap as the hart.)

9. And all the people ſaw him walking, and (heard him) praiſing God.

10. And they knew that it was he, that ſat for (to beg) alms at the Beautiful gate of the temple, and (therefore) they were filled with wonder and amazement, at that which had happened to him.

11. And as the lame man which was healed, held Peter and John, all the people (preſent) ran together to them, in the porch called Solomon's, greatly wondring (at what was done.)

12. And when Peter ſaw it, he [c] anſwered (or ſpake thus) unto the people, Ye men of Iſrael, why marvel ye at this? or why look ye ſo earneſtly on us, as though by our own power, or [d] holineſs, we had made this man to walk?

13. (This miracle is wholly to be aſcribed to the Lord Jeſus, for be it known to you, that) the God of Abraham, and of Iſaac, and of Jacob, the God of our fathers hath glorified his Son Jeſus, (placing him at the right hand of his Majeſty, in the higheſt heavens, Heb. 1. 3. and giving him all power in heaven and earth, Matth. 28. 18. even that Jeſus) whom ye delivered up (to be crucified,) and denied him (or refuſed him) in the preſence of Pilate, when he was determined to let him go (κεῖνον κρίναντα ἀπολύειν judging him rather fit to be releaſed;)

14. (He, I ſay, would have releaſed him,) But ye [e] denied the holy One, and the juſt, (i. e. him who was truly ſo,) and (inſtead of him) deſired a murderer, (i. e. Barabbas, Luke 23. 19.) to be granted to you.

15. And (ye) killed the [f] Prince of life, whom God hath raiſed from the dead, whereof we are witneſſes;

16. And his name, through (our) [g] faith in his name, hath made this man ſtrong (to walk) whom ye ſee, and know (to have been unable from his birth to go;) yea, the faith which is by him (i. e. which we have in him, or which is efficacious by his power,) hath given him this perfect ſoundneſs in the preſence of you all.

17. And now, brethren, I wot that [h] through ignorance (of his miſſion from God,) ye did it, (i. e. theſe things) as did alſo your rulers (through the like ignorance, ariſing not from want of evidence that he was ſent of God, but from thoſe prejudices which obſtructed their diſcerning it.)

18. But thoſe things which God before had ſhewed by the mouth of all his Prophets, that Chriſt ſhould ſuffer, he hath ſo fulfilled (as that you, through this ignorance, have been the very means of fulfilling what they had foretold, Acts 13. 27.)

19. Repent ye therefore (of the murder of this juſt One,) and be converted (from your oppoſition to his name and doctrine, to faith in him,) that your ſins may be blotted out, [i] when the times of refreſhing ſhall (ὅπως ἂν ἔλθωσι, that times of refreſhing may) come from the preſence of the Lord.

20. And he ſhall ſend (Gr. καὶ ἀποστείλῃ, and that he may ſend) Jeſus Chriſt, who [k] before was preached to you, (to give you a final abſolution from them at the great day; him, I ſay,)

21. [l] Whom the heavens muſt receive till the [m] times of reſtitution (or completion) of all things, which God hath ſpoken by the mouth of all his holy Prophets [n] ſince the world began.

22. [o] For Moſes truly ſaid, (or ſaid indeed) to the fathers, A Prophet ſhall the Lord your God raiſe up to you of your brethren, like unto me, him ſhall ye hear in all things, whatſoever he ſhall ſay to you:

23. And it ſhall come to paſs, that every ſoul (i. e. perſon) who will not hear that Prophet, ſhall be deſtroyed from among the people.

24. Yea, and [p] all the Prophets from Samuel, and thoſe that follow after, (or, and the times following,) as many as have ſpoken (of this Prophet,) have likewiſe foretold of theſe days (of grace and refreſhment by him.)

25. (Now) [q] Ye are the children of (your fathers) the Prophets, and of the covenant which God made with our fathers, ſaying to Abraham, (Gen. 22. 18.) And in [r] thy ſeed ſhall all the kingdoms of the earth be bleſſed.

26. Unto you (therefore) firſt, God having raiſed up his Son Jeſus (as he promiſed by Moſes, ver. 22.) ſent him to bleſs you, in turning every one of you from his iniquities.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. III.

Ver. 1. [a] AT the ninth hour of prayer.] Among the Jews there were three ſtated hours of prayer; the firſt at the third hour of the day, Acts 2. 15. which anſwers to our ninth; at which time they offered their morning ſacrifice, Exod. 29. 39. Num. 28. 3, 4. at the ninth hour, or at three in the afternoon, when they offered their evening ſacrifice, Acts 10. 3, 30. Of theſe two, the Hebrew doctors ſay, The continual ſacrifice of the morning made atonement for the iniquities that were done in the night, and the evening ſacrifice for the iniquity that was done by day. But (a) Philo ſaith, They were both ſacrifices of thankſgiving for the bleſſings God was pleaſed continually to confer upon mankind by day and night. At both theſe times, ſpecial favours were ſhewn by God to his people; thus, πρωὶ ἀναβαινούσης τ θυσίας, in the morning when the mincha was offered, the thirſty land was miraculouſly filled with water, 2 Kings 3. 20. And about the time of the evening oblation, God anſwers Daniel's prayer, by ſending the angel Gabriel to him, Dan. 9. 21. Hence David ſays, Let my prayer aſcend to thee as incenſe, and the lifting up of my hands, as an evening ſacrifice, Pſal. 141. 2. either becauſe that alſo comprehends the morning ſacrifice, as Kimchi conjectures, or as R. Saadias, becauſe by that all things were atoned, there being no ſacrifice offered after that: And upon this account it might be, that the Apoſtles and other pious perſons went always up into the temple at theſe hours of prayer, Acts 2. 46.

The third time of prayer was the ſixth hour, that is, at twelve of the clock before they dined, or after dinner; at which time we find Peter at his prayers, Acts 10. 9. Of theſe three times, the Royal Pſalmiſt ſpeaketh thus, At evening, and at morning, and at noon, will I pray to thee, Pſal. 55. 17. And of Daniel it is recorded, that he kneeled down three times a day, and prayed, and gave thanks, Dan. 6. 10, 13. And the Jews ſay, they received theſe ſtated hours of prayer from Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob; but yet as their going to the temple is no precedent for us Chriſtians to perform our private devotions in the church, which by our Lord's directions we rather are to do entring into our cloſets; God not being ſo preſent in our churches, as in a place of his perpetual and glorious reſidence, as he was in the tabernacle and the temple; ſo neither is their obſervation of theſe hours of prayer any warrant for our inſtitution of canonical hours of prayer, much leſs an evidence, that the Apoſtles, by going thither, did inſtitute theſe theſe canonical hours, as Baronius fancies. Notwithſtanding, ſeeing we Chriſtians are as much obliged both to perform our publick and private devotions to God, as the Jews could be, it muſt be laudable in us alſo to ſet apart ſolemn times for the performance of thoſe duties, as they did. And hence the (b) conſtitutions of the Apoſtles, having cited the Lord's prayer, ſay, Τρὶς τ ἡμέρας προσεύχεσθε, Pray thus thrice a day: And (c) Tertullian ſays, That theſe three hours, morning, noon, and evening, were, inſigniores in orationibus diurnis, the moſt celebrated in their daily prayers: And theſe three times, ſaith (d) Theodoret, we glorify God, τὰς θείας λειτουργίας ἐν ἐκκλησίαις ἐπιτελοῦντες, uſing the ſacred liturgies in the churches.

Ver. 2. [b] Πρὸς τ θύραν τ ἱερ τ λεγομένην Ὡραίαν, To the gate of the temple called Beautiful.] This gate being the very front and entrance into the temple, was built with ſuch ſumptuouſneſs and glory as became the frontiſpiece of that place, where the Divine Majeſty vouchſafed to dwell, and hence bore the name of the Beautiful Gate: The other three gates belonging to the entrance into the court of the women, were, ſaith Joſephus, χρυσῷ τε, κ ἀργύρῳ κεκαλυμμένην πανταχόθεν, covered over with ſilver, and then gilt; but this gate, which he called the Corinthian gate, as being made of Corinthian braſs, was, ſaith he, (e) πολὺ τῇ τιμῇ τὰς καλαργύρους κ χρυσώσεις ὑπερεχουσα, much exceeding in glory thoſe of gold and ſilver.

Ver. 12. [c] Ἀποκριναμενος, He anſwered.] This word is often uſed without relation to any precedent queſtion, and ſometimes only ſignifies, that ſuch a one began to ſpeak, and is uſually joined with λέγω or εἶπον, to ſpeak: So Matth. 11. 25. Ἀποκριθεὶς δ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν, Jeſus Patrem compellans dixit, Jeſus ſpeaking to his Father, ſaid; or, Jeſus began to ſay, Matth. 12. 38. Some of the ſcribes ἀπεκριθησαν, λέγοντες, ſpake, ſaying, c. 17. 4. Ἀποκριθεὶς δ ὁ Πέτρος, εἶπεν, and Peter ſpeaking, ſaid to Jeſus. See Chap. 22. 1.——26. 63.——27. 21.——28. 5. Mark 9. 38.——10. 51.——11. 14. Ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, εἶπεν αὐτῇ, Jeſus ſpeaking, ſaid to the fig-tree, Chap. 12. 35.——14. 48. Luke 1. 60.——13. 14.——14. 3, 5.——17. 17. John 5. 19. Acts 5. 8.——8. 34.——10. 46.——15. 13.——24. 25.——25. 9. So the Hebrew word אמר often ſignifies, as in Exod. 15. 21. So Exod. 21. 5. ἐὰν ἀποκριθῇ, if the ſervant ſay. So 1 Kings 2. 1. Ἀποκριναμενος, David ſpeaks; and Chap. 3. 26. ἀποκριθη ἡ γυνὴ, the woman ſaid, Pſal. 119. 172. and frequently in the book of Job. Sometimes, tho' no queſtion is aſked, and no diſcourſe requiring an anſwer preceeded, yet our Lord anſwers to the ſecret thoughts and inward reaſonings of the Jews, or to their admiration touching his words or works, as Matth. 17. 4.——28. 5. Mark 10. 24. Luke 3. 16.——5. 22.——7. 40.

Ibid. [d] Ἡ ἐυσεβεία, Or holineſs.] This is the reading of Chryſoſtom and Oecumenius, and of all the MSS. and ancient verſions, excepting only the Syriack; for it is confeſſed by Lorinus, that the ancient Latin copies, both MSS. and printed, read not poteſtate, but pietate. Here then is a plain evidence of the variation of the Roman doctrine from that of the Apoſtles, aſſiſted by the Holy Ghoſt; for the Apoſtles here plainly diſclaim any excellency or piety in them, which might make them worthy to be God's inſtruments above any others, in working ſuch miracles as theſe: But the (f) catechiſm of the Trent council plainly declares, that God confers upon us many benefits, eorum merito, by virtue of the merits of the ſaints; and Lorinus on the place declares, that innumerable hiſtories and the practice of the Church ſhew, quod ſanctorum merita ad impetranda miracula valeant, that the merits of the ſaints are prevalent for the working miracles.

Ver. 14. [e] Τὸν ἅγιον κ δίκαιον ἠρνήσασθε, Theſe words I would render thus; you refuſed the holy One:] So ſtiled by good, Luke 1. 35. and evil angels, Luke 4. 34. and even by Pilate's wife, that juſt one, Matth. 27. 19. for ſo ἀρνέομαι doth often ſignify both in ſcripture and profane authors. So Acts 7. 25. This Moſes, ὃν ἠρνήσαντο, whom they refuſed: Heb. 11. 24. ἠρνήσατο, He refuſed to be called the ſon of Pharaoh. So in Phavorinus, ἀρνεῖται ὁ μὴ θέλων ποιῆσαι τὸ τ τι, is he that is unwilling, and refuſeth to do any thing: In Suidas, τὸ ἀρνεῖσθαι δανειστάς, is to reject the uſurers. And to this ſenſe, the very derivation of the word ſeems to lead; it being, ſay grammarians, ἀπ τ αἴρειν τὰς χεῖρας ἐπὶ τῇ ἀποβολῇ, done by lifting up the hands in way of refuſal.

Ver. 15. [f] Ἀρχηγὸν τ ζωῆς, the prince of life.] The perſon ſent by God to lead you in the way to life eternal, having firſt declared it fully to the world, 2 Tim. 1. 10. propoſed it to believers, John 6. purchaſed it for them by his death, ſhewed the way to it by his doctrine, and being appointed to give it to his faithful ſervants, John 17. 2. Whence he is ſtiled, ἀρχηγὸς τ σωτηρίας, the captain of our ſalvation, Heb. 2. 10. ὁ ἀρχηγὸς, χηγὸν, a Prince and Saviour, to give repentance to Iſrael, and remiſſion of ſins, Chap. 5. 32. Or, as Grotius here hath it, he is ſtiled a Prince of life, as having life in himſelf, and power to raiſe all men from the dead, John 5. 26—29. To which ſenſe the whole phraſe, Ye have killed the Prince of life, ſeems to lead us.

(b) L. 7. c. 24. (c) D. Orat. C.
(d) Ep. 145. p. 1023.
(e) De Bello Jud. l. 6. c. 14. p. 916. G.

Ver. 16. g Ἡ πίστις ἡ δι' αὐτοῦ, The faith which is by him:] For ἐν αὐτῷ, in him. So Rom. 14. 20. nothing is unclean δι' αὐτοῦ, in itſelf, δι' ὕδατος, in the water, 2 Pet. 3. 5. τὰ διὰ τοῦ σώματος, the things done in the body, 2 Cor. 5. 10. they that ſleep διὰ τοῦ Ἰησοῦ, in Jeſus, 1 Theſſ. 4. 14. and in this Book διὰ τῆς νυκτὸς, in the night, Chap. 5. 19.—23. 31.

Ver. 17. h Through ignorance ye did it, as did alſo your rulers.] Though the ignorance of the whole nation, and eſpecially of the rulers in this caſe, was ſuch as took away all juſt excuſe in them on the account of their infidelity, John 15. 22, 24. yet becauſe it was occaſioned by thoſe prejudices they had contracted through the meanneſs of his character, and their imaginations that Chriſt ſhould not die, and that his kingdom ſhould be temporal, Chriſt bears with it till the time of the effuſion of the Holy Ghoſt, and then calls them again by his Apoſtles to repentance. See the diſcourſe of the ſin againſt the Holy Ghoſt, App. to Matth. 12.

Ver. 19. i Ὅπως ἂν ἔλθωσι καιροὶ ἀναψύξεως, When the times of refreſhing ſhall come upon you.] Here the critical notes are theſe, (1.) That ὅπως ἂν ἔλθωσι, is to be rendred that, or, ſo that they may come, ut veniant: So Irenæus, l. 2. c. 12. p. 363. ut ſuperveniant, Tertull. de Reſur. Carn. c. 23. So the phraſe is often uſed both in the Old and New Teſtament, and in profane authors: In the Old Teſtament it anſwers to the לְמַעַן, and is oft rendred that. So Pſal. 9. 14. ὅπως ἂν ἐξαγγείλω, that I may ſhew forth thy praiſes: Pſal. 92. 7. ὅπως ἂν ἐξολοθρευθῶσιν, that they may be deſtroyed for ever: Pſal. 119. 101. ὅπως ἂν φυλάξω, that I may keep thy words. In the New Teſtament, ὅπως ἂν ἐκζητήσωσιν, that the reſidue of men may ſeek after the Lord, Acts 15. 17. ὅπως ἂν ἀποκαλυφθῶσιν, that the thoughts of many hearts may be revealed, Luke 2. 35. ὅπως ἂν δικαιωθῇς, that thou mayeſt be juſtified, Rom. 3. 4. So in Ariſtophanes, ὅπως ἂν εἰδῇ, that he may know. See Budæus. (2.) Οἱ καιροὶ ἀναψύξεως, are times of reſt, refreſhment, conſolation; ſometimes after great danger and trouble; as when God had taken away the plague of frogs, Pharaoh ſaw there was ἄνεσις ἀναψύξεως, refreſhment, or as we ſay, a breathing time: So when the evil ſpirit was on Saul, David played on the harp, καὶ ἀνέψυξε, and Saul was refreſhed, 2 Sam. 16. 14. The King and all the people came weary, καὶ ἀνέψυξαν ἐκεῖ, and were refreſhed there: So Pſal. 38. 13. O ſpare me, ἵνα ἀναψύξω, that I may revive: Pſal. 65. 11. We have gone through fire and water, and thou haſt brought us forth, εἰς ἀναψυχὴν, to a place of reſt; See 2 Maccab. 13. 11. And ſometimes without relation to it, as a nation at eaſe, and without care, is ἔθνος κατοικοῦν εἰς ἀναψυχὴν Jer. 49. 30. I have found ἀναψυχὴν, reſt to myſelf, Hoſ. 12. 8. See 2 Maccab. 4. 46. Now theſe times of refreſhing, reſt and comfort, are by ſome referred to the times of the Goſpel, in which Chriſt ſaith, Come to me, ye that are weary and heavy laden, καὶ ἀναπαύσω, and I will refreſh you, Matth. 11. 28. and ye ſhall find ἀνάπαυσιν, reſt to your ſouls, ver. 30. So Dr. Lightfoot, who gives the import of the words thus: Repent, &c. that your ſins may be blotted out, that the times of refreſhing from the Goſpel may come upon you. But againſt this interpretation there lies this objection, That theſe times of refreſhing were to come by the ſending of that Jeſus who was aſcended into heaven, and was not to come thence till the day of judgment, ver. 21, 22. Grotius and Dr. Hammond refer this to their deliverance from the deſtruction which ſhortly was to come on the obdurate Jews; but though that was then future, and there is frequent mention of a παρουσία, or coming of Chriſt then, yet was it no coming of Chriſt from heaven, but only a coming by the Roman army. I therefore incline rather to the opinion of the ancients, which refers this to the time of Chriſt's ſecond coming, to give all his ſervants, after their troubles and perſecutions in this world, reſt with him, 2 Theſſ. 1. 6, 7, 8. which he ſhall do by deſcending from heaven, raiſing them from the dead, and cauſing them to enter into everlaſting reſt, 1 Theſſ. 4. 15, 16. 1 Cor. 15. 47. So the times of the reſurrection are by the Jews ſtiled, the days of conſolation. Targum in Hoſ. 6. 2.

Ver. 20. k Τὸν προκεκηρυγμένον, who before was preached to you.] Some here read, ὃν προκεκεκεισμένον, before deſigned, viz. in the predictions of the law and the Prophets, or before preached to you by them.

Ver. 21. l Ὃν δεῖ οὐρανὸν μὲν δέξασθαι, Whom the heavens muſt receive.] They who render the words thus, Who muſt receive the heavens, i. e. govern there, ſeem to be confuted by the limitation of time annexed to theſe words, Chriſt being to reign in the heavens for ever.

Ibid. m Ἄχρι χρόνων ἀποκαταστάσεως πάντων, Till the time of reſtitution of all things:] That theſe theſe words cannot be meant of a reſtitution of all things to their former ſtate, is certain; for ſure, 'tis very improper to ſay, there will be a reſtitution of all things to their former ſtate, which God hath ſpoken by the mouth of all his Prophets: For ſince theſe things relate to the forerunner of our Lord, Chriſt's coming in the fleſh, his life, death, reſurrection, and aſcenſion, the preaching of the Goſpel to the Gentiles, and the reign of Antichriſt, the calling of the Jews, and the coming in of the fulneſs of the Gentiles, theſe things may very well be ſaid to be exhibited, performed, accompliſhed, and conſummated; but I ſee not with what propriety or truth they can be ſaid to be reſtored to their former ſtates, or be renewed, and therefore ἄχρι χρόνων ἀποκαταστάσεως πάντων, is by the Syriac rendred until the fulneſs of the time of all things; by the Arabic, till the time in which all things ſhall be perfected, or finiſhed; by (g) Tertullian, aduſque tempora exhibitionis omnium; by (h) Irenæus, uſque ad tempora diſpoſitionis omnium; i. e. till the time of the exhibition or diſpoſal of all things; by Oecumenius, till the time that all things do εἰς τέλος ἐλθεῖν, come to an end: And for the confirmation of this import of the word, we have the ſuffrage of Heſychius and Phavorinus, that ἀποκατάστασις is τελείωσις the conſummation of a thing. Hence then I argue thus againſt the doctrine of the Millenaries; Since Chriſt is to continue in heaven till the completion or conſummation of all things ſpoken by the holy Prophets, if the Millennium were any of them, Chriſt muſt continue in heaven till the conſummation of that alſo, and therefore is not to come down from heaven to reign on earth till the Millennium be ended; nor can that be contemporary with our Lord's ſecond coming, which is from heaven.

Ibid. [n] Ἀπ' αἰῶνος, Since the world began;] that is, from times of old. See Note on Luke 1. 70.

Ver. 22. [o] For Moſes ſaid, A Prophet, &c.] Hence it appears, that this prophecy doth primarily reſpect Chriſt, and not a ſeries of Prophets, as ſome imagine. See the Note on John 1. 45.—5. 46.

Ver. 46. [p] And all the Prophets from Samuel.] Samuel, ſaith Dr. Hammond, is here reckoned the firſt of the Prophets, becauſe the ſchools of the Prophets were firſt inſtituted and erected by him; we reading in his time of a company or college of Prophets at Ramah, and Samuel ſtanding among them, 1 Sam. 19. 20. He is reckoned, ſaith Dr. Lightfoot, after Moſes, partly becauſe prophecy from Moſes to Samuel was very rare, 1 Sam. 3. 1, 2. and partly becauſe he was the firſt after Moſes that wrote his prophecy.

Ver. 25. [q] Ye are the children of the Prophets.] The Prophets being ſtiled ſpiritual Fathers, 2 Kings 2. 12. and Chap. 13. 14. they who were taught by them, were called the ſons of the Prophets, 2 Kings 2. 3. and generally teachers were called Fathers; and they who were taught by them, Children. See Note on 1 Cor. 14. 15.

Ibid. [r] In thy ſeed ſhall all the families of the earth be bleſſed.] Hence it is evident, that theſe words are not a form of bleſſing to this effect, God bleſs thee as he bleſſed Abraham, but a promiſe of a benediction to all nations through Chriſt the ſeed of Abraham. See the Note on Gal. 3. 16.

CHAP. IV.

1. AND as they ſpake to the people, the prieſts and the [a] Captain of the temple, and the Sadducees came upon them (violently;)

2. (The Sadducees) Being grieved that they taught the people, and preached (to them) through Jeſus the reſurrection from the dead, (which the Sadducees denied, Chap. 23. 8.)

3. And they laid hands on them, and put them in hold (i. e. in priſon,) until the next day; for it was now even-tide.

4. Howbeit, (but notwithſtanding this treatment of them,) many of them which heard the word, believed (their doctrine,) and the (whole) [b] number of the men (that believed it,) was about five thouſand.

5. And it came to paſs on the morrow, that their rulers, and elders, and ſcribes,

6. And Annas the High Prieſt, and Caiaphas, and John, and Alexander, and as many as were of the kindred of the High Prieſt, were gathered together at Jeruſalem.

7. And when they had ſet them (Peter and John) in the midſt (of the aſſembly,) they aſked (them,) By what power, or by (virtue of) what name have you done this (cure?)

8. Then Peter (and John being) filled with the Holy Ghoſt, ſaid to them, Ye rulers of the people and elders of Iſrael,

9. If we this day be examined of the good deed done to the impotent man, (if you enquire) by what means he is made whole,

10. Be

(g) De Reſur. Carn. c. 23.

(h) B. l. 3. c. 12.

10. Be it known to you all, and to all the people of Iſrael, that by the name (and power) of Jeſus Chriſt of Nazareth, whom ye crucified, (and) whom God (hath) raiſed from the dead, even by him doth this man ſtand here before you whole.

11. [c] This (αὐτὸς he) is the ſtone which (according to the words of the Pſalmiſt, Pſal. 118. 22.) was ſet at nought of you builders, (and) who is (now) become the head (ſtone) of the corner, (the prime foundation of the whole fabrick of the Church.)

12. [d] Neither is there (ſuch) ſalvation (promiſed by faith) in any other; for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby, (or by faith in which) we muſt (or may) be ſaved.

13. Now when they ſaw the boldneſs of Peter and John, and perceived that they were [e] unlearned and ignorant men, (and therefore could not be thus bold on the account of their own wiſdom or ſkill in the Jewiſh learning,) they marvelled, and they took knowledge of them, (Gr. ἐπεγίνωσκον δὲ, but they knew) that they had been with (that) Jeſus, (in whoſe name they pretended to work this cure.)

14. And beholding the man that was healed ſtanding with them, they could ſay nothing againſt it, (i. e. their allegation.)

15. But when they had commanded them to go aſide out of the council, they conferred among themſelves,

16. Saying, What ſhall we do to (reſtrain) theſe men? For that indeed a notable miracle hath been done by them, is manifeſt to all them that dwell in Jeruſalem, and we cannot deny it.

17. But that it (their doctrine may) ſpread no farther among the people, let us ſtraitly threaten them, that they ſpeak henceforth to no man in this name.

18. And (ſo) they called them, and commanded them (under pain of their diſpleaſure,) not to ſpeak at all (henceforth,) nor teach in the name of Jeſus.

19. But Peter and John anſwered, and ſaid to them, [f] Whether it be right in the ſight of God to hearken to you (forbidding,) more (i. e. rather) than to God, (commanding us to preach in the name of Jeſus,) judge ye?

20. (As for us, be aſſured, we ſhall not obey your commandments;) for we cannot but ſpeak the things which we have ſeen and heard.

21. So when they had farther threatned them, they let them go, finding nothing (done by them againſt the law,) how (for which) they might puniſh them, (and not daring to do it againſt law,) becauſe of the people; for all men glorified God for that which was done.

22. For the man was about forty years old on whom this miracle of healing was ſhewed; (and ſo the cure was the more remarkable.)

23. And being (thus) let go, they went to their own company, and reported (to them) all that the chief prieſts and elders had ſaid to them.

24. And when they had heard that, they lift up their voice to God with one accord, and ſaid, Lord, thou art God which haſt made heaven and earth, and the ſea, and all that in them is:

25. [g] Who by the mouth of thy ſervant David, haſt ſaid, (Pſal. 2. 1.) Why did the heathen rage, and the people imagine a vain thing?

26. The Kings of the earth ſtood up, and the rulers were gathered together againſt the Lord, and againſt his Chriſt; (and what thou ſaidſt by him is now fulfilled:)

27. For of a truth againſt thy holy child Jeſus, whom thou haſt anointed (with the Holy Ghoſt,) both Herod and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles, (i. e. Roman ſoldiers,) and the people of Iſrael were gathered together,

28. For [h] to do whatſoever thy hand (of providence,) and thy counſel determined before to be done.

29. And (therefore) now Lord, behold their threatnings, and grant to thy ſervants (ſuch courage,) that with all boldneſs they may (ſtill) ſpeak thy word.

30. (And aſſiſt them in ſo doing,) By ſtretching forth thy hand to heal, and (by granting,) that ſigns and wonders may be done by (us in) the name of thy holy child Jeſus.

31. And when they had prayed, the place was ſhaken where they were aſſembled together (as on the day of pentecoſt, Acts 2. 2.) and [i] they were all filled with the Holy Ghoſt, and they ſpake the word of God with boldneſs.

32. And the multitude of them that believed, were of one heart and of one ſoul (united in love and affection;) neither ſaid any of them that ought of the things which he poſſeſſed, was (ſo) his own, (as not to be imparted to others who had need of it,) but they had [k] all things common.

33. And with great power gave the Apoſtles witneſs of the reſurrection of the Lord Jeſus; and great grace (of God) was upon them all.

34. Neither was there any among them that lacked; for as many as had poſſeſſions of lands or houſes, ſold them, and brought the price of the things that were ſold;

35. And laid them down at the Apoſtles feet, and diſtribution was (by the Apoſtles) made to every man according as he had need.

36. And

36. And [l] Joſes, who by the Apoſtles was ſirnamed Barnabas, which is, being interpreted, The ſon of conſolation, (he being) a Levite, and of the country of Cyprus (by birth,)
37. Having land (there,) ſold it, and brought the money and laid it at the Apoſtles feet.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. IV.

Ver. 1. [a] OF this Captain of the temple,] ſee the Note on Luke 22. 52. Before our Saviour's paſſion the chief agents againſt him were the ſcribes and Phariſees; but now that the Apoſtles do not only aſſert the reſurrection of our Lord, but alſo preach through Jeſus Chriſt the reſurrection of the dead, ver. 2. the Sadducees, who denied the reſurrection of the body, become their fierceſt adverſaries. Ver. 4. [d] Καὶ οὐκ ἔστιν ἐν ἄλλῳ οὐδενὶ σωτηρία, Nor is there ſalvation in any other.] This ſome interpret thus: There is no other name under heaven by which health can be given to the diſeaſed, or feet to the lame, &c. and this interpretation will not be ſo ſtrange as at firſt ſight it ſeems to be, if we conſider,

1*ſt,* That it is very frequent in the Goſpels to ſay of them who were cured, they were ſaved. So the woman ſaith, Matth. 9. 21. If I do but touch the hem of his garment, σωθήσομαι, I ſhall be ſaved; and Chriſt anſwers, ver. 22. thy faith, σεσωκέ σε, hath ſaved thee, καὶ ἐσώθη, and the woman was ſaved from that hour, So the ruler of the ſynagogue prays Chriſt to put his hand upon his daughter, ἵνα σωθῇ, that ſhe might be ſaved, Mark 5. 23. and Chap. 6. 56. as many as touched the hem of his garment, ἐσώζοντο, were ſaved. So to blind Bartimæus Chriſt ſaith, thy faith, σέσωκέ σε, hath ſaved thee, Mark 10. 52. and ſo to the Samaritan leper, Luke 17. 19.

2*dly,* That this opinion had obtained among the Jews and other nations, that there were ſome powerful names that could cure diſeaſes; this ſeems to be inſinuated in the queſtion of the ſanhedrim, ver. 7. ἐν ποίῳ ὀνόματι, in what name have you done this cure? (a) Joſephus ſpeaks of the doing this by mention of the name of Solomon; the (b) Talmud of doing it by mention of the ſeparate name; the Chriſtians by the name of the God of Abraham, &c. See Note on Matth. 12. 27.

3*dly,* If we conſider St. Peter's anſwer, viz. if the queſtion be, ἐν τίνι οὗτος σέσωται, by what name this man is ſaved, i. e. healed, be it known to you, that he is healed through the name of Jeſus Chriſt; nor is there any other name by which we can be ſaved. And from this ſenſe of the words it clearly follows that no true miracles have been ever done ſince Chriſt's aſcenſion, by invocation of the names of ſaints; and, (2.) that the diſputes of the ſchools from this place concerning the ſalvation of the Gentiles, have been impertinent; if the common ſenſe be rather liked, yet muſt it be acknowledged that God is no reſpecter of perſons, as to their ſpiritual and eternal intereſts, but in every nation he that feareth God, and worketh righteouſneſs, is accepted of him, Acts 10. 34, 35. See the Note there. And that God would have all men diligently to ſeek, and to come to him with a firm belief that he is a rewarder of them that do ſo, Heb. 11. 6. and that he hath not ſuſpended that reward on an impoſſible condition, tho' he will only give it with reſpect to what our Lord Jeſus hath done, or ſuffered for them; that he hath not left himſelf without a witneſs of his goodneſs to the heathen world, not only by doing good to their bodies without regard to their ſouls, or by being good only to them as we are to our hogs, by fatning them for a day of ſlaughter, it being, ſaith (c) Maximus Tyrius, a thought unworthy of God, that he ſhould be liberal in beſtowing mean things on us, but penurious as to better.

Ver. 13. e They were ἀγράμματοι καὶ ἰδιῶται, unlearned and ignorant (or private) men.] This for three centuries was the objection againſt the profeſſors of Chriſtianity; theſe were the names given them by (d) Lucian, (e) Celſus, (f) Aſclepiades, (g) Cecilius, (h) Porphyry, (i) Hierocles, Julian, and by all the heathens; as Juſtin, (k) Tatian, Minucius, (l) Tertullian, (m) Arnobius, and (n) Lactantius, teſtify: And tho' that is not wholly true, yet is it a great confirmation of the Chriſtian faith, and ſhews, as (o) Juſtin Martyr well obſerves, that it was not of human, but divine original, and that being with Jeſus was ſufficient to make the ignorant and unlearned wiſe.

Ver. 19. f Whether it be righteous before God to hearken to you, rather than to God, judge ye.] So Socrates anſwered to his accuſers, πείσομαι τῷ Θεῷ μᾶλλον ἢ ὑμῖν. Apol. p. 23. O ye Athenians, I will obey God rather than you: And ſo ſaith Arian, when thy ſuperiors command thee any thing, thou muſt remember there is one above, who ſees thee, καὶ ὅτι ἐκεῖνῳ σὲ δεῖ μᾶλλον ἀρέσκειν ἢ τούτῳ, and that thou oughteſt rather to pleaſe him, than man.

Ver. 25. g Who by the mouth of thy ſervant David haſt ſaid, Why did the heathen rage, &c.] Here note,

1*ſt,* Againſt ſome late innovators, that what was ſaid by David, is aſcribed to God himſelf, to ſhew that David ſpake and compoſed theſe Pſalms by the prophetical afflatus of the Holy Spirit.

2*dly,* That tho' the latter Jews will not admit that this Pſalm belongs to the Meſſiah, yet R. Solomo Jarchi confeſſes that all their ancient rabbins did ſo interpret it. See the Note on Heb. 1. 5.

Ver. 28. h To do whatſoever thy hand, and thy counſel determined before to be done.] Here note what is not uſually obſerved, that the hand of God moſt frequently in the Old Teſtament relates not ſo much to his power, as to his wiſdom and providential diſpenſations. So Job 27. 11. I will teach you by the hand of God, i. e. by his wiſdom in his providential diſpenſations; Eccleſ. 2. 24. that a man ſhould enjoy the good of his labours, this is from the hand of God, ſo the good hand of God is his favour, or his gracious providence, Ezra 7. 9.—8. 18, 22. Neh. 2. 8, 18. and being here joined with God's counſel, and applied to what was done by Pontius Pilate, and the Roman ſoldiers, and by the Jews towards the crucifixion of the holy Jeſus, to which actions ſo highly diſpleaſing to God, his power could not actually concur, or effectively incline them, we have great reaſon here to prefer this import of this phraſe before the other; and then the import of the words will be no more than this, That Jews and Gentiles were aſſembled to accompliſh thoſe ſufferings of our Saviour for mankind, which God had foretold, and by foretelling had determined ſhould come to paſs; according to thoſe words of St. Paul, Acts 13. 27. They who dwelt at Jeruſalem, and their princes, not knowing the voices of the Prophets, have fulfilled them, by condemning him, doing all things which were written of him, ver. 29. As therefore St. Peter and Paul, by calling the Jews to repentance for this ſin, in crucifying the Lord of life, do evidence their ſin was not the leſs, becauſe they did by it fulfil the counſel of God's holy will, and kind intentions to mankind, ſo do they conſequently evidence, that God's fore-knowledge, and determination of a thing future, does not impair the liberty of mens wills in the accompliſhment of it; as all the ancient fathers have declared in this particular. See the Note on Luke 22. 22.

Ver. 31. i And they were all filled with the Holy Ghoſt.] Not all the Chriſtians, who being now eight thouſand, could not be all in one houſe, but the hundred and twenty mentioned Chap. 1. 15. and being in the ſame houſe with the Apoſtles; this is their own company to which they went, ver. 24. and therefore if the Holy Holy Ghoſt fell only on the twelve before, yet now he muſt be ſuppoſed to fall on this whole number, enabling them to ſpeak the word of God with boldneſs, as it follows here.

Ver. 32. [k] They had all things common,] as Chap. 2. 45. not by poſſeſſion, but as to uſe; in which ſenſe that of (p) Tertullian is only true, omnia indiſcreta ſunt apud nos, præter uxores, among us all things are common, except our wives; for it follows, that they had lands to ſell. See Note on Chap. 2. 45.

Ver. 36, 37. [l] And Joſes a Levite, and by birth a Cypriot, having land, ſold it.] For the Levites might have lands, not only in foreign countries, as Joſes had in Cyprus, but even in their own; for Samuel a Levite, 1 Chron. 6. 33. was born upon his father's land, which had been purchaſed by his great-grandfather Zuph, 1. Sam. 1. 1. —— 9. 5. and that lands might fall to them by accident, which they might ſell; See the Biſhop of Ely on Levit. 27. 21.

CHAP. V.

1. BUT a certain man named Ananias, with Sapphira his wife, ſold a poſſeſſion;

2. And (but he) [a] kept back part of (Gr. he defaulked from) the price (of it,) his wife alſo being privy (and conſenting) to it, and brought (Gr. bringing) a certain part (of it only,) and laid it at the Apoſtles feet, (pretending to do as the reſt had done, Chap. 4. 35, 37.)

3. But Peter ſaid (to him,) Ananias, why hath Satan filled thy heart to lie unto the Holy Ghoſt, and (moved thee) to keep back part of (or to defaulk from) the (full) price of the land (which thou haſt ſold?)

4. Whilſt it remained (unſold) was it not thine own (poſſeſſion, no ſhare of it belonging to any other?) and after it was ſold, was it not in thy own power (to diſpoſe of the money as thou wouldſt, and bring the whole as others did,) why (then) haſt thou conceived this thing in thine heart, (to defaulk from the price, and preſent to us a part only of it, as if it were the whole? by doing this) [b] thou haſt not lied unto men (only,) but to God (alſo.)

5. And Ananias hearing theſe words, fell down, and gave up the ghoſt, and great fear came upon all them that (ſaw, and) heard theſe things.

6. And the young men (there) aroſe, wound him up, and carried him out, and buried him.

7. And it was about the ſpace of three hours after, when his wife, not knowing what was done, came in.

8. And Peter anſwered (i. e. ſaid) to her, Tell me whether you ſold the land for ſo much (only, as Ananias ſaid,) and ſhe ſaid, Yea, (only) for ſo much.

9. Then Peter ſaid to her, How is it that ye have agreed together to tempt the Spirit of the Lord? (i. e. to try whether the Spirit of the Lord in us was able to detect your cheat;) behold the feet of them which have buried thy huſband, are at the door, and ſhall carry thee out.

10. Then fell ſhe down ſtraightway at his feet, and yielded up the ghoſt, and the young men came in, and found her dead, and carrying her forth, buried her by her huſband.

11. And great fear came upon all the Church, and upon as many as heard theſe things.

12. And by the hands of the Apoſtles were many ſigns and wonders wrought among the people; [and they (of the Church) were all with one accord in Solomon's porch;

13. [c] And of the reſt (that were not yet of the Church,) durſt no man join himſelf to them, (i. e. to the Apoſtles,) but the people magnified them.

14. And believers were the more added to the Lord, (even) multitudes both of men and women,] (who owned that Jeſus was the Chriſt.)

15. (And ſo great and manifold were theſe miracles, ὥστε) inſomuch that they (who beheld them) [d] brought forth their ſick into the ſtreets, and laid them on beds and couches, that at the leaſt the ſhadow of Peter paſſing by might overſhadow ſome of them.

16. There came alſo a multitude out of the cities round about to Jeruſalem, bringing ſick folks, and them that were vexed with unclean ſpirits, and they were healed every one.

17. Then the High-prieſt roſe up, and they that were with him, which is (being) the [e] ſect of the Sadducees, and (they) were filled with indignation;

18. And laid their hands upon the Apoſtles, and put them in the common priſon.

19. But the angel of the Lord by night opened the priſon-doors, and brought them forth, and ſaid (to them,)

20. Go, ſtand and ſpeak in the temple to the people all the words [f] of this life, (which the Sadducees deny, and I have commanded you to preach, Acts 13. 26.)

(p) Apol. cap. 39.

21. And when they heard that, they entred into the temple early in the morning, and taught; but the High-prieſt came, and they that were with him, and called the council together, and all the ſenate of the children of Iſrael, and ſent to the priſon to have them brought (out.)

22. But when the officers came, and *(*Gr. but the officers coming) found them not in priſon, they returned, and (Gr. returning) told (the council of it,)

23. Saying, The priſon truly found we ſhut with all ſafety, and the keepers ſtanding without before the doors, but when we had opened (them,) we found no man within.

24. Now when the High-prieſt, and g the Captain of the temple, and the chief prieſts heard theſe things, they h doubted of (i. e. concerning) them, whereunto this would grow, (or what the import of it might be.)

25. Then came one, and told them, ſaying, Behold, the men whom ye put in priſon are ſtanding in the temple, and teaching the people.

26. Then went the Captain (thither) with the officers, and brought them without violence, for they feared the people, leſt they ſhould have been ſtoned (by them.)

27. And when they had brought them, they ſet them before the council, and the High-prieſt aſked them,

28. Saying, Did not we ſtraitly command you that you ſhould not teach in this name, and (yet) behold, ye have filled Jeruſalem with your doctrine, and intend to (Gr. would) bring (the guilt of) this man's blood upon us?

29. Then Peter, and the other Apoſtles anſwered, (to the charge of diſobeying their commands,) and ſaid, We ought to obey God rather than men.

30. (And as for the guilt of blood, that it is juſtly charged upon you, God himſelf hath teſtified, for) the God of our fathers (hath) raiſed up (that) Jeſus whom ye ſlew, and hanged on a tree, (by being inſtant with Pilate that he might be crucified;)

31. i Him (whom ye thus treated) hath God exalted with (to) his right hand, to be a Prince, and a Saviour, to give repentance to Iſrael, and forgiveneſs of ſins:

32. And (this we ſay not without proof, for) we are his witneſſes of theſe things, and ſo is alſo the Holy Ghoſt, whom God hath given to them that obey him.

33. (And) When they heard (theſe words) they were cut to the heart, and took counſel to ſlay them:

34. Then ſtood there up one in the council (who was) k a Phariſee, named Gamaliel, a Doctor of the law, had in great reputation among all the people, and (he) commanded (the officers) to put the Apoſtles forth a little ſpace, (or while.)

35. And (then he) ſaid to them (of the council,) Ye men of Iſrael, take heed to yourſelves what ye intend (Gr. go about) to do, as touching theſe men.

36. For l before theſe days roſe up Theudas, boaſting himſelf to be ſome body, to whom a number of men, about four hundred, joined themſelves; who was ſlain, and all, as many as obeyed him, were ſcattered, and brought to nought;

37. After this man roſe up Judas of Galilee, in the days of the taxing (or inrolling,) and drew away much people after him, (but) he alſo periſhed, and all, even as many as obeyed him, were diſperſed.

38. And now (καὶ τὰ νῦν λέγω ὑμῖν, therefore) I ſay to you, (for the preſent) refrain from theſe men, and let them alone; for if this counſel, or this work be of men, it will come to nought;

39. But if it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it, (nor ought you to attempt to do ſo,) leſt haply ye be found even to fight againſt God.

40. And to him they agreed, and when they had called the Apoſtles, and beaten them (with rods,) they commanded (them) that they ſhould not ſpeak in the name of Jeſus (any more,) and (then) let them go.

41. And they departed from the preſence of the council, rejoicing that they were counted worthy m to ſuffer ſhame for his name.

42. And daily in the temple, and in every houſe they ceaſed not to teach and preach (the doctrine of) Jeſus Chriſt.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. V.

Ver. 2. a Καὶ ἐνοσφίσατο ἀπὸ τῆς τιμῆς. And he kept back part of the price.] It is generally here ſuppoſed that Ananias and Sapphira had conſecrated their eſtate to God by vow, ſo that they were guilty of the ſin of ſacrilege; but this may very well be doubted: (1.) Becauſe, in all the ſales of lands or houſes, mentioned Chap. 2. and 4. and here, there is not the leaſt hint or intimation of any ſuch vow; that there was ſome fraud in the caſe, may be fairly gathered from the word νοσφίζεσθαι, but that it was a ſacrilegious fraud, cannot be proved from the word. (2.) St. Peter accuſes neither him nor his wife of any ſuch crime, but only of tempting, i. e. diſtruſting, and and making trial of the wiſdom of the Holy Ghoſt, and going about to deceive him by this artifice: And, (3.) the Apoſtle ſeems to own he had a right in his poſſeſſion, and in the money for which it was ſold, ver. 3. which yet he could not have, if he before had conſecrated it to religious uſes. But yet they were guilty of a double fraud: (1.) In laying down this part of the price at the Apoſtles feet, as the others had done, and thereby tacitely implying they had now the ſame right to be relieved from the publick ſtock which others had, as having nothing of their own, when indeed they had money which they kept back. (2.) In preſenting this before them as the whole price of the poſſeſſion they had ſold, when it was only a part of it, which it appears they did, from St. Peter's queſtion to his wife, Tell me for how much the land was ſold? That the puniſhment of this ſin was ſo heavy, will not be admired, if we conſider, (1.) That it was a direct ſin againſt the Holy Ghoſt, who was ſent down from heaven to propagate the Goſpel, an attempt to put a cheat upon him, and a queſtioning his wiſdom to diſcern things ſecret, and therefore deſerved the greater puniſhment, becauſe it did ſo plainly tend to the hindrance of the Goſpel, by declaring that the Spirit which aſſiſted the Apoſtles was not able to diſcern things ſecret, and ſo might not be able to acquaint them with the ſecret things of God. (2.) We find God under the law very ſevere in his puniſhment of thoſe who firſt offended in offering ſtrange fire, as in the caſe of Nadab and Abihu; and violated the ſabbath, as in the caſe of the man that gathered ſticks upon that day, and eſpecially againſt thoſe who roſe up againſt Moſes the Prophet, and Aaron the Prieſt of the Lord, as in the caſe of Corah and his company: It was therefore fit the firſt great offence of this kind ſhould receive exemplary puniſhment from the hand of God, that others might the more dread thoſe ſins which thus affronted that Holy Spirit, by whoſe power the Goſpel began to be propagated.

Ver. 4. [b] Οὐκ ἐψεύσω ἀνθρώποις, ἀλλὰ τῷ Θεῷ. Thou haſt not lied to men, but unto God.] Hence it is argued, that if he that deceiveth, or lieth to the Spirit, attempteth to deceive, or lie to God, the Holy Spirit muſt be God.

To this Wolzogenius here, and other Socinians anſwer, that the like phraſe is often uſed when this inference cannot be good; for the Jews murmuring againſt Moſes and Aaron, are ſaid to murmur not againſt them, but againſt God, Exod. 16. 8. And he that deſpiſeth the preaching of the Apoſtles, is ſaid to deſpiſe not man, but God, who had given them the Holy Spirit, 1 Theſſ. 4. 8. not them, but Chriſt, Matth 10. 40. Luke 10. 16. but hence it will not follow, that either Moſes, or Aaron, or the Apoſtles, were God.

But to this anſwer I reply, 1*ſt*, That theſe examples rather do confirm than infringe this argument; for as they who murmured againſt Moſes and Aaron, murmured againſt God, becauſe they did it againſt them who were inveſted with the authority of God, and acted in his name, and by his power; and as they who deſpiſed the Apoſtles, deſpiſed God for the ſame reaſon; ſo they who lied to the Apoſtles acting by the Spirit of God, or ſought to deceive them by lying, are ſaid to lie to God, becauſe they lied to the Apoſtles acting by the power and authority of God; and therefore the power and authority of the Spirit, muſt be the power and authority of God.

2*dly*, Moſes and Aaron, and the Apoſtles ſent out by Chriſt to preach, did only act in the name of God and Chriſt, becauſe they did this by commiſſion from them, and by their command, but Ananias is here ſaid to lie to God, becauſe he lied to the Spirit in the Apoſtles, enabling them to diſcern the ſecrets of mens hearts and actions, which being the property of God alone, he that doth lie to him muſt therefore lie to God, becauſe he lies to one who hath the incommunicable property of God, and conſequently the divine eſſence.

Ver. 13. [c] Τῶν δὲ λοιπῶν οὐδεὶς ἐτόλμα κολλᾶσθαι αὐτοῖς, But of the reſt durſt no man cleave unto them.] That is, ſaith Dr. Lightfoot, none of the hundred and eight durſt join to the twelve, or equal themſelves to them in office or dignity; but as there is no mention of that number in this Chapter, ſo did they never before this join themſelves to the Apoſtles; nor doth the word κολλᾶσθαι import any ſuch thing, but only to converſe, aſſociate with, or come to them; as when Philip is bid κολλᾶσθαι, to join himſelf to the chariot of the eunuch, Chap. 8. 29. and when Paul eſſayed after his converſion, κολλᾶσθαι, to join himſelf to the diſciples, Chap. 9. 26. and when Peter ſaith, Chap. 10. 28. you know that it is unlawful for a Jew, κολλᾶσθαι, to join himſelf to one of another nation; and laſtly, when it is ſaid that ſome men, κολληθέντες αὐτῷ, joining themſelves to St. Paul, believed, Chap. 17. 35. which ſeems to favour the opinion of Grotius and Beza, viz. That great fear came on all the Church, ver. 11. but of the reſt, which were not yet of the Church, durſt no man join themſelves to, or aſſociate with them as members of the Church, for fear of the like puniſhment. But notwithſtanding this, the people magnified them, and multitudes of them were added to the Lord, i. e. believed in Chriſt, tho' they durſt not yet conſort with the twelve Apoſtles.

Ver. 15. [d] They brought forth their ſick into the ſtreets, that at leaſt the ſhadow of Peter paſſing by, might overſhadow ſome of them.] Here it is left uncertain, whether it were the faith of believers, or the ſuperſtition of the Jews, which had ſuch expectation from St. Peter's ſhadow, whether St. Peter paſſed by that way, or not, or whether his ſhadow wrought any cures, or not. But if God, intending to magnify Peter, the miniſter of the circumciſion, in the eyes of the circumciſed, healed ſome perſons when his ſhadow went over them, he did more certainly as much to magnify St. Paul, the Apoſtle of the Gentiles; for from his body were brought handkerchiefs, or aprons to the ſick, and the diſeaſes departed from them, and the evil ſpirits went out of them, Chap. 19. 12. but hence it is ridiculous to argue, that the one, or the other, was prince of the Apoſtles, or that the rediques of holy men are to be venerated.

Ver. 17. [e] Ἡ οὖσα αἵρεσις τῶν Σαδδουκαίων, Being the ſect of the Sadducees.] Not that the Sanhedrim then conſiſted chiefly of that ſect, but becauſe the doctrine of the reſurrection deſtroyed their ſect, and therefore they are ſtill the readieſt to oppoſe it, Chap. 4. 2. the Phariſees being only concerned to avoid the guilt of Chriſt's blood.

Ver. 20. [f] Go, ſpeak to the people all the words of this life, πάντα τὰ ῥήματα τῆς ζωῆς ταύτης ;] i. e. Of this life which I have commiſſionated you to preach, and which the Sadducees deny. So Chap. 13. 26. Ye children of Abraham, and ye that fear God, ὑμῖν ὁ λόγος τῆς σωτηρίας ταύτης ἀπεστάλη, to you is the word of this ſalvation ſent.

Ver. 24. [g] Ὁ στρατηγὸς τοῦ ἱεροῦ, The Captain of the temple;] i. e. The Captain of the garriſon of the Levites. See the Note on Luke 22. 52.

Ibid. [h] They doubted of them what this thing ſhould be, τί ἂν γένοιτο τοῦτο·] i. e. What this miraculous deliverance of them might import, and to what this would tend. So Chap. 10. 17. Peter doubted in himſelf, τί ἂν εἴη τὸ ὅραμα, what the viſion might import.

Ver. 31. [i] Him hath God exalted to be a Prince, and a Saviour, to give repentance to Iſrael, and remiſſion of ſins,] upon that repentance, to be a Prince, and a Saviour, even the Prince of life, Chap. 3. 15. and of ſalvation, Heb. 2. 10. on which account he is ſtiled, τὸ σωτήριον τοῦ Θεοῦ, the ſalvation of God; See Note on Luke 2. 30. and he is ſaid to be exalted to give repentance and remiſſion of ſins, by giving the knowledge of that remiſſion of ſins which is promiſed to the penitent, and of thoſe motives which ſhould induce them to repent. So the Baptiſt is ſaid to go before him, to give the knowledge of ſalvation to his people, thro' the remiſſion of ſins; and ſo God gave unto the Gentiles repentance unto life, when he ſent Peter to them, to preach that word, by which they repenting ſhould be ſaved, Acts 11. 14, 18.

Ver. 34. [k] A Phariſee named Gamaliel, a doctor of the law, had in great reputation among the people.] He was Paul's tutor, Acts 22. 3. and was called Rabban Gamaliel, a title of the higheſt eminency, and given, ſay the Jews, only to ſeven perſons; which ſhews ſufficiently the reputation that he had among the people. See Additions N° 4.

Ver. 36, 37. [l] Πρὸ γὰρ τούτων τῶν ἡμέρων ἀνέστη Θευδᾶς, For before thoſe days roſe up Theudas; 37. μετὰ τοῦτον, after him roſe up Judas of Galilee.] Here Gamaliel affirms two things, (1.) That before thoſe days, in which that council was aſſembled, that is, before the twentieth of Tiberius, aroſe Theudas mentioned by him; whereas the Theudas mentioned by Joſephus, Antiq. l. 20. c. 5. aroſe and periſhed by the hands of Cuſpius Fadus, in the fourth year of Claudius, that is, ten years after the meeting of this council. (2.) He affirms, that Judas of Galilee roſe up after him, and yet that he aroſe in the days of the taxing, which was under the Emperor Auguſtus, at the birth of Chriſt, and ſo thirty-four years before this council, and ſo this Theudas that aroſe before him, muſt have been at leaſt thirty-five years before this council.

Some criticks endeavour to ſalve theſe difficulties, by torturing the words of the text, and making Gamaliel ſay, that Judas of Galilee aroſe μετὰ τοῦτον; not after, but before Theudas, contrary to the rule of Phavorinus, that μετὰ with an accuſative caſe δηλοῖ ὑστεροχρονίαν, ſignifies poſteriority of time. Dr. Lightfoot here ſeems inconſtant in his opinion, for in his firſt Notes upon the Acts, he ſaith, that Gamaliel's Theudas and Joſephus's are not one and the ſame; but as it happened with Judas, that tho' he himſelf periſhed in his error, and as many as obeyed him were ſcattered abroad, as Gamaliel relateth, yet was not his error extinguiſhed with him, but revived, and grew again. So that at leaſt forty years after his firſt appearing, his two ſons, James and Simon, are crucified for it by Tiberius Alexander, the ſucceſſor of Fadus, Joſ. Antiq. l. 20. cap. 3. And many years after that, Eleazer, a branch of the ſame Judas, appeareth in the ſame opinion, with a deſperate company with him. De Bell. Jud. l. 7. cap. 30. Even ſo may it be conceived of the ſect of Theudas, that it began before that of Judas, and that the firſt author of it took upon him great things, as to be a Prophet, and to work miracles, and the like, but he was was ſoon ſlain, and all that obeyed him were ſcattered abroad, and came to nought; but his folly and fancy periſhed not with him, but (however at other times,) in the time of Fadus, one of the ſame fooolery and name, and probably his ſon, would be a Prophet again, and divide Jordan, and do I know not what, whom Fadus deſtroyed, and brought his company to ruin. So that Gamaliel's and Joſephus his Theudas are very probably two men, but very likely father and ſon, or tutor and ſcholar; agreeing ſo exactly in the ſame folly and madneſs, that they agreed in the ſame name: And that name either given to the latter, as parents name their children by their own names, or aſſumed by him in imitation of the former Theudas, whom as he delighted to imitate in his enthuſiaſtick folly, ſo delighted he to follow him in denomination; and I am the rather confirmed in this opinion about theſe two men, becauſe that aſſoon as ever Joſephus hath told the ſtory of the deſtruction of Theudas by Fadus, he telleth of the deſtruction of the ſons of Judas by Tiberius Alexander, and I cannot but interpret both the ſtories in one ſenſe, that as in the latter he ſpeaks of the offspring of Judas, whoſe ſect had begun many years before, ſo in the former he ſpeaketh of the offspring of Theudas, whoſe ſect had begun before that of Judas: Yet in his latter exercitations on this place he ſays, this is but an imagination, and inclines rather to think, that Joſephus ſlipt in his chronology, to whom, ſaith he, both in hiſtory and chronology it is no unuſual thing to trip, or go out of the road of truth.

I prefer his firſt opinion, as being generally embraced by the ancients; for, (1.) (a) Origen, who had read Joſephus, and declares, that he examined things relating to the ſcripture, φιλαληθῶς, out of a love to truth, ſpeaks thus, We ſay that there was one Theudas before the birth of Chriſt, who, among the Jews, declared himſelf to be ſomebody. And again, that Judas Galilæus, and Theudas that was before him, being not of God, periſhed. And a third time, becauſe they gathered from the ſcriptures, that the time of the Meſſiah was come, firſt Theudas, and after him Judas of Galilee, tumultuated in the time of the taxing. Hence do the fathers unanimouſly ſay, that thoſe words of Chriſt, John 10. 8. all that came before me were thieves and robbers, (b) relate to theſe two, Theudas and Judas of Galilee, which ſhews their belief, that both of them were before the time of Chriſt's preaching. So that it is extremely evident, that the ancient fathers agreed in this, that there was a Theudas pretending to great things, even before the coming of our Lord, tho' Joſephus hath taken no notice of him.

Ver. 41. [m] Ἀτιμασθῆναι, to be reproached.] Or diſhonoured by being ſcourged; for as among the Romans, a citizen of Rome was not to be ſcourged, ſo among the Jews, ſaith (c) Joſephus, it was τιμωρία αἰσχίστη, the moſt ſhameful puniſhment, when inflicted on a Jew, and that which did ἀνιᾶν τὸ ἀξίωμα, ſtain his dignity.

CHAP. VI.

1. AND in thoſe days, when the number of the diſciples was multiplied, there aroſe a murmuring of the Grecians, (Gr. of the [a] Helleniſts or Jews of the diſperſion, who ſpake the Greek language,) againſt the Hebrews, (who uſed the Hebrew or Syriack tongue,) becauſe their widows were neglected in the daily miniſtration (of proviſions, made for poor widows belonging to the Church, 1 Tim. 5. 16.

2. [b] Then the twelve called the multitude of the diſciples to them, and ſaid, It is not reaſon (-able) that we ſhould leave (preaching) the word of God, and (daily be employed to) ſerve tables, (or make proviſions for the poor.)

3. Wherefore, brethren, look you out among you ſeven men of honeſt report, [c] full of the Holy Ghoſt and wiſdom, [d] whom we may appoint over this buſineſs, (Gr. for this uſe.)

4. But we, (and we being eaſed of this burden,) will give ourſelves continually to prayer, and to the miniſtry of the word.

5. And the ſaying (of the Apoſtles) pleaſed the whole multitude; and they (accordingly) choſe Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Ghoſt, and Philip, and Prochorus, and Nicanor,

8. And Stephen (being) full of faith and power, did great wonders and miracles among the people.

9. Then there aroſe [f] certain of the ſynagogue, which is called the Synagogue of the Libertines, and (ſome of the ſynagogues of the) Cyrenians and Alexandrians, and (ſome of) them of Cilicia and Aſia, diſputing with Stephen.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. VI.

Ver 1. [a] Τῶν Ἑλλήνων, Of the Græcians.] It is much diſputed who theſe Helleniſts were; it is beyond doubt that they were not Greeks by nation or birth, whether unconverted, or proſelytes to the Jewiſh nation; for theſe are never called Helleniſts, but always in the ſcripture, Ἕλληνες, Hellens, and by Joſephus, Ἑλληνικοὶ, and are diſtinguiſhed not from the Hebrews, but the Jews; as when mention is made, Ἰουδαίων τε καὶ Ἑλλήνων, of the Jews and Greeks, Acts 16. 1, 3, 19.——10. 17.——20. 21. Rom. 1. 16.——2. 9, 10.——3. 9.——10. 12. 1 Cor. 2. 22, 23.——10. 32.——12. 13. Gal. 3. 28. Coloſſ. 3. 11. See John 12. 20. and of thoſe Greeks who came to the Jewiſh ſynagogues, and therefore ſeem to have been proſelytes, Acts 14. 1.——18. 4. And a diſtinction is made, not between Hebrews, but Jews and proſelytes, Acts 2. 10. Moreover, they who were ſcattered upon the perſecution which followed the death of Stephen, Acts 8. 1. ſpake the word only to the Jews, Acts 11. 19. and yet they ſpake, πρὸς τοὺς Ἕλληνιστὰς, to the Helleniſts, ver. 20. And, 3*dly*, Paul coming to Jeruſalem, diſputed, πρὸς τοὺς Ἑλληνιστὰς, againſt the Helleniſts, and they went about to kill him, Acts 9. 29. as the Jews at Damaſcus had done before, ver. 23. which ſhews they muſt be Jews by birth, and not only ſtrangers of other nations come thither; for how durſt they attempt to kill a Jew among the Jews, without bringing him to their tribunal?

2*dly*, I think it not ſufficient to ſay, with the Syriack, or St. Chryſoſtom, that they were Jews, Ἑλληνιστὶ φθεγγόμενοι, uſing the Greek tongue; for this, they of Judea, eſpecially the learned among them, generally did; for we never find in Joſephus that they ſpake to the Romans, or others who uſed that tongue, by an interpreter. Dr. Lightfoot therefore adds, that they were Jews, who living among the Greeks, underſtood and uſed that tongue only, and then they muſt be called Hebrews, who uſed the Hebrew or Syriack tongue as their uſual dialect: But then, whereas Dr. Lightfoot will not allow, that in their ſynagogues they uſed the Greek tongue, or read the ſcriptures according to the Greek tranſlation, I incline rather to the opinion of the learned Grotius, that they uſed this tongue alſo in their ſacred exerciſes; for why ſhould they, whoſe ſynagogues conſiſted of perſons underſtanding neither Hebrew nor Syriack, have both, or either of theſe languages, read to them in their aſſemblies? Moreover, that in their exhortations made in their ſynagogues, conſiſting both of Jews and proſelytes of the Grecians, they uſed the Greek language, ſeems evident from this, that Paul and Barnabas ſo ſpake in them, that a multitude of the Greeks, as well as of the Jews, believed, Acts 13. 43.——14. 1.——17. 4, 12.——18. 4.

Ver. 2. [b] And the twelve calling the multitude of the diſciples, Gr. τὸ πλῆθος τῶν μαθητῶν.] Here Dr. Lightfoot conjectures, that the multitude of the diſciples doth not import the multitude of believers, they being many thouſands, Acts 3. 41.——

4. 4.——5. 14. but only the hundred and eight Presbyters, mentioned Acts 1. 15. But (1.) It is evident, that the whole multitude of believers are called Disciples, both here, ver. 7. and throughout this whole history of the Acts. And (2.) We are told, that this multitude were together, Acts 2. 44.——4. 23——32. And, (3.) It is here noted, that the saying of the Apostles was acceptable, ἐνώπιον παντὸς τοῦ πλήθους, before the whole multitude.

Ver. 3. [c] Full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom;] i. e. of the miraculous gifts of the Holy Ghost, and of the gift of wisdom, mentioned 1 Cor. 12. 8. So when they had prayed, that God would stretch forth his hands to heal, and that signs and wonders might be done by the name of Jesus, Acts 4. 30. it is added, ver. 31. that they were filled with the Holy Ghost; and of Barnabas it is said, that he was full of the Holy Ghost, and of faith, another of these gifts, 1 Cor. 12. 9. and so by his means, a great multitude was added to the Lord, Acts 11. 24. and here, ver. 8. that Stephen, being full of the Holy Ghost, and of power, did great signs and miracles among the people: And these gifts of the Holy Ghost being given to them, not for their own use, but to profit the church with them, 1 Cor. 12. 7. and so being not only qualifications of them for, but as it were præ-elections of them to some sacred functions, Acts 20. 28. Out of those who were thus endowed, they generally chose Church-officers, and the very Deacons and Helps had these gifts, Rom. 12. 7, 8. See Note on 1 Cor. 12. 28. And hence the Apostles here say, Look ye out men full of the Holy Ghost, and wisdom.

Ver. 3, 6. [d] Whom we may appoint over this business;——and they laid their hands upon them.] Here two things are disputed:

1st, Whether these seven were chosen, and ordained to a civil office only, viz. that of ministring only to the necessities of widows, and other indigent disciples; or also to the sacred office of a Deacon, and so impowered to preach the word, and baptize. Certain it is, that of these seven, St. Stephen did preach the Word, and that Philip did baptize, Acts 8. 12, 38. But then it is said, they did so, not as men chosen and ordained to this office, but as being of the number of the seventy disciples, ἐξ ὧν ἦσαν οἱ ἑπτὰ, of whom these seven were, saith (a) Epiphanius. And indeed, the ancients seem to have been divided about this matter; the Council of (b) Neocæsarea saying expressly, that there ought to be but seven Deacons in the great cities, as we learn καὶ ἡ βίβλος τῶν πραξέων, from the Acts of the Apostles; and the (c) Apostles in their Constitutions, that they, after our Lord's ascension, had chosen διακόνους ἑπτὰ τὸν ἀριθμὸν, seven Deacons; of which number, Stephen was one: And the Synod in Trullo, on the other hand, saying, That the Apostles spake not there περὶ τῶν τοῖς μυστηρίοις διακονούντων, of those who served at the altar, but of those that served τῇ χρείᾳ τῶν τραπεζῶν, to the business of tables; but this is as true of the Deacons mentioned by St. Paul, 1 Tim. 3. that there is not a word said of their ministring at the altar: and it seems very unlikely, that the Apostles would have made this one requisite of the persons to be chosen, that they should be full of the extraordinary gifts of the Holy Ghost, and of wisdom, if their office had confined them to the ministry of the widows at Jerusalem; or that they, who were Evangelists before, as Philip is expressly stiled, should wholly lay aside the preaching of the Word, and attend only on a civil office. See Acts 21. 8. Moreover, it is certain that Deacons were instituted before St. Paul writ his first Epistle to Timothy; for we have mention of them in the Epistle to the Philippians, writ three years before that to Timothy; and they are mentioned in the advice to Timothy, not as an office to be instituted, but as a standing office then settled in the Church, as they must be if Bishops were then so, they being necessary attendants on that higher function, acording to the words of (d) Epiphanius, Ἀπὸ γὰρ διακόνου ἐπίσκοπον ἀδύνατον εἶναι, A Bishop cannot be without a Deacon. Now if they were not instituted here by the Apostles, I desire to know when, where, and by whom they were instituted, and what other record we have left us of such an institution of them.

Object. 1. Against this it is objected first, that these seven are never called Deacons in the whole history of the Acts of the Apostles, and that this name is never given either to St. Stephen, or to Philip the Evangelist.

Answ. But this objection can be of no strength against the suffrage of all antiquity, which hath still given them the name of Deacons, seeing they have no other name ascribed to them in the whole Acts of the Apostles, or the sacred history, they are never called διάκονοι τραπεζῶν, ministers of tables in all the Acts, though here they are said to be appointed for that work: And so saith (e) Jerom, of the Deacons of his age, That they they were menſarum & viduarum miniſtri, the miniſters not only of the prieſts, but alſo of widows and tables. So he ſtiles them in his epiſtle to Evagrius, and bids them learn the reaſon of their inſtitution from the Acts of the Apoſtles.

Object. 2. It is farther objected, that in St. Paul's account of the Deacons of the Church, there is no mention of this part of their office, to provide for widows, and ſerve tables, nor any quality required of them which reſpects that office.

I anſwer, That, according to this argument, ſhould all that hath been ſaid be granted, the Deacons could have no authority to baptize, or adminiſter either the bread or the cup to the laity, there being not one word of any ſuch office belonging to them in St. Paul's epiſtles to Timothy, nor of any aſſiſtance they are to give the Biſhop.

2*dly*, I anſwer, That as the Deacons of St. Paul are to be grave, and hold the faith in a good conſcience, ſo are the Deacons here to be men of honeſt report and wiſdom, v. 3. as they were to be approved, and then to execute the office of a Deacon, 1 Tim. 3. 9. So was it here, ver. 5, 6. Now men of double tongues, and given to much wine, could neither be men of good report, nor men of wiſdom, and much leſs could they be approved as ſuch; ſo that the characters of the Deacons here ſeem virtually to include all the characters required of them there, and two more, eſpecially relating to ſacred offices, viz. that they ſhould be men full of the Holy Ghoſt and wiſdom; and that which St. Stephen doth here, and St. Philip did in preaching to the Samaritans, and then baptizing them, is the foundation of the authority given by Biſhops to Deacons, to preach the word, and to baptize. Moreover, their being miniſters of tables, made them alſo miniſters at the agapæ, where the Biſhop was to be acquainted with the neceſſities of the widows and the poor, ſay the (f) Apoſtolical Conſtitutions, διὰ τ ὑπηρετῶν, τ. τ. διὰ τ διακόνων, by the Miniſters, that is, the Deacons; and ſo they became attendants alſo on him, or on the Preſident, who conſecrated the Euchariſt, celebrated at the ſame time with theſe feaſts of charity; and ſo they diſtributed the bread and wine to the communicants, and carried them, ſaith (g) J. Martyr, to thoſe that were abſent. Hence are they ſtiled by (h) Ignatius and (i) Polycarp, not only the miniſters of meats and drinks, but the ſervants of the Church of God, and ſaid to be ſervants, not of men, but of God and Chriſt, as ſervants are in that relation ſaid to ſerve the Lord Chriſt, and therefore are bid to do all things as to the Lord, and not unto men, Col. 3. 23, 24. And (k) Clemens of Alexandria ſaith, that in the Church the Presbyters have τ βελτιωτικὸν εἰκόνα, τ ὑπηρετικὸν οἱ διάκονοι, the repreſentation of thoſe who make men better, and the Deacons of them that ſerve. And, becauſe they perform this miniſtry under the inſpection of the Biſhop, and gave him an account of the condition of the widows and the poor, and had from him, or his Preſbyters, the treaſury of the Church to diſtribute to others: Therefore is this ſo often mentioned in church hiſtory, as part of the epiſcopal office, to have the care of all that are in need, as (l) Juſtin Martyr ſaith, the Preſbyters and Deacons doing this only by his authority.

In fine, to ſay that Philip and others of theſe Deacons might preach and baptize, but not as Deacons, but only as Evangeliſts, is not ſufficient in this caſe: for if they were all Evangeliſts, or, as Epiphanius ſaith, of the ſeventy, and afterwards by the Apoſtles ordained Deacons, it is hence evident, that they muſt have with this office a power to preach and baptize, as doubtleſs the Evangeliſts and ſeventy diſciples had; and hence we find, that Philip, being one of thoſe ſeven, Acts 21. 8. did both theſe offices by the direction and aſſiſtance of the Holy Ghoſt, Acts 8. 12, 29——40. If they were not, yet being men full of the Holy Ghoſt, and of that wiſdom which enabled them to teach others, we cannot reaſonably conceive they were diſabled by their ordination to this office, from doing that work for which they were thus fitted, and as it were appointed, by theſe gifts of the Holy Spirit conferred upon them. In a word, it is evident from this hiſtory, that before the ordination of theſe Deacons, the Apoſtles themſelves were engaged in this work; for the treaſure of the Church was laid at the Apoſtles feet, and diſtribution of it was made to every man according as he had need, Chap. 4. 35. This diſtribution therefore muſt be made by them who had this treaſure in their hands, and therefore they appoint theſe ſeven ſeven over this buſineſs, to eaſe themſelves of this trouble, that they might give themſelves more entirely to prayer, and to the miniſtry of the word, and might not, by attending on this work, be hindred in the execution of that higher office: Now ſurely, that work which the Apoſtles perſonally performed for a ſeaſon, muſt be conſiſtent with their commiſſion, to teach and to baptize all nations.

Ver. 6. [c] The Apoſtles laid their hands on them.] Here ſeemeth to be nothing in this relation which favours the authority of the laity, in chuſing perſons to ſacred offices; for though the choice of theſe ſeven was committed to them, yet was this done, (1.) By the particular appointment of the Apoſtles themſelves; for the twelve called the multitude, and ſaid to them, Look ye out ſeven men, ver. 2, 3. (2.) They ſpecify the number and the qualifications of the perſons to be choſen to this office. (3.) They reſerve to themſelves the appointment of them to this work, ſaying, Look ye out ſeven men whom we may appoint over this buſineſs. And, laſtly, they only laid their hands upon them. See Chryſoſt. in locum.

Ver. 9. [f] Certain of the ſynagogue of the Libertines, and Cyrenians, and Alexandrians, and them of Cilicia and Aſia, diſputed with Stephen.] That the word ſynagogue is to be repeated before all the places mentioned here, appears from this, that the Jews mention a ſynagogue of the Alexandrians at Jeruſalem, as Dr. Lightfoot here noteth. Moreover, there being men of all theſe nations living in Jeruſalem, and ſpeaking their native language, and who yet were proſelytes to the Jewiſh religion, Chap. 2. 8—11. it is reaſonable to conceive, that they had alſo ſynagogues for prayer, and hearing of the law, and pious exhortations, in a tongue they underſtood. By the ſynagogue of theſe Libertines, ſome underſtand the Jews that were free-born, or had obtained the Roman freedom, as St. Paul had: ſo Dr. Lightfoot. Others think they were Roman ſervants who had obtained their freedom; οἱ Ῥωμαίων ἀπῃλευθέροι ἕτω καλεῖσθαι, ſaith Oecumenius here. The firſt opinion ſeems to me moſt probable: for though (m) Tacitus, in his Annals, ſaith, that quatuor millia libertini generis Judaica ſuperſtitione infecta, four thouſand libertines infected with the Jewiſh ſuperſtition, were baniſhed into Sardinia; yet (n) Suetonius ſaith, that they were Judæorum juventus, the young men of the Jewiſh nation that were ſent thither; and that reliquos ejuſdem gentis, aut ſimilia ſectantes, urbe ſubmovit, he only expelled the other Jews and their proſelytes, out of the city; (o) Joſephus, that he commanded, πᾶν τὸ Ἰουδαϊκὸν ἐκ Ῥώμης ἀπῃλαθῆναι, all the Jews to be expelled Rome, and that four thouſand of them were ſent to Sardinia by the Conſuls: And (p) Philo ſaith, that he ſuffered a great part of the city beyond Tiber to be inhabited by the Jews, and that theſe Jews, Ῥωμαῖοι ἦσαν οἱ πλείους ἀπῃλευθερωθέντες, were moſt of them Romans ſet at liberty; for being carried captives into Italy they obtained their freedom from their maſters.

Ver. 10. [g] And they were not able to reſiſt the wiſdom with which he ſpake.] So exactly was the promiſe made by Chriſt, Matth. 10. 20. Luke 21. 15. fulfilled in St. Stephen.

Ver. 15. [h] Saw his face as the face of an angel.] This expreſſion of the ſhining of the face like that of an angel, ſeems to have been proverbial among the Jews; for ſo Eſther ſpeaks to Artaxerxes, I ſaw thee as an angel of God, and my heart was troubled, ἀπὸ φόβου τῆς δόξης σου, from fear of thy glory, Eſth. 15. 13. And the Chaldee paraphraſt on Cantic. 1. 4. ſaith, When Iſrael made the calf, their viſage was black as that of an Æthiopian; but when they repented, and their ſin was remitted, the ſplendor of the glory of their countenance was like that of an angel. Now God by this ſplendor of St. Stephen teſtified his innocence, and that he was pleaſing to him as Moſes was, in that he made his face to ſhine as did that of Moſes.

CHAP. VII.

1. THEN ſaid the High-prieſt, Are theſe things ſo (as is ſuggeſted by theſe witneſſes?)

2. And he ſaid, [a] Men, brethren, and fathers, hearken: [b] the God of glory appeared to our father Abraham, [c] when he was in Meſopotamia, before he dwelt in Charran, (Gen. 11. 33.)

3. And ſaid to him, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, (who are idolaters, Joſh. 24. 2.) and come into the land which I ſhall ſhew thee.

4. Then came he (in obedience to this call) out of the land of the Chaldeans, and dwelt in Charran, (his father Terah being then with him, Gen. 11. 31.) and from thence, [d] when his father was dead, he (i. e. God) removed him into this land of Canaan, (Gen. 12. 5.) where ye now dwell:

5. And

(m) Lib. 2. Ed. Lipſ. p. 92. (n) In Tib. c. 36. (o) Antiq. l. 18. c. 5. p. 623.
(p) Leg. ad Caium, p. 785. C.

5. And he gave him none inheritance in it, no [e] not ſo much as to ſet his foot on, yet (q. although) he promiſed that he would give it to him for a poſſeſſion, and (that is) to his ſeed after him, when as yet he had no child.

6. And [f] God ſpake on this wiſe, that his ſeed (beginning from Iſaac) ſhould ſojourn in a ſtrange land, and that they (among whom they ſojourned) ſhould bring them into bondage, and entreat them evil four hundred years;

7. And (then) the nation to whom they ſhall be (laſt) in bondage, will I judge, ſaith God, (Gen. 15. 14.) and after that ſhall they come forth, and (ſhall) [g] ſerve me in this place, (i. e. in this land of Canaan.)

8. And he gave him the covenant of circumciſion; and ſo Abraham (being circumciſed himſelf) begat Iſaac, and circumciſed him the eighth day, and Iſaac begat Jacob, and Jacob begat the twelve Patriarchs.

9. And (the reſidue of) the Patriarchs, (being) moved with envy (by reaſon of his dream) ſold Joſeph into Egypt, but God was with him (there,)

10. And delivered him out of all his afflictions, and gave him favour and wiſdom in the ſight of Pharaoh King of Egypt, and he made him Governor over Egypt, and (over) all his houſe.

11. Now there came a dearth over all the land of Egypt and Canaan, and great affliction, and our fathers found no ſuſtenance;

12. But when Jacob heard that there was corn in Egypt, he ſent out our fathers firſt, (without Benjamin;)

13. And at the ſecond time (when Benjamin was ſent with them) Joſeph was made known to his brethren, and Joſeph's kindred was made known to Pharaoh.

14. Then ſent Joſeph, and called his father Jacob to him, and all his kindred, (who with their wives were) [h] threeſcore and fifteen ſouls.

15. [i] So Jacob went down into Egypt, and died, he and our fathers;

16. And (our fathers) were carried over into Sychem, and (he was) laid in the ſepulchre that Abraham bought for a ſum of money (they in the ſepulchre bought) of the ſons of Emmor the father of Sychem.

17. But when the time of the promiſe drew nigh, (concerning) which God had ſworn to Abraham, (Gen. 22. 16, 17, 18.) the people grew and multiplied in Egypt,

18. Till [k] another King aroſe that knew not Joſeph.

19. The ſame (Gr. he) dealt ſubtilly with our kindred, and evilly entreated our fathers, ſo that they caſt out their young children, to the end they might not live;

20. In which time Moſes was born, and (he) was [l] exceeding fair, and nouriſhed up in his father's houſe three months;

21. And when he was caſt out, Pharaoh's daughter took him up, and nouriſhed him for her own ſon;

22. And (ſo it came to paſs, that) [m] Moſes was learned in all the wiſdom of the Egyptians, and (he) was mighty in words and deeds; (i. e. his words came to paſs, and his deeds were wonderful:)

23. And when he was full forty years old, it came into his heart to viſit his brethren, the children of Iſrael, (and to make himſelf known to them, as one appointed of God to be their deliverer;)

24. And (therefore) ſeeing one of them ſuffer wrong (from an Egyptian taſk-maſter) he defended him, and avenged him that was oppreſſed (by him) and ſmote the Egyptian.

25. For he [n] ſuppoſed (that by this action) his brethren would have underſtood, how that God by his hand would deliver them, but they underſtood (it) not.

26. And the next day he ſhewed himſelf to them, as they ſtrove (one with another) and would have ſet them at one again, (i. e. made them friends) ſaying (to them,) Sirs, ye are brethren, why do ye wrong one to another?

27. But he that did his neighbour wrong, thruſt him away, ſaying, Who made thee a ruler or judge over us?

28. Wilt thou kill me (now) as thou didſt the Egyptian yeſterday?

29. Then fled Moſes (from Egypt) at this ſaying, (the Egyptian King ſeeking his life on that account, Exod. 2. 15.) and (he) was a ſtranger in the land of Midian, where he (was married to Zipporah the daughter of Jethro, and) begat two ſons:

30. And when forty years were expired, [o] there appeared to him in the wilderneſs of Mount Sinai, an angel of the Lord in a flame of fire in a buſh, (ſent from the Shechinah where God was;)

31. When Moſes ſaw (this angel,) he wondred at the ſight, and as he drew near to behold it, the voice of the Lord (from the Shechinah) came to him,

32. Saying, I am the God of thy fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Iſaac, and the God of Jacob: Then Moſes, (perceiving that God himſelf ſpake to him) trembled, and durſt not behold (the viſion.)

33. Then ſaid the Lord to him, Put off thy ſhoes from thy feet, (in token of thy reverence to me, thus ſpeaking to thee,) for the place where thou ſtandeſt is holy ground, (being made ſo by my preſence there.)

34. I

34. I have ſeen, I have ſeen the affliction of my people, which is in Egypt, and I have heard their groaning (under their hard labour,) and am come down to deliver them; and now come, I will ſend thee into Egypt (to that end.)

35. [p] This Moſes whom they (formerly) refuſed, ſaying, Who made thee a ruler and a judge (over us?) the ſame (Gr. him) did God ſend to be a ruler and deliverer, by the hands (or miniſtry) of the angel, which appeared to him (as God's meſſenger) in the buſh; (and)

36. He brought them out (of Egypt,) after that he had ſhewed wonders and ſigns in the land of Egypt, and in the Red Sea, and in the wilderneſs (after they came from Egypt) forty years:

37. This is that Moſes who ſaid to the children of Iſrael, (Deut. 11. 15.) [q] A Prophet ſhall the Lord your God raiſe up to you, of your brethren, like to me, him ſhall ye hear, (which Prophet was Chriſt.)

38. This is he that was in the church (or congregation) in the wilderneſs, [r] with the angel which ſpake to him (from the divine preſence) in Mount Sinai, and (to) our fathers; [s] who received the lively oracles to give to us (which ſpake of him.)

39. (This is he) to whom our fathers would not obey, but (they) thruſt him from them, and in their hearts turned back again into Egypt,

40. Saying to Aaron, Make us Gods to go before us; for as for this Moſes which brought us out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him, (and ſo it is no wonder that they will not hear God's Prophet now.)

41. [t] And they made a calf in thoſe days, and offered ſacrifice to the idol, and rejoiced in the work of their own hands.

42. Then God turned, and gave them up to worſhip the hoſt of heaven, as it is written in the book of the Prophet (Amos, ſaying, Chap. 5. 25.) O ye houſe of Iſrael, [v] have ye offered to me ſlain beaſts and ſacrifices, by the ſpace of forty years in the wilderneſs? (i. e. ye have not offered theſe things to me.)

43. (Καὶ but) [w] ye took up the tabernacle of Moloch, (i. e. the ſun,) and the ſtar of your God Remphan (i. e. and a ſtar to repreſent to you Saturn; theſe being) figures which ye made (whereby) to worſhip them, and (therefore) I will carry you away beyond Babylon.

44. (And yet) [x] our fathers had the tabernacle of witneſs in the wilderneſs, as he (God) appointed, ſpeaking to Moſes, that he ſhould make it according to the faſhion that he had ſeen;

45. Which alſo our fathers that came after, brought in with Jeſus, (i. e. Joſhua) into the poſſeſſion of the Gentiles, whom God drave out before the face of our fathers, (and this tabernacle continued) to the days of David,

46. Who found favour before God, and deſired to find a tabernacle (an habitation) for the God of Jacob, (the father of the Iſraelites.)

47. But (he being a man of blood, Chron. 22. 8. his ſon) Solomon built him an houſe.

48. Howbeit (ἀλλ' but this he did, acknowledging at the ſame time, 1 Kings 8. 27. that) the moſt High dwelleth not in temples made with hands, as ſaith the Prophet (Iſaiah, Chap. 66. 1. in theſe words ſpoken from God;)

49. Heaven is my throne, and the earth is my footſtool; what houſe (then) will ye build me, ſaith the Lord, or what is the place of my reſt?

50. Hath not my hand made all theſe things? (You muſt not therefore think with the heathens, I leave heaven to be preſent there, or am confined to reſt in any building made with your hands.)

51. Ye ſtiff-necked and uncircumciſed in heart and ears, ye (ſurely deſerve more than the heathens, uncircumciſed in the fleſh, to be excluded from God's preſence and habitation; for ye) do always reſiſt the Holy Ghoſt, (the Shechinah) as your fathers did, ſo do ye.

52. Which of the Prophets (acted by that Holy Spirit,) have not your fathers perſecuted? and (καὶ, yea) they have ſlain them, who ſhewed before (by the ſame Spirit) of the coming of the juſt One, of whom ye have been now the betrayers and murderers;

53. (Yea, you are the very ſame perſons) [y] who have received the law (immediately from the mouth of God) by the diſpoſition (adminiſtration) of angels, and have not kept it, (but violated even thoſe laws which were delivered from God immediately, as well as thoſe which he ſpake by the Holy Spirit in the Prophets.)

54. When they heard theſe things, they were cut to the heart, and they gnaſhed upon him with their teeth, (through indignation.)

55. But he being full of the Holy Ghoſt, looked up ſtedfaſtly into heaven, and [z] ſaw the glory of God, and Jeſus ſtanding at the right hand of God;

56. And ſaid, Behold, I ſee the heavens opened, and the Son of man (the Meſſiah) ſtanding at the right hand of God.

57. Then they cried out with a loud voice, and ſtopped their ears, and [aa] ran upon him with one accord,

58. And caſt him out of the city, and ſtoned him, [bb] and the witneſſes laid down their clothes at a young man's feet, whoſe name was Saul.

59. And

59. And they ſtoned Stephen, [cc] calling upon God, and ſaying, Lord Jeſus, [dd] receive my ſpirit.

60. And he kneeled down, and cried with a loud voice, Lord, lay not this ſin to their charge; and when he had ſaid this, he [ee] fell aſleep.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. VII.

Ver. 2. [a] Ἄνδρες, ἀδελφοὶ, men, brethren.] It is cuſtomary with the Hebrews to add the word man, when it imports no more than the word to which it is annexed; as Gen. 13. 8. Let there be no ſtrife between thee and me, for we are men brethren; Exod. 12. 14. Who made thee a man, a prince over us? See Gen. 38. 1. So accordingly men brethren occurs, Chap. 1. 16. Chap. 2. 29, 37. here ver. 2. 26. Chap. 13. 15, 26.—15. 13.—22. 3.—23. 1, 6.—28. 17. So Matth. 13. 28. ἐχθρὸς ἀνθρώπου, is an enemy. See Luke 24. 7.

Ibid. [b] The God of glory appeared to our father Abraham.] How God appeared to him, whether it were by a dream or a viſion, or an angel, the text doth not tell us; but this phraſe, the God of glory appeared, ſeems to make it probable this was done by a voice from the ſchechinah, or divine preſence.

Ibid. [c] When he was in Meſopotamia, before he dwelt in Charran.] Here note, that that part of Meſopotamia, which is next to Aſſyria, is called the land of the Chaldees; for Ur of Chaldea, as Abarbinel obſerves, was in Meſopotamia, lying in the way from Tigris to Niſibis; and therefore Ammianus, lib. 5. ſpeaks of an Ur in Meſopotamia ſo ſituated. And Chaldea and Babylon are reckoned as parts of Meſopotamia, both by (a) Joſephus and by (b) Pliny. That God appeared to Abraham when he was in Meſopotamia, i. e. in Ur of Chaldea, before he dwelt in Haran, though it be not expreſly ſaid, Gen. 11. 31. yet is it to be underſtood there; for, Gen. 15. 7. God ſaith expreſly to him, I am Jehovah, that brought thee out of Ur of the Chaldees; and, Neh. 9. 7. the Levites ſpeak thus, Thou art the Lord which didſt chuſe Abram, and broughteſt him forth out of Ur of the Chaldees; and therefore it is ſaid of the reſt, Gen. 11. 31. that they went forth with them, that is, with Terah and Abraham, from Ur of Chaldea, and came to Haran. Yea, it is obſervable, that Terah is made the chief agent in this remove; for he, ſaith the text, took Abraham and Lot, and went forth from Ur of the Chaldees, with an intention to go to Canaan; whence we may gather that Abraham had made known God's call to him, and that he believed now in that God, who had thus ſpoken to his ſon. For what ſhould move him to leave Ur, but obedience to the divine call, which Abraham received, to which he would not have agreed, if he had not believed in God, as it is certain Lot and Sarah did, who went with them.

Ver. 4. [d] And from thence, after his father was dead, he (God, by another call) removed him into the land of Canaan.] Having proved in the former Note, that Abram went out from Ur of the Chaldees by an eſpecial call from God, the call he received after his father's death, by virtue of which he removed from Charran into the land of Canaan, muſt be a ſecond call, even that mentioned, Gen 12. 1. Now the Lord ſaid to Abraham, Get thee out of thy own country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's houſe, to a land that I will ſhew thee. In the firſt call he is only bid to go out of his country, and from his kindred, which at his firſt removal was not compleatly done, for Charran was in the land of Meſopotamia as well as Ur, Κάρρα πόλις Μεσοποταμίας, as Stephanus informs us: and though Nachor did not preſently go along with his father to Haran, yet that he followed after him with all his family, and dwelt in Meſopotamia and in Charran, is evident; for Eliezer goes to Meſopotamia, to the city of Nachor for Rebeccah, Laban's ſiſter, and the daughter of Bethuel, the ſon of Milcah, the wife of Nachor, Gen. 24. and Rebeccah ſent Jacob to her brother Laban to Charran, Gen. 27. 43. See alſo Gen. 28. 10.——29. 5. At this ſecond call therefore he is bid to depart from his country, where he yet was, and (from his kindred, and from his father's houſe,) come to him there; and now he leaves his brother Nachor, and all his father's houſe behind him.

Ver. 5. [e] Not ſo much as to ſet his foot on.] He being forced there to buy a burial-place, that he might bury his dead out of his ſight, Gen. 23. 3, 4, 16.

Ver. 6. [f] God ſaid,—that his ſeed ſhould ſojourn in a ſtrange land, and that they ſhould bring them into bondage, and entreat them evil four hundred years.] This four hundred years cannot reſpect their ſojourning in Egypt, for that was only two hundred hundred and fifteen years, as both (c) Joſephus and the ſcriptures teſtify, and ſo four hundred and thirty years after the promiſe made to Abraham, leaving Charran to go into the land of Canaan; for that two hundred and fifteen years after that promiſe they went down to Egypt, is thus demonſtrated: Abraham was ſeventy-five years old when he went from Haran to Canaan, and received the promiſe of that land, Gen. 12. 4, 7. and from that time, to the birth of Iſaac, when Abraham was one hundred years old, Gen. 21. 5. is twenty-five years; from the birth of Iſaac to that of Jacob was ſixty years; for Iſaac was ſixty years old when Rebeccah bore him, Gen. 25. 26. from Jacob's birth to his deſcent into Egypt, was, as he ſaith to Pharaoh, one hundred and thirty years, Gen. 47. 9. which ſums put together, make two hundred and fifteen years; and ſo their ſtay in Egypt two hundred and fifteen years more, makes exactly four hundred and thirty years. Some therefore well obſerve, that they ſojourned not only in Egypt, but before in Canaan, ὡς ἐν γῇ ἀλλοτρίᾳ, as in a ſtrange land. Hence the whole land of Canaan is ſtiled the land in which they were, πάροικοι, ſtrangers, or ſojourners, Gen. 17. 8.——26. 3.——35. 27. Exod. 6. 4. Pſalm. 105. 12. And the author to the Hebrews ſaith, they dwelt in Canaan as in a ſtrange land, Chap. 11. 9. See the Note there. Their evil treatment here, and their bondage in Egypt, ſaith the text, ſhall be four hundred years. Theſe years ſome reckon from the birth of Iſaac, from which time, to their deliverance out of Egypt, was four hundred and five years; they therefore tell us, that the five odd years are not mentioned, no notice being taken of ſmall broken numbers; for thus, ſay they, the Greek interpreters, being ſeventy-two, are called the Seventy; and the Roman writers call them Centumviri, who were in all, one hundred and five; and Moſes, Numb. 11. 21. ſaith, the Iſraelites were ſix hundred thouſand, when they were three thouſand five hundred and fifty above that number, as appears from Numb. 1. 46.—2. 32. But others begin the account from the time when Iſmael the ſon of Agar mocked Iſaac, Gen. 21. 9. for that this was done when Iſaac was weaned, we read, ver. 8. and that this was when he was five years old, (d) St. Jerom doth inform us from ſome of the Jews; and this mocking is by St. Paul ſtiled Perſecution, Gal. 4. 29. Now from this time, to the deliverance of the children of Iſrael out of Egypt, is exactly four hundred years: and from this time began the evil treatment of his ſeed. See Additions, N° 5.

Ver. 7. 8. And ſerve me in this place.] This is not ſaid expreſly, Gen. 15. but ver. 16, it is ſaid, that in the fourth generation they ſhall come forth and return hither, which ſeems equivalent to this expreſſion. This ſeems preferable to the expoſition of ſome, who refer this to what is ſaid, Exod. 3. 12. four hundred years after, viz. ye ſhall ſerve me in this mount, that being mount Sinai in Arabia, and not the place or land where St. Stephen was when he ſpake theſe words.

Ver. 14. [h] Ἐν ψυχαῖς ἑβδομήκοντα πέντε, Three-ſcore and fifteen ſouls.] The Hebrew text reckoneth them only ſeventy, Gen. 46. 27. Deut. 10. 22. but the Septuagint adding five ſons of Ephraim and Manaſſeh, born in Egypt, from 1 Chron. 7. make them ſeventy-five; both which, for ought any thing I can ſee to the contrary, may be true: for, mark the way of counting in the Hebrew, all the ſouls that came into Egypt with Jacob, from his loins, were ſixty-ſix; and then, ver. 27. it is ſaid, that to Joſeph were born in Egypt two ſouls; and then it is again ſaid, that all the houſe of Jacob which came into Egypt, (viz. if you add to them Jacob, Joſeph, and his two ſons) were ſeventy ſouls. So alſo ſay the Septuagint, ver. 26. all the ſouls going with Jacob into Egypt, were ſixty-ſix, as the Hebrew ſaid; then ver. 27. the ſons of Joſeph were, with himſelf and father Jacob, nine, viz. five being deſcended from Ephraim and Manaſſeh, ver. 20. ſo that all the ſouls of the houſe of Jacob going down into Egypt, if you add theſe nine to them, are ſeventy-five. Moſes ſaith, All the ſouls that he had reckoned, were ſeventy; but he ſays not, there were no more: the Septuagint add the names of five more, and then ſay, that all the names they had reckoned were ſeventy-five; nor can the names they have reckoned be diſproved, for we find them in the book of Chronicles: So that I ſee no cogent reaſon, why the Hebrew, the Septuagint, and St. Stephen, may not all ſpeak the truth. But,

2*dly*, The texts both in the Hebrew and the Greek, ſeem plainly to hint another ſolution; for, Gen. 46. 26. All the ſouls that came into Egypt from the loins of Jacob, beſides Jacob's ſons wives, were ſixty and ſix; add to theſe the wives of his eleven ſons, and they make ſeventy and ſeven; take take from them Hezron and Hamal, not yet born, and they were only ſeventy five. Now it was the deſign of Moſes only to give an account of thoſe that came out of Jacob's loins, as it is ſaid, ver. 6, 7, 8, 26. and therefore he excepts their wives out of his catalogue of ſixty ſix, and makes them up ſeventy, as before, ver. 27. But Stephen undertakes only to tell us the number of thoſe that Joſeph called into Egypt, viz. his father, καὶ πᾶσαν συγγένειαν αὐτοῦ, and all his kindred. Some therefore of the liſt of Moſes muſt be left out of St. Stephen's number, viz. Joſeph and his two ſons, who were there already, Hezron and Hamal, who were not yet born, and Jacob whom he reckons apart; that is, take out theſe ſix from the ſeventy, and there remains ſixty four; which, with the eleven wives of his ſons, are ſeventy five. Now that theſe wives were a part of thoſe that were called by Joſeph is certain, becauſe he called Jacob, and his houſhold, and all that he had, Gen. 45. 11. He ſent waggons for their wives, ver. 19. and the ſons of Jacob carried their wives in them, Chap. 46. 5. And therefore (e) Joſephus gives us the words of Joſeph thus, Bring your wives, and your little ones, and all your kindred hither. And that the words συγγένεις and συγγένεια belong to wives, we learn from Lev. 18. 14.——20. 20. Joſh. 6. 23. as well as from Joſephus.

Ver. 15, 16. i So Jacob went down into Egypt, and died, he and our fathers; ver. 16. And were carried over into Sichem, and were laid in the ſepulchre that Abraham bought for a ſum of money of the ſons of Emmor, the father of Sichem.] Theſe words have in them many difficulties; I will begin with the eaſieſt of them. And,

1*ſt*, That Ἐμμὼρ τοῦ Συχέμ, is well rendred the father of Sichem; and that the Greek bears this interpretation, is proved. Note on Luke 24. 1.

2*dly*, It is evident, that Jacob was buried with his fathers, Abraham and Iſaac, in the cave of Machpelah. For thus he ſpeaks to Joſeph, I will lie with my fathers, and thou ſhalt bury me in their burial-place, Gen. 47. 30. and accordingly we read, that Joſeph buried him in the cave of the field of Machpelah, Gen. 50. 13. Hence then 'tis certain, that it cannot be ſaid of Jacob, that he was carried into Siehem, and buried there.

3*dly*, I add, that only Jacob was there buried, and that all the reſt of the Patriarchs were tranſlated to Sichem, and buried there. That Jacob only, of all here mentioned, was buried there, is evident from an old tradition of the Jews, mentioned by (f) Jerom, (g) Hegeſippus, and (h) R. Solomon Jarchi; that Chebron was called Keriath Arbah, the city of the four, becauſe four Patriarchs, viz. Adam, Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob, were buried there: And from the obſervation of the Cabbaliſts, that in the word אדם, is contained by Roſe Theboth, all that were buried in Chebron; to wit,

Iſaac and Jacob,	Adam, Abraham,
Sarah,	Leah.
Rebeccah,

As for the Patriarchs, ſtiled here our fathers, that they being dead, were carried to Siehem, is here ſaid in expreſs words. And (i) St. Jerom giving us a deſcription of the travels of Paula through the Holy Land, ſaith, She came to Sichem, atque inde divertens vidit duodecim Patriarcharum ſepulchra, and paſſing thence, ſhe ſaw the ſepulchres of the twelve Patriarchs, they being buried, not in, but near to Sichem, Joſh. 24. 32. That Moſes took the bones of Joſeph with him when he went out of Egypt, as he had charged his brethren to do when God brought them thence, Gen. 50. 25. we read, Exod. 13. 19. that is, the children of Iſrael did it by his command, Joſh. 24. 32. And R. Solomon on Exod. 13. 19. ſaith, We may learn from this very place, that the bones of all the Patriarchs were brought up with him: And this will appear very probable,

1*ſt*, Becauſe the ſame cauſe that moved Joſeph to deſire burial in the land of Canaan, could not but move all his brethren to deſire the like, they having the ſame faith in the promiſe, and the ſame intereſt in the land, and ſo the ſame principles to move them to deſire it that Joſeph had.

2*dly*, The reſt of the tribes bore the ſame honour to their Patriarch that the tribe of Joſeph did to him, and therefore they muſt be as much concerned to preſerve their bones to be carried out of Egypt with them. And ſeeing Jacob their Father, was ſo concerned to be buried, not in Egypt, but in the land of promiſe, Gen. 47. 30. and Joſeph to have his bones carried from thence into it from the ſame faith, Heb. 11. 22. who can imagine that the twelve fathers of the Church of Iſrael, and heirs of the land of Canaan, ſhould be left in the land of bondage, and not interred in their own land?

Moreover,

Moreover, That their bones were buried in Sichem with the bones of Joſeph, may be made probable from theſe conſiderations:

1*ſt*, That though Joſeph's bones were brought up with them out of Egypt, they were not buried till Joſhua had divided the land among them, and had called all Iſrael to Sichem, to renew the covenant God made with their fathers; for then only it is ſaid, the bones of Joſeph which the children of Iſrael brought out of Egypt, they buried in Sichem. Either then they buried the bones of the other Patriarchs at the ſame time, or not at all; for we read nothing of their doing it in any other aſſembly, at any other time, or place, and ſo may reaſonably conceive, that as they were removed at the ſame time, ſo likewiſe were they buried.

2*dly*, There are but two places aſſigned of the burial of the other Patriarchs, one by Joſephus, who ſaith, they were buried in Hebron; the other by St. Jerom and R. Solomon, that they were buried in Sichem. Now that they were not buried by Joſhua in Hebron, we have great reaſon to believe,

1*ſt*, Becauſe we do not read, that Joſhua ever came to Hebron, but to deſtroy the city. (2*dly*,) From the traditions already produced, that it was called Kiriath Arbah, becauſe the four great Patriarchs only were buried in it. And (3*dly*,) From the places where Joſephus ſaith the contrary; for in his ſecond book of Antiquities, Chap. 4. he hath many other idle tales, which may cauſe us to ſuſpect this; and in his book of the Jewiſh wars, he begins his ſtory thus, (*) Μυθεύουσι, They of Hebron tell a tale ſo and ſo, καὶ δείκνυσι, and they ſhew their ſepulchres to this day, σπήλαια λίθου μαρμάρου καὶ φιλοτίμως ἐξησκημένα, wrought curiouſly in fine marble, and a tree that had ſtood there from the creation. So that if you will believe Joſephus here, you muſt believe they had ſepulchres of fine marble curiouſly wrought; and then, how wonderful is it that (k) St. Jerom giving us what was chiefly obſervable in every place that Paula came at, ſaith only, that ſhe came to Hebron, that is, Kiriath Arbe, id eſt, oppidum quatuor virorum, Abraham, Iſaac, Jacob & Adam; that is, to the town of the four Patriarchs, Abraham, Iſaac, Jacob, and Adam; and bringing her from Hebron to Sichem, ſhould tell us, ſhe ſaw the ſepulchres of the Patriarchs there, not only being ſilent as to theſe curious marble ſepulchres, but contradicting Joſephus in the whole ſtory?

Now, if theſe things are duly fixed, it is neceſſary, either to ſay with the great Bochart, that ſome unſkilful Grammarian thinking a Nominative caſe was wanting before the word ὠνήσατο was bought, wrote in the margin the word Ἀβραάμ, which others put into the text, without which the words run thus, with exact truth; So Jacob went down into Egypt, and died (there;) he, and our fathers, and they (viz. our fathers,) were carried over into Sichem, and laid in the ſepulchre that was bought for a ſum of money of the ſons of Emmor, the father of Sichem. For that Jacob bought of the ſons of Hamor, the father of Sichem, a field near Sichem, for an hundred keſita, we read Gen. 33. 19. and that keſita is to be rendred pieces of money, he proves in his Hieroz. l. 2. c. 43. where he treats largely on this verſe: The only objection againſt this conjecture, which makes the words ſo plain, is this, that it is not ſupported by any copies or verſions; and on this account, it ſeems neceſſary to admit of the ſenſe given in the paraphraſe, viz.

Ver. 15. And Jacob went down into Egypt, and died, he, and our fathers.

Ver. 16. And (our fathers) were carried over into Sichem, and they were laid (Jacob) in the ſepulchre that Abraham bought for a ſum of money, (they in the ſepulchre bought) of the ſons of Emmor the father of Sichem.

In which paraphraſe, there be three ellipſes of words to be repeated from the former words, but they are ſuch as may be often met with both in the Old and the New Teſtament, as v. g. Pſal. 133. 3. as the dew of Hermon, (and as the dew) which fell upon the hills of Zion; for Hermon and Zion were far aſunder; Eccleſ. 10. 1. As dead flies cauſe the ointment of the Apothecary to ſend forth a ſtinking ſavour, ſo a little folly (cauſeth) a man of reputation for wiſdom and honour (to become unſavoury;) See Numb. 26. 4. In the New Teſtament we have the like example; So 2 Theſſ. 2. 7. He that letteth (will let) till he be taken away; John 9. 3. Neither hath he ſinned, nor his parents, ſo that he ſhould be born blind on that account, (ver. 2.) 1 John 2. 19. but (they went out from us,) that it might appear they were not of us. See Glaſſ. l. 4. de Figuris Gram. Tract. 2. from Obſerv. 8. to the 13.

Ver. 18. [k] There aroſe another King who knew not Joſeph.] As it might very well be; this happening one hundred thirty-five years after the coming of the children of Iſrael into Egypt; for they went out of it eighty years after, when Moſes was ſo old, and this happened ſixty-four years after the death of Joſeph; ſo that the King reigning at that diſtance, might know little of, and leſs regard the good deeds Joſeph had done for Egypt.

Ver. 20. [l] And Moſes was ἀστεῖος τῷ Θεῷ, exceeding fair.] The word God being added to increaſe creaſe the ſignification: ſo Nineveh is called, πόλις μεγάλη τῷ Θεῷ, an exceeding great city, Jona 3. 3. So ὅπλα δωίαλα τῷ Θεῷ, 2 Cor. 10. 4. are very ſtrong weapons. So cedars of God, i. e. goodly cedars, Pſal. 80. 10. mountains of God, Pſal. 36. 7. i. e. great mountains. See Glaſſ. Tract. 1. de Nom. Can. 17. Sect. 3. With this great beauty of Moſes the ancient heathens were acquainted; for (l) Juſtin out of Trogus ſaith, that eum formæ pulchritudo commendabat, the gracefulneſs of his countenance recommended him to others: and (m) Huet ſhews that the whole ſtory of Adonis hid by Venus in an ark, and delivered to Proſerpina, becauſe ſhe admired the great beauty of the infant, was framed out of this ſtory of Moſes.

Ver. 22. [m] And Moſes was learned in all the wiſdom of the Egyptians, and was mighty in word and deed.] Like to this ſaying is that of (n) Lucian, of an Egyptian Prieſt ſkilled in all the wiſdom of the Egyptians. But what this learning of the Egyptians then was, it is not eaſy to define; I ſuppoſe with the (o) Pſeudo Juſtin, that it might be aſtronomy, aſtrology, and geometry; to which you may add from (p) Clemens of Alexandria, skill in phyſick; but whereas (q) Philo adds, arithmetick, muſick, hieroglyphical learning, and ſaith, ἢ ἓξ ἄλλων ἐγκύκλιον παιδείαν Ἕλλησι διδάσκων, that the Greeks, ſent for into Egypt for that purpoſe, taught him the liberal ſciences, he is utterly out; for the Greeks had no learning till long after the time of Moſes, as (r) Clemens Alexandrinus, (s) Joſephus, and many others teſtify; and what they had, was at firſt borrowed from other nations: Moſes, ſaith (t) Joſephus, being older, not only than their learning, but even than their laws and gods.

Ver. 25. [n] He ſuppoſed that his brethren would have underſtood how that God, by his hand, would deliver them.] Two things are here fit to be enquired into, viz. by what authority or right Moſes ſlew the Egyptian, and what reaſon he had to expect the people ſhould underſtand that God deſigned him for their deliverer? The Jewiſh hiſtorians will give us a very eaſy ſolution to theſe difficulties; for their prieſts, ſaith (u) Clemens Alexand. declared, that Moſes ſlew the Egyptian with a word, and ſo gave them a miracle to prove his miſſion, and ſo then he muſt be killed by him who is the Lord of life and death: (x) Joſephus alſo ſaith expreſly, that God appeared to Amram, the father of Moſes, as he was praying to him for the afflicted Jews, and told him, Thy ſon, now in the womb of thy wife, ſhall eſcape the hands of the Egyptians, and, τὸ μὲν Ἑβραίων γένος τῶν παρ' Αἰγυπτίοις ἀνάγκης ἀπολύσει, ſhall deliver the Hebrews from the afflictions of the Egyptians; and that to confirm this viſion his wife brought him forth without any pain. He alſo adds, that a celebrated Prophet among the Egyptians declared, that an Hebrew ſhould be born then, who ſhould afflict the Egyptians, and when Moſes was grown up, counſelled the King of Egypt to deſtroy him, ſaying, that (y) by killing him he would free the Egyptians from fear, and cut off the hopes of the Hebrews. But not to depend on theſe things, the Jeruſalem Talmud declares, that Moſes ſlew the Egyptian by the ſpirit of prophecy, or that he did it by an extraordinary impulſe from God, and (z) Maimonides makes this action one degree of prophecy; and thus (as Stephen ſaith) it came into his heart (from God) to viſit his brethren, ver. 23. and indeed otherwiſe he could not have juſtified this fact to God and his own conſcience. Now Moſes knowing what an extraordinary perſon he had been in words and deeds, ver. 22. and what had been declared of him to his father, and by this action working deliverance to one of them, might juſtly hope they would look upon him as one appointed by God to be their deliverer.

Ver. 30. From the expreſs aſſertion of Chriſt, viz. that ὁ Θεὸς, God ſpake to Moſes in the buſh, Mark 12. 26. So Moſes Moſes himſelf informs us, when he prays, Deut. 33. 16. that the bleſſing of him that appeared in the buſh might fall upon the head of Joſeph, that is, ſaith Onkelos, of him whoſe Majeſty dwells in the heavens, and was revealed to Moſes in the buſh: ſaith B. Uziel, of him who made the glory of his divine Majeſty dwell in the buſh. (2.) This appears from the words here ſpoken, ſaith Stephen, by the voice of the Lord, I am the God of Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob, I have heard the affliction of my people, I will ſend thee into Egypt, and alſo from the words in Exodus, for there Moſes, who went boldly towards the angel to ſee that great ſight, when God ſaid, I am the God of Abraham, trembled, and durſt not behold, Exod. 3. 6. being afraid to look upon God, and ver. 13. Moſes ſaid to God, What is thy name? and God anſwers, I am, and bids him ſay, I am, and the God of your fathers hath ſent me to you. And, laſtly, if theſe names could belong to a created angel, I would gladly know how Chriſt received a more excellent name than the angels, as we read, Heb. 1. 4. So that God was here preſent as the chief perſon ſpeaking to Moſes, the angel only as his miniſter and his attendant. See the Note on John 1. 1.

Ver. 35. p This Moſes whom they refuſed.] For though only one of them ſaid to him, Who made thee a ruler or judge over us? yet that one is thought to have been a ruler of a tribe, and ſo to have ſpoken in the name of the reſt. Moreover, none of them acknowledged him as one by God appointed to be their prince, and ſaviour out of the hands of the Egyptians, ver. 27. and therefore it is ſaid, ἠρνήσαντο, they denied him, as the Jews are ſaid to deny that Jeſus whom they would not acknowledge. See the Note on Chap. 3. 14.

Ver. 37. q A Prophet ſhall the Lord——raiſe up to you, &c.] See Note on Chap. 3. 22.

Ver. 38. r With the angel that ſpoke to him in mount Sinai.] Perhaps the ſame angel which appeared to him as an attendant on the divine Majeſty in the buſh; for though the law was given by the diſpoſition of angels, ver. 53. of which place ſee the Note on John 1. 1. Heb. 2. 2. yet ſeems there to have been a principal angel (perhaps Michael their Prince, Dan. 10. 21.) who attended upon Moſes, and the children of Iſrael, and who is therefore ſtiled by God my Angel; ſo Exod. 23. 23. My Angel ſhall go before thee, that is, ſaith Baal Hatturim, Michael, my peculiar Angel; ſo alſo Chap. 32. 34. This Moſes owns, by ſaying, Numb. 20. 16. when we cried to the Lord——he ſent an Angel, and hath brought us forth out of Egypt, that is, Michael the Prince, ſay the Jews, and therefore he ſaith, I am come as Captain of the hoſt of the Lord, Joſh. 5. 14. which is the title of Michael, Dan. 10. 13. but this is not ſo to be underſtood as to exclude the preſence of God himſelf, for this angel was ſent from the Schechinah, or divine preſence, which was in the pillar of the cloud.

Ibid. s Who received, λογια ζωντα, the lively oracles to give to us.] The law of Moſes is here ſtiled the lively oracles, not becauſe they were able ζωοποιειν, to give life, for that St. Paul expreſly denies, Gal. 3. 21. calling this law the miniſtry of death and condemnation, 2 Cor. 3. 6, 9. But becauſe they were oracles proceeding not from dumb idols, but from the living God, and promiſing a proſperous and happy life in Canaan, to all that obeyed them, Levit. 18. 5. Deut. 15. 16.—32. 47. on which account this word is ſtiled, Heb. 4. 12. λογος ζωντος θεου, the word of the living God, and 1 Pet. 1. 23. the living word of God, as being quick and vital in its operations. See the Note on Heb. 4. 12.

Ver. 41. t And they made a calf in thoſe days, and offered ſacrifice to the idol.] Here note,

1*ſt*, That the calf worſhipped by the Jews is expreſly called an idol, and they who worſhipped it are expreſly ſtiled idolaters, 1 Cor. 10. 7. and with good reaſon, becauſe they changed the image of the incorruptible God into the ſimilitude of a calf, Pſal. 106. 19, 20. Note,

2*dly*, That the worſhip performed by them to this golden calf, was worſhip directed by them to the true God, viz. to that God which brought them from the land of Egypt: for when they had made them a molten calf, they ſaid, This is thy God which brought thee out of the land of Egypt, Nehem. 9. 18.

Nor can we otherwiſe conceive, if we conſider, (1.) That by this God they could not poſſibly intend to ſignify the very image they had made, there being nothing more repugnant to common ſenſe, and more irrationally ſtupid, than to conceive that what they made the other day, was both their maker and preſerver, whilſt it was nothing in the world, and that it gave them power before it was in being. Men may aſſert ſuch things, who have no other refuge or defence, but cannot poſſibly believe themſelves in what they do affirm. (2.) They could not be conceived to affirm, that this God, who brought them out of the land of Egypt, was the Egyptian Serapis: for then they muſt imagine, that this Egyptian god wrought all the miracles they ſaw done in Egypt upon thoſe that owned and worſhipped him, in favour of thoſe perſons who did not own him for a God, but looked upon him as a devil: and that he did inflict the heavieſt judgments upon them that feared him, and ſhewed the greateſt kindneſs unto thoſe that feared him not, by ſeparating betwixt them and the Egyptians, and not permitting any of his judgments to moleſt or touch them. They muſt believe that the Egyptian Serapis had enjoined them to abſtain from all thoſe modes of worſhip with which he was ſerved in Egypt, as an abomination to him; for in the day that he lifted up his hand unto them to bring them forth of the land of Egypt,—then ſaid he unto them, Caſt away every man the abomination of his eyes, and defile not your ſelves with the idols of Egypt, I am the Lord your God, Ezek. 20. 6, 7. Laſtly, they muſt believe that he who executed his judgments on the Egyptian gods was the Egyptian god, and that the God of the Hebrews, who ſaid, Let my people go that they may ſerve me, Exod. 7. 1. was the god of Egypt, and that he who wrought thoſe miracles unto this end, that the Egyptians might know that he was the Lord, Exod. 14. 18. was he whom the Egyptians owned as their god; all which deductions are too abſurd to be believed. Moreover (1.) The reaſon why they deſired the making of this god to go before them, is delivered thus, Up, make us gods which ſhall go before us, for as for this Moſes, the man that brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him, Exod. 32. 1. And from theſe words it is apparent, that the want of Moſes was the only cauſe why they required this golden calf to go before them. Now it is certain, that they eſteemed not Moſes to be God, but only one who repreſented God, and who declared his mind unto them; on which account God himſelf ſaith, that he ſhould be to Aaron inſtead of God, Exod. 4. 16. and therefore it is alſo certain, that they deſired only ſome other repreſentative of God, which Aaron might conſult to know the mind of God. (2.) Here they expreſly do acknowledge that Moſes brought them out of the land of Egypt, i. e. the God of Moſes did ſo. Now they all knew the true Jehovah was that God whom Moſes taught them to adore, and that the God of Moſes was not that calf, which he knew nothing of, nor that Egyptian Apis which he had ſo much oppoſed and vilified; when therefore they affirm, at the beholding of this calf, theſe are thy Gods, this affirmation muſt be ſuppoſed conſiſtent with their former words, which do acknowledge that the God of Moſes brought them forth, &c. Now ſince the golden calf, or the Egyptian Apis, were not, even in the apprehenſion of theſe men, the God of Moſes, theſe words, viz. theſe are thy Gods, cannot be ſpoken of the calf, or the Egyptian Apis, and therefore muſt be underſtood of him, who was indeed the God of Moſes, and ſo muſt ſignify, this is the ſign, this is the repreſentation of that God which brought us forth, &c. Again, this we may gather from the feaſt they conſecrated, for Aaron doth expreſly ſay, it was a feaſt to Jehovah; whereas, had it been really intended as an honour done to the Egyptian dæmons, it cannot be conceived that Aaron would both give unto theſe devils, the proper and incommunicable name of God, and alſo offer ſacrifice to devils. He therefore, whom he called Jehovah, and to whom he offered thoſe peace-offerings, was he who truly bears that name. And, (3.) This is plain from St. Stephen's words, ver. 41, 42. And they made a calf in thoſe days, and offered ſacrifice unto idols, and rejoiced in the works of their own hands; then God turned, and gave them up to worſhip the hoſt of heaven: For it is obſervable, that the idolatry of the calf was diſtinct from the other heathen idolatry, this being the puniſhment of the other, and only a conſequent of that, for then God turned, and gave them up to worſhip the hoſt of heaven. Since then the worſhip of Oſiris under the ſpecies of a golden bull, and of the Egyptian Apis in the ſymbol of a living calf, was really the worſhip of the Sun and Moon, as the great (a) Selden doth inform us, it follows, that when they worſhipped the golden calf, they were not given up unto the worſhip of Oſiris, or the Egyptian Apis, which were adored by the Egyptians as the moſt glorious part of all the hoſt of heaven.

Hence then it muſt demonſtratively follow, that the worſhip of the true God in an image, or material repreſentation, is, in the ſcripture-ſenſe, idolatry.

them; but ſent his Prophets to forbid it, which he did not to the heathen world.

Ibid. [v] Have ye offered to me ſlain beaſts, and ſacrifices, by the ſpace of forty years in the wilderneſs?] This queſtion is a ſtrong negative, importing, that though they really did offer ſacrifices as he had commanded, yet did he not accept, or look upon them as offered to him; the expreſſion is like that of the Prophet Zachary, Chap. 7. 5. When ye faſted and mourned in the fifth and ſeventh month theſe ſeventy years, did ye at all faſt to me, even to me? And this is here denied,

1*ſt*, Becauſe God will accept of no worſhip as done unto him, which is not done unto him alone; and when any other is worſhipped with him, he looks upon himſelf as not worſhipped at all. So of thoſe nations which came from Aſſyria into the cities of Samaria, it is ſaid, 2 Kings 17. 33. they feared the Lord, and ſerved their own gods; and then it is added, ver. 34. that they feared not the Lord.

2*dly*, Becauſe God will not own any worſhip as performed to him, whilſt men continue in their diſobedience to his laws, and in their hearts depart from him, and incline to a worſhip he approves not of; thus the Jews in Zachary are ſaid, not to faſt to him, becauſe they would not hearken to, or obey his words, ver. 8. and he is ſaid to have been angry with them in the wilderneſs forty years, becauſe they erred from him in their hearts, Pſal. 95. 10. that is, ſaith the Chaldee, they had their idols in their hearts. And the Samaritans are ſaid to worſhip they knew not what, John 4. 22. becauſe they did not worſhip him according to his will revealed in his word. See the Note there.

Ver. 43. [w] Yea ye took up the tabernacle of Moloch, and the ſtar of your god Remphan: figures which you made to worſhip them, &c.] Here note,

1*ſt*, That theſe words are taken from Amos, 5. 26. where the words, in our tranſlation, are, Ye have born the tabernacle of your Moloch, and Chiun your images, the ſtar of your god. Note,

2*dly*, That theſe words of the Prophet are by St. Stephen produced to prove that God gave them up to worſhip the hoſt of heaven, as the puniſhment of their worſhipping the golden calf; even as God is ſaid to have given up the heathens to uncleanneſs, and vile affections, Rom. 1. 24, 26. as the puniſhment of their former idolatry, ver. 21, 23. So that the gods here mentioned muſt belong to the hoſt of heaven. Note,

3*dly*, That Moloch is thought to be the ſun, for the whole Eaſt did worſhip the ſun and moon, as the King and Queen of heaven; and interpreters almoſt generally agree, that Baal, Bel, or Belus, ſo often mentioned in the ſcriptures as worſhipped by the heathens, is the ſun, or Lord of heaven. Now Baal the Lord, and Moloch the King of heaven is the ſame. So (b) Euſebius tells us of the Phœnicians, out of Sanchoniathon, that when drought happened, they did τὰς χεῖρας ὁρέξαι εἰς ἐκεῖνας τὰς τοῦ Ἡλίου, τὸν γὰρ μόνον Θεὸν ἐνόμιζον μόνον ἐφορᾶν Κτίσιν, Βεελσάμην καλοῦντες, lift up their hands to heaven to the ſun, whom they owned as the only Lord of heaven, calling him Beelſamen, that is, the Lord of heaven; and (c) Damaſcius in Photius ſaith, the Syrians and Phœnicians τὸν Κρόνον Ἦλ καὶ Βὴλ ἐπονομάζουσι, call Saturn El and Bel; and (d) Servius upon Virgil ſays, that the Sun and Saturn were worſhipped by the Aſſyrians and the Africans under the name of Bel. See for the farther proof of this, Voſſ. de Idol. l. 2. c. 4. Spencer de ritibus Hebr. p. 551.

As for the other word Chiun, changed by the Septuagint into a name better known, viz. Rephan or Remphan, Voſſius thinks it ſignifies the moon, ibid. Chap. 23. But Aben-Ezra on the place informs us, that it ſignifies Saturn, and that with great probability, (e) Saturn bearing that name, ſay the learned, in the Arabian and Perſick tongue; and in the Egyptian Alphabet, Pῆφαν is Saturn. Note,

4*thly*, That to Moloch is aſcribed Succoth, a tabernacle or tabernacles, becauſe he was worſhipped in little ſhrines, chapels, and tabernacles, which they uſed to carry about with them, as Grotius and Dr. Hammond here prove;

To Remphan a ſtar, becauſe the heathens worſhipped their gods, damons, and heroes, under the name of ſome ſtar appropriated to them, as (f) Dr. Spencer ſhews, and ſo the Egyptian god Rempham or Remphin, mentioned by Diodorus Siculus, might be worſhipped in the ſtar Saturn.

And becauſe they made images of theſe gods, and put them into theſe ſhrines, and chapels, or tabernacles

(b) Præp. Evang. l. 1. c. 10. p. 34. (c) Cod. 242. p. 1050.

(d) Aſſyrios conſtat Saturnum (quem eundem & Solem dicunt) coluiſſe, qua numina etiam apud Afros poſtea culta ſunt, unde & Punica Lingua Bel Deus dicitur, apud Aſſyrios autem Bel dicitur quadam ſacrorum ratione & Saturnus & Sol. In Prim. Æneiad. Virg. 733.

(e) Spencer p. 551, 552. (f) P. 554.

tabernacles to be worſhipped, therefore the Prophet calls them, צלמיכם, images of their gods, which they had made.

Laſtly, Becauſe the tabernacles of Moloch and Saturn, to whom they offered their ſons and daughters, had (g) ſeptem conclavia, ſeven cells, or receptacles, according to the number of the ſeven planets; therefore perhaps it is that St. Stephen ſaith, they worſhipped the hoſt of heaven.

5*thly*, That they were guilty of this idolatry whilſt they continued in the wilderneſs, tho' we read nothing of it expreſly in the five books of Moſes, we cannot doubt, if we believe the Prophet Amos, declaring from God, that they did not offer ſacrifice to him in the wilderneſs, becauſe they were then guilty of this idolatry; or St. Stephen ſaying, that, in puniſhment of the calf they made and worſhipped there, God gave them up to worſhip the hoſt of heaven: And to this we may refer the complaint of the Pſalmiſt, that even then they erred in their hearts, and knew not his ways; and more certainly the words of Joſhua, Chap 24. 14. and now put away the ſtrange gods which your fathers ſerved on the other ſide the river, and in Egypt, and ſerve the Lord: for if they had them not among them, they could not put them away; and his following words, ver. 19. ye cannot ſerve the Lord (whilſt ye retain your idols,) for he is a jealous God.

And, laſtly, whereas St. Stephen ſaith, I will carry you beyond Babylon, though the Prophet had only ſaid, I will carry you beyond Damaſcus, this need give us little trouble, ſeeing this prophecy was fulfilled by Salmanaſſer, King of Aſſyria, carrying them both beyond Damaſcus and Babylon, into the cities of the Medes, 2 Kings 17. 6.

Ver. 44. [x] Our fathers had the tabernacle of witneſs;] i. e. In which the true God gave them ſignal teſtimonies of his preſence with them, and indications that he dwelt among them, though as in the wilderneſs, ſo till the times of David they fell off from him to idolatry; this David deſired to build God a temple, and his heart was ſet upon it, Pſal. 133. and his ſon Solomon built it; and in this you place your confidence, ſaying, the temple of the Lord are we, Jer. 7. 4. but know, ſays St. Stephen, that the great God of heaven cannot be confined to your temple, or ſo chuſe it for a place of reſt as that he ſhould not depart from it, or ſuffer it to be deſtroyed again, as he formerly did for your crying provocations; this therefore you may reaſonably expect, who are ſtill a ſtiff-necked people, and uncircumciſed in heart, ſtill reſiſting the Holy Ghoſt in God's Prophets, as your fathers did, and adding to all your other ſins the murder of your promiſed Meſſias; this, I ſay, you have reaſon to expect, did not I warn you of it?

Ver. 53. [y] Who have received the law εἰς διαταγὰς ἀγγέλων·] That is, ſaith Grotius, inter angelorum turmas, by God appearing with his hoſt of angels, for ſo we read he did at mount Sinai, when he gave the law: ſo Deut. 33. 2. The Lord came from Sinai, he came with ten thouſand ἀγγέλων, of angels: from his right hand went a fiery law for them. And, Pſal. 68. 17. The chariots of God are twenty thouſand, even thouſands of angels, and the Lord is among them as in Sinai. I rather chuſe to ſay, by the adminiſtration of angels, they all here miniſtring to God when he gave the law. See Note on John 1. 1. and Heb. 2. 2.

Ver. 55. [z] He ſaw the glory of God:] That is, the Schechinah, the ſymbol of God's glorious preſence: See the Notes on Rom. 1. 23. and on Heb. 1. 3. And Jeſus ſtanding at the right hand of God, as in a poſture ready to receive him.

Ver. 57. [aa] They ran upon him with one accord.] Though they ruſh upon him in this caſe, yet they do it only becauſe by freſh words of blaſphemy, as they conceived, he had confirmed the former blaſphemy teſtified againſt him by two witneſſes, and therefore they draw him out of the city, becauſe their traditions ſaid, that no man was to be ſtoned in the camp, or in the city, and ſtone him after the legal manner, the witneſſes againſt him beginning the execution; and ſo here is no evidence that this was done jure zelotarum, and not by courſe of juſtice, the Sanhedrim having before ſufficiently ſhewed what they thought of him, by being mad againſt him, gnaſhing upon him with their teeth.

Ver. 58. [bb] And they laid their cloaths at the feet of a young man, whoſe name was Saul.] See Note on Philem. 9.

Ver. 59. [cc] Ἐπικαλούμενον, calling upon Chriſt, and ſaying, Lord Jeſus, receive my ſpirit.] Here we find Stephen full of the Holy Ghoſt, calling religiouſly upon Chriſt, now in heaven, to receive his ſpirit, and thereby teſtifying not only that religious worſhip was due to him, but alſo that he could hear his prayer, and receive his ſpirit at that diſtance, and therefore was omnipreſent, and the ſearcher of the heart, and he in whoſe hands the ſpirits of men were; for he doth not ſay, Κύριε σὺ Ἰησοῦ, thou who art the Lord of Jeſus; that phraſe being never uſed in the New Teſtament, but Κύριε Ἰησοῦ, Lord Jeſus, receive my ſpirit: Like to this is that prayer of St. John, Rev. 22. 20. Κύριε Ἰησοῦ, Come, Lord Jeſus, come quickly.

Ibd.

(g) See Voſſ. de idol. l. 2. c. 5. p. 169.

Ibid. [dd] Receive my ſpirit.] Hence it appears, that the ſpirit of man is a ſubſtance diſtinct and ſeparable from the body, and which dies not with it; for Stephen prays not to the Lord Jeſus to receive his body, but only to receive his ſpirit, now to be ſeparated from it. See the Notes on Luke 23. 40. and on 2 Tim. 1. 12. Now, if the ſpirit of a man died with the body, no reaſon can be given why St. Stephen ſhould pray to the Lord Jeſus to receive his ſpirit rather than his body. Moreover, this being ſaid by a Jew in preſence of the Jews, is doubtleſs to be underſtood, according to the ſenſe and the opinion of the Jews, who held, that the ſouls of juſt men were in the hand of God, Wiſd. 3. 1. and were in peace: which expreſſions agree not to a thing which is inſenſate; nor could an inſenſate being have any hope at all, much leſs an hope full of immortality, as he there ſpeaks, ver. 2. 3.

Ver. 60. [ee] He fell aſleep.] See Note on John 11. 11.

CHAP. VIII.

1. AND Saul (when Stephen thus died) was conſenting to his death; and [a] at that time there was a great perſecution againſt the Church which was at Jeruſalem; and they (that were of it) were all ſcattered abroad throughout the regions of Judea and Samaria, except the Apoſtles.

2. And devout men carried Stephen [b] to his burial, and made great lamentation over him.

3. As for Saul, he made havock of (Gr. and Saul waſted, or afflicted) the Church, entring into every houſe (of the faithful,) and haling men and women (thence, he) committed them to priſon.

4. [c] Therefore they that were (they therefore being) ſcattered abroad, went every where (Gr. went through Judea and Samaria, ver. 1.) preaching the word.

5. Then [d] Philip (the Evangeliſt, being one of the ſeven, Chap. 21. 8.) went down to the city of Samaria, and preached Chriſt to them.

6. And the people with one accord gave heed to thoſe things which Philip ſpake, hearing and ſeeing the miracles which he did (to confirm his doctrine.)

7. For unclean ſpirits crying with (a) loud voice, came out of many that were poſſeſſed with them; and many taken with palſies, and that were lame, were healed.

8. And there was great joy in that city, (that a perſon ſo beneficial was come to them.)

9. But there was a certain man called Simon, which beforetime uſed ſorceries in the ſame city, and bewitched (Gr. and a certain man, named Simon, was before in that city, uſing magick, and aſtoniſhing) the people of Samaria, giving out (Gr. ſaying) that himſelf was [e] ſome great one:

10. To whom they all gave heed from the leaſt to the greateſt, ſaying, This man is the great power of God:

11. And to him they had regard, becauſe that of long time he had betwitched (aſtoniſhed) them with (his) ſorceries.

12. But when they believed Philip, preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jeſus Chriſt, they were baptized, both men and women (for the remiſſion of ſin, Chap. 2. 38.)

13. Then Simon himſelf believed alſo, (that this Jeſus who enabled Philip to do theſe things, was ſome power ſuperior to any he converſed with:) and when he was baptized, he continued with Philip, and wondred, beholding the miracles and ſigns which were done.

14. Now when the Apoſtles which were at Jeruſalem, heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they ſent to them [f] Peter and John:

15. Who, when they were come down, [g] prayed for them, (ἐπ' αὐτοὺς, over them, whom the Holy Ghoſt ſaw fit to be endued with prophetical gifts for the miniſtry there) that they might receive the Holy Ghoſt.

16. For as yet he was fallen upon none of them, only they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jeſus.

17. Then laid they their hands on them, and they (viſibly) received the Holy Ghoſt, (ſo as to ſpeak with tongues and propheſy, Chap. 19. 7.

18. And when Simon ſaw, that through laying on of the Apoſtles hands, the Holy Ghoſt was given, he offered them money (to obtain the ſame power:)

19. Saying, (Let this reward induce you to) give me alſo this power, that on whomſoever I lay (my) hands, he may receive the Holy Ghoſt.

20. But Peter ſaid to him, [h] Thy money periſh with thee, (i. e. without repentance thou wilt periſh with it,) becauſe thou haſt thought that the gift of God may be purchaſed with money.

21. Thou haſt neither part nor lot in this matter, (i. e. the bleſſings of this kingdom:) for thy heart is not right in the ſight of God.

22. Re-

22. Repent therefore of this thy wickedneſs; and pray God, if perhaps the thought of thy heart may be forgiven thee:

23. For I perceive, that thou art in the gall of bitterneſs, and in the bond of iniquity.

24. Then anſwered Simon, and ſaid, Pray ye to the Lord for me, that none of thoſe things which ye have ſpoken, come upon me.

25. And they, when they had teſtified, and preached the word of the Lord, returned to Jeruſalem, and (by the way) preached the Goſpel in many villages of the Samaritans.

26. And the angel of the Lord ſpake to Philip, ſaying, Ariſe, and go towards the ſouth, to [i] the way that goeth down from Jeruſalem to Gaza, which (way) is (through the deſart of Judah, or to old Gaza which is) deſart.

27. And he aroſe and went; and behold a [k] man of Ethiopia, an eunuch of great authority, under Candace Queen of the Ethiopians, who had the charge of all her treaſure, and had come to Jeruſalem to worſhip,

28. Was returning (to his country,) and ſitting in his chariot, (he) read (in) Iſaias the Prophet.

29. Then the Spirit ſaid to Philip, Go near, and join thy ſelf to this chariot:

30. And Philip ran thither to him, and heard him read (in) the Prophet Iſaias, and ſaid, Underſtandeſt thou what thou readeſt?

31. And he ſaid, [l] How can I (underſtand a prophecy of future times, with which I am wholly unacquainted) except ſome man ſhould guide (direct, or inſtruct) me? And he deſired Philip, that he would come up, and ſit with him.

32. The place (or ſection) of ſcripture which he read, was this, [m] He was led as a ſheep to the ſlaughter, and like a lamb dumb before the ſhearer, ſo opened he not his mouth:

33. [n] In his (ſtate of) humiliation, his judgment was taken away, (and no right done him;) and who can declare (the wickedneſs of) his generation? For his life is (was) taken from the earth.

34. And the eunuch anſwered Philip, and ſaid, I pray thee, of whom ſpeaketh the Prophet this? of himſelf, or of ſome other man?

35. Then Philip opened his mouth, and began at the ſame ſcripture, and preached to him Jeſus.

36. And as they went on their way, they came to a certain water; and the eunuch ſaid, See here is water, what doth hinder me to be baptized?

37. And Philip ſaid, If thou believeſt with all thy heart, thou mayeſt: And he anſwered and ſaid, [o] I believe that Jeſus Chriſt is the Son of God.

38. And he commanded the chariot to ſtand ſtill; and they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch, and he (Philip) baptized him.

39. And when they were come out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip, that the eunuch ſaw him no more; and [p] he went on his way rejoicing.

40. But Philip was found at Azotus; and paſſing through (it,) he preached in all the cities, till he came to Ceſarea (or the tower of Straton, as it was named before it was rebuilt by Herod.)

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. VIII.

Ver. 1. [a] AT that time there was a great perſecution againſt the church which was at Jeruſalem.] The rage they were in for what was ſpoken, as they conceived, againſt the law and the temple, (a) for which they had the higheſt veneration, and the cutting words St. Stephen had pronounced before, and even of the ſanhedrim, as of a ſtiff-necked and uncircumciſed generation, wanting that circumciſion they ſo gloried in, not obſerving that law they ſeemed ſo zealous for, perſecuting the Prophets who foretold of the Meſſias, betraying and murdering him when he was come, gave in all likelihood, the occaſion to this perſecution of all others who believed this, as St. Stephen did; and that this perſecution was ſet on by the authority of this great council, we may learn from the part Saul bore in it; for he confeſſes, that he received his authority to treat the Chriſtians thus from them, Chap. 22. 5.——26. 11. See Additions No. 8.

Ver. 2. [b] Συνεκόμισαν, Buried Stephen, i. e. They prepared Stephen for his burial, as the Greek word properly imports, i. e. they did all things in order to it, waſhing his body. Acts 9. 37. anointing it, and winding it up in linen, putting it in the coffin, carrying it forth to the burial-place, and weeping there over it after the manner of the Jews. But whereas Grotius tells us from (b) St. Auſtin, De Civ. Dei, lib. 22. 8. That the relicks of St. Stephen cured many diſeaſes, it is wonderful he ſhould depend much on the authority of St. Auſtin in this matter, ſeeing he tells us, That hujus martyris corpus ex illo uſque ad iſta tempora tempora latuit, nuper autem apparuit, ſicut ſolent apparere ſanctorum martyrum corpora revelatione Dei, the reliques of this martyr were latent for about four hundred years, and only found by revelation in his time: For is there not ſufficient reaſon to ſuſpect ſuch revelations appearing only in that age, when religion began much to decline, and ſuperſtition, as St. Auſtin confeſſes, to abound? Would God thus honour this martyr only then, and neglect to do it for four hundred years? Or did not Grotius know, that St. Auſtin ſaith in that very chapter, of theſe very miracles, that they are not (c) of ſuch authority, that we ſhould believe them without difficulty or doubting?

Ver. 4. [c] They that were ſcattered abroad, went through all places, preaching the word.] Hence it is highly probable, that it was not the whole church of Jeruſalem, or the body of the laity, (ſeeing we find devout men burying Stephen, v. 3.) that was thus ſcattered abroad: For, what authority had they to preach the word? But the hundred and eight that were full of the Holy Ghoſt: This perſecution aiming chiefly at thoſe who were ſuch as Stephen was; and therefore the diſcourſe paſſes on from him to Philip, another of thoſe perſons ſo qualified to preach the Goſpel.

Ver. 5. [d] Philip.] That this was Philip the Deacon, and not the Apoſtle, ſeems evident from theſe conſiderations: (1.) That he ſeems not to have had the power of giving the Holy Ghoſt by impoſition of hands; for he fell upon none of the Samaritans, till Peter and John came, and laid their hands upon them, ver. 15, 16, 17. and v. 18. it is particularly noted, that the Holy Ghoſt was given only by impoſition of the Apoſtles hands. (2.) That the Apoſtles were ſtill at Jeruſalem, v. 1. whereas this Philip was one of thoſe that were diſperſed, for when St. Luke had ſaid, that the reſt were diſperſed, preaching the Goſpel, ver. 4. he adds, v. 5. and Philip went down to Samaria, preaching Chriſt. And, (3.) He goes from Azotus, evangelizing the cities till he came to Cæſarea, v. 40. and there we find Paul abiding in the houſe of that Philip, who was one of the ſeven Deacons, Acts 21. 8.

Ver. 9. [e] Λέγων εἶναί τινα ἑαυτὸν μέγαν. Saying, that he was ſome great one; and of whom the Samaritans ſaid, that he was ἡ δύναμις τοῦ Θεοῦ ἡ μεγάλη, the great power of God, ver. 10.] The account which, according to St. Luke, this magician gives of himſelf, is only this, That he was μέγας τις, ſome great perſon, as mountebanks uſually repreſent themſelves; and the opinion, which his magical pranks had wrought in the Samaritans, only this, That he was the great power of God; by which words, perhaps, they only meant ſome legate or miniſter of God, aſſiſted by his mighty power; and yet the fathers tell us, he declared himſelf to be eum qui ſit ſuper omnia Pater, the Father which is above all: So (d) Irenæus, that he was bold to call himſelf the chief God: So (e) Tertullian, and that the Samaritans held him to be πρῶτον Θεὸν, the prime God, yea, to be God ὑπὲρ ἄνω πάσης ἀρχῆς καὶ ἐξουσίας καὶ δυνάμεως, above all principality, power, and virtue: So (f) Juſtin M. Tho' he who reads theſe words of Irenæus, Eſſe ſe docuit ſublimiſſimam virtutem, hoc eſt, eum qui ſit ſuper omnia Pater; and theſe of Tertullian, Hic auſus eſt ſummam ſe dicere virtutem, id eſt, ſummum Deum, will be apt to think, they only did infer this from theſe words of St. Luke, that the Samaritans held he was ἡ μεγάλη τοῦ Θεοῦ δύναμις, the great power of God: St. Luke goes on to inform us, that he believed, and was baptized in the name of Jeſus, with the reſt of the Samaritans; and after this it is difficult to conceive, how he ſhould perſuade the Samaritans, that he was God the Father; or the Jews, he was that Son, that Jeſus, into whoſe name he was baptized; or the Gentiles, that he was that Spirit which he would have purchaſed with money: How can we eaſily conceive, that all Samaria ſhould own him as a great God, and yet he, as (g) Theodoret informs us, ſhould preſently after this, leave them, as having received the doctrine of Chriſt, and go thence to thoſe who had not yet received it, and come in the ſecond year of Claudius, i. e. about eight years after to Rome, where he was confounded by the prayers of Peter? or that being overcome, in the ſight of all that dwelt at Rome, they ſhould ſtill have erected till the time of Juſtin M. a ſtatue, Simoni Deo ſancto, to Simon the holy God.

Ver. 12. See Additions, N° 9, 10.

Ver. 14. [f] They ſent to them Peter.] Here we find Peter ſent by the other Apoſtles, and by the Church, which is a ſign he was not their head and ſuperior; for greater is he that ſends, than he that is ſent.

Ver. 15. [g] Who prayed over them that they might receive the Holy Ghoſt.] Not that all who had been baptized, might receive it; for it was never ſo in any church, no not at Jeruſalem; there being only ſome among them full of the Holy Ghoſt, Acts 6. 3. And therefore it ſeems reaſonable to ſay, with Dr. Lightfoot here, that they were ſuch as the Holy Ghoſt had pointed out to be ordained miniſters, or for the receiving of the prophetical gifts which enabled men then λειτουργεῖν to do ſacred offices in the aſſemblies where they were, Acts 13. 2, 3. and theſe gifts being conferred, either by God immediately, as in the caſe of Cornelius, or only by the Apoſtles hands; Epiphanius (h) obſerves rightly, that Philip being only a Deacon, had not the power to confer them, and therefore theſe Apoſtles were ſent to do it. But whereas Dr. Hammond ſaith, This laying on of hands, was to confirm them, and to ordain Elders and Biſhops, in every city, one; this latter clauſe of the ordaining one Biſhop for every city of Samaria, when one city only had received the faith, is very ſurprizing, it being new to hear of a Biſhop ſettled where there were no Chriſtians, and therefore they could have no flock. Moreover, as this is ſpoken gratis, without any colour from the text, ſo is there not the leaſt mention of any Deacons here ordained, though Epiphanius ſaith, there cannot be a Biſhop without Deacons. And if this impoſition of hands made them Biſhops of ſo many cities of Samaria, by the ſame reaſon St. Paul impoſing his hands on the twelve men at Epheſus, Chap. 19. 6. muſt make them alſo Biſhops of twelve cities of Aſia. In a word, it is evident, that by this impoſition of hands the Holy Ghoſt fell on them, not to make them Biſhops of any city, but only Prophets and Teachers in the churches where they came, and to which they travelled: Thus Silas, coming a Prophet from Jeruſalem, returns not to Judea, to exerciſe any Epiſcopal function there; but goes on with Paul to the Gentiles to viſit, and confirm the churches, Acts 15. 34—41. Nor was one of them only placed in a city, but many, five at Antioch, Acts 13. 1. more at Corinth, and perhaps at Epheſus. As for the other opinion, that theſe hands were laid on to confirm them; if hands were not laid on all that were baptized, this makes nothing for confirmation; if they were, then Simon M. muſt be confirmed, and receive the Holy Ghoſt. And both theſe opinions ſeem dangerous, on this account, that the Holy Ghoſt was never thus conferred but by the hands of an Apoſtle; and conſequently, if confirmation and ordination be laid on this foundation, they may be ſaid to ceaſe with the Apoſtles. Notwithſtanding, this may well be deemed a fit pattern for Biſhops to follow in the apoſtolical rite of confirmation and ordination, by laying on of hands; by which rite they, as ſucceſſors of the Apoſtles, confer the ordinary gifts of the Holy Ghoſt, as the Apoſtles did the extraordinary gifts of the ſame Spirit.

Ver. 20. h Thy money periſh with thee, becauſe thou haſt thought the gift of God might be purchaſed with money.] As for the firſt clauſe of theſe words, the fathers look upon them rather as a prophetical prediction than an imprecation: And as for the ſin of Simon, it ſeems not to conſiſt ſo much in his ambition and his avarice, that he would be advanced to the higheſt dignity, and have thoſe gifts, by the exerciſe of which he hoped to be the greateſt gainer; as in this, that he ſtruck at the very foundation of the Chriſtian faith, ſuppoſing that the Apoſtles and other Chriſtians did their miracles in confirmation of it, by ſome higher art of magick than that which he had learned, and ſo they, by the ſame art, could teach others to do the ſame works for any other end. Now what relation this ſin hath to what we now call Simony, it is not eaſy to conceive; only becauſe he would have purchaſed this ſpiritual gift with money; hence, by analogy, all purchaſing of ſpiritual offices or places by ſuch ſordid means, doth bear that name.

Ver. 26. i Ἐπὶ τὴν ὁδὸν τὴν καταβαίνουσαν ἀπὸ Ἰερουσαλὴμ εἰς Γάζαν, αὕτη ἐστὶν ἔρημος, In the way which leadeth to Gaza, which way is a deſart.] So Oecumenius, There is a way to the ſouth, τὴν δὲ αὐτὴ ἐστὶν ἔρημος, ἔφησεν, and that way, ſaith he, is deſart. So (i) Pliny, Per continentem deſerta, oppidum Gaza; and this may be ſaid, to diſtinguiſh this Gaza of the Philiſtines from another Gaza in the tribe of Ephraim, mentioned, 1 Chron. 7. 28. not far from the place where Philip now was.

Ver. 27. k Ἀνὴρ Αἰθίοψ εὐνοῦχος δυνάστης Κανδάκης βασιλίσσης Αἰθιόπων, A man of Æthiopia, an eunuch, a man of great authority under Candace, Queen of the Æthiopians.] This was not Æthiopia in Arabia, where the Queen of Sheba dwelt, but Æthiopia in Africa, under Egypt, where Candace had long been the name of their Queens. So (k) Pliny, ſpeaking of Meroe, ſaith, there reigns Candace, quod nomen multis jam annis ad Reginas tranſiit, which hath for many years been the name of their Queens. See Bochart. Geogr. S. l. 4. c. 26. § 4.

Moreover, that this eunuch was a proſelyte of juſtice, or one who had embraced the Jewiſh faith, to which he was converted by thoſe Jews which from Alexandria ſpread themſelves into Æthiopia, Grotius concludes, not only becauſe he came ſo long long a journey to worſhip at Jeruſalem, and there to celebrate the feaſt of pentecoſt, but becauſe Cornelius was the firſt-fruits of the Gentiles; and perhaps the fame that he had heard in Jeruſalem of the ſufferings and reſurrection of Chriſt, might induce him to read this Prophet.

(h) Hær. 21. Sect. 1. (i) L. 6. c. 29. (k) L. 6. c. 29. ad finem.

Ver. 31. [l] How can I, except ſome man ſhould guide me?] Here Grotius notes, that the eunuch did not think the ſcripture was every where ſo perſpicuous, or contained a ſenſe ſo obvious to all, as do now our mechanicks, and women, who would do better if they thought they needed a guide: But ſure it will not follow, that becauſe the eunuch wanted a guide in an obſcure prophecy, therefore we muſt want one to obtain the knowledge of the plain principles and precepts of Chriſtianity; nor ſurely could he be ignorant, that when we aſſert the clearneſs and perſpicuity of ſcripture in all things neceſſary to be believed, or done, we do this, not in oppoſition to the aſſiſtance of reaſon, or in excluſion to the inſtruction and help of others, but in oppoſition to the neceſſity of a living judge and infallible interpreter, ſuppoſed neceſſary to the knowledge of that will of God, by which alone we can be ſaved. Moreover, we do not ſay that holy ſcripture is abſolutely, and in all things perſpicuous, for we willingly acknowledge with (l) Origen, (m) Chryſoſtom, (n) Theodoret (o) St. Auſtin, Gregory, and almoſt all the fathers, that there is in ſcripture a mixture of obſcure, and plain texts, ſome things which are δυσνόητα, hard to be underſtood, and ſome things which are eaſy to be apprehended by very mean capacities; but our aſſertion is that of (p) St. Chryſoſtom, that πάντα τα ἀναγκαῖα δῆλα, all things neceſſary to be believed or done, are there delivered with ſufficient clearneſs, or ſo that all who are concerned to know and do them that they may be ſaved, may hence learn them; and that of (q) St. Auſtin, that quiſque ibi fidem teneat, ſine qua pie, recteque non vivitur, every one may there obtain that faith, without which he cannot piouſly and rightly live. And the reaſon hereof, ſaith (r) Mr. Chillingworth, is convincing and demonſtrative, becauſe nothing is neceſſary to be believed, but what is plainly revealed; for to ſay that when a place of ſcripture, by reaſon of ambiguous terms, lies indifferent between divers ſenſes, whereof one is true, the other is falſe, that God obliges men, under pain of damnation, not to miſtake through error and human frailty, is to make God a tyrant, and to ſay that he requires us certainly to attain that end, for the attaining whereof, we have no certain means. Moreover, the Apoſtles did not write only for the learned, but for all men; and therefore, unleſs we will imagine the Holy Ghoſt and them, to have been wilfully wanting to their own deſire and purpoſe, we muſt conceive that they intended to ſpeak plain even to the capacity of the ſimpleſt, at leaſt touching all things neceſſary to be publiſhed by them, and believed by us.

2*dly*, We do not ſay that all things neceſſary to be believed or done are perſpicuouſly mentioned in all places of the holy ſcripture which reſpect thoſe things; but then we ſay, with (s) Irenæus, and the generality of the fathers, that thoſe things which are ambiguouſly ſpoken in ſome places, are to be expounded by thoſe things which aperte, & ſine ambiguo poſita ſunt in ſcripturis, are plainly, and without ambiguity, contained in the ſcriptures; or if they cannot be this way expounded, the ſenſe of them cannot be needful to be known; (t) for if God's will had been we ſhould have underſtood him more certainly in ſuch places, he would have ſpoken more plainly.

Ver. 32. [m] He was led as a ſheep to the ſlaughter.] Theſe words are taken from Iſa. 53. 8. where, that the Prophet ſpeaks of Chriſt, no Chriſtian can reaſonably doubt, there being ſcarce a verſe in this whole chapter which is not by the Holy Ghoſt in the New Teſtament applied to Chriſt, the firſt verſe, John 12. 38. the third, Mark 9. 12. the fourth, Matth. 8. 17. the fifth, Mark 15. 28. And though the latter Jews will not allow of this interpretation, yet ſome of them not only do own, that their (u) ancient Rabbins did with one mouth confeſs thoſe words were ſpoken of Meſſiah the King; but alſo ſpeak thus of him, "The holy bleſſed "God began to covenant with the Meſſiah when "he created him, and ſaid to him, The ſins of thoſe "who are laid up in ſecret with thee, will make "thee to come under an iron yoke, and make "thee like to this young heifer, whoſe eyes are "dim, and fill thy ſpirit with anguiſh; and be"cauſe of their iniquities thy tongue ſhall cleave "to the roof of thy mouth; wilt thou then un"dergo this condition for them? (x) The Meſ"ſiah ſaid, I undertake it with the joy and ex"ultation of my heart, on this condition, That "not one of Iſrael may periſh, and that not on"ly they may be ſaved who live in my days,

Whence three things are obſervable,

1*ſt*, That what ſeems ſo ſtrange and precarious to Crellius, viz. That God ſhould make a covenant with the Meſſiah, concerning his ſuffering for the ſins of his people, ſeems to be only that with which the Jews were well acquainted, and which ſeems alſo to be inſinuated here by the Prophet ſaying, If he ſhall make his ſoul an offering for ſin, he ſhall prolong his days, and the pleaſure of the Lord ſhall proſper in his hand, he ſhall ſee the travel of his ſoul, and be ſatisfied; and in thoſe words of the Pſalmiſt, Sacrifices and offering thou didſt not deſire, mine ears haſt thou opened, burnt-offering and ſin-offering haſt thou not required; then ſaid I, Lo, I come, in the volume of thy book it is written of me, I delight to do thy will, O God, yea thy law is written within my heart, Pſal. 40. 6, 7, 8. Heb. 5. 6, 7, 8.

2*dly*, That their Meſſiah was to ſuffer for their ſakes, to make atonement for their ſins. And,

3*dly*, That he was to be the ſalvation, not only of thoſe who were to live in, and after his time, but of all men from the beginning. And tho' Grotius, in his Notes upon this Chapter, endeavours to interpret the words concerning the Prophet Jeremy, yet in his excellent book of the truth of Chriſtian religion, having cited this whole Chapter, he enquires, (z) Quis poteſt nominari aut regum aut prophetarum in quem hæc congruunt? Nemo, ſane.

Ver. 33. [n] In his humiliation his judgment was taken away.] Here Mr. Clerc gives a good ſenſe of theſe words, viz. In his humiliation was his judgment, i. e. he appeared ſo mean to Pilate and the Jews, that they paſſed judgment againſt him, and he was taken away by them as an inconſiderable perſon, fit to be ſacrificed to prevent ſeditions, or the coming of the Romans. The Hebrew ſaith, from force and from judgment he was taken away, i. e. it proceeded from the judgment of Pilate, and from the force, the continual clamours of the Jews laid upon him to paſs that judgment, that he was taken away, and who ſhall declare the wickedneſs of that generation, who dealt thus with their Meſſiah? which therefore in the Goſpels is ſtiled a viperous, Luke 3. 7. an adulterous, Matth. 12. 34, 39. a wicked, ver. 45. an untoward generation, Acts 2. 40. and was ſo to be, ſay the Jews, in the days of the Meſſiah. See Note on Philip. 3. 2. and Dr. Lightfoot here.

Ver. 37. See Additions, N° 11.

Ver. 37, &c. ὁ Πιστεύω τὸν υἱὸν τοῦ Θεοῦ εἶναι τὸν Ἰησοῦν Χριστὸν, I believe that Jeſus Chriſt is the Son of God, &c.] Four things are hence obſervable, (1.) That baptiſm was here performed by a κατάβασις, or deſcent of the baptized perſon into the water. (2.) That upon this faith, that Jeſus Chriſt was the Son of God, and that he died for our ſins, which was the thing which Philip preached to the eunuch, adult perſons, who before owned one God, and the ſpirit of prophecy, as this eunuch did, were received to that baptiſm, in which they were taught, and by which they were obliged to obſerve all things that Jeſus had commanded; for tho' the belief that Jeſus was the Chriſt, the Son of God, was the great article propounded, and firſt preached to every convert; yet the end of baptiſm being the remiſſion of ſins, and the effect of it juſtification, or the abſolution of the baptized perſon from his paſt ſins, and this juſtification and remiſſion of ſins being declared to be obtained only through faith in his blood, it is certain that believing in the Lord Jeſus muſt include faith in his meritorious death and paſſion, or as the ſcripture ſaith, faith in his blood. Hence the Apoſtle reckons this article ἐν πρώτοις, among the firſt he preached to the Corinthians, that Chriſt died for our ſins according to the ſcriptures, 1 Cor. 15. 3. and tells them, that he preached to them Chriſt crucified, 1 Cor. 1. 23. as the means of their juſtification and ſalvation. See the preface to the General Epiſtle to St. John. (3.) Obſerve, that to the Jews and proſelytes, who already owned the true God, and believed his Prophets, were inſpired by the Holy Ghoſt, baptiſm was adminiſtred in the name of Jeſus Chriſt, Acts 2. 38.——8. 16.——10. 48. or in the name of the Lord; but when the Apoſtles were ſent εἰς τὰ ἔθνη, to the Gentiles, who believed not theſe things, they are commanded to baptize them in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghoſt, Matth. 28. 20. Obſerve, (4.) That in ſome copies we read thus, πνεῦμα ἅγιον ἔπεσεν ἐπὶ τὸν εὐνοῦχον, καὶ ἄγγελος Κυρίου, the Holy Ghoſt fell upon the eunuch, and the angel of of the Lord caught away Philip; ſo the Alexandrian and other manuſcripts, and ſo St. Jerom cites it, Dial. contra Lucif. F. 50. l. and according to this reading, the eunuch was ſufficiently authorized to preach to, and convert the Æthiopians, as it is ſaid he did. CHAP. IX.

1. AND Saul yet [a] breathing out threatnings and ſlaughter againſt the diſciples of the Lord, went to the High-prieſt, (and to all the elders of the ſanhedrim, Acts 22. 5.)

2. And he deſired of him (and them, ibid.) [b] letters to Damaſcus to the ſynagogues, that if he found any of this way, whether they were men or women, he might bring them bound to Jeruſalem, (to be judged and puniſhed by them; ibid.)

3. And as he journeyed, (in purſuit of his commiſſion,) he came near Damaſcus, and ſuddenly (about mid-day, Acts 22. 6.) there ſhined round about him, (and thoſe that were with him, Acts 26. 13.) a light from heaven, (above the brightneſs of the ſun, ibid.)

4. And he, (and all that were with him, Acts 26. 14.) fell to the earth, and (he) heard a (n articulate) voice, ſaying to him, (in the Hebrew tongue, ibid.) Saul, [c] Saul, why perſecuteſt thou me?

5. And he ſaid, (in anſwer to it, Acts 22. 8.) Who art thou, Lord? And the Lord ſaid, I am Jeſus whom thou perſecuteſt, it is (or will be) [d] hard for thee to kick againſt the pricks, (thus to ſet thyſelf to fight againſt God.)

6. And he trembling, and (being) aſtoniſhed, ſaid, Lord, what wilt thou have me to do, (to avoid thy farther diſpleaſure?) And the Lord ſaid to him, Ariſe, (ſtand upon thy feet,) and go into the city, (of Damaſcus,) and (there) it ſhall be told thee what thou muſt do, (or of all things which thou art appointed to do, Acts 22. 10. for, for this cauſe have I appeared to thee, Acts 26. 17, 18.)

7. [And the men that journeyed with him, ſtood ſpeechleſs, (through fear, Acts 22. 9.) [e] hearing a voice, but ſeeing no man,] (nor knowing what was ſaid to him;)

8. And Saul aroſe from the earth, (and they that were with him,) and when (the lids of) his eyes were opened, he ſaw no man, (his eyes being dazled with the glory of that light, Acts 22. 11.) but they (who were with him) led him by the hand, and brought him to Damaſcus.

9. And he was three days without ſight, and neither did eat nor drink.

10. And there was a certain diſciple at Damaſcus, named Ananias, (a devout man according to the law, having a good report of all the Jews that dwelt there, Acts 22. 12.) and to him ſaid the Lord [f] in a viſion, Ananias; and he ſaid, Behold, I am here, Lord.

11. And the Lord ſaid to him, Ariſe, and go into the ſtreet which is called Straight, and enquire in the houſe of Judas, for one called Saul of Tarſus; for behold, he prayeth;

12. And hath ſeen in a viſion a man named Ananias coming in, and putting his hand on him that he might receive his ſight.

13. Then Ananias anſwered, Lord, I have heard by many of this man, how much evil he hath done to thy ſaints at Jeruſalem;

14. And here he hath authority from the chief prieſts, to bind [g] all that call on thy name, (i. e. all thy diſciples.)

15. But the Lord ſaid to him, Go thy way (upon this my meſſage,) for he is a choſen veſſel to me, to bear my name before (i. e. to preach Chriſt to) the Gentiles, and kings, and (to) the children of Iſrael.

16. For I will ſhew him how great things he muſt ſuffer for my name's ſake, (and yet the proſpect of them ſhall not make him diſobedient to the heavenly viſion, but as forward to preach, as ever he was to perſecute the preachers of the goſpel.)

17. And (then) Ananias went his way, and entred into the houſe (where Saul was,) and putting his hands on him, (i. e. his eyes,) ſaid, Brother Saul, [h] the Lord (even that) Jeſus that appeared to thee in the way as thou cameſt (hither,) hath ſent me (to thee,) that thou mighteſt receive thy ſight, and (at thy baptiſm into his name, mayſt) be filled with the Holy Ghoſt, (as his other Apoſtles were, I therefore ſay to thee, in his name, receive thy ſight, Chap. 22. 13.)

18. And immediately there fell from his eyes, as it had been ſcales, and he received ſight forthwith, and (when Ananias had ſaid to him, The God of thy fathers hath choſen thee, that thou ſhouldſt know his will, and ſee that juſt One, and ſhouldſt hear the voice of his mouth, &c. Acts 22. 14, 15, 16. he) [i] aroſe and was baptized.

19. And when he had received meat, he was ſtrengthned: Then was Saul certain days with the diſciples which were at Damaſcus.

20. And

20. And ſtraightway he preached Chriſt in the ſynagogues (there, proving) that he is the Son of God.

21. But all that heard him were amazed, and ſaid, Is not this he that deſtroyed them which called on this name in Jeruſalem, and came hither for that intent, that he might bring them bound to the Chief-prieſts?

22. [k] But Saul increaſed more in ſtrength, and (by the evidence of his reaſonings,) confounded the (unbelieving) Jews which dwelt at Damaſcus, proving (to them from the ſcriptures,) that this (Jeſus whom he preached,) is (was the) very Chriſt (promiſed.)

23. And after that [l] many days were fulfilled, the Jews took counſel to kill him;

24. But their laying (in) wait (to do it) was known of Saul, and (for) they watched the gates day and night to kill him;

25. Then the diſciples took him by night, and let him down by the wall in a baſket.

26. And when Saul was come to Jeruſalem, he eſſayed to join himſelf to the diſciples, but they were all afraid of him, and believed not that he was a diſciple.

27. But Barnabas took him, and brought him to the Apoſtles, and declared to them, how he had ſeen the Lord in the way (to Damaſcus,) and that he had ſpoken to him, and how he had preached boldly at Damaſcus in the name of Jeſus.

28. And he was with them coming in, and going out at Jeruſalem.

29. And he ſpake boldly in the name of the Lord Jeſus, and diſputed againſt the Grecians, (i. e. the Jews that uſed the Greek tongue,) but they (alſo) went about to ſlay him.

30. Which when the brethren knew, they brought him down to Cæſarea (Philippi) and ſent him forth to Tarſus.

31. Then had the churches reſt throughout all Judea, and Galilee, and Samaria, [m] and were edified, and walking in the fear of the Lord, and in the comforts of the Holy Ghoſt, were multiplied.

32. [n] And it came to paſs, as Peter paſſed thro' all quarters (of Judea where diſciples were,) he came down alſo to the ſaints which dwelt at Lydda, (a city of Paleſtine.)

33. And there he found a certain man named Æneas, who had kept his bed eight years, and (who) was ſick of the palſy.

34. And Peter ſaid to him, Æneas, Jeſus Chriſt maketh thee whole, (I therefore ſay to thee in his name,) ariſe and make thy bed, and he aroſe immediately.

35. And all that dwelt at Lydda, and (in the plain of) Saron, (extending from Cæſarea Paleſtine to Joppa,) ſaw him, and (by this means) turned to the Lord.

36. Now there was at Joppa, (a Phœnician city lying upon the Mediterranean,) a certain diſciple, named [o] Tabitha, who by interpretation is called Dorcas (a Roe,) this woman was full of good works, and alms-deeds which ſhe did.

37. And it came to paſs in thoſe days, that ſhe was ſick and died; whom, when they had waſhed, (in preparation for her interment,) they laid her in an upper chamber;

38. And foraſmuch as Lydda was nigh to Joppa, and the diſciples had heard that Peter was there, they ſent to him two men, deſiring him that he would not delay to come to them.

39. Then Peter aroſe and went with them; and when he was come, they brought him (Gr. whom being come they brought) into the upper chamber, and all the widows ſtood by him weeping, and ſhewing the coats and garments which Dorcas (had) made while ſhe was with them:

40. But Peter put them all forth, and kneeling down, prayed, and turning him to the body, ſaid, Tabitha, ariſe; and ſhe opened her eyes, and when ſhe ſaw Peter, ſhe ſat up.

41. And he gave her his hand, and lift (ed) her up, and when he had called the ſaints and widows, preſented her (to them) alive.

42. And it was known throughout all Joppa, and many (upon that account) believed in the Lord.

43. And it came to paſs that he tarried many days in Joppa, with one Simon a tanner.

Annotations on Chap. IX.

Ver. 1. [a] AND Saul ἐμπνέων ἀπειλῆς καὶ φόνου, Breathing out threatnings and ſlaughter.] It appears hence that the power of capital puniſhments was not ſo taken from the Jewiſh Sanhedrim, held at Jeruſalem, but that they might inflict this puniſhment upon thoſe of their own nation, either by their own power, or by the conſent of the Roman governors, in caſes puniſhable with death by their laws and cuſtoms. For Saul confeſſes that he perſecuted this way unto the death, by virtue of this power received from the Sanhedrim, binding and delivering up to priſon men and women, Acts 22. 4. See the Note on John 18. 31.

Ver. 2. [b] Letters to Damaſcus to the ſynagogues.] From this, and from the 20th verſe, where Paul is is ſaid to preach Chriſt at Damaſcus in the ſynagogues of the Jews, it appears that there were more ſynagogues of the Jews than one in that city; and that it was ſo alſo in other cities. See Vitringa de Synag. Vet. l. 1. par. 1. c. 14. p. 255, &c.

Ver. 4. [c] Saul,——why perſecuteſt thou me?] The perſecutions of Chriſt's members are repreſented as the perſecutions of Chriſt himſelf, by reaſon of the union to him by the Spirit which renders them his body, and of that ſympathy he hath with them under all their ſufferings, which makes him συμπαθῆσαι, to ſuffer with them, Heb. 4. 15 Iſa. 63. 9.

Ver. 5. [d] It is hard for thee πρὸς κέντρα λακτίζειν, to kick againſt the pricks.] This is a proverbial expreſſion, ſignifying the damage and hurt they are like to receive, who reſiſt and fight againſt thoſe who are ſuperior to them, and eſpecially againſt God. So Euripedes in Bacch. v. 794.

Θυσίμ' ἂν αὐτῷ, μᾶλλον ἢ θυμούμενον,
Πρὸς κέντρα λακτίζοιμι θνητὸν ὄντ' ἐν τῷ θεῷ.

I will rather offer ſacrifice to him, than, being a mortal man, be angry with God, and kick againſt the goads.

And (a) Pindar ſaith, we muſt not contend againſt God, but bear the yoke he puts upon our neck mildly, and not kick againſt the goads, πρὸς κέντρον ἢ τοὶ λακτίζομεν, that is, ſaith the ſcholiaſt, not μάχεσθαι τῇ τύχῃ ἄνθρωπον ὄντα, to fight againſt God, being only men. The great (b) Bochart will not have this proverb taken from Æſchylus, Euripides, Pindar, or Plautus, but from the ſcriptures; it being uſed, ſaith he, by Moſes, ſaying Jeſhurun waxed fat, & recalcitravit, and kicked againſt the law, Deut. 32. 15. and by God himſelf enquiring, why kick ye againſt my ſacrifices? 1 Sam. 2. 29. Ver. 7. [e] Ἀκούοντες μὲν τῆς φωνῆς, Hearing a voice.] To reconcile this with Chap. 22. 9. where it is ſaid, that the men that were with him, τῆς φωνῆς οὐκ ἤκουσαν, heard not the voice of him that ſpake to, or with him; Dr. Hammond notes, that the word φωνὴ ſignifies thunder, and ſo he reconciles theſe places, by ſaying, They that were with me heard the voice of the thunder, but heard not the voice of him that ſpake unto me; That this importance of the word φωνὴ is frequent in the Old Teſtament, cannot be doubted; thus Exod. 9. 23. The Lord ſent thunder and hail, φωνὰς καὶ χάλαζαν· and ver. 27. I will ſtretch forth my hand, and the thunder ſhall ceaſe, καὶ οὐ φωναὶ παύσονται· and ver. 33. he ſtretched out his hand, καὶ αἱ φωναὶ ἐπαύσαντο· and ver. 34. when Pharaoh ſaw, ὅτι ἐπαύσατο ἡ χάλαζα, καὶ οὐ φωναί, that the hail and thunder were ceaſed, he hardned his heart. So Exod. 16. 16. It came to paſs on the third day, that there were thundrings and lightnings, φωναὶ καὶ ἀστραπαί· Chap. 20. 18. all the people ſaw the thundrings and lightnings, τὰς φωνὰς καὶ τὰς λαμπάδας. So Pſal. 18. 13. the Lord thundred out of heaven, and the Higheſt gave his voice. 29. 3. The voice of the Lord is upon the waters, the God of glory thundreth. So Pſal. 19. 1, 3. The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament or clouds of heaven ſhew his handy-work; there is no ſpeech or language, where the voice, i. e. their thunder, is not heard. If it be ſaid, we find no mention of any thunder here, it may be anſwered, that it was uſually an attendance of ſuch glorious coruſcations as this was; if you add, that here is mention of a voice ſpeaking in the Hebrew tongue, it may be ſtill replied, that thus it was at Sinai, where God anſwered Moſes τῇ φωνῇ, out of the thunder, Exod. 19. 19. If, 3*dly*, You object that it is ſaid, they heard a voice, but they ſaw no perſon, and in thunder this is not expected; I anſwer, this is true of common thunder, but in ſuch an extraordinary illumination as this was, they reaſonably might expect the viſion of an angel, or ſome glorious perſon, eſpecially if the conjecture of moſt interpreters be true, that Paul not only heard, but ſaw the Lord Jeſus ſpeaking to him; this will be no objection againſt the interpretation of this learned man: Or, (2.) This ſeeming contradiction may be reconciled thus, they heard a voice, but, οὐκ ἤκουσαν, they underſtood not the words of him that ſpake unto me; for ἀκούειν frequently in ſcripture ſignifies not to underſtand what we hear: Thus God ſaith of the builders of Babel, Let us confound their tongues, ἵνα μὴ ἀκούσωσιν, that they may not underſtand one another's ſpeech, Gen. 11. 7.—— 42. 43. The Lord ſhall bring upon thee a nation, οὗ οὐκ ἀκούσῃ τὴν φωνὴν αὐτῶν, whoſe tongue thou ſhalt not underſtand, Deut. 28. 49. I will bring upon thee a nation, οὗ οὐκ ἀκούσῃ τὴν φωνὴν τὴν γλῶσσαν αὐτῶν, whoſe language thou knoweſt not; neither underſtandeſt what they ſay, Jer. 5. 15. Speak in the Syrian tongue, ὅτι ἀκούομεν ἡμεῖς, for we underſtand it, 2 Kings 18. 26. I ſent thee not unto a people of a ſtrange ſpeech, and hard language, ὧν οὐκ ἀκούσῃ τὰς λάλους, whoſe words thou canſt not underſtand, Ezek. 3. 6. He that ſpeaketh in an unknown tongue, ſpeaketh not to men, but to God, οὐδεὶς γὰρ ἀκούει, for no man underſtands him, 1 Cor. 14. 2. See Additions, N° 13.

Ver. 10. [f] The Lord ſaid to him in a viſion.] That is, ſaith Grotius, an angel in the ſhape of the Lord; but as we have no example in the New Teſtament, of any ſuch appearance of an angel in the perſon of Chriſt, ſo is it certain that here it was not ſo, but really was a viſion of the Lord Jeſus; for Ananias not only calls him Lord, but calls Chriſtians his ſaints, and thoſe that call upon his name, ver. 13, 14.

Ver. 14. [g] All that call upon thy name.] There be two periphraſes of the Chriſtian which occur in this chapter, and in other places of the Acts; The firſt, ver. 2. that they are men and women τῆς ὁδοῦ, of the way. So when St. Paul went into the ſynagogue at Corinth, they did κακολογεῖν τὴν ὁδὸν, ſpeak evil of the way, Acts 19. 9. And at Epheſus, there was no ſmall diſturbance, περὶ τῆς ὁδοῦ, touching the way. See Chap. 24. 22. And ſo ſome of the ancients ſeem to have ſpoken: So in the hiſtory of the perſecutions of the (c) Gallican church we read of ſome apoſtates from the faith, βλασφημοῦντες τὴν ὁδὸν, who blaſphemed the way. And (d) Epiphanius introduceth the Melchiſedecians, ſaying, That Chriſt was choſen, that he might turn us from idols, καὶ ὑπέδειξεν ἡμῖν τὴν ὁδὸν, and might ſhew us the way. The ſecond periphraſis was this, that they were ſuch as invoked Jeſus Chriſt, or called upon his name; thus Ananias complains of Saul to Chriſt, ſaying, he hath done much evil to thy ſaints, and is come hither to bind all that call upon thy name; and the unbelieving Jews ſay of him preaching Jeſus Chriſt in their ſynagogues, is not this he who waſted τοὺς ἐπικαλουμένους τὸ ὄνομα τοῦτο, thoſe that call upon that name? ver. 21. Thus St. Paul writes to ſaints called, and to all other Chriſtians under the title of all that call upon the Lord Jeſus Chriſt in every place, 1 Cor. 1. 2. and then in the very next verſe, he himſelf prays, that grace and peace may be derived upon them, from God the Father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. See the Notes there; and 2 Tim. 2. 22. bids Chriſtians follow after peace, μετὰ τῶν ἐπικαλουμένων τὸν Κύριον, with thoſe that call upon the Lord with a pure heart, that is, with all believers, it being the ſame thing to believe in, and to call upon the name of the Lord Jeſus. Hence St. Peter ſaith, he that believeth in him ſhall not be aſhamed, becauſe it is written, whoſoever ſhall call upon the name of the Lord ſhall be ſaved, Joel 2. 32. See the Note there. And hence we learn, who that Lord is whom Ananias bid St. Paul invoke, when he ſaith, Chap. 22. 16. ariſe, and be baptized ἐπικαλεσάμενος, calling upon the name of the Lord, even the Lord Jeſus who appeared to him, Chap. 9. 17. See the Note on Chap. 22. 16. and what is meant by that phraſe, viz. Profeſs thy faith, by being baptized in, and by calling on his name; this was a thing ſo continually practiſed by the firſt Chriſtians, that Pliny mentions it in his epiſtle to Trajan, telling him, that it was the cuſtom of the Chriſtians, carmen Chriſto quaſi Deo canere, to ſing an hymn to Chriſt as God: For as St. Paul in his thirteen firſt epiſtles, prays for grace and peace from God the Father, and our Lord Jeſus Chriſt; and St. John in his ſecond Epiſtle, ver. 3. doth the ſame; ſo doth Polycarp, the diſciple of St. John, in the proem of his epiſtle to the church of Philippi, pray, that mercy and peace may be multiplied to them from God omnipotent, καὶ Κυρίου Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ τοῦ σωτῆρος ἡμῶν, and from our Lord Jeſus Chriſt our Saviour; and the church of Smyrna in her circular epiſtle to all Chriſtians, prays, that mercy, peace and love, may be multiplied to them from God the Father, and our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Ignatius in like manner, in the proem to his epiſtle to the Magneſians, wiſhes them health from God the Father, and our Lord Jeſus Chriſt; in that to the Romans, health in our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, Θεοῦ ἡμῶν, our God: In that to the church of Smyrna, health ἐν ἀμώμῳ Πνεύματι, καὶ Λόγῳ Θεοῦ, in the immaculate Spirit, and the Word of God. And as St. Paul in his Epiſtles often prays to Chriſt, both for himſelf, 1 Cor. 12. 8, 9, 10. ſee the Note there, and for other Chriſtians, 1 Theſſ. 3. 11, 12. 2 Theſſ. 2. 16.——3. 16. ſo did the primitive Chriſtians pray, and intreat others to pray to him. So (e) Ignatius ſaith to the church of Rome, λιπαρήσατε τὸν Χριστὸν ὑπὲρ ἐμοῦ, pray to Chriſt for me, that by the beaſts I may be found a ſacrifice to God; and ſaith to the church of Epheſus, (f) If Jeſus Chriſt ſhall make me worthy by your prayer; and the church of (g) Smyrna ſaith, they could not leave Chriſt, καὶ σέβεσθαι, orationis precem impendere, and worſhip, or pray to any other.

Ver. 17. [h] The Lord Jeſus who appeared to thee, ὁ ὀφθείς σοι, who was ſeen of thee.] I think it not neceſſary from theſe words to affirm, that St. Paul here ſaw the perſon of Jeſus Chriſt, ſeeing in in three relations of this matter he mentions no ſuch thing, but only that he ſaw the glorious light in which he did appear, and which was the ſymbol of his preſence; for ſo, in the Old Teſtament, men are often ſaid to have ſeen the Lord, when they ſaw only the glory in which he did appear, for they never ſaw his ſhape. Thus of the nobles that went up with Moſes into the mount, it is ſaid, Exod. 24. 10, 12. that they ſaw God, the God of Iſrael, and yet they ſaw no manner of ſimilitude, Deut. 4. 12, 15. whence the Chaldee paraphraſt in all theſe places ſaith, they ſaw the glory of God; but if it were neceſſary to ſay St. Paul ſaw his perſon, the text ſeems rather to require us to ſay, he ſaw him in the way, than in the heavens. See Additions, N°. 14.

Ver. 18. [i] He aroſe, and was baptized,] with water and the Holy Ghoſt, according to Chriſt's promiſe made to his Apoſtles, Acts 1. 6, 8. And note here, that this Ananias, who at moſt is only ſuppoſed to have been one of the ſeventy diſciples, only laid his hands upon him that he might receive his ſight, and that he was repleniſhed with the Holy Ghoſt, by the immediate gift of Chriſt, he being an Apoſtle not of man, nor by man, Gal. 1. 1. but by Chriſt alone.

Ver. 22. [k] Paul increaſed in ſtrength,] by the ſpirit of wiſdom, and of prophecy, συμβιβάζων, proving that he is the Chriſt. The word here rendred proving, ſignifies to perſuade, teach, confirm, or diſcourſe; hence συμβίβασις is, by Heſychius and Phavorinus rendered πεῖσις, διδαχὴ, πίστις, perſuaſion, doctrine, confirmation; συμβιβάζω, by Suidas, διδάσκω, I teach: So 1 Cor. 2. 16. τὶς συμβιβάσει αὐτὸν, who ſhall inſtruct, or teach God? So Exod. 18. 16. συμβιβάζω αὐτὰς, I make them know, or teach them the ſtatutes of God. Deut. 4. 9. συμβιβάσεις, thou ſhalt teach them thy ſons. So alſo Lev. 10. 11. So God ſaith to Moſes, Exod. 4. 12. συμβιβάσω σε, I will teach thee what to ſay, ver. 15. συμβιβάσω ὑμᾶς, I will teach, or inſtruct thee, and Aaron what to do; and the angel to Daniel, Chap. 9. 12. I came forth, συμβιβάσαι σε, to inſtruct thee. So Pſal. 32. 8. συμβιβῶ σε, I will inſtruct thee in the way in which thou ſhalt go. See Judg. 13. 8. Iſa. 40. 13. The doctrine he taught and proved to the Jews, was, ver. 20. that Jeſus was the Son of God, foretold Pſal. 2. here that he was the Chriſt, and when the Jews ſpeak of the Son of God, or the Apoſtles, or others ſpeak to the unbelieving Jews of the Son God, it may reaſonably be granted that no more is meant by that phraſe than the Meſſiah, they underſtanding nothing of the divine original of the Son of God, and being firſt to be convinced that he was the Meſſiah; but hence it follows not, that this phraſe ſignifies no more when he is ſtiled, ὁ μονογενὴς, the only begotten, or ἴδιος υἱὸς, the proper Son of God, Rom. 8. 32. or when Chriſt argues from his doing the works of God, that God was his Father.

Ver. 23. [l] And when many days were fulfilled.] The hiſtory of St. Paul's preaching at Damaſcus, and going after to Jeruſalem, is ſomewhat intricate, and interpreters differ much about it; ſome thinking that St. Paul preached at Damaſcus immediately after his converſion, and that the Jews then thought to kill him, and that then alſo he went thence to Jeruſalem; others, that this only happened three years after his converſion, and that then only he went to Jeruſalem: I ſhall therefore endeavour to give a brief account of this matter. And,

1*ſt*, I grant that St Paul preached at Damaſcus immediately after his converſion: this ſeems plain from the text, which ſays, he was baptized, and receiving meat was ſtrengthened, καὶ εὐθέως, and ſtraightway he preached Jeſus in the ſynagogues of Damaſcus, ver. 18, 19, 20. And, 2*dly*, from the amazement of the Jews, that he ſhould do this who came hither for this very purpoſe, to bind them that call upon this name.

2*dly*, It ſeems as evident that this conſultation to kill him could not be at his firſt converſion, but ſome years after; for he was let down the wall in a baſket, and eſcaped their hands, and then went to Jeruſalem, and was brought by Barnabas to the Apoſtles, ver. 26, 27. Now he himſelf declares that, εὐθέως, ſoon after his converſion, he went not up to Jeruſalem to thoſe that were Apoſtles before him, but went into Arabia, and returned again to Damaſcus, and after three years went up to Jeruſalem, where he ſaw Peter and James, Gal. 1. 16——19. The ſeries of the hiſtory therefore ſeems to lie thus: (1.) St. Paul after his converſion inſtantly preaches in the ſynagogues of Damaſcus, that Jeſus was the Son of God, ver. 20. (2.) That going thence into Arabia betwixt two and three years after, he returns to Damaſcus, Gal. 1. 17. and of this journey, Luke being not with him, gives no account. (3.) That at his return, being increaſed in wiſdom and ſtrength, he continues many days in Damaſcus, proving that Jeſus was the Chriſt. (4.) That after three years, he, eſcaping from Damaſcus, comes to Jeruſalem, and is by Barnabas brought to the Apoſtles, Peter and James, and continued there fifteen days, Gal. 1. 18, 19. (5.) That there Chriſt appears to him in a viſion, commanding him to depart out of Jeruſalem, and he accordingly goes thence to Caſarea Philippi in Caloſyria, and to Tarſus in Cilicia, Acts 9. 30. Gal. 1. 21.

It being then ſo long ere he came to Jeruſalem, Barnabas might well know, either from the brethren of Damaſcus coming to Jeruſalem, or from ſome journey he had taken thither, the certainty of his converſion to the Chriſtian faith.

Ver. 31. [m] And were edified.] Of the import of the word edification, ſee Note on Rom. 15. 2. it is added, and walking in the fear of God, and in the comfort of the Holy Ghoſt, were multiplied; their ſhining piety above others, and their great joy in the Holy Ghoſt, attracting others to the faith.

Ver. 32, 33. [n] And it came to paſs that Peter paſſing διὰ πάντων, through all the forementioned places of Judea, Samaria and Galilee, he came down alſo to the ſaints that dwelt at Lydda, a city in the tribe of Benjamin.] He being the chief Apoſtle of the circumciſion, viſits the brethren in thoſe parts that were circumciſed: But that he went down to Antioch, and founded the Church there, and ſat Biſhop in it five or ſeven years, as Baronius fancies, is not only beſides the text, which mentions nothing of St. Peter's going beyond the places here mentioned, but it is plainly inconſiſtent with his impriſonment at Jeruſalem, Chap. 12. and with his abode at Joppa till he went to Cæſarea, Chap. 9. 43.—11. 5. Still more ridiculous are they who ſay, he went to viſit all Chriſtian churches every where; it being plain from the hiſtory of the Acts, that he abode at Joppa till he went to Cæſarea, and that from thence he returned to Jeruſalem, Acts 11. 2. And there is as much reaſon to ſay, that Philip did ſo, becauſe from Azotus, a city of the Philiſtines, 1 Sam. 5. 2. he preached through all the cities till he came to Cæſarea, Chap. 8. 43. That ever he was at Antioch, till St. Paul and Barnabas having founded a Church there, he came, and was ſharply rebuked by St. Paul for his diſſimulation againſt his own knowledge and miraculous conviction, I find no reaſon to believe.

Ver. 36. [o] Tabitha, which by interpretation is called Dorcas,] a Roe, both in Greek and Hebrew, ſay the allegoriſts, from her quick ſight into ſpiritual things, and her high contemplations; theſe Roes feeding on the mountains, as if this name had been given her by way of prophecy. The reaſon why St. Luke gives this interpretation of her Syriack name, ſeems rather to be this, That ſhe being a Graciſing Jeweſs, was called by the firſt name by the Jews, and by the ſecond among the Greeks.

CHAP. X.

1. THere was a certain man in Cæſarea, called Cornelius, a centurion, of the band called the Italian band:

2. (He was) a devout man, and [a] one that feared (the true) God with all his houſe, (they being all proſelytes of the gate, one alſo) who gave much alms to the (indigent) people, and [b] prayed to God always, (i. e. morning and evening daily, and at all the hours of prayer.)

3. [c] (And) he ſaw in a viſion evidently, [d] about the ninth hour of the day, (the time of the evening ſacrifice, when he was praying, ver. 39.) an angel of God coming to him (in the likeneſs of a man, ver. 30.) and ſaying to him, Cornelius.

4. And when he looked on him, he was afraid, and ſaid, What is it, Lord, (thou wouldſt ſay to me?) And he ſaid to him, [e] Thy prayers and thy alms are come up for a memorial (for good to thee) before God.

5. And now ſend men to Joppa, and call for one Simon, [f] whoſe ſirname is Peter;

6. He lodgeth (there) with one Simon a tanner, whoſe houſe is by the ſea-ſide, he (being come) ſhall tell thee what thou oughteſt to do, (that thou mayeſt be ſaved, Chap. 11. 14.)

7. And when the angel which ſpake to Cornelius, was departed, he called two of his houſhold ſervants, and a devout ſoldier, (who was a proſelyte, and one) of them who waited on him continually:

8. And when he had declared all things to them (which the angel had ſaid to him,) he ſent them to Joppa (for Peter.)

9. On the morrow as they went on their journey, and drew nigh to the city, [g] Peter went up upon the houſe-top to pray (towards the temple,) about the ſixth hour, (being an hour of prayer;)

10. And became very hungry, and would have eaten; but while they made ready, (Gr. were preparing ſomething for him to eat,) he fell into a trance, (or exſtacy;)

11. And ſaw heaven opened, and a certain veſſel deſcending to him as it had been a great ſheet, knit at the four corners, and let down to the earth:

12. Wherein were all manner of four-footed beaſts of the earth, and wild beaſts, and creeping things, and fowls of the air, (clean and unclean beaſts together.)

13. And there came a voice to him, (ſaying,) Riſe, Peter, kill and eat, (of them without diſtinction.)

14. But Peter ſaid, (I can) not (do) ſo, Lord; for for (out of regard to the law,) I have never eaten any thing that is (in it ſtiled) common or unclean.

15. And the voice ſpake to him again the ſecond time, (ſaying,) What (that) God (who inſtituted the law of Moſes, by this declaration of his will) hath cleanſed, [h] that call not thou (any longer) common.

16. (And) [i] this was done thrice, (for the certainty of the thing :) and (then) the veſſel was received up again into heaven.

17. Now while Peter doubted in himſelf what that viſion which he had ſeen, ſhould mean: Behold the men who were ſent from Cornelius, had made enquiry for Simon's houſe, and ſtood before the gate,

18. And called, and aſked whether Simon, who was ſirnamed Peter, lodged there.

19. While Peter thought on the viſion, the Spirit ſaid unto him, Behold, three men ſeek thee:

20. Ariſe therefore, and get thee down, and go with them, doubting nothing (of the unlawfulneſs of converſing with them :) for I have ſent them.

21. Then Peter went down to the men which were ſent to him from Cornelius, and ſaid, Behold, I am he whom ye ſeek; what is the cauſe wherefore ye are come (to me?)

22. And they ſaid, Cornelius the centurion, a juſt man, and one that feareth God, and (is) of good report among all the nation of the Jews, was warned from God by an holy angel, to ſend for thee (to come) into his houſe, and to hear words of thee.

23. Then called he them in, and lodged them; and on the morrow Peter went away with them, and certain brethren from Joppa, (ſix in number, being Jews,) accompanied him, (the providence of God ſo ordering it, that they might be witneſſes of what was ſaid and done.)

24. And the morrow after, they entred into Cæſarea; and Cornelius waited for them, and had called together his kinſmen and near friends, (Gr. and Cornelius calling together his kinſmen and near friends, to hear what Peter ſhould ſay to them concerning the way of ſalvation, Chap. 11. 14. was expecting them.)

25. And as Peter was coming in, [k] Cornelius met him, and fell down at his feet, and worſhipped him.

26. But Peter took him up, ſaying, Stand up; I myſelf alſo am a man, (and ſo cannot receive ſuch worſhip.)

27. And as he talked with him, he went in, and found many that were come together (to hear his words.)

28. And he ſaid to them, Ye know, that (according to the traditions of the Jews,) it is an unlawful thing for a man that is a Jew, to keep company, or come to one of another nation, (as being by them accounted unclean ;) but God hath ſhewed me (by a viſion,) that I ſhould not (from henceforth) call any man common or unclean.

29. Therefore came I to you without gainſaying, aſſoon as I was ſent for: I aſk therefore, for what intent ye have ſent for me?

30. And Cornelius ſaid, [l] Four days ago I was faſting until this hour; and at the ninth hour, I prayed in my houſe; and behold, (an angel in the ſhape of) a man ſtood before me in bright cloathing,

31. And ſaid, Cornelius, thy prayer is heard, and thine alms are had in remembrance in the ſight of God:

32. Send therefore to Joppa, and call hither Simon, whoſe ſirname is Peter; he is lodged in the houſe of Simon, a tanner, by the ſea-ſide, who, when he is come, ſhall ſpeak to thee, (ver. 6.)

33. Immediately therefore I ſent to thee, and thou haſt done well that thou art come: Now therefore are we all here preſent before God, to hear all things that are commanded thee of God (to ſay to us :)

34. Then Peter opened his mouth, and ſaid, Of a truth [m] I perceive, that God is no reſpecter of perſons; (i. e. he accepts no man, merely becauſe he is of ſuch a nation, or deſcended from ſuch anceſtors ;)

35. But, in every nation, he that feareth him, and worketh righteouſneſs, is accepted with him.

36. (Ye know) [n] the word which God ſent to the children of Iſrael, preaching peace (and reconciliation to himſelf,) by Jeſus Chriſt; he is Lord of all; (God having exalted him to be a Prince, and a Saviour, to give repentance and remiſſion of ſins, Chap. 5. 31.)

37. That word (I ſay) you know, which was publiſhed throughout all Judea, and began from Galilee, after the baptiſm which John preached:

38. How God anointed Jeſus of Nazareth, (i. e. Jeſus of Nazareth ye know, and how God anointed him) with the Holy Ghoſt, and with power, who (thereupon) went about doing good, and healing all that were oppreſſed of the devil; for God was with him.

39. And we are witneſſes of all things that he did, both in the land of the Jews, and in Jeruſalem, whom (yet) they (of the Jews) ſlew, and hanged on a tree:

40. (We alſo teſtify, that) him God raiſed up the third day, and ſhewed him openly;

41. Not to all the people, but to (us his) witneſſes, choſen before of God, (to teſtify this to the world, to us (I ſay,) [o] who did eat and drink with him after that he aroſe from the dead.

42. And he commanded us to preach to the people, and teſtify, that it is he who was (is) ordained of God to be the judge of quick and dead.

43. To him give all the prophets witneſs, that through (faith in) his name, whoſoever believeth in him ſhall receive remiſſion of ſins.

44. While Peter yet ſpake theſe words, the Holy Ghoſt fell on all them that heard the word, (as on the Apoſtles at the beginning, Chap. 11. 15.)

45. And they of the circumciſion which believed, (conceiving God had no ſuch regard to the Gentiles) were aſtoniſhed as many as came with Peter, becauſe that on the Gentiles alſo was poured out the gift of the Holy Ghoſt.

46. For they heard them ſpeak with tongues, and magnify God: Then anſwered Peter,

47. [p] Can any man forbid water, that theſe ſhould not be baptized? (i. e. can he gainſay the baptizing of them with water) who have received the (baptiſm of the) Holy Ghoſt as well as we?

48. And he [q] commanded them to be baptized [r] in the name of the Lord (Jeſus;) then prayed they him to tarry certain days.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. X.

Ver. 2. [a] Καὶ ὁ φοβούμενος τὸν Θεὸν.] So we read, 2 Chron. 5. 6. that King Solomon, and all the congregation of Iſrael were aſſembled, καὶ οἱ φοβούμενοι, and the proſelytes; they being men, ſaith Solomon, who know thy name, τοῦ φοβεῖσθαί σε, to fear thee, Chap. 6. 33. This was the title given to them, who ſo far embraced the Jewiſh religion as to worſhip the God of Iſrael only, and were ſtiled by them Proſelytes of the gate, and men fearing God. So Bemidvar Rabba on thoſe words, Bleſſed is the man, ὁ φοβούμενος τὸν Κύριον, that feareth the Lord, Pſal. 112. 1. ſaith, Theſe are the proſelytes, and therefore they are mentioned next to the men of Iſrael; as when St. Paul ſaith, Ye men of Iſrael, καὶ οἱ ἐν ὑμῖν φοβούμενοι τὸν Θεὸν, and ye that fear God, hearken, Acts 13. 16, 26. where, ſaith Oecumenius, φοβουμένους τὸν Θεὸν περιτομὴν ἐπάλει, he calls the proſelytes, men that feared God: and becauſe theſe men had a court in the temple, where they came to worſhip the true God, and offer ſacrifices to him, hence they were called, σεβόμενοι, the worſhippers, as when it is ſaid, many of the Jews, καὶ τῶν σεβομένων προσηλύτων, and of the worſhipping proſelytes, followed Paul and Barnabas, Acts 13. 43. and there followed them a great multitude, τῶν σεβομένων Ἑλλήνων, of the worſhipping Greeks, that is the proſelytes, ſaith Oecumenius. And theſe being alſo called by them, chaſidim, are in the New Teſtament called, εὐσεβεῖς καὶ εὐλαβεῖς, pious and devout men, as here, ver. 1. and ver. 7. But notwithſtanding all theſe titles, they counted them unclean as well as other Gentiles, ſaying, (a) A ſojourning proſelyte is as a Gentile in all things; and therefore they of the circumciſion contend with Peter for going in to converſe with them. Yet it is not unpleaſant to obſerve, that though they held their perſons thus unclean, they deemed the alms they gave to the Jews clean, ſaith Lightfoot; and becauſe Cornelius was free in giving them to the Jews of Samaria, he was a man of good report among them all, ver. 22.

Ibid. [b] And prayed to God always,] i. e. daily, and at all the hours of prayer. See the Note on 1 Theſſ. 5. 17. It alſo well deſerves to be obſerved, that he feared God with all his houſe; this being ſtill the commendation of pious men, that they made all their houſe religious: So Gen. 18. 19. I know Abraham, that he will command his children, and his houſhold after him, and they ſhall keep the way of the Lord: And, Joſhua 24. 15. As for me and my houſe, we will ſerve the Lord: and pious Chriſtians made their whole families converts to the Chriſtian faith. So we read of the nobleman at Capernaum, that he himſelf believed, and all his houſe, John 41. 53. of the jailor, that he believed in God with all his houſe, and was baptized, he, and all his, ſtraightway, Acts 16. 33, 34. and of Criſpus, a chief ruler of a ſynagogue, that he believed in the Lord, with all his houſe, Chap. 18. 18. Hence they who had made their whole family Chriſtians, are ſaluted by St. Paul thus: To ſuch a one, and the church in his houſe. See Note on 1 Cor. 16. 19. And O that this was carefully obſerved and imitated by all that are called Chriſtians!

Ver. 3. [c] He ſaw in a viſion, φανερῶς, openly;] i. e. waking, and with his bodily eyes; for there were alſo viſions in a dream, Gen. 20. 3.——28. 12. Job 4. 13. So St. Paul ſaw, ἐν ἐκστάσει ὁράματι, a viſion in an extaſy, Chap. 11. 5. and when he was blind, he ſaw in a viſion Ananias, Chap. 9. 12.

Ibid. [d] About the ninth hour.] The time of the evening ſacrifice, a very fit time to toll him, that his prayers and alms, which were ſpiritual ſacrifices, were come up before God as an evening ſacrifice; for at the ſame time, the angel was ſent.

(a) Jeruſ. Jebamoth. F. 8. Col. 4.

ſent to tell Daniel, that his prayer was heard, Dan. 9. 21.

Ver. 4. [c] Thy prayers and thy alms are come up for a memorial, &c.] The word μνημόσυνον, rendred a memorial, is uſed both of the incenſe offered up with the ſacrifice, Levit. 2. 2, 9. and of a part or handful of the mincha offered up to God, Levit. 5. 12. Numb. 5. 15, 18, 26. in which two places no incenſe was to be admitted, it being an offering for ſin, or a memorial for iniquity; ſo that there, not the incenſe or perfume, but part of the mincha, or oblation put upon the altar, is called, aſcharah, a memorial. Now ſeeing alms are the Chriſtian ſacrifices, and are called ſo by the Apoſtle, Philip. 4. 18. and ſeeing our prayers are ſaid to aſcend as incenſe, and are ſo ſtiled, Rev. 5. 8.——8. 3. ſeeing they are our ſacrifice of praiſe, Heb. 13. 15. and alms our odour or ſweet ſavour, Phil. 4. 18. the alluſion here may very fitly relate to both.

Ver. 5. [f] Whoſe ſirname is Peter.] And ſo throughout this ſtory. For Chriſt having ſaid to him, Thou art Peter, i. e. a rock; and upon this rock will I build my Church, i. e. lay the foundation of a Church among the Jews, as he did by Peter, Acts 2. 47. and among the Gentiles, as he doth here: therefore Cornelius is bid ſend, not to Jeruſalem to James or John, not to Damaſcus, for Paul, the Apoſtle of the Gentiles, but to Joppa for Simon, whoſe ſirname was Peter, that from him he might hear thoſe words by which he and his houſe ſhould be ſaved, Chap. 11. 14.

Ver. 9. [g] Peter went up to the houſe-top, to pray, at the ſixth hour.] This being about noon, was by the Jews ſtiled the time of the mincha gedolah, one of the three daily hours of prayer, which devout men uſed. So Daniel prayed three times a day, Chap. 6. 10. morning, evening, and at the mincha. And David ſaith, Pſal. 55. 17. Evening and morning, and at noon, will I pray to thee; evening, morning, and at mincha, three times of prayer: ſo R. Saadias and R. Solomon. Note alſo, that though St. Peter had been ſo long a convert to Chriſtianity, he keeps cloſe to the cuſtoms of the Jews, not only as to their hours of prayer, but as to their manner of praying towards the temple, when they were out of Judea or Jeruſalem, and ſo could not go up to the temple at the hour of prayer; for he goes up to the top or roof of the houſe, to pray towards Jeruſalem, as Daniel did, Chap. 6. 10. Solomon, at the dedication of the temple, praying ſo oft, that God would hear the prayers the men of Iſrael ſhould make towards that place, 1 Kings 8. 29, 30, 35, 38, 44, 48. And when it is ſaid of Hezekiah, 2 Kings 20. 2. Iſa. 38. 3. that he turned his face towards the wall; the Targum ſaith, this was the wall of the houſe of the ſanctuary; and therefore in all likelihood, St. Peter, being at Joppa, went up to the roof of the houſe to pray, for the ſame reaſon.

Ver. 15. [h] What God hath cleanſed call not thou common, μὴ σὺ κοίνου, do not thou pollute.] For explication of all that in this Chapter is mentioned, with relation to this matter, let it be noted;

1ſt, That it was the Prieſt's office, in caſe of leproſy, and other matters of like nature, to pronounce the thing or perſon under examination, clean or unclean, and though this was done only by a declarative ſentence, yet is it expreſſed effectively; for in the Hebrew the words are, וְטִמְּאוֹ וְטִהֲרוֹ, and in the Greek, καθαριεῖ αὐτὸν, μιανεῖ αὐτὸν, the Prieſt ſhall cleanſe, the Prieſt ſhall pollute him: So Lev. 13. 6, 8, 11, 13, 17, 20. and ſo on. Accordingly the voice here ſays, What God hath cleanſed, (i. e. by this viſion and command declared to be clean,) that do not thou pollute, (i. e. pronounce not thou unclean.) Note,

2dly, That the two great things which made the partition-wall betwixt Jew and Gentile, were the rite of circumciſion, and the diſtinction betwixt clean and unclean meats; of theſe two, circumciſion was common to them from the beginning, with the Iſhmaelites, and afterwards with many other nations; but the abſtaining from all meats, forbidden by the law of Moſes as unclean, was peculiar to the Jews, and diſtinguiſhed them from all the nations of the world; and that this was the true ſcope of theſe laws, even to ſeparate them from all other nations, by a diet peculiar to themſelves, which might keep them from familiar converſation with the Gentiles, and ſo from learning their idolatrous cuſtoms, God himſelf declareth, ſaying, Levit. 20. 23, 24, 25. I am the Lord your God, which have ſeparated you from other people; ye ſhall therefore put a difference betwixt clean beaſts and unclean, and between unclean fowls and clean; and you ſhall not make yourſelves abominable by beaſt or by fowl, or by any manner of creeping thing that creepeth on the ground, which I have ſeparated from you as unclean. And, ye ſhall be holy to me, for I the Lord am holy, and have ſevered you from other people, that ye ſhould be mine. Hence it muſt follow, that though the Egyptians, the Syrians, and other nations, might abſtain from ſome of theſe beaſts as unclean, yet not any of them obſerved the diſtinction of meats preſcribed by Moſes, for then God could not by it have ſeparated them from all other nations to himſelf. And ſuitable to this is the account which Eleazer, the the High-priest gives of these laws in (b) Aristeas, that God, πάντοθεν ἡμᾶς περιφραξεν ἀσυνάπτοις καὶ διὰ βρωτῶν καὶ ποτῶν, ὅπως ἐν μηδενὶ συμμισγόμενοι μηδ' ὁμιλοῦντες φαύλοις διὰ τροφῆς καθαρεύωμεν, had hedged them in with these purifications, as to meats and drinks, that not eating, or conversing with evil men, they might not be defiled. Or as (c) Eusebius hath it from the same author, ὅπως μηδενὶ τ' ἄλλων ἐθνῶν ἐπιμισγώμεθα καὶ μηδὲν, that they might in nothing be mixed with other nations, but be kept pure both as to soul and body.

And, lastly, being thus separated by this precept from all familiar converse with other nations, hence they came to look on them who did not use this abstinence, as unclean, because they freely did eat of those things which the law made unclean to them; and to say that the unclean beasts did signify the people of the world. So R. Menahem on Levit. 11. Now hence we learn,

1*st*, Why in this vision there is a representation of all manner of beasts, fowls, and creeping things, viz. because all these are mentioned, Lev. 20. 24. as things by abstaining from some of which as unclean, God had separated them from other nations to himself.

2*dly*, We see the reason why the men of the circumcision object to St. Peter these two things, viz. That he went in to the uncircumcised, and did eat with them, Chap. 11. 3. to wit, because it was chiefly by these two things they were separated from other nations.

3*dly*, We learn why St. Peter saith, v. 28. that God had, by this vision, shewed him that he should call no man common, or unclean, viz. because he, by this declaration and command, had taken away that distinction which hindred their converse with other nations: And,

4*thly*, We see how necessary and expedient it was, that this liberty of eating meats indifferently, should be so fully declared from heaven to the Jews, because it being by God declared a law given for this very purpose, that they might be severed to himself from other nations, they durst not do any thing, without a revelation, which seemed to violate it; and without breaking through the traditions they had received about it, they could not have executed their commission to teach, or make disciples in all nations. Hence Peter is bid to go to them μηδὲν διακρινόμενον, putting no difference betwixt them and the Jews, as that phrase often signifies; See Acts 15. 9. and the Note on Rom. 14. 23.

Ver. 16. [i] This was done thrice,] as Pharaoh's dream was doubled, for the certainty of the thing, Gen. 41. 32.

Ver. 25, 26. [k] Cornelius fell down at his feet, and worshipped him; but Peter said, Stand up, I myself also am a man.] If the worship intended, and given to him by Cornelius, was religious worship, Peter declares such worship was not to be given to a mere man; if it was only civil worship, he who thought it not fit to receive that, would much less have received religious worship.

Ver. 30. [l] Ἀπὸ τετάρτης ἡμέρας μέχρι ταύτης τῆς ὥρας ἤμην νηστεύων, Four days ago I was fasting until this hour.] The Greek, say some criticks, is to be rendred thus, from the fourth day to this hour I was, or, have been fasting; so that Cornelius, according to this import of them, must have been fasting four days together; but this cannot be the true sense of the words of Cornelius; for this hour, is the hour of his speaking to St. Peter, and the same day he saw his vision, which yet he saw not when St. Peter was come to him, but four days before; the meaning therefore is, that four days since he was fasting till the same hour of the day in which he spake thus to St. Peter. So ἀφ' ἡμερῶν ἀρχαίων, is a long time ago, Acts 15. 7. ἀπὸ πέρυσι, a year ago, 2 Cor. 8. 10.——9. 2. and therefore Budæus, having said that ἀπὸ is often put for μέχρι, saith, these words are to be rendred quarto abhinc die, and Grotius renders them thus, die ante hoc tempus quarta jejunaveram, both justifying our translation.

Ver. 34. [m] I perceive God is no respecter of persons, &c.] I have shewed, Note on James 2. 1. that respect of persons in matters judicial, is shewed, when men judge others not according to the merits of the cause, but according to outward respects which relate nothing to it, as the greatness, riches, meanness, and poverty of the person, relation, friendship, or affection; and so in spirituals, to accept persons is to respect them and their services, not on the account of any thing that makes them better, or more fit to be regarded than others, or which is more acceptable in the sight of God, but on the account of the nation to which they belong, or the ancestors from which they were descended. Thus, because God had chosen the Jews to be his people, by reason of the piety of their forefathers, and to perform his promise made to them, the Jews imagined that God would accept them, and their services on that account, that they were of the Jewish nation, and of the seed of Abraham according to the flesh, and that he would not accept the persons, or regard the services of the Gentiles, for want of these things; but these false conceptions St. Paul, in his epistle to the Romans, and

(b) Apud Joseph. p. 17.

(c) Prep. Evang. l. 8. c. 9. p. 371.

and St. Peter here refutes; ſhewing, (1.) That men not only of the Jewiſh, but of any other nation, may be acceptable to God, there being one God who is rich (in goodneſs) to all that call upon him, whether Jew or Gentile, Rom. 10. 12. he being the God, not of the Jews only, but alſo of the Gentiles, and ſo as ready to juſtify them through faith, as to juſtify the Jews, Rom. 3. 29, 30. (2.) That God accepts ſuch men, not on the account of their deſcent, or circumciſion, but becauſe they fear God, and work righteouſneſs: Thus Cornelius being one that feared God, and gave much alms, ver. 2, 3. his prayers and alms came before God for a memorial, for good to him; whence it is evident, that ſome of other nations, owning the true God, not only might, but actually did fear God, and work righteouſneſs, and otherwiſe they very ill deſerved the title given to the proſelytes of the gate; See the Note on ver. 2. Nor could St. Peter perceive that God was no reſpecter of perſons on the account of a thing which never did, or could happen; or St. Paul ſay, Glory, honour, and peace ſhould be to every one that doth good, to the Jew firſt, and alſo to the Gentile, for there is no reſpect of perſons with God, Rom. 2. 10, 11. How far ſuch perſons may be accepted with God, and on what account, ſee my conjecture on Rom. 2. 14.

Ver. 36. n The word which God ſent to the children of Iſrael, &c.] The Apoſtle's diſcourſe, from this to the 43d verſe, ſeems to be to this effect; viz. (1.) That there was an offer made by the Goſpel, of peace, i. e. of reconciliation and ſalvation by Jeſus Chriſt, the author of that Goſpel, ver. 36, 37. (2.) That he was able to make good that promiſe, as being Lord of all things; (3.) That he who preached this doctrine was a true Prophet, he being anointed with the Holy Ghoſt for that office, and confirming what he ſaid by powerful miracles, ver. 38. (4.) That this doctrine, and theſe miracles, could not be reaſonably queſtioned, they who were with him from the beginning, being witneſſes of what he ſaid and did, v. 39. And, (5.) Whereas it might be objected, that he was dead, and ſo could not be able to confer theſe bleſſings on them who believed in him, it is added, ver. 40. that him God raiſed up the third day, according to his own prediction; and that of this reſurrection they were all eye-witneſſes ſufficiently inſtructed to give in their teſtimony concerning it by his frequent appearances to, and familiar converſe with them, ver. 41. (6.) That after his reſurrection they had received a commiſſion from God to teſtify that he was appointed to be judge of the quick and dead, and ſo to give that peace, and ſalvation, he had promiſed in his Goſpel to his faithful ſervants, ver. 42. And, laſtly, that to all this all the Prophets had given in their ſuffrages, by declaring, that through his name all that believed in him ſhould receive remiſſion of ſins, ver. 43. Note alſo, that it is not to be wondred that St. Peter ſhould ſay to Cornelius, and his kinſmen, who were already proſelytes of the gate, and lived at Caſarea, the ſeat of the Governor of Judea, where the Jews dwelt, and whither they continually reſorted, and where Philip had already preached the Goſpel, Acts 8. 40. Ye know this word, he meaning not that they were perſuaded of the truth of it, but only that they had heard the fame, and were acquainted with the report of it.

Ver. 41. o Who did eat and drink with him.] That in their preſence he did eat part of a fiſh, and of an honey-comb, they had then with them, we read expreſly, Luke 24. 41, 42, 43. That they did eat of the bread and fiſh he had provided for them, may be collected from his invitation to them to come and dine, John 21. 12. which doubtleſs they refuſed not, and ſince we may reaſonably ſuppoſe they did not dine without drinking, we muſt have reaſon to believe they did eat and drink with him.

Ver. 47. p Can any man forbid water that theſe ſhould not be baptized?] Theſe words contain a plain, and a convincing demonſtration of the falſhood of the Quakers doctrine, that water-baptiſm is unneceſſary to them, who have received the inward baptiſm of the ſpirit; ſince the Apoſtle here not only declares that water-baptiſm ought therefore to be adminiſtred to theſe perſons, becauſe they had already been baptized with the Holy Ghoſt, but alſo commands them to be baptized upon that account.

Ver. 48. q And he commanded them to be baptized.] Whom did he command to do this? the Gentiles? It ſeemeth at firſt ſight abſurd, that they who were not yet baptized ſhould baptize others; or was it the Jews that came then with him? they ſeem only to be lay-brethren, who only were permitted to baptize in caſe of neceſſity; it ſeemeth therefore reaſonable to ſay, that he commanded water to be brought for their baptiſm, and then performed himſelf the office, or left it to be done by gifted perſons.

Ibid. r In the name of the Lord Jeſus.] Here the note of Grotius is this, that in the name of Chriſt the anointed, is underſtood he that anointed him, and the Spirit by whom he was anointed; but here the Spirit had fallen upon them already, and ſo they who thus felt his influence enabling them to

to ſpeak with tongues, muſt believe in him already, and being proſelytes of the gate, they believed already in God the Father, and came to hear what he ſhould ſay to them; it was therefore only neceſſary, that by receiving Chriſtian baptiſm, they ſhould profeſs their faith in the Lord Jeſus.

CHAP. XI.

1. [a] AND (δὲ, then) the Apoſtles and brethren that were in Judea, heard that the Gentiles had alſo received the word of God.

2. And when Peter was come up to Jeruſalem, [b] they who were of the circumciſion, (being ſtill zealous for the law of Moſes, and the traditions of the elders,) contended with him,

3. Saying, Thou (violating the tradition of our fathers,) wenteſt in to men uncircumciſed, and didſt eat with them.

4. But Peter [rehearſed the matter from the beginning, and expounded it by order to them,] (Gr. ἀρξάμενος ἐκέθετο αὐτοῖς καθεξῆς, beginning, expounded to them the matter orderly,) ſaying,

5. I was in the city of Joppa, praying, and in a trance I ſaw a viſion, (viz.) a certain veſſel deſcended, (Gr. deſcending,) as it had been a great ſheet, let down from heaven by four corners, and it came even to me:

6. Upon the which when I had faſtened mine eyes, I conſidered, (Gr. εἰς ὃ ἀτενίσας κατενόουν, attending to which, I obſerved) and ſaw four-footed beaſts of the earth, and wild beaſts, and creeping things, and fowls of the air.

7. And I heard a voice, ſaying to me, Ariſe, Peter, ſlay and eat, (freely of them, to ſatisfy thy hunger) Chap. 10. 10.

8. But I ſaid (I can) not (do) ſo, Lord; for (being a ſtrict obſerver of the law of Moſes,) nothing common or unclean hath at any time entred into my mouth.

9. But the voice (of the Lord) anſwered me again, (Gr. the ſecond time) from heaven, (ſaying,) What (that) God (who inſtituted the law of Moſes, by this declaration of his will) hath cleanſed, that call not thou (any longer) common.

10. And this was done three times, (for the certainty of the thing,) and (then) all (the things I had ſeen) were drawn up again into heaven.

11. And behold, immediately (after this viſion,) there were three men already come to the houſe where I was, (they being) ſent from Cæſarea to me.

12. And the Spirit bade me go with them, nothing doubting (to converſe with them though they were Gentiles, or putting no difference betwixt them and Jews, as betwixt perſons clean and unclean;) moreover, theſe ſix brethren (here preſent, as witneſſes of the truth of what I ſay) accompanied me, and we entred into the man's houſe (who ſent for me:)

13. And he ſhewed us how he had ſeen an angel in his houſe, who ſtood (by him) and ſaid to him, Send men to Joppa, and (by them) call for Simon, whoſe ſirname is Peter,

14. [c] Who ſhall tell thee words, by which thou and all thy houſe (believing them) ſhall be ſaved.

15. And as I began to ſpeak, (and had not long continued my diſcourſe) [d] the Holy Ghoſt fell on them, as (he had done) on us at the beginning, (Acts 2. enabling them to ſpeak with tongues and propheſy, Chap. 10. 44, 45, 46.)

16. Then remembred I the word of the Lord (Jeſus,) how that he ſaid (to us, Acts 1. 5.) John indeed baptized with water, but ye ſhall be baptized with the Holy Ghoſt.

17. Foraſmuch then as God gave them, (though Gentiles, and uncircumciſed,) the like gift as (he had given) to us (circumciſed Jews,) who believed on the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, what was I that I could withſtand God? (Gr. how was I able to hinder God, viz. by refuſing to receive them into the Church by baptiſm, Chap. 10. 47. whom he had already baptized with the Holy Ghoſt?)

18. (And) when they heard theſe things, they held their peace, (being ſatisfied with this account of St. Peter's actions,) and (they) glorified God, (for his goodneſs to the Gentiles,) ſaying, Then (Gr. ἄρα γε, ſurely) hath [e] God alſo to the Gentiles granted repentance unto life.

19. Now they which were ſcattered abroad upon the perſecution that aroſe about Stephen, travelled as far as Phœnice, and Cyprus, and Antioch, [f] preaching the word to none but the Jews only:

20. And ſome of them were (by birth) men of Cyprus and Cyrene, who when they were come to Antioch, [g] ſpake to the Græcians, (Gr. πρὸς τοὺς Ἕλληνας, to the Jews uſing the Greek language, See Note on Chap. 6. 1.) preaching the Lord Jeſus.

21. And (they being men enabled and authoriſed for this work by the Holy Ghoſt's deſcent upon them for this end, Acts 2. 9, 10.) the hand,

(or

(or power) of the Lord was with them, and a great number believed, and turned to the Lord.

22. Then tidings of theſe things came to the ears of the Church, which was at Jeruſalem, and they ſent forth Barnabas (a Cyprian,) that he ſhould go (διελθεῖν to go through thoſe places) as far as (even to) Antioch:

23. Who, when he came, and had ſeen (Gr. coming, and ſeeing) the grace of God, (i. e. the prevalency of the Goſpel among them,) was glad, and exhorted them all, that, with (full) purpoſe of heart, they would cleave to the Lord:

24. For he was a good man, and full of the (gifts of the) Holy Ghoſt, and of faith, and (by his means) much people was added to the Lord; (i. e. believed in the Lord Jeſus.)

25. Then departed Barnabas (from Antioch) to Tarſus, to ſeek Saul, (perhaps that he being an Apoſtle might lay his hands on ſome of them, that they might receive the Holy Ghoſt, Acts 8. 17.)

26. And when he had found him, he brought him to Antioch: And it came to paſs, that a whole year they aſſembled themſelves with (or in) the Church, and taught much people, and the (y who formerly were called) diſciples, [h] were called Chriſtians firſt in Antioch.

27. And in thoſe days came Prophets, (i. e. men who had the gift of foretelling things to come,) from Jeruſalem to Antioch.

28. And there ſtood up one of them named Agabus, and ſignified by (the afflatus of) the Spirit, that there ſhould be a great dearth [i] throughout all the world, (i. e. the Roman empire,) which came to paſs in the days of Claudius Cæſar.

29. Then the diſciples (of Antioch, and the places adjacent,) every man according to his ability, determined to ſend relief to the brethren which dwelt in Judea.

30. Which alſo they did, and [k] ſent it to the elders (of the Jews) by the hands of Barnabas and Saul.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XI.

Ver. 1. [a] WHEN the Apoſtles and brethren had heard that the Gentiles had received the word of God.] This they then only heard, becauſe it was then only done, they who before preached the word, doing it only to the Jews, ver. 19.

Ver. 2. [b] Διεκρίνοντο πρὸς αὐτὸν οἱ ἐκ περιτομῆς, They of the circumciſion contended with him.] I ſee no reaſon here to except any of the believing Jews, (unleſs perhaps the Apoſtles,) from this contention, they being all zealous of the law, and of their cuſtoms, and not enduring to hear that any Jew ſhould act contrary to them, Acts 21. 20, 21. And St. Peter himſelf being of that mind till he had received this viſion, and laying it down as a known rule, Acts 10. 28. that it was unlawful for a Jew to converſe with an alien, and even after this viſion, withdrawing himſelf from the believing Gentiles, for fear of the Jews which came from Jeruſalem, Gal. 2. 12. and they of the diſperſion preaching to the Jews only. Note alſo hence, that the believers knew nothing of the ſupremacy, and much leſs of the infallibility of St. Peter, for otherwiſe they would not have dared thus to riſe up againſt their ſupreme governor, much leſs would they have condemned the actions of their infallible teacher.

Ver. 14. [c] Who ſhall ſpeak to thee words, by which thou, and all thy houſe ſhall be ſaved.] God, ſaith Grotius, after he had ſent Chriſt, would admit of no other way of obtaining the ſalvation promiſed in the Goſpel, but by the knowledge of him, which is certainly true of all who were capable of coming to the knowledge of him; how far he might accept of others, ſee my conjecture, Note on Rom. 2. 14.

Ver. 15. [d] The Holy Ghoſt fell upon them, ὥσπερ καὶ ἐφ' ἡμᾶς ἐν τῇ ἀρχῇ, as upon us at the beginning.] They therefore having received the like gifts which were the fruits of faith, muſt be looked on as brethren and diſciples of the Lord, and ſo muſt be admitted into his Church by that baptiſm, which Chriſt inſtituted to be adminiſtred to all his diſciples, being united by his Spirit to Chriſt their Head, they muſt be owned as his members, God having owned them by imparting to them theſe ſpiritual gifts, they muſt be owned by us, and he having purified their hearts by faith, Chap. 15. 9. they muſt no longer be looked on by us as unclean.

Ver. 18. [e] Then hath God granted to the Gentiles repentance unto life.] The Jews had the higheſt thoughts of themſelves, as if all God's bleſſings were deſigned for them only, and the meaneſt, and even vileſt thoughts of all other nations, as if God counted them only as ſpittle. Thou madeſt the world for our ſakes, ſaith the book of Eſdras; as for the other people, thou haſt ſaid, They are nothing, but be like to ſpittle, and they have ever been reputed as nothing, 2 Eſd. 6. 55, 56, 57. They imagined, that the Meſſiah was to make them a glorious people, and to ſive them, but to deſtroy or to enſlave all other nations to them; and that God would ſave all of them, as being children of Abraham, but that all the reſt of the world were fuel for hell-fire; and this made them ſo to contemn them, and never think of their being ſaved any other way than by being proſelytes to their law. Hence, in the former Chapter, they ſo much admire that the Holy Ghoſt ſhould fall on them, ver. 45. and here ſpeak of it as a thing beyond their imagination, that God ſhould grant repentance unto life to them: Hence do the unbelieving Jews forbid the Apoſtles to ſpeak to the Gentiles that they might be ſaved, 2 Theſſ. 2. 16. and cry out againſt St. Paul as one not fit to live, becauſe he ſaid, Chriſt would ſend him to the Gentiles, Acts 22. 21, 22. See Addition, N° 15.

Ver. 19. [f] Preaching the word to none but the Jews only;] As thinking it unlawful to converſe with men of other nations, and not believing that God would give repentance to the Gentiles. Woltzogenius here notes, that theſe men preached without any miſſion; and hence concludes, that an ordinary miſſion is not required to authorize men to preach the Goſpel. But this is ſaid without juſt ground; for theſe men ſeem to be of the number of thoſe on whom the Holy Ghoſt fell on the day of pentecoſt, among whom were thoſe of Cyrene. Moreover, the power of the Lord was with them, to confirm their doctrine by miracles, v. 21. He then that will plead a commiſſion from God to preach the Goſpel without an ordinary miſſion, muſt ſhew the like extraordinary gifts, or miraculous aſſiſtances; God never ſending any perſon to do his work without ſome teſtimony from himſelf, or from perſons commiſſionated by him.

Ver. 20. [g] And they ſpake πρὸς τοὺς Ἑλληνιστὰς, to the Helleniſts.] Grotius here ſaith, certo legendum, πρὸς τοὺς Ἕλληνας, we muſt certainly read to the Greeks, becauſe the Syriack, Arabick, and Latin ſo read; whereas that is no ground at all; for ſo they all read, Chap. 6. 1. where Grotius himſelf acknowledges, the Jews are to be underſtood by the Helleniſts: He adds, that the Alexandrian MS. ſo reads, but ſo it doth in oppoſition to all the other MSS. Chryſoſtom here ſaith, That they ſpake Greek, Ἑβραῖοι ὄντες, being Hebrews. Oecumenius ſaith, He ſtiles them Helleniſts, not as being addicted to the worſhip of the Greeks, but as Ἑλλάδι φθεγγόμενοι, ſpeaking the Greek language; and it ſeems neceſſary to underſtand the Jews uſing the Greek tongue, and reading the ſcriptures in that tongue in their ſynagogues, as Buxtorf ſays, they did: (1.) Becauſe theſe perſons preached to the Jews only, ver. 19. And, (2.) Becauſe they of the church of Jeruſalem ſend to them Barnabas, whom they would ſcarce ſend to the uncircumciſed.

Ver. 26. [h] And the diſciples were called Chriſtians firſt at Antioch.] Before they were called diſciples, as here; believers, Acts 5. 14. men of the church, Acts 12. 1. men of the way; See Note on Acts 9. 2. the ſaints, Acts 9. 13. thoſe that called on the name of Chriſt, ver. 14. and by their enemies, Nazarenes and Galileans; but now, by the converſion of Cornelius, and his kinſmen, and his family, the believing Jews and Gentiles being made one Church, that the name of Jew and Heathen might no more continue the diſtance that was betwixt them, this new name was given to them both; as ſome conceive, according to the prophecy mentioned, Iſa. 65. 15. A name embraced by all Chriſtians, as more expreſſive of their relation to their maſter Chriſt, and which they gloried in, and owned before the face of their enemies, Tertull. Apol. c. 3, 5. Euſeb. Hiſtor. Eccleſ. l. 5. c. 1. But that Evodius ſhould be then Biſhop of Antioch, and give this name firſt to the Chriſtians; and St. Luke ſhould ſay nothing either of his doing this, or ever mention his being there, it is not eaſy to believe.

Ver. 28. [i] Ἐφ' ὅλην τὴν οἰκουμένην, Through the whole world.] That οἰκουμένη ſignifies the Roman empire, ſee the Note on Luke 2. 1. Accordingly, (a) Euſebius ſaith of this famine, that it oppreſſed almoſt the whole empire; and that it was recorded by hiſtorians, moſt averſe to our religion, viz. by (b) Suetonius in the life of Claudius, who ſaith, it happened, ob aſſiduas ſterilitates, through a long barrenneſs. (c) Joſephus ſaith, that it raged ſo much in Judea, πολλῶν ὑπὸ ἐνδείας ἀνθρώπων φθειρομένων, ſo that many periſhed for want of victuals. And (d) Dion Caſſius, that it was λιμὸς ἰσχυρός, a very great famine, and happened when Claudius and Caius Largus were Conſuls, that is, in the ſecond year of Claudius, though it ſeems rather to have been that which happened, as Euſebius in his Chronicon, and Oroſius, l. 7. 6. place it in the fourth year of Claudius.

Ver. 30. [k] And ſent it πρὸς τοὺς πρεσβυτέρους to the Elders.] It is doubtleſs the duty of all Chriſtians to be ready to relieve their Chriſtian brethren in other nations, according to their abilities, as St. Paul ſhews, 2. Cor. 8. 9. and thoſe eſpecially from whom they have received ſpiritual tual things, Rom. 15. 27. But here it is farther to be noted, that it was the conſtant cuſtom of the Jews, in their diſperſions, to ſend money into the land of Canaan for the ſuſtaining of the poor there, as (e) Campegius Vitringa proves. St. Paul was therefore careful, that the unbelieving Jews ſhould not out-do the Chriſtians in thoſe offices of charity towards their brethren in Judea; and therefore, as he carries here the charity of the Chriſtians of Antioch, and the parts adjacent, to the diſtreſſed brethren in Judea, ſo doth he ſhew himſelf always ready to advance this work, Gal. 2. 10. plead for, and to promote it, as he did in the Churches of Macedonia and Achaia.

But whereas ſome contend, the Elders mentioned here were the Biſhops of Judea; it is not certain that they were Chriſtians, or any other than the Elders of the Jewiſh ſynagogues, or the πρῶτοι τῆς Ἱεροσολυμιτῶν, the chief men of Jeruſalem; to whom, ſaith (f) Joſephus, King Izates ſent his charity at the ſame time: And if they were Chriſtians, they might ſtill be the elders of their ſynagogues, the Chriſtians then retaining the Jewiſh rites.

CHAP. XII.

1. NOW about that time (that Agabus foretold of the famine, Chap. 11. 28.) Herod (Agrippa) the King, [a] ſtretched forth his hands, to vex certain of the Church, (Gr. caught hold of certain of the Church to afflict them.)

2. And [b] he killed James the brother of John, (who by this title was diſtinguiſhed from James the ſon of Alpheus, Biſhop of Jeruſalem,) with the ſword.

3. And becauſe he ſaw it pleaſed the Jews, (to ſee the Chriſtians thus afflicted, and cut off,) he proceeded farther to take (into cuſtody) Peter alſo; (and when this was done,) then were the days of unleavened bread (the paſchal feſtival.)

4. And when (when therefore) he had apprehended him, he put him in priſon, and delivered him to four quaternions of ſoldiers, (i. e. ſixteen ſoldiers,) to keep him, (four at a time;) intending [c] after Eaſter, (or when that feſtival was over, in which it was cuſtomary to releaſe a priſoner to them, Matth. 27. 15.) to bring him forth to the people (to be ſlain before them.)

5. Peter therefore was kept in priſon (for this end;) but [d] prayer was made without ceaſing, of the Church to God for (deliverance of) him.

6. And when Herod would have brought (was about to bring) him forth, the ſame night (that he had determined to do this on the morrow, ver. 9.) Peter was ſleeping betwixt two ſoldiers, (being) bound (to them) with two chains, (Acts 28. 20.) and the keepers, (being two other ſoldiers which ſtood) before the door, kept the priſon.

7. And behold, the (an) angel of the Lord came to him (to deliver him,) and a light ſhined in the priſon, (to enable him to ſee what he was to do;) and he (the angel) ſmote Peter on the ſide, and raiſed him up, ſaying (to him,) Ariſe up quickly; and (when he had ſo ſaid,) [e] his chains fell off from his hands.

8. And the angel ſaid to him, Gird thyſelf, and bind on thy ſandals; and ſo he did: And (then) he ſaid to him, Caſt thy garment about thee, and follow me.

9. And he went out, and followed him, and wiſt not that it was true which was done by the angel, but thought he ſaw (had ſeen) a viſion (only.)

10. (And) when they were paſt the firſt and ſecond wards, they came to the iron gate that leadeth (from the priſon) to the city, which (gate) opened unto them of his (its) own accord; and they went out, and paſſed on (together) through one ſtreet; and [f] forthwith the angel (having done all that was requiſite for his deliverance) departed from him.

11. And when Peter was come to himſelf, (and ſaw where he was,) he ſaid, Now I know of a ſurety, that the Lord hath ſent his angel, and hath delivered me out of the hand of Herod, and from all the expectation of the people of the Jews.

12. And when he had [g] conſidered (the thing done,) he came to the houſe of Mary the mother of (that) John, whoſe ſirname was Mark, where many were gathered together, praying.

13. And as Peter knocked at the door of the gate, a damſel came to hearken (what he who knocked would ſay; and ſhe was) named Rhoda.

14. And when ſhe knew Peter's voice, ſhe opened not the gate for gladneſs, but (firſt) ran in, and told (them within) how Peter ſtood before the gate:

15. And they ſaid unto her, Thou art mad (to entertain ſuch a thought;) but ſhe conſtantly affirmed, that it was even ſo; then ſaid they, [h] It is his (good) angel, (or a meſſenger ſent from him.)

16. But Peter continued knocking, and when they had opened the door, and ſaw him, they were aſtoniſhed.

17. But

(e) De Syn. Vet. l. 3. Part. 1. c. 13. p. 808——811. (f) Antiq. l. 20. c. 2. p. 636.

17. But he beckning to them with the hand to hold their peace, declared to them, how the Lord had (by an angel,) brought him out of the priſon; and he ſaid, [i] Go ſhew theſe things to James, and the brethren; and (then) he departed (from them,) and went into another place (of more ſafety.)

18. Now aſſoon as it was day, there was no ſmall ſtir among the ſoldiers, (enquiring) what was become of Peter:

19. And when Herod ſought for him, and found him not, he examined the keepers, (he queſtioned them in a judicial manner;) and (when they could tell nothing of him, he) [k] commanded that they ſhould be put to death: And (then) he, (i. e. King Agrippa) [l] went down from Judea to Cæſarea, (to celebrate the ſolemnity there kept for the honour of Cæſar,) and there abode (during the time of that ſolemnity.)

20. And Herod was highly diſpleaſed with them of Tyre and Sidon, (and deſigned to make war upon them;) but they came with one accord to him; and having made Blaſtus the King's chamberlain, their friend, deſired (by him, that they might have) peace, becauſe their country was nouriſhed by the King's country.

21. And upon a ſet day, (the ſecond day of the ſolemnity, appointed in honour of Cæſar) Herod arayed in royal apparel, (upon which the ſun ſhining, gave it a glorious luſtre,) ſat on his throne, and made an oration (in the theatre) to them, (i. e. to thoſe nobles and governors which were come out of the whole province to that ſolemnity:)

22. And the people gave a ſhout, ſaying, The voice (of him that ſpeaketh, is the voice) of a god, and not of a (mere) man.

23. And [m] immediately the angel of the Lord ſmote him, becauſe he (received this flattery without reprehenſion, as due to him, and) gave not God the glory; and he was eaten (and miſerably tormented) with worms (in his bowels,) and ſo gave up the ghoſt.

24. But (and) the word of God (notwithſtanding this oppoſition,) grew, and multiplied.

25. And Barnabas and Saul returned from Jeruſalem when they had fulfilled their miniſtry, (i. e. diſtributed the charity ſent by the diſciples of Antioch, and other places, to be given by them to the elders of Jeruſalem, Chap. 11. 29, 30.) and took with them John, whoſe ſirname was Mark.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XII.

Ver. 1. [a] Ἐπέβαλεν Ἡρῴδης τὰς χεῖρας, Herod laid hands upon.] Ἐπιβάλλειν χεῖρας being never uſed intranſitively, but always with the dative caſe, or an accuſative with the preposition ἐπί, cannot here be rendred, he attempted or reſolved, but the whole ſentence filled up, ſeems to be this, ἔβαλε χεῖρας ἐπὶ τινας τῶν ἀπὸ τῆς ἐκκλησίας κακῶσαι αὐτούς, he laid hold on ſome of the Church to afflict them: The preposition being often included in the verb, and being to be taken or repeated from it to compleat the ſenſe.

Ver. 2. [b] Ἀνεῖλε δὲ Ἰάκωβον, He killed James with the ſword.] Thus was the prediction of our Lord fulfilled, that James ſhould drink of his cup, Matth. 20. 23. But then he being cut off, A. D. 43. the ſtory of his being long in Spain muſt be an idle fable of the monks, like to that of their placing vincula ſancti Petri upon the firſt of Auguſt, when we learn from ver. 3. that he was put into thoſe chains at the paſchal feaſt, and delivered from them at the cloſe of it, v. 7. that is, above four months before.

Ver. 4. [c] Μετὰ τὸ πάσχα, After the paſſover:] He being reſerved till then, either in honour of the feaſt, or that the Chriſtians, who, tho' they were hated by the rulers of the Jews, were yet in favour with the people, Chap. 2. 47. might not prevail with others to beg his life, according to the cuſtom of that feaſt, Matth. 27. 15. or to avoid a tumult.

Ver. 5. [d] Προσευχὴ ἐκτενὴς, Prayer was made for him by the Church without ceaſing.] That ſuch prayers are prevalent for the preſervation of very eminent members of the Church, we learn, not only from this inſtance, but alſo from thoſe words of St. Paul, I know this ſhall happen to my preſervation through your prayers, Philip. 1. 19. and, I hope, I ſhall through your prayers be given to you, Philem. 22. The word ἐκτενὴς primarily ſignifies extended; but becauſe the fervency of our deſire is uſually the cauſe that we pray much, or long for any thing; therefore to pray ἐκτενῶς, is alſo to pray fervently and importunately, Luke 22. 14. and ἐκτένη ἀγάπην is fervent love, 1 Pet. 1. 22.——4. 8.

Ver. 7. [e] Ἐξέπεσον αὐτοῦ αἱ ἁλύσεις, His chains fell off from his hands.] That ſome ſoldiers of Herod, converted to the Chriſtian faith, ſhould mark, and take away theſe chains, and give them to the Biſhop of Jeruſalem, and that they ſhould be kept as a treaſure, not only through all the Jewiſh wars, but about four hundred years after, till Juvenal, Biſhop of Jeruſalem, gave them to Eudoxia, wife to Theodoſius the junior, who gave gave one of them to the church of St. Peter's in Conſtantinople, and ſent the other to Rome, is a tale of Surius, that ſmells too rank of ſuperſtition to deſerve the leaſt credit.

Ver. 10. [f] Ἀπέστη ὁ ἄγγελος ἀπ' αὐτοῦ, And forthwith the angel left him.] When he had done all things requiſite on his part for his deliverance, and which could not be done by Peter, he leaves what was farther requiſite, to compleat the deliverance, and render him ſecure from danger, to his own induſtry and prudence, hereby inſtructing us not to expect an immediate aſſiſtance from God, in things he hath already put into our power, and given us abilities to perform.

Ver. 12. [g] Συνιδών τε ἦλθεν ἐπὶ τὴν οἰκίαν Μαρίας, And conſidering of the thing, he came to the houſe of Mary, where many were gathered together, praying.] Here note,

1*ſt*, That it ſeems very unreaſonable, without any authority, to change συνιδών, conſidering, into σπεύδων, haſtning, either here, or Chap. 14. 6. againſt all the verſions in both places.

2*dly*, Note, from theſe words, the houſe of Mary, that all the Chriſtians had not then ſold their houſes and their goods; and,

3*dly*, That they had then in thoſe times of peril their ſacred aſſemblies in the night, Peter here coming to them before day, v. 18. and yet finding them praying; whence (a) Pliny makes mention of their Cœtus antelucani, aſſemblies in the night, and (b) Cecilius objects to the Chriſtians, nocturnas congregationes, their night meetings, as knowing they were forbidden by the Roman laws; as you may ſee in Cicero, lib. 2. de legibus. N. 25, 35, 36, 37.

Ver. 15. [h] Οἱ δὲ ἔλεγον ὁ ἄγγελος αὐτοῦ ἐστιν, But they ſaid, it is his angel.] Here it is acknowledged, that the word ἄγγελος ſignifies not only a celeſtial ſpirit, but alſo a meſſenger ſent from one to another; as may be proved from many other places beſides thoſe cited by the Reverend Dr. Hammond; thus the meſſengers ſent by the elders of Jabeſh to the Ammonites, 1 Sam. 11. 3. and by Saul through the coaſts of Iſrael, v. 7, 9. are ſtiled ἄγγελοι, angels. So Saul ſent ἀγγέλους meſſengers, to take David, 1 Sam. 19. 20, 21. So David ſent meſſengers ἀγγέλους to ſalute Nabal, Chap. 25. 14. Amaziah ſent ἀγγέλους meſſengers to enquire of Baalzebub, 2 Kings 1. 2. So David ſaith, Pſal. 151. Gr. ver. 4. he ſent τὸν ἄγγελον αὐτοῦ, his angel, viz. Samuel, and anointed me, and Jam. 2. 25. Rahab received τοὺς ἀγγέλους, the meſſengers; but when it is hence conjectured, that the import of theſe words may be only this, that ſome meſſenger was come from him, to impart ſomething to the Church; as I have met with none of the ancients of this opinion, ſo is there this plain objection againſt it, viz. that the damſel could only know St. Peter by his voice, or face, both which they might believe his angel could imitate, whereas they knew a meſſenger, could he have had opportunity of ſending one from the priſon, could do neither. Since then it was a vulgar opinion among the Jews, that good men had their tutelar angels, or at leaſt that angels were ſent down from heaven about their affairs, they, by this angel, might underſtand either erroneouſly a guardian angel, attending on him, or, agreeably to ſcripture, an angel ſent from heaven to acquaint them with ſomething relating to him, in anſwer to their prayers. Here then is no foundation for a guardian angel ſtill attending on good men, and had Peter himſelf thought ſo, it is likely he would have aſcribed this deliverance not to an angel ſent from heaven, but to this guardian angel.

Ver. 17. [i] Go ſhew theſe things to James, and to the brethren,] that they might bleſs God for this extraordinary anſwer to their prayers, and might be confirmed by it in the faith, and in their expectation of divine aſſiſtance and protection in their endeavours to promote the intereſts of the Goſpel.

Ver. 19. [k] He commanded them ἀπαχθῆναι to be put to death.] So in Heſychius ἀπαγθῆναι is εἰς θάνατον ἀχθῆναι, to be carried away to die, or to be ſent away to puniſhment, as this phraſe uſually ſignifies in the beſt Greek authors, and in (c) Seneca.

Ibid. [l] Καὶ καταβὰς ἀπὸ τῆς Ἰουδαίας εἰς Καισάρειαν διέτριβεν, And going down from Judea he abode at Caſarea.] That it was not Peter, as ſome imagine, but King Agrippa, who went down from Judea to Caſarea, we learn from Joſephus, who gives us a full account, both of this journey, and the occaſion of it, informing us, that he went down εἰς πόλιν Καισάρειαν, to the city of Caſarea, to perform the ſolemnity, or the games celebrated there every olympiad to the honour of Caſar, and that the nobles and governors of the province of Syria, repaired to that city on the ſame account, that on the ſecond day of the feſtival he came early into the theatre, cloathed with a wonderful garment, wholly made of ſilver, on which the ſun ſhining, it it caſt forth a glorious ſplendor, Antiq. l. 19. c. 7. p. 678, 679. He farther adds, that flatterers came about him, Θεὸν προσαγορεύοντες, calling him a god, and that the King οὐκ ἐπέπληξε, οὐδὲ τὴν κολακείαν ἀπεδοκίμασεν, did non repel, or reprehend the impious blaſphemy.

Ver. 23. [m] Παραχρῆμα ἐπάταξεν αὐτὸν ἄγγελος Κυρίου, And immediately the angel of the Lord ſmote him, &c.] That he was ſmitten by the Lord immediately on his receiving this impious flattery, is evident from Joſephus; for he ſaith, μετ' ὀλίγον, that after a while, he ſees the owl which was the meſſenger of his calamity, that ἄθεσον ἄλγημα, a ſudden torment came upon him, and that thereupon he inſtantly tells the ſame auditors he muſt die. Again, Joſephus doth not ſay that he was σκωληκόβρωτος, eaten up of worms, but he ſaith he had ἀλγήματα τὴν κοιλίας, vehement torments in his bowels, which increaſing upon him, in five days he died, and they that in time might breed worms in him, as he confeſſes they did in his grandfather. And examples of the like exits of the perſecutors of the Chriſtian faith, we have many in Church hiſtory. Thus (d) Tertullian ſaith of one Claudius Heminianus, one of their perſecutors, that cum vivus vermibus ebulliſſet, when worms broke forth of him, whilſt he was alive, he ſaid, Let no man know it, leſt the Chriſtians ſhould rejoice. And (e) Euſebius ſaith of Maximinian, that ſudden ulcers roſe in his fundament, and ſecret parts, from which ſprung ἀλκίδιόν τι πολὺ σκωλήκων, an incredible multitude of worms. And of the uncle of Julian the apoſtate, who perſecuted the Chriſtians, and trampled upon the ſacred veſſels, Theodoret and St. Chryſoſtom, inform us, that he periſhed by this diſeaſe, διαφθεῖρον δὴ αὐτὸν αἰδοῖον σκώληκας ἐτέκετο. An inſtance like to this we have in (f) Pherecydes Syrus, ὑπὸ τῶν φθειρῶν ἀναλωθέντα, eaten up of lice, for boaſting of his great wiſdom and his pleaſant life, though he ſacrificed, ſaith (g) Elian, to no God at all. So alſo was it under the Jewiſh ſtate; for of Antiochus Epiphanes we read ἐκ τοῦ σώματος τοῦ ἀνόσιου ἀναζέειν, that worms ſprang out of the body of this wicked man, 2 Maccab. 9. 8, 9. and of Herod the Great, Joſephus owns that he had τοῦ αἰδοίου σῆψις σκώληκας ἐμποιοῦσα, a putrefaction producing worms, Antiq. l. 17. c. 8. p. 597. See Bochart. Hieroz. part 2. l. 4. c. 26. p. 620, 621.

CHAP. XIII.

1. [a] NOW there were in the church that was at Antioch, certain prophets and teachers, as Barnabas, and Simeon that was called Niger, and Lucius of Cyrene, and Manaen, who had been brought up with Herod the Tetrarch, and Saul.

2. (And) [b] as they miniſtred to the Lord, and faſted, the Holy Ghoſt ſaid (to them,) Separate me Barnabas and Saul, for the (peculiar) work whereunto I have called them.

3. And when they had faſted, and prayed, and laid their hands on them, they ſent them away (in purſuance of it.)

4. So they being (thus) ſent forth by the Holy Ghoſt, departed into Seleucia, and from [c] thence they ſailed to Cyprus.

5. And when they were at Salamis, they preached the word of God in the ſynagogues of the Jews, and they had alſo [d] John (ſirnamed Mark, Chap. 12. 25.) to their miniſter, (to miniſter to them.)

6. And when they had gone through the iſle to Paphos, they found a certain [e] ſorcerer, a falſe Prophet, a Jew, whoſe name was Barjeſus:

7. [f] Who was with the deputy of the country (named) Sergius Paulus, a prudent man, who called for Barnabas and Saul, and deſired to hear the word of God (from their mouths.)

8. But Elymas the ſorcerer, (for ſo is his name by interpretation,) (from the Arabick word Elim,) withſtood them, ſeeking to turn away the deputy from the faith.

9. Then [g] Saul (who is alſo called Paul) (being) filled with the (afflatus of the) Holy Ghoſt, ſet his eyes on him,

10. And ſaid, O (thou that art) full of all ſubtilty, and all miſchief, thou child of the Devil, thou enemy of all righteouſneſs, wilt thou not ceaſe to pervert the right ways of the Lord, (but plead for and uſe thy ſorceries in oppoſition to them?)

11. And now (therefore) behold, the hand of the Lord is upon thee, and thou ſhalt be blind, not ſeeing the ſun for a ſeaſon: And immediately there fell on him a miſt, and a darkneſs, and he went about ſeeking ſome to lead him by the hand.

12. Then the deputy, when he ſaw what was done, believed, being aſtoniſhed at (the power which attended) the doctrine of the Lord.

13. Now

13. Now when Paul and his company looſed from Paphos, they came to Perga in Pamphylia, and (then) John departing from them, returned to Jeruſalem.

14. But when they departed from Perga, they came to Antioch in Piſidia, and went into the ſynagogue on the ſabbath-day, and ſat down;

15. And after the reading of the law and the prophets, the [h] rulers of the ſynagogue ſent to them, ſaying, Ye men and brethren, if ye have any word of exhortation to the people, ſay on, (λέγετε, ſpeak it.)

16. Then Paul ſtood up, and beckoning with his hand, ſaid, Men of Iſrael, and ye (Greeks) that fear God, give audience.

17. The God of this people of Iſrael choſe our fathers, (the Patriarchs,) and exalted the people (deſcended from them) when they dwelt as ſtrangers in the land of Egypt, and with an high arm brought he them out of it.

18. And [i] about the time of forty years ſuffered he their manners in the wilderneſs.

19. And when he had (for their ſakes) deſtroyed ſeven nations in the land of Canaan, he divided their land to them by lot.

20. And after that he [k] gave to them Judges, about the ſpace of four hundred and fifty years, until Samuel the Prophet.

21. And afterwards they deſired a King, and God gave them Saul, the ſon of Cis, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, (who with Samuel, reigned) [l] by the ſpace of forty years.

22. And when he had removed him, he raiſed up to them David to be their King, to whom alſo he gave teſtimony, and ſaid, (Pſal. 89. 11.) I have found David the ſon of Jeſſe, a man after my own heart, who ſhall fulfil all my will.

23. Of this man's ſeed hath God, according to his promiſe, raiſed to Iſrael a Saviour Jeſus,

24. When John had firſt preached before his coming, the baptiſm of repentance to all the people of Iſrael.

25. And as John fulfilled his courſe, (i. e. performed his office,) he ſaid, Whom think ye that I am? I am not he, (i. e. the Chriſt;) but behold, there cometh one after me, whoſe ſhoes of his (i. e. the ſhoes of whoſe) feet, I am not worthy to looſe.

26. Men and brethren, children of the ſtock of Abraham, and [m] whoſoever amongſt you feareth God, to you is the word of this ſalvation, (which Chriſt hath brought into the world,) ſent.

27. For they that dwelt at Jeruſalem, and their rulers, becauſe they knew him not, nor yet the (import of the) voices of the Prophets, which are read every ſabbath-day, they have fulfilled them in condemning him (to that death which procures our remiſſion of ſins.)

28. And though they found no cauſe of death in him, yet deſired they Pilate, that he ſhould (might) be ſlain.

29. And when they had fulfilled all that was written of him, they took him down from the tree, (John 19. 31.) and laid him in a ſepulchre, (and they ſealed the ſepulchre and put a guard upon it, Matth. 27. 66.)

30. But (notwithſtanding this,) God raiſed him from the dead:

31. [n] And he was ſeen (alive) many days of them which came up with him from Galilee to Jeruſalem, who are his witneſſes to the people.

32. And we declare to you glad tidings, (viz.) how that the promiſe which was made to the fathers, (that in him ſhould all the families of the earth be bleſſed;)

33. [o] God hath fulfilled the ſame to us their children, in that he hath raiſed up Jeſus again (to be a Prince, and a Saviour;) as it is alſo [p] written (of him) in the ſecond Pſalm (by God, ſaying, from the mouth of David,) Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee.

34. And as concerning that (Gr. and that) [q] he raiſed him up from the dead, now no more to return to corruption, (is evident, becauſe) he ſaid on this wiſe, I will give you (Jews) the ſure mercies of David.

35. Wherefore he ſaith alſo in another Pſalm, Thou ſhalt not ſuffer thy holy One to ſee corruption, (which words cannot reſpect David himſelf,)

36. For David, after he had ſerved his own generation, by the will of God, fell aſleep, and was laid to his fathers, and (his body) ſaw corruption;

37. But he (that Jeſus) whom God raiſed up, ſaw no corruption (as to his body.)

38. Be it known to you therefore, men and brethren, that [r] through this man ('s death) is preached to you the forgiveneſs of ſins:

39. And by him all that believe are juſtified from all things, from which ye could not be juſtified by the law of Moſes.

40. Beware therefore, leſt (for your infidelity,) that come upon you, which is ſpoken of in the Prophets,

41. Behold, ye deſpiſers, and wonder, and periſh, for I work a work in your days, a work which ye ſhall (will) in no wiſe believe, though a man declare it to you;

42. And

42. And when the Jews were gone out of the ſynagogue, the Gentiles beſought that theſe words might be preached to them the [s] next ſabbath (day.)

43. Now when the congregation was broken up, many of the Jews and religious proſelytes followed Paul and Barnabas, who ſpeaking to them, perſuaded them to continue in the grace of God.

44. And the next ſabbath-day came almoſt the whole city together, to hear the word of God.

45. But when the Jews ſaw the multitudes, they were filled with envy, and ſpake againſt thoſe things which were ſpoken by Paul, contradicting and blaſpheming (them.)

46. Then Paul and Barnabas waxed bold, and ſaid, It was neceſſary (by Chriſt's appointment, Acts 1. 8.) that the word of God ſhould firſt have been ſpoken to you; but ſeeing ye put it from you, and (by your actions) [t] judge yourſelves unworthy of everlaſting life, [v] lo we turn (from you) to the Gentiles.

47. For ſo hath the Lord commanded, ſaying, I have ſet thee, (O Chriſt,) to be a light to the Gentiles, that thou ſhouldeſt be for ſalvation to the ends of the earth.

48. And when the Gentiles heard this, they were glad, and glorified the word of the Lord, (giving glory to him for it,) and [w] as many (of them) as were ordained to (diſpoſed for) eternal life, believed.

49. And the word of the Lord was publiſhed throughout all the region:

50. But the Jews ſtirred up the devout and honourable women, and chief men of the city, and raiſed perſecution againſt Paul and Barnabas, and expelled them out of their coaſts.

51. But they ſhook off the duſt of their feet againſt them, and came to Iconium.

52. And the diſciples were filled with joy, and with the Holy Ghoſt.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XIII.

Ver. 1. [a] Ἦσαν δέ τινες ἐν Ἀντιοχείᾳ κατὰ τὴν οὖσαν ἐκκλησίαν προφῆται καὶ διδάσκαλοι, There were ſome Prophets and teachers in Antioch, belonging to that church.] So Grotius; and indeed Barnabas and Paul might well be reckoned ſuch, Barnabas being ſent thither by the church of Jeruſalem, Chap. 11. 22. and he and Paul preaching there a whole year, ver. 26. and being ſent by that church to Jeruſalem, 1*ſt,* With their alms, ver. 30. and about the queſtion determined by the council, Acts 15. and the reſt being very probably ſome of the one hundred and eight, who being ſcattered abroad by the perſecution, mentioned Acts 8. 1. came down to Antioch, Chap. 11. 19. for Niger is by (a) Epiphanius declared to have been one of the ſeventy-two, and Lucius was of Cyrene, ſaith the text, and ſo one of them that came down to Antioch, Chap. 11. 20. but to ſay, that either Paul or Barnabas were Biſhops of Syria, as Dr. Hammond doth, is that which never was before, nor can with any reaſon be aſſerted of the Apoſtle of the Gentiles, or of Barnabas appointed to go with him to the Gentiles, ver. 2. nor could he have had any temptation to have made the other three, there named, Biſhops, but that he finds them laying on of hands, ver. 2. imagining that was for ordination, whereas it was by way of benediction on their enterprize only, or to recommend them to the grace of God, Chap. 14. 26. for who ever heard before of an Apoſtle ordained Biſhop, by laying on of the hands of Prophets, or Teachers? or of one Prophet, Teacher, or Biſhop, laying his hands upon another Prophet, Biſhop, or Teacher, to ordain him Biſhop? And indeed, if there were ſo many Biſhops as he hath given us in Judea, Acts 15. in Syria and Cilicia, here, and ſo many ordained in all other churches, as he ſaith, Chap. 14. 23. is it not wonderful, that St. Paul in all his travels ſhould never meet with, reſort to, or be entertained by any one of them, but only by the brethren at large? Or that he ſhould write to the churches of the Romans, Corinthians, Galatians, Coloſſians, and Theſſalonians, before he went bound to Rome, and never ſalute any Biſhops there, or give any inſtructions to them, or ſo much as ever mention, that he had ordained any Elders, that is, ſaith he, Biſhops there? It alſo is to be obſerved, that this only was a temporary miſſion to preach to the Gentiles, that being the work to which St. Paul was called, ver. 2. and of which they give an account to the church of Antioch, declaring how God had opened a door of faith to the Gentiles, which miſſion they preſently compleated, and then returned to Antioch, declaring to the church there what they had done in proſecution of it, Chap. 14. 26, 27.

Ver. 2. [b] Λειτουργούντων δὲ αὐτῶν τῷ Κυρίῳ, And as they miniſtred to the Lord.] Vain here is the inference of the Papiſts from this word, that they ſacrificed the maſs; for λειτουργεῖν in Phavorinus and Heſychius is, διακονεῖν, διακονεῖσθαι, ὑπηρετεῖν, to ſerve and miniſter: In the Old Teſtament it often ſignifies the miniſtry of the Levites, who were not to to offer sacrifice, as Numb. 4. 23, 24, 26, 27, 28, 30, 35, 37, 39, 43. Chap. 8. 22. —— 16. 9. —— 18. 6, 21, 23. By (b) Chrysostom and Oecumenius it is rendred preaching, and in profane authors it is applied to any other work. Thus, in (c) Aristotle's Politicks, men are said, λειτουργῶν περὶ τὰς ἀρχὰς, περὶ τεκνοποιΐαν, τὰ καθ' ἡμέραν, to minister about government in getting children, and about the things of this life.

Ver. 4. c And thence they sailed to Cyprus:] where the Jews so abounded, that (d) Dio Cassius tells us, that in the time of Trajan, they slew two hundred and forty thousand men there: and (e) Jerom, that the Jews overthrew Salamis in Cyprus, killing all the Gentiles there.

Ver. 5. d Καὶ εἶχον Ἰωάννην ὑπηρέτην, They had John to minister to them.] As the wise men and Prophets among the Jews had one to minister unto them, so the Apostles had also those who were their companions, and fellow-labourers, who ministred to them. So Timothy and Erastus are mentioned among those who ministred to St. Paul, Acts 19. 22.

Ver. 6. e A sorcerer, a false prophet, a Jew, whose name was Barjesus.] God having raised up Prophets in the Christian Church, and given the Apostles, and other teachers of the word, a power to confirm it with mighty signs and miracles; the Jews, who opposed Christianity, and laboured to turn men from the faith, pretended to be Prophets also, and endeavoured by magick and enchantments to work miracles, to cure diseases, and to cast out devils: of their magick and enchantments, See Dr. Lightfoot, Harm. of the New Testament, p. 95. and of their attempts to cure diseases and to cast out devils, Note on Chap. 19. 13.

Ver. 7. f Ὃς ἦν σὺν τῷ ἀνθυπάτῳ, Which was with the deputy of the country, (Gr. the Proconsul) Sergius Paulus.] The difficulty which some find in giving the name of Proconsul to the Prætor or President of Cyprus, is solved by these words of Valla, that not he only is stiled a Proconsul, who is sent to administer a province with consular power, but also a Prætor, or President, Elegant. l. 4.

Ver. 9. g Saul, who is also called Paul.] Origen, in his preface to the Epistle to the Romans, saith, that whilst he preached to the Jews he was called Saul, according to the name he had among them at his circumcision, Paulum autem appellatum esse cum Græcis, & gentibus leges & præcepta conscribit, and that he was called by his Roman name, Paul, when he preached to the Gentiles.

Ver. 15. h Οἱ ἀρχισυνάγωγοι, The rulers of the synagogue sent to them.] In what sense the rulers of the synagogue were many, and in what sense but one, see the Note on Mark 5. 22.

Ver. 18. i And about the time of forty years he suffered their manners, Gr. ἐτροποφόρησεν αὐτοὺς, in the wilderness.] Here Dr. Hammond thinks it is without doubt that the true reading is ἐτεροφόρησεν, he bore them as a parent doth his child, because so the word is used, Deut. 1. 31. where it is said, the Lord, ἐτεροφόρησε σε, bore thee in this wilderness as a man, τεροφορήσει, would bear his son; and the woman in the Maccabees intreats her youngest son to pity her, τεκοῦσαν. bearing him, 2 Maccab. 7. 27. See Additions, N°. 16. But tho' this makes a very good sense, it seems not necessary; for, 1*st*, (f) Origen there reads as here, ἐτεροφόρησεν, and expounds it, ἁρμόζεσθαι σὲ πρὸς τὰ ἀδύνατα, to accommodate himself to the infirmities of his children, and so the word is used by (g) Cicero ad Atticum, when he saith, τὸν τυφὸν μὴ τεροφόρησον, bear patiently my pride, or elation of mind.

Ver. 20. k God gave them judges about the space of 450 years.] Grotius and Bishop Usher note here, that other copies read thus, καὶ κατεκληρονόμησεν αὐτοῖς τὴν γῆν αὐτῶν, ὡς ἔτεσι τετρακοσίοις καὶ πεντήκοντα, καὶ μετὰ ταῦτα ἔδωκεν κριτὰς, he divided to them their land about four hundred and fifty years, and after that he gave them judges; and they begin the time of this computation from the birth of Isaac, of whom it was said, in Isaac shall thy seed be called, Gen. 21. 12. from his birth to the children of Israel's going out of Egypt, was 405 years, their stay in the wilderness was forty years, seven years after their land was divided to them, these years put together made 452: and so the Apostle saith, the space from God's election of them, to the dividing the land to them, was about 450 years. But,

1*st*, This reading is not owned by Chrysostom or Oecumenius, or by the Syriack or Arabick, who all read as we do.

2*dly*, The words seem not to bear this sense, for the Apostle goes on orderly thus: (1.) God chose our fathers. (2.) He brought them out of Egypt. (3.) He led them in the wilderness forty years. (4.) He divided the land to them. And therefore it is reasonable to conceive he should go on to tell what was done after the division of their land. Moreover the Apostle doth not say, and all these things were done in the space of 450 years, but he divided their land to them about the space of 450 years, which, according to this reading, signifies, he was so long in dividing their land; I therefore prefer the other computation which refers this to the Judges, because if you compute the years of the Judges till Samuel, you will find them 339, and the years of the tyrants 111, which put together make 450.

3*dly*, Because this computation then obtained among the Jews, for (h) Josephus saith, Solomon began to build the temple μὴ ἐτη τετρακοσια καὶ ενενηκοντα καὶ δυο, after 592 years of the children of Israel's going out of Egypt. Now, if you make the time of the Judges 450, the computation is exactly 591 years, he therefore here, as in the following verse, accords with the computation of his nation at that time, that so they might not except against his words.

Wilderness,	40
Joshua,	17
Judges,	450
Sam. and Saul,	40
David,	40
Soloman,	4
	591

And yet he saith, ὡς, to shew that computation was not exact. See Additions, No. 17.

Ver. 21. [l] By the space of forty years.] So Josephus saith, he reigned whilst Samuel lived ἐτη ὀκτω μετὰ τοῦ Σαμουηλου, eighteen years, and after his death δυο καὶ εἰκοσι, twenty-two years; but though this reckoning seems to have obtained in the time of Josephus, it is far from being true, that Saul reigned twenty-two years after the death of Samuel, it is rather true, as the Jews conceive that they both died in the same year; so that the words forty years, are to be connected thus, until Samuel the Prophet, who having judged them about thirty years, afterward they desired a King, and God by Samuel gave them Saul, whose reign, with that of Samuel's, was about the space of forty years. So saith (i) Sulpitius Severus, Ego arbitror a Paulo etiam Samuelis annos sub regis istius ætate numeratos, I suppose that the years of Samuel also are added to the reign of that King by Paul; as doubtless they were, they making together just forty years.

Ver. 26. [m] And whosoever among you feareth God.] So ver. 16. that is, the proselytes among you; so Bemidbar Rabba on those words of the Psalmist, Blessed is every one that feareth the Lord, saith אלו גרים, οἱ προσηλυτοι τοῦ Θεου, are the proselytes.

Ver. 31. [n] Who was seen many days of those who came up with him from Galilee to Jerusalem, who are his witnesses.] These seem to be the 108 mentioned Acts 1. 15. for these were Galileans, ver. 11. and συναβαντες, men coming with him, and men that go in to the Apostles, ver 13.

Ver. 33. [o] God hath fulfilled the promise made to your fathers in raising up Jesus;] i. e. from the dead, ver. 30. so as not to return to corruption. For the promise being this, that God would raise up one to sit upon the throne of his father David, Acts 2. 30. and to reign over the house of Jacob, Luke 1. 33. Christ upon his resurrection having all power in heaven and earth committed to him, Matth. 28. 18. and being exalted to the right hand of God, Acts. 2. 33. this promise, by his resurrection to that kingdom, was fulfilled.

Ibid. [p] As it is written in the second Psalm, Thou art my son, this day have I begotten thee.] That this Psalm belongs to the Messiah, and speaks of his dominion and kingdom, appears from the preceeding words, I have set thee, my King, upon the holy hill of Sion, Jehovah hath said to me, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee; this also is apparent from the following words, I will give thee the Heathen for thine inheritance; And from the exhortation to all Kings to submit to him. See the Note on Heb. 5. 5. and by this resurrection and exaltation, he is said to be begotten, as being made the first-born from the dead, Col. 1. 18. Rev. 1. 5. constituted the Son of God with power, Rom. 1. 4. and having received a new birth: Hence these two things are joined, Luke 1. 32. He shall be called the Son of the Highest, and God shall give him the throne of his father David. See also Examen Millii in locum.

Ver. 34. [q] In that he raised him up, now no more to see corruption, he said, Isa. 55. 3. I will give thee τα ὁσια Δαυιδ τα πιστα, the sure mercies of David.] That is, of Christ the Son of David; for that David, both in the language of Scripture, and of the Jews, frequently signifies Christ, See Note on Matth. 2. and that here it bears this sense both Kimchi and Aben Ezra confess, and the following verse assures us; for of this very David it is said, ver. 4. Behold, I have given him for a witness, a leader and commander to the people; and he being thus raised up to be a King for ever, so as to see no more corruption, the blessings he confers upon his subjects must be sure and lasting.

Ver. 38. [r] Through him is preached to them forgiveneſs of ſins;] i. e. Thoſe ſins, from the guilt of which the law of Moſes could not cleanſe the conſcience, and from which we could not be juſtified, i. e. from the guilt and condemnation due to us, from which we could not be exempted by the law of Moſes. See the Note on Chap. 15. 9.

Ver. 42. [s] Εἰς τὸ μεταξὺ Σαββατον.] This phraſe doth not ſignify the intermediate week, as ſome conceive, or on the ſecond and fifth day of the week, but on the following ſabbath; for we learn from the 44th Verſe, that they came not together till the following ſabbath. So (k) Joſephus ſpeaks of David and Solomon, ἕτι δὲ τὸν μεταξὺ τούτων βασιλεῶν, and of the following Kings of Judah; for there came none between them.

Ver. 46. [t] Καὶ οὐκ ἀξίους ὑμᾶς κρίνετε, And judge yourſelves unworthy of eternal life.] Or rather diſcover, or by your actions ſhew yourſelves unworthy of it; for when our Saviour ſent his Apoſtles, he bid them, into what village or houſe ſoever they entred, to enquire, τίς ἄξιός ἐστιν, who was worthy in it, and to ſhake off the duſt of their feet againſt the unworthy, Matth. 10. 11—15. i. e. againſt thoſe who would not receive their doctrine of ſalvation, or eternal life: This unworthineſs, ſaith the Apoſtle, κρίνετε you diſcover, by thus contradicting and blaſpheming it; this is the ſenſe of the word κρίνω, viz. to diſcern, diſcover, or make known, when the Apoſtle ſaith, He that comes into the aſſemblies of the Prophets, κρίνεται is diſcovered of them all, 1 Cor. 14. 24. and the ſpiritual man diſcovers all things, Chap. 2. 15.

Ibid. [v] Lo, we turn to the Gentiles.] Not from the Jews every where; for we find St. Paul ſtill preaching to them in every ſynagogue where he came, Acts 17. 2. But from thoſe of Antioch in Piſidia, to the Gentiles there, it being not reaſonable that the Jews of other places ſhould be deprived of the Goſpel, for the perverſeneſs of thoſe here.

Ver. 48. [w] And ὅσοι ἦσαν τεταγμένοι εἰς ζωὴν αἰώνιον, as many as were ordained to eternal life, believed.] Theſe words cannot ſignify a fixed number of perſons, abſolutely by God ordained to eternal life, ſo that they, and they only ſhall obtain it, and all others be excluded from it, as upon this ſuppoſition they muſt be; for if God, by his ordination or decree, hath fixed the number of thoſe whom he will bring unto ſalvation, all they who are not of that number, will not partake of that ſalvation: And this is evident from theſe conſiderations:

1*ſt*, That if the reaſon why theſe men believed, be only this, That they were men ordained to eternal life; the reaſon why the reſt believed not, can be this only, That they were not ordained by God to eternal life; and if ſo, what neceſſity could there be, that the word of God ſhould be firſt preached to them? as we read, ver. 46. was it only that their damnation might be the greater? This ſeems to charge that lover of ſouls, whoſe tender mercies are over all his works, with the greateſt cruelty, ſeeing it makes him determine, from all eternity, not only that ſo many ſouls, as capable of ſalvation as any other, ſhall periſh everlaſtingly; but alſo to determine, that the diſpenſations of his providence ſhall be ſuch towards them as neceſſarily tends to the aggravation of their condemnation; and what could even their moſt malicious and enraged enemy do more? What is it the very Devil aims at by all his temptations, but this very end, viz. the aggravation of our future puniſhment? And therefore, to aſſert that God had determined, that his word ſhould be ſpoken to theſe Jews for this very end, is to make God as inſtrumental to their ruin as the very Devil, and ſeemeth wholly irreconcilable with his declarations, that he would have all men to be ſaved, and would not that any man ſhould periſh.

2*dly*, The Apoſtle gives this reaſon, why he turned from the Jews to the Gentiles, viz. becauſe the Jews had thruſt away the word of God from them, and judged themſelves unworthy of eternal life, ver. 46. Whereas, according to this ſuppoſition, this could be no ſufficient reaſon of his turning from them to the Gentiles; for it was only they, among the Jews, whom God had not ordained to eternal life, who thus refuſed to believe, and to obey the word of God; and as many among the Gentiles as were not thus ordained to eternal life, muſt neceſſarily do the ſame, and ſo there could be no ſufficient cauſe why he ſhould turn from the Jews to the Gentiles on that account. And,

3*dly*, Were this the reaſon why the Jews believed not, that they were not by God ordained to eternal life, why doth St. Paul, by God's commiſſion, ſpeak here to them thus; Be it known to you, brethren, that by this Jeſus, is declared to you remiſſion of ſins? Why doth he add, And by him every one that believeth, is juſtified? &c. Why doth he vehemently exhort them to beware, leſt that ſaying of the Prophet Habakkuk ſhould be verified of them, I will work a work in your days, which you will not believe, though one declare it to you?

(k) De Bell. Jud. l. 6. c. 13. p. 913.

you? ver. 38—41. For could God have determined that theſe very perſons ſhould not believe to life eternal, and yet commiſſionate his Apoſtles to tell them, that remiſſion of ſins, and juſtification to life eternal, was propoſed to them? Could it be revealed to St. Paul that they could not believe to life eternal, as being not by God ordained to it, and yet would he ſo paſſionately exhort them to that faith in Jeſus, which, he well knew by virtue of this revelation, belonged not to them, nor could they poſſibly exert? Theſe things ſeem clearly to evince this cannot be the proper import of the words; but they will very well admit of theſe two ſenſes, viz. (1.) As many as were diſpoſed for eternal life, believed: Or, (2.) as many as were diſpoſed to do it, believed to eternal life. And,

1ſt, It is highly probable the genuine import of theſe words is this, Ὅσοι ἦσαν τεταγμένοι, as many as were diſpoſed for eternal life, believed; for this word τεταγμένος, by this very author, is uſed in this ſenſe to ſignify a man not outwardly ordained, but inwardly diſpoſed, or one determined, not by God, but his own inclinations, to do ſuch a thing; as when it is ſaid, Acts 22. 13. St. Paul went on foot to Aſſos, ἕτω γὰρ ἦν διατεταγμένος, for ſo he was diſpoſed to do: So the ſon of Syrach ſaith, ἀγωγὴ σώφρων τεταγμένη ἔσται, the conduct or government of the wiſe man will be well ordered or diſpoſed, Chap. 10. 1. Thus (l) Philo ſaith to Cain, Thou needeſt not fear being killed by them who are, ἐν σοὶ τεταγμένοι συμμαχίᾳ, ranked on thy ſide, i. e. of the ſame diſpoſitions and affections with thee. And he ſaith of thoſe children, who having had vicious parents, have themſelves proved virtuous, that they are (m) ἀρετῇ τεταγμένοι τάξει, placed in a better rank: And, ſpeaking of Eſau and Jacob, he repreſents Eſau as fierce, ſubject to anger, and other paſſions, and governed by his brutiſh part, but Jacob as a lover of virtue and truth, and ſo (n) ἐν τῇ βελτίονι τεταγμένον τάξει, placed in a better rank of men, or one of a better temper and diſpoſition; and adds, that (o) Samuel was τεταγμένῳ θεῷ, one well diſpoſed towards God. So Simplicius interprets this word; for when (p) Epictetus had ſaid, εἰ δὲ βέλτιον σοὶ φαινομένων ἄτως ἔχειν ἐς τὸν Θεὸν τεταγμένῳ ἐν τούτῳ τῇ τάξει, If thou haſt a deſire to be a philoſopher, ſo retain thoſe things which ſeem beſt to thee, as being by God placed in that rank; that is, ſaith he, (q) ὡς ὑπὸ Θεοῦ προτρεπόμενον ἐπὶ ταῦτα, τὸ δὲ μέγιστον τῶν ἐκ Θεοῦ δωρηθέντων ἀνθρώποις φιλοσοφία ἐστί, as being incited by God to it; for philoſophy, (ſaith he, eternal ſalvation, ſaith the ſcripture) is the greateſt gift that God hath given to mankind: And to this ſenſe the very context leads; the perſons oppoſite to thoſe diſpoſed for eternal life, being thoſe who, for their indiſpoſition to embrace the offer of it, were unworthy of eternal life.

The ſecond import of which theſe words are capable, is this, That as many as were well diſpoſed, believed to eternal life; and accordingly, we are ſaid to believe in Chriſt to eternal life, 2 Tim. 1. 16. and to the ſaving of the ſoul, Heb. 10. 39. and they who truly do believe, are ſaid to do it to eternal life, becauſe they, by believing, do obtain a perfect right to that life of which they cannot fail, but by departing from that faith, or ſuffering it to become unfruitful in thoſe works of righteouſneſs, which make them meet to be partakers of eternal life.

CHAP. XIV.

1. AND it came to paſs in Iconium, that they (viz. Paul and Barnabas) [a] went both together into the ſynagogue of the Jews (there,) and ſo ſpake, that [b] a great multitude both of the Jews, and alſo of the Greeks, (i. e. proſelytes of the Jews,) believed.

2. But the (οἱ δὲ, and that the) unbelieving Jews ſtirred up the Gentiles, and made their minds (Gr. roſe up, and made the minds of the Gentiles) evil (ly) affected againſt the brethren.

3. Long time therefore abode they (ἱκανὸν μὲν οὖν χρόνον διέτριψαν, for indeed they had tarried a long time,) ſpeaking boldly in (the name of) the Lord, who gave teſtimony unto the words of his grace, and granted ſigns and wonders to be done by their hands.

4. But (then) the multitude of the city was divided, and part held with the (unbelieving) Jews, and part with the Apoſtles.

5. And when there was an aſſault (or tumult) made, both of (i. e. by) the Gentiles, and alſo of (by) the Jews, with their rulers, (endeavouring) to uſe them deſpitefully (or contumeliouſly,) and to [c] ſtone them (as blaſphemers of the law,)

6. They

6. They were aware of it, and (ſo) fled to Lyſtra, and (then to) Derbe, (ver. 20.) cities of Lycaonia, and (then) to the region which lieth round about (thoſe cities ;)

7. And there they preached the Goſpel.

8. And there ſat a man at Lyſtra, [d] impotent in his feet, being a cripple from his mother's womb, (and ſo one) who never had walked.

9. The ſame heard Paul ſpeak (ing the word) who ſtedfaſtly beholding him, and [e] perceiving (by his gift of diſcerning ſpirits,) that he had faith to be healed:

10. Said (to him) with a loud voice, Stand upright on thy feet; and (having ſaid this,) he (the impotent man) leaped, and walked.

11. And when the people ſaw what Paul had done, they lift up their voices, ſaying, in the ſpeech of Lycaonia, [f] The gods are come down to us in the likeneſs of men.

12. [g] And they called Barnabas, Jupiter, and Paul, Mercurius, (i. e. his interpreter,) becauſe he was the chief ſpeaker.

13. Then the prieſt of Jupiter, who (i. e. whoſe image) was before the city, brought oxen and garlands, (Gr. coronets,) [h] to the gates, (where Barnabas and Paul were,) and would have done ſacrifice with the people, (i. e. he and they would have offered ſacrifice to them as gods.)

14. Which when the Apoſtles, Barnabas and Paul heard of, they rent their cloaths, (to ſhew the deteſtation of the fact,) and ran in among the people, crying out,

15. And ſaying, Sirs, why do ye (attempt) theſe things, (ſeeing) we alſo are men of like paſſions with you, and preach to you, that ye ſhould turn from theſe vanities (or dead idols,) to the (worſhip of the) living God, who made heaven and earth, and the ſea, and all things that are therein?

16. [i] Who in times paſt, (ſince the days of Noah, 1 Pet. 3. 20.) ſuffered all nations to walk in their own ways, (giving them no written law, and ſending them no Prophets to inſtruct them in the true worſhip of him, as he did to the Jews.)

17. [h] Nevertheleſs, he left not himſelf without witneſs (to them of his providence,) in that he did good (to us all,) and gave (Gr. giving) us rain from heaven, and fruitful ſeaſons, filling our hearts with food and gladneſs:

18. And with theſe ſayings ſcarce reſtrained they the people that they had not done (i. e. from doing) ſacrifice to them.

19. And (then) there came thither certain Jews from Antioch and Iconium, who perſuaded the people (againſt the Apoſtles ;) and (ſo they) having [l] ſtoned Paul, drew him out of the city, ſuppoſing he had been dead.

20. Howbeit, as the diſciples ſtood round about him, he roſe up, and came into the city; and the next day he departed with Barnabas to Derbe:

21. And when they had preached the Goſpel to that city, and had taught many (Gr. had made many diſciples,) they returned again to Lyſtra, and to Iconium, and Antioch,

22. Confirming the ſouls of the diſciples, and exhorting them to continue in the faith, and (telling them,) that we (Chriſtians) muſt, through much tribulation, enter into the kingdom of God.

23. And when they had [m] ordained them elders in every church, and had prayed with faſting, (Gr. and when praying with faſting, they had ordained, &c.) they commended them to (the protection of) the Lord (Jeſus,) on whom they believed.

24. And after they had paſſed through Piſidia, they came to Pamphylia.

25. And when they had preached the word in Perga, they went down to Attalia:

26. And thence ſailed to Antioch, from whence they had been recommended to the grace of God (by prayer for his aſſiſtance, Acts 13. 3.) for the work which they (had now) fulfilled.

27. And when they were come, and had gathered the Church together, they rehearſed all that God had done with (i. e. by) them, and how he had opened the door of faith to the Gentiles.

28. And there they abode (a) long time with the diſciples.

Ver. 8. [d] Ἀδύνατός τις ποσὶν, Impotent in his feet.] This word ἀδύνατος is frequently uſed in the Septuagint, for a man feeble and helpleſs; as when Job ſaith, he was πατὴρ ἀδυνάτων, the father of the helpleſs, Chap. 29. 16.——31. 20. and Joel 3. 10. ὁ ἀδυνατος λεγέτω, let the weak ſay, I am ſtrong.

Ver. 9. [e] Seeing he had faith to be healed.] Faith being an act of the underſtanding, could not be diſcerned by the eye of ſenſe; this therefore is an inſtance of that power of diſcerning the inward workings of mens ſpirits, mentioned, 1 Cor. 12. 10.

Ver. 11. [f] Saying, The gods are come down to us in the likeneſs of men.] This was not only the imagination of the Poets, Homer, and others here cited by Grotius, but even of their Philoſophers; for Cicero hence proves, the gods muſt be of human ſhape, becauſe they never appeared in any other form. See the Note on Chap. 17. 29.

Ibid. See Additions N° 18.

Ver. 16. [i] Who, in times paſt, ſuffered all nations to walk in their own ways;] not ſo as to allow of their manners, or to leave them without any means ſufficient to convince them of the error of their ways, and their idolatrous worſhip; for this he had done ſo effectually, as to leave them without excuſe, in that they did not worſhip him as God, neither were thankful for his benefits, Rom. 1. 20, 21. But he ſo far permitted this, as that he ſent them no Prophet to inſtruct them better; and gave them no poſitive revelation of his will, no written inſtructions of that way in which he would be worſhipped, as he had done to the Jews.

Ver. 17. [k] Nevertheleſs, he left not himſelf without a witneſs, in that he did them good, and gave them rain from heaven.] From theſe words it appears, (1.) That the giving of rain in its ſeaſon, and of fruitful ſeaſons of the year, is even to the Heathens a teſtimony of the divine providence; for this rain coming from the clouds of heaven, and theſe fruitful ſeaſons depending ſo neceſſarily on the ſun, moon, and other luminaries of heaven; and being ſo conſtantly produced by them, muſt demonſtrate, that they muſt derive them from, and owe them to him who made the heavens and the earth, ver. 15. and therefore, that they ought to worſhip, and to be thankful to him for them. (2.) Theſe being good things, and ſuch as filled their hearts with food and gladneſs; and being conferred freely and conſtantly on them, who daily provoked him by their idolatries and ingratitude, were alſo a clear teſtimony of his goodneſs to them, and therefore an aſſurance to them, That if they, knowing him by theſe means to be God, would turn from their dumb idols, and worſhip him as God, they might find grace and favour in his eyes, who was ſo good unto them, even whilſt they did continue to provoke him:

him: Now the knowledge of the God that made heaven and earth, as the only true God who is to be worſhipped, and whoſe providence affords us all the bleſſings we enjoy, and the belief that he is well inclined to ſhew mercy to all that thus turn to him, and to reward all that thus ſerve him, and are thus thankful to him, ſeems to be all that God expected from the Gentiles, as may be gathered from Rom. 1. 20, 21.

Ver. 19. [l] And ſtoned Paul.] God permitting this, ſaith Wolfzogenius, for the puniſhment of his ſin, in being active and aſſiſtant at the ſtoning Stephen, Acts 7. 58.——8. 1.

Ver. 23. [m] Χειροτονήσαντες δὲ αὐτοῖς πρεσβυτέρους κατ' ἐκκλησίαν, And ordaining them elders in every Church.] That χειροτονῶν πρεσβυτέρους, is not to chooſe elders by common ſuffrage, or by lifting up the hands of the Apoſtles, is fully proved by Dr. Hammond and Mr. Selden, but then that this conſtituting elders in theſe Churches, was making them fixed Biſhops of thoſe Churches, is not proved.

To clear up this, let it be conſidered, That in thoſe times men received the gift of tongues and prophecy, or thoſe ſpiritual gifts which fitted them to miniſter in the Church, either immediately from heaven, as the Apoſtles themſelves did, and ſo by God himſelf, were fitted and appointed for that work; ſo was it with the hundred and twenty, who received the Holy Ghoſt on the day of pentecoſt; ſee Note on Acts 2. 1. or when they prayed with Peter and John, Acts 4. 31. and with St. Paul, who was baptized and filled with the Holy Ghoſt, Chap. 9. 17. So was it with Cornelius and his kinſmen, Acts 10. 44. for they ſpake with tongues, and magnified God, even as the Apoſtles did when they had received the Holy Ghoſt; for as they ſpake with tongues μεγαλεῖα τοῦ Θεοῦ, the great things of God, Acts 2. 11. ſo did theſe men ſpeak with tongues μεγαλυνόντες τὸν Θεὸν, magnifying God, and therefore St. Peter ſaith, they had received the Holy Ghoſt even as we, Acts 10. 47.—— 11. 17. or elſe theſe gifts were given by impoſition of the Apoſtles hands; ſo when the Samaritans believed, and were baptized, that they might have perſons fitted to officiate in ſacred things, the Church of Jeruſalem ſend to them Peter and John, who lay their hands on ſome of them, and they receive the Holy Ghoſt, Acts 8. 17. This being done, the Apoſtles returned to Jeruſalem, ver. 25. preaching the word to other villages of Samaria, but leaving the conduct of the Church to theſe gifted men; and theſe ſeem to be the men who firſt officiated in all converted Churches; and wherever we meet with them, we find no other perſons conſtituted as Biſhops, or fixed Overſeers of thoſe Churches, as in the Churches of Corinth, Galatia, Theſſalonica, and therefore have reaſon to conceive, there were no other elders conſtituted here, they being no more neceſſary for the churches of Lyſtra and Iconium, than for thoſe of Corinth and Galatia. Moreover, we have here only mention of Elders conſtituted in theſe Churches, not of one Deacon placed under them, which ſhews, theſe Elders were not Biſhops, ſince by the rule of Epiphanius, a Biſhop cannot be without a Deacon. In a word, theſe prophetical men, tho' they were officers placed in the Church next to the Apoſtles, 1 Cor. 12. 26. yet were they not fixed miniſters; but from what parts ſoever they come, and wherever they are, they take upon them to officiate. So doth Barnabas at Antioch, Chap. 11. 23, 24. and the other Prophets there, Chap. 13. 1, 2. and ſo doth Silas, ſent from Jeruſalem to Antioch, continue there, Acts 15. 33. and from thence goes through Syria and Cilicia, confirming the Churches, ver. 41.

CHAP. XV.

1. AND certain men which came down from Judea (to Antioch,) taught the brethren (of the Gentiles, ſaying,) [a] Except ye be circumciſed after the manner of Moſes, (i. e. ſo as by that rite to ſubmit to, and obſerve his laws,) ye cannot be ſaved.

2. When therefore Paul and Barnabas had no ſmall diſſenſion and diſputation with them, (Gr. and a diſſenſion being made among the brethren, and no ſmall debate or reaſoning of Paul and Barnabas againſt them who taught this doctrine,) [b] they (of Antioch) determined that Paul and Barnabas, and certain others of them, ſhould go up to Jeruſalem [c] to the Apoſtles, and Elders (there,) about this queſtion.

3. And being brought on their way by the Church, they (Gr. οἱ μὲν οὖν προπεμφθέντες, they therefore being ſent forth by the Church,) paſſed through Phœnice, and Samaria, declaring (to them) the converſion of the Gentiles, and (by this) they cauſed great joy unto all the brethren.

4. And when they were come to Jeruſalem, they were received of the Church, and of the Apoſtles, and Elders, and they declared (to them) all things which God had done with them, (i. e. by them, ver. 12.

5. But

5. But there aroſe up certain of the ſect of the Phariſees which believed, ſaying, That it was needful to circumciſe them, (who believed among the Gentiles,) and to command them to keep the law of Moſes.

6. And (then) the Apoſtles and elders came together to conſider of this matter.

7. And when there had been much diſputing, Peter roſe up and ſaid to them, Men and brethren, ye know how that [d] a good while ago, (Gr. of days of old,) God made choice among us, (Gr. ὁ Θεὸς ἐν ὑμῖν ἐξελέξατο, God choſe (me) out among you,) that the Gentiles by my mouth ſhould hear the word of the Goſpel, and believe, (commanding Cornelius to ſend for me, Acts 10. 5. and me to go to him with the meſſengers ſent for me, not making any difference betwixt him and others, ver. 20.)

8. And God, who knoweth the hearts (of all men,) bare them witneſs, (of his acceptance of them, though uncircumciſed, by) giving them the Holy Ghoſt, even as he did to us (believing Jews.)

9. And (he) [e] put no difference betwixt us and them, (on the account of their uncircumciſion, but ſupplied that by) purifying their hearts by faith, (and ſo making them a pure people, as circumciſion formerly did us.)

10. Now therefore why tempt ye God, (i. e. why diſtruſt ye the truth of what he hath thus declared, by attempting) [f] to put a yoke (of obedience to the law of Moſes,) upon the necks of the diſciples, which neither our fathers, nor we, were able to bear, (i. e. to perform, ſo as to be juſtified by it?)

11. But we believe that through the grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, (or through God's favour to us in him,) we ſhall be ſaved, [g] even as they (are to be ſaved by it.)

12. Then all the multitudes kept ſilence, and gave audience to Barnabas and Saul, declaring (in confirmation of this point,) what miracles and wonders God had wrought among the (uncircumciſed) Gentiles by them:

13. And after they had held their peace, James anſwered (to the queſtion,) ſaying, Men and brethren, hearken to me:

14. Simeon hath declared how God at the firſt did (by him) viſit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for (the glory of) his name.

15. And to this agree the words of the Prophet (Amos,) as it is written, (Chap. 9. 11.)

16. After this I will return, and build again [h] the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down, and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will ſet it up, (by raiſing up Chriſt to ſit upon his throne, Acts 2. 30. and giving him the throne of his father David, Luke 1. 32.)

17. [i] That the reſidue of men might ſeek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles upon whom my name is called, ſaith the Lord, who doth all theſe things.

18. (This he foretold by his preſcience, for) Known unto God are all his works from the beginning of the world.

19. [k] Wherefore my ſentence is, that we trouble not them, who from among the Gentiles are turned to God, (with the obſervation of our law, and ceremonies;)

20. But (count it ſufficient) that we write to them, that they [l] abſtain from pollutions of idols, and from fornication, and from things ſtrangled, and from blood.

21. (Nor will this liberty be prejudicial to the Jews adhering to the law of Moſes,) for [m] Moſes of (from) old time, hath in every city them that preach him, being read in the ſynagogues every ſabbath-day.

22. Then pleaſed it the Apoſtles and elders, with the whole church, to ſend choſen men of their own company to Antioch, with Paul and Barnabas, namely Judas, ſirnamed Barſabas, and Silas, chief men among the brethren.

23. And (they) wrote letters by them after this manner, The Apoſtles and elders, and brethren, ſend greeting to the brethren which are of the Gentiles in Antioch, and Syria, and Cilicia.

24. Foraſmuch as we have heard that certain (men,) which went out from us, (1 John 2. 19.) have troubled you with words, ſubverting your ſouls, (by) ſaying, (ye ought to) be circumciſed, and keep the law, to whom we gave no ſuch commandment;

25. It ſeemed good to us, being aſſembled with one accord, to ſend choſen men to you, with our beloved Barnabas and Paul,

26. (Who are) men that have hazarded their lives for the name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt:

27. We have ſent therefore Judas and Silas, who ſhall alſo tell you the ſame things by (word of) mouth:

28. [n] For it ſeemed good to the Holy Ghoſt, (falling upon the uncircumciſed Gentiles,) and to us, to lay upon you no greater burden than theſe neceſſary things; (i. e. theſe things neceſſary at preſent, to avoid the ſcandal of the Jews, viz.)

29. That ye abſtain from meats offered to idols, (in the idol temples,) and from blood, and from things ſtrangled, and from fornication, from which if you keep yourſelves, ye ſhall do well. Fare ye well.

30. So when they were diſmiſſed, they came to to Antioch, and when they had gathered the multitude together, they delivered the epiſtle;

31. And when they had read (it,) they rejoiced for the conſolation (it afforded them.)

32. And Judas and Silas, being ° Prophets alſo themſelves, exhorted the brethren with many words, and confirmed them.

33. And after they had tarried there a ſpace, they were let go in peace, from the brethren to the Apoſtles.

34. Notwithſtanding it pleaſed Silas to abide there ſtill.

35. Paul alſo, and Barnabas, continued in Antioch, teaching and preaching the word of the Lord, with many others alſo (that were Prophets and teachers there, Chap. 13. 1.)

36. And ſome days after, Paul ſaid to Barnabas, Let us go again (ſee Acts 13. 3, 4.) and viſit our brethren in every city, where we have preached the word of the Lord, and ſee how they do.

37. And Barnabas determined (or counſelled) to take with them John, whoſe ſirname was Mark.

38. But Paul thought not good to take him with them, who (when they went out before,) departed from them from Pamphylia (to go to Jeruſalem, Chap. 13. 13.) and went not (on) with them to the work (he had begun, Chap. 13. 5.)

39. And the contention was ſo ſharp between them, that they departed aſunder one from the other, and ſo Barnabas took Mark, and ſailed into Cyprus:

40. And Paul choſe Silas, and departed (with him,) being recommended by the brethren to the grace (and favour) of God.

41. And he went through Syria and Cilicia confirming the churches.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XV.

Ver. 1. [a] Ἐὰν μὴ περιτμηθῆτε. Except ye be circumciſed after the manner (commanded by the law) of Moſes, ye cannot be ſaved.] Here note,

1*ſt*, That theſe perſons were of the ſect of the Phariſees, ver. 5. and perhaps they were only the zealots of that ſect, for we find the Jews of different opinions in this matter, even as to mens admiſſion into their religion; for ſome of them would not only permit them of other nations, who owned the true God, to live quietly among them, but even to embrace their religion without circumciſion, whilſt others by no means would permit them ſo to do. Thus when (a) Izates, the ſon of Helen, Queen of Adiabene, embraced the Jews religion, Ananias declared he might do it without circumciſion, but Eleazer maintained, that it was δεινὸν great impiety to remain uncircumciſed. And when two eminent perſons of Traconitis fled to Joſephus, the (b) zealots among the Jews, were urgent for their circumciſion, if they would abide with them; but Joſephus perſuaded the multitude againſt it. And this controverſy continued after they embraced Chriſtianity, ſome allowing them to embrace Chriſtianity, without ſubmitting to circumciſion, and the Jewiſh law, others contending, that without circumciſion, and the obſervance of the law, they could not be ſaved. And theſe were the falſe Apoſtles which troubled the churches of Corinth, Galatia, and Philippi, and were great enemies to St. Paul, who taught the contrary.

2*dly*, Obſerve, That circumciſion obliging thoſe heathens which ſubmitted to it to obſerve the whole law, Gal. 5. 3. it is the ſame thing to ſay, they muſt be circumciſed after the manner of Moſes, ver. 1. and to ſay, ver. 5. and 24. they muſt be circumciſed, and keep the law of Moſes.

3*dly*, Obſerve, That they held this neceſſary to ſalvation, ver. 1. and by that doctrine they ſubverted the ſouls of the Gentile converts, ver. 24. cauſing them to fall from the grace of the Goſpel offered to them without circumciſion, Gal. 5. 4. Now this they did agreeably to their common maxim, that omnes præputiati deſcendunt in Gehennam, all uncircumciſed perſons go to hell, P. Eliezer, c. 29. p. 66.

4*thly*, Obſerve, That they who did this, went out from Judea, ver. 1. and were men going out as from the Apoſtles, ver. 24. and therefore St. John ſaith of them, they went out from us, but they were not of us, 1 John 2. 19.

Ver. 2. [b] They (of Antioch) determined that Paul and Barnabas——ſhould go up to Jeruſalem, &c.] St. Paul declares, that he went then up to Jeruſalem, κατὰ ἀποκάλυψιν, according to revelation, Gal. 2. 2. as therefore the Prophets and teachers at Antioch had before ſeparated Paul and Barnabas by revelation to preach to ſome of the Gentiles, and they having fulfilled that work returned to Antioch, Chap. 14. 26. ſo is it probable, that by another revelation made to the ſame perſons, they were ſent up to Jeruſalem, as being fitteſt to convince thoſe of the contrary perſuaſion, by declaring, what God had wrought by them among the uncircumciſed Gentiles, and his acceptance of them without circumciſion, or the obſervance of the law of Moſes. Hence St. Paul tells us, that by what he had declared to them, ver. 4, 12. they ſaw the Goſpel of the uncircumciſion was committed to him, as the Goſpel of the circumciſion was to Peter, becauſe he that wrought effectually by Peter to the Apoſtleſhip of the circumciſion, was mighty by him towards the Gentiles, Gal. 2. 7, 8.

Ibid. [c] To the Apoſtles and Elders.] Here Dr. Hammond tells us they were ſent to the Apoſtles, and Biſhops of Jeruſalem, and to the other Biſhops of Judea, and ſo ver. 22, 23, 28, he makes the other Biſhops of Judea to be a part of this council, and for the proof of this he refers us to Note B, on Acts 11. where he affirms that Elders ſignify Biſhops, but does not prove that the Elders were Biſhops of Judea, unleſs it be by ſaying, Elders are Biſhops; and therefore there being but one Biſhop at Jeruſalem, and yet more Elders, the reſt, excepting James, muſt be the Biſhops of Judea. But this opinion I have ſufficiently confuted, Notes on James 5. 14. 1 Pet. 5. 1. and indeed it is mere novelty, not ſupported by the authority of any one ancient writer; for though ſome of them ſay, the names of Biſhop and Preſbyter, that is, Elder, were uſed promiſcuouſly in the firſt age of Chriſtianity, none of them ever thought or ſaid, that the word Preſbyter or Elder, in the New Teſtament, did always ſignify a Biſhop. My opinion of theſe Elders is, that they were of the one hundred and eight, who received the Holy Ghoſt at the beginning with the Apoſtles. See Note a, on Acts 2. thoſe who had been with Chriſt from the beginning, out of which one was to be choſen in the place of Judas, Chap. 1. 21, 22. and of thoſe witneſſes of his reſurrection which came up with him from Galilee, Chap. 13. 31. With theſe who had thus received the Holy Ghoſt, St. Peter ranks himſelf, ſaying to the Jews, the Elders that are among you, I exhort alſo who am an Elder, 1 Pet. 5. 1. and of theſe St. James ſeems to ſpeak to the ſame perſons, when he ſaith, is any man ſick, let him ſend for the elders of the Church; Chap. 5. 14. and perhaps theſe are the ἡγούμενοι, who had the rule over them, Heb. 13. 7, 16. for Judas and Silas, two of theſe Elders, being Prophets, are ſtiled, ἄνδρες ἡγουμένοι ἐν τοῖς ἀδελφοῖς, leading men, or governors among the brethren: That there were any other Biſhops of Judea, I believe not, as finding nothing in antiquity concerning them, but as Chriſtians multiplied, or grew up in Judea, tho' they all ſtill were zealous for the law and cuſtoms, Acts 21. 20. and ſo ſtill worſhipped in the ſynagogue, yet as they ſaw occaſion they ſent one, or more of theſe Prophets or Elders, to inſtruct and to confirm them; thus when many Jews at Antioch believed, and turned to the Lord, upon tidings of theſe things, brought to the Church at Jeruſalem, they ſent forth Barnabas, one full of the Holy Ghoſt, that he ſhould go as far as Antioch, Chap. 11. 21, 22, 23. Such alſo were the governors, and miniſters of Church-affairs in other places; they who received the Holy Ghoſt at Samaria, were to officiate there, and be a nurſery for other Churches of Samaria, which ſhould embrace the Goſpel; ſuch were the Prophets, and Teachers of Antioch, Chap. 13. 1. ſuch the Elders in every Church, Chap. 14. 23. ſuch the κοπιῶντας, thoſe that laboured among the Theſſalonians, and were over them in the Lord, 1 Theſſ. 5. 12. the Prophets in the Church of Corinth, 1 Cor. 13. 14. the ſpiritual men in the Church of the Galatians, Chap. 6. 1. ſee the Note there; the men who had the gifts of prophecy, and teaching among the Romans, Chap. 12. 6, 7. and the twelve men on whom the Holy Ghoſt fell at Epheſus, and made them overſeers of the Churches there, and in the neighbouring places: For at the firſt converſion of any Church, there being none among them fitted to teach the Chriſtian faith, by their own ſkill and learning, it ſeemeth neceſſary they ſhould be fitted and ordained for this work, by the immediate afflatus, and the miraculous endowments of the Holy Ghoſt: And when the Apoſtles, who only had the power of giving the Holy Ghoſt, were about to leave the world, they placed fixed Biſhops and Paſtors in the Churches; thus St. Paul ſends about Timothy and Titus for this work, giving them inſtructions concerning the perſons to be ordained.

Moreover, that theſe were all Elders of Jeruſalem, and not of all Judea, we may learn, becauſe Barnabas and Saul were appointed to go up only to Jeruſalem, to the Biſhops and Elders there, about this queſtion, ver. 2. and when they were come to Jeruſalem they were received by the Apoſtles and Elders, ver. 4. and ver. 6. the Apoſtles and Elders come together to conſider of this matter. Now this meeting being not at any feſtival, and there being no mention of any perſons ſent for to come thither from any other places, we have reaſon to believe they were only the Elders at Jeruſalem, or reſiding there.

Ver. 7. [d] Ye know how that ἀφ' ἡμερῶν ἀρχαίων, a good while ago God made choice of me.] Not only when he actually ſent him to Cornelius, but when he promiſed that by him he would lay the foundation of his Church, which was to be erected among Jews and Gentiles; See the Note on Matth. 16. 18, 19. And this is ſaid to have been done ἀφ' ἡμερῶν ἀρχαίων, from days of old, as Mnaſon is ſtiled ἀρχαίῳ μαθητῇ, an old diſciple, Acts 21. 16. and the firſt miniſters of the Goſpel were ſtiled οἱ ἀπ' ἀρχῆς, they that were from the beginning, ning, and the doctrine preached to the Jews by the Apoſtles, is ſtiled ἐντολὴ παλαιὰ, an old commandment, which they had received from the beginning, Luke 1. 2. 1 John 2. 7.

Ver. 9. [c] And he put no difference οὐδὲν διέκρινε, he made no diſcrimination betwixt us and them.] The argument here is plainly to this effect, That God, by pouring his Holy Spirit on the uncircumciſed Gentiles, as he had done upon the circumciſed Jews, had plainly demonſtrated that he had received them to his favour, and made no diſcrimination, as to his choiceſt gifts, betwixt them and the Jews; and that legal purification, which ſeemed wanting to them on the account of their non-circumciſion, he had fully, and abundantly ſupplied in purifying their hearts by faith, and therefore, ſaith he, your endeavour to impoſe upon them theſe legal obſervances, to render them acceptable to God, after ſo ſignal an evidence that he accepteth them without them, muſt be a tempting God, as that phraſe conſtantly imports a diſtruſting or diſbelieving him, after ſufficient evidence vouchſafed of his good will and pleaſure: See Note on Matth. 4. 7.

Ver. 10. [f] To put a yoke upon the diſciples necks, which neither we, nor our fore-fathers were able to bear.] Though theſe words are, by moſt interpreters, applied to the numerous ritual precepts, the coſtly ſacrifices, and to the frequent tedious journeys up to Jeruſalem, required by the law, which made the obſervance of it difficult and irkſome, I rather would refer it to that defect that the Apoſtle hath obſerved in it, that it could not purge the conſcience from the guilt of ſin, Heb. 9. 9.——10. 1. that it could not give life, Gal. 3. 21. that it was a killing letter, leaving them under condemnation, 2 Cor. 3. 7.——6. 9. and ſo making it neceſſary for them to believe in Chriſt, that they might be juſtified, Gal. 2. 16. and redeemed from the curſe of the law, Gal. 3. 13. according to thoſe words of St. Paul, Acts 13. 38, 39. Be it known to you, that through this man is preached to you forgiveneſs of ſins, and by him, all that believe are juſtified from all things from which they could not be juſtified by the law of Moſes; for to this ſenſe the following words incline, we could not bear this yoke, for we believe that by the grace of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, we ſhall be ſaved.

Ver. 11. [g] Even as they.] This is not to be referred to the words, our fore-fathers, as if the former Jews expected to be ſaved by the grace of Chriſt; for whatſoever truth may be in it, with reſpect to the ancient Jews, it is certain that the latter Jews expected juſtification, not by faith, but by the works of the law, Rom. 9. 32. and believed nothing of a Meſſiah, who ſhould die to procure for them remiſſion of ſins; the controverſy here was concerning the neceſſity of circumciſion, and obſervation of the law of Moſes to ſalvation, ver. 1. this, ſaith St. Peter, cannot be ſo, becauſe God hath purified their hearts by faith, and ſo prepared them by it for mercy and ſalvation, and as they are to be ſaved by the grace of Chriſt, ſo we expect ſalvation by the ſame grace; and this ſenſe is confirmed from a like paſſage in St. Paul, declaring that it is the ſame God who juſtifies both Jew and Gentile, through the ſame faith, Rom. 3. 30. and again, Gal. 2. 15, 16. we Jews knowing that a man is juſtified, not by the works of the law, but by the faith of Chriſt, we have believed in him that we might be juſtified.

Nor is it any argument to the contrary, that our fathers are the neareſt antecedent to the word, ἐκεῖνοι they, for the words, our fathers, are only mentioned accidentally; now it is very common in ſuch caſes, for a relative to refer to a remoter antecedent, which is the ſubject profeſſedly diſcourſed of: So Acts 7. 19. He dealt ſubtilly with our fathers, not Joſeph immediately preceding, but the King that knew not Joſeph; Chap. 10. 6. He ſhall tell thee what thou oughteſt to do, viz. not Simon the tanner, but Simon Peter. See the Note on 1 John 5. 20.

Ver. 16. [h] The tabernacle of David which is fallen down, Hanepleth.] Hence the Jews called the Meſſiah, Bar Naphli, becauſe it is writen, (c) I will build again the tabernacle of David which is fallen down, Amos 9. 10, 11. See Additions, N° 19.

Ver. 17. [i] That the reſidue of men might ſeek after the Lord, Amos 9. 12. in the Hebrew it is, that they may poſſeſs the remnant of Edom, who being the greateſt enemies to Iſrael, the calling of them muſt denote the calling of the worſt of the nations; the Greek verſion alſo, which St. Luke follows, proves the thing more clearly, as making mention of all nations ſeeking after the Lord.

Ver. 19. [k] Wherefore my ſentence is, &c.] There be many things contained in this Chapter, which ſhew the Chriſtians then had no apprehenſions that St. Peter was by Chriſt appointed as the Monarch of the Church, or chief judge of controverſies: For,

(c) Sanhedr. fol. 69. 2.

1*ſt*, St. Paul and Barnabas were ſent for the deciſion of this controverſy, not to St. Peter in particular, but to the Apoſtles and Elders of the Church in general.

2*dly*, The decretory ſentence was given by St. James, and not by Peter, κείνω ἐγὼ, ſaith St. James, I judge, that is, ſaith Chryſoſtom, μετ' ἐξουσίας λέγω ταῦτα, I with authority ſay this; and this determination of the queſtion was made by James, ſaith Chryſoſtom, ἐκεῖνος δὲ διὰ τὴν ἀρχὴν ἐπιτετραμμένην, becauſe he had the government committed to him.

3*dly*, The letters which are directed to the Gentile churches, run after this manner, The Apoſtles, Elders, and brethren, to the brethren which are of the Gentiles in Antioch, Syria, and Cilicia, ſend greeting, without any particular mention of St. Peter, the ſuppoſed judge of this, and other controverſies, and the ſuppoſed governor of theſe, and of all other churches. Now all theſe things are an indication, that the Chriſtians of thoſe times knew nothing of this ſupremacy of Peter, or of Chriſt's appointment of him to be his Vicar, and the judge of controverſies, to whom appeals were to be made in doubtful caſes. For do any churches which are now ſubject to the Pope of Rome, and do acknowledge him to be Chriſt's Vicar, ſend to the Cardinals for the deciſion of their controverſies, and make no mention of his Holineſs? Is it their cuſtom when ſuch diſputes, as this was, do ariſe, to have recourſe to them in general, and not particularly to the Pope? Doth any Cardinal take upon him to paſs the decretory ſentence in any queſtion of this nature? Or do their letters, when they decide ſuch queſtions, run after this manner, We, the Cardinals and Biſhops of the church of Rome, ſend greeting? Since therefore they who now acknowledge this Vicar, neither do, nor by their principles can do, as the Chriſtians mentioned in the Acts did, it muſt be certain, that thoſe Chriſtians did not own that Vicar, which is now ſet up by the church of Rome.

Ver. 20. Ἀπὸ τῶν ἀλισγημάτων τῶν εἰδώλων, From the pollutions of idols, from fornication, from things ſtrangled, and from blood.] Dr. Spencer here rejects all the interpretations given by others of theſe words, and then concludes, that all theſe things were forbidden, as being cauſes, ſigns, and attendants on the idolatry of the heathens; things offered to idols, whether meat or drink, being after eaten in the idol's temple to his honour; and ſo, ſaith he, were blood, and things ſtrangled, ways of confederacy with dæmons, and of offering the blood, that is the very ſoul, to them, as by fornication they did the body. But (1.) Theſe four are plainly reckoned as things diſtinguiſhed in themſelves, and from one another, and ſo are ſeparated by a καὶ, or and, interpoſed betwixt each of them, whereas, according to this expoſition, they are all εἰδωλόθυτα, things offered to idols, and much more are they all ἀλισγήματα, pollutions of idols. Moreover, the things forbidden here, ſaith he, comprehend not only rites of fornication, but alſo of adultery and maſculine impurity, and all the abominable filthineſs committed by the heathens, in their feſtivals of Venus, Bacchus, &c. and were all ways of entring into confederacy with devils: Now what kind of Chriſtians could they be at Antioch, and other places, who were in danger of theſe things, of conſecrating things by heatheniſh ceremonies to an idol, and afterwards eating them in honour of him? of offering blood and things ſtrangled, or their bodies to fornication and adultery, by way of confederacy with devils, after they had ſo ſolemnly turned from the ſervice of them, to the worſhip of the living God, and ſo expreſly had renounced all theſe things in their very baptiſm?

Others think, that the true reaſon why theſe things were particularly forbidden, was to avoid the ſcandal of the Jews among whom they converſed, and with whom many of them ſtill joined in the worſhip of the ſynagogue. This is explained ſeveral ways; viz. (1.) That all theſe things being formerly forbidden to the Gentiles, who converſed among them, and were made proſelytes of the gate, tho' they were neither circumciſed, nor obedient to the law, they thought it neceſſary, tho' they remitted to the Chriſtian converts among the Gentiles, circumciſion, and the obſervation of the law of Moſes, they ſhould be ſtill obliged to thoſe things which had been formerly required of all that dwelt among, or converſed with them, eſpecially ſuch things as ſeemed not to the Gentiles forbidden by the law of nature, viz. the eating of things offered to idols, of blood, and of things ſtrangled, and ſimple fornication, which was generally thought lawful by the Gentiles. See the Notes on Eph. 5. 6. 1 Theſſ. 4. 5. and of which even Maimonides ſaith, that before the law, common whores were not forbidden. Treat. of wives, cap. 1. § 4. I confeſs it may be doubted, whether thoſe, which they call the ſeven precepts of Noah, were precepts given to the Gentiles before the law of Moſes, tho' doubtleſs that of not eating blood was given to them, Gen. 9. 4. But then it is ſufficient to countenance this interpretation, that the proſelytes of the gate were, as (d) Buxtorf teſtifies, forbidden theſe four things.

Others

(d) In Voce Ger.

Others conceive, that theſe things were particularly forbid the Gentiles, as ſcandalous to the Jews, becauſe Moſes had ſo ſignally marked them out as things contrary to the holineſs of a people, or to their ſeparation from other nations to himſelf; ſo of things ſtrangled, or dead in their blood, God ſaith, Deut. 14. 21. thou ſhalt not eat of any carcaſe, i. e. of any thing that dieth alone, or is not orderly ſlain, for thou art an holy people to the Lord. Fornication is declared to be a thing not to be admitted in that common-wealth, for it is expreſly ſaid, Deut. 23. 17. there ſhall be no whore of the daughters of Iſrael, nor any whoremonger of the ſons of Iſrael; the eating things offered to idols is forbidden, as a thing contrary to the worſhip of the true God; the precept which commands abſtaining from blood, is not only called a ſtatute for ever, Lev. 3. 17. but God threatneth to ſet his face againſt, and to cut him off who did eat it, Lev. 7. 26.——17. 10. theſe therefore being things ſo ſolemnly forbidden the whole nation of the Jews, either becauſe they were a people holy to the Lord, or as things not to be admitted in their common-wealth, or as things to be puniſhed with cutting off, or as ſymptoms of idolatry, might for the preſent be forbidden the Gentile converts, that they might not do things ſo abominable in their eyes. See Examen Millii in locum.

Ver. 21. [m] Μωσῆς γὰρ ἐκ γενεῶν ἀρχαίων, &c.] I cannot conſent to the interpretation of theſe words given by Grotius and the Reverend Dr. Hammond, viz. that the Chriſtians could not be ſuppoſed to contemn the law of Moſes, becauſe that law was read in the Chriſtian ſynagogues every ſabbath-day, as of old was done by the Jews; for (1.) St. James doth not ſay that Moſes was read ἐν ταῖς συναγωγαῖς αὐτῶν, in their ſynagogues, but abſolutely ἐν ταῖς συναγωγαῖς, in the ſynagogues, by which word, not the aſſembly of Chriſtians, but the Jews is always ſignified. (2.) He doth not ſay, as Dr. Hammond paraphraſes the words, that Moſes was read in their ſynagogues ὡς ἐκ γενεῶν ἀρχαίων, as from former ages, but that Moſes, ἐκ γενεῶν ἀρχαίων, from former ages, had thoſe that preached him in every city, being read from old times in the ſynagogues, which cannot agree to the aſſemblies of Chriſtians which began but a few years before. And, (3.) The Chriſtians did more certainly and frequently read Moſes and the Prophets on the firſt day of the week, as Juſtin M. teſtifies, than on the ſabbath-day, and therefore their reading of him could not fitly be reſtrained to that day. I therefore think with Chryſoſtom, that St. James here gives the reaſon why they ſhould write only to the Gentile converts, viz. becauſe there was no reaſon to write to the Jewiſh converts, they ſtill adhering to the ſynagogue, where Moſes was read every ſabbath, and ſo this liberty here granted to the Gentiles only, could be no occaſion to turn them from the obſervation of the law of Moſes.

Ver. 28. [n] For it ſeemed good to the Holy Ghoſt and to us, &c.] Vain is the pretence from theſe words, that other councils may uſe this preface to their deciſions, viz. It ſeemed good to us, and to the Holy Ghoſt. For the reaſon why the council here aſſembled uſe theſe words, is not becauſe they challenged to themſelves any infallible aſſiſtance of the Holy Ghoſt in their conventions, rather than in their diſperſions, but only upon this account, becauſe the Holy Ghoſt had by a miracle declared the truth of what they had then decreed, that is, by falling down upon Cornelius, and his friends and kinſfolk, who were Romans, and only proſelytes of the gate at moſt, and ſo not circumciſed, (but obliged only to obſerve the precepts given to Noah, to abſtain from things ſtrangled, blood, idolatry, whoredom, &c.) I ſay, by falling down upon theſe Gentiles, as he did upon our Lord's diſciples, he evidently declared, that without their ſubmiſſion to any farther Jewiſh rites, the Gentiles might be acceptable to him, and might enjoy the promiſe of the Father; and therefore, that it was not needful in order to their acceptance with God, to require their ſubmiſſion to the Judaick rites. This is the inference St. Peter makes from this miracle, when he firſt ſaw it, ſaying, Acts 10. 47. Can any man forbid water, that theſe ſhould not be baptized, who have received the Holy Ghoſt even as we? This is the anſwer he gives to them, by whom it was objected, that he held communion with the Gentiles, viz. Acts 11. 17. Foraſmuch as God gave them the like gift as he did to us, who believed on the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, what was I, that I could withſtand God? This was the anſwer by which the ſticklers for the Jewiſh rites were then ſilenced: And when the queſtion was renewed by them, and it was vehemently contended, that the Gentiles muſt be circumciſed after the manner of Moſes, St. Peter proves the contrary, by reminding them of the ſame inſtance, declaring, ver. 8—11. that God who knew the hearts, bare them witneſs, that without circumciſion they were acceptable to him, giving them the Holy Ghoſt, even as he did to the Apoſtles; and therefore by impoſing of this yoke upon them, they would tempt the Lord, by a diſtruſt of that which by this miracle he had perſpicuouſly taught. This being then the very reaſon why they here ſay, It ſeemed good unto the Holy Ghoſt; it is apparent, that no council can have have hence any warrant to uſe the ſame phraſe or preface to their decrees, who have not the like confirmation of their doctrine, by a miraculous operation of the Holy Ghoſt, deſigned purpoſely to confirm their ſentence.

Ver. 32. ° And Judas and Silas being Prophets alſo themſelves.] That is, ſaith Dr. Hammond, being two Biſhops of Judæa; but if ſo, why pleaſed it Silas to abide there ſtill, rather than to go back unto his charge? ver. 34. Yea, why after ſo long a ſtay at Antioch, doth he go along with Paul in his travels through Syria and Cilicia, confirming the Churches? ver. 41. Why do we find him ſtill with Paul, Chap. 16, and 17, and 18. preaching at Theſſalonica, Corinth, and at other places, but not at all returning to his See?

CHAP. XVI.

1. THen came he to Derbe and Lyſtra; and behold, a certain diſciple was there, named Timotheus, [a] the ſon of a certain woman, which was a Jeweſs, and believed; but his father was a (n uncircumciſed) Greek:

2. Which (diſciple) was well reported of by the brethren which were at Lyſtra, and Iconium;

3. Him (therefore) would Paul have to go forth with him (to the miniſtry,) and (laying his hands upon him, that he might receive the gift of the Holy Ghoſt, 2 Tim. 16. he) took (him,) and circumciſed him, becauſe of the Jews which were in thoſe quarters, (who would not endure to converſe with one uncircumciſed, as they might ſuſpect Timothy was,) for they knew all that his father was a Greek.

4. And as they went through the cities, [b] they delivered them the decrees to keep, that were ordained of the Apoſtles, and Elders, which were at Jeruſalem.

5. And ſo (by their progreſs, 3 Ep. St. John, ver. 7.) were the churches eſtabliſhed in the faith, and increaſed in number daily.

6. Now when they had gone throughout Phrygia, and the region of Galatia, and [bb] were forbidden (by the afflatus) of the Holy Ghoſt, to preach the word in Aſia (at that time:)

7. (And) After they were come to Myſia, they eſſayed to go to (wards) Bithynia, but the (ſame afflatus of the) Spirit ſuffered them not.

8. And they paſſing by (or through) Myſia, came down to Troas.

9. And a viſion appeared to Paul in the night; (for) there ſtood, (as ſeemed to him,) a man of Macedonia, and prayed him, ſaying, Come over into Macedonia, and help us.

10. And after he had ſeen the viſion, (I Luke being with him,) immediately we endeavoured to go into Macedonia, aſſuredly gathering, that the Lord had called us to preach the Goſpel to them:

11. Therefore looſing from Troas, we came with a ſtraight courſe to Samothracia, and the next day to Neapolis.

12. And from thence to Philippi, [c] which is the chief (πρώτη, the firſt) city of that part of Macedonia; See Note on Philip. 1. 1. and a colony; and we were in that city abiding certain days.

13. And on the ſabbath (day) we went out of the city by a river ſide, [d] where prayer was wont to be made, (Gr. where there was, by law or cuſtom, an oratory;) and we ſat down, and ſpake to the women which reſorted thither.

14. And a certain woman named Lydia, a ſeller of purple, (formerly) of the city of Thyatira, which worſhipped (the true) God, heard us, [e] whoſe heart the Lord (ſo far) opened, that ſhe attended to the things which were ſpoken of (i. e. by) Paul:

15. And when ſhe, (and thoſe of her houſhold, were inſtructed in the Chriſtian faith, and in the nature of the baptiſm required by it, ſhe) was baptized, and her houſhold; (then) ſhe beſought us, ſaying, If ye have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come into my houſe, and abide there; and [f] ſhe conſtrained, (i. e. was inſtant with) us (ſo to do.)

16. And it came to paſs as we went to (the houſe of) prayer, (that) a certain damſel, poſſeſſed with g a ſpirit of divination, met us, which brought her maſters much gain by ſooth-ſaying, (i. e. by telling of ſtrange things.)

17. The ſame (damſel) followed Paul, and us, and cried, ſaying, Theſe men are the ſervants of the moſt high God, who ſhew to us the way of ſalvation.

18. And this did ſhe many days; but Paul being grieved, turned, and ſaid to the ſpirit, I command thee, in the name of Jeſus Chriſt, to come out of her; and he came out the ſame hour:

19. And when her maſters ſaw, that the hope of their gain was gone, they caught Paul, and Silas, and drew them into the market-place to the rulers,

20. And brought them to the magiſtrates, (i. e. the captains of the bands of Roman ſoldiers,) ſaying, ing, Theſe Men, being Jews, do exceedingly trouble our city;

21. And teach cuſtoms [h] which are not lawful for us to receive; neither to obſerve, being (a colony of the) Romans.

22. And the multitude roſe up together againſt them, and the [i] magiſtrates rent off their cloaths, and commanded to beat them:

23. And when they had laid many ſtripes upon them, they caſt them into priſon, charging the gaoler to keep them ſafely;

24. Who having received ſuch a charge, thruſt them into the inner priſon, and made their feet faſt in the ſtocks:

25. And at midnight Paul and Silas prayed, and ſang praiſes to God; and the priſoners heard them.

26. And ſuddenly there was a great earthquake, ſo that the foundations of the priſon were ſhaken; and immediately all the doors were opened, and every one's bands were looſed.

27. And the keeper of the priſon awaking out of his ſleep, and ſeeing the priſon doors open, drew out his ſword, [k] and would have killed himſelf, ſuppoſing that the priſoners had been fled, (and ſo he might have born the puniſhment due to them.)

28. But Paul (perceiving this by the Spirit,) cried out with a loud voice, ſaying, Do thyſelf no harm, for we are all here.

29. Then called he for a light and ſprang in, and came trembling, and fell down before Paul and Silas;

30. And brought them out (of the inner priſon,) and ſaid, Sirs, (I, by this miracle, am induced to believe you are men ſent to ſhew unto us the way of ſalvation, ver. 17.) [l] what (therefore) muſt I do to be ſaved?

31. And they ſaid, Believe in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and thou ſhalt be ſaved, and thy houſe; (for that faith will bring thee and them into the way of ſalvation.)

32. And they ſpake to him the word of the Lord, and (to) all that were in his houſe.

33. And he took them the ſame hour of the night, and waſhed their ſtripes, and was baptized, he, and all his (houſe) ſtraightway.

34. And when he had brought them into his houſe, he ſet meat before them, and rejoiced, believing in God with all his houſe.

35. And when it was day, the magiſtrates ſent the ſerjeants, ſaying, Let theſe men go.

36. And the keeper of the priſon told this ſaying to Paul, (viz.) The magiſtrates have ſent to let you go; now therefore depart, and go in peace.

37. But Paul ſaid, They have beaten us openly, (and) uncondemned, being Romans, and have caſt us into priſon, and do they (think to) thruſt us out privily? nay, verily, but let them come themſelves, and fetch us out.

38. And the ſerjeants told theſe words to the magiſtrates, and they feared when they heard that they were Romans.

39. And they came and beſought them and brought them out, and deſired them to depart out of the city.

40. And they went out of the priſon, and entred into the houſe of Lydia; and when they had ſeen the brethren, they comforted them, and departed (thence.)

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XVI.

Ver. 1. [a] Υἱὸς γυναικὸς τινὸς Ἰουδαίας πιστῆς, πατρὸς δὲ Ἕλληνος, the ſon of a certain woman that was a Jeweſs, but his father was a Greek.] The law, ſaith Gratius, forbad the Jewiſh males to marry with a woman not ſubject to the law, but forbad not a Jeweſs to marry with a Gentile, as Eſther did with Abaſuerus; and this, ſaith he, may probably be concluded from the inquiſition made by Ezra, of this crime, and the remedy preſcribed for it, ſeeing he only enquires into thoſe males who had taken ſtrange wives, Chapter the 9th and the 10th, but makes no mention of the women joined to ſtrange huſbands, or of their ſeparation from them; yet is it certain from Joſephus, that they eſteemed this contrary to their law in his time; for he ſaith, that Druſilla married with Felix, an uncircumciſed perſon, in contempt of their law; and that this is contrary to their interpretation of the law, ſee Ainſw. in Deut. 7. 3.

Note alſo, that the reaſon why Timothy was not circumciſed, ſeems not to have been this, That he was under the power of his father, and not of his mother; for then Paul ſhould not have circumciſed him without his father's leave, but becauſe his father being a Greek, he was not to be circumciſed but by his own choice. Now St. Paul being to preach to the Jews, in all places where he came, as his cuſtom was, could not have uſed Timothy in that miniſtry, had he not circumciſed him; he therefore was only circumciſed, as St. Paul became a Jew to the Jews for the Goſpel's ſake, that he might be inſtrumental to gain the Jews.

I add my conjecture, that it was at or about this time, that the gift given him by laying on of the Apoſtles hands, 2 Tim. 1. 6. might be conferred upon him; for ſeeing Barnabas was full of the Holy Ghoſt, Chap. 11. 24. John Mark was συνεργὸς, a co-worker with Paul and Barnabas, for the kingdom of God, Col. 4. 10. Silas was a Prophet, Acts 15. 32. Luke an Evangeliſt, it ſeems reaſonable to conceive, that Timothy being taken with him for the ſame end, ſhould be endued with the like gifts. Moreover, in the very next Chapter, they came to Theſſalonica, where Silas and Timotheus were ſo inſtrumental to convert them to the faith, that he indites his Epiſtle to them thus, Paul, and Sylvanus, and Timotheus, to the church of the Theſſalonians; and ſpeaks of him as his brother, the miniſter of God, and a co-worker in the Goſpel of Chriſt, 1 Theſſ. 3. 2. yea, as an Apoſtle of Chriſt, and one who was by God put in truſt with the Goſpel, Chap. 2. 4, 6. He therefore muſt then have that impoſition of hands, and thoſe extraordinary gifts of the Spirit, which fitted him for the miniſtry; and yet this being the firſt time that St. Paul met with him, he could not have them by impoſition of his hands before.

Ver. 4. [b] And they delivered to them to keep, τὰ δόγματα τὰ κεκριμένα ὑπὸ τῶν Ἀποστόλων καὶ τῶν Πρεσβυτέρων, the decrees ordained by the Apoſtles and Elders that were at Jeruſalem.] Here obſerve, that tho' it be ſaid, Chap. 15. 22. That it ſeemed good to the Apoſtles and Elders, with the whole Church, to ſend men to Antioch; and tho' the proem of the decree runs thus, The Apoſtles, and the Elders, and the brethren, write to the church of Antioch, &c. v. 22, 23. yet the decrees were made, not by the brethren, but only by the Apoſtles and Elders. Thus, in like manner, the epiſtle of Clement begins thus, The church of Rome to the church of the Corinthians.

Ver. 6. [bb] They were forbidden by the Holy Ghoſt to preach the word in Aſia.] Viz. To preach it there at that time, not becauſe that province belonged to St. John; for St. Paul preached there himſelf three years, Chap. 20. 31. and ſeven years after he leaves Timothy to correct the diſorders that were then among them; in all which time, we hear not one word of St. John's being there. Nor, (2.) Becauſe thoſe of Aſia minor, were not diſpoſed to receive the Goſpel; for the next year they do receive it, but becauſe the Lord would haſten them to a new work which they had not yet begun, viz. to preach to a Roman colony, ver. 12, 21.

Ver. 11. See Additions, N° 20.

Ver. 12. [c] Ἥτις ἐστὶ πρώτη τῆς μερίδος τῆς Μακεδονίας πόλις, κολωνία, Which is the firſt city of that part of Macedonia, which is a colony.] Not the chief city, or metropolis of Macedonia, for that was Theſſalonica; but the firſt city which was a colony, which they who paſſed through the gulph of Strymon into Aſia, came unto. See the Note on Philip. 1. 1.

Ver. 13. [d] Οὗ ἐνομίζετο προσευχὴ εἶναι, Where prayer was wont to be made;] Or rather, where an houſe of prayer, for the Jews and proſelytes, was allowed to be by the law, or was accuſtomed to be; for νομίζειν ſignifies ſometimes εἴωθεν, it is accuſtomed, or uſual; ſo νομίζεσθαι γυναῖκας πολλὰς ἔχειν, in Herodotus, is to have cuſtomarily more wives; γύμνης ἀσπίδας νομίζειν, in Ariſtophanes, Nub. 1. 6. it is cuſtomary to come in naked; ſometimes it ſignifies, ſaith Phavorinus, νενομισμένον ἐστὶν, it is by law eſtabliſhed, as when Ariſtophanes ſaith, Nub. 4. 3. ἃ μὲν νενόμισται γε, for ſo it is by law eſtabliſhed, and 3. 3. ἡ σωφροσύνη νενόμισται, Modeſty is by law eſtabliſhed; many inſtances of both theſe ſenſes may be found in Stephanus. That προσευχὴ, ſignifies an oratory, or an houſe of prayer, hath been noted on Luke 6. 12. and proved from the teſtimonies of Philo and Joſephus. Theſe ſynagogues, or oratories, ſay the Jewiſh writers, were often בשדות in the fields, and ſometimes near rivers, as here, becauſe of greater purity, ſaith Philo; and becauſe, perhaps, the laws would not permit them to exerciſe a ſtrange religion within the city. See Vitringa de ſynag. vet. l. 1. part. 1. c. 11. Accordingly (a) Epiphanius ſaith, that this very place proves, that the Jews had oratories out of the cities, and that the Samaritans alſo had the like two miles from Sychem.

Ver. 14. [e] Ἧς ὁ Κύριος διήνοιξε τὴν καρδίαν, προσέχειν, Whoſe heart the Lord opened to attend to the things ſpoken by Paul.] To open the ear or the heart, is a phraſe uſed to ſignify the rendring any perſon willing, or inclined to any thing. So, Pſal. 40. 7. Mine ears haſt thou opened, i. e. thou haſt inclined me to hearken to thy commandments, Chald. for ſo it follows, then ſaid I, Lo I come to do thy will. So 1 Chron. 17. 15. ἤνοιξας τὸ οὖς, Thou haſt opened the ear of thy ſervant to build thee an houſe. This God is ſometimes ſaid to do by awakening men by his afflicting hand. So Job 36. 8, 10. If they be bound in fetters, and holden with cords of affliction, he openeth their ears to diſcipline, ver. 10. and ver. 15. he openeth their ears in oppreſſion: And ſometimes he doth it by the preaching of the word; for as they who who are ſaid to be taught by the word, See Note on John 6. 45. or the example of God, See Note 1 Theſſ. 4. 9. are ſaid to be taught of God; ſo they who have their hearts affected with it, and opened by it, may be ſaid properly enough to have their hearts opened by him. And here it deſerveth to be noted (1.) That the Lord is ſaid to open the heart of Lydia, not to believe, but προσέχειν, to attend to the things ſpoken by St. Paul, viz. to weigh, and ſeriouſly to conſider of the greatneſs of the bleſſings promiſed to believers, remiſſion of ſins, and eternal life; and that attention of hers produced this faith in her. So the Lord repreſents himſelf as knocking at the door of mens hearts, Rev. 3. 20. i. e. by the preachers of his word, attended with the incitations of his Holy Spirit, but entring only when men open their hearts to receive him. And laſtly, Woltzogenius well notes, that, if in a place where no example of faith had been given, no name of Chriſt had been preached, ſome extraordinary aſſiſtance was vouchſafed towards the converſion of this woman, this ſingle inſtance, in a caſe ſo extraordinary, muſt not be looked upon as a thing abſolutely neceſſary in all caſes. In a word, either ſhe only was ἄξια worthy, i. e. prepared, diſpoſed, and fitted to receive this influx; or, if it were abſolutely neceſſary, that ſhe might believe, and yet ſhe alone, though no more fitted, and diſpoſed for it than the reſt, received it, the other auditors, for want of this extraordinary influence, muſt lie under a neceſſity of not believing, and ſo it could not be blameworthy in them that they did not believe. See Note on Matth. 10. 11.

Ver. 15. [f] Παρεβιάσατο ἡμᾶς, She conſtrained us;] i. e. by her urgent deſires, and preſſing intreaties; So Gen. 19. 3. Lot παρεβιάζετο αὐτοὺς, conſtrained the angels to come into his houſe; and Jacob ἐβιάζετο, conſtrained Eſau to receive his gift. So when Saul would not eat, παρεβιάζοντο αὐτὸν, his ſervants, and the woman conſtrained him, 1 Sam. 28. 25. So it is ſaid of Chriſt, that the two diſciples παρεβιάζοντο αὐτὸν, conſtrained him to go in with them, Luke 24. 29.

Ver. 16. [g] Πνεῦμα πύθωνος, A ſpirit of divination:] For Heſychius, Suidas, and Phavorinus agree in this, that Python is δαιμόνιον μαντικὸν, a ſpirit that divined, or foretold things to come. In the temple of Apollo which was called Pytho, the organ of this oracle was always a woman, who ſitting on her brazen tripos, received her enthuſiaſm a ſecretis, their God, as (b) Origen ſaith, being delighted in nothing more ἢ τοῖς κάλποις τῆς γυναικῶν, than in thoſe parts, and the woman being thus (c) filled with the ſpirit, and retaining in memory the phantaſms raiſed by the agitation of the dæmon, did τὸ ἐσόμενον προαγορεύειν, foretel what would be to thoſe that enquired of her, as did the Pythoneſs here; ſhe alſo delivered her anſwers with (d) a low voice as out of her belly, and was hence ſtiled Ventriloqua, and ἐγγαστρίμαντις; and becauſe others who pretended to prophecy, did alſo ſo, that if their anſwers were not true, it might be imputed to mens not hearing well what they had uttered; hence theſe diviners are by the ſeptuagint not only ſtiled ἐγγαστρίμυθοι, ſpeakers out of the belly, Lev. 19. 31.—20. 6. Deut. 18. 11. 1 Sam. 28. 3, 7, 8, 9. 1 Chron. 10. 13. 2 Chron. 33. 6. Iſa. 8. 19. but alſo ſaid, to ſpeak out of the ground, Iſa. 19. 3.

Ver. 21. [h] Which it is not lawful for us to receive, being Romans.] For though there was as yet no expreſs law of the Senate, or the Emperor, againſt the Chriſtians, yet was there an old law of the Romans forbidding them, (e) aut novos deos, aut alienigenas colere, either to worſhip new gods, or the gods of other nations, and requiring them to worſhip the gods, (f) κατὰ τὰ πάτρια, of their country, from which Chriſtianity diſſuaded them, not ſuffering any of them to worſhip the gods of their fathers, but requiring them to turn from thoſe dumb idols to the living God, 1 Theſſ. 1. 10. and hence St. Paul ſpeaks thus to thoſe of Lyſtra, We preach to you, that ye ſhould turn from theſe vanities, to the living God, who made heaven and earth, Chap. 14. 15.

CHAP. XVII.

1. NOW when they had paſſed through Amphipolis and Apollonia, they came to Theſſalonica, where was a ſynagogue of the Jews.

2. [a] And Paul, as his manner was, (where he found ſynagogues of the Jews,) went in to them, and three ſabbath-days reaſoned with them out of the ſcriptures,

3. Opening, and alledging, (Gr. explaining and ſetting before their eyes this doctrine,) that Chriſt muſt needs have ſuffered, and riſen (Gr. that it behoved Chriſt to ſuffer; and to riſe) again from the dead, and (ſaying) that this Jeſus whom I preach to you is Chriſt, (Gr. that he is Chriſt the Saviour whom I declare to you.)

4. And ſome of them believed, and conſorted with Paul and Silas, and (alſo) [b] of the devout Greeks great multitudes, and of the chief women not a few:

5. But the Jews which believed not, (being) moved with envy, (or zeal,) took unto them certain lewd fellows of the baſer ſort, (or wicked men loitering in the market) and gathered a company, and ſet, (gathering a company, they ſet) all the city on an uproar, and aſſaulted, (Gr. aſſaulting) the houſe of Jaſon, and (they) ſought to bring them (Paul and Silas,) out to the people, (to be the objects of their rage.)

6. And when they found them not, they drew Jaſon, and certain brethren, to the rulers of the city, crying (out,) [c] Theſe that have turned the world upſide down, (i. e. unſettled the world,) are come hither alſo:

7. Whom Jaſon hath received; and [d] theſe alſo do (what is) contrary to the decrees of Cæſar, ſaying, There is another King (beſides him, even) one Jeſus.

8. And they troubled the people, and the rulers of the city, when they (or who) heard theſe things.

9. And when they had taken ſecurity of Jaſon, and of the other (ver. 6. to anſwer to the charge laid againſt them,) they let them go.

10. And the brethren immediately ſent away Paul and Silas, by night to Beræa, who coming thither went into a ſynagogue of the Jews.

11. [c] Theſe were more noble than thoſe in Theſſalonica, in that they (Gr. they of them that) received the word with all readineſs of mind, and ſearched (Gr. ſearching) the ſcriptures daily, (to know) whether theſe things were ſo (as Paul had ſaid.)

12. Therefore many of them (i. e. thoſe Jews) believed: alſo of the honourable women, which were Greeks, and of (the) men (which were ſo) not a few.

13. But when the Jews of Theſſalonica had knowledge that the word of God was preached of (by) Paul at Beræa, they came thither alſo, and ſtirred up the people (againſt him.)

14. And immediately the brethren ſent away Paul, to [f] go as it were to ſea, (that ſo his perſecutors might miſs of him,) but Silas and Timotheus abode there ſtill:

15. And (but) they that conducted Paul brought him to Athens (by land) and receiving a commandment (directed) to Silas and Timotheus to come to him (thither) with all ſpeed, they departed.

16. Now

(g) Sapiens non dubitat, ſi ita melius ſit, de vita migrare. Torquatus apud Cic. de fin. bon. l. 1. Εὐλόγως τὲ δοκεῖ ἑαυτὸν ἐξάγειν βίᾳ ἢ σοφὸν κἂν ἐν σκληρότερᾳ γίγνεται ἀλγηδόνι. Laert. de Sto. in Zeno. l. 7. p. 195. Zeno, Democritus, Cleanthes, Ariſtotle, Menippus, Metrocles, Empedocles, Pythagoras, Cato.

16. Now while Paul waited for them at Athens, his ſpirit was ſtirred (Gr. exaſperated) in him, when he ſaw the g city wholly given to idolatry, (Gr. full of idols.)

17. Therefore diſputed he in the ſynagogues with the Jews, and with the devout perſons (of the Greeks,) and in the market daily, with them that met with him, (or he met with there.)

18. h Then certain philoſophers of the Epicureans, and of the Stoicks, encountred him, and ſome ſaid, What will this babler ſay? Other ſome, (οἱ δ', but others ſaid,) He ſeemeth to be a ſetter forth of ſtrange gods; becauſe he preached to them Jeſus, and the reſurrection (by him, Chap. 4. 2. or the reſurrection of him.)

19. And they took him, and brought him to Areopagus, ſaying, May we know what this new doctrine, whereof thou ſpeakeſt, is?

20. For thou bringeſt certain ſtrange things to our ears; we would know therefore what theſe things mean.

21. i For all the Athenians and ſtrangers which were there, ſpent their time in nothing elſe, but either to tell, or to hear ſome new thing.

22. Then Paul ſtood in the midſt of Mars's hill, and ſaid, Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things k ye are too ſuperſtitious:

23. For as I paſſed by, and beheld your devotions, (i. e. the objects of your worſhip,) I found an altar with this inſcription, TO THE UNKNOWN GOD; whom therefore ye ignorantly worſhip, him declare I to you, (who he is, and how to be worſhipped.)

24. l God that made the world, and all things therein, ſeeing that he is (he being) Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands, (as one contained in, or confined to them, by human conſecrations of them.)

25. Neither is (he) worſhipped with (the works of) mens hands, as though he needed any thing, (as needing any perſon's art to promote his worſhip,) ſeeing he giveth to all life, and breath, and all things, (and ſo is able to produce theſe things, were they any ways needful for his worſhip.)

26. And (he) hath made of one blood (of Adam) all nations of men to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, (i. e. ſet the fixed ſeaſons of the year, Gen. 1. 14.—8. 22.) and the bounds of their habitations. See Deut. 32. 8.

27. That they ſhould, (or inſtructing them by theſe means to) m ſeek the Lord, if haply they might feel after him, and find him, (which in that darkneſs in which they lie they cannot eaſily do) though he be not far from every (any) one of us.

28. For in (or by) him we live and move, and have our being, as certain alſo of your own poets have ſaid, For (they have declared that) we are alſo his offspring.

29. Foraſmuch then as we are the offspring of God, we ought not to think that the God-head is like to gold, or ſilver, or ſtone graven by art, or man's device; (i. e. that the Creator is like man, or his workmanſhip.)

30. And the times of this ignorance God (hath hitherto) winked at, (ſending them no prophets to inſtruct them better,) but now (he) commandeth all men every where to repent (of this idolatry;)

31. Becauſe he hath appointed a day in which he will judge the world in righteouſneſs, by that man whom he hath ordained (to be their judge,) whereof he hath given aſſurance to all men, in that he hath raiſed him from the dead.

32. And when they heard of the reſurrection of the dead, n ſome (of them) mocked (at it; but) o others ſaid, We will hear thee again of this matter.

33. So Paul departed from among them.

34. Howbeit (his diſcourſe was not wholly ineffectual, for) certain men clave to him, and believed, among the which (i. e. whom) was Dionyſius the Areopagite, and a woman named Damaris, and others with them.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XVII.

Ver. 2. a AND Paul, κατὰ τὸ εἰωθὸς, as his manner was, went in to them, and three ſabbath-days reaſoned with them.] Here we learn, (1.) That St. Paul was not reſtrained from preaching to the Jews by his being an Apoſtle of the Gentiles; for as the Goſpel was the power of God through faith, to the ſalvation of the Jews firſt, and alſo of the Gentile, ſo Paul in preaching of it teſtifies to the Jew, and alſo to the Greeks, repentance towards God, and faith in our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, Chap. 20. 21. And whereſoever he comes, his manner is to go firſt into a ſynagogue of the Jews, and to preach to them, Acts 13. 5, 14, 42.—14. 1.—16. 15.—17. 10.—18. 4, 19.—19. 8. At the beginning of his converſion we find him preaching Chriſt in the ſynagogues, Chap. 9. 20. and throughout all the region of Judea, Chap. 26. 20. his commiſſion authorizing him to teſtify what he had ſeen and heard to all men, Chap. 22. 15. to the people, and to the Gentiles, Chap. 26. 17. to the Gentiles, and to the children of Iſrael, Chap. 9. 15. which is ſufficient to confound that diſtinction of provinces, which ſome have imagined, among the Apoſtles.

Moreover, it is obſervable, that Paul enters into their ſynagogues, and reaſons with, or preacheth to them, only on their ſabbath days; for, as here it is ſaid, he reaſoned with them three ſabbath days; ſo Chap. 13. 14. he enters into the ſynagogues on the ſabbath day, and ver. 42. the Gentiles deſire him to preach to them the next ſabbath day, and ver. 44. almoſt all the whole city were aſſembled on the next ſabbath day, Chap. 16. 13. he goes out of Philippi to a ſynagogue on the ſabbath day, and Chap. 18. 4. he diſcourſes in the ſynagogue every ſabbath day, which ſeems to intimate, that, whatever they did in Jeruſalem, or in Judea, yet, in the ſynagogues out of Judea, they did not ordinarily meet for religious worſhip on the ſecond, and fifth day of the week; for otherwiſe why is it that St. Paul, who reaſoned daily in the ſchool of Tyrannus, Chap. 19. 9. ſhould only go to the ſynagogues of the Jews to reaſon with them on the ſabbath day?

Ver. 4. [b] Τῶν τε σεβομένων Ἑλλήνων —— γυναικῶν τε τ πρώτων, of the devout Greeks, and of the chief women.] So ver. 12. and Chap. 13. 50. That by the devout Greeks we are to underſtand the proſelytes among the Greeks, is evident, becauſe they are ſo called, ver. 12. and are diſtinguiſhed from the Jews, ver. 17. Chap. 14. 1.——16. 14.——18. 4. They were proſelytes, not of juſtice, i. e. ſuch as received circumciſion, and obſerved the law of Moſes, but only proſelytes of the gate, who owned the true God of Iſrael, and went up to worſhip him at their feaſts, John 12. 20. Acts 8. 27. and who were permitted to read the ſcriptures, as the eunuch did, and to hear them read in the ſynagogues, otherwiſe they could not have heard Paul there, and much leſs could they have compared what he ſaid with the writings of the Prophets, as we find they did, ver. 11, 12.

As for the chief women, we learn from (a) Joſephus, that the Jews, in many places where they dwelt, prevailed upon many of them, either wholly to embrace their religion, or to become proſelytes of the gate, and many of theſe became Chriſtian converts. See more of this in the Note on 1 Pet. 1. 1.

Ver. 6. [c] Οἱ ἀναστατώσαντες, They who diſturb the world;] i. e. ſo as to unſettle things and bring them into confuſion; for this they conceived the introduction of new gods tended to, as we learn from the words of the (b) Conſuls in Livy, and the Roman laws. See the Note on Chap. 16. 21.

Ver. 7. [d] Theſe all do contrary to the decrees of Cæſar, ſaying, there is another King.] This, ſaith Grotius, was contrary to the decree of Cæſar, becauſe the Senate firſt, and afterwards the Emperor ſuffered none to be called Kings without their permiſſion.

Ver. 11. [e] Theſe were εὐγενέστεροι more noble, &c.] The Jews looked upon themſelves not only as of free, but noble birth, as being of the ſeed of Abraham. See the Note on 1 Cor. 11. 18. They are, ſaith (c) Philo, in the opinion of their calumniators, βαρβαρικοὶ, barbarians, but in truth, ἐλεύθεροι, καὶ εὐγενεῖς, they are free, and of noble birth; here therefore St. Luke ſhews them wherein their true nobility conſiſted, viz. in ſuch a diſpoſition of the ſoul as inclined them to attend to the doctrine of the Goſpel.

Ver. 14. [f] To go as it were to ſea.] Words being deſigned to repreſent our minds to others, we cannot deceive them with ambiguous words, without acting contrary to the nature of them; but motions having no determinate ſignification, to uſe them, ſo as to conſult our ſafety in ſuch a motion, as may deceive our enemies and ſecure us, hath nothing in it blame-worthy.

Ver. 16. [g] When he ſaw the city κατείδωλον, full of idols;] i. e. images, ἐ γὸ ὧν ἀλλαχῆ τοσαῦτα ἰδεῖν εἴδωλα, for ſo many images could not be ſeen elſewhere, * Pauſanias ſaying that they did εὐσεβῶν θεῶς ἄλλων πλέον worſhip the gods more than others, and exceeded all others in their diligence εἰς τὰ θεῖα, to the gods; and (d) Strabo ſaying, that they were hoſpitable to the gods, πολλὰ γὸ τ ξενικῶν Ἱερῶν ἐδεξάμενοι for they received many ſtrange gods, inſomuch that the Comedians ridiculed them upon that account, and all the reſt cited by Dr. Hammond ſay the ſame thing; for in thoſe times of Heatheniſm they never worſhipped a god without an image to repreſent him to them, and therefore, as St. Paul ſaith here, that they multiplied their idols, ſo ver. 22. that they were δεισιδαιμονέστεροι, more prone than others to worſhip dæmons. We may here alſo laugh at the abſurd folly of Lorinus's caution, not to believe Stephanus, ſaying in his Lexicon, that εἴδωλον ſignifies an image, and and not as he would have it, a ſhadow, ſpectrum, or phantom, for would it not be ridiculous to render St. Paul's words thus, I ſaw your city full of phantoms, ſhades, and appearances of nothing?

Ver. 18. [h] Certain philoſophers of the Epicureans and Stoicks—ſaid, what will ὁ σπερμολόγος τοῦτο, this babler ſay, &c.] To ſhew the appoſiteneſs of the Apoſtle's diſcourſe to theſe philoſophers, let it be noted,

1*ſt*, That the (e) Epicureans did not believe that the world was made by God, but by a caſual conflux of atoms, nor did they own the providence of God, or think he had any care of mankind; they alſo held, that the gods were of human ſhape, and that there was no reſurrection, nor any puniſhments after death.

The (f) Stoicks held the world to be a god, that matter was eternal, and God was corporeal, and that all things were ſubject to fate.

2*dly*, As for the word σπερμολόγος, babler, Euſtathius gives us two ſenſes of it, which ſeem to have been the occaſion of their application of it to St. Paul, (1.) That Paul was diſputing with thoſe he met with in the market, for ſaith he, (g) Ἀττικοὶ τὸν σπερμολόγον ἐκάλουν τὸν ἐπὶ τοῖς ὠνίοις, καὶ ἀγορᾶς διατρίβοντας, the Atticks called them σπερμολόγοι, who were converſant in the markets, and places of merchandiſe. See Additions N° 22. (2.) Becauſe he pretended to ſome new ſyſtems of divinity which they were not acquainted with, and which they thought proceeded from ſome vain opinions he had entertained; for the word σπερμολογεῖν, ſaith he, is uſed, (h) ἐπὶ τῶν ἀλαζονευομένων ἀμαθῶς ἐπὶ μαθημάτων ἐκ τινῶν φαντασμάτων, of thoſe who, from ſome falſe opinions, boaſted unreaſonably of their learning.

3*dly*, They add, That St. Paul ſeemed to be a ſetter forth of ſtrange gods, becauſe he preached up Jeſus and the reſurrection, where Chryſoſtom and Oecumenius note, that being accuſtomed to worſhip female goddeſſes, they thought ἀνάστασιν θεὸν τινα εἶναι, ἀνάστασις to be a god; but as (i) Dr. Bentley ſaith, they too well underſtood the notion of a reſurrection to think it a goddeſs, and therefore I prefer the expoſition in the paraphraſe, as being confirmed from ver. 32. when they heard of the reſurrection of the dead, ſome mocked.

Ver. 21. [i] The Athenians ſpent their time in telling, or hearing ſome new thing.] Of this ſee Grotius.

Ver. 22. [k] Κατὰ πάντα ὡς δεισιδαιμονεστέρους ὑμᾶς θεωρῶ, In all things I perceive you too much ſuperſtitious;] i. e. Too much addicted to the worſhip of damons; for δεισιδαιμονία is, ſaith Phavorinus, φόβος δαιμόνων, the fear of damons: And that in this ſenſe St. Paul doth here uſe the word, is evident, he ſtiling them thus ſuperſtitious, becauſe he found their city full of images, and an altar to the unknown God, of which * Pauſanias, Lucian, Philoſtratus, and others ſpeak. It is certain from Pauſanias, and confeſſed by St. Jerom, that they had altars θεοῖς ἀγνώστοις, to the unknown gods, in the plural, yet is it as certain from (k) Lucian, as well as from (l) Oecumenius, that the altar was inſcribed τῷ θεῷ ἀγνώστῳ, though that was not the whole inſcription, and therefore (m) St. Jerom is too bold to correct the Apoſtle here. If the occaſion of the erecting of this altar was, as ſome ſay, the complaint of (n) Pan that he was not worſhipped by them, this gave the Apoſtle a fit occaſion, by calling them to worſhip ὁ ὁπὶ πάντα, that God who made the heaven and earth, and all things in them, to ſay, him that you ignorantly worſhip declare I unto you, he being alſo, as Joſephus ſaith, καθ' ὑσίαν ἄγνωστος, unknown as to his eſſence, and by the Heathens called Deus incertus, becauſe he would not be worſhipped in an image, and ſo they were uncertain where to find him; and in the Scripture being ſtiled the God ὃν οὐκ ἴσασι, whom the Heathen world, and their philoſophers knew not, 1 Cor. 1. 21. Gal. 4. 8, 9. Or if Παῦλος be, as (o) Plato ſaith, ὁ λόγος the word, and of whom Plutarch ſaith, in his book de defect. Orac. p. 419. that there was a great cry heard in the time of Tiberius Caſar, that he was dead, then had he alſo hence a fit occaſion to preach unto them Jeſus.

Ver. 24. [l] God that made the world, and all things therein—is not worſhipped with mens hands, as if he needed any thing, ver. 25.] To clear up the argument of the Apoſtle here, it will be neceſſary to ſearch a little into the principles of the Heathens concerning God, and the worſhip of him; let it then be obſerved,

1*ſt*, That the wiſeſt heathens worſhipped their gods in human ſhape; ſo (p) Maximus Tyrius ſaith of the Greeks, They thought God muſt have a body, and that body they generally held muſt be of human ſhape, and therefore ſuch as might be repreſented in an image of gold, ſilver or ſtone, made after the faſhion of a man. Thus (q) Velleius in Cicero, enquiring of the form of the gods, ſpeaks thus: Ac de forma quidem, partim natura nos admonet, partim ratio docet; nam a natura habemus omnes omnium gentium ſpeciem, nullam aliam niſi humanam deorum, that nature teaches they are of human ſhape, ſeeing all nations repreſent them in this form; nor do they ever occur to any man ſleeping, or waking, in any other ſhape; and that men, (r) cum artificium effingunt, fabricamque divinam, when they make an image, or divine fabrick, make all things, in hominis figura, in the ſhape of man, whence his concluſion is this; homines eſſe ſpecie deos confitendum eſt, it muſt be owned that the gods are like in ſhape to men.

2*dly*, They held indeed that God muſt be, αὐταρκῆς, ſelf-ſufficient, and thought, with (ſ) Lucian, it was ridiculous to conceive, ὡς ἀνθρώπων θεοὶ ἐνδεεῖς εἰσι, that the gods ſhould ſtand in need of men, yet they conceived thoſe (t) images were, through the frailty of human, nature needful to the worſhip of the Deity, that they might view and touch them, and have them near to them; on theſe accounts they thought (u) there could be no religion without images, and objected this to the Chriſtians, that they (x) worſhipped a god they could not ſhew, and thought that even they uſed images, though they concealed them; yea they pronounced both them and other nations, viz. Scythians, atheiſts, becauſe they had no images. And upon this account they uſed a kind of magical conſecration of their images to bring their gods down into them. So (y) Minucius ſaith, fuditur, fabricatur, ſculpitur, nondum deus eſt; ecce ornatur, conſecratur, oratur; tunc poſtremo deus eſt. Here therefore is the reaſon why the Apoſtle ſaith,

1*ſt*, That God dwelleth not in temples made with hands, i. e. as one confined to them, and who could not be addreſſed to every where, ſince, as (z) Seneca ſays, there is no need of going to the Ædile, that we may pray to the gods, or, as (a) Lucian ſays jocularly, Æſculapius is not deaf, that men muſt go near to, that they may pray to him.

And, 2*dly*, this is the reaſon why he ſaith, he is not worſhipped with mens hands, as if he could be only worſhipped, or ſpoken to in a temple, or in a conſecrated image made by man. And,

3*dly*, Why he adds, that we ought not to think the Godhead like to an image made of gold or ſilver.

Ver. 27. [m] That they ſhould ſeek the Lord, if haply they might feel after him, and find him.] Here, firſt, we learn, that God framed the world with this deſign, that men by contemplation of it, might ſeek after the author of it, and ſeeking, find him; and therefore muſt have made it ſo as to contain ſufficient evidence that it was made by his power and wiſdom. Now, to ſeek after God in the ſcripture phraſe, is not only to enquire whether there be a God, but ſo to ſeek him out, that we may give him that worſhip which is due to him; as when the Apoſtle ſaith, He that cometh to God, muſt believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of thoſe that diligently ſeek him, Heb. 11. 6. to find him, is to obtain his grace and favour, or to find him good and propitious to them; for to what other end ſhould men ſo ſolicitouſly ſeek after him, but to obtain his grace and favour; or why ſhould they deſire to find him, but that they may receive ſome benefit from him thus found? Is it not upon this account that all men come to him, and do him ſervice? and would any one do it, if they expected no advantage by it? and in this ſenſe God ſaith, If from thence thou ſhalt ſeek the Lord thy God, thou ſhalt find him, if thou ſeek him with all thy heart, Deut. 4. 29. If ye ſeek him, he will be found of you, 2 Chron. 15. 2. Note,

2*dly*, That ſinners cannot thus ſeek or hope to find God, unleſs they can expect to find him merciful in the pardon of thoſe ſins which they do confeſs, and do forſake; and that this hath been a principle principle embraced by all nations, appears from the propitiatory ſacrifices, which have ſo generally obtained among them, even from the beginning. And therefore all this muſt depend upon this foundation, or the knowledge of this one thing, that God is the maker of heaven and earth, and all that therein is; and ſo it evidently doth. For,

1*ſt*, That which made all things, muſt be itſelf unmade, and ſo muſt be eternal; it muſt have power over all things, and ſo be almighty.

2*dly*, That which made all things muſt have all power to direct, govern, order, and diſpoſe of all things, as he pleaſes, and ſo his creatures muſt depend on him for protection, and the diſpoſal of all their affairs.

3*dly*, That being which made all things in ſuch an excellent order and dependence on each other, in ſuch conſtant and unchangeable viciſſitudes, fitted with ſuch faculties, adapted to ſuch ends and uſes, muſt have infinite wiſdom, and muſt deſign things for thoſe ends, for which he hath thus fitted them.

4*thly*, He who hath made things ſo, as that they conſtantly in their reſpective ſeaſons produce things good and uſeful for the preſervation, and comfort of thoſe creatures he hath made, filling their mouths with food, and their hearts with gladneſs, muſt be good to all, even to the unthankful and the wicked, and ſo his tender mercies muſt be over all his works; which is the argument here uſed, ver. 26.

5*thly*, He who vouchſafeth ſuch kindneſs to, and maketh ſuch proviſions for thoſe bodies, which we have common to us with the brutes, muſt have made ſome proviſions for that ſoul which is our better part, and which is more eſpecially derived from him; they therefore muſt be capable of receiving bleſſings and favours from him; and if lapſed, and ſinful creatures, and made ſo as that they certainly will be ſubject to ſin, they muſt be capable of finding mercy with him, when they return from their iniquity.

CHAP. XVIII.

1. AFter theſe things, Paul departed from Athens, and came to Corinth:

2. And found a certain Jew, named Aquila, born in Pontus, lately come from Italy with his wife Priſcilla, ([a] becauſe that Claudius had commanded all Jews to depart from Rome, and (he) came to them.

3. And becauſe he was of the ſame craft, he abode with them, and wrought (at it;) for by their occupation, they were tent-makers.

4. And he reaſoned in the ſynagogue every ſabbath (day,) and perſuaded the Jews and the Greeks (that Jeſus was the Chriſt.)

5. And when Silas and Timotheus were come from Macedonia, Paul [b] was preſſed in ſpirit, and teſtified (again) to the Jews, that Jeſus was (the) Chriſt.

6. And when they oppoſed themſelves (to this doctrine,) and blaſphemed (Chriſt,) [c] he ſhook his raiment, (in token of his intention to leave them to their infidelity,) and (therefore) ſaid to them, Your blood be upon your own heads, I am clean (from it;) [d] from henceforth I will go (and preach) to the Gentiles.

7. And he departed thence, and entred into a certain man's houſe, named Juſtus, (being) one that worſhipped (the true) God, whoſe houſe joined hard to the ſynagogue.

8. And Criſpus the chief ruler of the ſynagogue, believed on the Lord with all his houſe; and many of the Corinthians hearing (the word,) believed, and were baptized.

9. Then ſpake the Lord to Paul by night in a viſion, (ſaying,) Be not afraid, but ſpeak, and hold not thy peace.

10. For I am with thee, and no man ſhall ſet on thee to hurt thee; (ſpeak freely,) for [e] I have much people in this city.

11. And he continued there a year and ſix months, teaching the word of God among them.

12. And when Gallio was the deputy of Achaia, the Jews made inſurrection with one accord againſt Paul, and brought him to the judgment-ſeat (of Gallio,)

13. Saying, This fellow perſuadeth men to worſhip God, contrary to the law (of the Jews.)

14. And when Paul was now about to open his mouth, Gallio ſaid to the Jews, If it were a matter matter of wrong or wicked lewdneſs, O ye Jews, (which you object againſt this man,) reaſon would that I ſhould bear with you.

15. [f] But if it be a queſtion (only) of a word, and names, and of your law, look ye to it; for I will be no judge of ſuch matters.

16. And he drove them from the judgment-ſeat.

17. Then all the Greeks took [g] Soſthenes the chief ruler of the (Jewiſh) ſynagogue, and beat him before the judgment-ſeat; and Gallio cared for none of theſe things.

18. And Paul, after this, tarried there yet a good while, and then took his leave of the brethren, and ſailed thence into Syria, and with him Priſcilla and Aquila, [h] having ſhorn his head, in Cenchrea; for he had a vow (of Nazaritiſm upon him, which being expired, he was to ſhave his head according to the law, Numb. 6.)

19. And he came to Epheſus, and left them there, but he himſelf entred into the ſynagogue, and reaſoned with the Jews.

20. (And) When they deſired him to tarry longer time with them, he conſented not,

21. But bade them farewel, ſaying, I muſt by all means keep this feaſt that cometh in Jeruſalem, but I will return again to you, if God will; and he ſailed from Epheſus.

22. [i] And when he had landed at Cæſarea (Stratonis) and gone up (to Jeruſalem) and ſaluted the Church, he went down to Antioch.

23. And after he had ſpent ſome time there, he departed, and went over all the country of Galatia and Phrygia in order, ſtrengthning all the diſciples.

24. And a certain Jew, named Apollos, born at Alexandria, (being) an eloquent man, and mighty in the ſcriptures, came to Epheſus.

25. This man was (ſomewhat) inſtructed in the way of the Lord, and being fervent in ſpirit, he ſpake and taught diligently (Gr. exquiſitely) the things of the Lord, [k] knowing only the baptiſm of John, (which called the Jews to repentance, in expectation of the Meſſiah, who was ſuddenly to appear, and to baptize them with the Holy Ghoſt.)

26. And he began to ſpeak boldly (or openly) in the ſynagogue (that the time of the promiſed Meſſiah muſt be come,) whom when Aquila and Priſcilla had heard, they took him to them, and expounded to him the way of God more perfectly.

27. And when he was diſpoſed to paſs into Achaia, the brethren (at Epheſus,) wrote, exhorting the diſciples to receive him; who, when he was come, helped them much [l] who had believed through (the) grace (of God.)

28. For he mightily convinced the Jews, and that publickly, ſhewing by the (teſtimony of the) Scriptures, that Jeſus was (the) Chriſt.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XVIII.

Ver. 2. [a] Claudius had commanded all the Jews to depart from Rome.] Though Oroſius fixeth this edict to the ninth year of Claudius, yet did it not come forth till the twelfth of Claudius; for the ſedition of the Jews, mentioned by Euſebius from Joſephus, happened in the eleventh year of Claudius, under Quadratus, preſident of Syria, and concerned not the Romans, the calamity falling only on the Jews; but after it, followed another the ſame year, in which the thieves in Judea aſſaulted Stephen, the ſervant of Cæſar, took away his baggage, and killed the Roman ſoldiers, as both (a) Tacitus and (b) Joſephus do inform us: And then Claudius, cauſis rebellionis auditis, having heard from the preſident the cauſes of this rebellion, made this edict, of which Tacitus ſaith nothing, becauſe it came not from the decree of the Senate, but was the edict of Claudius only; and of which (c) Suetonius ſaith thus, Judæos, impulſore Chreſto, aſſidue tumultuantes Roma expulit, He expelled the Jews from Rome, they making continual tumults by the impulſe or perſuaſion of Chriſt; where, as he miſtakes in the name, ſo in the thing, the Jews having had then no conteſts at Rome, that we read of, with the Chriſtians, and the Chriſtians, to be ſure, cauſing no tumults there. The true cauſe of their baniſhment was therefore that which hath been hinted from Tacitus.

Ver. 5. [b] Συνείχετο τῷ πνεύματι, He was preſſed in ſpirit;] i. e. either his own, or the Holy Spirit, ſo powerfully urged and conſtrained him, that he could not refrain from ſpeaking. So Luke 12. 50. I have a baptiſm to be baptized with, καὶ πῶς συνέχομαι, and how am I ſtraitned till it be accompliſhed? 2 Cor. 5. 14. the love of Chriſt συνέχει conſtraineth us, i. e. it will not ſuffer us to reſt from promoting the ſervice of Chriſt. When this word is joined with a paſſion that reſtrains from action, then it is to be rendred reſtrain, as συνέχειν φόβῳ, to to be reſtrained by fear, Job 3. 24. Luke 8. 37. when the motive is both ways, then is the preſſure ſo alſo; as when St. Paul ſaith συνέχομαι ἐκ τῶν δύο, I am preſſed between two, urged to depart, that I may be with Chriſt, reſtrained from it, that I may do farther ſervice to his Church, Philip. 1. 23.

Ver. 6. [c] He ſhook his raiment and ſaid, Your blood be upon your own heads.] The command of our Saviour was to ſhake off the duſt from their feet; and ſo St. Paul and Barnabas do, Chap. 13. 51. but here Paul alſo ſhakes it off from his raiment, as a teſtimony to them, that he had now renounced any farther dealings with them of that place, as being a refractory people; adding, that now their blood or ruin would lie upon their own heads, that is, they only would be guilty of it. See Matth. 27. 24, 25. Acts 20. 26.

Ibid. [d] From henceforth I will turn to the Gentiles.] This, at firſt ſight, ſeems to be a declaration, that he would leave off preaching to the Jews, where ever he came, and wholly apply himſelf to the converſion of the Gentiles; but by comparing his actions with the places where this phraſe, or ſomething like it, doth occur, it appears he only did intend to ſay, he would no longer preach to the Jews of that place; for after this is ſaid, we find him ſtill entring into the ſynagogues, and preaching to the Jews, or calling them to him to hear the word. So he ſpeaks to the Jews, Chap. 13. 46. Seeing ye refuſe the word, lo, we turn to the Gentiles; and yet, Chap. 14. 1. he enters at Iconium into the ſynagogue of the Jews, and preacheth to them; So alſo Chap. 19. 9.——28. 28.

Ver. 10. [e] I have much people in this city.] So they are called who were ſtill Heathens, not becauſe of any abſolute decree of their election to eternal life, but becauſe Chriſt ſaw they were diſpoſed to believe, and by faith become his people; as elſewhere John 10. 16. he calls them ſheep, who ſhould hereafter believe on him.

Ver. 15. [f] But if the queſtion be περὶ τοῦ λόγου, of a word and names;] Of the word Paul preaches to you, whether it accord with your law, or not, ver. 13. or, whether the name of the Meſſiah, or Chriſt, belong to that Jeſus whom Paul preacheth; of things of this nature I will be no judge.

Ver. 17. [g] Soſthenes the chief ruler of the ſynagogue, and beat him.] They beat the Jews, ſaith Grotius, to chace them from the judgment-ſeat; he adds, that in great cities there were more ſynagogues than one; every one of which had a chief ruler, as here Criſpus is the chief ruler of one ſynagogue, and Soſthenes of another; ſo likewiſe, ſaith he, was it in great Churches; they having at Rome, Antioch, and other places, excepting Alexandria, (of which Epiphanius ſaith, it had but one Biſhop,) more Biſhops than one at a time; but as this is uncertain, ſo have I ſhewed, Note on Philip 1. 1. that Epiphanius ſpeaks not of the primitive and apoſtolick times, but of the times of the Meletians, ſaying, that though in other churches there were Meletian as well as Catholick Biſhops at the ſame time, yet it was never ſo in Alexandria.

Ver. 19. [h] Having ſhorn his head in Cenchrea, for he had a vow.] The text leaves it uncertain whether it were St. Paul or Aquila that made this vow; though Aquila being left at Epheſus, and not going up to Jeruſalem, as St. Paul did, hence I conclude the vow was made by St. Paul; moreover this is certain, that it was the vow of Nazaritiſm now finiſhed, and which, by (d) Philo, is ſtiled εὐχὴ μεγάλη, the great vow, which cauſed this votary to ſhave his head; for this vow was either for term of life, as in the inſtances of Samſon and John Baptiſt; or for a term of days, which being compleated, the Nazarite was to ſhave his head, and bring his offerings. See Numb. 6. 13, 14. Acts 21. 26, 27. But whoſoever is the Nazarite, the queſtion is, why he ſhaves his head at Cenchrea, as if his hair was to be conſecrated to Apollo, and not at Jeruſalem, according to the commandment? What ſome imagine, that this votary was caſually defiled, and ſo ſtood bound, according to the law, to ſhave his head, and to begin his vow again, anſwers not the doubt; becauſe he could not begin his vow anew till he had offered his ſin-offering, Numb. 6. 9—— 12. and that was only to be offered at the tabernacle and temple. Others ſay, This law of ſhaving at the door of the temple, and offering theſe oblations, obliged thoſe only who thus vowed in the land of Judea, not thoſe that were out of it; and if this will not ſatisfy, becauſe we find ſo little of it in the ancient Jews, we may perhaps ſay, there was in the vow of the Nazarites a moral part, viz. the conſecration of themſelves to the ſervice of God, and to a greater degree of purity; and in this, Chriſtians might comply with it without ſcruple; and it had a ceremonial part, the cutting off the hair, and the offering ſacrifices when it was accompliſhed; and as to this, St. Paul and other Chriſtians knowing the law was not now obligatory, might diſpenſe with themſelves; omit, or do them, as prudence and the caſe of ſcandal did require. For though St. Paul went up now to Jeruſalem, we read not of any offering that he made according to the law, nor perhaps would he have ſhaved his head on this account, had not ſome ſcrupulous Jews at Corinth, been conſcious to his vow.

Ver. 22. [i] And when he had landed at Cæſarea, and gone up, and ſaluted the church.] Here the queſtion is, whether St. Paul went up from the ſhip to the church of Cæſarea, or from Cæſarea to the church at Jeruſalem. And in favour of the latter ſenſe, let it be obſerved, (1.) That in the language of the author of the Acts, to go from Cæſarea to Jeruſalem, is to go up, and to go from Jeruſalem to Cæſarea, is to go down. So Feſtus went up from Cæſarea to Jeruſalem, Acts 25. 1. and ver. 5. he ſpeaks to the rulers at Jeruſalem συ[κα]τα[βαινειν, to go down with him from thence to Cæſarea, and ver. 6. κα[ταβας, going down to Cæſarea, he ſits on the tribunal, and they of Jeruſalem κα[ταβεβη]κ[οτες, going down, accuſe Paul, ver. 7. and ver. 9. he aſks Paul, whether ἀν[αβας going up to Jeruſalem, he would there be judged. So Peter ἀ[βη, went up from Cæſarea to Jeruſalem, Acts 11. 2. See alſo Chap. 21. 8, 12. So that to interpret theſe words of his going up from Cæſarea to Jeruſalem, is ſuitable to the phraſe of the Evangeliſt. (2.) St. Paul declares, he muſt by all means keep the feaſt at Jeruſalem, ver. 21. and that he therefore could not tarry with them; and yet if he went not now to Jeruſalem, he went not at all thither at this time; for, from this church, he goes down to Antioch in Syria, and ſo through Galatia and Phrygia, ver. 22, 23. and ſo comes back to Epheſus, Chap. 19. 1. according to his promiſe, ver. 21. I will return again to you.

Ver. 25. [k] Knowing only the baptiſm of John.] That this Apollos had not only the gift of eloquence, but the miraculous gifts of the Holy Ghoſt, by which he was made an able miniſter of the Goſpel, is evident from the Epiſtle to the Corinthians; for he is there ſtiled a miniſter, by whom they believed according to the gift that God had given him, 1 Cor. 3. 5. He is a co-worker with God, ver. 9. But how he came by theſe gifts, which rendered him ſo fit to water theſe churches, and made him St. Paul's brother, is not eaſy to determine. Grotius ſaith, that the phraſe διὰ τ῀ χά[ριτ]ος, by grace, belongs to him, he helping the church by the gifts he had received before baptiſm in the name of Chriſt; the grace of God preventing the hands of the Apoſtles, but where, or by whom he was baptized, he ſaith not. Lorinus ſaith, he was baptized by Aquila, or ſome of Epheſus, but the text only ſaith, that Aquila and Priſcilla inſtructed, not that they baptized him. I conjecture therefore, that he had been baptized already by thoſe who inſtructed him in the way of the Lord, ver. 25. for in thoſe times perſons were baptized immediately upon their profeſſion of faith in Chriſt Jeſus, as appears from the inſtances of the eunuch, Lydia, the jaylor, and many others; and that when it is here ſaid, he knew only the baptiſm of John, that relates only to the knowledge he had received in Judea, before he returned to Alexandria, where he received farther inſtruction concerning the death and reſurrection of Chriſt; but yet perhaps knew not why he ſuffered, the Jewiſh nation having then no notion of a Meſſiah that was to ſuffer for the ſins of the people, nor that his kingdom was to be only ſpiritual, they all expecting that he ſhould erect a temporal kingdom; nor that he was to be a light to the Gentiles, or to receive them into favour without circumciſion, or obſervance of the law of Moſes; this being not made known to the Apoſtles after the Holy Ghoſt had fallen on them, till it was revealed to St. Peter by a viſion; nor ſeems the freedom of the Jews, from the Moſaick law, to be made known to the Apoſtles, or the diſciples at Jeruſalem for a long time after, as we may learn from Acts 21. 20, 21, 24.

Ver. 27. [l] Who had believed through grace;] i. e. through the Goſpel, ſaith Dr. Hammond, or through the favour of God, in vouchſafing them the knowledge of it. See the Note on 2 Cor. 6. 1.

CHAP. XIX.

1. AND it came to paſs, that while Apollos was at Corinth, Paul having paſſed thro' the upper coaſts (of Aſia Minor, to wit, Galatia and Phrygia, Chap. 18. 23.) came to Epheſus, and [a] finding certain diſciples (abiding there,)

2. He ſaid to them, Have ye received the (gift of the) Holy Ghoſt, ſince ye believed? And they ſaid to him, We have not ſo much as heard whether there be any (extraordinary gift of prophecy, or of the) Holy Ghoſt (reſtored again, or vouchſafed to the church.)

3. And he ſaid to them, Into what (baptiſm) then were ye baptized? And they ſaid, Into John's baptiſm.

4. Then ſaid Paul, John verily baptized with the baptiſm of repentance, ſaying to the people, That they (repenting) ſhould believe on him who ſhould come after him, that is, on Chriſt Jeſus;

(who

(who would baptize them with the Holy Ghoſt, Matth. 3. 11.)

5. (And) When they heard this, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jeſus.

6. And when Paul had laid his hands upon them, the Holy Ghoſt came upon them, and they ſpake with tongues, and propheſied.

7. And all the men (that did ſo) were about twelve.

8. And he went into the ſynagogue (of the Jews there,) and ſpake boldly for the ſpace of three months, diſputing (diſcourſing of,) and perſuading the things concerning (perſuading them concerning the things of) the kingdom of God.

9. [b] But when divers were hardned, and believed not, but ſpake evil of that way before the multitude, he departed from them, and ſeparated the diſciples, diſputing daily in the ſchool of one Tyrannus.

10. [c] And this (practice he) continued by the ſpace of two years, ſo that all they who dwelt in Aſia heard the word of the Lord Jeſus, both Jews and Greeks.

11. And God wrought ſpecial miracles by the hands of Paul:

12. So that from his body were brought to the ſick, handkerchiefs, or aprons, and the diſeaſes departed from them, and the evil ſpirits went out of them.

13. Then certain of the vagabond Jews, (being) [d] exorciſts, took upon them to call over them which had evil ſpirits, the name of the Lord Jeſus, ſaying, We adjure you by Jeſus whom Paul preacheth (to come forth.)

14. And there were ſeven ſons of one Sceva a Jew, and chief (among the orders) of the prieſts, which did ſo.

15. And the evil ſpirit anſwered, and ſaid, Jeſus I know, and Paul I know (to be perſons having authority to command me,) but who are ye (that ye ſhould take upon you to do it?)

16. And the man in whom the evil ſpirit was, leaped on them, and overcame them, and prevailed againſt them, ſo that they fled out of the houſe naked and wounded.

17. And this (being done publickly) was known to all the Jews, and Greeks alſo dwelling at Epheſus, and fear (of this powerful name,) fell on them all, and the name of the Lord Jeſus was magnified.

18. And many that believed came, and confeſſed (their former magical practices,) and ſhewed their deeds.

19. Many alſo of them which uſed [e] curious (i. e. magick) arts, brought their books together, and burned them before all men, and they counted the price of them, and found it fifty thouſand pieces of ſilver.

20. So mightily grew the word of God, and prevailed.

21. After theſe things were ended, Paul purpoſed in the ſpirit, when he had paſſed through Macedonia and Achaia, to go to Jeruſalem, ſaying, After I have been there, I muſt alſo ſee Rome.

22. So he ſent into Macedonia two of them that miniſtred to him, (viz.) Timotheus and Eraſtus, but he himſelf ſtaid in Aſia (at Epheſus, 1 Cor. 16. 8. here v. 26. 30.) for a ſeaſon.

23. And the ſame time there aroſe no ſmall ſtir about that way (which Paul preached.)

24. For a certain man named Demetrius, (being) a ſilver-ſmith who [f] made ſilver ſhrines for Diana, brought no ſmall gain to the craftſmen;

25. Whom he called together with the workmen of like occupation, and ſaid (to them,) Sirs, ye know that by this craft we have our wealth.

26. Moreover, you ſee and hear, that not alone at Epheſus, but almoſt throughout all Aſia, this Paul hath turned away much people, (Gr. that this Paul hath perſuaded much people, not only of Epheſus, but of all Aſia,) ſaying, That they be no gods which are made with hands, (there being no divinity reſiding in them.)

27. So that not only this our craft is in danger to be ſet at nought, but alſo that the temple of the great goddeſs Diana ſhould be deſpiled, and her magnificence ſhould be deſtroyed, whom all Aſia and the world worſhippeth (in her images)

28. And when they heard theſe things, they were full of wrath, and cried out, ſaying, Great is Diana of the Epheſians.

29. And the whole city was filled with confuſion, and (the men of it) [g] having caught Gaius and Ariſtarchus, men of Macedonia, Paul's companions in travel, they ruſhed with one accord into the theatre.

30. And when Paul would have entred in to the people, the diſciples ſuffered him not.

31. And certain of the [h] chief of Aſia (Gr. of the prieſts, or magiſtrates of Aſia, who governed the games,) who were his friends, ſent to him, deſiring him, that he would not adventure himſelf into the theatre.

32. Some therefore cried one thing, and ſome another, for the aſſembly was confuſed, and the moſt part knew not wherefore they were come together.

33. And they drew Alexander out of the multitude, the Jews putting him forward, (either to plead the common cauſe againſt images, or to expoſe him to the peoples rage, becauſe he was turned Chriſtian,) and Alexander beckoned with his hand, and would have made his defence to the people.

34. But when they knew that he was a Jew,

(and ſo a profeſſed enemy to their religion, and to image worſhip, they) all with one voice, about the ſpace of two hours, cried out, Great is Diana of the Epheſians.

35. And when the [i] Town-clerk, (or Regiſter) had appeaſed the people, he ſaid, Ye men of Epheſus, [k] what man is there that knoweth not how that the city of Epheſus is a worſhipper of the great goddeſs Diana, and of the image which fell down from Jupiter?

36. Seeing then that theſe things cannot be ſpoken againſt, ye ought to be quiet, and to do nothing raſhly, (in puniſhing thoſe men you have now laid hold on.)

37. For ye have brought hither theſe men (for that end,) who are neither robbers of Churches, nor yet blaſphemers of your goddeſs, (and ſo not worthy to be thrown to the wild beaſts.)

38. Wherefore, if Demetrius, and the craftſmen that are with him, have matter (of complaint) againſt any man, [l] the law is open, and there are deputies, (Gr. there are judicial days of pleading, and the proconſuls are preſent,) let them implead one another.

39. But if ye enquire any thing concerning other matters (than thoſe relating to your private injuries,) it ſhall be determined in a lawful aſſembly, (and ought not to be proſecuted in this tumultuous manner.)

40. For we are in danger to be called in queſtion (by the Romans) for this day's uproar, there being no cauſe whereby we may give an account of this concourſe.

41. And when he had thus ſpoken, he diſmiſſed the aſſembly.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XIX.

Ver. 1——6. [a] HE finding certain diſciples, &c.] Obſerve here,

1*ſt*, That theſe diſciples were converts to the Chriſtian faith, i. e. that they believed that Jeſus was the Chriſt, and that he was riſen from the dead, is evident, becauſe St. Paul not only calls them believers, but enquires whether they had received the Holy Ghoſt; which none but they who thus believed, did, or could receive; the gift of prophecy, which is the Jewiſh import of the Holy Ghoſt, being not given, Acts 2. 33. not to be given till Jeſus was glorified, John 7. 37, 38, 39.

2*dly*, When therefore they ſay, we have not ſo much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghoſt, their meaning is, we have not as yet heard that the gift of prophecy, which, for the ſpace of about four hundred years had been reſtrained from the Jewiſh Church, was yet reſtored; now that which rendred them thus unacquainted with this new effuſion of the Holy Ghoſt was this, that as Apollos had left Jeruſalem, and gone to Alexandria before the miraculous effuſion of the Holy Ghoſt on the Apoſtles at the day of pentecoſt, ſo had they alſo done, and had been travelling into other parts of the world, where the Goſpel had not yet been planted. Obſerve,

3*dly*, That theſe perſons, who were before baptized with the baptiſm of St. John are again baptized in the name of the Lord Jeſus, as is evident from theſe words, and when they heard this, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jeſus; for they are manifeſtly miſtaken who ſay, theſe are the words, not of St. Luke, but of St. Paul, and make the ſenſe of the words run thus, John baptized with the baptiſm of repentance, ſaying, that men ſhould believe in him that ſhould come after him, that is, in Chriſt Jeſus; and they that heard John were by his baptiſm baptized in the name of the Lord Jeſus. For, (1.) That Paul laid his hands on theſe perſons is certain from ver. 6. and that he baptized them when he laid his hands on them, ſeems evident from the connexion of the words, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jeſus, and when St. Paul laid his hands on them, the Holy Ghoſt fell upon them; whereas, according to the former ſenſe, Paul muſt have laid his hands upon all that were baptized by the Baptiſt, and they who were baptized by John, muſt have received by St. Paul's hands the Holy Ghoſt; for either theſe words muſt ſignify at large, they that heard John, and were baptized of him, and then the words following muſt import, that Paul laid his hands on all that heard John, and they received the Holy Ghoſt; or they muſt refer to thoſe that heard Paul, and then they muſt firſt be baptized by him, and then receive the Holy Ghoſt by impoſition of his hands. (2.) This is evident from the words of St. Peter, to all thoſe many thouſands that heard him, be ye baptized in the name of the Lord Jeſus, and ye ſhall receive the gift of the Holy Ghoſt; for ſince he ſpake to the men of Jeruſalem in general, Acts 2. 14. and of Judea, and all Jeruſalem and Judea were baptized of John, ſaith St. Matthew, Chap. 3. 5, 6. all, or at leaſt many of thoſe to whom he ſpake, muſt already have been baptized with the baptiſm of John, and yet he makes it neceſſary for them to be baptized in the name of the Lord Jeſus. Whence two things are extremely evident, and conſequent from each other, viz. (1.) That he exhorts them who had been baptized with John's baptiſm, to be baptized in the name of the Lord Jeſus: (2.) That therefore fore they who were baptized with his baptiſm, were not baptized in the name of the Lord Jeſus; and this is viſible even in the words of St. Paul here, John ſaid to thoſe that came to his baptiſm, ἵνα πιστεύσωσιν, not that they did, but that they ſhould believe in him that was coming after him, that is, in the Lord Jeſus; now they were not to be baptized in the name of Jeſus Chriſt, till they did actually believe in him, which they who had received John's baptiſm, were ſo far from doing, that they were muſing whether John himſelf were not the Chriſt, Luke 3. 15. and aſking, Why baptizeſt thou, if thou art not the Chriſt? John 1. 25. And, (3.) As our Saviour never ſaid openly and expreſly to the Jews, that he was the Chriſt, ſo he charges his Apoſtles to tell no man that he was ſo till his reſurrection; but to what end ſhould he do this, if both the Baptiſt and his diſciples had before baptized all men into this faith, that he was the Chriſt, and ſo had publiſhed this faith to all Judea? Only here note, that this is no ground for rebaptizing any now, by reaſon of the great difference betwixt the baptiſm of John then, and that in the name of Jeſus after his reſurrection; of which ſee the Note on Matth. 3. 11. (4.) Obſerve, that after the impoſition of the Apoſtles hands, theſe men ſpake with tongues, and propheſied, receiving the ſame gifts of the Holy Ghoſt which the Apoſtles, and others, had received to fit them for the miniſtry, which was then generally performed by ſuch gifted men commiſſionated for that work by the Hoy Ghoſt, thus falling on them, whence we find theſe Prophets and Teachers λειτουργοῦντας, miniſtring to the Lord in their aſſemblies, Acts 13. 1, 2, 3. and this renders the opinion of Biſhop Stillingfleet very probable, viz. That St. Paul deſigned theſe twelve men for a nurſery of the Churches in Aſia, or perſons to be ſent from Epheſus to preach among them.

Ver. 9. [b] Ὡς δέ τινες ἐσκληρύνοντο. But as ſome were hardened.] I have ſhewed, Note on Mark 8. 17. that men are then ſaid to be hardened, when having had ſufficient evidence of what they ought to do, or believe, they refuſe to believe, or do it: And thus were theſe perſons hardened here, i. e. they would not believe after ſufficient evidence, that Jeſus was the Chriſt.

Ver. 10. [c] And this continued for the ſpace of two years; ſo that all that dwelt in Aſia, heard the word, both Jews and Greeks.] Here it is carefully to be noted, that we read not of Paul's coming to Epheſus at all, till Chap. 18. 19. and then he would not tarry with them, ver. 20. but makes haſte up to Jeruſalem; when he had ſaluted the Church there, he goes thence to Antioch, and tarries there ſome time, ver. 23. then he goes through Phrygia and Galatia, confirming the brethren, ibid. and then to Epheſus, there he diſputes three months in the ſynagogues of the Jews, then two years more in the ſchool of Tyrannus; after he leaves Epheſus, he goes through Macedonia and Achaia to Jeruſalem, as he had before determined to do, ver. 21. Chap. 20. 1. not coming at all to any part of Aſia till he came to Miletus, ver 10, 17. They therefore who make him ſpend three quarters of a year in other parts of Aſia, do not only ſay this without proof, or without aſſigning any other city of Aſia, where he preached; but they ſay this againſt the account here given of him by St. Luke; his three years therefore mentioned Chap. 20. 31. muſt be reckoned from his firſt coming to Epheſus.

Ver. 13. [d] Ἰουδαίων ἐξορκιστῶν, Of the Jewiſh exorciſts.] That the Jews were wont to exorciſe devils, or to caſt them out, not only by invocation of the name of Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob, but by ſkill in magick, we learn from (a) Joſephus, who mentions one Eleazer before Veſpaſian, his ſons, his captains, and a great number of his ſoldiers, τοὺς τὸν δαιμονίων λαμβανομένους ἐπαλύοντα τέτων, delivering them who were poſſeſſed with evil ſpirits from them, and drawing forth διὰ τῆ μυκτήρων τὸ δαιμόνιον, the Devil by the noſe, by putting to his noſe who was poſſeſſed, a ring having under the ſeal of it a root, of which Solomon had diſcovered the virtue, and adjuring him by the adjuration taught by Solomon, καὶ τας ἐπῳδας ἃς συνέθηκεν ἐκεῖνος ἐπᾴδων, and ſaying over him the incantations which Solomon compoſed: They had alſo books of inchantments, καὶ τρόπους ἐξορκώσεων, and modes of exorciſing dæmons, συντεταγμένους, compoſed, as they gave it out, by Solomon; and they, ſaith he, are of great uſe to this day. As for the root of which he ſpeaks, he informs us, that it was a very dangerous thing to pluck it up, and preſcribes a very ſuperſtitious way of doing it; but being thus gathered, and brought to thoſe that are poſſeſſed, ſaith he, δαιμόνια τοῖς ζῶσιν ἀσθενήσαντα ταχέως ἐξαίρει, it quickly expels the dæmons out of mens bodies. De Bell. Jud. l. 7. c. 23. p. 981.

Ver. 19. [e] They that uſed περίεργα curious arts;] That is, arts of magick, That this is the import of the word, Grotius and Dr. Hammond prove from the account that (b) Irenæus gives us of the diſciples of Simon Magus, that they uſed amatoria & agogima, & quæcunque ſunt alia parerga l. perierga, love-charms and philtres, and all other curious arts. For (c) Porphyry ſpeaking of theſe magicians, ſaith, διὰ τέτων φιλίας καὶ ἐρωτικὰ καταδεσμεύουσιν οἱ κακοδαίμονες, they, by theſe evil ſpirits, make their philtres and love-charms; and it it ſeems to have had this ſignification, becauſe the Magi, as (d) Origen ſaith, were περιεργάζόμενοι τ δαιμονίων ὀνόμασι, καὶ δυνάμεσι, καὶ πραξεσι, καὶ ἐπῳδαῖς, καὶ βοτάναις οἰκείαις δαίμοσι, καὶ λίθοις, curiouſly employed about ſearching into the names, the forms, the powers, the actions, the incantations of dæmons, and the herbs, ſtones, and ſculptures, made in them, proper to theſe dæmons; whereas, ſaith he, ἀπερίεργον ζωὴν, a life free from theſe curioſities is acceptable to God, and the Lord Chriſt would leave to be vexed with evil ſpirits, περιεργαζόμενον δαιμόνων ὀνόματα, him that is thus curious about the names of dæmons, and ſeeks after ways of incanting them. Hence the books here brought to be burnt, are by the fathers ſtiled γοητικὰ βιβλοι, books of ſorcery. Nor is it to be wondred, that theſe arts ſhould abound at Epheſus, where (e) Plutarch ſpeaks, περὶ τ μάγων ἐν Ἐφέσῳ διαλεγόντων, of magicians converſing; that city being ſo famous for ſorcery and inchantments of dæmons, that the magical words uſed to that effect, were ſtiled Ἐφέσια γράμματα, Epheſian letters; and (f) Plutarch tells us, that the magicians bid them who were poſſeſſed with devils, to read and recite the Epheſian letters. See Additions, No 24.

Ver. 24. [f] Ποιῶν ναοὺς ἀργυροῦς Ἀρτέμιδος, Who made ſilver ſhrines for Diana.] That theſe ſhrines were κιβώρια μικρὰ little chapels, repreſenting the form of a temple with an image in it, which being ſet upon an altar, or ſome other ſolemn place, and the leaves of the door being opened, the image ſtood, or ſat in ſtate, and ſo was repreſented to the ſpectators. See Dr. Hammond on the place, and Chryſoſtom.

Ver. 29. [g] Having caught Gaius and Ariſtarchus, Paul's companions,——they ruſhed into the theatre,] ſays ſome, to throw them to the wild beaſts, as blaſphemers of their goddeſs; on which account, the Town-clerk ſeems to ſay, you have brought theſe men here, who are neither robbers of churches, nor yet blaſphemers of your goddeſs, v. 37. for that the theatre was the place where they did θηριομαχεῖν, fight with beaſts, ſee Note on 1 Cor. 4. 9. and that this was done at Epheſus, ſee Note on 1 Cor. 15. 32.

Ver. 31. [h] Chief of Aſia, Gr. Ἀσιαρχαῖ.] Here again, Grotius and Dr. Hammond note, that among the heathens there were games inſtituted, ad placanda bona numina, to appeaſe the good gods, or in honour of them; of theſe the pontifices or chief prieſts were preſidents at Rome; in other provinces the prieſts or magiſtrates preſided, ſaith (g) Salmaſius, and theſe were called from their provinces, Aſiarchæ, Syriarchæ, Bithyniarchæ, officers belonging to theſe games in thoſe provinces. Thus in the martyrdom of (h) Polycarp, Biſhop of Smyrna in Aſia, they aſk τ Ἀσιαρχῶν Φίλιππον, Philip the ruler of the games there, to let out a lion upon Polycarp, which he declares he could not do, becauſe the games were ended; whence it appears, that it belonged to theſe Aſiarchæ here mentioned, to let looſe the wild beaſts upon malefactors; accordingly, they are here preſent, and being kind to St. Paul, ſend to him not to come thither.

Ver. 35. [i] Ὁ γραμματεύς, the Town-clerk.] This word is rendered by Budæus the Chancellor; he was an officer choſen by the people to preſide over the games, ſaith Dominus, cited by Johannes Antiochenus, and ſo the fitter to appeaſe their tumults.

Ibid. [k] Who knows not τ Ἐφεσίων πόλιν νεωκόρον εἶναι, that the city of the Epheſians is a worſhipper of the great goddeſs Diana.] After all the learning our criticks have ſpent upon this place, I ſee no reaſon to change our tranſlation; for tho' the city or people of Epheſus may have this title in the coins, it cannot here be an epithet of the city, for then it ſhould be νεωκόρων, as it is in the coins. Again, it being plain from (i) Julius Pollux, that the νεωκόροι were οἱ τ θεῶν θεραπευταὶ the ſervants, miniſters and worſhippers of the gods; and from Phavorinus, that νεωκόρος was ὁ τ ναῦ ἐπιμελούμενος, one that took care of the temple; and from Heſychius, Suidas and Phavorinus, that he was one who did adorn and beautify it, it may be very reaſonable to beſtow this title on the Epheſians, who were ſo peculiarly addicted to her worſhip, who had there that temple of Diana, which was accounted the miracle of the world, and who had expended ſo much in the beautifying and adorning of it, and in this ſenſe only could they be ſtiled Neocori of the image which fell down from Jupiter.

Ver. 38. [l] Ἀγοραῖοι ἄγονται. The law is open;] i. e. court days are kept, for ſo the word, with an accent in the antepenultima, ſignifies, ἡμέραι being underſtood; for ἀγόραιος, ſay Suidas and Phavorinus, is ἡ ἡμέρα ἐν ᾗ δίκαι τίθενται, a day in which a court is kept.

CHAP. XX.

1. AND after the uproar was ceaſed, Paul called to him the diſciples, and embracing them, departed to go into Macedonia:

2. And when he had gone over thoſe parts, and had given them much exhortation, he came into Greece,

3. And there abode three months; and when the Jews laid wait for him, as he was about to ſail into Syria (to carry alms to Jeruſalem,) he purpoſed (or reſolved) to return through Macedonia.

4. And there accompanied him into Aſia, (without going from him,) Sopater of Beræa; and (but) of the Theſſalonians, Ariſtarchus and Secundus, and Gaius of Derbe, and Timotheus; and of Aſia, Tychicus and Trophimus.

5. Theſe (were perſons who) going before, tarried for us at Troas.

6. And we ſailed away from Philippi after the days of unleavened bread (were ended,) and came to them to Troas in five days, where we abode ſeven days.

7. [a] And upon the firſt day of the week, when the diſciples came together to break bread (i. e. to celebrate the euchariſt,) Paul preached to them, (being) ready to depart on the morrow, and continued his diſcourſe until midnight;

8. And there were many lights in the upper chamber, where they were gathered together (for religious worſhip: See the Note on Chap. 1. 13.)

9. And there ſat in a window a certain young man named Eutychus, being fallen into a deep ſleep; and as Paul was long preaching, he ſunk down with ſleep, and fell down from the third loft, and was taken up (as one) dead.

10. And (but) Paul went down, and fell on him, and embracing him, ſaid, Trouble not yourſelves (more about him,) for his life is (ſafe) in him.

11. When he therefore was come up again, and had [b] broken bread, and eaten, (i. e. had celebrated the ſacrament of the Lord's body and blood,) and had talked a long while, even till break of day; ſo he departed, (as he had deſigned to do on the morrow, ver. 7.)

12. And they brought the young man (up) alive, and were not a little comforted (at it.)

13. And we went before to ſhip, and ſailed to Aſſos, there intending to take in Paul; for ſo had he [c] appointed, (Gr. ſo he was diſpoſed,) minding himſelf to go (thither) on foot.

14. And when he met with us at Aſſos, we took him in, and came to Mitylene.

15. And we ſailed thence, and came the next day over againſt Chios; and the next day we arrived at Samos, and tarried at Trogyllium; and the next day we came to Miletus, (ten miles diſtant from Epheſus.)

16. For Paul had determined to ſail by Epheſus (not touching there,) becauſe he would not ſpend the time in Aſia; for he haſted, if it were poſſible for him, to be at Jeruſalem, the day of Pentecoſt.

17. [d] And from Miletus he ſent to Epheſus, and called the elders of the church.

18. And when they were come to him, he ſaid to them, Ye know from the firſt day that I came into Aſia, after what manner I have been with you at all ſeaſons,

19. Serving the Lord with all humility of mind, and with many tears and temptations which befel me, by the lying in wait of the Jews:

20. And how I kept back nothing that was profitable for you, but have ſhewed you, and have taught you (what was neceſſary to be known) publickly, and from houſe to houſe;

21. Teſtifying both to the Jews and alſo to the Greeks, (that they ſhould exerciſe) repentance towards God, and faith towards our Lord Jeſus Chriſt; (i. e. that they ſhould turn to God, doing works meet for repentance, and ſhould believe in the Lord Jeſus.)

22. [e] And now, behold, I go bound in the ſpirit, (i. e. foreſeeing by the ſpirit that I ſhall be bound,) to Jeruſalem, not knowing the things that ſhall befal me there:

23. Save that the Holy Ghoſt witneſſes in every city, ſaying, That bonds and afflictions abide me.

24. But none of theſe things move me, neither count I my life dear to myſelf, ſo that I might finiſh my courſe with joy, and the miniſtry which I have received of the Lord Jeſus, to teſtify the goſpel of the grace of God.

25. And now, behold, I know that ye all, among whom I have gone preaching the kingdom of God, ſhall ſee my face no more.

26. Wherefore I take you to record this day, that [f] I am pure from the blood of all men, (i. e. not guilty of their ruin, if they periſh.)

27. For I have not ſhunned to declare to you all the counſel of God, (the whole Chriſtian doctrine, which if you keep in memory and practice, ye ſhall be ſaved, 1 Cor. 15. 3.)

28. [g] Take

28. [g] Take heed therefore to yourſelves, and to all the flock, over the which the Holy Ghoſt hath made you overſeers, [h] to feed the Church of God, which he hath purchaſed with his own blood.

29. For I know this, that [i] after my departing, ſhall grievous wolves enter in among you, not ſparing (to tear) the flock.

30. [k] Alſo (out) of your own ſelves ſhall men ariſe, ſpeaking perverſe things, to draw away diſciples after them.

31. Therefore watch, and remember, that, by the ſpace of three years, I ceaſed not to warn every one (of you) night and day with tears.

32. And now, brethren, I commend you to God, and to the word of his grace, which is able to build you up, (in your holy faith,) and to give you an inheritance among all them that are ſanctified.

33. I have coveted no man's ſilver, or gold, or apparel.

34. Yea, you yourſelves know, that theſe hands have miniſtred to my neceſſities, and to (the neceſſities of) them that are with me.

35. I have ſhewed you all (theſe) things (to inſtruct you) how that ſo labouring, you ought to ſupport the weak, and (to) remember the words of the Lord Jeſus, [l] how he ſaid, It is more bleſſed to give than to receive.

36. And when he had thus ſpoken, he kneeled down, and prayed with them all.

37. And they all wept ſore, and fell on Paul's neck and kiſſed him,

38. Sorrowing moſt of all for the words that he ſpake, that they ſhould ſee his face no more, and they accompanied him to the ſhip.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XX.

Ver. 7. [a] ΕΝ δὲ τῇ μιᾷ τῶν σαββάτων, And upon the firſt day of the week, when the diſciples were gathered together to break bread.] Theſe words ſeem fairly to evince, that it was the cuſtom of the firſt Chriſtians, and of the Apoſtles, to keep the Lord's day holy, or as a day appointed for religious worſhip: For,

1*ſt*, That μιᾷ τῶν σαββάτων, the firſt day of the week was the Lord's day, is fully proved, Note on 1 Cor. 16. 1.

2*dly*, Obſerve, That on this day the diſciples were not ſummoned extraordinarily to come together, that St. Paul did not συναχθῆναι call them together, as he did the aſſembly of the Elders of the Church, v. 17. but the diſciples were themſelves συνηγμένοι, met in their ſynaxis, or aſſembly; the text informs us, that St. Paul tarried with them ſeven days, and in none of them have we any mention of an aſſembly to this purpoſe, but only on the firſt day of the week.

3*dly*, Obſerve, That they then met together to break bread; which phraſe doth ſignify the ſacred action performed in celebration of the holy ſacrament, which it was the cuſtom of the primitive Chriſtians to receive in all their Church aſſemblies on the Lord's day: This the Apoſtle intimates, when he complains of his Corinthians, 1 Cor. 11. that they came together for the worſe, becauſe, when they came together in the Church, there were diviſions among them, ſo that they did not eat together of the table of the Lord. Now thus to come together in one place, ſaith he, is not to eat the Lord's ſupper; i. e. it is not ſo to do it as that ſacred action ought to be performed: This therefore when they came together in the Church they did, and therefore, what is coming together, ver. 17. coming to the Church, ver. 18. coming to one place, ver. 19. is coming together to eat, ver. 33. Accordingly, it was the cuſtom of the Church, from the Apoſtle's times, thus to communicate upon the Lord's day; for Pliny, in his (a) Epiſtle to the Emperor Trajan, tells him, that he found nothing to alledge againſt the Chriſtians, but their obſtinacy in their ſuperſtition; and that it was their cuſtom to meet together on a ſet day, before it was light, and to bind themſelves by the ſacrament to do no evil. Now this Epiſtle was writ only ſix years after the death of the Evangeliſt St. John. And (b) Juſtin M. who wrote but forty years after his death, thus ſpeaks, On Sunday all the Chriſtians in the city or country meet together, becauſe that is the day of our Lord's reſurrection, and then we have read unto us the writings of the Prophets and Apoſtles; this done, the preſident makes an oration to the aſſembly; to exhort them to imitate and do the things they heard; then we all join in prayer, and after that we celebrate the ſacrament, and they that are willing and able, give alms, &c.

Ver. 11. [b] And had broken bread,] Though here be mention only of breaking bread, yet that the cup was alſo conſecrated and diſtributed, is evident from the doctrine of the Church of Rome; for

(a) Soliti ſu t ſtato die ante lucem convenire, &c. Ep. l. 10. Ep. 97.

(b) Τῇ δὲ Ἡλίου λεγομένῃ πάντες τὴν συνέλευσιν ποιούμεθα, ἐπειδὴ Ἰησοῦς Χριστὸς ὁ ἡμέτερος Σωτὴρ τῇ αὐτῇ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ ἐκ νεκρῶν ἀνέστη. Apol. 2. p. 98, 99.

for they agree with the Proteſtants in this, that the Prieſts always ought to conſecrate the Euchariſt in both kinds, and ſay, that if one ſpecies be conſecrated without the other, (c) ſacrilegium committitur, it would be ſacrilege; and yet if this place prove any thing for communion in one kind, it proves as much for conſecration in one kind, and for the ſumption of one kind only by the Prieſt that conſecrates, though they hold it neceſſary for him to receive both. And hence it was declared in the council of (d) Trent, That theſe places, and the reaſons from them, muſt be laid aſide, becauſe by them it would be concluded, that it was not ſacrilege to conſecrate one kind without the other; which is contrary to all the Doctors, and the meaning of the Church, and overthroweth the diſtinction of the Euchariſt, as it is a ſacrifice, and as it is a ſacrament.

Ver. 13. [c] For ſo he had appointed, οὕτω γὰρ ἦν διατεταχὼς αὐτός, for ſo he was diſpoſed.] Here is an evidence that the word τεταγμένοι, uſed Chap. 13. 48. may there ſignify diſpoſed, as here apparently it doth.

Ver. 17. [d] And from Miletus he ſent to Epheſus, and called the elders of the Church.] From theſe words, compared with the 26th Verſe, where the ſame perſons are called Biſhops, who are here ſtiled πρεσβύτεροι, Elders, Chryſoſtom, St. Jerom, Theodoret, Oecumenius, and Theophylact, have inferred that the ſame perſons were in the firſt ages of the Church ſtiled Biſhops, or Preſbyters, indifferently: Dr. Hammond, on the contrary, and others do contend, that the word πρεσβύτεροι, Elders here ſignifies only Biſhops; and becauſe there lies this obvious objection againſt this interpretation, that then there muſt have been many Biſhops in the Church of Epheſus, ſince all theſe Elders were called from Epheſus; he anſwers that thoſe Elders were all the Biſhops of Aſia, and ſaith, that Paul ſending to the metropolis of Aſia, by that means gave notice to the Biſhops of Aſia to come to him; this he confirms, (1.) From the teſtimony of Irenæus, who ſaith they were called (e) ab Epheſo & reliquis proximis civitatibus, from Epheſus and the reſt of the cities that were near: (2.) From the words of the text; for the flock, ſaith he, was not the Chriſtians of one city, but the Chriſtians of all Aſia: thoſe with whom Paul had been from the firſt day he came to Aſia, ver. 18. all among whom he had gone preaching the kingdom of God, ver. 25. But to the firſt argument it may be anſwered,

1*ſt*, That Chryſoſtom, St. Jerom, Theodoret, Oecumenius and Theophylact, knew nothing of St. Paul's ſending to any other Biſhops beſides thoſe of Epheſus, for otherwiſe they could not have argued, as they do from this place, that theſe perſons could not be Biſhops, properly ſo called, becauſe there could be only one Biſhop of one city. Biſhop Stillingfleet alſo ſaith, that St. Paul was in ſo great haſte, that he would not ſo much as go to Epheſus, nor ſend any whither but to that city; and yet thoſe to whom he committed the whole flock then in Aſia, came from Epheſus to Miletus. But, (2.) let it be granted, that he ſent to other cities alſo, though it be plainly contrary to the text, which mentions Epheſus only, yet is it evident, both from Irenæus and the text, that the ſame perſons are called Preſbyters in the 17th Verſe, who are called Biſhops, ver. 28. for from ver. 18. to the 27th incluſively, he continues his diſcourſe to thoſe Preſbyters whom he had called, and then, ver. 28. bids them take care of the Church, over which the Holy Ghoſt had made them Biſhops: this is plain alſo from Irenæus, for he ſaith expreſly, that, convocatis epiſcopis & preſbyteris, having called the Biſhops and Preſbyters, he gave them charge of the Church, (f) in quo eos Spiritus propoſuit epiſcopos, in which the Spirit had made them Biſhops.

2*dly*, To the ſecond argument the anſwer is evident from the Note made on Chap. 19. 10. that St. Paul, from the ſecond time he came to Epheſus, ſtirred not thence, till he, in proſecution of his purpoſe, mentioned there, ver. 21. went from thence to Macedonia, in order to go to Jeruſalem: whence we learn, how he had been with them of Aſia, from the firſt day he came to Epheſus, preaching to Jew and Gentile, viz. by diſputing daily in the ſchool of Tyrannus in Epheſus, ſo that all they that dwelt in Aſia heard the word, both Jews and Greeks, Chap. 19. 10. and by diſputing thus, he perſuaded much people, οὐ μόνον Ἐφέσου, ἀλλὰ σχεδὸν πάσης τῆς Ἀσίας, i. e. not as we have rendred the words, not only at Epheſus, but throughout all Aſia, but, not only of Epheſus, but of all Aſia.

Ver. 22. [e] And now behold, I go, δεδεμένος τῷ πνεύματι, bound in the Spirit.] not i. e. reſolving in his own ſpirit, but, as Grotius ſaith truly, foreſeeing by the ſpirit that I ſhould there be bound, for ſo it follows, ver. 23. the Holy Ghoſt witneſſeth in every city, ſaying that bonds and afflictions abide me.

Ver. 26, 27. [f] I am free from the blood of all men, for I have not ſhunned to declare to you all the counſel of God.] Hence we learn, that it is neceſſary for a paſtor to declare to his people all that is neceſſary for them to believe and do, in order to ſalvation, that the guilt of their ruin may not lie upon him.

Ver. 28. g Take heed therefore to yourſelves, and to all the flock, over which the Holy Ghoſt hath made you overſeers.] I have ſhewed, in the Note on 1 Cor. 12. 8, 9, 10. that in thoſe times the Holy Spirit did enable the Apoſtles to diſcern who were fit to be governors of the Church; and accordingly by this afflatus of the Holy Ghoſt they were choſen for that work; and to this the words of the Apoſtle may refer. But it is alſo to be noted from Chap. 19. 6, 7. that at Epheſus, Paul having laid his hands upon twelve men, the Holy Ghoſt fell on them, and they ſpake with tongues, and propheſied; and Biſhop Stillingfleet conceives theſe were men kept at Epheſus as a nurſery, to be ſent forth as occaſion ſerved, to preach and preſide among the converts of Aſia; and if ſo, theſe words may more peculiarly relate to them.

Ibid. h Ποιμαίνειν τ ἐκκλησίαν τ Θεῦ, To feed the Church of God, which he hath purchaſed with his own blood.] If this be the true reading, it follows unavoidably, that Jeſus Chriſt, who ſhed his blood for us, is here ſtiled God; now this reading is confirmed by the Vulgar, Arabick, Æthiopick, by Chryſoſtom and Oecumenius on the place. It is true indeed that in Irenæus, l. 3. 14. in the Alex. MSS. and in the Syriack, we read, τ ἐκκλησίαν τ Κυρίε the Church of the Lord, which may be conſtrued, the Church of the Lord Jeſus; but it may alſo be conſtrued from the Arabick, and other MSS. the Church of our Lord God; if we conſider that the Church of God is a phraſe very frequent in the New Teſtament: See 1 Cor. 1. 2. ——10. 32.——11. 22.——15. 9. 2 Cor. 1. 1. Gal. 1. 13. 1 Tim. 3. 5. but the Church of the Lord is a phraſe never uſed in the New Teſtament.

Ver. 29. i After my departure ſhall grievous wolves enter in, not ſparing the flock.] Such were Cerinthus who ſet up in Aſia, See the Note on Coloſſ. 2. 10. and other falſe Apoſtles, and deceitful workers of the Jews, of whom ſee Note on 1 Tim. 1. 7. on Chap. 4. 2, 3. on Chap. 6. 21. and on 2 Tim. 1. 15. and on Chap. 3. 2, 3, 4.

Ver. 30. k Alſo of yourſelves ſhall men ariſe, ſpeaking perverſe things.] Such as Hymenæus and Alexander were, who made ſhipwreck of the faith, 1 Tim. 1. 20. Hymenæus and Philetus, who taught that the reſurrection was paſt already, 2 Tim. 2. 18. for theſe Epiſtles being written chiefly for the Epheſians, it is reaſonable to think he ſpeaks of men dwelling there who diſperſed theſe doctrines among them.

Ver. 35. l How he ſaid, It is more bleſſed to give than to receive.] This ſaying of Chriſt we find not in the Goſpels, but yet theſe, and the like words, are ſo far from giving any patronage to unwritten traditions, that they are a demonſtration againſt them, it being certain that we had never known any ſuch thing, had not St. Luke recorded it.

CHAP. XXI.

1. AND it came to paſs, that after we were gotten from them (of Epheſus,) and had launched (into the ſea,) we came with a ſtraight courſe to Coos, and the day following to Rhodes, and from thence to Patara;

2. And finding a ſhip ſailing over into Phœnicia, we went aboard, and ſet forth.

3. Now when we had a diſcovered Cyprus, we left it on the left hand, and ſailed into Syria, and landed at Tyre; for there the ſhip was to unlade her burden.

4. And finding diſciples, we tarried there ſeven days; who (being endued with the gifts of the Holy Ghoſt,) ſaid to St. Paul, b through the Spirit, that (if he regarded his ſafety, ver. 11.) he ſhould not go up to Jeruſalem.

5. And when we had accompliſhed thoſe days, we departed, and went away, and they all brought us on our way with (their) wives and children, till we were out of the city, and (then) we kneeled down on the ſhore, and prayed.

6. And when we had taken our leave one of another, we took ſhip, and they returned home again;

7. c And when we had finiſhed our courſe, (Gr. and finiſhing our ſail,) from Tyre, we came to Ptolemais, and ſaluted the brethren, and abode with them one day.

8. And the next day, we that were of Paul's company departed, and came to Cæſarea; and we entred into the houſe of Philip the Evangeliſt, who was one of the ſeven (Deacons, mentioned, Chap. 6.) and abode with him.

9. And the ſame man had four daughters, virgins, who did propheſy, (according to the prophecy mentioned, Chap. 2. 17.)

10. And as we tarried there many days, there came down from Judea, a certain Prophet, named Agabus.

11. And when he was come to us, he took Paul's girdle, and bound his own hands (firſt,) and (then afterwards his) feet (with it,) and ſaid, Thus ſaith the the Holy Ghoſt, [d] So ſhall the Jews at Jeruſalem bind the man that owneth this girdle, and ſhall deliver him into the hands of the Gentiles.

12. And when we heard theſe things, both we (that were with him,) and they of that place, beſought him (with tears,) not to go up to Jeruſalem.

13. Then Paul anſwered, What mean ye to weep, and to break my heart? (Gr. τι ποιειτε κλαιοντες; why do you this, weeping, and breaking my heart?) for I am ready not to be bound only, but alſo to die at Jeruſalem, for the name of the Lord Jeſus.

14. And when he would not be perſuaded, we ceaſed (our importunity,) ſaying, The will of the Lord be done.

15. And after thoſe days we took up our carriages, and went up to Jeruſalem.

16. There went with us alſo certain of the diſciples of Cæſarea, and brought with them [e] one Mnaſon of Cyprus, an old diſciple, with whom we ſhould lodge.

17. And when we were come to Jeruſalem, the brethren received us gladly.

18. And the day following, [f] Paul went in with us to James, and all the elders (of Jeruſalem) were preſent.

19. And when he had ſaluted them, he declared particularly what things God had wrought among the Gentiles by his miniſtry.

20. And when they heard it, they glorified the Lord, and ſaid to him, Thou ſeeſt, brother, how many thouſands of Jews there are which believe, [g] and they are all zealous (for the obſervance) of the law, (by all that are Jews.)

21. And they are informed of thee, that thou teacheſt all the Jews which are among the Gentiles to forſake Moſes, ſaying, That they ought not to circumciſe their children, neither (ought they) to walk after the cuſtoms (of our fore-fathers.)

22. What is it therefore? (τι ουν εστι; What is therefore to be done, ſeeing) the multitude (which have been thus informed of thee,) muſt needs come together, for they will hear that thou art come.

23. Do therefore this that we ſay to thee, (to wit,) We have four men which have a vow on them;

24. Them take, and purify thyſelf with them, and be at charges with them, (making proviſion of ſacrifices for them, as the law requires,) that (when the days of their purification are ended,) they may ſhave their heads, and (by this practice) all may know that thoſe things whereof they are informed concerning thee are nothing, (i. e. have no truth in them,) but that thou thyſelf alſo walkeſt orderly, and keepeſt the law.

25. As touching the Gentiles which believe, we have written and concluded, that they obſerve no ſuch thing, ſave only that they keep themſelves from things offered to idols, and from blood, and from (things) ſtrangled, and from fornication.

26. Then Paul took the men, and the next day purifying himſelf with them, (i. e. beginning the ſeparation of a Nazarite,) he entred into the temple, [h] to ſignify (when would be) the accompliſhment of the days of purification, until (εως, even to the time) that an offering ſhould be offered for every one of them, (as the law required at the cloſe of them, Numb. 6. 13.)

27. And when the ſeven days, (i. e. the time deſigned for this ſeparation) were almoſt ended, (or, were about to be accompliſhed,) the Jews which were of Aſia, (where Paul had preached three years, Chap. 20. 31. with great oppoſition from the Jews, Chap. 19. 9.——20. 19. 1 Cor. 16. 9.) when they ſaw him in the temple, ſtirred up all the people, and laid hands on him,

28. Crying out, Men of Iſrael, help, (for) this is the man that teacheth all men every where againſt the people (of the Jews,) and (againſt) the law, and this place, and farther (or alſo hath) brought Greeks into the temple, and (by ſo doing) hath polluted this holy place.

29. (And this they ſaid) for (becauſe) they had ſeen before with him in the city, Trophimus, an Epheſian, whom they ſuppoſed that Paul had brought into the temple.

30. And all the city was moved (at theſe words,) and the people ran together, and they took Paul, and drew him out of the temple, (that it might not be defiled with his blood,) and forthwith the doors were ſhut.

31. [i] And as they went about to kill him, tidings came to the chief Captain of the band, (of Romans,) that all Jeruſalem was in an uproar;

32. Who immediately took ſoldiers and centurions, and ran down to them, and when they ſaw the chief Captain and the ſoldiers, they left beating of Paul.

33. Then the chief Captain came near and took him, and commanded him to be bound with two chains, and demanded who he was, and what he had done, (to incenſe them ſo againſt him.)

34. And ſome cried one thing, ſome another, among the multitude; and when he could not know the certainty, for (i. e. by reaſon of) the tumult, he commanded him to be carried into the caſtle (of Antonia.)

35. And when he came upon the ſtairs, ſo it was that he was born of the ſoldiers, for the violence of the people.

36. For the multitude of the people followed after, crying, Away with him, (let him not live, Chap. 22. 22.)

37. And as Paul was (about) to be led into the caſtle, he ſaid to the chief Captain, May I ſpeak to thee? Who ſaid, Canſt thou ſpeak Greek?

38. [k] Art not thou that Egyptian, which before theſe days madeſt an uproar, and leddeſt out into the wilderneſs four thouſand men that were murderers?

39. But Paul ſaid, I am a man which am a Jew of Tarſus, a city of Cilicia, a citizen of no mean city, and I beſeech thee, ſuffer me to ſpeak to the people.

40. And when he had given him licence, Paul ſtood on the ſtairs, and beckoned with the hand to the people (to be ſilent,) and when there was made a great ſilence, he ſpake to them in the Hebrew tongue, ſaying,

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XXI.

Ver. 3. [a] Ἀναφάναντες δὲ τὴν Κύπρον, And diſcerning, or diſcovering Cyprus.] So ἀναφαίνειν γῆν τινα, is to diſcover ſuch a land, and therefore both Stephanus, and from him Scmidius, render theſe words thus, quum cernere Cyprum cœpiſſemus, all other readings or conjectures being by Scmidius confuted.

Ver. 4. [b] Who ſaid to Paul by the Spirit, that he ſhould not go up to Jeruſalem.] If this had been ſaid abſolutely by an afflatus of the Holy Ghoſt, St. Paul could not have acted contrary to it without ſin, in oppoſing what the Holy Ghoſt required, and doing what he did forbid: ſeeing then Paul perſiſts in his reſolution, after what both they here, and the Prophet Agabus had ſaid, ver. 11. theſe words muſt admit of the limitation mentioned in the paraphraſe, that if he would not be there bound and evilly entreated, he ſhould not go up thither: and this was only what the Spirit had before told him; for, ſaith he, I go bound in the Spirit to Jeruſalem, Chap. 20. 22. Or they ſaid to him, the Spirit revealing to them what he was to ſuffer there, they would not have him go up, as alſo did the diſciples of Cæſarea, and they that came up with him from Troas on the ſame account.

Ver. 7. [c] Καὶ διανύσαντες τὸν πλοῦν, And when we had finiſhed our courſe.] There is no need to read here διαναύσαντες, or to think that this phraſe ſignifies only having ſailed; it truly imports, that finiſhing our voyage by ſea, we came from Tyre to Ptolemais; for from thence they went by land to Cæſarea, and from thence to Jeruſalem, and ſo were then finiſhing their navigation, or their courſe by ſea.

Ver. 9. See Additions, No. 26.

Ver. 11. [d] So ſhall the Jews at Jeruſalem bind this man.] Not ſo as to the girdle, for he was only bound with chains; nor ſo as to the binding of his feet, for St. Paul ſeems only to have the chains faſtened to his hands; but ſo as to be as truly and as much bound as Agabus was, not perſonally by the Jews, but by the Romans at their inſtigation, and on their account.

Ver. 16. [e] One Mnaſon, an old diſciple;] Converted by Paul and Barnabas when they were at Cyprus, ſay Grotius and Dr. Hammond, but very improbably; for that they were at Cyprus we find, Acts 13. 4. but there is not a word of him, or any other convert that they made there; the words, an old diſciple, rather induce us to conceive he was one of the diſciples or followers of Chriſt.

Ver. 18. [f] And Paul went in with us to James, and all the elders were preſent.] All the Biſhops of Judea, ſaith Dr. Hammond, without one word to prove it; for there is nothing of this matter in his Note on Philip 1. b. to which he refers, and without all probability; for if there were then any other Biſhops conſtituted in Judea, of which we read nothing in ſcripture, or primitive antiquity, how came they all, unſent for, to be abſent from their flocks, and preſent at Jeruſalem, eſpecially when all the Apoſtles, except James, ſeem to be abſent? More probable, and modeſt, is the obſervation, that here we find James Biſhop of Jeruſalem, οἱ πρεσβύτεροι, his preſbyters or elders, with him, and his ſeven Deacons, mentioned ver. 18. and ſo have reaſon to believe that other celebrated Churches conformed to this model, having Biſhops, Preſbyters, and Deacons.

Ver. 20. [g] And they are all zealous of the law.] The zealots among the believers were urgent for the circumciſion of the Gentiles, and for requiring them to obſerve the law of Moſes, Acts 15. 1, 5. But the whole body of the converted Jews, Biſhops, and elders, as well as the laity, were zealous for the obſervation of their laws and cuſtoms by the Jews, and that becauſe they knew the law of a divine original, and therefore thought they could not throw off the obſervance of it without apoſtaſie from God, as is inſinuated in theſe words, Thou teacheſt ἀποστασίαν, apoſtaſie from Moſes, ver. 21. Thus

(a) Philo

(a) Philo doth inform us, that they believe their laws to be, λογία θεοχρήσα, divine Oracles, and this doctrine they being taught from their infancy, they are ſo afraid of offending againſt them in the leaſt, that they will rather ſuffer the loſs of all human bleſſings, than be guilty of it; yea, ſaith he, (b) they are wont willingly to ſuffer death, as the way to immortality, rather than permit their rites to be violated. (c) Joſephus ſaith the ſame, that they are taught from their cradle to call them Θεῦ δόγματα, the doctrines of God, and therefore continue in the obſervance of them, not adding any thing to them, or taking any thing from them, and when it is neceſſary, dying freely for them. And again, We, ſaith he, (d) think it our only wiſdom and virtue neither to do, or think any thing contrary to our laws; and being perſuaded from the beginning that they are ſuitable to the will of God, we think nothing elſe ſo holy as to keep them, for who can remove any thing of them, or find any thing better? He alſo frequently declares that they were thus addicted to the obſervation of their laws; from an opinion (e) of the eternal puniſhments they muſt expect to ſuffer, who even for fear of death durſt violate them, and from a firm aſſurance of eternal happineſs, if they were faithful to the death in the obſervance of them. It is not therefore to be wondered that men who had imbibed ſuch opinions of them from their infancy, that they derived from God, and knew of no revelation made by him, that they were to ceaſe after the death of their Meſſiah, ſhould be ſtill zealous for them; or that they who thought they could not be removed, or that any better laws could be given, ſhould think them fit to be obſerved; or that they who feared ſuch dreadful evils if they did forſake them, expected ſo great bleſſings from being faithful to them to the death, ſhould be averſe from any doctrine which taught them to apoſtatize from, or to forſake the law of Moſes; and yet it pleaſed God as yet not to convince them of this error by any revelation, or any afflatus of that Spirit which many of them had received: partly, becauſe he ſaw this might have obſtructed the faith even of the little remnant, which belonged to the election of grace; partly, becauſe he knew the time would ſhortly come, when the deſtruction of their temple, and their excluſion from their own land, would render it impoſſible for them to obſerve this law, and the ſeverity of divine judgments on them, would convince them, as it did ſome, that (f) God had utterly caſt off that nation from being any more his people.

Ver. 26, 27. [h] Διαγγέλλων τ ἐκπλήρωσιν τ ἡμερῶν τ ἁγνισμ, Signifying the accompliſhment of the days of purification.] i. e. Not ſignifying that thoſe days were already accompliſhed, for that is contrary to the following verſe, which ſhews that Paul was apprehended in the temple before the ſeven days were ended, or as the Greek may be rendred, as they were about to be accompliſhed; but as Grotius well notes, ſignifying by that action that he would accompliſh ſeven days of purification; even to the time that the ſacrifices were to be offered for them, with whom he had thus joined in this purification; for whereas ſome would evade this, by ſaying, that the ſeven days mentioned ver. 27. were the ſeven days wherein thoſe ſacrifices were to be performed, that is contrary to the law, which appoints the ſame day in which they ſhaved their heads, and ſo concluded their purification, for the oblation of their offerings, Numb. 6. 13, 14.

But here it may reaſonably be enquired how the Apoſtle, who knew that our Saviour by his death had aboliſhed the hand-writing of ordinances, and taken it out of the way, Eph. 2. 15. Coloſſ. 2. 14. that Chriſtians were dead to the law by the body of Chriſt, Rom. 7. 4. that the Jewiſh ſacrifices were only to continue till the time of reformation, Heb. 9. 10. and that Chriſt had taken away theſe ſacrifices by the ſacrifice of himſelf, Chap. 10. 9. ſhould yet ſubmit to theſe rites, and make proviſion for theſe ſacrifies. To this it may be anſwered, (1.) That the vow of Nazaritiſm being only a ſtricter ſort of ſeparation of themſelves from all pollution to the ſervice ſervice of God, and to be holy, and free from all kind of defilement, ſeems very well conſiſtent with the deſign and ſpirit of Chriſtianity. (2.) Obſerve, that the offerings of the temporary Nazarite at the completion of his vow, being a burnt-offering, a ſin-offering, and a peace-offering, Numb. 6. 14. and two of theſe being not ſacrifices appointed to expiate ſin, but offerings of thankſgiving to God, who had enabled them to perform their vow, and of acknowledgment of God's ſovereign dominion; and the advice here being not perſonally to make, or preſent theſe offerings, but only to purify himſelf, καὶ δαπανᾶν ἐπ' αὐτοῖς, to help the Nazarites in bearing ſome part of the charges of theſe offerings; which, ſaith Maimonides, others might help the Nazarites to do; this action ſeems to have little or nothing inconſiſtent with the doctrine of St. Paul. But, 3*dly*, though St. Paul knew theſe conſtitutions were not now obliging in themſelves, yet ſeeing they were rites belonging to that temple, which was yet ſtanding, and God had not, by any expreſs declaration, made to the Jews, prohibited the continuance of them, St. Paul might lawfully ſubmit to this compliance with them, to prevent the ſcandal of the unbelieving Jews, which might divert them from that Chriſtianity they had embraced, and to promote their ſalvation by his preaching Chriſt unto them; for, upon this account he circumciſed Timothy, Acts 16. 3. and to the Jew became as a Jew, that he might gain the Jew, to them that were under the law, as under the law, that he might gain them that were under the law, 1 Cor. 9. 20. Whence we may learn what great condeſcenſion in leſſer matters may be uſed for the promotion of the ſalvation of others.

Ver. 31. [i] And as they went about to kill him;] to wit, with the rebels beating, which, ſaith Dr. Lightfoot here, was ſtripes without meaſure, even unto death, and that without judicial proceeding; and this they did, either as preſuming that he had brought an uncircumciſed perſon within the ſept of the temple, which was, ſaith (g) Philo, preſent death; or, becauſe they conceived he had ſpoken againſt the law and the temple, for which cauſe they before had ſtoned Stephen.

Ver. 38. [k] Art not thou that Egyptian, that before theſe days leddeſt out four thouſand men which were murderers?] It ſeems to be a miſtake in Grotius and others, to ſay, the Egyptian mentioned by Joſephus was later than theſe times; for it is apparent from Joſephus, both in his Antiquities, l. 20. c. 6. and his Hiſtory of the Jewiſh wars, that this Egyptian did this in the firſt or ſecond year of Nero; whereas Paul came not to Jeruſalem till the fourth of Nero. But whereas here are mentioned only four thouſand; and by Euſebius in his Chronicle, three thouſand; Joſephus, and out of him Euſebius, ſay, that he gathered, ὡσὶ τετρμυείας, about thirty thouſand: To this ſome ſay, that in the wilderneſs they increaſed to that number; others, that of this number only four thouſand were ſicarii, murderers; I had rather ſay, that τετρμύειοι, in Joſephus, only ſignifies three thouſand; for he tells us, de bell. Jud. l. 2. c. 23. that the Egyptian fled with a few, and that πλεῖστοι τ μετ' αὐτε, moſt of thoſe that were with him were taken, and yet ſaith, that only four hundred of them were killed, and two hundred were taken. Antiq. l. 20. c. 6.

CHAP. XXII.

1. MEN, brethren, and fathers, hear ye my defence which I make now to you, (Gr. my apology to you for my change from a zealous Jew to an aſſerter of the Chriſtian faith.)

2. And when they heard that he ſpake in the Hebrew tongue to them, (i. e. as an Hebrew of the Hebrews, Philip. 3. 5. and not as an Helleniſtick Jew: ſee Note on Chap. 6. 1.) they kept the more ſilence, and he ſaith, (i. e. ſpake to them thus,)

3. I am verily a man which am a Jew, [a] born, (indeed) in Tarſus, a city in Cilicia, yet (but) brought up in this city [b] at the feet of Gamaliel, (a Phariſee, and celebrated doctor of the law, Acts 5. 34.) and (was) taught (by him) according to the perfect manner, (Gr. ἀκρίβειαν, the exactneſs) of the law of the fathers, (i. e. delivered from our fathers to us,) and was zealous towards (or for the obſervance of the law of) God, as ye all are this day.

4. And I perſecuted (the men of) this way, (i. e. the Chriſtians,) to the death, binding and delivering into priſon, both men and women (profeſſing Chriſtianity, that they might be puniſhed with death, as blaſphemers of the law, Acts 6. 13.

5. As alſo the High-prieſt [c] doth bear me witneſs, (Gr. will, I ſuppoſe, if asked, bear me witneſs) and all the Eſtate (or Senate) of the elders: from whom alſo I received letters to the brethren, and went (Gr. receiving letters went) to Damaſcus, to bring (Gr. καὶ ἄξων, and was about to bring) them which were there, bound to Jeruſalem, to be puniſhed:

6. [d] And

(g) Θεάτρῳ ἀπρὶτῳ ἄνευ καὶ τῶν εἰς τὸ ἔνδον ἀνεῴγμένων παρῤῥήσιας. Legat. p. 791.

6. [d] And it came to paſs, that as I made my journey (on this errand,) and was come nigh to Damaſcus; about noon, ſuddenly there ſhone from heaven a great light round about me, (and them that journeyed with me, Chap. 26. 13.)

7. And (through the terror of it, both) I (and they that were with me,) fell to the ground, (Chap. 26. 14.) And (I) heard a (n articulate) voice, ſaying to me (in the Hebrew tongue, ibid.) Saul, Saul, why perſecuteſt thou me?

8. And I anſwered, Who art thou, Lord? And he ſaid to me, I am Jeſus of Nazareth whom thou perſecuteſt.

9. And they that were with me ſaw indeed the light, (and heard a voice, Chap. 9. 7.) and were afraid; but they heard not the voice of him that ſpake to me.

10. And I ſaid, What ſhall I do, Lord? And the Lord ſaid to me, Ariſe, and go to Damaſcus, and there it ſhall be (farther) told thee of all things which are appointed for thee to do, (and ſuffer for me, Chap. 9. 16.)

11. And when I (being riſen) could not ſee for the glory of that light (which ſhone upon me,) being led by the hand of them that were with me, I came to Damaſcus.

12. And one Ananias, (a Chriſtian indeed, but ſtill) a devout man according to the law; (and) having a good report of (from) all the Jews that dwelt there,

13. Came to me, and ſtood (by me) and ſaid to me, Brother Saul, receive thy ſight, (for the Lord Jeſus hath ſent me to thee for that end, Chap. 9. 17.) and the ſame hour I looked up upon him.

14. And he ſaid, The God of our fathers hath choſen thee, (deſigning) that thou ſhouldſt know his will, and ſee that juſt One (who appeared to thee,) and ſhouldſt hear the voice of his mouth.

15. For (this being done,) thou ſhalt be his witneſs to all men of what thou haſt ſeen and heard:

16. And now, why tarrieſt thou? ariſe, and be baptized, (Gr. ariſing, be baptized,) and (ſo) waſh away thy ſins, [e] calling upon the name of the Lord, (Jeſus, who thereupon will conſecrate thee to, and enable thee for this work, by filling thee with the Holy Ghoſt, Chap. 9. 17.)

17. And (accordingly) it came to paſs, that when I was come again to Jeruſalem, even while I prayed in the temple, (Gr. and it happened to me returning to Jeruſalem, and praying in the temple, that) I was (Gr. to be) in a trance (or ecſtaſy,)

18. And ſaw him (Gr. and to ſee, i. e. perceive him,) ſaying to me, Make haſte, and get thee quickly out of Jeruſalem, for they will not receive thy teſtimony concerning me.

19. [g] And I ſaid, Lord, (it is wonderful that they ſhould not receive my teſtimony, ſeeing) they know that (formerly) I impriſoned and beat in every ſynagogue them that believed in thee.

20. And (that) when the blood of thy martyr Stephen was ſhed, I alſo was ſtanding by, and conſenting to his death, and kept the raiment of them that ſlew him.

21. And (but) he ſaid to me, (Argue not, but) depart; for I will ſend thee far hence to the Gentiles.

22. And they gave him audience to (i. e. until) this word, and (then they) lift (ed) up their voices, and ſaid, Away with ſuch a fellow from the earth; for it is not fit that he ſhould live.

23. And as they cried out, and [h] caſt off their cloaths (as perſons ready to ſtone him;) Chap. 5. 57.) and threw duſt into the air, (to ſhew their rage againſt him.)

24. [i] The chief Captain commanded him to be brought into the caſtle, and bade that he ſhould be examined by ſcourging, that (by his confeſſion) he might know wherefore they cried ſo againſt him.

25. And as they bound him with thongs, (in order to the ſcourging of him,) Paul ſaid to the centurion that ſtood by, Is it lawful for you to ſcourge a man that is a Roman, and (is) uncondemned?

26. When the centurion heard (this,) he went and told the chief Captain, ſaying, Take heed what thou doſt, for this man is a Roman.

27. Then the chief Captain came, and ſaid to him, Tell me, art thou a Roman? (and) he ſaid, Yea.

28. And the chief Captain anſwered, [k] With a great ſum (of money) obtained I this freedom (of a citizen of Rome;) and Paul ſaid, But I was free-born, (viz. in a city which had this privilege, and ſo needed not to acquire it by money.)

29. Then ſtraightway they departed from him which ſhould have examined him; and the chief Captain alſo was afraid, after he knew that he was a Roman; and (he thus feared) becauſe he had bound him, (in order to the ſcourging him.)

30. On the morrow, becauſe he would have known the certainty wherefore he was accuſed of the Jews, he looſed him from his bonds, and commanded the Chief-prieſts, and all their council to appear, and brought Paul down (from the caſtle,) and ſet him before them.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XXII.

Ver. 3. [a] Born in Tarſus,] the metropolis of Cilicia; where they applied themſelves ſo much, ſaith (a) Strabo, to the ſtudy of philoſophy, and all the liberal ſciences, ὡς ὑπερβάλλειν Ἀθήνας καὶ Ἀλεξάνδρειαν, as that they excelled the men of Athens, and of Alexandria, and of all other places dedicated to the ſtudy of thoſe ſciences.

Ibid. [b] At the feet of Gamaliel.] It was, ſaith (b) Pſeud-Ambroſius, the tradition of the ſynagogue to diſpute ſitting; the ſeniors in dignity, in chairs; thoſe next to them on benches; and the laſt, on the pavement, upon matts. For the diſciples, ſaith (c) Buxtorf, ſat at the feet of their maſters, and therefore, by way of advice to others to become diſciples of their wiſe men, they uſed to ſay, pulveriza te pulvere pedum ſapientum, put thyſelf in the duſt of their feet. Accordingly, we find Mary ſitting at the feet of Chriſt, Luke 10. 39. Note alſo, that this Gamaliel was ſo far from being well affected to Chriſtianity, that ſome of the Jewiſh writings ſay, he added to their daily prayers, that which they uſed in their ſynagogues againſt the progreſs of Chriſtianity, called the prayer againſt hereticks. See Lightf. Hor. Hebr. in Matth. 6. 9. By this Gamaliel, ſaith he, was I taught according to the exactneſs of the law of our fathers, being by ſect a Phariſee, and very ſkilful in the traditions pretended to be delivered to us from our fore-fathers, Gal. 1. 14. See Note on Chap. 26. 5. And I was, ſaith he, ζηλωτὴς Θεοῦ zealous towards God, as ye all are: now they being not all of the ſect of the Zealots, which obtained then among them, this phraſe cannot neceſſarily import that St. Paul was of that ſect.

Ver. 5. [c] Doth bear me witneſs.] Μαρτυρεῖ here being not of the preſent tenſe, but of the ſecond future, ſhould be rendred, will witneſs, as in the paraphraſe.

Ver. 6. [d] And it came to paſs, as I made my journey, and was come nigh to Damaſcus, &c.] I have, in the Notes on Chap. 9. of this book, given the expoſition of this hiſtory, and ſhall here eſtabliſh the truth of it, and conſequently of that faith to which he was converted. In order to this end, let us conſider, 1ſt, Who St. Paul was before this wonderful converſion; and here the ſcripture doth inform us, that his education was in the ſchools of Tarſus, from thence he came to the univerſity at Jeruſalem for the ſtudy of divinity, and of the Jewiſh law; his tutor was Gamaliel, a man of ſpecial note among the people: he was by his profeſſion of the moſt ſtrict and the moſt exact ſect of the Phariſees, a ſect of all men, moſt eſtranged from, and enraged againſt Chriſtianity: And for the truth of this St. Paul appeals to the whole Jewiſh nation, in theſe words: My manner of life from my youth, which was at the firſt among mine own nation at Jeruſalem, know all the Jews which know from the beginning, if they would teſtify, that after the moſt ſtrict ſect of our religion, I lived a Phariſee; by practice and employment, he was an early, zealous, and induſtrious perſecutor of the profeſſors of the Chriſtian faith. When Stephen, the firſt martyr, periſhed by law, or by judicial ſentence, Saul was conſenting to his murder; being inflamed by this zeal, he inſtantly proceeds to make great havock in the Church, entring into every houſe, and haling men and women into priſon, breathing out threatnings and ſlaughter againſt the diſciples of the Lord; he obtains letters from the High-prieſt and elders of Jeruſalem, or a commiſſion, if he found any of this way, whether men or women, to bring them bound to Jeruſalem, to be there ſentenced by the ſanhedrim, ver. 2. and in purſuance of this commiſſion, he perſecutes Chriſtians to the death, binding and delivering up unto it men and women, he puniſhed them oft in the ſynagogues, and compelled them to blaſpheme; and being exceeding mad againſt them, he perſecuted them to ſtrange cities. And for the truth of theſe particulars he ſolemnly appeals to thoſe Chief-prieſts and elders, from whom he had received his commiſſion; for of this, ſaith he, the High-prieſts can bear me witneſs, and all the eſtates of the elders. Yea, it was a thing notorious to all that heard him preach that faith which he had formerly deſtroyed; for they were all amazed at it, and ſaid, Is not this he that deſtroyed them that called on this name in Jeruſalem, and who came hither for this intent, that he might bring them bound to the Chief-prieſts? So that he was by education, by profeſſion, by employment, as fully prejudiced againſt the Chriſtian faith as any of the Jews could be. And therefore fore, though he was not, as St. Auſtin and ſome others ſay, converted by an irreſiſtible force, or ſuch a violence as took away the freedom of his will, for then he could not have been diſobedient to the heavenly viſion, ſince there can be no diſobedience to, where there is no reſiſtance of the will of God; yet was it wrought in that ſtupenduous manner, and with that ſignal evidence which could not be reſiſted without wilful ſin, and obſtinate perverſeneſs; for,

1*ſt*, This ſcene was opened with an heavenly light, tranſcending that of the meridian ſun; now this was by the Jews ſtill looked on as the ſymbol of a divine, and glorious preſence, and is in ſcripture often ſtiled Shechinah, the majeſtick preſence, and the glory of God; wherefore both Saul and his companions fell on their faces, not only through the terror of this light, but alſo as it was an indication of the appearance of ſome divine and glorious perſon to them, it being uſual both for the Patriarchs and Jews to fall flat on their faces at ſuch a glorious appearance; for ſo did Abraham, Gen. 17. 3. ſo did the Jews, Lev. 9. 24. ſo did Moſes and Aaron, when the glory of the Lord appeared to them, Numb. 29. 6. ſo did Balaam, Numb. 22. 31. Joſhua, Joſh. 5. 14. Manoah and his wife, Judg. 13. 20. David and all the elders, 1 Chron 21. 16. Ezekiel, Chap. 1. 8. and Daniel, Chap. 8. 17.

2*dly*, He hears a voice directed from this ſhining cloud, and ſaying to him, Saul, Saul, why perſecuteſt thou me? and giving him aſſurance that it was Jeſus of Nazareth who then appeared to him, and who complained that he was perſecuted by him in all the cruelties which he inflicted on the living members of his body; ſo that he could no longer queſtion either the reſurrection, or aſcenſion of the Holy Jeſus, or his advancement to the right hand of glory.

3*dly*, He by the glory of this light is ſtruck ſtark blind, and ſo continues, till one of Chriſt's diſciples comes and lays his hands upon him, and in the name of Jeſus reſtoreth his loſt ſight unto him; he prays to him he had ſo lately perſecuted, and doth in anſwer to that prayer receive a viſion of that very perſon who ſhould reſtore unto him his loſt ſight: He laſtly is baptized in the name of Jeſus, and with that baptiſm receives a plentiful effuſion of the Holy Ghoſt; ſo that he had the greateſt evidence imaginable both of the preſence and the power of the Holy Jeſus, and of the glorious things which were performed in his name, and were vouchſafed to the profeſſors of the faith of Chriſt. Now for the truth of theſe particulars, that in his journey to Damaſcus that glorious light appeared, and a voice ſpake unto him; all his companions, whoſe eyes beheld that light, and whoſe ears heard that voice, could teſtify: That for a ſeaſon he was blind, both they who led him to Damaſcus, and the whole family of Judas where he lodged, muſt be ſufficient witneſſes; that he was afterwards reſtored to his ſight the ſame perſons could atteſt; that he was thereupon converted to the Chriſtian faith, all they who, to their admiration heard him preach that faith, which before he had laboured to deſtroy, muſt know. Moreover, had not this perſecutor been turned to a promoter of the Chriſtian faith, why were the Jews ſo vehemently incenſed againſt him? Why do they lie in wait to kill him, even in the place of his converſion? Why do they watch the gates continually that he might not eſcape their bloody hands? why were the Helleniſts of Jeruſalem ſtill thirſting for his blood? Why do even forty of them bind themſelves under a curſe, that they would neither eat nor drink till they had killed Paul? Why do they with ſuch violence cry out, away with ſuch a fellow from the earth, it is not fit that he ſhould live? Why was it that the Chief-prieſts and elders, and all the multitude of the Jews were ſo deſirous of his death, crying out before all the Roman Governors, that he ought not to live any longer? This ſure is evidence ſufficient that he whom they commiſſionated to perſecute the Chriſtian faith, was now become a convert to, and an induſtrious promoter of it; and hence alſo it muſt be evident, that he who ſpake unto him was no other than the Holy Jeſus; that upon his converſion he received the gifts, and the miraculous operations of the Holy Ghoſt, muſt be apparent from the tongues he ſpake, the miracles he did for confirmation of that faith; that his ſight was recovered by the name of Jeſus, as it depends upon the teſtimony of Ananias, ſo is that Ananias declared to be a devout man according to the law, having a good report of all the Jews that lived at Damaſcus, and ſo a witneſs againſt whom thoſe Jews could make no juſt exception; and ſurely the converſion of a perſon ſo fully prejudiced againſt the Chriſtian faith, to that faith he did ſo vehemently oppoſe and perſecute, by ſuch a viſible appearance of this very Jeſus to him, with ſuch glorious circumſtances, the ſight which was reſtored to him by one of his diſciples, the effuſion of the Holy Ghoſt upon him when baptized, whereby he was enabled to preach the Goſpel with demonſtration of the ſpirit, and with power, muſt give ſufficient demonſtration not only of the truth of his converſion, but alſo of that doctrine which he preached, viz. that Jeſus was the Son of God.

Ver. 16. [c] Ἐπικαλεσάμενος τὸ ὄνομα τ Κυρίου, Calling upon the name of the Lord.] Here Grotius would have us read αὐτῦ, his name, and refer this, not to Chriſt, but to God the Father, mentioned ver. 14. whereas even Woltzogenius here ſaith, we are to underſtand Jeſus Chriſt, of whom here mention is made both in the antecedent, and ſubſequent words; and this is evident from the interpretation of Ananias, who, to prevent ſuch a miſtake, ſaith, ὁ Κύριος, the Lord, even Jeſus, who was ſeen of thee, hath ſent me to thee, Chap. 9. 17. and having told us, that Chriſtians were perſons who called upon the name of Chriſt, ver. 14. we have reaſon to conceive that he adviſeth Paul thus to profeſs, and ſhew he was a Chriſtian; and hence the inference of (d) Chryſoſtom from this place is this, that by theſe words he ſhews, that Chriſt was God, becauſe it is not lawful to invoke any beſides God.

Ver. 18. [f] Καὶ ἰδεῖν αὐτὸν, and to ſee him;] That is, ſaith Grotius, an angel inſtead of Chriſt; but this is plainly contrary to the text, both here and Chap. 26. for here the promiſe made to him is, that he ſhould ſee that Juſt One, and hear the words of his mouth, ver. 14. and there it is ſaid, that he would appear to him to teach him what he was to preach, ver. 16. and therefore here Paul calls him Lord, ver. 19. and elſewhere ſaith, am I not an Apoſtle, have I not ſeen the Lord Jeſus Chriſt? 1 Cor. 9. 1.

Ver. 19. [g] And I ſaid, Lord, they know that I impriſoned and beat in every ſynagogue them that believed in thee; i. e. Lord, my former zeal againſt thoſe that believed in thee is ſo well known to them all, by ſo many remarkable inſtances ſhewed among them, that ſure, they muſt be convinced that it is upon ſome certain, and irreſiſtible grounds of perſuaſion, that I am now become a preacher of that faith I formerly deſtroyed, and perſecuted with ſo great zeal, and ſo I am apt to think, they ſhould more diligently attend to the narrative I give of my wonderful change, and to the reaſons I now offer to confirm the truth of the Chriſtian faith.

Ver. 23. [h] And as they caſt off their cloaths, and threw duſt into the air.] They caſt off their cloaths, as in the inſtance of St. Stephen, Chap. 7. 58. that they might be the more ready to ſtone him; and they threw duſt into the air, to ſhew their rage againſt him, and their abhorrence of him as of a perſon not fit to be converſed with any longer, it being uſual to teſtify this by ſhaking the duſt from their feet, Luke 9. 5. Acts 13. 35.

Ver. 24. [i] The chief Captain commanded μάστιξιν ἀνετάζεσθαι αὐτὸν, to examine him by ſcourging.] Ἀνετάζειν is to examine by way of torment, to find out, or cauſe men to confeſs a crime; ſo in Heſychius and Phavorinus ἐτάζεσθαι is πειράζεσθαι καὶ βασανίζεσθαι, to be puniſhed and tormented, and Ἔτασις is βασανισμὸς, torment. So Gen. 12. 17. καὶ ἔτασεν ὁ Θεὸς τ Φαραὼ ἐτάσμοις, God plagued Pharaoh with great plagues; and Eſth. 2. 22. the King ἤτασε, examined, or tormented the two eunuchs. So the wicked ſay of the righteous, βασάνῳ ἐτάσωμεν αὐτὸν, let us try him with torments, Wiſd. 2. 19. and the author of that book, Chap. 6. 6. that the mighty δυνατῶς ἐτασθήσονται ſhall be mightily tormented; and in the ſon of Syrac, Chap. 23. 9. οἰκέτης ξεδαζόμενος, is a ſervant that was beaten. This examination was uſed by the Romans, and by other nations to force them who were thus ſcourged, to confeſs what they had done, why, and who were conſcious to the fact, as (e) Tacitus ſaith of Herennius Gallus, that he received ſtripes that they might know, quo pretio, & quibus conſciis prodidiſſet exercitum, at what price, and with what confederates he betrayed the Roman army. (3.) They who were thus ſcourged had their arms extended, and their bodies tied to a pillar, as (f) Lypſius ſhews, and thus here they ſeem παρατείνειν, to ſtretch out St. Paul's body to the whip and ſcourge. (4.) This puniſhment of ſcourging, not with rods, but μάστιξι καὶ ἱμᾶσι, with whips and thongs, as here, was not uſed to a Roman, but to ſtrangers only, on which account Cicero, in his oration pro Rabirio, ſpeaks againſt Labienus thus, Porcia lex virgas ab omnium civium corpore amovit, hic miſericors flagella retulit, the Porcian law permits not a citizen to be whipt with rods, but he hath done it with ſcourges; and upon this account St. Paul here ſaith, is it lawful for you to ſcourge a man that is a Roman, and uncondemned? ver. 25.

Ver. 28. [k] With a great ſum of money obtained I this freedom; and Paul ſaid, But I was free-born.] (g) Dion, and Tacitus inform us, that about the time of Claudius the rights of a Roman citizen were bought with little money; but it is more difficult to ſhew how St. Paul came to be free-born; Grotius, and Le Cl. will not have it to be on the account of his being born in Tarſus, that being no Roman colony; but it makes fair for the opinion of thoſe who think Tarſus had obtained this freedom through the favour of ſome Emperor, that (h) Dion Caſſius ſays, that they ſo favoured Julius Cæſar in the civil war, and afterward Octavius, vius, that it obtained the name, Juliopolis, and was honoured with the greateſt privileges, and that Dio Chryſoſtom in his oration ſaith, it received from Cæſar all that honour and power which one could give to his friends and companions; but Carthuſianus, and the gloſs upon 2 Tim. 4. 12. ſay more fully, that they received this freedom becauſe they met the Roman ambaſſadors with peace and crowns, and that then the father of Paul going out with them received the penula or cloak, which St. Paul ſent for, as an enſign or mark of a Roman citizen.

CHAP. XXIII.

1. AND Paul, earneſtly beholding the council, ſaid, Men and brethren, [a] I have lived in all good conſcience before God until this day.

2. And the High-prieſt Ananias commanded them that ſtood by him, to ſmite him on the mouth.

3. Then ſaid Paul to him, [b] God ſhall ſmite thee, thou whited wall, (i. e. thou hypocrite,) for ſitteſt thou (as a magiſtrate) to judge me after the law, and (yet) commandeſt me to be ſmitten contrary to the law, (which ſaith, Thou ſhalt do no unrighteouſneſs in judgment, Lev. 19. 15.)

4. And they that ſtood by, ſaid, Revileſt thou God's High-prieſt?

5. Then ſaid Paul, [c] I wiſt (or knew) not, brethren, that he (who commanded me to be ſmitten) was the High-prieſt, (the knowledge of that might haply have reſtrained me from ſpeaking thus;) for it is written, Thou ſhalt not ſpeak evil of the ruler of thy people.

6. But when Paul perceived (or then Paul knowing) that the one part (of the council, and of the people) were Sadducees, and the other Phariſees (who aſſerted the reſurrection of the body, which the Sadducees denied,) he cried out in the council, Men and brethren, I am a Phariſee, the ſon of a Phariſee, of (i. e. concerning one of their doctrines, viz.) [d] the hope and reſurrection, (i. e. the hope of the reſurrection) of the dead, I am called in queſtion.

7. And when he had ſo ſaid, there aroſe a diſſenſion between the Phariſees, and the Sadducees, and the multitude was divided.

8. (Theſe words of St. Paul being a plain declaration of his oppoſition to the doctrine of the Sadducees;) [e] for the Sadducees ſay, that there is no reſurrection (of the body) neither (is there any permanent) angel, nor ſpirit, but the Phariſees confeſs both (angels and other ſpirits remaining after their ſeparation from the body.)

9. And there aroſe (upon this diſſenſion) a great cry, (or clamour,) and (for) the Scribes which were of the Phariſees part, aroſe and ſtrove (in defence and juſtification of St. Paul,) ſaying, We find no evil in this man, but if a ſpirit, or an angel hath ſpoken to him, let us not fight againſt God.

10. And when there aroſe a great diſſenſion, (Gr. and the diſſenſion growing great,) the chief Captain fearing leſt Paul ſhould have been pulled in pieces of them, commanded the ſoldiers to go down, and to take him by force from among them, and to bring him into the caſtle (of Antonia.)

11. And the night following, [f] the Lord (Jeſus) ſtood by him, and ſaid (to him) Be of good cheer, Paul, for as thou haſt teſtified of me at Jeruſalem, [g] ſo muſt thou bear witneſs alſo (of me) at Rome.

12. And when it was day, certain of the Jews banded together, [h] and bound themſelves under a curſe, ſaying, (with an imprecation) that they would neither eat nor drink till they had killed Paul.

13. And they were more than forty (perſons,) who had made this conſpiracy (againſt him out of zeal to their religion.)

14. And (the better to accompliſh it,) they came to the Chief-prieſts and Elders, (men as zealous for his deſtruction as themſelves, Chap. 25. 15.) and ſaid (to them,) We have bound ourſelves under a great curſe, that we will eat nothing till we have ſlain Paul.

15. Now therefore ye, with the (whole) council, ſignify (your requeſt) to the chief Captain, that he (would) bring him down to you to-morrow, as though you would enquire ſomething more perfectly concerning him: and we, or ever (i. e. before) he come near (to the council,) are ready to kill him.

16. And when Paul's ſiſter's ſon heard of their lying in wait, he went, and entred (Gr. being preſent, and entring) into the caſtle, and (Gr. he) told Paul.

17. [i] Then Paul called one of the centurions to him, and ſaid, Bring this young man to the chief Captain, for he hath a certain thing to tell him.

18. So he took him, and brought him to the chief Captain, and ſaid, Paul the priſoner called me to him, and prayed me to bring this young man to thee, who hath ſomething to ſay to thee.

19. Then the chief Captain took him by the hand, and went (with him) aſide privately, and aſked him, What is it that thou haſt to tell me?

20. And he ſaid, (Certain of) the Jews have agreed to deſire thee, (by interceſſion of the council,) that thou wouldſt bring down Paul to-morrow to the council, as if they would enquire ſomething of him more perfectly:

21. But do not thou yield (this) to them, for there lie in wait for him of them more than forty men, who have bound themſelves with an oath, that they will neither eat nor drink, till they have killed him, and now are they ready, looking for a promiſe from thee, (to bring him down.)

22. So the chief Captain let the young man depart, and charged him (ſaying,) See thou tell no man that thou haſt ſhewed theſe things to me.

23. And he called to him two Centurions, ſaying (to them,) Make ready two hundred ſoldiers to go to Cæſarea, and horſemen threeſcore and ten, and ſpearmen two hundred, at the third hour of the night,

24. And provide them beaſts that they may ſet Paul on, and bring him ſafe to Felix the Governor.

25. And he wrote a letter (to him) after this manner:

26. Claudius Lyſias, to the moſt excellent Governor Felix, ſendeth greeting.

27. This man (whom I ſend to thee) was taken of the Jews, and ſhould have been killed of them; then came I with an army, and reſcued him, having underſtood (Gr. this man taken by the Jews, and being about to be killed by them, I knowing it, with my army reſcued him, underſtanding) that he was a Roman.

28. And when I would have known (Gr. being willing to know) the cauſe wherefore (for which) they accuſed him, I brought him forth into their council:

29. Whom I perceived to be accuſed of (i. e. concerning) queſtions of their law, but to have nothing laid to his charge worthy of death, or of bonds.

30. And when it was told me how that the Jews laid wait for the man, (or when I was told of a conſpiracy that would be againſt him from the Jews,) I ſent (him) ſtraightway to thee, and gave commandment to his accuſers alſo to ſay before thee what they had (to ſay) againſt him. Farewell.

31. Then the ſoldiers, as it was commanded them, took Paul, and brought him by night to Antipatris.

32. (And) On the morrow they left the horſemen to go (on) with him, and (the foot) returned to the caſtle;

33. Who (i. e. which horſemen) when they came to Cæſarea, and delivered the epiſtle to the Governor, preſented Paul alſo before him.

34. And when the Governor had read the letter, he asked of what province he was, and when he underſtood that he was of Cilicia,

35. I will hear thee, ſaid he (to Paul,) when thine accuſers are alſo come, and he commanded him (in the mean time) to be kept in Herod's judgment-hall.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XXIII.

Ver. 1. [a] I Have lived in all good conſcience to this day.] Not as a good conſcience ſignifies a conſcience void of error and offence, for he owns himſelf to have been guilty of great ſin in perſecuting the Church of Chriſt, 1 Tim. 1. 13, 15. but as it ſignifies a conſcience acting according to his perſuaſion that he ought to act; and in this ſenſe when he blaſphemed againſt Chriſt, and perſecuted his Church, he did this even thro' a perſuaſion, that he ought to do many things contrary to the name of Jeſus, Acts 26. 9, 10. Moreover, by ſaying that he lived in all good conſcience, whilſt he profeſſed Judaiſm, and was, as to the righteouſneſs of the law, blameleſs, Phil. 3. 6. he gives them to underſtand, that he left not the religion of the Jews out of any hardſhips which it did require, or any prejudice he had againſt the precepts of it; and by adding that he alſo had lived unblameably in the profeſſion of the Chriſtian faith, he intimates, that he became, and continued a Chriſtian, out of a full conviction that he was bound in conſcience ſo to be, and ſo to act, and that he ſtill ſerved God from a pure conſcience, 2 Tim. 1. 3.

Ver. 3. [b] God ſhall ſmite thee, thou whited wall.] He elegantly compares him to a whited wall, becauſe, as that had a fair out-ſide, but nothing but dirt, ſticks, or ſtones within, ſo had he an outward appearance of a righteous judge, ſitting as one that would paſs judgment according to the law, and yet commanding him to be puniſhed for ſpeaking the truth, and ſo condemning the innocent againſt the law of nature, and of Moſes, which ſaith, thou ſhalt do no unrighteouſneſs in judgment, Lev. 19. 15. And he foretels, that God ſhall ſmite him, by that gift of prophecy which God

God had given him, which came to paſs, he being ſlain, ſaith Chryſoſtom; he periſhing in the ſiege of Jeruſalem, ſaith Dr. Lightfoot; he being depoſed and ſent bound to Rome, ſaith Joſephus, Antiq. l. 20. c. 5. p. 692. E.

Ibid. See Additions, N° 27.

Ver. 5. [c] Οὐκ ἤδειν ὅτι ἔστιν ὁ ἀρχιερεύς, I wiſt not that he was the High-prieſt, for it is written, &c.] I am not willing to own that St. Paul, who doubtleſs was filled with the Holy Ghoſt, and had a ſhare in the promiſe of his aſſiſtance and direction, when they came before Governors, ſhould here be guilty of a tranſgreſſion of the law, eſpecially when I ſuppoſe him acted by a prophetick impulſe; and yet it is not eaſy to put any likely ſenſe upon theſe words, by which we can avoid it. We cannot do it according to our tranſlation, or the obſervation of ſome criticks, that οὐκ ἤδειν ſignifies, I conſidered not; for that ſeems plainly to inſinuate, that if he had well conſidered or weighed his words, he ſhould not have uttered them, as being contrary to the precept, not to ſpeak evil of the ruler of the people; which ſurely is to confeſs that he had by them violated that command, had he conſidered to whom he ſpake. Nor, (2.) according to the expoſition of Dr. Hammond, for though he ſaith he was not truly the High-prieſt, (Note on Luke 3. c.) yet he confeſſeth that Ananias was then ruler of the people, and ſo makes St. Paul to ſay, in his paraphraſe, I confeſs I did amiſs. Dr. Lightfoot and Grotius think as I do, that St. Paul does not go about to excuſe his miſtake, but rather ſaith, I know well enough that God's High-prieſt is not to be reviled, but that this Ananias is an High-prieſt I know not, i. e. I do not own him as ſuch, who hath procured this title by bribery; our (a) celebrated Rabbins having declared that ſuch a one is neither a judge, nor to be honoured as ſuch; in which ſenſe the blind man ſaith of Chriſt to the Phariſees, that he is a ſinner, οὐκ οἶδα, I know not, John 9. 25. and this he might ſay, becauſe the High-prieſt had not then on him thoſe robes peculiar to him, by which he was diſtinguiſhed from other Prieſts. Or, (2.) The latent ſenſe may be this, the prophetick impulſe that was upon me, and inwardly moved me thus to ſpeak, permitted me not to advert that it was the High-prieſt, leſt that law I mention might have reſtrained me from complying with that impulſe; and it is certain from the example of Chriſt ſtiling Herod, Fox, Luke 13. 32. and of St. Paul calling Nero, Lion, 2 Tim. 4. 17. and acknowledged by the Jews, that he who acted as a Prophet was not under the obligation of this precept, as others were, but St. Paul ſpeaks ſo obſcurely, becauſe, ſaith Grotius, he knew he would find no credit for them in this aſſertion.

Ver. 6. [d] For the hope and reſurrection of the dead I am called in queſtion;] That is, for the hope of the reſurrection of the dead; ſo χάρις καὶ ἀποστολὴ, is the grace of apoſtleſhip, ζωὴ καὶ πνοὴ, the breath of life, Acts 17. 25. See Glaſſius, Philol. l. l. 3. tr. de nom. but then it is enquired why St. Paul here ſaith he was called in queſtion for this hope in general, and Chap. 24. 15.——26. 6. repeats the ſame thing when he was only called in queſtion concerning the reſurrection of the Lord Jeſus; now the reaſon of this will appear from this obſervation, that before our Saviour's paſſion, the doctrine which he preached being chiefly levelled againſt the vain traditions of the ſcribes and Phariſees, and his woes denounced againſt them, they ſtill appear in oppoſition to him, the Sadducees being ſcarce ever mentioned as his adverſaries; but after his reſurrection, the teſtimony of the Apoſtles being this, that Chriſt was riſen from the dead, and ſo directly contrary to that which diſtinguiſhed the Sadducees from the Phariſees, we find them moſt forward to oppoſe their teſtimony; then the Sadducees came upon them, being grieved that they preached the reſurrection of the dead through Jeſus, Chap. 4. 1, 2. then the High-prieſt, and all the ſect of the Sadducees, were filled with zeal againſt them, Chap. 5. 17. the ſcribes which were of the ſect of the Phariſees rather ſiding with St. Paul in this matter. Another reaſon why St. Paul thus mixed theſe things together, might be this, that the Apoſtles teſtified the reſurrection of the dead thro' Jeſus, Acts 4. 2. and taught that God would raiſe us up by Jeſus, 1 Theſſ. 4. 14. and ſo the proof of the one, viz. that Chriſt was riſen, was a confirmation of the general reſurrection.

Ver. 8. [e] The Sadducees ſay there is no reſurrection, neither angel nor ſpirit.] That the Sadducees did not believe the reſurrection of the body, as all the (b) ancient Chriſtians plainly do aſſert, ſo this ſcripture, and Matth. 22. 23. plainly teſtify. (2.) They ſaid, that after the giving of the law at leaſt, there was no angel; and that when they are ſaid to appear ſo often in the law of Moſes, they were framed for that purpoſe, and after ceaſed to have any being; for otherwiſe it is hard to conceive how they could believe the law of Moſes, and yet deny that Angels ever did exiſt.

And,

And, (3.) When they are ſaid to deny any ſpirits, this is not to be ſo underſtood as if they denied God to be a ſpirit, or that there was any ſpirit of man within him, but as (c) Joſephus teſtifies, they denied τ̀ ψυχῆς τ̀ διαμονὴν, the permanency of the ſoul after death; and ſo they denied any ſpirits ſeparated from bodies, which could appear, or reveal any thing to them: The Phariſees held the contrary, as is apparent from theſe words, ver. 9. If an angel or ſpirit hath ſpoken to him; of ſuch apparitions, believed by the Apoſtles, we have mention, Luke 24. 37. Matth. 14. 26. and the Jews believed, that Samuel thus appeared to Saul, and Elias frequently to them, the Sadducees denying all ſuch apparitions.

Ver. 11. [f] The Lord ſtood by him;] per angelum, by an angel, ſaith Grotius, without all ground, an angel never being ſtiled ὁ Κύριος, the Lord in the New Teſtament, but only the angel of the Lord, Mat. 1. 20.——2. 13.——19. 21.——28. 2. Luke 1. 11.——2. 9. Acts 5. 19.——8. 26.——12. 7, 23. and ſaid Θάρσει, Παῦλε, be of good courage, Paul; for as when thou teſtifiedſt of me in Jeruſalem, and they went about to kill thee, Acts 9. 29, 30. I delivered thee; ſo will I alſo deliver thee from the Gentiles at Rome, according to my promiſe made to thee, Acts 26. 17.

Ibid. [g] Δεῖ σε καὶ εἰς Ῥώμην μαρτυρῆσαι, Thou muſt teſtify of me at Rome.] Here is an inſtance of a divine appointment, without any neceſſity laid upon the will of Paul; whoſe appeal to Cæſar was only made as an expedient to preſerve him from the rage of the Jews, Acts 25. 11, 24.——28. 19. and ſo was only a matter of prudence, and not of abſolute neceſſity.

Ver. 12. [h] Who bound themſelves under a curſe.] It was a thing too common among the zealots of the Jews, to cut off, without any judicial proceſs, thoſe whom they looked upon as tranſgreſſors of their laws, and enemies to the Jews. (d) Joſephus informs us, that they committed infinite ſlaughters, τὰ μέγιστα κακῶν ἀγαθὰ νομίζοντες, thinking the vileſt things were good, when done by them. And (e) Philo ſpeaks of ſome among them οἱ ὀμόσαντι τρώσειν καὶ σφάξαι, who ſwore to wound and kill others, καὶ ἀνυπερθέτως αὐτὰ δρᾶσαι, and did ſo without delay; and that the Chief-prieſts and Sanhedrim approved of ſuch murders done out of ſuch pernicious deſigns, we learn from their confident addreſs to them, ver. 14, 15. and their conſent to the fact, ver. 20. plainly proving by their lying and murderous diſpoſitions, that they were children of the devil, John 8. 44. See Chap. 25. 2, 3.

Ver. 17. [i] Then Paul called one of the Centurions, &c.] Hence it appears, that even after a promiſe of our ſafety, ſee Note on ver 11. we ought not to neglect any honeſt means of our preſervation, though it be to be accompliſhed by our addreſſes to men alien from the faith.

CHAP. XXIV.

1. AND after five days, Ananias the High-prieſt deſcended with the elders, and with a certain orator, named Tertullus, [a] who informed the governor (Gr. ſhewed themſelves to the governor) againſt Paul.

2. And when he was called forth, Tertullus began to accuſe him, ſaying (to the governor,) [b] Seeing that by thee we enjoy great quietneſs, and that very worthy deeds are done to this nation by thy providence:

3. We accept it always, and in all places, moſt noble Felix, with all thankfulneſs.

4. Notwithſtanding that I be not (Gr. but that I may not be) farther tedious to thee, I pray thee that thou wouldſt hear us of thy clemency a few words:

5. For we have found this man a peſtilent fellow, and a mover of ſedition among all the Jews throughout the world, and a ring-leader of the ſect (called from one Jeſus of Nazareth, the ſect) of the Nazarenes:

6. Who alſo hath gone about to profane the temple (of Jeruſalem, by bringing into it heathens, Chap. 21. 28.) whom we (therefore) took, [c] and would have judged according to our law.

7. But the chief Captain Lyſias came upon us, and with great violence took him away out of our hands;

8. Commanding his accuſers to come to thee, by examining of whom (thou) thyſelf mayſt take knowledge of all thoſe things whereof we accuſe him.

9. And the Jews alſo aſſented (to this accuſation,) ſaying, That theſe things were ſo.

10. Then Paul, after that the governor had beckoned to him to ſpeak, anſwered, Foraſmuch as I know that thou haſt been for many years a judge to this nation, (and ſo canſt not be ignorant of the things belonging to Chriſtianity, or to the Jews,) I do the more chearfully anſwer for myſelf (before thee:)

11. Becauſe that thou mayſt underſtand, that there are yet but twelve days ſince I went up to Jeruſalem to worſhip;

12. And (ſince my coming thither,) they neither found me in the temple, diſputing with any man, nor (have they found me) raiſing up the people, (Gr. making a ſedition among the multitude,) neither in the ſynagogues, or in the city:

13. Neither can they prove (any other of) the things whereof they now accuſe me.

14. But (as for that part of their accuſation, which relates to the ſect of the Nazarenes,) this I confeſs unto thee, that [d] after the way which they call hereſy, ſo worſhip I the God of my fathers, (viz. through Jeſus Chriſt,) believing all things which are written in the law and the Prophets (concerning him.)

15. And I have hope towards God (in God) which they themſelves alſo allow, that there ſhall be a reſurrection from the dead, [e] both of the juſt and of the unjuſt.

16. And herein (therefore) do I exerciſe myſelf to have always a conſcience void of offence, toward God and toward men.

17. Now [f] after many years (from my converſion,) I came to bring alms to my nation, and offerings (from the Chriſtians of Macedonia and Achaia, Rom. 15. 26.)

18. Whereupon certain Jews (that came) from Aſia, found me purified in the temple, (after the manner of their Nazarites, Acts 21. 24, 26. and in compliance with the law of Moſes concerning them that had a vow upon them, as then I had, Chap. 18. 18. but I was there,) neither with multitude, (i. e. concourſe of any to profane the temple, as they imagined, Chap. 21. 23.) nor with (any) tumult (made by me whilſt I was there:)

19. Who (being my accuſers,) ought to have been here before thee, and object (it, as doubtleſs they would do,) if they had ought againſt me.

20. Or elſe let theſe ſame here, (who have aſſented to the accuſation of Tertullus, ver. 9.) ſay, [g] if they have found any evil-doing in me, whilſt I ſtood before the council,

21. Except it be (their pleaſure to accuſe me,) for this one voice, that I cried ſtanding among them, (viz. That) touching the reſurrection of the dead, I am called in queſtion by you this day.

22. And when Felix heard theſe things, [h] having (as being many years a judge of that nation, ver. 9.) more perfect knowledge of that way, (Gr. τῆς ὁδοῦ of the way of Chriſtianity,) he deferred (the farther hearing of) them, and ſaid, When Lyſias the chief Captain ſhall come down (to Cæſarea,) I will know the uttermoſt of your matter; (Gr. I ſhall know the buſineſs between you.)

23. And (then) he commanded a centurion to keep Paul, and to let him have liberty (from his bonds,) and that he ſhould forbid none of his acquaintance to miniſter, or come to him.

24. And after certain days, when Felix came with his wife Druſilla, which was a Jeweſs, (who had left her huſband Azizus King of the Emiſſeni, and had married Felix, an uncircumciſed perſon, contrary to the law;) he ſent for Paul, and heard him concerning the faith of Chriſt.

25. And as he (Paul) reaſoned of [i] righteouſneſs, temperance, (Gr. juſtice and continence,) and (of) judgment to come, Felix trembled, and anſwered, Go thy way for this time; (and) when I have a convenient ſeaſon, I will call for thee.

26. He hoped alſo, (being a taker of bribes,) that money ſhould have been given him of Paul, that he might looſe him (from his chain;) wherefore he ſent for him the oftner, and communed with him.

27. But [k] after two years (not of the government of Felix, ver. 10. but of St. Paul's impriſonment,) Portius Feſtus came into Felix's room, and Felix (being) willing to ſhew the Jews a pleaſure, left Paul bound.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XXIV.

Ver. 1. [a] Οἵτινες ἐνεφάνισαν τῷ ἡγεμόνι, Who informed the Governor.] This word anſwers to the Hebrew יָדַע, as it in Hiphil ſignifies to make known, ſhew, declare, appear; and where a Dative caſe follows, an Acculative is to be underſtood, and is moſt frequently added, as when Moſes ſays, Exod. 33. 13. ἐμφάνισόν μοι σεαυτόν, ſhew to me thyſelf: Thus Eſther, ἐνεφάνισε τῷ βασιλεῖ τὰ ἐπιβουλῆς, ſhewed or declared the conſpiracy to the King, Eſth. 2. 22. So John 14. 21. How is it ὅτι ἡμῖν μέλλεις ἐμφανίζειν σεαυτόν, that thou wilt manifeſt thyſelf to us, and not to the world? And accordingly here, and Chap. 25. 2, 15. ἑαυτὸν is to be underſtood, and the whole ſhould be rendred, who ſhewed or declared themſelves to the Governor againſt Paul; not that they informed the Governor; for the information follows, ver. 5, 6. and ſo our tranſlators have rendred the word, Chap. 23. 22. and Heb. 11. 14.

Ver. 2. [b] Πολλῆς εἰρήνης τυγχάνοντες διὰ σοῦ, Seeing we enjoy great peace by thee, &c.] In this, and in the following verſes, the orator is guilty of ſordid flattery and falſhood; for though it be true that Felix did ſome kindneſs to the Jewiſh nation in delivering them from the thieves and the magicians which infeſted them, as (a) Joſephus doth acknowledge; yet that he otherwiſe was guilty of great injuſtice towards the Jews, and was on that account accuſed before Nero, by the chief of the Jews dwelling at Cæſarea, and had been puniſhed for his wickedneſs, had not his brother Pallas, who was then high in favour with Nero, ſuccoured him, the ſame (b) Joſephus teſtifies. (2.) That St. Paul moved the Jews to ſedition againſt the government, or that he went about to profane the temple, was utterly falſe: See Chap. 21. 28. and ſo was it alſo that they took him to judge him according to their law; for they took him by violence, and drew him out of the temple, and went about to kill him without any judicial proceſs, Chap. 21. 30, 31.

Ver. 6. [c] And would have judged him according to our law.] From this, and from the complaint of violence uſed by Lyſias in taking Paul out of their hands, it ſeemeth to appear, that the Jews ſtill either had, or claimed a power of inflicting death upon capital offenders againſt their law.

Ver. 14. [d] After that way which they call hereſy.] They accuſing St. Paul as a ring-leader τῆς τῶν Ναζαραίων αἱρέσεως, of the hereſy of the Nazarenes, that is, of the Chriſtians, ſo ſtiled both by Jew and Gentile, from their faith in Jeſus of Nazareth: Now the word αἵρεσις bears often an indifferent ſenſe, both in the ſcriptures, as when it is ſaid, Acts 15. 5. that ſome believers were, ἀπὸ τῆς Φαρισαίων αἱρέσεως, of the ſect of the Phariſees; and when the Jews at Rome enquire of Paul, what he thought, περὶ τῆς αἱρέσεως ταύτης, of the ſect of Chriſtians, Chap. 28. 22. and when St. Paul ſaith, in commendation of himſelf, that he lived, κατὰ τὴν ἀκριβεστάτην αἵρεσιν, according to the exacteſt hereſy of their religion, Chap. 26. 5. and alſo in the ancient Jewiſh writers; as when Joſephus gives an account of the three αἱρέσεις, hereſies, or φιλοσοφίας, philoſophical opinions of the Jews, Antiq. l. 18. c. 2. & de bello Jud. l. 2. c. 12. yet ſeeing the prayer againſt the Chriſtians, called Beracoth haminim, if we may credit the Jews, was made by R. Samuel in the time of Gamaliel, and ſeeing (c) Juſtin M. doth inform us, that they very early ſent their emiſſaries to all nations againſt the Chriſtians, repreſenting them as αἵρεσιν ἄθεον καὶ ἄνομον, an atheiſtical and wicked hereſy, we have reaſon to believe, that in this ſenſe they accuſed St. Paul, as a ring-leader of the hereſy of the Nazarenes.

Ver. 15. [e] Both of the juſt and of the unjuſt.] This ſeemeth neceſſarily to be added, becauſe the doctrine of the Phariſees, according to (d) Joſephus, reſtrained the reſurrection to the juſt, condemning the unjuſt to perpetual torments without any reſurrection, the entrance into another body belonging only to the ſouls of the juſt, v. 16. See Additions, N° 28.

Ver. 17. [f] After many years I came to bring alms.] The alms brought by him from Antioch, Chap. 11. 29, 30. cannot be here intended, they being brought by him and Barnabas, but ſeven years at moſt after his converſion; and nothing which he here relates touching purification, and concerning the Jews of Aſia finding him in the temple, happening then, but only when he went up to Jeruſalem with the alms and oblations of the churches of Macedonia and Achaia; then had he his vow upon him, Chap. 18. 18. then did the Jews from Aſia take hold of him in the temple, Chap. 21. 17.

Ver. 21. [g] If they have found any evil-doing in me while I ſtood before the council.] Hence it appears, that he thought not he did evil, in ſaying to Ananias the High-prieſt, God ſhall ſmite thee, &c.

Ver. 22. [h] Ἀνεβάλετο αὐτοὺς τὰ καθ᾽ ὑμᾶς.] It ſeems to me evident that theſe words cannot admit the explication of Grotius and others, that Felix deferred them that he might have a more exact knowledge of Chriſtianity, but that having his reſidence at Cæſarea, where Cornelius the centurion and his friends were converted, where Philip the Evangeliſt dwelt, and where there were many diſciples, Chap. 21. 8, 16. he became thus acquainted with the way of Chriſtianity.

Ver. 25. [i] Περὶ δικαιοσύνης καὶ ἐγκρατείας, καὶ τοῦ κρίματος, of juſtice and continency, and of the judgment to come.] Of this Felix (e) Tacitus informs us, that per omnem ſævitiam & libidinem jus regium ſervili ingenio exercuit, he practiſed all cruelty and luſt in his government, thinking that he might do (f) cuncta malefacta impune, all wickedneſs, without puniſhment. And (g) Joſephus

Joſephus informs us of Druſilla, that, leaving her huſband King Iſis, ſhe married with an Heathen Felix, doing evil, and tranſgreſſing τὰ πατρια νόμιμα, the laws of her country: To perſons ſo unjuſt, St. Paul diſcourſeth very appoſitely of juſtice and chaſtity, againſt which they had both ſo highly offended, as knowing that it was to little purpoſe to ſpeak to them of Chriſtianity till they forſook theſe ſins; and diſcourſing alſo of a judgment to come, where Felix could not hope to eſcape unpuniſhed, as here he did, it is no wonder that Felix trembled; and that Druſilla did not ſo alſo, was an argument of her Jewiſh confidence, that ſhe might then eſcape, by being a daughter of Abraham.

Ver. 27. [k] Διετίας δὲ πληρωθείσης, But after two years.] Baronius is here miſtaken, who conceives that theſe two years are the two firſt years of Nero's reign, whereas indeed he continued Procurator, as Biſhop Pearſon ſaith, till the ſixth year of Nero. The two years plainly relate to St. Paul's being taken by the Jews in the temple; and put into the caſtle by the chief Captain Lyſias, which was, ſaith the ſame Biſhop, in the fourth year of Nero.

CHAP. XXV.

1. NOW when Feſtus was come into the (government of the) province, after three days he aſcended from Cæſarea to Jeruſalem.

2. Then the High-prieſt, and the chief of the Jews informed him againſt Paul, and beſought him;

3. And deſired (Gr. deſiring this) favour againſt him, that he would ſend for him to Jeruſalem, (they) [a] laying wait in the way to kill him.

4. But Feſtus anſwered, that Paul ſhould be kept at Cæſarea, and that he himſelf would depart ſhortly thither.

5. Let them therefore, ſaid he, which among you are able, go down with me, and accuſe this man, if there be any wickedneſs in him, (for which he ought to be puniſhed by the Roman laws.)

6. And when he had tarried among them more than ten days, he went down (from Jeruſalem) to Cæſarea, and the next day ſitting in the judgment-ſeat, (he) commanded Paul to be brought (before him.)

7. And when he was come, the Jews which came down from Jeruſalem ſtood round about, and laid many and grievous complaints againſt Paul, which they could not prove,

8. While he anſwered for himſelf, (Gr. he apologizing, that) [b] neither againſt the law of the Jews, (Acts 28. 17.) nor againſt the temple, (Chap. 24. 12.) nor yet againſt Cæſar, have I offended any thing at all.

9. But Feſtus (being) willing to do the Jews a pleaſure, anſwered Paul, and ſaid, Wilt thou go up to Jeruſalem, and there be judged of theſe things before me?

10. Then ſaid Paul, I ſtand at Cæſar's judgment-ſeat, where I (being a Roman) ought to be judged; to the Jews have I done no wrong, as thou very well knoweſt; (they being now unable to prove any charge they lay againſt me, ver. 7.)

11. For if I be an offender, (Gr. if indeed I have been unjuſt,) or have committed any thing worthy of death, I refuſe not to die; but if there be none of theſe things whereof they accuſe me (true, or puniſhable by death,) [c] no man may deliver me to them (who wait for an opportunity to kill me, ver. 3.) [d] I appeal unto Cæſar.

12. Then Feſtus, when he had [e] conferred with the council, anſwered, Haſt thou (or, thou haſt) appealed to Cæſar, (and therefore) unto Cæſar ſhalt thou go.

13. And after certain days, King Agrippa (Tetrarch of Galilee) and Bernice (his ſiſter,) came to Cæſarea to ſalute Feſtus.

14. And when they had been there many days, Feſtus declared Paul's cauſe to the King, ſaying, There is a certain man left in bonds by Felix;

15. About whom, when I was at Jeruſalem, the Chief-prieſts and the Elders of the Jews informed me, deſiring to have judgment (of death, ver. 16.) againſt him.

16. To whom I anſwered, (Gr. that) [f] It is not the manner of the Romans to deliver any man to die, before that he who is accuſed have the accuſers face to face, and have licence to anſwer for himſelf, concerning the crime laid againſt him.

17. Therefore when they were come hither, without any delay, on the morrow I ſat on the judgment-ſeat, and commanded the man to be brought forth.

18. Againſt whom when the accuſers ſtood up, they brought no accuſation of ſuch things as I ſuppoſed (they would, no charge of ſedition or of offence againſt the Roman laws;)

19. But had certain queſtions againſt him of their own ſuperſtition, and of (i. e. concerning) one Jeſus, who was dead, whom Paul affirmed to be alive (again;)

(e) Hiſt. l. 5. p. 619. (f) Annal. 12. p. 263. (g) Antiq. Jud. l. 23. c. 6. p. 693.

20. And becauſe I doubted (whether I ought to judge) of ſuch manner of queſtions, I aſked him, whether he would go to Jeruſalem, and there be judged of theſe matters.

21. But when Paul had appealed to be reſerved to the hearing of Auguſtus, I commanded him to be kept till I might ſend him to Cæſar.

22. Then Agrippa ſaid to Feſtus, I would alſo hear the man myſelf; To-morrow, ſaid he, thou ſhalt hear him.

23. And on the morrow when Agrippa was come, and Bernice, g with great pomp, (or retinue,) and was entred into the place of hearing, with the chief Captains, and principal men of the city, at Feſtus's commandment Paul was brought forth.

24. And Feſtus ſaid, King Agrippa, and all (ye) men which are here preſent with us, ye ſee this man about whom all the multitude of the Jews have dealt with (or beſought) me, both at Jeruſalem, and alſo here, crying (out,) that he ought not to live any longer.

25. But when I found that he had committed nothing worthy of death, and that he himſelf hath appealed to Auguſtus, I have determined to ſend him.

26. Of whom I have no certain thing to write to my Lord; wherefore I have brought him forth before you, and eſpecially before thee, O King Agrippa, that after examination had (of him,) I might have ſomewhat to write.

27. For it ſeemeth to me unreaſonable to ſend a priſoner, and not withal to ſignify the crimes laid againſt him.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XXV.

Ver. 3. [a] Laying wait in the way to kill him.] We need not wonder that the High-prieſt, and chief of the Jews, ſhould be thus bloody-minded againſt Paul, when about this time they were arming one againſt the other. For at the latter end of the Procuratorſhip of Felix, (a) Joſephus informs us, that there was, τῆς ἀρχιερωσύνης σάσις πρὸς τὸν ἱερεῖς, καὶ τοὺς πρώτους τῆς πολίτους τῶν Ἱεροσολυμιτῶν, a ſedition betwixt the High-prieſts, and the Prieſts, and chief men of Jeruſalem, and that every one of them gathered a band of the moſt bold, and ſeditious men, and became a leader of them; and that they reviled, and threw ſtones at one another, and that the High-prieſts were ſo impudent, as to ſend their ſervants to take away the tithe-corn of the Prieſts, ſo that ſome of them periſhed for hunger.

Ver. 8. [b] Neither againſt the law of the Jews.] For he had committed nothing againſt the cuſtoms of their fathers, Chap. 28. 17. and to the Jew he became as a Jew, 1 Cor. 9. 20. nor againſt the temple, for he had not profaned it, or raiſed any tumult in it, Chap. 24. 18. nor againſt Cæſar, whom he commanded all men to obey as God's ordinance, Rom. 13.

Ver. 11. [c] Οὐδείς με δύναται χαρίσασθαι αὐτοῖς, No man can deliver me to them;] i. e. No man can juſtly do it; I being not only an innocent perſon, having done them no wrong, ver. 10. but alſo a Roman, and therefore one who ought to be judged not by them, or their laws, but at the tribunal of Cæſar by the Roman laws. So the word δύναται is often uſed to ſignify that only which may be lawfully done, as, v. g. Exod. 8. 26. οὐ δυνατὸν οὕτω ποιεῖν, it is not meet ſo to do, Deut. 12. 17. οὐ δύνασαι φαγεῖν, thou mayeſt not eat of it within thy gates, Acts 10. 47. τὶς δύναται; who can forbid water? See the Note on Mark 2. 19.

Ibid. [d] I appeal unto Cæſar.] Hence it appears that St. Paul owned even Nero for his Prince and ſupreme Governor upon earth; and, (2.) That, in caſes of neceſſity, Chriſtians may have recourſe even to Heathen judicatures, eſpecially when they have to do with perſons who are aliens from the faith.

Ver. 12. [e] Συλλαλήσας μετὰ τοῦ συμβουλίου, Conferring with the council;] Not with the council of the Jews, as Chryſoſtom conceives, for they never would have adviſed him to admit of St. Paul's appeal, or to ſend him to Cæſar out of their reach; but, as Grotius ſaith, with his own Roman council which aſſiſted him.

Ver. 16. [f] It is not the manner of the Romans to deliver any man to die before——he have his accuſers face to face, &c.] Thus (b) Philo ſaith of them, that they yielded themſelves to be common judges, hearing equally the accuſers, and defendants, and condemning no man unheard. And Appian in Grotius ſaith the ſame; this alſo was the law of the Jews, to which Nicodemus appealed in the caſe of Chriſt, John 7. 51.

Ver. 23. [g] Μετὰ πολλῆς φαντασίας, with great pomp;] i. e. With a great train of attendants, as the word ſignifies in Laertius, when he ſaith, (*) Bion had φαντασίαν ἀκολουθοῦσαν αὐτῷ, a great train of of mariners following him; or with great ſplendor, as when (c) Athenion was carried to Athens in a chair of ſtate with ſilver and purple hangings, the people ran out to ſee the ſight, no Roman ever entring the city ἐν τοσαύτῃ φαντασίᾳ, in ſo great ſplendor; though after there is mention of many ſervants going before, and following after him, which makes for the firſt ſenſe. CHAP. XXVI.

1. THen Agrippa ſaid to Paul, Thou art permitted to ſpeak for thyſelf. Then Paul ſtretched forth the hand (to the people to keep ſilence,) and (then he) anſwered for himſelf, (ſaying,)

2. [a] I think myſelf happy, (i. e. I judge it no ſmall advantage to me, and my cauſe,) King Agrippa, becauſe (that) I ſhall anſwer for myſelf this day before thee, touching all the things whereof I am accuſed of the Jews:

3. Eſpecially, becauſe I know thee to be (not only a perſon of a good temper, and ſedate mind, but alſo) expert in all cuſtoms and queſtions which are among the Jews; wherefore I beſeech thee to hear me patiently.

4. My manner of life from my youth, which was at the firſt among my own nation at Jeruſalem, (where I was bred up at the feet of Gamaliel, Chap. 22. 3.) know all the Jews,

5. Who knew (this of) me from the beginning, if they would teſtify (the truth of me,) that [b] after the moſt ſtraiteſt ſect of our religion, I lived a Phariſee.

6. [c] And now I ſtand, and am judged for the hope (ἵστημι κρινόμενος ἐπ' ἐλπίδι, I ſtand queſtioned about the hope) of the promiſe made of God to our fathers, (I ſaying, that it is accompliſhed by the coming of Jeſus Chriſt; and that this is proved by the reſurrection of him from the dead; they denying his reſurrection, and therefore expecting the accompliſhment of this promiſe, by the coming of ſome other perſon to be their Meſſiah:)

7. [d] To which promiſe (of the Meſſiah,) our twelve tribes inſtantly (or earneſtly) ſerving God day and night, hope (yet) to come; for which hope's ſake, (περὶ ἧς ἐλπίδος, concerning which hope,) King Agrippa, I am accuſed of the Jews, (for ſaying, that Jeſus whom they have crucified, God hath raiſed from the dead, and that he is the hope of Iſrael, Chap. 28. 10. ſome of them ſaying on the contrary, that there is no reſurrection of the dead at all; others denying that Chriſt is riſen from the dead.)

8. (Of the firſt I enquire,) Why ſhould it be thought (τὶ κρίνεται, why is it judged) a thing incredible with you, that God (infinite in power and wiſdom,) ſhould (be able to) raiſe the dead?

9. (As for the ſecond, I was once of their opinion; for) I verily thought with myſelf, that I ought to do many things contrary to the name of Jeſus of Nazareth, (i. e. in oppoſition to thoſe who believed, that he was the Chriſt, and that he was riſen from the dead.)

10. Which thing I alſo did in Jeruſalem, and many of the ſaints, (i. e. the Chriſtians,) did I ſhut up in priſon, having received authority from the Chief-prieſts (and Elders of the Jews ſo to do, Chap. 22. 5.) and when they were put to death, I gave my voice againſt them, (i. e. I, in the inſtance of St. Stephen, approved of the ſentence, Chap. 8. 1.)

11. And I puniſhed them oft in every ſynagogue (where I found any of them,) and (by theſe puniſhments) compelled them to blaſpheme (the name of Jeſus;) and being exceedingly mad againſt them, I perſecuted them, (forcing them to fly from Judea,) even to ſtrange cities.

12. Whereupon, as I went to Damaſcus (the metropolis of Syria,) with authority and commiſſion from the Chief-prieſts, (that if I found any of them there in the Jewiſh ſynagogues, I ſhould bring them bound to Jeruſalem, Chap. 9. 2.)

13. At mid-day, O King, I ſaw in the way a light from heaven, above the brightneſs of the ſun, ſhining round about me, and (about) them which journeyed with me:

14. And when we were all fallen to the earth, I heard a voice ſpeaking to me, and ſaying, in the Hebrew tongue, Saul, Saul, why perſecuteſt thou me? It is (or will be) hard for thee to kick againſt the pricks (i. e. to fight againſt God. See Chap. 9. 5.)

15. And I ſaid, Who art thou, Lord? And he ſaid, I am Jeſus (of Nazareth) whom thou perſecuteſt:

16. But ariſe, and ſtand upon thy feet; for I have appeared to thee for this purpoſe, to make thee a miniſter and a witneſs both of thoſe things which thou haſt ſeen (now,) and of thoſe things in which (i. e. for the diſcovery of which) I will appear to thee.

(c) Athen. l. 5. p. 212. C.

17. (And in teſtifying of them, I will be with thee) delivering thee from the people (of the Jews,) and (of) the Gentiles, to whom now I ſend thee,

18. To open their (blind) eyes, and to turn them from darkneſs to light, and from the power of Satan unto God, that they may receive forgiveneſs of ſins, and (an) inheritance among them that are ſanctified by faith that is in me.

19. Whereupon, O King Agrippa (having had this convincing teſtimony of the reſurrection of this Jeſus,) [e] I was not diſobedient to the heavenly viſion;

20. But ſhewed firſt to them of Damaſcus, (where this viſion happened,) and (then to them) at Jeruſalem, and (ſo) throughout all the coaſts of Judea, and then to the Gentiles, that they (of the Jews) ſhould repent (of their great ſin in crucifying this Jeſus,) and (ſhould) turn to God, and do works meet for (Gr. meet works of) repentance.

21. For theſe cauſes the Jews caught me, (as I was,) in the temple, and went about to kill me, (Chap. 21. 31.)

22. Having therefore obtained help of God, (according to the promiſe made by Jeſus, ver. 17.) I continue to this day witneſſing both to ſmall and great, (the reſurrection of Jeſus; and in this,) ſaying none other things than thoſe which the Prophets and Moſes did ſay ſhould come (to paſs,)

23. (Viz.) [f] That Chriſt (the Meſſiah of the Jews,) ſhould ſuffer, and that he ſhould be the firſt that ſhould riſe from the dead, (ſo as to return no more to death, Acts 13. 34.) and (that he) ſhould ſhew light to the people, and to the Gentiles.

24. And as he thus ſpake for himſelf, Feſtus ſaid with a loud voice, Paul, thou art beſide thyſelf, much learning doth make thee mad, (or tranſport thee.)

25. But he ſaid, I am not mad, moſt noble Feſtus, but I ſpeak forth the words of truth and ſoberneſs (or of a ſound mind.)

26. For the King knoweth of theſe things, before whom alſo (πρὸς ὃν καὶ, to whom therefore) I ſpeak freely (of them;) for I am perſuaded, that none of theſe things (concerning the reſurrection of Chriſt, or even my converſion,) are hidden from him; for this thing was not done in a corner, (but was of publick cognizance.)

27. King Agrippa, believeſt thou the Prophets, (to whoſe teſtimonies I appeal for the truth of Chriſt's ſufferings and his reſurrection? ver. 22, 23.) I know that thou believeſt (them, to them therefore I remit thee.)

28. Then Agrippa ſaid to Paul, [g] Almoſt thou perſuadeſt me to be a Chriſtian.

29. And Paul ſaid, I would to God that not only thou, but alſo all that hear me, this day, were both almoſt, and altogether ſuch as I am, except theſe bonds; (i. e. as to faith in Chriſt, though not as to the bond I ſuffer for it.)

30. And when he had thus ſpoken, the King roſe up, and the Governor, and Bernice, and they that ſat with them.

31. And when they were gone aſide, they talked between themſelves, ſaying, This man doth nothing worthy of death, or of bonds, (by the Roman laws, by which he is to be judged.)

32. Then ſaid Agrippa unto Feſtus, This man might have been ſet at liberty, if he had not appealed to Cæſar, (to whoſe judgment he is therefore now to be reſerved.)

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XXVI.

Ver. 2. [a] Ἡγημαι ἐμαυτὸν μακάριον, I count myſelf happy.] Though this phraſe may ſignify no more than, I look upon it as a conſiderable advantage, as when we call a lucky man, an happy man, and ſo the word μακάριος and felix are often uſed in profane authors, and אשר in the Hebrew, as when Leah calls her ſon Aſhur, Gen. 30. 13. ſaying, I am happy, for the daughters ſhall call me happy; and Jeremy enquires, wherefore are all they happy, i. e. proſperous, who deal very treacherouſly? See Pſal. 127. 5.——128. 3.——137. 8, 9. Yet I believe the Apoſtle here reſpects not any perſonal advantage, but the benefit Chriſtianity might receive from what he was to ſay before a perſon ſo able to judge of it.

Ver. 5. [b] Κατὰ τὴν ἀκριβεστάτην αἵρεσιν, According to the exacteſt ſect of our religion, I lived a Phariſee.] That they were ſo according to the opinion of the Jews (a) Joſephus teſtifies, by ſaying, this was a ſect of the Jews, which was thought ἐυτεχνότερον εἶναι τῶν ἄλλων, καὶ τοῦ νόμου ἀκριβέστερον ἀφηγεῖσθαι, to be more pious than others, and more exact in the interpretation of their laws, that they did (b) μάλα φρονεῖν ἐπ' ἀκριβείᾳ τῶν πατρίων νόμων, eſteem highly of themſelves for their exactneſs in the law, and that they were the ſect οἱ περὶ τὰ πάτρια νόμιμα δοκοῦσι τῶν ἄλλων ἀκριβείᾳ διαφέρειν, who ſeemed to excel others in their exact knowledge of the cuſtoms of their fathers, (c) καὶ οἱ δοκοῦντες μετ' ἀκριβείας ἐξηγεῖσθαι τὰ νόμιμα, and to be moſt exact in the the interpretation of their laws: And indeed, comparatively, they seem to have been the exactest of their celebrated sects; for the Sadducees, by denying the resurrection and all future punishments, took away the rewards of a virtuous, and gave liberty to a vicious life. The Essens, being Jews by nature, were guilty of a great schism, in separating themselves wholly from the worship of the temple, and of equal disobedience in not bringing their (d) sacrifices to the temple, and of idolatry in making prayers, or (e) religious addresses to the sun, as Josephus, who lived three years among them, testifies, that πρὸς αὐτὸν refers to ἥλιον; but seeing the same Josephus saith, that they were πρὸς τὸ θεῖον ἰδίως δοσεβεῖς, especially religious towards God, and brings the words following as a proof of that, I think these prayers were offered rather to God than to the sun. See the Note on Col. 2. 22, 23.

Ver. 6, 7. [c] And now I stand, and am judged for the hope of the promise made to our fathers.] Why St. Paul here speaks, as if he were questioned touching the article of the resurrection of the dead in general, see the Note on Chap. 23. 6. and why he speaks of the twelve tribes, see Note on James 1. 1. but whereas he stiles the resurrection, The promise made to their fathers, and saith, the twelve tribes served God in expectation of it, this needs a little explication because many deny that any such promise was made to the fathers, or can be found in the Old Testament. I therefore assert,

1*st*, That it is evident from the history of the Maccabees, and other writings, both sacred and profane, that the Jews then, and the Pharisees afterward, did believe the resurrection of the body. Thus the second son saith, 2 Maccab. 7. 9. The King of the world shall raise us up, who have died for his laws, unto everlasting life, εἰς αἰώνιον ἀναζίωσιν ζωῆς ἡμᾶς ἀναστήσει· the third and fourth express their hope to be raised up by God to life again, ver. 11, 14. And the mother of them bids them not doubt, but the Creator of the world would give them breath and life again. That the Pharisees believed this doctrine, we learn not only from Josephus, but from their satisfaction that Christ had put the Sadducees to silence in that matter, Matth. 22. 34. and for ther stickling for St. Paul himself upon this declaration, that he was called in question for the hope of the resurrection, Acts 23. 9.

2*dly*, That they conceived this hope was built upon the covenant of God made with them, and the promise of God made to them, is also evident from their words; for the last of these seven martyrs is introduced, saying, Our brethren are dead under God's covenant of everlasting life; ver. 36. (f) Josephus introduceth the mother of these seven children, comforting her dying sons with those words of Moses, I kill, and I make alive, Deut. 32. 39. and it is your life and length of days, ver. 47. and that of Solomon, Prov. 3. 18. Wisdom is a tree of life to them that lay hold on her, and that of Ezekiel, Chap. 37. 3. Shall these dry bones live?

3*dly*, They had just reason both from the law and Prophets, for this hope; from the law, for thence our Saviour proves the resurrection of the body, Matth. 22. 31, 32. See the Note there. And that our Saviour did not there argue for the felicity of the souls of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob only, is evident from this, that he argues for something future which should happen to them ὅταν ἀναστῶσι, when they shall arise; whereas in truth, and in the opinion of the Jews themselves, the souls of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob were with God already. So (g) Josephus saith, that they who die for God, ζῶσι τῷ Θεῷ, ὥσπερ Ἀδὰμ, Ἰσαὰκ, καὶ Ἰακὼβ, καὶ πάντες οἱ Πατριάρχαι, shall live with God, as do Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and all the Patriarchs.

2. From the Prophets; the words of Daniel being these, Many of them that sleep in the dust shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to everlasting confusion, Chap. 12. 2. Where note, that though men in misery and affliction are sometimes said to sit, or dwell in the dust, Isa. 26. 19. —— 27. 1. Neh. 3. 18. yet οἱ καθεύδοντες, they that sleep in the dust, doth always signify, they that die, as Job 7. 21.—— 20. 11.——21. 6. and hath no other sense in Scripture. And, (2.) That though men that sit in the dust may be raised out of that afflicted, into a very comfortable and pleasant state, yet seeing they must shortly die, they can in no propriety of speech be said to arise to life eternal. (3.) From the law and the Prophets, for saith St. Paul, Chap. 24. 14, 15. I worship the God of our fathers, believing all things that are written in the law and the Prophets, having hope that there shall be a resurrection both of the just and the unjust, and here, ver. 23.

I say

(f) De Maccab. c. 18. p. 1101, 1102. (g) Ibid. c. 17. p. 1100.

I ſay nothing but what is contained in the law and the prophets, that Chriſt ſhall be the firſt ἐξ ἀναστάσεως νεκρῶν, of thoſe that riſe from the dead, plainly inſinuating, that the reſurrection of others after Chriſt, was contained in the law and the Prophets. Hence the Apoſtle tells us, that the champions of the Jewiſh church all died in faith in expectation of a better reſurrection, Heb. 11. 35, 39.

And, laſtly, That this hope was rightly built upon the covenant of God, that he would be their God, Gen. 17. 7. is evident, for that to be the God of Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob, is to be that God who will raiſe them from the dead, we learn from our Saviour's argument, Matth. 22. 32. and that he was therefore called their God, becauſe he had prepared for them an heavenly city, from Heb. 11. 15. and from his promiſe made to the ſpiritual ſeed of Abraham, according to thoſe words of the Apoſtle, Gal. 3. 29. If ye are Chriſt's, then are ye Abraham's ſeed, and heirs according to the promiſe. See the Note there. And, (3.) From the promiſe of entring into his reſt, Heb. 4. 3, 9. See the Note there. And, (4.) From the promiſe of a Meſſiah, it being one of their fundamental articles, that their Meſſiah ſhall raiſe the dead, and bring them into paradiſe. See Maimonides Expl. 10. Tract. Sanhedrim, p. 136. and Dr. Pocock's Notes, p. 109, 110. And laſtly, this ſeems evident from the nature of the thing; for God being the Father of our ſpirits, which are immortal, and muſt live for ever, it is abſurd to think his promiſes to the obedient ſhould relate only to this preſent life, and yet he ſhould engage them to be faithful to the death, and ſuffer here the worſt of evils for his ſake; ſince, if they had hope only in this life, they muſt of all men be moſt miſerable, 1 Cor. 15. 19.

Ver. 7. [d] To which promiſe τὸ δωδεκάφυλον ἡμῶν, our twelve tribes——hope to come.] That ſome of the twelve tribes remained in, and ſome of them returned to the land of Iſrael, ſee proved, Note on James 1. 1. Why St. Paul, ſaith he, was queſtioned touching this hope of the reſurrection in the general; when he was only queſtioned concerning the reſurrection of Chriſt from the dead, ſee the chief reaſon, Note on Chap. 24. 15. To which add, that St. Paul connects theſe things thus, becauſe in the truth of the thing, and according to the teſtimony of the Apoſtles, and even the ſentiments of the Jews, the reſurrection was to be effected by the Meſſiah, or by Jeſus Chriſt, ſaying, that God would raiſe us up by Jeſus, 1 Theſſ. 4. 4. and that God had appointed him to be the judge both of the quick and dead, Acts 10. 47. and had given aſſurance that he would judge all men by him, in that he had raiſed him from the dead, Acts 17. 31. he being riſen as the firſt that ſhould riſe from the dead, ver. 23. of this Chapter, or the firſt-fruits of them that ſleep, 1 Cor. 15. 22. Hence is it ſo expreſly noted, Chap. 4. 1, 2. that the Sadducees were grieved, not that the Apoſtles declared that Jeſus was the Chriſt, or that he was riſen, but that they taught through Jeſus, the reſurrection from the dead. Note alſo, that he repreſents this as the hope of the twelve tribes, though it was denied by the Sadducees; becauſe, as (h) Joſephus informs us, ὡς ὀλίγοις ἀνδράσι τούτοις ὁ λέγος ἀρέσκοι, they were but few, and theſe few, when they deſigned to be magiſtrates, were forced to profeſs the doctrine of the Phariſees, διὰ τὸ μὴ ἄλλως ἀνέχεσθαι τὸν δῆμον τοῖς παλαίοις, ſeeing the common people would not otherwiſe have endured them. And that the Apoſtle here ſpake with reſpect to the doctrine of the Sadducees appeareth from the following words, ver. 8. Why ſhould it be judged a thing incredible that God ſhould raiſe the dead? it being only the ſect of the Sadducees which held this incredible, and that which did exceed even the power of God, Matth. 22. 29.

Ver. 19. [e] I was not diſobedient to the heavenly viſion.] For, ſaith Grotius, though this viſion gave him ſufficient conviction of the truth, it left it in his power to obey, or diſobey it, as hath been proved in the Appendix to the ſixth chapter of the ſecond Epiſtle to the Corinthians.

Ver. 23. [f] Εἰ παθητὸς ὁ Χριστὸς, That Chriſt hath ſuffered.] Τὸ εἰ, ἀντὶ τοῦ ὅτι. Εἰ here being put for ὅτι, that, ſaith Oecumenius. See Note on 1 Tim. 5. 10. Heb. 3. 11.

Ver. 28. [g] Ἐν ὀλίγῳ με πείθεις, Almoſt thou perſuadeſt me to be a Chriſtian. So Plato, ἴσων ἂν ἐγὼ περὶ τούτου ἐν ὀλίγῳ τοῦτο, I almoſt knew the ſame touching the poets; and ἐν ὀλίγῳ is interpreted σχεδὸν, Schol. Ariſtoph. p. 837. And that they who interpret theſe words thus, wouldſt thou in ſo little time perſuade me to be a Chriſtian? muſt miſtake, is evident from the following words of the Apoſtle, I would to God, that not only ἐν ὀλίγῳ, ἀλλ' ἐν πολλῷ, all that hear me were not almoſt only, but altogether ſuch as I am.

CHAP.

CHAP. XXVII.

1. AND when it was determined that we ſhould ſail into Italy, they delivered Paul, and certain other priſoners, to one named Julius, a centurion of Auguſtus's band, (i. e. of the band of the legion of Auguſtus.)

2. And entring into a ſhip of Adramyttium, (a ſea-town of Myſia,) we lanched (forth,) meaning to ſail by the coaſts of Aſia, [a] one Ariſtarchus a Macedonian of Theſſalonica, (and a companion of Paul,) being with us.

3. And the next day we touched at Sidon, and (there) Julius courteouſly entreated Paul, and gave him liberty to go to his friends to refreſh himſelf.

4. And when we had lanched from thence, we ſailed under Cyprus, becauſe the winds were contrary (to us.)

5. And when we had ſailed over the ſea of Cilicia, and Pamphylia, we came to Myra, a city of Lycia;

6. And there the centurion found a ſhip of Alexandria, ſailing into Italy, and he put us therein.

7. And when we had ſailed ſlowly many days, and ſcarce were come over againſt Cnidus, the wind not ſuffering us (to go on directly,) we ſailed under Crete, over againſt (the promontory of) Salmone:

8. And hardly paſſing by it, came to a place which is called the Fair Havens, nigh whereunto was the city of Laſea.

9. Now when much time was ſpent, and when [b] ſailing was now dangerous, becauſe the (yearly) faſt (of expiation) was now already paſt, Paul admoniſhed them,

10. And ſaid to them, Sirs, I perceive that this voyage will be with hurt, and much damage, not only of the lading and ſhip, but alſo of our lives:

11. Nevertheleſs the Centurion believed the maſter, and the owner of the ſhip, more than thoſe things which were ſpoken by Paul.

12. And becauſe the haven was not commodious to winter in, the moſt part (of the paſſengers) adviſed (us) to depart thence alſo, if by any means they might attain to Phœnice to winter (there,) which (Phœnice) is an haven of Crete, and lieth toward the ſouth-weſt, and north-weſt.

13. And when the ſouth-wind blew ſoftly, ſuppoſing that they had obtained their purpoſe, looſing (from that haven,) [c] they ſailed cloſe by Crete.

14. But not long after there aroſe againſt it (the ſhip) [d] a tempeſtuous wind, called Euroclydon.

15. And when the ſhip was caught, (i. e. driven along with it,) and [e] could not bear up into (i. e. reſiſt) the wind, we let her drive.

16. And running under a certain iſland, which is called Clauda, we had much work to come by the boat, (i. e. to draw it to us.)

17. Which when they had taken up, they uſed helps, undergirding the ſhip (with ropes, to preſerve it from ſplitting,) and fearing leſt they ſhould fall into the quick-ſands, (they) ſtruck ſail, and ſo were driven.

18. And being exceedingly toſſed with a tempeſt, the next day they lightned the ſhip;

19. And the third day we caſt out with our hands the tackling of the ſhip.

20. And when neither ſun, nor ſtars, in many days appeared, and no ſmall tempeſt lay upon us, all hope that we ſhould be ſaved, (or eſcape) was then taken away.

21. But after long abſtinence, Paul ſtood forth in the midſt of them, and ſaid, Sirs, ye ſhould have hearkened to me, and [f] not have looſed from Crete, and to have gained (i. e. ſuſtained) this harm and loſs.

22. And now I exhort you to be of good cheer, for there ſhall be no loſs of (any man's) life among you, but of the ſhip (only.)

23. For there ſtood by me this night the angel of God, whoſe (Apoſtle) I am, and whom I ſerve,

24. Saying, Fear not, Paul, thou muſt be brought before Cæſar, and lo, God hath given thee (the life of) all them that ſail with thee, (provided they will hearken to thee.)

25. Wherefore, ſirs, be of good cheer, for I believe (in) God, (and therefore reſt aſſured,) that it ſhall be even as it was told me:

26. Howbeit we muſt be caſt upon a certain iſland.

27. But (and) when the fourteenth night was come, as we were driven up and down in Adria, about midnight the ſhip-men deemed that they drew near to ſome country.

28. And (they) ſounded (with their plummet,) and found it twenty fathoms (of water,) and when they had gone a little farther, they ſounded again, and found it (the water) fifteen fathoms (deep.)

29. Then

29. Then fearing leſt they ſhould have fallen upon rocks, they caſt four anchors out of the ſtern, and wiſhed for the day, (that by the help of the light they might diſcern the ſhore.)

30. And as the ſhip-men were about (Gr. and the ſhip-men ſeeking) to flee out of the ſhip, (to that end) when they had let down the boat into the ſea, under colour, as if they would have caſt anchor out of the fore-ſhip;

31. Paul ſaid to the Centurion, and to the ſoldiers, g Except theſe (mariners) abide in the ſhip (to conduct it,) ye cannot be ſaved.

32. Then the ſoldiers cut off the ropes of the boat, and let her fall off.

33. And while the day was coming on, Paul beſought them all to take meat, (i. e. he exhorted them to eat, till the day appearing they might employ themſelves otherwiſe,) ſaying, h This day is the fourteenth day that ye have tarried, and continued faſting, having eaten nothing, (i. e. obſerved no times of eating.)

34. Wherefore I pray you to take ſome meat, for this is for your health, (and let not the fear of death hinder you,) for there ſhall not an hair fall from the head of any of you, (ye ſhall not die.)

35. And when he had thus ſpoken, he took bread, and gave thanks to God in the preſence of them all; and when he had broken it, he began to eat.

36. Then were they all of good cheer, and they alſo took ſome meat.

37. And we were in all in the ſhip two hundred threeſcore and ſixteen ſouls, (i. e. perſons.)

38. And when they had eaten enough, they lightned the ſhip, and caſt out the wheat into the ſea.

39. And when it was day, they knew not (i. e. diſcerned not) the land, but they diſcovered a certain creek, with a ſhore, into which they were minded, if it were poſſible to thruſt in the ſhip.

40. And when they had taken up the anchors, they committed themſelves to the ſea, and looſed the rudder-bands, and hoiſted up the main ſail to the wind, and made towards ſhore.

41. And falling into a place where two ſeas met, they ran the ſhip on ground, and the fore-part ſtuck faſt, and remained unmoveable, but the hinder part was broken with the violence of the waves.

42. And the ſoldiers counſel was to kill the priſoners, leſt any of them ſhould ſwim out, and eſcape (juſtice.)

43. But the Centurion (being) willing to ſave Paul, kept them from their purpoſe, and commanded that they who could ſwim, ſhould caſt themſelves firſt into the ſea, and get to land.

44. And the reſt (got) ſome on boards, and ſome on broken pieces of the ſhip, and ſo it came to paſs that they eſcaped all ſafe to land.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XXVII.

Ver. 2. [a] ONE Ariſtarchus.] He was a convert of Macedonia, who accompanied Paul in his travels from Macedonia to Jeruſalem, Acts 19. 29.——20. 4. was a co-adjutor with him in the work of the Goſpel, Philem. 24. went with him to Rome, and was there in bonds with him, Coloſſ. 4. 10. and is therefore here taken notice of as a companion of St. Paul's.

Ver. 9. [b] And ſailing was now dangerous, διὰ τὸ καὶ τὴν νηστείαν ἤδη παρῆλυθέναι, becauſe the faſt was now already paſt;] That is, the annual faſt of expiation for the ſins of the people of Iſrael, which began on the tenth of the month Tiſri, anſwering to the 25th of our September, was already paſt, and ſo the time of ſailing became dangerous by reaſon of the winter, and of the Michaelmas flows which were then upon the ſea. Thus (a) Philo informs us, that this feaſt of tabernacles was held μετὰ τὴν μετοπωρινὴν ἰσημερίαν, after the winter equinoctial; and the ſame feaſt of tabernacles, which was on the 15th of the ſame month, is ſaid by (b) Joſephus to be celebrated, τριακοστῷ τὸ λοιπὸν τοῦ καιροῦ σπεῖρε τὸ χειμέριον ἄρξει, when it began to be winter: And (c) Philo adds, that Flaccus was carried from Egypt to Rome, ἀρχομένου χειμῶνος, at the beginning of winter, ἦν γὰρ αὐτὸν καὶ τὸν ἐν θαλάττῃ φορεῖρων, ἀπολαῦσαι, it being fit that he who had diſturbed all things by land, ſhould be diſturbed by the tempeſts of the ſea; and in his (d) Legatio ad Flaccum, he ſaith, that the beginning of autumn was τελευταῖος πλοῦς τοῖς θαλαττεύουσιν, the laſt time for mariners to put to ſea. See more of this in Dr. Hammond's Note upon the place.

Ver. 13. [c] Ἄσσον παρελέγοντο τὴν Κρήτην, They ſailed cloſe by Crete.] The Vulgar hath made this the proper name of a place, and indeed there was ſuch a place near Troas, and Mitylene, mentioned, Acts 20. 13, 14. but that was at too wide a diſtance from Crete, to be here mentioned; there were four other places of that name mentioned by Scmidius here, but none of them were near Crete; Stephanus, as is cited by Lorinus, ſaith, Aſſos

(a) In Flaccum, p. 760. (b) Antiq. l. 3. c. 10. F. (c) Ibid. p. 761. (d) P. 770. B.

Aſſos is πολίχνιον Κρήτης, a little city of Crete; but then Pliny informs us, that it was not a ſea-port, but ſituated in Mediterraneo, in the Mediterranean, l. 4. c. 12. p. 213. Others therefore think this is an adverb uſed by Homer, Heſiod, and Herodotus, to ſignify quickly, or near to the place, as Phavorinus and other Grammarians ſay it doth, and ſo the whole ſhould be rendred thus, looſing from the incommodious harbour, mentioned ver. 12. with a favourable wind, propius præterlegebant Cretam, they ſailed by Crete near to it.

Ver. 14. [d] Ἄνεμος τυφωνικὸς ὁ καλούμενος Εὐρακύλων, A tempeſtuous wind called Euroclydon.] Ventus typhonicus, ſaith (e) Pliny, is a whirl-wind, and the name of it here mentioned, is thought by Grotius, Bochart, and Dr. Hammond, to be εὐρυαζύλων, as it is rendred by the vulgar, that is, the north-eaſt wind, that being oppoſite to the ſouth-weſt wind, mentioned, ver. 12.

Ver. 15. [e] We could not ἀντοφθαλμεῖν τῷ ἀνέμῳ, bear up againſt the wind.] So the word properly imports, but metaphorically, we could not reſiſt, or ſtand up againſt the force of it; ſo (f) Polybius ſaith of the Meſſenians, that they could not, ἀντοφθαλμεῖν πρὸς τὴν ὁρμὴν τῶν Λακεδαιμονίων, reſiſt the force of the Lacedemonians; and that they could not πρὸς τὴν ὁρμὴν ἀντοφθαλμεῖν, reſiſt their impreſſions. See more inſtances in Budæus and Bois.

Ver. 21. [f] Ἔδει μὲν μὴ ἀνάγεσθαι, You ſhould not have looſed from Crete, κερδῆσαι, τὴν τε ὕβριν ταύτην, καὶ ζημίαν, to have gained this harm and loſs.] Great induſtry is uſed here to carry off theſe words from their native ſenſe, to make ὕβρις ſignify a tempeſt, and κερδαίνειν, to eſcape, whereas there needeth no ſuch artifice, for it was indeed ὕβρις, an infamy to them to be ſuch unſkilful mariners as to put to ſea when the ſeaſon of the year rendred their voyage ſo dangerous; and having been forced, for their own ſafety, to lighten the ſhip, and to caſt out ſome of her lading, and tackling, to preſerve themſelves, they might well be ſaid, κερδαίνειν τὴν ζημίαν ταύτην, jacturam hanc lucri in loco ponere, or to count this loſs their gain; the particle μὴ, which here ſeems neceſſary to be repeated, ſhews that κερδαίνειν here cannot ſignify to eſcape, ſeeing the ſenſe would then run thus, Ye ſhould not have eſcaped this loſs. Though, ſince, κερδαίνειν ſeems to bear this ſenſe in thoſe words of (g) Ariſtotle ὃν τις λόγον ζημίαν μὲν λαβεῖν τὸ πιεῖν κερδαίνοντα εὐτυχῆ φαμὲν, we call him fortunate, who eſcapes that puniſhment or damage he reaſonably might have ſuffered; in this ſenſe the words run thus, you ſhould not have looſed from Crete, but ſtayed there, that you might have eſcaped this infamy and loſs.

Ver. 31. [g] Except theſe abide in the ſhip ye cannot be ſaved.] This ſhews, as Grotius well notes, that what was ſaid, ver. 21. was to be underſtood with this limitation, ſi me audiatis, if ye will hearken to my counſel; and alſo with this proviſo, that you will do that which is in your power, and God hath given you ſkill and ability to do; for in all promiſes in which God is ſaid to give this or that, this muſt be underſtood, becauſe he hath already given that, which he hath given us faculties, or abilities and wiſdom to obtain; ſo that we cannot want or fall ſhort of it, unleſs we wilfully neglect to uſe the faculties which God hath given us for that end: They therefore having with them mariners, ſkilled in conducting of the ſhip, and power ſufficient to retain them in it, St. Paul informs them, that God's promiſe of their ſafety was to be effective by their means.

Ver. 33. [h] This is the fourteenth day that ye have continued faſting, having taken nothing.] It being impoſſible for them, without a miracle, to continue faſting fourteen days without eating any thing, ſome render the words thus, You have continued expecting the fourteenth day as a critical day, which they were either to find ſafety in, or were not like to out-live; but as we read nothing of ſuch a critical day; ſo the πολλὴ ἀσιτία, long faſting, mentioned ver. 21. and continued till this day, proves the contrary. The meaning therefore ſeems to be this, that they had no ſet times of eating, but what they ate was ſeldom, little, and without order, or aſſembling together for that end. Thus (*) Zetzes ſaith, that Heſiod ſpeaks thus, οὐδὲ τὸ σῖτον ἤσθιον, they ate no meat, διὰ τὸ μηδ' ἐν ταῖς καιρῶν τεταγμένων —— ἐσθίειν, becauſe they ate not at meal-times.

CHAP. XXVIII.

1. AND when they were eſcaped (to land,) then they knew that the iſland was called [a] Melita, (now Maltha.)

2. And the [b] barbarous people ſhewed us no little (or ordinary) kindneſs, for they kindled a fire, and received us every one (into their houſes,) becauſe of the preſent rain, and becauſe of the cold.

3. And when Paul had gathered a bundle of ſticks, and laid them (Gr. but Paul turning many ſticks, ſticks, and laying them) upon the fire, there came [c] a viper out of (from) the heat, and faſtned (herſelf) upon his hand.

(e) H. Nat. l. 2. c. 47. (f) L. 4. (g) Magn. mor. l. 2. c. 8. (*) Fol. 28.

4. And when the barbarians ſaw the venomous beaſt hang on his hand, they ſaid among themſelves, No doubt this man is a murderer, whom, though he hath eſcaped the ſea, yet (divine) vengeance ſuffereth not to live.

5. And he ſhook (Gr. then he ſhaking) off the beaſt into the fire, (and) felt no harm.

6. Howbeit, they looked when he ſhould have ſwollen, or fallen down dead ſuddenly; but after they had looked a great while, (i. e. expected this long,) and (yet) ſaw no harm come to him, they changed their minds, and (Gr. changing their minds, they) [d] ſaid, that he was a god.

7. (And) in the ſame quarters, (Gr. in that place,) were poſſeſſions (habitations) of the chief man (the governor) of the iſland, whoſe name was Publius, who received us (in to them,) and lodged us three days courteouſly.

8. And it came to paſs (Gr. ſo it was,) that the father of Publius lay ſick of a fever, and of a bloody flux; to whom Paul entred in, and prayed, and laid his hands on him, and healed him.

9. So when this was done, others alſo who had diſeaſes in the iſland, came, and were healed.

10. [e] Who alſo (Gr. and they) honoured us with many honours, (or preſented us with much proviſions;) and when we departed, they laded us with ſuch things as were neceſſary (for us.)

11. And after three months, we departed in a ſhip of Alexandria, which had wintered in the iſle, [f] whoſe ſign was Caſtor and Pollux.

12. And landing at Syracuſe, we tarried there three days.

13. And from thence we fetched a compaſs, and came to Rhegium; and after one day, the ſouth-wind blew, and we came the next day to [g] Puteoli.

14. Where we found (Chriſtian) brethren, and were deſired (I and Ariſtarchus,) to tarry with them ſeven days, and ſo we went towards Rome.

15. And from thence, when the [h] brethren (of Rome) heard of us, they came to meet us, (ſome) as far as Appii Forum, and (others to) the Three Taverns; whom when Paul ſaw, he thanked God, and took courage.

16. And when we came to Rome, the Centurion delivered the (other) priſoners to the Captain of the guard, (i. e. of the prætorian band;) [i] but Paul was ſuffered to dwell by himſelf, with a ſoldier that kept him.

17. And it came to paſs, that after three days, Paul called the chief of the Jews together; and when they were come together, he ſaid to them, Men and brethren, though I have committed nothing againſt the people, or cuſtoms of our fathers, yet was I delivered priſoner from Jeruſalem into the hands of the Romans.

18. Who, when they had examined me, would have let me go, becauſe there was no cauſe of death in me.

19. But when the Jews ſpake againſt it, I was conſtrained to appeal to Cæſar, not that I had ought to accuſe my nation of.

20. For this cauſe therefore have I called for you, to ſee you, and to ſpeak with you; becauſe, that for (that Meſſiah, and that reſurrection which is) [k] the hope of Iſrael, [l] I am bound with this chain.

21. And they ſaid to him, We neither received letters out of Judea concerning thee, neither any of the brethren which came (hither,) ſhewed, or ſpake any harm of thee:

22. But we deſire to hear of thee what thou thinkeſt (of them who are called Nazarenes;) for as concerning this ſect, we know that every where it is ſpoken againſt.

23. And when they had appointed him a day, there came many to him into his lodging, [m] to whom he expounded, and teſtified (that) the kingdom of God (was come,) perſuading them concerning Jeſus, (that he was the Chriſt,) both out of the law of Moſes, and out of the Prophets, from morning till evening.

24. And ſome believed the things which were ſpoken, and ſome believed not.

25. And when they agreed not among themſelves, they departed, after that Paul had ſpoken (Gr. Paul having ſpoken) one word (that nearly touched them, viz. ὅτι, that) well ſpake the Holy Ghoſt (i. e. rightly) by Eſaias the Prophet to our fathers,

26. Saying, Go to this people, and ſay (prophetically to them,) [n] Hearing ye ſhall (will) hear, and ſhall (will) not underſtand; and ſeeing ye ſhall (will) ſee, and (will) not perceive.

27. For the heart of this people is waxed groſs, and their ears are dull of hearing, (Gr. they hear heavily with their ears,) and their eyes have they cloſed, leſt they ſhould ſee with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and underſtand with their hearts, and ſhould be converted, (Gr. ſhould turn themſelves,) and I ſhould heal them.

28. Be it known therefore to you, that the ſalvation of God is ſent to the Gentiles, and that they will hear it.

29. And when he had ſaid theſe words, the Jews departed, and had great reaſoning among themſelves.

30. [o] And Paul dwelt two whole years in his own hired houſe, and received all that came in to him,

31. Preaching

31. Preaching the kingdom of God, and teaching thoſe things which concern the Lord Jeſus Chriſt with all confidence, no man forbidding him.

ANNOTATIONS on Chap. XXVIII.

Ver. 1. [a] Μελίτη, The iſland was called Melita.] It is now called Maltha, and is famous for the Knights of Rhodes, and hath yet a place called the Arrival or Haven of St. Paul; that it was this African Maltha, and not the other Illyrican Melite, or Melatine, ſee proved by Bochart. Phaleg. part. 2. l. 1. c. 26.

Ver. 2. [b] Οἱ δὲ βάρβαροι The barbarous people.] Dr. Lightfoot thinks, that theſe barbarians were Africans, brought thither by the Carthaginians when they had poſſeſſion of that iſland. Bochartus, from Diodorus Siculus, ſaith, they were Φοινίκων ἄποικοι, a colony of the Phœnicians, who ſailing upon their merchandize to the weſtern ocean, (a) καταφύγιὸν εἶχον ταύτην τὴν νῆσον εὐλιμένον ἔσαν, made this iſland their refuge, for the convenience of its havens; but the Phœnicians abounding in Africa, the difference betwixt theſe two opinions is not great. As for the word barbarous, (b) Strabo informs us, that it was the name πάντων τῶν παχυστομάτων given to all that ſpake groſs and rough language; and that afterwards the Greeks uſed it, ὡς ἐθνικῷ κοινῷ ὀνόματι ἀποδιαιροῦντες τοὺς Ἕλληνας, as a common name by which they diſtinguiſhed themſelves from other nations. However, theſe barbarous people were taught humanity by the light of nature; they had their notions of divine juſtice, or nemeſis, from tradition, they therefore did believe there was a providence which did protect and reward the good, and puniſh the evil-doer.

Ver. 3. [c] Ἔχιδνα, A Viper.] Of this viper, ſee Bochart. Hieroz. part. 2. l. 3. c. 2.

Ver. 6. [d] They ſaid he was a god.] Perhaps Hercules ἀλεξίκακος who was worſhipped in that iſland, ſaith (c) Ptolemy, and was one of the gods of the Phœnicians, Vide Lucian. de dea Syra, & Euſeb. Chron. N. 142.

Ver. 10. [e] Πολλαῖς τιμαῖς ἐτίμησαν ἡμᾶς, Who honoured us with many honours;] i. e. gave us many gifts and proviſions for our voyage: So what is thy name, ſaith Manoah to the angel, that we may do thee honour? Judg. 13. 17. ἵνα δωρεὰν δεξαχώμεθά σε, that we may tender thee a gift, ſaith Joſephus, ſee this import of the word τιμὴ, Note on 1 Tim. 5. 3.

Ver. 11. [f] Παρασήμῳ Διοσκούροις, whoſe ſign was Caſtor and Pollux.] The picture of theſe two ſuppoſed ſons of Jupiter, was painted on the fore-part of the ſhip, they being, in conjunction, thought propitious to mariners, and looked upon, when thus appearing, as a ſign of a tempeſt ceaſing; and yet in a ſhip having ſuch an idolatrous image, St. Paul refuſes not to ſail, nor doth St. Luke refuſe to uſe that name; theſe being uſed only as the name of the ſhip in which they ſailed, as Dr. Hammond here notes.

Ver. 13, 14. [g] We came to Puteoli, where we found brethren.] It is not to be wondred that there ſhould be Chriſtians there, ſeeing (d) Strabo informs us, that it was ἐμπόριον μέγιστον, a very great mart town, where there were havens made by art for the goodneſs of the river.

Ver. 15. [h] The brethren came to meet us as far as Appii Forum, and the Three Taverns.] Theſe Three Taverns were nearer to Rome than Appii Forum, as appears from the words of (e) Cicero to Atticus. It is not to be wondred that there ſhould be many Chriſtians then at Rome, though perhaps no Apoſtle had been there to preach to them. For ſince Chriſtianity had now continued twenty-eight years from the aſcenſion of our Saviour, and the ſound of it had gone through all the world, Rom. 10. 18. it is reaſonable to expect, that as it converted Cornelius and his kinſmen to the faith, ſo it ſhould prevail on many other Romans in all places; and that Rome being the place to which (f) ob majorem principatum, there was a general conflux from all places of the world, as both Heathen and Chriſtian writers have obſerved, it ſhould be ſtocked with Chriſtian brethren from all parts.

Ver. 17. [i] Τῷ δὲ Παύλῳ ἐπετράπη μένειν καθ' ἑαυτὸν, But Paul was permitted to dwell by himſelf.] They who were ſent priſoners out of the provinces, were uſually ſent to the (g) Præfectus Prætorii, or General of the camp, it was therefore a favour that St. Paul was thus permitted to dwell in his own hired houſe; and this kindneſs perhaps was ſhewn him, either through the teſtimony the Centurion had given of him as a good and virtuous man, or by reaſon of the letter ſent by Feſtus to Cæſar concerning him, that he was guilty of no crimes committed againſt the Roman laws.

Ver. 20. [k] For the hope of Iſrael;] i. e. either for my faith in Jeſus, the true Meſſiah, who is the hope of Iſrael; or for the hope of the reſurrection of the dead, Acts 26. 6. which the Jews expected from the Meſſiah.

Ibid. [l] I am bound with this chain.] Having a chain on his right-hand, by which he was bound to the ſoldier that kept him; the chain being alſo on the ſoldier's left-hand; and ſo long that they may go conveniently together. Thus (h) Athenion tells the men of Athens, that Mithridates had made Quintus Oppius Δέσμιον, a priſoner, or one bound with a chain, as St. Paul often ſpeaks, and had bound Manlius Aquilius ἀλύσῳ μακρᾷ, with a long chain to one Baſtarne, who being on horſeback, dragged him along on foot, bound to him with a chain five cubits long. Sometimes, for greater ſecurity, they were bound to two ſoldiers, by two chains, one faſtened to their right, the other to their left hand, as St. Peter was, Acts 12. 6, 7. and St. Paul, Acts 21. 33.

Ver. 23. [m] Οἷς ἐξετίθετο διαμαρτυρόμενος τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ, To whom he expounded, teſtifying the kingdom of God;] which they expected, Luke 2. 25, 38.—19. 11. was already come, and perſuading them of the truth of the things which he aſſerted concerning the birth, life, miracles, the death, the reſurrection and aſcenſion of the Lord Jeſus; he expounded what related to them out of the law and the Prophets, as Chriſt had done to his diſciples after his reſurrection, Luke 24. 26, 27.

Ver. 26, 27. [n] Hearing ye will hear, and will not underſtand, &c.] See the Note on Matth. 13. 12—15.

Ver. 30, 31. [o] Paul continued two years,—no man forbidding him.] Hence it appears, that there was no edict of Nero, or any preceeding Emperor, againſt the Chriſtians, till the tenth of Nero, i. e. the year after that Paul was looſed from his bonds. 2. Here we have the plain reaſon, why St. Luke ends his hiſtory, becauſe, as the Biſhop of Cheſter ſaith, St. Paul came not to Rome till the ſeventh of Nero in the month of February, and in the ninth of Nero; i. e. after two years, he was ſet at liberty, and leaving Rome, went into ſome other part of Italy, intending to go from thence into Judea, Heb. 13. 23, 24. and ſo here ends St. Paul's ſtay at Rome, and with that St. Luke's hiſtory.

AN APPENDIX

To Chapter the Second, ver. 27.

I Know not one objection againſt that expoſition which I have given of the phraſe, Thou wilt not leave my ſoul in hell; only it may be ſaid, that if this be the proper import of the words, we have no reaſon to believe that Chriſt deſcended into hell; for this can never be an article of Chriſtian faith, unleſs it be either expreſly, or virtually, delivered in that Scripture which is the rule of faith; now it is certain that it is not delivered in any other place of Scripture; not in thoſe words of the Apoſtle Paul, He that aſcended is the ſame that deſcended firſt into the lower parts of the earth, Eph. 4. 9. for that phraſe only ſignifies that Chriſt's body was buried in the earth, as Chryſoſtom, Theodoret, and Photius there ſay, not that his ſoul deſcended into hell; the phraſe is plainly taken from the Pſalmiſt's words, They that ſeek my ſoul to deſtroy it ſhall go into the lower parts of the earth, Pſal. 63. 9. where if it ſignifies they ſhall go to hell, the foxes muſt go thither alſo, for the words following are, they ſhall be a portion for foxes: Not from that paſſage of St. Peter, 1 Pet. 3. 19. by which ſpirit he went and preached to thoſe in priſon; for as they in priſon do not there ſignify thoſe who were naturally dead, but only the Gentiles dead in treſpaſſes and ſins, and by the Prophet Iſaiah thrice ſtiled οἱ ἐν φυλακῇ, they who are in priſon; ſo certain it is, the ſpirit by which he is ſaid to go, and preach to them, was not his own ſpirit, by ſeparation of which from the body he was dead, but the Holy Spirit by which he was quickened; for which reaſon St. Auſtin Ep. 99. pronounceth of this place, that omnino ad inferos non pertineat, it belongs not at all to Chriſt's deſcent into hell; if then it cannot be proved from this place, it muſt be owned that it hath no ſufficient ground at all in Scripture.

To this I anſwer, 1*ſt*, In the words of Biſhop Pearſon, 'That in the Aquileian creed, where this 'article was firſt expreſſed in the fourth century, 'there was no mention of Chriſt's burial; but the 'words of their confeſſion ran thus, crucified un- 'der Pontius Pilate, he deſcended in inferna. From 'whence there is no queſtion but the obſervation 'of Ruffinus, who firſt expounded it, was moſt 'true, that though the Roman and oriental creeds 'had not theſe words, yet they had the ſenſe of 'them in the word buried. It appeareth there-'fore that the firſt intention of putting theſe 'words in the creed, was only to expreſs the bu-'rial of our Saviour, or the deſcent of his body 'into the grave.' Now, doubtleſs, the burial of Chriſt's body, or its deſcent into the grave, is an article of faith clearly delivered in holy Scripture.

2*dly*, I add, that the phraſe καταβαίνειν, or κατέλθειν εἰς ᾅδου, or εἰς ᾅδην (τόπον) to deſcend into Hades, in the Old Teſtament, and the apocryphal writers ſtill ſignifies, to go down into the grave, or ſepulchre, and ſo cannot refer to the ſoul, but the body only; in this ſenſe Jacob ſays, Gen. 37. 35. καταβήσομαι εἰς ᾅδην, I will go down to the grave to my ſon mourning. So Numb. 16. 30, 33. if the earth ſwallow them up, καὶ καταβήσονται ζῶντες εἰς ᾅδου, and they go down alive into the pit, καὶ κατέβησαν εἰς ᾅδην, and they went down alive into the pit. Job 7. 9. ἐὰν ἀνθρωπος καταβῇ εἰς ᾅδου, if a man go down to the grave he ſhall come up no more; and Chap. 17. 16. καταβήσονται εἰς ᾅδου, they ſhall go down to the grave, they ſhall reſt in the duſt; Iſa. 14. 11. καταβήτω εἰς ᾅδην ἡ δόξα σου, thy pomp is gone down to the grave, the worm is ſpread under thee; and ver. 19. thou ſhalt be as thoſe that are dead, καταβεβρωθὼν εἰς ᾅδην, like thoſe that go down into the grave. So Eſth. 13. 7. καταβάντες εἰς ᾅδου, they going down to the grave, we ſhall be free from trouble; and Baruch 3. 19. they are vaniſhed, καὶ εἰς ᾅδην κατέβησαν, and gone down to the grave. And according to this ſenſe which Dr. Hammond, and others put upon the words, he continued for ſome time in the grave, it alſo is a plain article of Chriſtian faith.

3*dly*, It is moſt certain, that though the creeds of the Church were very numerous, yet in none of them was this deſcent into hell found till the cloſe of the fourth century, when it was firſt put into the ſymbol of the Church of Aquileia; for, ſaith the reverend Biſhop Pearſon, 'It is not to be 'found in the rules of faith delivered by Irenæus, 'l. 1. cap. 2. by Origen, lib. περὶ ἀρχῶν, in Procem. 'or by Tertullian, adv. Praxeam, cap. 2. de Virg. 'veland. cap. 1. de Præſcript. adv. Her. cap. 13. 'It is not expreſſed in thoſe creeds which were 'made by the councils, as larger explications of 'the Apoſtles creed: Not in the Nicene, or Con- 'ſtantinopolitan; not in that of Epheſus or Chalce- 'don; not in thoſe confeſſions made at Sardica, 'Antioch, Seleucia, Sirmium, &c. It is not men- 'tioned in ſeveral confeſſions of faith delivered 'by particular perſons; not in that of Euſebius 'Ceſarienſis, preſented to the council of Nice, 'Theodoret. l. 1. c. 2. not in that of Marcellus, 'Biſhop of Ancyra, delivered to Pope Julius, Epi- 'phan. Hæ. 72. not in that of Arius and Euzoius, 'preſented to Conſtantine, Socrat. l. 1. c. 19. not 'in that of Acacius, Biſhop of Ceſarea, delivered 'in to the Synod of Seleucia, Socrat. l. 2. c. 40. 'not in that of Euſtathius, Theophilus, and Silva- 'nus, ſent to Liberius, Socrat. l. 4. c. 11. There 'is no mention of it in the creed of St. Baſil, 'Tract. de fide in Aſceticis; in the creed of Epi- 'phanius, in Ancorato, c. 120. or of Gelaſius, Da- 'maſus, Macarius, &c. It is not in the creed ex- 'pounded by St. Cyril, though ſome have pro- 'duced that creed to prove it; it is not in the 'creed expounded by St. Auſtin, de fide & ſym- 'bolo; not in that de ſymbolo ad catechumenos, 'attributed to St. Auguſtin; not in that which is 'expounded by Maximus Taurinenſis; not in that 'ſo often interpreted by Petrus Chryſologus; 'nor in that of the church of Antioch, delivered 'by Caſſian, de Incarn. l. 6. neither is it to be 'ſeen in the MS. creeds ſet forth by the learned 'Archbiſhop of Armagh. Indeed it is affirmed by 'Ruffinus, that in his time it was neither in the 'Roman, nor the oriental creeds, Sciendum ſane 'eſt, quod in Eccleſiæ Romanæ ſymbolo non ha- 'betur additum, deſcendit ad inferna, ſed nec in 'orientis eccleſiis habetur hic ſermo. Ruff. in 'Expoſit. Symboli. It is certain therefore, (nor 'can we diſprove it by any acknowledged evi- 'dence of antiquity,) that the article of the de- 'ſcent into hell was not in the Roman, or any of 'the oriental creeds.' Now, had they conceived thoſe creeds in which this article was wanting deficient, in a neceſſary point of Chriſtian doctrine, could they have ſtiled all, or any of them a perfect confeſſion, comprizing the whole doctrine of faith, the whole of Chriſtian doctrine, the comprehenſion and perfection of the Chriſtian faith, a compriſal of all the articles of faith, a ſymbol that ſpeaks of every part of faith, the faith ſufficient for ſalvation, the life-giving, the ſaving faith, the ſaving knowledge, the only truth which they received from the Apoſtles, the only rule which admits of no correction, no addition, and no diminution, the only faith delivered by the Church to be kept by her children? Could they have told us, that the moſt learned could believe no more, and the meaneſt Chriſtian did believe no leſs; that they needed know no more, that they deſired to believe no more, that they believed this firſt, that nothing more was to be believed, that in it nothing was to be innovated? Could they have ſaid expreſly, that the Apoſtles delivered in it whatſoever they thought neceſſary for all believers; and that they indited it to be a mark by which he ſhould be known, who preached Chriſt truly according to the rules of the Apoſtles; and by producing of which it might be known, ſaith Ruffinus, whether he were an enemy or a companion? And laſtly, could their great and general councils have defined ſo often, that it ſhould be lawful for no man (a) ἑτέραν πίστιν προφέρειν, γράφειν συγγράφειν, ἢ συντίθεναι, to introduce, write, or compoſe another faith beſides that which was defined by the Nicene council: Theſe are the words of the third general council, where preſided that Cyril of Alexandria, who, in his letter to John of Antioch, ſaith, We by no means permit the faith defined ἤτοι τὴν ὑπὸ τῶν ἁγίων πατέρων συμβολον, or the ſymbol of faith made by the holy fathers met at Nice, to be ſhaken by any; nor do we ſuffer ourſelves or others to change one word, or tranſgreſs one ſyllable of what is there contained. This epiſtle, ſaith Mark, Biſhop of Epheſus, was read and approved by the fourth general council, which alſo decreed, (b) μηδενὶ μηδόλως ἐξεῖναι, προσθεῖναι τῷ συμβόλῳ τούτῳ, ἢ ἀφελεῖν ἀπ' αὐτοῦ, that it ſhould be lawful for no man to add any thing to this ſymbol, or take any thing from it, or to change it at all, or transform it into another ſymbol. (c) Athanaſius ſpeaking of the ſynod of Ariminum, ſaith, That the orthodox, and true ſervants of the Lord defined, that men ſhould be contented with that faith alone, which was held at Nice, ᾧ μηδὲν πλέον ἢ ἔλαττον παρ' ἐκεῖνα ζητεῖν καὶ φρονεῖν, and mind, and ſeek for nothing more or leſs, and that they depoſed them who taught the contrary. And again, That they ſhould (d) μηδὲν πλέον ζητεῖν, ſeek for nothing more than than what was confeſſed by the fathers at Nice. In the 5th general ſynod, John, Patriarch of Conſtantinople, ſaith, We have taken care, (e) ἡ σαφέστατον τὸ πίστεως καὶ τῶν ἁγίων πατέρων ὁμόσε σωθῆναι ἀβλαβῆ διαμένον, that the foundation of faith might remain inviolate according to the tradition of the holy fathers. And this determination they declared was made,

1*ſt*, Becauſe this venerable ſymbol, ſaith the general council of Chalcedon, (f) ἀρκεῖ εἰς ἐπίγνωσιν εὐσεβοῦς καὶ ἀληθείας, ſufficeth to the perfect knowledge of the truth; and as the Biſhop of Epheſus well notes upon that place, It is manifeſt, (g) ὅτι τῷ τελείῳ οὐδὲν ἐλλείπει, nothing more is wanting to what is perfect; they alſo ſaid there was no need of adding any thing to it, becauſe it was ſufficient, (h) εἰς ἀναίρεσιν πάσης ἀσεβοῦς αἱρέσεως, for the ſubverſion of every wicked hereſy, πᾶσαν ἀσεβεστάτην αἵρεσιν ἀναιρῆσαι, to overthrow all the moſt ungodly hereſies, and that it was ἐπιγραφὴ καὶ πάσης αἱρέσεως, an inſcription as upon a pillar againſt all hereſies.

2*dly*, Becauſe they would not alter the tradition they had received from their fore-fathers: We, ſaith Cyril in the general council of Epheſus, have taken this care that nothing ſhould be added to, or altered in the Nicene ſymbol, as being mindful of him that ſaid, (i) μὴ μέταιρε ὅρια αἰώνια ἃ ἔθεντο οἱ πατέρες σου, Remove not the ancient bounds which thy fathers have ſet.

3*dly*, Becauſe they would not give occaſion to any to ſuſpect their faith imperfect, or that any article of faith was wanting in the creeds already made. Thus the ſynod of Sardis decreed, μηδὲν ἔτι δεῖ πίστεως γεγράφθαι, that nothing more ſhould be written touching the faith, but that all ſhould reſt ſatisfied with the faith confeſſed by the Nicene fathers, (k) διὰ τὸ μηδὲν αὐτῇ λείπειν, becauſe it was deficient in nothing; and ἵνα μὴ ἡ Νικαία γεγραφυῖα ὡς ἀτελὴς ὅσα νομίζῃ, leſt that of Nice ſhould be eſteemed imperfect, and a pretence ſhould be given to as many as will to write, and define touching the faith. The orthodox fathers in the council of Ariminum profeſſed, (l) That they were children of the Nicene fathers, but if, ſay they, we ſhould dare to take away any thing from what they have written, ἢ προσθεῖναί τι, or add any thing to it, we ſhould be ſpurious children, καλήσοιεν τῷ γεγονέναι ψευδῶνυμοι, as being accuſers of what they did, who delivered ἀκριβῆ κανόνα τῆς πίστεως, an exact rule of faith. And again they declare it, (m) ἐπικίνδυνον, a dangerous thing to add any thing to, or take any thing from the Nicene creed, becauſe if either of theſe things ſhould be done, ἵνα τοῖς ἐχθροῖς ἄδεια ᾖ ποιεῖν ἅπερ βούλονται, the enemies would have liberty to do what they would. And Athanaſius in his (n) epiſtle to John and Antiochus his Preſbyters, commands them, τοὺν πλέον τι τούτου ἢ ἔλαττον λαλεῖν θέλοντας ἀποκρίνεσθαι, to reject them who would ſay more or leſs than was contained in that creed. And the Biſhop of Epheſus well argues, (o) That we can ſuffer nothing by keeping to the ſame faith which the divine fathers confeſſed and believed, ſince none but mad-men can accuſe it of imperfection.

Now, hence it demonſtratively follows, that theſe creeds which wanted this article muſt be a perfect digeſt of all things neceſſary to be believed now, and throughout all ſucceeding ages of the world; for how can it be neceſſary for any Chriſtian to have more in his creed than the Apoſtles, and the Chriſtians of the four firſt centuries had? May the Churches of after-ages make the narrow way to life more narrow than our Saviour, his Apoſtles, and the Fathers left it? When the whole Church hath ſo expreſly taught that this faith was ſufficient for the perfect knowledge of the truth, that in it nothing was deficient, may others yet come after them, and by adding to them any other article, remove the ancient bounds which our fathers have ſet? What reaſon can any man give why any perſon ſhould not be ſaved now by the ſame faith which was ſufficient for ſalvation in the days of the Apoſtles, and the firſt four centuries? Are we wiſer than they? Or, are our Doctors more learned, or more faithful? Is there another covenant made with the Church ſince their days? Are other terms of ſalvation ſince made? Or, is God leſs merciful to us than he was to them? Is not the famous rule of Lirinenſis this, Quod ab omnibus, quod ubique, quod ſemper? That which was always, and every where believed of all, that is the rule of faith. And muſt it not hence follow, that there can be no new article, no declaration obliging us to believe any thing which was not always matter of the Chriſtian faith? I conclude this head with the words of the judicious Dr. Barrow, 'That the inſerting this, 'not only as an article diſtinct from Chriſt's 'death, burial, and continuance in the ſtate of 'death,

'death, but also necessary to be believed as such, 'reflects upon the more ancient compilers, both 'of this, and other breviaries of faith, as the Nicene, and Constantinopolitan councils, Irenæus, Tertullian, &c. who left it out; which they should 'not have done, if it contain any thing highly 'material, and different from what is here otherwise expressed; whose credit is (as I conceive) 'more to be tendred than that of their juniors 'and followers, unknown to us; and so much the 'more, for that in a matter of this kind, defect, 'or omission, is less tolerable, than any redundance of expression; which inconvenience may 'seem in a manner to reach higher, even to St. Paul himself; who, in the 15th chapter of his 'first epistle to the Corinthians, declaring the sum 'of what he both learned and taught concerning 'our Saviour's last grand performances, only mentions his death, burial, and resurrection; I delivered unto you first, says he, that Christ died for 'our sins, according to the Scriptures, and that he was buried, and, that he rose again the third day; 'which enumeration of his, we may, it seems, 'well acquiesce in, as sufficient and complete, 'and may thence, with great probability, infer, 'that no other descent of our Saviour into hell, 'beside his death and burial, was by him understood, or delivered in his catechetical discourses 'and preachings, as a point of faith.'

4thly, I add, that these words may be admitted as a distinct article of faith, contained in the holy Scriptures, in a very good sense, very agreeable to the word descent, and to the import of the word Hades; for the Scripture doth assure us, that the soul of the holy Jesus, being separated from his body, went to Paradise, Luke 23. 43. And thence it must descend into the grave or sepulchre to be united to his body, that it might be revived, and thus it may be truly said, he was dead and buried, his soul descended afterwards into Hades, to be united to his body, and his body being thus revived, he rose again the third day. Hence Grotius, on that place of St. Luke, saith, qui symbolo fidei Christianæ ascripserunt, καὶ ἀνέστη ἐκ νεκρῶν Christi verbis optime id tueri potuerunt, they who added this article to the symbol of faith, may best defend themselves by those words: Nor, saith he, was this addition superfluous, seeing it proves the separate existence of the soul from the body, which many philosophers denied, and others doubted of.
